OF CANCER

Evidence Grows For Virus Cause

NEW YORK (UPI) — There is increasing evidence that many forms of human cancer are caused by viruses and hope is growing that vaccines eventually will be developed to prevent some cancers, several scientists said today.

But researchers have not yet come up with conclusive proof linking human cancers with viruses and one scientist, Dr. Howard M. Temin, professor of cancer research at the University of Wisconsin, said he does not believe there is a direct connection between human cancers and viruses.

A specific virus must be found to cause a cancer before an anti-cancer vaccine can be developed. And even then, one researcher attending a national conference sponsored by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute predicted it will be five to 10 years at least before cancer vaccines can be safely used in man.

In another report, Dr. Brian E. Henderson, of the University of Southern California School of Medicine, said his studies have found no evidence supporting earlier reports that human breast cancer may be spread by viruses in mothers' milk.

Dr. Friedrich W. Dierhard, chairman of the department of microbiology at Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago, predicted in a paper prepared for the opening session that actual isolation of the first human cancer causing viruses should not be too far away.

"C-type viruses cause sarcomas (malignant tumors) and leukemias in many and probably all animal species and, as it is unlikely that man differs in this respect, we may expect to find similar agents in man," he said.

Dr. Werner Henle, professor of virology at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, said a virus known as Epstein-Barr is a strong contender for the first proven human tumor virus because of its inferred association with Hodgkin's Disease, leukemia and some other malignant diseases.

"There are now a whole slew of human viruses commonly seen by the population under natural conditions that we know have potential cancer properties in experimental systems," said Dr. Fred Rapp, Chairman of the Department of microbiology at the Pennsylvania State University School of Medicine.

Briscoe Reveals Program

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe has recommended a 55-mile-an-hour speed limit for all vehicles, shorter school hours during the winter and cooler offices and homes as ways "we can meet this energy crisis without severely dislocating our economy."

Briscoe asked the Texas Highway Commission Wednesday to impose one 55 mile an hour speed limit for all drivers in Texas. He said President Nixon's suggestions for a speed limit of 50 miles an hour for cars and a 55 mile an hour limit for trucks and buses is unsafe and will not save much more fuel than a uniform 55 miles an hour limit.

He said he wants schools to lower temperatures in classrooms, schedule extracurricular activities—including the traditional Friday night football games—during daylight hours and dismiss all classes by 2:30 p.m. during January, February and March.

He asked homeowners, apartment dwellers and office workers to lower thermostats, preferably to 65 degrees. He asked for a moratorium on display and advertising lights after midnight.

"It means if we all cooperate—government, industry and private citizens—that we might be able to head off rationing," Briscoe said. "It also means we can meet this energy crisis without severely dislocating our economy."

"If we fail to take these measures we may wake one morning and discover we don't have the jobs and the paychecks to support the comforts and maintain the standard of living we have worked so hard to achieve. For the time being, we are asking only for the elimination of luxuries and frills," he said.

"We are asking only that we stop wasting our precious fuel so there will be enough fuel for the essentials."

Other measures Briscoe recommended included:

—A 25 per cent reduction of fuel use by state agencies.

—Thermostats set at 65 degrees in winter and 78 in summer when air conditioning is required in all state buildings except schools and hospitals.

—Car pools for state employees.

—Adjusting cleaning schedules for custodians in state buildings to avoid night work.

—Purchasing the "smallest cars possible to do the job" by state agencies.

—A 15 per cent reduction in energy use by public schools.

Egyptian, Israeli Troop Talks Break Down, Tension Grows

APPROVAL NEAR — With the House Judiciary Committee approving his nomination today, Gerald R. Ford has moved to the threshold of becoming the nation's 40th vice president.

Nomination Nearing Final Confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald R. Ford moved to the threshold of becoming the nation's 40th vice president today when the House Judiciary Committee approved his nomination. Final confirmation is scheduled next week.

The committee vote was 29 to 8.

The Senate approved Ford, 92 to 3, Tuesday and a similarly overwhelming House vote has been forecast by Ford's supporters—and critics—by next Thursday. He hopes to be sworn into office immediately afterward.

This is the first time that a vice president has been subjected to congressional confirmation—under a constitutional amendment that was one of the outgrowths of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy—and there is no precedent for a swearing-in.

Ford plans to confer with House and Senate leaders shortly on the manner of his oath-taking, but the present House Republican leader was said to prefer a ceremony within minutes after final confirmation—at a joint congressional session.

Those voting against Ford in the Judiciary Committee were all Democrats: Reps. Robert Kastenmeyer, Wis.; Don Edwards, Calif.; John Conyers Jr., Mich.; Jerome Walde, Calif.; Robert Drinan, Mass.; Charles Rangel, N.Y.; Barbara Jordan, Tex.; and Elizabeth Holtzman, N.Y.

A Republican-turned-Democrat, Rep. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., said that when Ford is sworn in as the 40th vice president, it "will prove fatal to Mr. Nixon's efforts to retain the presidency."

Riegle said in an article in The New York Times that while Spiro T. Agnew was vice president, "it was impossible to seriously consider removing Mr. Nixon with Mr. Agnew as alternative president."

Chaplin Facing Perjury Charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dwight L. Chapin, President Nixon's former appointments secretary, was indicted today on four counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury.

The indictment was returned by a federal grand jury impaneled last August to investigate alleged "dirty tricks" in the 1972 presidential campaign and related matters stemming from the Watergate case.

Chapin, who left the White House staff early this year and is now an official with United Airlines, was charged with four counts of making false declarations to the Watergate panel last April 11.

The charges are similar to perjury and are punishable by a maximum penalty of $10,000 and five years in prison on each count.

Each count of the indictment, opened by Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, charged Chapin lied about his relationship with Donald H. Segretti, an old college chum of Chapin's who recently pleaded guilty to a three-count charge of violating federal election laws.

Segretti is serving a six-month sentence in a federal detention facility in California.

By United Press International Egyptian-Israeli talks on troop pullbacks from the Suez Canal broke down today with "no concrete results reached" and no date fixed for further talks, United Nations officials said. The Egyptian chief negotiator said the situation was "very, very bad."

The one-hour meeting took place less than two miles from an outburst of machine gun and mortar fire along the tense 35-day-old cease-fire lines. Egyptian and Israeli liaison officers under a United Nations flag tried to investigate the shooting, but were pinned down by crossfire and forced to withdraw.

Maj. Gen. Ensis-Silasvuo, commander of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF), who was at the meeting, said, "No concrete results have been reached. No firm date for the next meeting has been fixed. I shall remain in touch with both parties."

There was no immediate comment on the truce meeting from any of the participants except for the cryptic comment to newsmen of the chief Egyptian negotiator.

The half-hour outbreak of shooting was clearly visible from the khaki desert tent where Israeli Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv and Egyptian Maj. Gen. Mohammed Gamassy met to discuss the only issue standing in the way of face-to-face peace talks between their two countries.

A pool reporter accompanying the Egyptian delegation to the talks said the firing appeared to come from an Israeli troop position only 500 yards from the conference tent. Israeli national radio described the incident as "an exchange of fire" lasting about 30 minutes.

The shooting ended before Gamassy and Yariv broke off the meeting and left for their respective capitals. They did not agree on a date for another meeting.

Diplomatic sources in Cairo said the United States had applied new pressure on Israel to clear away the paralyzing impasse.

The sources said the pressure and Israel's response to it accounted for the postponement of Wednesday's scheduled truce meeting at the Kilometer 101 checkpoint on the Cairo-Suez highway 60 miles from the Egyptian capital.

The Arab leaders, including kings and presidents from 16 countries, also made plans to bankroll another war with Israel if it becomes necessary, according to sources at the Algiers meeting.

Press reports in Tel Aviv said the Israeli government reviewed its negotiating position Wednesday in direct consultation with Washington.

Official sources in Cairo said U.S. pressure on Israel had raised new hopes the truce talks at the Kilometer 101 checkpoint would move off dead center.

At the heart of the cease-fire deadlock was a dispute between Israel and Egypt over how the two sides would withdraw their troops from areas near the Suez Canal.

Egypt wants to keep two full divisions on the Sinai Peninsula, but Israel had demanded that the Egyptian force be reduced to a small, symbolic contingent, according to officials on both sides.

NWS Predicts Warmer Winter

By United Press International The National Weather Service has come up with what may prove to be its most closely watched forecast—a broad-brush picture of where it will be warmer and where it will be colder this winter.

The difference will be shivers or warmth for Americans faced with a shortage of heating fuel that threatens to last until the spring.

In short, the service forecast warmer temperatures in the Midwest and most of the South and Southwest and colder than average readings for the West Coast and the Northern Great Plains. Temperatures for the East Coast, the Central Great Plains and Southern California were expected to go either way.

A spokesman for the agency called the December-February forecast "highly speculative" and noted that while similar reports have been prepared for the last 15 years for use by government agencies, they have not been made public because they were "considered too marginal in reliability for general release."

Public Interest Intense They were announced this year because of intense public interest, he said.

Their oil embargo against the United States and the Netherlands, whom they have cut off for being allies of Israel, was extended to the white regimes of South Africa and Rhodesia, and to Portugal, which has territories in Africa.

Price Requests Defense To Rescind APC Order

Congressman Bob Price of Pennsylvania is urging the Defense Department to rescind an order that military vehicles on loan to local governments be collected, modified and returned.

Price, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said Armed Personnel Carriers (APCs) used by at least four counties in the 13th Congressional District have saved human lives and moved emergency Department plans.

Price said, "they no longer will be of use as rescue vehicles."

Price said he has received calls for help from sheriffs and county judges in Armstrong, Potter, Dallam and Hartley Counties and that any local government enjoying the use of a surplus APC is in similar straits.

The tracked, tank-like vehicles, now void of weapons and other military equipment, are used by county rescue units to reach motorists stranded in snow storms and to get feed to stranded cattle.

The Defense Department recently ordered the return of these loaned vehicles so that their high metal sides can be removed. Such a modification, however, would destroy the shelter capability the vehicles currently provide rescued persons and would leave only an open flat bed on a track, local officials have complained.

Commission To Discuss Task Force For Drugs

Gray County Commissioners will meet Saturday morning with representatives of the Pampa school district and the city to discuss formation of a task force committee to study drug abuse in Pampa and the county.

School Board President Ben Sturgeon and City Commissioner from Precinct One, Ray Thompson, are scheduled to meet with the county officers at the 9 a.m. meeting.

An open meeting of the school board Monday provided the forum for several members of the community to air their concerns about the drug problem facing the city and surrounding area.

It was brought up at the meeting that experimentation with marijuana, amphetamines and barbiturates is not as general as it has been in years past.

Taking the place of the widespread experimentation has been the formation of close-

Early Holiday Mailing Urged

Pampa postmaster Carl English today renewed his appeal for the early mailing of Christmas packages and cards.

"The energy crisis makes it necessary," English said, "to appeal to postal patrons to move the mailings up by at least one week."

He said packages should be in the post office by Dec. 3 instead of Dec. 10.

Christmas cards should be mailed by Dec. 8 instead of Dec. 15.

The postmaster said the energy crisis has caused many airline flights to be cancelled and fuel shortages have reduced to 50 miles an hour the speed at which post office vehicles will move mail from one city to another or to make local deliveries.

English said fuel shortages also will reduce the number of air taxis which the postal system uses to transport large amounts of mail.

So to assure delivery before Christmas, packages must be mailed by Dec. 3 and Christmas cards by Dec. 8, the postmaster concluded.

Earl Wilson

A fellow said the energy crisis is nothing new at his house: "For five years I haven't been able to get my brother-in-law to look for a job. Nowadays people marry for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer—but seldom for good. Taffy Tuttle figures her new boy friend is an optimist. He just asked Internal Revenue to take him off its mailing list."

Henry Youngman dreamed his wife was Brigitte Bardot—and all night she kept nagging him in French. (For more laughs see Earl Wilson on Page 6)

POLLY'S POINTERS

Spot Help Wanted
For Keepsake Quilt

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have a beautiful handmade quilt (the Monkey Wrench pattern) that my grandmother made about 85 years ago when fast colors and permanent press fabrics were unknown. It is not really dirty, except for one bad spot. I only use it as a top spread on special occasions. This is a treasured heirloom and is all very finely quilted. I would be afraid to send it to the dry cleaner and even more afraid to put it in the washer. Does anyone have any suggestions for cleaning this quilt? — ETHEL

DEAR POLLY — I love any kind of a sale, especially garage and thrift shop sales, but my Pet Peeve is finding a nice wooden spoon, etc., or a piece of pottery that has been marked with a marking pencil or something similar that is impossible to remove, even with vigorous sanding. I wish the people running such sales would realize that we do not want to buy things that have the prices permanently marked on them. — MRS. R. B.

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Mary B. whose rugs smell of cats and dogs that an underarm deodorant spray did the trick for me, and so easily that I felt dumb for not thinking of it before. (Test the effect on an inconspicuous part of your rug before proceeding.) — ANN

DEAR POLLY and Mary B. — I have a dog grooming service in my home. My two children often will let a dog loose, and my carpets also had an odor. I scrub them with a disinfectant and then pour straight vinegar over the offending places. The vinegar odor lingers only a few hours. (Test effect these products.) — MRS. A. S.

DEAR POLLY — When all efforts had failed to teach my family the art of milk bottle rotation in the refrigerator, I thought of another way which has worked out beautifully. We slip bright colored rubber bands over the bottle necks. Everybody knows those bottles with the bands are to be used first. No more mixups! After being stranded in the grocery store for a long period during a downpour I decided to strap an umbrella to the cart. I take to the store and also put several large plastic trash bags in the bottom of the cart where they remain rain or shine. Now I never have wet soggy bags of groceries. A plastic bag is slipped over the entire cart and I go on my way. — R. J. M.

DEAR POLLY — When your fitted sheets begin to show wear, mend and put them over the box springs. They will last a long time, keep the springs clean, and present a nice all-white look when the bed is open for use. — MRS. F. S.

Desserts For The Holiday Season

By BOBBYE COMBS
'Tis the season to be jolly! Holiday meals are memory makers when prepared in your own kitchen.

Mrs. Randol Nichols (Lynne) has many memories of planning, purchasing groceries, and cooking three meals a day for a "family" of 17 for four years at Medina Children's Home, Medina, Tex. They had 12 teenage girls under their care and direct supervision, and Lynne stated, "we loved every minute of it."

Her husband, who is a city patrolman, and children Nick, a sophomore at Pampa High School; Lisa, a freshman at Pampa Junior High; Marc, a seventh grader at Pampa middle school; and a one-year old foster baby, reside at 2121 Duncan and have been Pampa residents for a year and ten months, and plan to settle in Pampa.

Mrs. Nichols has been a foster mother to approximately 50 children over the past 10 years.

Her hobbies or interests are loving children, loving and doing for older people, cooking and would someday like to write.

Some of Lynne's activities include being a member of Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ where she teaches a Bible class of 18 month old children; she is involved in church visitation program; the church bus ministry; works at Girlstown once a month with a group of women; and does volunteer work for the Red Cross at the hospital twice a month.

As a side light, the Nichols' decorate their home in some small manner for every holiday, not just Christmas. On St. Patrick's Day, they might dye all of their food green, or even home made bread with bravy.

While in Medina, Mrs. Nichols learned to prepare venison, buffalo meat, and armadillo steaks.

This holiday season, why not serve your friends and guests food prepared from Lynne's recipe file?

Soybeans may answer world's protein needs

By Gaynor Maddox

A World Soy Protein Conference was held in Munich, Germany, recently to analyze and to provide information on the value of soy protein in the human diet. Technological improvements in the processing of the soybean into ingredients easily and quickly prepared for human consumption were high on the agenda.

In general the purpose was to pinpoint soy potential as a food for people. It is a roaring success as cattle food and a leading cash crop for U.S. farmers based on livestock feeding. There are signs of growing interest in soy products as a basic and acceptable protein food for humans. But even at the conference there was a gap.

Dr. Fred R. Senti explained, "The conference stressed the processed form of soybeans. It gave no attention to dried soybeans to cook at home. The thinking was that most women today don't want to spend time in the kitchen. Soybeans require hours of cooking," Senti, of the USDA Agricultural Research Service, was program committee chairman.

Food technology plays an important role in the soy picture. To transform soybeans into soy flour and soy concentrates demands skill. Full-fatted and defatted soy flour is used by bakers. Soy flour mixed with wheat can replace non-fat dry milk in bread. It is much cheaper. Soy isolated protein is used to fortify foods deficient in protein content. Extended textured soy protein is used in analogues — food in which soy is used to simulate ham, chicken, seafood, etc., in appearance and taste.

"Some say they cannot tell the difference between the analogue and the fresh meat product. Others say they can. Continued progress in technology will narrow the difference," Senti said.

"Use of textured soy protein — in meat or in analogues — is in a definite upswing during these times of higher food costs. As the product is better made and better distributed, it will play a larger and more welcome role in helping the public get more protein at a lower cost for its diets."

For those who want to cook dry soybeans at home, they are available at health food stores, Chinese markets and in some supermarkets. They usually come in one-pound cellophane bags and cost about 50 cents. They look very much like dry navy beans but are more rounded.

To cook one pound: rinse and place 2 cups soybeans in cold water to soak. Beans will swell. Allow enough water and a large container. After soaking, place beans in a large kettle in the soaking liquid. Add a little salt. Bring to a boil and simmer for three to four hours, until tender. Add more salt to taste. Serve as you would cooked dry beans, with sauces or cheese, or in recipes calling for beans.

She'd like to 'frame' her lawyer husband

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that doctor's wife to move over! [When she complained to her husband that she felt sick, he told her to take two aspirin and go to bed.] I am the wife of a prominent attorney, and here is my story:

Nearly two years ago when we moved cross country, our van was involved in a serious accident, and most of my prized antiques were destroyed. Yes, they were insured, but we haven't collected because my husband hasn't had time to follow up on the claim.

Last summer our 6-year-old son was hospitalized for two weeks when his counselor at day camp slipped and spilled hot wax over 80 per cent of my son's body! [That was the last time they attempted to make candles at that camp.]

Altho the camp admitted their liability, and provided us with all the necessary forms, we have not collected for the hospitalization, medication or plastic surgery because my husband simply hasn't gotten around to doing the legal work yet.

I have a scrapbook filled with newspaper articles written about my husband, but if you print this in your "Dear Abby" column, I will frame it, and hang it in the bathroom!

DEAR MAY: It's practically framed. [And so's your old man.]

DEAR ABBY: I sure got a bang out of all those women who wrote that they were married to doctors, plumbers, carpenters and hairdressers, but when it came to performing services for their own families, they wouldn't do a thing.

I am married to a man who provides a personal service, but I sure don't want any of his professional services. At least not yet. He's a mortician.

DEAR ABBY: You are being unfair when you attribute group sex to animals! Some animals mate for life. Some are promiscuous, and some are polygamous, but if you know of any that practice group sex in any form—from foursomes to the whole neighborhood, please name the breed or apologize for attributing human aberrations to the more normal furred and feathered creatures who cannot write to Dear Abby.

DEAR MR. LYONS: I apologize for insulting the animals. And in this connection, may I say that man is the only animal that blushes. Or needs to.

DEAR ABBY: Every time you print a letter about a dog barking, I get three copies of it in three separate envelopes—all meticulously anonymous. They are obviously from the same person.

Since I don't know who the person is, but know he (or she) reads your column, I'd like that person to know that I ignore such gutless infantile tactics, and place anonymous poison pen letters on the same level with barking dogs.

DEAR BOWSER: You are slightly more charitable than I. I place them lower.

Dormouse plays relaxed defense
The 10 and led a low club. Alice hopped up with the king and want of anything better to do led her last spade. There was the dormouse asleep again.
Wakened again, he played the eight of spades. South ducked, but the dormouse needed no further prods. He led another spade since there was no way to keep him from getting in with the ace of clubs and winding up with a total of three spade tricks.
"Curiouser and curiouser" thought Alice. "I wonder if he was really asleep. Had he played one of his high spades at trick one, South would have ducked and we would have had no way to beat the contract."

Here we are back at the Mad Hatter's bridge party in Wonderland.
The dormouse, sitting East, had awoken long enough to overcall the Hatter's opening club bid and had lapsed back into somnolence while the March Hare bid two notrump and was raised to game by the Hatter.
Alice opened the five of spades. The deuce was played from dummy and there was the dormouse asleep again. They prodded him. He stirred, yawned and played the nine.

Your Horoscope

By Joane Dixon

FRIDAY, NOV. 30
Your birthday today: You have to be wise about what you want—you might get it, then find it's something you can't handle. Relationships thrive at a little distance, will not stand much overdoing at close quarters. Today's natives open their minds to progressive ideas, are hard-driving when they get to work, often have a fatalistic viewpoint.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Open talk today brings forth all the ins and outs of problems, nuances of relationships. Everybody profits from it. Misunderstandings clear up.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You are on your own in any business deal or career advance. Proceed with good faith, awaiting no endorsement from anybody. Luck continues on your side.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Be up and on the job early with forthright declarations of the work you are doing and its benefits to all. Claim your share of whatever is going.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Much of what comes now seems too good to be true. Today's windfall involves adjustments, changes which may not be very convenient to live with in the future.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): From a good start, the day gets to be scattery—too many things going on at once, with increasing tendencies among people to bicker. What seemed a great idea yesterday may not be acceptable now.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be alert to the unspoken message offered by those you care about. Business should proceed as usual. No special urgency indicated, merely impatience with details.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Today's drift is mainly toward getting all your diverse ventures together in a more coherent program. This is the time for long-range planning.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Today promises high energy levels, but it is strictly up to you to direct your resources into the desired channels. See that the effort you exert goes into constructive actions.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Time runs out; options have to be confirmed, firm decisions made on possessions, property. Tendency is to collect material objects rather than distribute them.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Round up the results of past and recently-settled deals. Pay off obligations wherever you can so as to be free to enter new situations.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You've got lots of help, plenty of company. The difference is that your friends don't have to live with the error they suggest that you make; you do.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): General good feelings and prosperity are indicated. Be careful not to get involved in permanent commitments that may later turn out to be too narrow for your full expression.

Ashley's Slates Opening Of Local Store Branch

DIANA DOWLER, new Ashley's manager

According to Diana Dowler, manager of the new store, men's, women's and children's clothing and home fashions will be offered by Ashley's at various savings.

When irregularities occur in manufacturing, the band label is discarded and the goods are shipped to Ashley's, where they are sold at a fraction of intended cost, Ms. Dowler explained.

"The irregularities in Ashley's fashions are so slight, they don't affect wearability," continued Ms. Dowler. "So Ashley's guarantees customer satisfaction. Or your money back."

The new Ashley's store will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. during grand opening week.

Business Today

By DEAN C. MILLER
UPI Business Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — The energy crisis may force many Americans to trim their weight because of a more Spartan life, including more walking. And that may benefit the American business executive.

His fat may be costing him as much as $1,000 per pound, per year, according to Robert Half, president of Robert Half Personnel Agencies, Inc., the world's largest financial executive and data processing employment specialists.

A survey of 15 Half offices in key cities around the United States showed:
—Of all executives earning $25,000 to $50,000, only 9 per cent were more than 10 pounds overweight.

—In the $10,000 to $20,000 range, 39 per cent were found to be more than 10 pounds overweight.

According to most insurance companies, you are overweight if you weigh 10 per cent more than their charts indicate as normal, and you are considered obese if you are 20 per cent over the insurance norms.

This covers about 30 per cent of all Americans. At least 60 million adult Americans fall in the overweight category, and some statistics place the figure at 79 million.

weight" now are America's largest, most unprotected minority group.

While federal, state and local laws make it illegal to discriminate because of color, religion, national origin, age and sex, there is no protection for you if you are fat," he said.

Half pointed out the many preconceived notions about the overweight. Fat people, he said, often are thought to be slow, sloppy, lacking in self control, good natured, jolly and good dancers.

Because of what he considers false misconceptions, the overweight and obese often are not hired for the better positions. If they are, they are paid less than their slimmer counterparts and regularly passed over in promotion situations.

Being overweight is not a crime but the overweight sometimes are treated as criminals. Fifty years ago Sweden passed a law against fat people, charging them $1 per pound for every pound over 200. The act was held unconstitutional. Half said his offices in 25 years of operation have received only one request for an overweight executive, while thousands of employers have requested thin men and women. That single request came from a manufacturer of clothing for overweight men.

The figure is more than double the amount of electrical power produced in 1967 in the state. The biggest increase in production in recent years came in 1970, when the last two units of the controversial Four Corners power generation station was completed.

The Christian Brothers: Wine, teaching and prayer

By Murray Olderman

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA) - Every night after supper at the Novitiate of Mont La Salle, seven miles into the rolling hills outside Napa, Calif., Brother Timothy, meets in fraternal gathering with the other clerical garbed men of Frater Scholarum Christianorum. This is an order, the second largest in the world of the Catholic Church, popularly known as The Christian Brothers.

own label, so that thousands of children attending their parochial schools in the western part of the United States can afford an education. Brother Timothy and his brethren have just celebrated the most recent harvest of grapes on their 1500 acres of premium vineyards and from it will eventually gush a spectrum of generic and varietal wines ranging from Burgundy to Chablis and Cabernet Sauvignon to Chenin Blanc. "This is the best crop," reports Brother Timothy, "in more than 25 years. Nature blessed us with the right amount of moisture and heat."

Hope diamond. Brother Timothy, born Anthony George Diener and raised on the streets of Elizabeth, N.J., and Los Angeles, was teaching high school chemistry when his superiors sent him to the winery in 1935. "It was shortly after Repeal," he recalls, "and I was young and big and strong. I've done everything essential to the production of wine. I've worked the fields and operated tractors and trucks and loaded rail cars." And he has been the guiding master in producing the delicate wines which have made his order a leader in the premium field. "I didn't graduate from the University of California in enology or viticulture, but I have read everything there is to read on wine," he says. The Christian Brothers is a teaching order. Only six of them, among 3,000 in the United States, are delegated to the making of wine. Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers toil the Brothers' vineyards. AFL-CIO people work the winery. "The union contracts today," says Brother Timothy, "preclude the young brother from doing the things I used to do." Wine is big business. By 1980, there will be 650 million gallons of wine consumed annually in the United States, more than double the figure at the start of the century. A recent Bank of America study is bullish about the industry. To Brother Timothy, being a part of this high finance in liquid spirits is not inimical to his spiritual vows of poverty, chastity and obedience. Through national advertising and publicity, much personal

"I'm doing," he rationalizes, "what my superiors want me to do. The work is not direct education, which is the main function of our order, but I have to have faith the Brothers are doing the right thing. I wouldn't advise a man to become a Christian Brother to get into the wine business. I'm the only man I know who hasn't had a raise in salary in 38 years."

The order got into wine almost by accident. In 1879, it bought 90 acres of land in Martinez, Calif., to build a novitiate and in it were 14 acres of vineyard. A provident Brother put them to use producing sacramental wine, and eventually the order went commercial and branched out to its fertile Napa Valley holdings.

San Francisco's Bank of America is the largest commercial bank in the world.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Different Kind Of Consumer Complaint

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK (UPI) - A man bought two tickets to a Broadway show and a young actress who was supposed to be bare-breasted happened to wear a bra that night. He wrote to Betty Furness of the Dept. of Consumer Affairs that he wants his money cheerfully refunded or two tickets to the show some night when the lady's topless and braless.

Morton Gottlieb, producer of "Veronica's Room," doesn't mind giving him either a refund or the tickets. But he told the New York Bar Ass'n that it wasn't his fault. A theater party that had bought out most of the show didn't want to see the girl's chest bare. But when the letter writer, Ronald Aiken of Brooklyn, said this constituted "censorship," preventing the theatergoer from enjoying a play "as conceived by the playwright and director." Gottlieb tossed the hot potato to his lawyer. The young lady, Regina Raff, is supposed to have been killed and is being toted out by Kipp Osborne in the last moments of the last act, with her chest nude. To prove that it's a strange world, it was this column that revealed first that one theater party group didn't want to see her bare-breasted. We asked her to allow a picture to show what it was all about. "I won't pose for such a picture EVEN WEARING A BRA," she said. "When you appear that way in the play, it's O.K., but when you go that way off the stage, it's exploitation and it's wrong."

recently divorced Mrs. Howard Samuels. (On the nose.) Got a cute call from Sophia Loren & Carlo Ponti's lawyer Lee Steiner asking where I got that garbage about trouble in their romantic villa. "Couldn't be happier," he swore. Got another cute call. "I know Earl often prints things not true," he began. "Must be another goof, about Liza Minnelli going into the Winter Garden. I phoned Ticketron, they don't know anything about it. Just as I was about to tell him, he hung up saying, 'That proves I'm right.' (Mail order sale starts Nov. 25. Box office & Ticketron starts Dec. 3.) Show Biz Quiz: Ernest Borgnine won an Oscar playing "Marty" in films. Who played it first on TV? Ans. to yesterday's: The actor nicknamed "Cuddles" was S.Z. Sakall.

Joe McCarthy, whose father wrote the lyrics for the original "Irene" in 1919, gave Debbie Reynolds an $8,000 bottle of wine - vintage 1919 - on the 54th anniversary of the opening. Richard Boone, visiting backstage at "Seesaw," said he rented a home next to Redd Foxx's, and Redd cracked, "Well, there goes the neighborhood." That often-repeated rumor's rising again - that Gov.

Rockefeller'll resign in January to start his '76 presidential campaign. Burt Lancaster wants to lure Audrey Hepburn out of retirement for his film, "Family Portrait in an Apartment." Don Stroud (who bared his all in "Playgirl" magazine) got the lead in the film bio of jewel thief Murph the Surf. Dining at Matteo's in L.A. Ehrlichman and Dean - Marty Ehrlichman (Barbra Streisand's mgr.) and Walter Dean of Columbia Records. They talked about tapes (Barbra's). Duo at Pier 52: Paulette Goddard and Andy Warhol. I'D RATHER BE LIGHT. TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Jackie Clark tells of the character nobody trusted. "When he said 'Good morning,' people called the weather bureau to make sure." WISH I'D SAID THAT: Nowadays (says Robert Landau) when someone yells, "Get a horse," you can't tell if he wants you to conserve gas or is suggesting tonight's dinner. REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Too many people who claim they're fleeing temptation take care to leave a forwarding address." EARL'S PEARLS: Can you remember when Las Vegas was a dot on the map, instead of a pair of cubes?

RECORDS

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER NEW YORK (UPI) - Is ragtime dead? The answer is no. The popular young trio, Dawn, has come forth with an exciting album, "Dawn's New Ragtime Follies" (Bell 1130), which captures the flavor of the toe-tapping past and blends it with the rock sound of today. Tony Orlando, leader of the trio, which is rounded out by Joyce Wilson and Telma Hopkins, is enthusiastic about the sound Dawn has generated. Orlando discourages the use of the term "rag rock" to describe the music, which he says is more closely related to old-time vaudeville. The hit song of the "Follies" album is "Say, Has Anybody Seen My Sweet Gypsy Rose," which should join the company of Dawn's previous runaway best-sellers - "Candida," "Knock Three Times," and "The Yellow Ribbon on the Old Oak Tree." Irwin Levine and Larry Brown, Dawn's special writers, shaped up "Follies" in the tradition of the old Music Hall, beginning naturally with an overture. The pace is fast and even though the tracking runs more than 40 minutes, the show seems to end too soon. Among the numbers are "Steppin' Out, I'm Gonna Boogie Tonight," "Sweet Summer Days of My Life," "Who's in the Strawberry Patch With Sally," "You Say the Sweetest Things," "Ukulele Man," "At-Lanta" and "Daydream," the latter featuring Telma Hopkins on vocals. Energetic Dawn is backed on this album by an energetic band. There is a nostalgic wah-wah trombone solo by Wayne Andre on "Steppin' Out, I'm Gonna Boogie Tonight." Like Tony Orlando, Chuck Mangione is capable of creating a tasteful major production. "Land of Make Believe," (Mercury SRM 1-684), a Chuck Mangione Concert, fills the form with a jazzy type of music which is never ponderous or overpowering. Mangione, a flugelhorn virtuoso, leads a quartet consisting of Gerry Niewood on soprano sax, flute and alto flute, Al Johnson on electric bass, and Joe La Barbera on drums. And he has the complete support of the Hamilton Philharmonic Orchestra as well as a chorus of 24, the Horsehead Chambers Singers. Chuck's special guests are Esther Satterfield on vocals and Cathie Lehr on cello. All of the numbers were composed by Mangione. After listening to "Dawn's New Ragtime Follies" and "Land of Make Believe," if you want something to relax you completely, the record to hear is "Live," a Sesame Street production (Columbia KC 32343). Almost all of the Sesame Street characters appear, including Jerry Nelson as "Snuffleupagus." It is intended to be kid stuff but there are some melodic adventures, especially the finale, "Sing." Tape Deck - "Tony Mottola and the Quad Guitars" (Project 3 PRJ M 85078), an Ampex eight-track cartridge, is an item for the audiophile. Numbers include "Classical Gas," "Sugar Blues," "Over the Rainbow," "Guitar Boogie," "All the Things You Are," "Charade," "Galloping Guitars" and "Moonlight in Vermont."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... French singing star Jacques Kayal well known around NY but a native of Casablanca, made it big with a black-tie opening audience at the Plaza Persian Room. He kept his promise about one thing: he positively would not sing "The Impossible Dream." He kissed one lady ringside - the liberace had a new sequin suit designed like a piano keyboard. You could have played a tune on him. Hundreds seemed to be partaking of the Portugal government's hospitality at a party for him at the Waldorf for his "Liberace - An Autobiography," his film special. "The World of Liberace," and his "Entertainer of the Year" award. Lee was surprised that I remembered when he was a rather obscure pianist at the Raleigh Room at the Warwick - oh, 30 years ago.

Government Releases First Spanish Language Index

The first index of Spanish language consumer publications from the Federal Government has been released by the Consumer Product Information Center of the General Services Administration.

The index, "Informacion para el Consumidor," lists more than 60 publications in the Spanish language from 16 Federal Agencies. Many of the publications tell how to buy, use, and care for products. Other discuss such related consumer subjects as housing, health and safety, child care, family budget, and consumer protection.

Most of the publications listed are free or cost no more than 25 cents. Copies of "Informacion para el Consumidor" are available free from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Prior to the release of the new Spanish Index, Federal consumer publications available in Spanish were listed in the English editions of the "Consumer Information Index." The Spanish language Index is part of a pilot program to increase awareness of consumer information available in Spanish from the Federal Government.

Copies of the publication will be made available through Congressional offices, through other governmental and private organizations, including the Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People, and in response to individual requests.

Also, bulk quantities of 25 or more copies of "Informacion para el Consumidor" will be made available free to educators and private non-profit organizations working with Spanish-speaking consumers. Orders for bulk quantities should also be sent to Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Among publications listed in the index are:

"Baterias de los Automoviles" (Automobile Batteries); tips on the purchase and care of car batteries. Free.

"Guia Rapida Para Creditos al Consumidor" (Consumers' Quick Credit Guide); tips on borrowing money, installment buying, and annual percentage rates. Five cents.

"Como Comprar Carne Para Conservar en el Refrigerador" (How to Buy Meat for Your Freezer); 20 cents.

"Un Mensaje a los Trabajadores Jovenes" (A Message to Young Workers); what jobs persons 14 to 18 year old may hold. Free.

"Informacion para el Consumidor" was compiled and published by the Consumer Product Information Center of the General Services Administration. Established by President Nixon in 1970, the Center has two primary responsibilities: to work with the Federal Agencies to develop meaningful consumer information, and to get that information to the American public.

Many appliances are easy to fix

By Mr. Fix

Sometimes the cost of servicing appliances is so high that it seems smarter to buy a new appliance — especially when it's a small one — than to have it repaired. But this isn't practical and it really isn't economical. For one thing, repairs are less likely to be needed with regular maintenance. And secondly, the remedy for a problem may turn out to be quite simple if you know what to look for.

Read manufacturer's instructions thoroughly. Be sure to save them. Look for maintenance instructions — amount of lubrication and how often, certain wearable parts (washers, light bulbs, etc.) that you can replace yourself.

Next, look for the trouble shooting list. This will describe a variety of troubles and the likely remedies if a part failure is not involved.

Most of these lists contain similar advice. Certain checks are automatic with almost all appliances. When an electrical appliance fails to work, check the cord and the electrical connections. The plug may be worn. Maybe the prongs are bent and won't fit snugly in the outlet.

Check the outlet itself. A neon tester or a pig-tail socket is used to test an outlet but you can do just as well with a night light or some other lamp that has been working properly.

Don't rule out the possibility of a blown fuse. If the circuit is overloaded, try removing one or more items from that circuit.

Check the cord. Even though it isn't frayed or

CHECK CORD AND PLUG

TEST WALL OUTLET

KEEP MOTORS CLEAN

CHECK REFRIGERATOR DOOR FOR WORN GASKET

broken there may be a short in it. If the appliance or lamp goes on and off as you move the cord this is the trouble. Bend the cord a short section at a time until you find the part that causes the trouble. Old cords are better replaced than repaired.

Check the point at which the cord is connected to the appliance. The connection might be loose or broken.

Extension cords should be checked the same way. A further problem with extensions is that they may be too long and light weight.

Motor driven appliances may slow down as a result of a power drop resulting from such an extension. Try plugging the appliance directly into the outlet.

When a motor runs hot or slow it could be lack of lubrication. Follow manufacturer's instructions but generally small appliances can be tended to with a drop of light machine oil at each oiling point each time. Large motors need oiling once or twice a year. Don't try to get at a motor in a sealed housing. It is self-lubricating.

Don't over oil. Oil only at regular oiling points, not in every opening you can find.

Keep motors clean since dirt can cause heating.

Check belts on belt driven appliances. Frayed belts can cause slipping. A broken belt will bring total stoppage. Some vacuum cleaners have a belt to turn a brush and this may need frequent replacement.

A vacuum cleaner with a full bag will not pick up. Empty bags frequently.

Director Answers Questions On Selective Service

AUSTIN — Col. Melvin N. Glantz, the state director of Selective Service for Texas, has released a list of questions and answers selected from the most asked questions about Selective Service. The questions are in BLOCK letters, with the answers following questions:

HAVE INDUCTIONS STOPPED? Yes! On July 1, 1973 inductions stopped. The Law still requires young men to register at age 18 and be classified.

Kellogg Gains China Contracts

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mainland China has authorized $130 million in contracts with the M. W. Kellogg Co. for the design and engineering of eight fertilizer ammonia plants.

The company said the orders represent the largest dollar volume placed by China with any firm in the United States.

Kellogg, a division of Pullman, Inc., will furnish the materials and equipment for the eight, 1,000 metric ton per day fertilizer ammonia plants.

Kellogg announced three of the contracts in July and the other five Tuesday. Negotiations for the plants were conducted under licenses granted by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

The first three plants are scheduled to start operations in 1976.

WHAT ARE MY RESPONSIBILITIES? Under the Law, you must register with Selective Service within the 60-day period commencing 30 days before your 18th birthday, and you must tell your local board when you change address.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN AFTER I REGISTER? You will be classified I-H and your file will be placed in a holding category until the calendar year in which you reach age 19. A national lottery drawing will be conducted early in that calendar year to determine your lottery number.

WHAT DOES MY LOTTERY NUMBER MEAN TO ME? It tells you where you stand in the order of call for men in your own year group.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT? After the lottery drawing for your age group, Selective Service establishes a I-H cutoff number. If you have a lottery number above the cutoff, you will remain in Class I-H and will not be subject to further processing unless there is a major mobilization.

WHAT IF I HAVE A LOTTERY NUMBER AT THE CUTOFF OR BELOW? You will be considered for reclassification by your local board as available for induction and, unless deferred or exempted, you will "stand ready" for induction during the calendar year of your 20th birthday, which is your prime year of vulnerability to the draft.

CAN I APPLY FOR A DEFERMENT OR AN EXEMPTION? Yes! If you have a lottery number at the I-H cutoff or below, you can ask for any deferment or exemption for which you believe you qualify.

CAN I APPLY FOR A CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR CLASSIFICATION? Yes. If you have a lottery number at the I-H cutoff or below, you may apply for conscientious objector classification which is either 1-A or 1-F.

WILL I BE GIVEN A PREINDUCTION EXAMINATION? Registrants are not being given preinduction examinations at this time. However, if examinations are resumed, those registrants below the I-H cutoff number will be examined, with those found to be qualified remaining in Class 1-A and those found to be not qualified being reclassified into Class 4-F. Qualified registrants may be considered for deferred or exempt classifications.

WHAT HAPPENS AFTER I FINISH MY YEAR OF PRIME VULNERABILITY? You will be placed in a lower category of vulnerability for induction along with men of your age group and will be returned to Class I-H unless you qualify for a lower classification. Each succeeding year, until you reach age 26, you will be placed one step lower on the "ladder" of vulnerability for induction.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN I REACH AGE 26? As a practical matter, your immediate concern with Selective Service is over under the present law.

CAN THE PRESIDENT RESUME INDUCTIONS ON HIS OWN? No! The Congress would have to grant the President the authority to induct registrants.

IF THERE IS A NATIONAL EMERGENCY, CAN THE PRESIDENT TELL SELECTIVE SERVICE TO RESUME INDUCTIONS? No! Inductions can be resumed only with the approval of the Congress.

DOES THE PRESIDENT INTEND TO ASK CONGRESS FOR INDUCTION AUTHORITY? Not unless an emergency develops. The Administration seems confident of the success of the All-Volunteer concept in the Armed Forces.

WILL ALL SELECTIVE SERVICE LOCAL BOARD OFFICES CLOSE? Not under present Law. Many local board offices have been grouped, which has reduced the number of offices open now. However, the Selective Service System will continue to operate on a standby basis unless the Congress changes the Law.

WHY CONTINUE SELECTIVE SERVICE IF NO ONE IS BEING INDUCTED? Congress does not want this Nation to be faced with a national emergency without a quick and equitable method of calling men to military duty. With the Selective Service System operating on a standby basis, the Nation can quickly respond to a national emergency.

These questions were selected from the most asked questions about the Selective Service System today. State Selective Service Director Glantz reminds young men of their responsibility to register with Selective Service at age 18.

Registration may be accomplished at all Selective Service System Area Offices, at all Army National Guard Armories in Texas, at each County Court House in Texas, and at many High Schools.

Failure to register makes a young man subject to Federal prosecution.

This boy knows that courtesy is good business

Newspaper route management can be a boy's first step forward

A BOY with a newspaper route truly is in business for himself. With an assist from our people who are experienced in working with boys.

He buys his newspapers from us and retails them to you.

He sells, he delivers, and he collects. Like any good businessman, he keeps records (you can see how valuable this is in applying the lessons he learns in the classroom in a practical way).

And like any good businessman, he shows a profit. A boy with a newspaper route earns money that can help him build a sizable bank account of his own. Useful for the things he wants. Even for a college education.

Not only does a newspaper route sharpen a young boy's business sense (which will be helpful to him throughout life no matter what career he chooses). It also offers him some important extras — the ability to deal with people, and the lessons of promptness, of care, of self-reliance, and of good manners.

In these ways, a newspaperboy manages to keep a step ahead of other boys in preparing for life.

If your son wants to handle a route, put him in touch with us. One may be available for him in your neighborhood. It will be an unusual opportunity for the self-advancement you want him to have.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The devastating decline that struck Wall Street four weeks ago has been characterized by the kind of urgent selling the market has not seen since the 1920's, according to the Dines Letter. "Only at the beginning of the 1929 crash was selling of this particular type seen," it says. The letter predicts an even deeper slump ahead and advises investors "if there is a December rally, it will be your last chance to get out."

With concern over oil shortages battering the market, no clear signs of a bottom have appeared yet, although the list is extremely oversold and subject to at least a minor recovery," says Merkin & Co., Inc. Since the intermediate trend is viewed as down, traders should stay on the sidelines until substantial evidence emerges a solid bottom has been reached, it continues. The firm adds "in view of the extremely oversold state of the list, selling is not recommended at this time."

The energy crisis bear market sustained the fifth largest loss on record Monday indicating President Nixon's fuel address "apparently had a depressing impact on investor sentiment," says E. F. Hutton. Forced margin selling combined with scare selling to send over 83 per cent of the issues traded into losing territory, the firm continues. Striking an optimistic note, it says "the 83 per cent of the issues closing lower seems climatic in scope and in the past readings of this magnitude have just preceded reversals."

The first, panicky phase of assessment of the energy crisis is probably over, but the market may well remain on the defensive pending some clarification of a unique peacetime problem whose impact is difficult to measure," according to Standard & Poor's Corp.

between Malasha's mother, Kerry Blakeney, and Akulina's mother, Cheryl Chance, while Ivan (Don Baker) and Boris (Tim Morgan) have their own battle. The play was presented Wednesday morning for a school assembly and will be given tonight for parents. (Photo by Terry Hanna)

LATE PLANES

GRAPEVINE, Tex. (UPI) — The new 17,500-acre Dallas-Fort Worth airport is now faced with the job of getting ready for commercial air traffic.

The $700 million facility was scheduled to open Oct. 28 but airport board members said unfinished terminal facilities may delay regular traffic until January.

EQUAL WORK FOR MEN

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The University of California at San Francisco reports that the Women's Liberation movement is opening up previously female strongholds to men at the medical school.

Men are now working as nurses, physical therapists, social workers, secretaries and receptionists.

UNHEALTHY WATER

NEW YORK (UPI) — More and more physical illnesses are associated with impure water. The latest ones are typhoid fever, infectious hepatitis, cholera, gastro-enteritis, and skin infections. The World Health Organization reported that 5 million people each year suffer disabling diseases associated with water.

OLD HUSBAND'S TALES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wilma Scott Heide, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), always gets a laugh and applause on the lecture circuit when she cites "old husband's tales." That is the feminist's way of putting a stop to the circulation of "old wives tales" — a sexist phrase.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here's another letter from that suspicious little brat named Virginia who is always pestering newspapermen with dubious questions:

"Dear Sir: Some of my little friends say there is no energy crisis. They say it's just some big companies trying to take advantage of temporary fuel disruptions to jack up prices and circumvent anti-pollution regulations."

"Papa says if I see it in your column it must be so."

"Please tell the truth: Is there an energy crisis?"

Virginia, your little friends

SENTENCE OVERTURNED

AUSTIN (UPI) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today overturned a two-year probation sentence against a Harlingen maid convicted of inducing the elderly woman she worked for to give her $6,000 by false pretext.

The appeals court said prosecutors failed to prove Lucia Garcia used fraud or trickery to induce Elizabeth Christopherson to give her the check.

Two witnesses testified they saw Mrs. Christopherson give the maid a $6,000 check on March 5, 1971, and quoted the bedridden elderly lady as saying: "Miss Lucy, this is a present because you have been pretty good to me. You know, taking care of me when I was in the house, nights and days, and you're the only one that takes care of me."

are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of the Watergate era. They do not believe except what they hear in Judge Sirica's courtroom. They think nothing can be which is not recorded on White House tapes.

Oh, Yes, There Is Yes, Virginia, there is an energy crisis. It exists as certainly as inflation and smog and illegal campaign contributions exist.

Not believe in the energy crisis? You might as well not believe in true violations, railroad bankruptcy and high interest rates!

The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see the gnomes of Zurich undermining the U.S. dollar in European currency markets?

Of course not, but that's no proof that international monetary crises don't happen. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the crises that are unseen or unseeable in the world.

The reason your little friends don't believe in the energy crisis is because they themselves are believers in the credibility crisis.

Why should one crisis be more real to them than another crisis? Was the recent Mideast crisis any less real than the earlier Cuban missile crisis or the current constitutional crisis?

All are Real No, Virginia. All are real. Faith makes them so. Deep and abiding faith in the principle that if anything can go wrong it will.

Not believing in the energy crisis is like not believing in post office foulups or the population explosion.

It is as authentic as street crime and dental bills, as veritable as slums, Soviet grain deals, dairy price support increases, welfare abuse and wiretapping.

It is as bona fide as tax deductions for vice presidential papers, Secret Service improvements on presidential property, the oil depletion allowance.

Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no crises. As dreary as if there were no grand juries.

Hijackers Identities Remain Mysterious

BEIRUT (UPI) — Three Arab gunmen, their faces masked by white scarves, stumbled exhausted from a hijacked Dutch jumbo jet and quietly ended a three-day drama played out across the Middle-East, Africa and the Mediterranean. Airport officials drove them away from the lowering blue and white KLM plane Wednesday, but the origins and identities of the three young men remained as mysterious as when they commandeered the plane Sunday. A Dubai spokesman said the guerrillas gave themselves up without any conditions. A Dutch official described the hijackers as "too tired to do anything but arrange their surrender without risk."

IN ROBERTS COUNTY

Hwy. 70 Stretch Facelift Planned

Construction is set to start Dec. 3 on a near $1 million facelift for a five-mile stretch of State Highway 70 in central Roberts County. Rutted pavement and a large amount of patching on the roadway call for its reconstruction, said T. R. Kelley of Pampa, the Texas Highway Department's resident engineer on the project. "We will bring the area up to safety and design standards," Kelley said. A pre-construction conference has been scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday in Kelley's office in Pampa. The contract is for grading, structures, flexible base, two-course surface treatment and hot mix asphaltic concrete pavement on 5.2 miles of State Highway 70 from 15.6 miles north of the Gray County line northward to Chicken Creek. The Texas Highway Commission has awarded the contract to Gilvin-Terrill, Inc. of Amarillo at a low bid of $955,562.37. The project, which will require an estimated 150

The rulers of the tiny oil-rich Persian Gulf state guaranteed the gunmen safe conduct to wherever they wanted to go and ordered "all officials to treat them well." Following the hijackers walked the last 11 hostages—10 weary crew members and KLM Vice President A. W. Whittholt. The gunmen said they were members of the "Arab Nationalist Youth Organization for the Liberation of Palestine." The group was condemned, however, by all Arab states and all recognized Palestinian guerrilla organizations. The hijackers said they seized the plane to protest Dutch support of Israel. They extracted a promise from Holland to bar any transit camps on Dutch territory for Jews emigrating to Israel. The Dutch government, however, insisted it was not a change of policy. The drama began Sunday when the KLM jet left Beirut on a scheduled flight to New Delhi, Bangkok and Tokyo, carrying 250 passengers and 18 crew members. The gunmen, armed with pistols and hand grenades, forced the pilot—Capt. J. L. Risseuw, 55—to fly over Iraq before landing at Damascus, Syria. After hours on the ground in Syria, the giant jet began a wandering flight that took it to Cyprus, Libya, Malta, Dubai, over Southern Yemen and back to Dubai.

88 PERSONS DIE Blaze Destroys Japanese Store

TOKYO (UPI) — Fire destroyed an eight-story department store in southern Japan today, roaring through special Yuletide decorations and engulfing hundreds of women shoppers attracted by a yearly Christmas sale. Police in Kumamoto City, on the southern island of Kyushu 550 miles southwest of Tokyo, said more than 88 persons were known dead in this worst department store fire in Japanese history and that 78 others were injured. They said all of those killed were found on the first three floors. They expected the toll to increase when rescue squads are able to search through the rubble of the upper floors and the crowded seventh floor restaurant. Helicopters moving through billowing smoke hovered over the Taiyo (Great Ocean) and plucked dozens of shoppers from the roof. Others were rescued by firemen atop huge aerial ladders and some women with babies strapped to their backs in the Japanese fashion slid down ropes to safety. The fire broke out on the third floor around 1:20 p.m. at height of the shopping rush and quickly spread upward through the halls, staircases and ventilator shafts, trapping those on the upper floors and killing many of them with deadly fumes. It raged until 9 p.m. when firemen using more than 50 pieces of equipment brought it under control. Cause of the fire was not immediately known but authorities said the blaze was fed by Christmas decorations and merchandise in the store that is normally closed on Thursdays but was open today for the special sale. The fire did not abate until everything in the store was destroyed. At least 50 persons fled to the roof of the building where they were lifted off by helicopters of Japan's Self Defense Forces while viewers throughout Japan watched the drama on national television networks. Japanese television reporters said most of the dead were found to have no scars or other signs of bodily injury, indicating that the victims were overcome by smoke. An unknown number of women were burned to death when caught by the flames.

Rioting Students Battle Police In S. Korea

SEOUL (UPI) — Hundreds of students battled riot police and launched demonstrations today demanding a pledge from Korean President Park Chung-hee to return to democracy. About 1,000 Yonsei University students threw rocks at 300 riot policemen in the streets. The police hurled canisters of tear gas at the young people. The largest demonstration began Wednesday night when 3,000 Ewha Womans University staged an overnight sit-in at the school auditorium. When authorities announced they had decided to close the school for three days, the women left and went home. At the meeting, the students demanded that Park's government restore a "truly democratic system" in Korea. About 500 students of Hanyang University today demanded the government end its "over-dependence" on Japan in economic matters. Another 500 at Soodo Women's Normal College voted to boycott examinations scheduled to begin today.

DALLAS LEGISLATOR CLAIMS Traffic Violators Treated Differently

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — A Dallas policeman walked alongside the car he had stopped for driving across the center line of the road, and asked the black woman driver, "What are you up to, gal?" The "gal" was Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson, D-Dallas, and what she was up to was her own personal survey of the attitudes of Dallas police officers toward black drivers in various sections of the city. In six times she was stopped by officers, Mrs. Johnson was treated courteously four times—all in white sections of Dallas, she said. The other two times, when she drove into predominantly black sections, the white officers who stopped her were more hostile. Mrs. Johnson conducted her survey—which she called a "little game"—and is using her findings in an interim study committee she heads which is now investigating the need to require law enforcement officers to have more training in meeting and dealing with people. "There was definitely a difference in the attitude or approach of the officers, seemingly on the basis of locality," Mrs. Johnson said in an interview at her capitol office. "I really wanted to learn if blacks had all this hostility for police because of their treatment, or if it was inborn," she said. "There are definitely problems on both sides. For minorities in general in Dallas, it is going to be extremely important that both sides change," she said. "Otherwise I think we're in for some hard times ahead."

AT RICHMOND, VA. Committee Views Possibility Of SBA Loan Criminal Tie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The possibility of criminal involvement in millions of dollars of loans approved by the Richmond, Va. office of the Small Business Administration (SBA) has been raised before a congressional committee. Russell Hamilton, former director of the Philadelphia regional office of SBA, testified Wednesday that one employee in the Richmond office is afraid to testify "for fear of his life," while the office's financial director kept a diary and secured a gun to guard against organized crime. The financial director, Kenneth Bowe, was quoted by Hamilton as saying he so feared organized crime influence in Richmond lending activities that he bought a gun and kept a diary of office happenings for "insurance." "If anything happened to him, it (the diary) was to go to the Washington Post," Hamilton said. Contacted in Richmond, Bowe denied any knowledge of organized crime influence and said he used the .22-caliber target pistol he obtained four months ago "to shoot targets." He described the diary as "notes," saying: "When I heard something I'd jot it down... things are getting blown-out-of-proportion... most of what I know now, I read in the newspaper." Hamilton said the diary is now in a safe in the office of the SBA's chief legal counsel, Greg Austin, but Bowe said he made no copies of his notes and still has the originals. In other testimony Wednesday, Hamilton said SBA Administrator Thomas Kleppe was "committed" early in his tenure to retain Thomas Regan as the head of the Richmond office despite reports of serious problems with loans approved by the agency and the recommendations of other key SBA officials to fire Regan. Hamilton, who supervised the Richmond office until Nov. 15, said he told all to the congressional investigators before going to the SBA with his information because he wasn't

Car Windshield Damages Noted

A windshield was broken out of a 1965 Mercury on the parking lot of the Top O' Texas New and Used Car Co., 503 E. Atchison, it was reported to police yesterday. The owner of the lot said he had a run-in with a man over an amount of money and advised the police to check with the man. When police contacted the man, he denied having anything to do with the incident and said he had no reason to break out the windshield. In another incident reported yesterday, batteries were stolen from two pickups on the Harold Barrett Ford parking lot. The batteries were the only items missing from the lot, police reports indicated. Approximately 10 gallons of gasoline were stolen Wednesday night from a mail delivery vehicle parked on the post office parking lot. Police were requested to check the parking lot while on patrol at night.

Water Resources Study Council Set At Amarillo. AMARILLO — An invitation to all interested persons in the Panhandle to attend the Amarillo session of the West Texas Water Resources Study Council has gone out. The Council, appointed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and directed to study the entire gamut of West Texas water problems, will convene at 10 a.m. Monday, Dec. 4, in the meeting room of the Amarillo City Council. The agenda includes discussion of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, White River, Greenbelt, McKenzie and other similar projects; the economic impact of cattle feeding; research activities by various agencies; and presentations by underground water districts. Presiding at the daylong session will be Sen. Jack Hightower, council chairman. "Public participation in our sessions can be most meaningful, both from the standpoint of citizen input and citizen awareness of the problems faced by West Texas," Sen. Hightower said. "For these reasons, we are encouraging public attendance," he said. The Amarillo session is the third since organization of the council which is charged with recommending legislative action where such action solves

Senate Okays More Coverage For Medicare

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to broaden Medicare coverage to pay for prescription drugs to treat most chronic diseases of the 20 million elderly persons in the government health insurance program. The proposal was attached to a bill raising Social Security benefits by 11 per cent—7 per cent upon enactment and 4 per cent in June, 1974. The House has approved a similar 11 per cent increase, but has not considered the Medicare drug extension. Last year, the House rejected such an amendment on grounds it would take too much out of the Social Security trust fund. The new amendment, however, carries an increase in Social Security taxes to pay for drug coverage. The tax rate would go from its present 5.85 per cent of earnings to 5.9 per cent. The Senate bill also increases the amount of earnings subject to the tax from the present $10,000 to $13,200 a year. Neither drugs only prescribed periodically nor non-prescription drugs, except insulin, would be covered. But drugs for these chronic diseases common to the elderly would be covered.

Water Resources Study Council Set At Amarillo. AMARILLO — An invitation to all interested persons in the Panhandle to attend the Amarillo session of the West Texas Water Resources Study Council has gone out. The Council, appointed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and directed to study the entire gamut of West Texas water problems, will convene at 10 a.m. Monday, Dec. 4, in the meeting room of the Amarillo City Council. The agenda includes discussion of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority, White River, Greenbelt, McKenzie and other similar projects; the economic impact of cattle feeding; research activities by various agencies; and presentations by underground water districts. Presiding at the daylong session will be Sen. Jack Hightower, council chairman. "Public participation in our sessions can be most meaningful, both from the standpoint of citizen input and citizen awareness of the problems faced by West Texas," Sen. Hightower said. "For these reasons, we are encouraging public attendance," he said. The Amarillo session is the third since organization of the council which is charged with recommending legislative action where such action solves

NOT TOO FAR AWAY Americans Need Preparation In Metric Measurement Use

In the not-too-distant future, American consumers may be buying milk by the liter, traveling kilometers to visit another city, and complaining about the heat when the temperature reaches 35 degrees.

Every industrial nation except the United States has officially adopted or committed itself to use the metric system of measurements, and the day when the United States will also officially adopt the system is probably not too far away.

In its new booklet, "Good News About Metric," the National Bureau of Standards explains the advantages of the metric system over the customary system now used in the U.S., and discusses how use of metric will affect American consumers and workers.

The 16-page booklet also contains comparisons for weight, length, volume and temperature. Copies of "Good News About Metric" are available for 80 cents each from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

While the metric system is different from our customary system of feet and pounds, the booklet points out that metric is not basically strange to Americans.

For example, the metric system and our monetary system are both decimal systems; sports fans who watch international athletic competitions hear measurements expressed in meters rather than yards and feet; and some American tobacco companies have advertised cigarettes that are 100 millimeters long, or 1 millimeter longer than that.

The metric system is increasingly in use throughout the world for two reasons: It's a simple system and it's easy to use.

The booklet explains that the system is simple because each physical quantity, such as length and weight, has its own unit of measurement and no unit is used to express more than one quantity. It is easy to use in solving problems that involve computation because metric units bear decimal relationships to each other, as opposed to the numbers and fractions that characterize relationships among the customary units.

Though our customary system may be something of a hodgepodge, it is the one we're used to. It will take a while to adjust to another system, but "Good News About Metric" says that adjustment should not be difficult.

For example, instead of measuring length by the inch, foot (12 inches), yard (3 feet) or mile (5,280 feet), using the metric system we would measure length by the millimeter, centimeter (10 millimeters), decimeter (10 centimeters), or meter (10 decimeters).

It also points out that some units of measure would not be changed by metric, including time and electricity. Since money is already based on a decimal system, it would not change either.

The publication is just one of the booklets made available through the Consumer Product Information Center of the General Services Administration.

More than 200 consumer-oriented publications from the Federal Government are listed in the Fall Edition of the "Consumer Information Index." Published quarterly, the Index is available free from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colo. 81009 and at Federal Information Centers throughout the country.

WORRY CLINIC

Andrew offers a classical case to show how people often lack tact. His host had a high I.Q., but on this and several other occasions proved to be a poor diplomat. So tutor your kiddies in tact and do so early, as explained below.

CASE Y-582: Andrew Y., aged 42, was a new Dean at the University of Chicago several years ago.

We met at lunch when we were both serving on a College Scholarship Committee.

He represented the University of Chicago while I was Northwestern's appointee and 3 other colleges also had delegates on this committee.

"Dr. Crane," Dean Andrew began, "since you are an Applied Psychologist, I have a case for you to analyze."

"My wife and I were invited to dinner by the President of our University."

"We both felt honored, so we dressed up for the occasion and presented ourselves at the President's home promptly at 7 P.M."

"A butler greeted us, took our coats and then ushered us into a luxurious living room."

"Nobody else was there so we looked around admiringly for maybe 15 minutes."

"Then dinner was announced and we were led into the dining room, where we were seated at a table for two."

"We wondered why the President and his wife hadn't arrived as yet, but felt maybe they had been unavoidably detained.

"When our dinner was served, we slowly began eating, thinking our host and hostess would soon arrive."

"Dr. Crane, they never showed up, nor did the butler offer any explanation for their absence."

"After our dessert, we were led back to the front hall, where our coats were courteously presented to us and we were then ushered out the front door."

"And the President never did explain or apologize for being absent."

"Yet he hadn't forgotten his invitation to us, for the butler knew we were coming!"

"Dr. Crane, I could have had, just as good a dinner by staying home!"

"And then I wouldn't have had to shave or get all dressed up for what we figured was an official dinner party!"

BE TACTFUL

Tact is something that must be learned, much like piano playing.

Usually, a certain amount of I.Q. is required, too, but many people with the I.Q. of a genius are rude and unpolite.

For a genius may also live in a home that has a grand piano, yet not be able to play a single chord.

For it requires specific direction of attention to the technique of the piano keyboard, to bring forth harmony therefrom.

Same goes for dealing with people.

You may be as brilliant as Einstein, yet alienate people, lose customers and even enter the divorce court. Why?

Just because you haven't focussed attention on the specific rules of the game of marriage or the social amenities in standard use.

So PLEASE tutor your kiddies in tact while they are young.

This involves catechism in their taking the broader viewpoint indicated by the Golden Rule.

To help speed up their acquisition of tact, sent for the "Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Coach them on the "Five Laws for Complimenting."

Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Melrose, Indiana 47858. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of our booklets.

Jackal role boosts a British Fox

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (NEA)—The day of the jackal may become the year of the Fox.

Which is a somewhat zoological way of saying that Edward Fox, who plays the jackal in Fred Zinnemann's remarkable version of "The Day of the Jackal," looks to be in for good times. High time, too.

Fox is one of the apparently inexhaustible supply of crack British actors who seem to come out of the woodwork whenever one is required. He's been around a long time, in repertory companies, in London plays, in countless small roles in forgettable films.

But nothing much happened to him, star-wise. Now people are noticing him. After "Jackal," he did "A Doll's House," opposite Jane Fonda, and that gives him two big ones this year.

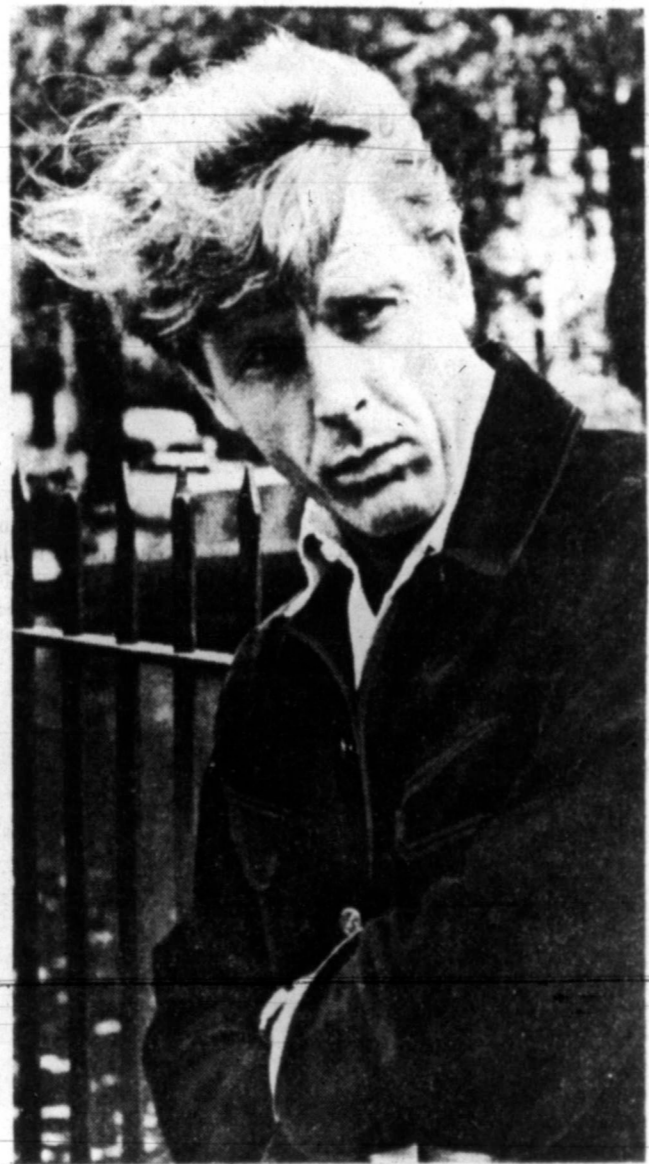

His younger brother, James Fox, had the stardom in the family. That handsome blond actor was on the road to being very important in films, and, in fact, already was.

"He's out of it now," Edward Fox says. "Willie—his real name is William—got religion a few years ago. He joined an evangelical sect called The Navigators, which has a commune in Sheffield. Now he lives there with them."

"He has a daytime job with an estate agent (the British equivalent of real estate agent) and spends his nights trying to convert people. I think the problem with Willie is that he became too famous too quickly and he couldn't handle it. He got a swelled head. I think."

Edward says that his family was religious but they weren't church-goers. He can't figure where Willie's religious fervor came from.

"But I think it will go away as quickly as it came," he says. "Willie was always the kind of person who played at whatever part he had. He lived his parts for awhile. I think now he's living a religious part.

Hollywood discovers actor Edward Fox in "The Day of the Jackal," following his years of fine British theater work.

Odds are Edward Fox will be able to live with his fame. It hasn't come too soon or too quickly. Now he's mature enough to handle the rigors of stardom.

As a sample of his sensibility, he has quietly waited to see what "Jackal" and "A Doll's House" do for him before he makes another commitment. He knows it's a calculated risk, but he elected to take it, waiting out the time, turning down his usual small roles, hoping that one or both of these films will make him important. He hasn't worked since Christmas.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Interested In Drunkenness Tests

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been charged with drunk driving. I volunteered to take the test. However, it was not administered until approximately 45 minutes after I had arrived at the station.

What I would like to know is would this lapse of time have given more alcohol time to enter my blood stream, thus showing a higher level? I was forced to blow into the balloon three times. Does the number of times a person blows into the balloon make any difference in the reading? The test result was 17.

—W.C.M.
Your blood alcohol may have risen in the 45 minutes — and then again it may have gone down. It would depend on how much you had to drink and when.

Absorption of alcohol into the bloodstream is rapid, but it is eliminated from the blood more slowly. To give you some sort of guide, six or seven one-ounce drinks will show an appreciable blood level for two hours or more.

The number of times you blow into the balloon won't change the percentage of alcohol on your breath.

With a reading of 17, I'm afraid you don't have a prayer, regardless of whether the 45-minute wait helped or hurt.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been to the doctor and he told me what I didn't have. I hope you can tell me what could be wrong.

I am 48 and for at least two years have had a ringing or more of a hiss in my head. My doctor said I didn't have a tumor or high blood pressure and my kidneys are okay.

When I have my periods the noise is worse and also when it rains. Sometimes it is so loud it is hard to get to sleep. I don't take any kind of pills except aspirin. I hope you can help me.

—Mrs. O.B.
You've eliminated some of the causes of ear noises but there are others to consider. For one, ear problems (often with loss of some degree of hearing) can be involved; but I know of nothing you can do about that except the obvious thing — see an ear specialist.

Although you take no drugs but aspirin, it so happens that aspirin is one of the drugs that can contribute to ear noises. Do you, by any chance, take more aspirin when menstruating or on rainy days?

There are also cases of ear noises for which no cause can be determined.

You may get some help by reading my booklet, "Ear Noises: Their Causes and Cures," which you can get by sending 15 cents and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of Publishers - Hall Syndicate, 401 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

These noises quite often seem louder at night, because everything else is quieter then. You might get some comfort by keeping a loudly-ticking clock near you at bedtime.

Or even by using an automatic radio so it can play softly for an hour or so and then shut off. These other sounds can make the ear noises seem much less bothersome.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a tumor on my back. The doctor said it is the size of an egg and I should go in the hospital. I do not want to go. What I want to know is, is a tumor cancer? If I have this one removed, would it come back?

—J.W.
Some tumors (growths) are cancerous and some are not (benign). I would guess that yours is benign; otherwise your doctor would not be letting you procrastinate about going in the hospital. Go ahead and get rid of the tumor. There's no reason why it should come back, once removed.

Don't take chances with "kidney trouble." It may be only minor, but it can be dangerous. Read Dr.

Thosteson's booklet, "Your Kidneys — Facts You Need To Know About Them." Write to him in care of Publishers - Hall Syndicate, 401 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed (use zip code), envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Arabs, Israelis Get 'Invitation'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Russia are inviting the Arabs and Israel to a peace conference in Geneva beginning Dec. 18.

A State Department spokesman said the first bids went out Tuesday. It was understood that those invited include Israel, Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

The question of whether the Palestinians will be permitted to attend appears to have been left undecided.

BASKETBALL EVENT IN DECEMBER

Pampa May Host Top-Flight Tournament In 1974

By PAUL SIMS
The Top O' Texas Invitational, a disaster in recent years and dropped from Pampa's basketball program prior to this season, next year will hopefully take up where it left off and hopefully with stiffer competition.

And I'm optimistic it will materialize and that we'll get totally reestablished with quality teams," said Lehnick. "We have sent invitations to some of the top basketball teams in the area and all are 4A and 3A schools, with the emphasis on 4A."

Abilene, Permian, Ryder and Hereford have sent replies. Ryder will come, the others won't. That fills two (Ryder and Pampa) of the eight slots needed for next year's Top O' Texas.

There should be a lot of good competition in it. That's the main reason we're going. Also, we needed a tournament to go to. Needed Earlier Tournaments "Our district will be different next year and we have to start district play earlier than usual. That eliminated the Caprock Tournament in Lubbock from our schedule, and so we need to go to a tournament earlier than that one," said the Ryder coach.

Wichita Falls Hirschi, this year in 4-AAA, will move up to 6-AAAA. Ryder's district, next school year and that necessitates a district schedule that will start around Christmas.

Eleven teams have yet to reply and the longer they hold off, the more optimistic Lehnick gets. "They're giving it close consideration," he said.

Should 26-point favorite Alabama stumble again to Auburn, second-ranked Oklahoma could grab the national crown with a victory over Oklahoma State. The Sooners already have clinched the Big Eight title and rate as four touchdown favorites to close out their season with a win over the Cowboys.

Oklahoma, on probation, is prohibited from appearing in a bowl game for the next two years but one bowl spot still remains open and Georgia hopes to nail it down with a win over Georgia Tech. Should the Bulldogs beat the Yellow Jackets, they would play Maryland in the Peach Bowl. However, should Georgia lose, the Peach Bowl invitation would go to South Carolina.

Alabama will meet fourth-ranked Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl and the Irish warm up for their New Year's Eve date in New Orleans by closing out their regular season against Miami (Fla.)

Army Plays 'New Season' Firday To Highlight College Grid Action

By United Press International
For 15 years I've heard the Navy game is a whole new season for us," said Army Coach Tom Cahill. "Well, now I'll get a chance to test the validity of that statement."

Certainly, a new season couldn't turn out any worse than the present one for Army as the Cadets carry an 0-9 record into Saturday's nationally televised 74th renewal of their battle with Navy at Philadelphia's John F. Kennedy Stadium.

"You know how much both teams will want this one," says Navy Coach George Welsh, whose Midshipmen, despite winning only three of 10 games this year, still rate as 16-point favorites over the Cadets.

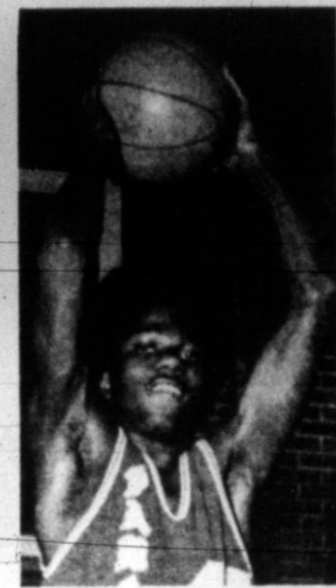

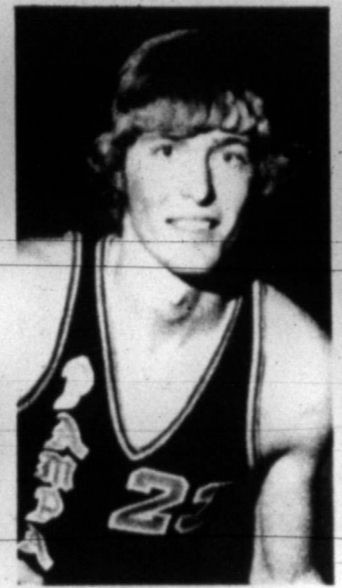

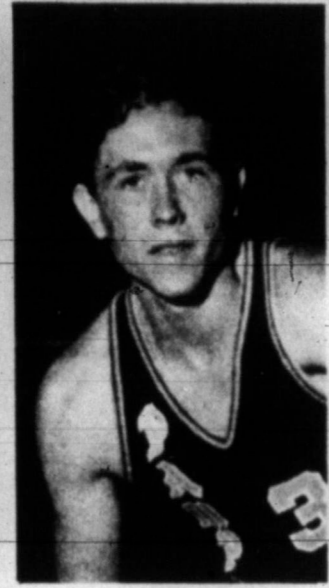

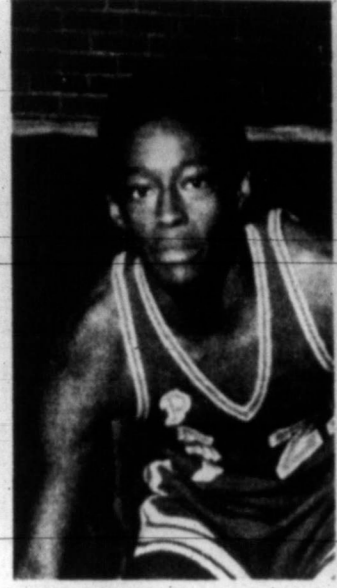

While Army-Navy is for the traditionalists, the second half of Saturday's televised football doubleheader will more likely please the realists who will watch Alabama attempt to lock up the national championship with a victory over arch-rival Auburn.

Gregory-Portland, Cuero To Tangle In Playoffs

By United Press International
The finals of the state's schoolboy football championships are several weeks away but considering this weekend's lineup some title matches look to be scheduled early.

And while most coaches involved hesitate to call a non-title game just that for fear of antagonizing future opponents, one head coach doesn't hedge.

"Whoever wins this has got the best chance to win it. Cuero is a real, real tough ballclub. If we can control the football we will win it."

Worth in some time, will try to end Dallas' eight-year domination of the match. The game will pit Heights' aerial game built around split end Mike Renfro against the wishbone triple option running of Dallas Spruce and its swift quarterback Kenny Pirozzo.

In Conroe "it will be like two bulls running together," according to Tyler coach Corky Nelson.

Actually two bullish running backs, Tyler's junior running back Earl Campbell (219 yards rushing last week) will try to outrun Conroe's Jerry Harris (226).

SuperSonics Laugh After 34-Point Loss

By United Press International
They all had a great time in Milwaukee Wednesday night. Coach Larry Costello and the winning Bucks were overjoyed. Even Bill Russell thought it was a laugh as he watched his Seattle SuperSonics lose their 17th game this season.

"It's fun playing a game like this," Costello said. "Everybody had a good time tonight. A lot of guys got a lot of points and a lot of guys had a lot of playing time."

The regional schedule finds Gregory-Portland, No. 1 ranked in Class AAA and 11-0, meeting Cuero, No. 2 and 11-0, in Corpus Christi Friday night.

Elsewhere, strong Rockwall in Class AA will look for some more borrowed time against Hooks. Rockwall represented District 13-AA by winning a three-way coin flip and advanced past Hallsville on penetrations last weekend.

October Gillman is Houston's ninth head coach since 1960.

Gillman said it will take time and talent to reverse the Oilers who as 1-10 had headed for the worst record in the NFL for the second straight season.

Spencer Haywood, one of Abdul-Jabbar's favorite patsies in the pivot, scored only 15 points.

Milwaukee's victory put the Bucks 2 1/2 games ahead of Chicago in the Midwest Division. The Bulls dropped a 101-96 decision to Philadelphia.

Highly-touted Austin Reagan and Lamesa may eventually have the final say for state titles but this weekend both should easily win and then eagerly watch the "title" tilts.

Adams blamed the bad trades on former head coach Ed Hughes, during whose tenure center Bobby Maples and lineman Glen Ray Hines left the Oilers.

Emory Bellard, Texas A&M head football coach and athletic director, will be the guest speaker at the Pampa Harvester Football Banquet at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the junior high cafeteria.

Harvester Lanes Having Coach-Instructor School

Adults in the Pampa area interested in working with young people in the American Junior Bowling Congress program are invited to attend a one-day certified coach-instructor school to be held Sunday at Harvester Lanes.

The school emphasizes mass teaching techniques with demonstration of proper stance, pushaway, footwork, arm swing, timing, release of the ball and follow-through.

Opening-round games for Pampa are Blue versus Canyon Purple at 6:30 p.m. Friday and Red versus Spearman at 5 p.m. Friday.

Pampa's Red and Blue eighth-grade teams will be involved in the Pampa Eighth Grade Tournament Friday and Saturday in the Pampa Junior High gymnasium. Brackets were not available at presstime.

The banquet is sponsored by the Harvester Booster Club. Tickets can be bought for $3.25 from the Booster Club (H.L. Weatherly, president), or at three locations—the door, the high school business office and the football field house.

Wanted: Nixon Under Oath

At least one congressman has suggested that Richard Nixon owe the nation not only an explanation about Watergate but an apology.

We have not reached that point, and never will, but the Richard Nixon who has taken to the hustings in a determined effort to save his presidency is quite different from the one who castigated the news media a few weeks earlier — witty, eager to explain, without a trace of arrogance or "toughness." In two words, human and sympathetic.

It is a shameful thing that a president of the United States has to go on nationwide television to tell Americans "I'm not a crook."

Aside from that, however, Mr. Nixon's counteroffensive has been good strategy. He has converted the Watergate crisis into a kind of plebiscite (not accidentally basing it in the Nixon-friendly South) that ought just head off impeachment at the pass.

Any significant swing of popular sentiment over to the President in the coming weeks — and what American doesn't root in his heart for the underdog? — will not be ignored by a Congress far from eager to set in motion the ponderous and portentous machinery of impeachment.

But while the President's series of public appearances has been of immense benefit to Richard Nixon, what real benefit has it been to the nation? A presidential press conference, no matter how free-ranging the questions, is simply a forum for the President to say as little or as much as he wants to say. There is no chance to follow up a question, to pin down a detail, to confront a contradiction. As far back as April, the President accepted "responsibility" for Watergate. But he never has, really. He still speaks of "overzealous" subordinates, while continuing to praise his two closest aides as fine public servants. He continues to misrepresent such things as Thomas Jefferson's exercise of executive privilege.

We are still asked to believe that one of the canniest politicians of our time was too trusting or polite or preoccupied to ask his campaign manager about what he had been warned was a cancer eating away at his presidency.

One can only conclude that never in the course of American events has a president known so little about so much that was taking place in his administration.

If this be innocence, it is an innocence more dangerous than duplicity. Of course, if Richard Nixon really wanted to clear up Watergate once and for all, he could, as Barry Goldwater and others have urged, present himself before the Watergate Committee in secret session, to protect both presidential confidentiality and the rights of Watergate figures who have not yet been indicted or brought to trial.

A statement from the Committee clearing Richard M. Nixon of any involvement in Watergate — especially if he had submitted to interrogation under oath — would accomplish more than a hundred newspaper editorials.

But Richard M. Nixon won't take the simple steps which could make such a finding a reality. Why?

horror stories or bad jokes about the futility of the vice presidency. No, what I want to warn you about is the decompression you're likely to suffer as you pass the power barrier between House minority leader and White House — you'll be quite a comedown, Gerry. And don't think your fellow countrymen don't appreciate the sacrifice you are making.

Of course, in recent years, with the ingenious help of presidential p.r. counsel, we've been able to soften the fall for our No. 2 men. Beginning with the Eisenhower administration, our public officials about to be submerged into vice presidency have been pumped with ego pills to the effect that the job would be upgraded, that the man "one heartbeat away" would be made "an integral part of the decision-making process" to prepare him for "the awesome responsibilities" which might one day come his way.

And after you move into your impressive new office next to the White House, savor that first meeting with the President, the one with the cameramen and little jokes he passes your way. Because, Gerry, excluding official functions and what you may catch on the evening news, you may not see the man again for several months.

Which isn't to say you won't hear from the White House. That you will. It will help some when Gen. Haig calls to say that the President feels you need foreign travel, the better to prepare for those awesome responsibilities if the day should ever come, by act of God — or God forbid, Congress — that you have to assume them.

So off you will go. And take it from me, Gen. Haig knows all the right places a Vice President should travel to in order to prepare himself for awesome responsibilities. Tanzania, Luxembourg, Iceland. You'll see them all. All the geopolitical hot spots Henry the Cat trusts you to visit.

And you'll hear from the White House on the domestic front, too. Yes, you'll have a contribution to make there, all right. Dozens of directives and requests will pour into your office, as a matter of fact, each opening with the heavy line: "The President would like..." Your assignment, Mr. V.P., figure out which are the President's ideas and which are only the ideas of his staff members.

H.L. Hunt Writes

U.S. MUST MAINTAIN VIGILANCE

Contrary to what some may think, the strategic arms limitations talks and our recent trade agreements with the Soviet Union have not softened the ideological commitments of this communist power. As a matter of fact, these recent developments have been to America's disadvantage and weakened our position relative to the Soviet Union. While the United States has been letting its guard down, the Soviet Union has been rapidly strengthening its military capability, especially its nuclear offensive weapons. Certainly, the Soviet Union is not building up its nuclear strike force as a gesture of love and friendship. Despite what some observers may say about a detente, the communist threat still exists and poses a real threat to our Republic. We cannot afford to risk our security by placing trust in the oppressive totalitarian regime in communist Russia.

Most alarming is that American technology is aiding in the Soviet industrial and military buildup. Some American corporations have conducted transactions with the Soviet Union which have resulted in giving the Soviets a greater productive capability. Furthermore, the Soviets' emphasis in production is not on consumer goods, but on heavy capital equipment which is vital in developing a powerful military.

We must not be so preoccupied with a desire for a detente with the Soviet Union that we cannot see the real dangers posed by the communist power. Our Republic has maintained its Freedom not by blindly trusting nations hostile to our way of life but through strength. Furthermore, instead of aiding a communist power, we should be more concerned with aiding in the development of freedom-loving nations.

VICTOR RIESEL Humphrey Committee Can't Account For $226,000 In Campaign Expenses

By VICTOR RIESEL
WASHINGTON — There's a winsome piquancy about labor's ever-favorite son, Hubert Horatio Humphrey, junior Senator from Minnesota, which obscures the shrewd politician in him. So it's surprising that he and his campaign managers were so unmindful of the store during the 1972 presidential primary campaigns that now the Justice Dept. and the Internal Revenue Service are probing the millions of dollars collected and spent in his behalf during the '72 holocaust.

Back then there was a Committee for the Nomination of Hubert H. Humphrey, Inc. It collected well over $2 million on the record. But for over a year it forgot to report the receipt of almost half a million dollars and the expenditure of about the same amount.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Struggle To Rehabilitate Alger Hiss Is Continuing

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
There can be few Americans over 40 today who do not recall the savage passions that swept over American public opinion in the years 1947-50 concerning the case of Alger Hiss. The handsome, Brooks-tailored young president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, who had served as head of the Office of Special Political Affairs of the Department of State during World War II, was accused and (after one hung jury) convicted of perjuring himself by denying that he had passed secret documents to the courier of a Soviet-controlled espionage ring in Washington in the late 1930s.

That courier was the late Wittaker Chambers, who subsequently broke with Moscow and became the principal witness against Hiss. The story of their early friendship in the Communist party, of Chambers' own break with communism and espionage, and of the searing months when he found himself tragically compelled to choose between loyalty to his old friend and loyalty to the nation that friend was committed to destroy — these are the substance of Chambers' book "Witness" (Random House, 1954), which is, quite simply, one of the most moving and wonderful books ever published in the United States.

It was, oddly enough, Chambers who once remarked that conservatives "do not recover their wounded" — in other words, don't bother to defend their champions when these come under attack. The liberals, however, are something else again. Having mistakenly identified the cause of liberalism with that of Alger Hiss at the outset, and having accordingly endured agonies when Hiss went to prison, plenty of liberals are still around who are eager to prove that it was all a grotesque mistake; that Hiss, and thus by extension they themselves, were guiltless.

Another round in their continuing struggle to exonerate and rehabilitate Hiss (who these days lives quietly in New York) is about to begin. Professor Allen Weinstein of Smith College has been trying for years to inspect the confidential files of the FBI on the Hiss case — 53,000 pages of interview reports and the like. Weinstein hasn't waited for the documents, however, to come to a conclusion. Like so many other liberals, he suspects that Hiss was innocent of perjury — though he has not yet gone quite so far as to suggest, as others have, that Hiss was framed by the FBI. Quite simply, Weinstein wants to sift the FBI files for evidence to support his thesis. As a result of a ruling last summer by then Attorney General Elliot Richardson (and how much, by the way, America's liberals have to thank him for), the files are being made available to Weinstein.

Nobody who knows the complexity of the Hiss case, or who can visualize what those 53,000 pages must be like, can doubt that Weinstein will turn up with something that can be hailed as a breakthrough in the defense. Some "missing" document, some seemingly inculpatory memo, some tendentious theory, some alleged sin of commission or omission. Then, if Weinstein has any feel at all for how these things are done, the galley proofs of his book (there will surely be a book) can be reviewed and praised by various distinguished liberal jurists — I nominate Earl Warren, but Justice Douglas or some accommodating Englishman will do) and hailed by the liberal review media as shedding a whole new light on the Hiss case.

In no direction that we turn do we find ease or comfort. If we are honest and if we have the will to win we find only danger, hard work and iron resolution. — Wendell L. Willkie, American statesman

There is no insinuation of malfeasance on Sen. Humphrey's part. But the General Accounting Office sleuths and its director, Comptroller General Staats, appear to take a dim view of several matters uncovered in their probe — and apparently not covered, as a news story, as much as you know what else.

For example, more than a million dollars may have been donated to the committee in violation of the gift tax. This is being investigated by the Internal Revenue Service.

It took committee officials from April 1972, when the unit was incorporated, to June, July and August of 1973 to report contributions of $456,732 and expenditures of $420,236. Rather late reporting, says the GAO.

Further, the GAO charges that "the committee could not locate documentation other than cancelled checks to support over a third of about $680,000 in a sample of expenditures we examined."

About $47,000 of the payments lacking supporting documentation represented payments made to various individuals. This is a serious failure of disclosure because there is no record as to the purpose for which the funds were expended.

To an amateur accountant such as myself, this sounds mighty like a lot of money went unexplained and untraced. The GAO has asked the Justice Dept. to look into all this, but there has been a turnover at Justice and it was Atty. Gen. Richardson who got the request. It would be interesting to learn just how hard he pushed this probe.

One third of $680,000 is over $226,000 — undocumented. Where were the expenditures made? By whom? No one appears to know. The Watergate committee is searching for bigger money. But the question arises — is the Ervin Committee aware of these unexplained expenditures?

Is the Humphrey nomination committee within its jurisdiction? Or is there a difference between the HHH nomination committee and the Committee For the Reelection of the President?

If the Senate committee is interested, it can find the following in the GAO report: "The (Humphrey) committee's failure to disclose nearly half a million dollars in receipts and expenditures until long after the campaign had ended was a serious frustration of the prompt disclosure objectives of the law. Equally serious was the committee's failure to obtain and keep supporting records for two to three hundred thousand dollars in expenditures."

Thus there are missing records, missing explanations and apparent violations of the law. Yet all this has virtually escaped the public's attention. Just who was the "boss" at the Humphrey nomination committee?

For example, the GAO document states: "Because of the committee's failure to retain documentation for reported expenditures, we requested that the committee obtain supporting information for a sample of 10 expenditures amounting to $106,000. To date (Oct. 12, 1973), the committee has provided information on six of the items accounting for $49,430."

"Of these six, one item was a $6,779 payment to one individual which was actually the total of 68 checks issued for $99.99 each to that individual on the same date."

The "payee" swore that the money hired 68 persons to get people to the polls during the May 7, 1972, Indiana primary. At that time, the reports had it that labor had provided much of Sen. Humphrey's street troops.

Politics is stranger than fiction these days. No one impugns Hubert Humphrey's honesty. But why is his committee more equal than some others?

Ask Another $1.5 Billion In "Soft" Loans for IDA

By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — The stupendous national debt continues to soar skyward (now upwards of $470 billion), inflation boils steadily on, and the dire energy crisis and its menacing economic ramifications intensify inexorably, but there is no let-up in the dishing out of large sums to foreign countries.

That breezes cozily along — and to insure it, the State Department has a little-publicized proposal to turn over another $1.5 billion to the International Development Association, among the biggest of the giveaway outfits.

The IDA is the "soft loan" subsidiary of the World Bank, headed by former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, who proudly boasts that since taking over this huge financial dispensary he has skyrocketed its annual distributions more than threefold, from $1 billion to over $3 billion.

The U.S. is by far the largest contributor to the World Bank — as it is to the IDA. Since the "soft loan" agency was set up in 1960, the U.S. has subscribed in excess of $4 billion — around 40 per cent of its funds.

None of this money will ever return to the U.S. Even if these "soft loans" to so-called "developing" countries and what-have-you are repaid, which is highly doubtful, the funds will go into IDA coffers.

The generally unknown $1.5 billion IDA proposal is pending in the Senate and House foreign affairs committees — where strenuous backstage high-level lobbying is underway to rush it out for congressional approval before adjournment around the middle of next month.

Spearheading this pressuring is none other than Treasury Secretary George Schultz and John Hennessy, Assistant Secretary for international affairs.

Hennessy is particularly active, tramping Capitol corridors and buttonholing members of the foreign affairs and appropriations committees, busily proselyting the scheme.

Last year Congress, after a bitter fight, voted a third "replenishment" ($960 million) for IDA. This occurred shortly after Congress boosted the national debt ceiling by another $50 billion — a fact scathingly noted by Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, chairman of the Administration Committee, with the observation:

"The only way it is possible to believe in these kind of deals is to be a believer of Alice in Wonderland. You have to understand that 'soft' loans don't mean loans at all. What they really mean is giveaways. They are never repaid."

Zeroing in
Despite the high-powered administration lobbying, vigorous bipartisan opposition is developing against the proposed $1.5 billion handout to IDA.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., of the Foreign Relations Committee, Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, of the Foreign Affairs Committee, and Sen. Harry Byrd, Ind-Va., chairman of the Subcommittee on International Finance and Resources, are forcefully warning against precipitate action.

Gross, leading economy advocate, is making it clear he will do his utmost to prevent his committee from approving the plan.

Symington directly challenged Treasury Secretary Shultz when he sought Foreign Relations Committee backing. Under questioning, Shultz admitted the scheme "might be unpopular," but added: "There is nothing wrong with helping people."

"Maybe not," retorted Symington. "But what good does that do if you go bust yourself?"

Byrd, zeroing in with blazing guns on the proposal, somberly pointed out to the Senate the following:

"That interest on the national debt this year has reached the immense total of $27.5 billion — in effect, a debt within a debt. Also that this gigantic sum is twice as much money being spent this year for the entire weapons systems acquisition program.

"That foreign aid spending this year actually totals $18,000 billion. Details of this colossal spending are listed in a little-known report compiled by Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., chairman of the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Foreign Operations. (These details were published in this column several months ago.)"
