

Miners Strike Could Curtail Key Industries

United Press International Government and banking experts say a strike by the nation's coal miners would severely curtail key industries and could put as many as 1 million persons out of work.

Steel, railroads and electric utilities would be the first sectors to feel the impact but the effects could spread beyond these industries if the strike were to be an extended one.

Chase Manhattan Bank economists reported Monday.

Albert Rees, head of President Ford's Council on Wages and Stability, said a long strike could have "a very serious impact."

The United Mine Workers union, representing 120,000 miners who produce 70 per cent of the nation's coal, has threatened a national strike on Nov. 12.

A prolonged strike could add 600,000 to 1 million workers to the jobless rolls, driving the unemployment rate, now at a three-year high of 6 per cent, to 7 per cent, according to the Federal Office of Emergency Preparedness.

The Chase Manhattan economists said the U.S. economy is "particularly ill prepared to withstand a long strike."

The latest available survey of the 1,500 manufacturing plants, excluding steel, that depend on coal for fuel showed only an average 30-day supply, and some plants hold only enough "for a week or two."

Frederick G. Jaicks, chairman of Inland Steel Co. and head of the American Iron and Steel Institute, said a coal strike could "shut down the steel industry overnight."

Major steel producers have less than a 20-day supply of coal on hand and some furnaces would be closed in the second week of a strike, according to industry estimates.

The railroad industry depends on coal hauling for 10 per cent of its total revenue. A one-month strike would force disruptions for electric utilities that depend on coal, especially in the Southeast, where inventories are low.

The impasse in coal negotiations drove prices lower on the New York Stock Exchange Monday. The Dow Jones industrial index of 30 blue chip stocks was off 8.05 points at the close of trading.

BLOW UP HIS HOME

Israelis Kidnap Lebanese Mayor

United Press International A helicopter-borne Israeli force entered a south Lebanon border village early today and kidnaped the local mayor and his son after blowing up their home.

The Israelis surrounded the village, searched Mayor Aref Salman's house, blew up the one-story building and kidnaped Salman and his son Ali before withdrawing, the newsmen said.

The Israeli military command did not mention helicopters but said Israeli troops blew up a house used by Palestinian guerrillas and returned with the two men. It said the two were undergoing questioning as suspected guerrilla collaborators. The flare up in military activity against the Palestinians came as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger prepared to return to the Middle East tonight to try to pick up where he left off.

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 6
Your birthday today: Regeneration is the main process in your life this year. What previously seemed dormant comes alive; what was lively becomes more so. Relationships are spontaneously redeveloped—expect changes and surprises. Today's natives are inveterate traders; enthusiastic about all sorts of business enterprises.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Put on a good front whatever your doubts. Bring people together, but flee from speculation. Tendency to scatter energy is strong.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Nobody is quite settled yet in any particular groove, so easy does it! Patience brings out truth and cooperation. It's a day of ups and downs.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Expenses and income don't balance; some economy measures are needed. Work involves stress; do it cheerfully and put it behind you.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: What seems moderate includes extreme elements. Avoid impulsive luxury purchases. Progress is made among today's brisk encounters.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Other people are quick-tempered, so restrain your own. Creative programs can be pushed to good advantage. Concentrate on improving your homelife in later hours.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: You have no time today to quibble over trivia. Your schedule will encompass everything from a brief interruption to a complete washout.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Friends are helpful about everything except money; there, your own judgment must be the main factor. Expect no favors from the great.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Think how much others must do to meet your demands. Depend more on your own efforts, and you will attract significant rewards.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Be candid, stay with one deal at a time. You have shrewd competition in pursuing long-range goals. Be gentle toward loved ones, whatever they're up to.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Sharing material resources doesn't work smoothly today. Be self-reliant. The unknown beckons, goes out for exploration.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Personal involvements complicate career developments. Time spent in social activity is a good long-term investment.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Although your work has to be done in a rush, under critical or skeptical eyes, it will be profitable in the long run. Roll up your sleeves, wade right into the job!

Pork Provides Protein
If you're out of sorts and out of shape, it could be the result of a poor diet. Nutrition authorities recommend two or more servings of meat a day to fill protein needs for good health, vitality and attractive face and figure. Protein, along with minerals and vitamins, is needed not only for growth, but to build, maintain and repair body tissue and to help fight infection and disease as well. Pork is an excellent source of this important body-building protein.

Agriculture Experts Gather In Rome To Discuss Food Problems

ROME (UPI) — Agriculture experts from 100 nations gathered today for an international food conference aimed at searching for a solution to the growing worldwide threat of famine.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim was scheduled to open the World Food Conference this morning, but an afternoon address by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was likely to be the day's highlight.

Kissinger was expected to call for the creation of a new international agency to oversee food aid, trade, production and reserves.

Adede H. Boerma, chairman of the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization, was expected to propose such a group, but with ties to the FAO.

American delegation at the talks, said Monday night he supported the creation of a new body, but would insist on the Soviet Union and the oil nations sharing the cost.

He said the organization "to be meaningful must have some input from the Soviet Union" and "increased participation in world food aid programs" by the oil states.

"I think it is felt that if there is the creation of some kind of additional body called a world food agency, a small body that can serve this purpose, that may come out of the conference," he said.

"It surely will be discussed." Butz said the United States, Canada and other major food exporters could not feed all the world. He called on developing nations to step up production as well.

"Our No. 1 objective in coming here must be to increase production," he said.

Both the Soviet Union and China, two of the world's largest food producers as well as consumers, were attending the conference.

The per capita consumption of cheese in 1960 was reported at 8.3 lbs.
