Ford Pledges Closer Ties For US, Japan

TOKYO (UPI) — Amid predictions the ruling Japanese government might fall within the week, President Ford agreed today with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka on the need to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and pledged closer ties between the two countries.

Ford wound up his hectic second full day in Tokyo at a banquet for Emperor Hirohito with a toast to "the government of Japan and millions and millions of Japanese."

Borrowing the words of the first Japanese envoy to the United States, Ford told Hirohito the most important lesson he had learned in his "memorable" trip to Japan was "the time has come when no nation may remain isolated and refuse to take part in the affairs of the rest of the world."

Ford began his day with a second round of talks with Tanaka, then addressed a luncheon at the Japan Press Club, watched a demonstration of martial arts and attended three cocktail parties prior to the banquet. One party was for leaders of the American community in Japan.

Tanaka and Ford issued a joint communique agreeing on the need to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons—a clear effort to appease Japanese sensitivities over recent reports that U.S. warships bearing atomic weapons have stopped in Japanese ports.

The communique also appeared to signal Japan's willingness, after initial opposition, to accept a Ford administration proposal for all oil consuming nations to cut their petroleum imports by 10 per cent.

But the agreements were shadowed by predictions from within Tanaka's own ruling Liberal Democratic party that the prime minister might be forced to resign under fire very shortly after he bids Ford a final farewell Saturday.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Ford's official discussions in Tokyo had "achieved the optimum of what he could have hoped for."

A power struggle has been under way for Tanaka's removal from office since a Japanese magazine published a lengthy accusation in October that Tanaka had used various cabinet jobs to enrich himself, largely through land deals.

Tanaka, a 56-year-old millionaire in the construction business, has acknowledged he made money but denies he did anything wrong. The accusations triggered the worst crisis in Tanaka's 28-year career as a conservative political figure.

"Calls for his resignation will intensify after President Ford leaves Japan Friday," one source said. "His rivals within the LDP and in the opposition parties will go all out to drive him out of office."

Ford addressed the Japanese people directly in his televised speech from the press club, saying "just as we can work together to maintain today's peace, we can work together to solve tomorrow's problems."

"We intend not only to remain a trustworthy ally, but a reliable trading partner," Ford said. "We will continue to be suppliers of the goods you need. If shortages occur, we will take special account of the needs of our trading partners."

The speech, which was translated simultaneously into Japanese, also contained Ford's first unqualified admission that the United States faces a recession.

Large crowds lined the streets during the President's 10-minute drive to the press club. There was no cheering or flag-waving, as there had been to some degree Tuesday, but neither was a hostile face visible.

Ford was guarded by the heaviest security shield Japanese police have ever mounted for a foreign visitor, but the mass demonstrations that had been feared during his visit failed to materialize.

Waldheim Asks Arabs, Israelis To Cooperate

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Secretary General Kurt Waldheim has called on Israelis and Arabs to cooperate with U.N. peacekeeping efforts to prevent a new Middle East war.

Anxious about heightened tension in the area, Waldheim appealed to "all the governments concerned" Tuesday to avoid touching off the fifth war in a quarter-century of crisis.

The call followed reports that Syria is uncertain over letting the U.N. peacekeeping force remain on the Golan Heights for another six months when the truce team's mandate expires Nov. 30.

Diplomatic sources said Syria is thinking about renewing the mandate for a three-month period instead of for six months. The sources said Israel is opposed to anything short of full renewal.

Waldheim called in Syrian officials to discuss the matter, but diplomats said there is no indication of the secretary general managing to get Damascus to change its mind.

Waldheim expressed concern that "tension has risen dangerously in the Middle East" during the past few days. He said, however, there seems to be "less grounds for fearing an imminent breakdown of the cease-fire."

He urged Arabs and Israelis "to redouble their efforts to make progress through negotiation toward a settlement" and "to cooperate with the United Nations and to support the peacekeeping mechanisms."

He appealed to all nations "to avoid any action which may lead to new hostilities and to exercise the restraint through which alone we may reach the goal which all desire, a just peace in the Middle East."

Kidnaped Officer Killed By Police

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — An army officer kidnaped by leftist guerrillas 10 months ago was shot to death Tuesday night when police closed in on a "people's jail" located in the back of a speeding van.

Police sources said the driver of the truck shot Lt. Col. Jorge Ibarzabal in the face as patrol cars chased the van through the streets of suburban Quilmes.

The sources said a policeman was wounded before authorities finally cut off the guerrilla van and captured the driver. A second truck carrying up to six guerrillas managed to get away.

The sources said provincial police spotted a caravan of two trucks traveling through Quilmes

Tuesday night and tried to question the drivers. The occupants opened fire and sped off with patrol cars in pursuit.

The sources said officers heard shots as police cut off one of the trucks. Inside, Ibarzabal lay dead in the back with bullet holes in his face.

Police sources said he was in a "people's jail" cell in the back of the truck. The cell was covered with a windowless canvas tent to prevent him from finding out where he was.

Ibarzabal's death came five days after his wife took out an advertisement in a Buenos Aires newspaper telling him, "I beg you to be strong, as you have been up to now, because it adds to our strength."

Large crowds lined the streets during the President's 10-minute drive to the press club. There was no cheering or flag-waving, as there had been to some degree Tuesday, but neither was a hostile face visible.

Choir Students Prepare For Scottish Highlands

By ALETHA DAVIS

The Highlands of Scotland, covered with mist, low hanging gray clouds, and weary lost hunters is the setting for "Brigadoon," Pampa High School Choral Department musical presentation set for Friday and Saturday evening performances at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Choir and band students are working toward final phases of the preparation for certain time, according to John Wojcikowski.

Director, Louise Richardson is assistant director and in charge of wardrobe.

Costumes for the show are authentic Scottish ensembles designed from the 18th Century era. Killed "cowboys" will be the order of the day when the shows are presented at 8 p.m. nightly.

Lace, plaids, braid and floral garlands worn by leads and dancers add to the reality of "Brigadoon," a mythical village in the Highlands.

Janet Whitsell is head of the costume arrangements, assisted by Cheryl McGahey, Rhonda Adams, Nancy Kelley, Judy Harris, Linda Busse, Carol Tarpley, Mary Sidwell and Debbie Cook.

Thousands of hours have been devoted to rehearsal, set design and prop construction for the annual major musical by the department.

Publicity has been under direction of Dana Rogers with John Hollar, Keith Coffee, Pat O'Conner, Dave Fraser, Sharon Lockhart, Mike Fraser and Teresa Featherston on the committee.

Tickets and house have been under direction of Leigh Barrett, assisted by Becky Thurman, Alisa

Thompson, Reba Vaughn, Regina Orr, Vonda Winters, Anne Henderson, Carole Howard, Amy McMullan, Brenda Stedum, Brenda Rape, Stacy Smith, Sara Riehart, Nita Griffin, Francis Hair, Connie Jones, Kristie Rapstine and Erin O'Conner.

Makeup application will be directed by Renee Tigrett, aided by Debbie Thompson, Stacey Douglass, Cindy Black, Lindy Laycock, Rene Penn, Gail Wilkens, Anne Henderson and Kelley Gogdell.

Costumes for the show have arrived and are being readied for the show. A technical run through will be conducted today, with a complete and final dress rehearsal scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday.

'LOBBED MUD BALLS'

Mitchell Wouldn't Take Blame

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell refused under pressure from President Richard M. Nixon to take full blame for Watergate in the spring of 1973 and instead "lobbed mud balls at the White House," according to a tape played in federal court today.

Continuing a tape recorded saga of what happened at the White House when the Watergate cover-up began unraveling, the prosecutors played a tape of a meeting on April 14, 1973, when John D. Ehrlichman reported to Nixon that he had failed in his efforts to get Mitchell to shoulder full responsibility for Watergate.

"All finished?" asked Nixon on the tape, who earlier in the day had assigned Ehrlichman to talk to Mitchell.

"Yes, sir," Ehrlichman replied. "All finished. He (Mitchell) is an innocent man in his heart and in his mind, and he does not intend to move off that position. He appreciated the message uh, that, uh, good feeling between you and him."

Ehrlichman's voice was hesitant in contrast to his usual confident, rapid-fire speech.

"And he (Mitchell) said, 'I didn't know what they (the Watergate burglars) were up to,'" Ehrlichman reported. "And he said, 'Nobody was more surprised than I was.'"

"We had this meeting, and, and, uh, he, he lobbed, uh, mudballs at the White House at every opportunity — it was very interesting how he dragged it in, uh, yeah, — one after the other."

Ehrlichman, Mitchell and three other former Nixon aides are on trial for the cover-up.

question. But there's no way he can prove it."

The President then ordered his aides to get to Jeb Stuart Magruder, Mitchell's former deputy on Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign, and find out "what the hell he's going to say" to the prosecutors and the grand jury.

"If Mitchell is indicted here, you think he's going to be convicted," Nixon asked.

"Yeah, I think so," Ehrlichman replied. "I can't guarantee it, but I would be amazed once, once Magruder goes in there."

"But, that's only one man," Nixon said.

"Uh, that's plenty," Ehrlichman said.

After hearing the report from Mitchell, who had been his campaign manager, Nixon considered himself by saying: "One, one footnote is, uh, that, uh, his, uh, throwing it off on the White House isn't going to help him one damn bit."

But he understood the impact of Mitchell's position.

"The fault is the White House's rather than his," Nixon said. "It's bad if he gets up there and says that, it's a hell of a problem for us."

H. R. Haldeman, then Nixon's top aide and now a cover-up defendant, added: "It's a problem for us. No question. But there's no way he can prove it."

U.S., Soviet Leaders To View Detente

LONDON (UPI) — The future of East-West detente hangs in the balance this weekend when President Ford and Communist leader Leonid I. Brezhnev size each other up in the Soviet port of Vladivostok.

Communist diplomats in London said the Soviet Union sees the summit talks as a means to determine "the future of Russo-American relations and the survival or death of the policy of detente."

The diplomats described the summit as a forum to let the two superpower leaders take the measure of each other. Moscow wants to be assured that Ford intends to carry on former President Richard M. Nixon's policy of cooperation.

The Communists expressed doubts that the summit would produce agreements on major East-West issues, but said the talks may lead to accords in months to come.

They warned, however, that discord between the two leaders on basic policy issues could lead to the Soviet Union withdrawing into a new era of isolation.

The Communist diplomats, citing the potential impact of the summit, called the talks a "landmark in superpower relations and policies of the future."

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, in a speech in Moscow earlier this month, said the summit "will have great importance for the further development of Soviet-American relations—we for our part shall be striving for it."

But he added — and Communist diplomats underscored him forcefully — the Soviet Union is not going to give anything away at the talks.

Brezhnev was expected to be especially tough on two issues likely to dominate the Vladivostok talks — nuclear arms cuts and the Middle East conflict.

Sculptor Gives Program About Life Of Christ

Gilbert Neil Amelio gave his interpretation of an inspired artist during a philosophical oratory accented by music and demonstrated by sculpture during a dinner meeting for the Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club Tuesday at the Starlight Room of Coronado Inn.

The artist based his presentation of Scripture references, and moved through the format with the formation of the head of Christ from clay.

His oratory was sparked with personal impressions of Biblical characters in physical contact with Christ during the New Testament era.

The presentation was culminated with the placement of the crown of thorns on the sculpted head and portrayal of the scorn and betrayal experienced by the condemned Christ.

Mrs. James Poole presided for the meeting and the speaker was introduced by J.E. Gunn.

The invocation was offered by G.N. Massey and Sue Higdon provided dinner music.

"The Face of Christ" (and its many facets) is a program which has received wide acclaim.

More than 900 audiences have viewed the program which was researched by Amelio in Italy, Jerusalem and parts of Asia. Distinguished theologians were asked for advice in preparation of the presentation, which has continued to gain recognition after 14 years of public display.

TO GIVE FORD POWERS

Mansfield Introducing Measure On Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield today introduced legislation that would give President Ford authority to slap controls on every major segment of the economy.

Declaring the nation's economic picture was "worsening" ever day, Mansfield said the measure would give Ford discretionary authority identical to powers given to former President Richard M. Nixon.

But that wage-price control authority expired last April and Congress failed in an attempt to extend it for another year.

Despite Mansfield's plea for "action" on the economy, there almost no chance that Congress could pass such legislation this year.

The House today planned to try and override two of Ford's vetoes — one on expansion of the Freedom of Information Act and the other a Vocational Rehabilitation program.

"The bells are tolling and we know for who," Mansfield said in a Senate speech.

administration and the Congress are both drifting and not drifting in the right direction."

Mansfield said the bill would give Ford discretionary authority to impose controls on wages, prices, rents, profits, dividends and interest and require that the administration submit a detailed plan to Congress within 60 days "on how this authority would be implemented."

Mansfield said with unemployment rising, "We need a total economic program to deal with this situation. Volunteerism is not the answer."

Mansfield indicated strongly Tuesday the lame duck Congress will not break any new ground.

Mansfield told the Senate Democratic Policy Committee that Congress will clean up the appropriations bills, act on the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president, tackle a trade bill, deal with bills already in conference, and consider a "few additional legislative items."

The Curse Of Waste

Waste is the curse of an affluent society. It tends to increase as the economy booms. It likewise tends to decrease as the economy slumps.

The late R. C. Hoiles, who founded Freedom Newspapers, often told us that "we can't stand prosperity." He didn't mean that it is a bad thing to be prosperous but rather that it is more difficult to make wise decisions when times are good.

The realism of poverty and scarcity makes conservation a necessity. Few persons need much persuasion on that score. But the wise individual realizes that if conservation is a good practice during hard times, it is equally valuable when the larder is filled.

But these are ideas born of the free market and of the concept of individual responsibility. Somehow they seem to have gotten lost in the shuffle of the welfare state.

The natural frugal way of life in American has dissipated through the years because self-reliance and individual responsibility have been preempted by agencies of political government.

This is the bureau of mines which keeps track of ore production, the National Labor Relations Board, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the agricultural department, the Food and Drug Administration, the Federal Energy Office and countless more at the federal level.

Then come the state inspectors, the state department of human resources, the department of motor vehicles. She has to pay the state and county health departments and finally the city hall for such things as building permits and business licenses.

We have only scratched the surface there, but the point is clear that the customer pays all the costs, those directly involved in the production plus all the costs added by non-productive government interference.

Government is the fastest growing and most costly activity in our land, and every tick of the clock inflates the cost of living.

The challenge is to recognize where the housewife is wasting her money.

Can Mankind Successfully Play God?

By MARYLYN MANION
One way of defining the species homo sapiens is to say that, unlike all other creatures, man does not merely adapt and react to his environment; he shapes and changes it. Only man has a part in consciously moulding his own destiny.

From this point of view, man's peculiar nature has brought to the earth both good news and bad. The good first: centuries of what we call civilization.

We have explored his mind and his world and put what he has learned to work. Religion, art, medicine, science. He has defied gravity, harnessed the rivers, discovered oil, and explored space. He has learned to cure the sick and prolong lives. Indeed, it is the science of medicine through which man has most dramatically changed the fortunes of millions of human beings.

Which is where the bad news comes in, and a question presents itself to be answered: How far should man go in controlling his future? Or, to put it another way, does man have the right to play God? (For many people, the last version of that question has no meaning; for their "religion" is humanism, and the supreme being is man himself. But even for them, the problem persists.)

For centuries, human beings have discovered ways to thwart nature's due course in the matter of pregnancy. But only in this most advanced age has abortion become so easy and widespread as to produce mass destruction.

Proponents of abortion are much given to talk of rape and deformity, but what is usually boils down to is a matter of pure convenience. And so the question is simplified, the criteria reduced, until one merely asks herself, "Which alternative, birth or death, will be more convenient?"

Already people have stopped thinking about the fact that a human life is involved. It isn't human until it's born.

And what of when it is born? If euthanasia is presumed to be not only merciful but desirable in the case of the incurably ill, the elderly, the senile, why not to the deformed newborn? Or the unwanted newborn? When convenience becomes god, anything is possible.

Murder, it seems, is not enough. Eager geneticists are figuring out ways to change the whole human race.

Scientific mating, cloning, abortion, euthanasia. Man shaping his environment? Or man forgetting who he is, and why he is there? — The American Way Features.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

How CBS Slants Its News

By WILLIAM RUSHER
Bit by bit, the evidence that TV news reports are often grossly biased is becoming overwhelming.

In 1971 Edith Efron's epochal book "The News Twisters" proved conclusively, by the arduous but unassailable process of counting the words spoken, pro and con, that all three major networks had slanted their election coverage heavily against Nixon during the last six weeks of the 1968 campaign.

Then in 1972 the American Institute for Political Communications, a respected non-profit organization, released a study concluding that all three networks had displayed "a significant degree of bias" in their reporting of the 1972 Democratic primary campaign and the Vietnam war.

The bias, as any child of three could have predicted, was in favor of McGovern and against President Nixon's policies on the war.

Now the Institute for American Strategy has issued a careful analysis of the reportorial job done by CBS-TV news in the field of national defense issues in 1972-73, and once again the finding is the same: The "partial and slanted" job done by CBS "had the effect of narrowing the parameters of public debate" on the issues.

Since CBS is notorious for accusing its critics of the very bias of which it is so often guilty, the IAS went to great pains to make the study it commissioned as independent and objective as possible.

The overall director of the project was Ernest W. Lefever, Senior Fellow in Foreign Policy Studies at the Brookings Institution in Washington. The transcripts of the CBS news reports were obtained from the Television News Archive at Vanderbilt University. Eight outside academicians, headed by Prof. Frederick D. Wilhelmsen of the University of Dallas, were hired to analyze the transcripts. And the work of the analysts was then evaluated, their methodology improved, and their report modified by a group of eight truly distinguished scholars, including Dr. Charles Burton Marshall of Johns Hopkins, Professor Paul Ramsey of Princeton, and Dr. William Schneider of the Hudson Institute.

And what do you suppose the findings were: — That CBS coverage of national security news "was so spotty and lopsided that it failed to provide the essential facts."

— That CBS News actively advocated "a position that implied or called for a lesser commitment to American allies and lower defense expenditures."

— That CBS News "failed to provide a reasonable opportunity for the presentation and discussion" of views calling for a stronger defense.

As an illustration of this last finding, the study points to the air time CBS gave during 1972 to differing viewpoints on defense expenditures. By an actual count of sentences, critics who thought the government was spending too much got over 61 percent of the allotted coverage. Those who supported the government were given 35 percent. And critics who didn't think the government was doing enough got the rest: less than 4 percent.

In other words, as far as CBS is concerned, practically the whole ballgame on defense expenditures must be played between the 50-yard line and the left goalpost. And that is just one illustration from the nearly 200 pages of evidence set forth in this masterly study, which is published under the title "TV and National Defense" and can be obtained for just $3.95 from the IAS Press, Boston, Virginia 22713.

Will this prove just another arrow fired blindly into the air? Perhaps not. The IAS has called on CBS to provide a reasonable opportunity for expression of the views it has so diligently ignored, and seems quite prepared to go to the FCC and demand revocation of the licenses of CBS affiliates under the Fairness Doctrine if prompt changes and compensatory programming are not forthcoming.

That will be quite a hot potato for the FCC, which promulgated the Fairness Doctrine precisely to insure a reasonable diversity of views but has thus far managed to duck most invitations to invoke it. If it refuses this time, there may be considerable hell to pay. (Copyright 1974) great pains to make the study it commissioned as independent and objective as possible.

The overall director of the project was Ernest W. Lefever, Senior Fellow in Foreign Policy Studies at the Brookings Institution in Washington. The transcripts of the CBS news reports were obtained from the Television News Archive at Vanderbilt University. Eight outside academicians, headed by Prof. Frederick D. Wilhelmsen of the University of Dallas, were hired to analyze the transcripts. And the work of the analysts was then evaluated, their methodology improved, and their report modified by a group of eight truly distinguished scholars, including Dr. Charles Burton Marshall of Johns Hopkins, Professor Paul Ramsey of Princeton, and Dr. William Schneider of the Hudson Institute.

And what do you suppose the findings were: — That CBS coverage of national security news "was so spotty and lopsided that it failed to provide the essential facts."

— That CBS News actively advocated "a position that implied or called for a lesser commitment to American allies and lower defense expenditures."

— That CBS News "failed to provide a reasonable opportunity for the presentation and discussion" of views calling for a stronger defense.

Best advice is "unload the bum"

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Here's my story: Career girl, age 44, married man same age. First marriage for both. Girl owns beautiful home and earns twice as much as man.

On wedding night, husband watches old movies on TV until bride falls asleep. After one year, bride still a virgin! Nobody would believe it, but it's true. He has absolutely no interest in me as a woman. But he must have an interest in sex because he never misses an X-rated movie. He can see the same one three times. Figure that one out!

I pay all the bills, including taxes, insurance, groceries and clothes for both of us. Trips, too. (We went to Europe in July.) He has a job but I never see a dime of his money. I even cut his hair, and when we go anywhere I drive because he's too "tired."

Today is our first wedding anniversary and he forgot it. I don't know what I ever saw in this man. He is a big nothing. My problem is I can't seem to bring myself to tell him that we don't have a marriage so he should clear out. Can you help me?

GUTLESS IN N.Y.

DEAR GUTLESS: If you are waiting for someone to say, "Unload the bum," I'll volunteer. And if he's still around when the snore flies, face it, you're either awfully lonesome or you desperately need to "do" for somebody.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this open letter to a nosy man: Today I got into an elevator in a large building where I work. An old man (in his 50's) was on the elevator when I got on.

He smiled at me and asked, "Is that red hair natural?" I was stunned. All I could think of to say was, "That's none of your business."

He replied, "I'm sorry. I was just trying to be friendly." Abby, if a man wants to start a conversation with a total stranger, he should comment on the weather, local sports, or something less personal than whether a girl's hair color is natural.

Please tell men who want to be friendly in elevators to use some common sense. UNFRIENDLY IN PHILLY

DEAR UN: Natural red-heads would have been pleased and answered, yes. Dyed red-heads would have been annoyed. "Old men" who ask such questions can expect to lose some and win some. And some men "in their 50's" like to gamble.

DEAR ABBY: I have a daughter who was born on a Saturday and a son who was born on a Sunday. I seem to recall a poem about Monday's child, Tuesday's child and so on, but all I can remember is "Thursday's child has far to go" and I'm not even sure that's right.

I have asked everybody I know if they can recite the whole thing and nobody can. I even called the public library and was told unless I knew the name of the author they couldn't help me. Can you?

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Yes! "Monday's child is fair of face, Tuesday's child is full of grace, Wednesday's child is full of woe, Thursday's child has far to go, Friday's child is loving and giving, Saturday's child has to work for a living, But a child that's born on the Sabbath Day is fair and wise and good and gay."

AMERICAN EDUCATION Fundamental School An Overnight Success

By MAX RAFFERTY
It's a solemn moment, friends. Let's all stand at attention. The future — God willing — is knocking at the gate.

I give you the new John Marshall Fundamental School of Pasadena, Calif. It's public, it's free, it's so popular that 2,200 children are on its waiting list and it's 40 percent black. It has nothing to do with open campuses, modular scheduling, unstructured learning, ongoing relevance or the other blige that passes for the wave of the future.

Get a grip on yourselves while I parade the Marshall policies before your unbelieving eyes:

- 1 — Classes are grouped according to ability.
- 2 — Homework is assigned from grade one on.
- 3 — Grades are given in the basic subjects on reports cards, and they reflect actual achievement only.
- 4 — No child is passed to a higher grade until he has mastered the subject matter of the grade he's in.
- 5 — Dress must meet minimum standards. Men teachers, for instance wear coats and ties. Women wear dresses, period.
- 6 — Strict discipline is maintained, with padding and after-school detention permitted.
- 7 — High moral standards are emphasized. So are respect, courtesy and patriotism.
- 8 — Reading is taught by phonics, starting in kindergarten. Spelling bees are common. So are basic math and grammar contests.

I know, it's hard to grasp. Especially since the Pasadena schools have been pretty much a mishmash of quality — progressivism for the past 20 years, or ever since Willard Goslin fouled them up during his memorably disastrous tenure as superintendent there.

What happened? The local school board decided to give parents an option. You see, there's also an "Alternative School," which is so plabumized and permissive that it makes the late Jon Dewey look like Adm. Rickover by comparison. If you want Junior to be relevant and adjusted and accepted by his peer group, you send him to Alternative. If you want him to learn how to read, you send him to Marshall.

Result: Pupils are flocking to Marshall and withdrawing by the hundreds from Pasadena's other schools. Marshall currently has 1,700, with hundreds more pounding on its doors to get in.

Further result: The nonfundamental schools are seeing their classrooms depleted of both children who want Education in Depth and teachers who prefer to teach it. So they're having to react to completely new and unexpected competition by tightening up their own educational standards.

How do the kids like it? Hear Dr. Henry Myers Jr., vice president of the Pasadena School Board: "In three words, they love it. Our children are crying for discipline. They are also crying to learn. And just like adults, they feel good when they've learned something. They are tired of being told they can do whatever they want to."

Now, friends, where does this leave you? I hope it leaves you with an example of what can be done whenever you decide to work hard enough to elect a school board determined to follow Pasadena's lead. After all, the California educational Establishment is just about as power-mad and regimented and way-out as it can get. Yet Pasadena set up the Marshall school despite the frowns of said Establishment, and it is a roaring, runaway success.

You might — just might want to urge a similar course upon your own board members.

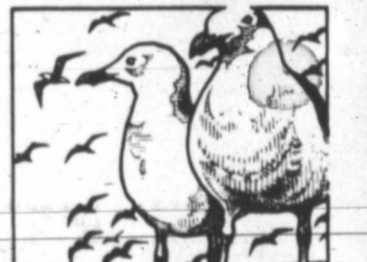

Just one thing more. I listed eight of the Marshall policies above, but left out one. Here is No. 9, and it may well be the most significant of them all:

9 — The school has no federally funded programs.

It has given, in other words, no hostages to permissiveness.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The common gull or seagull feeds upon fish and mollusks but is most useful as a scavenger which eats edible refuse from ships or in garbage dumps. Extremely graceful in the air, the gull has long, narrow wings adapted for gliding, which enable it to glide in air currents behind ships and to soar effortlessly inside warm air columns. The World Almanac notes.

Cattle Industry Leaders Support Grading Plans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cattle industry leaders are pressuring the Agriculture Department, with letters from ranchers and their families, to keep alive a proposed new federal beef grading plan consumer groups object to, industry spokesmen say.

The grading proposal announced in September is designed to increase production of lean, but still tender, beef. Backers of the plan say both cattlemen and consumers would save money because less costly grain would be needed to fatten cattle to market weights.

But many comments filed with the Agriculture Department by consumers include objections to the plan, a spokesman for the American National Cattleman's Association said.

In many cases, earlier checks indicate, consumer spokesmen fear the plan might be used to produce low-cost beef under the present "Choice" grade label without passing the savings on to shoppers.

"We feel ... opposition stems from a lack of knowledge about the proposed (grading standard) changes," said Wray Finney, a spokesman for the ANCA.

"But this doesn't change the fact that the Agriculture Department needs to hear from us, and on a massive basis," Finney added in a newsletter sent to the nationwide ANCA membership.

Department officials, who have held a series of public meetings to explain the plan in addition to inviting comments by mail, will accept written reactions to the proposal until Dec. 10. After that, officials will review the public response and decide what if anything to do about changing the beef standards.

"Unless the beef cattle industry unites behind the grading proposal, any changes at all could be delayed for a long time—costing cattlemen and consumers millions," Finney said. He urged every cattle producer to write a letter of support for the grading plan and to have his wife "as a homemaker" write a letter of her own.

The proposed changes in grading standards would eliminate the amount of marbling fat needed to qualify some young cattle for the prized Choice and Prime grades. That would result in Choice grade labels, for example, on some beef which now falls into the lower Good grade.

Standards for the Good grade, which is not used much in retail merchandising, would be narrowed and tightened. The object would be to create a uniform-quality grade, leaner and cheaper than Choice and Prime, as an alternative for shoppers who might prefer it.

"Combined as a package these changes would allow the production of quality beef in a shorter average feeding period using a lesser amount of grain," Finney said.

Scout Official Gives Thanks To Volunteers

President Gene Steel of the Adobe Walls Council, Boy Scouts of America, estimates that there are thousands of individuals, businesses, and other institutions in this area who contribute to Scouting in many ways.

In a Thanksgiving message to 5,000 registered Scouting adults and to the others who offer time and financial support, Steel said, "We who serve the youth of the Panhandle are know that it is only the dedication to voluntarism that makes it possible for us to offer a quality program for boys and young men and women from ages 8 through 20."

"We extend our most sincere appreciation at this Thanksgiving time, especially to the leaders of our Cub Scout packs, Scout Troops, and Explorer posts. They are in direct contact with youth on a regular basis and give of themselves so that boys may grow into valuable adult citizens to serve our nation."

Steel also said many Scouting units will be conducting Thanksgiving "Good Turns" during the holiday period.

Beer Linked With Cancer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two scientists say they have found a statistical relationship between beer drinking and cancer — but warned that does not necessarily mean beer causes the disease.

Statistics from 41 U.S. states and 24 foreign countries show that regions with the highest per capita beer consumption generally also have high rates of rectal and intestinal cancer, the two researchers said.

The findings by Dr. James E. Enstrom of the UCLA School of Public Health and Dr. Norman E. Breslow of the University of Washington were published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Enstrom said the researchers looked for a relationship between cancer and consumption of beer, wine, liquor and cigarettes. They found no correlation between any cancer and wine drinking, he said, but the statistics used were for 1960, when there were not many wine drinkers in the United States.

They found a relationship between hard liquor consumption and cancer of the esophagus in men, Enstrom said, but found many more statistical relationships involving beer.

A weakness of the study, the authors noted, was that it is based on statewide averages, not directly on beer drinkers.

Mohawk Indians Want Old Ways

By MICHAEL R. FRANCO
BIG MOOSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Mohawk Indians, who are claiming the Adirondack mountains as their own under a 1794 treaty, hope to return to the old ways, to hunt and fish and live off the land in New York and Vermont.

They are preparing for a long winter while armed sentries guard the mountainside they hold. The Ganienkeh Indian Nation holds only a 612-acre former girls' camp that a band of 50 Mohawks occupied last May. But the Indians think in bigger terms. They claim the nine million acres of the entire Adirondacks of northern New York State and part of Vermont under a 1794 treaty.

I tried to visit the camp near picturesque Moss Lake. A young Mohawk sentry, armed with bow and arrow, his hair in long braids and rope headband, barred the way on the ice-crusted road up the scrub oak slope.

A bespectacled Indian spokesman came from a split log hut to tell at length of the move "to return to the old ways, to hunt and fish and live off the land in a non-moned society."

He spoke with sarcasm of how "your nation has oppressed peoples all over the world just as we have been oppressed."

But the oppressed are getting back their land from your nation. They did in the Philippines," said the Mohawk in warm boots, winter coat and mittens. "We're asking that the federal government recognize our legal right to the land."

The Indian occupation attracted relatively little attention through the summer. State and local authorities tried to negotiate the return of the land. The Mohawks opened their camp to all Indians. Some came from Canada. One Sioux joined them from the Southwest.

Then on Oct. 28, a nine-year-old girl and a 22-year-old man were shot as they passed the camp in cars. More than 50 state police surrounded the area. The Indians refused to let them in and said they would talk only with the President of the United States or his representative.

Speaking from his own reservation, Onondaga Chief Oren Lyons lent his support. "The treaty signed in 1794 between the big Six Nation Confederacy and the United States establishes a procedure to settle injuries. This is the procedure that must be followed," he said.

Edward Cabell, a federal mediator, entered the talks with the Indians and investigators were allowed into the camp. The tension eased. Only a few state policemen keep watch on the camp. The Indians say they prefer to settle it in court but still insist President Ford should intervene.

While a truce prevails, the Indians are preparing for a long stay.

There is fear among many white residents. "There's only one road out of here and that's by those Indians," said Doug Bennett of Big Moose. "We could be virtually isolated if real trouble ever broke out."

A housewife said the school bus for Big Moose passes the Indian camp daily.

"Would you want maniacs like them living so close to you and shooting innocent people?" said a shopkeeper in Eagle Bay.

WTSU Band Plans March Into Amarillo

AMARILLO — The 240-piece West Texas State University Band will "make history" Saturday, Nov. 23, when they march 20 miles from Canyon to Amarillo.

The longest such march known for any band, their effort will qualify West Texas State for a listing in the Guinness "Book of World Records" and hopefully raise enough money to send the Symphonic Band to California.

"We need approximately $20,000," noted director Gary Garner. The West Texas State group was selected from nationwide competitive tape auditions to be one of six bands to perform before the prestigious College Band Directors National Association Feb. 5 in Berkeley.

"This represents the association's recognition that the West Texas State University Symphonic Band is a top concert band," Garner said.

Garner said that each student will have to raise approximately $150 by seeking sponsors to pay any amount they wish per mile. The estimated four-hour trip, beginning at 10 a.m., will culminate with a concert in Amarillo's Western Plaza Shopping Center.

Israel Declares Terrorist War

United Press International
Israel mourned its dead in the frontier town of Beit Shean today and declared a "war on terror" to rid the Middle East of Arab guerrillas.

In Damascus, the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine took responsibility for the Beit Shean raid and vowed to "strike at the enemy until the liberation of our land from Zionist occupation."

Police sent reinforcements to the town of 13,000 near the Jordanian border to prevent demonstrations at the funeral of two men and two women killed in Tuesday's Arab commando attack.

Israeli troops stormed the apartment building and killed three guerrillas holed up for three hours. Police said the commandos carried rifles, grenades, propaganda leaflets and dynamite.

Twenty-three Israelis were injured, most of them when they jumped from windows in the 12-apartment, three-story building. They were taken to a hospital in nearby Afula.

House Committee Okays Depletion Allowance End

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tax relief for more than 38 million Americans and an immediate end to the granddaddy of all tax loopholes, the oil depletion allowance, was approved Tuesday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Action on a chopped-down tax bill came during a sometimes dramatic session in which softspoken Tennessee Republican, Rep. John J. Duncan, broke ranks with all his GOP colleagues to cast the deciding margin in the 13-12 vote to end the depletion allowance.

Chairman Wilbur Mills, Dark., said he hoped to get the bill to the floor Dec. 4 or 5, but even if it passes the House, an almost certain filibuster by oilstate senators awaits it in the Senate.

If the bill should survive the House and the Senate in the few weeks remaining in this Congress, all taxpayers who use the standard deduction — an estimated 38.2 million — would get at least a small tax break.

For those with incomes of less than $15,000, the tax cut for the 1975 tax year would average about $55. This would be accomplished by increasing the rate for the standard deduction from 15 per cent to 16 per cent of income, and raising the maximum allowable deduction from $2,000 to $2,300. The minimum deduction, which the poor would get no matter what their income.

Singles Club Plans Dinner

The Betwixt — Between Singles Club invites all adult singles to a covered-dish Thanksgiving dinner Saturday, Nov. 23, at 7 p.m. Members and visitors will meet at 1121 S. Hobart. Each one is to bring a covered dish to complement the turkey and dressing provided by the club.

New members are urged to be present for the brief business session. Two new officers will be elected.

would be increased from $1,300 to $1,600 for individuals and $1,900 for joint returns.

Oil companies were hit especially hard. The 22 per cent oil depletion allowance would drop to 15 per cent retroactive to last Jan. 1, and would end completely in six weeks, on Jan. 1, 1975.

A temporary excess profits tax — actually a graduated excise tax on crude oil prices — would be imposed for five years although a portion of the tax could be "plowed back" into oil exploration and development beginning in 1976.

Suicide Note Confirms Death Of Bell Official

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas County medical examiner's office today said a suicide note left by the head of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s Texas operation confirms the ruling of suicide, but he would not comment on reports the letter discusses scandal and corruption within the company.

"I'd rather not discuss the contents of the letter," said Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. Vincent DiMaio. "However, the note does confirm the ruling of suicide. The letter is two pages, hand-written, and it was written by Mr. Gravitt."

The death of the executive, T. O. Gravitt, 51, former vice president in charge of Texas for the company, occurred during an internal investigation by Bell officials. The ruling was that Gravitt committed suicide by shutting himself in his garage with his car running, causing carbon monoxide poisoning.

The existence of the note was not revealed until Monday, and reportedly said in part, "Watergate is a gnat compared to the Bell System."

DiMaio said for a time officials considered filing an obstruction of justice charge against the Gravitt family for not producing the note sooner, but DiMaio today said no charges would be filed.

Pat Maloney of San Antonio, attorney for the Gravitt family who filed a $26 million libel suit against Bell, today said the letter was found by Bell employees during a search of Gravitt's belongings. Maloney said Gravitt's son, Mike, obtained the note from Bell after insisting, and then Mike turned the note over to Dallas authorities after they asked for it.

The libel suit was filed last week in San Antonio and contended that Gravitt was hounded to his death by the investigation. Maloney said the note was the basis for the suit.

NACE To Hear Talk On Phone

Dale Johnson, public relations director for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., Lubbock, will be the speaker at the November Ladies Night, meeting of the Panhandle Section of the National Association of Corrosion Engineers Monday, Nov. 25, at Sutphens Barbecue in Borger.

A social hour is scheduled for 6:15 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. Johnson will speak on "Phones of the Future."

Nation Economic News Forecasting Bad Times

United Press International
Bus drivers, coal miners, shipbuilders and delivery men were on strike today, and new layoffs were announced in the auto industry.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted another great depression unless the government forges a new era of cooperation, and for the first time without qualification. President Ford today said America faces recession.

The stock market reacted to the economic developments by dipping an average 37 cents a share Tuesday. The Dow Jones index of 30 industrials plunged nearly 11 points, closing at just below 614.

The news was not all bad, however. An administration official said sugar prices would drop next year, the House Ways and Means Committee voted a tax break for families earning less than $15,000 and a tentative settlement was reached between striking delivery men and the United Parcel Service in the New York City area.

The worst economic news Tuesday came from Detroit, where Chrysler announced it is closing all but one of its six U.S. auto plants and laying off almost 44,000 more workers for five weeks — before Thanksgiving until after New Year's Day.

The latest move brings to about 150,000 the number of auto workers laid off by Chrysler, Ford and General Motors — almost a fourth of the total industry labor force.

Striking coal miners have put off a ratification vote on a tentative settlement, and there appears little chance work in the mines could resume before December.

About 16,000 Greyhound bus drivers went on strike Monday, shutting down the nation's biggest bus company, and more than 13,000 shipbuilders struck the Ingalls Shipyard Tuesday night, threatening costly delays in Navy construction projects worth $3 billion.

But in New York City the Teamsters Union and United Parcel Service reached tentative agreement late Tuesday to end an 84-day strike by about 4,000 delivery men. President Ford referred to the sagging world economy in a speech to the Japan Press Club.

"Like others, we suffer from inflation. Like others, we face recession," he said.

In Washington, Mansfield warned of another great depression and told the Senate Democratic Policy Committee, "Rhetoric without action is not enough. What I believe is needed to break this impasse is a new spirit of cooperation — cooperation between parties, between branches and between houses of Congress," he said.

Arthur Calcagnini, the head of the Agriculture Department's sugar division, said Tuesday retail prices will begin dropping next year and may fall to 20 cents a pound.

Housewife Defends Textbook Charges

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — A defendant in a $30 million libel suit filed by an Oklahoma publishing company whose textbooks were rejected by the Texas Board of Education today said the legal action could frighten the public and end citizen review of proposed schoolbooks.

"It's (the suit) sure got me quivering," said Mrs. B.C. Hutcheson, a housewife who spoke against adoption of the books at a series of hearings. "Part of me says there's no reason for anyone to be frightened but I'm sure it could give some people second thoughts."

"Even if the suit is thrown out of court it's going to cost a considerable amount of Gasoline Ration Plans Creating Consumer Ills?

HOUSTON (UPI) — An oil company executive says if the government carries out a proposal to ration gasoline it will result in disaster for consumers.

"If we just got the federal government out of our business the price of gasoline would drop a nickel," said Granville Dutton of the Sun Oil Co., in Dallas.

"Federal government interference with the law of supply and demand has resulted in the energy crisis. Continued interference, particularly by such radical methods as forced rationing, will result in disaster."

In a briefing for newsmen Tuesday, Dutton said the only solution to the energy crisis is to increase supply.

"The law of supply and demand will not only bring into balance with supply quickly, it will—through the free market pricing mechanism—automatically allocate available supplies to their highest value and uses—without bureaucracy," he said.

Dutton recommended immediate removal of price controls on domestic crude oil and its products by the President and on natural gas by Congress.

"It's time for (natural) gas to start carrying its part of the burden," he said. "The energy crisis is really a dollar crisis."

"Products other than gasoline should absorb a portion of the costs. Should all products share equally in the increase in oil prices, gasoline prices would rise less. The choice boils down to paying what a product is worth rather than not having it at all."

Doctors Link Smoking To Fatal Heart Attacks

DALLAS (UPI) — A team of doctors said today cigarette smokers run a very high risk of sudden fatal heart attacks, but there appears to be no link between drinking and attack deaths.

Dr. Arthur L. Klatsky of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Care Program in Oakland, Calif., told the American Heart Association conference of a study of 197 men who died within 24 hours of an attack.

"Cigarette smoking was positively associated with sudden cardiac death; coffee drinking, heavy aspirin use, and alcohol showed no statistically significant association," Klatsky said.

"The comparison of responses about cigarette smoking showed that current cigarette smokers seemed to be at substantially greater risk of subsequent sudden cardiac death than were those who stated that they do not currently smoke," he said.

He said previous theories were that aspirin and limited alcohol drinking helped prevent sudden attacks. However, he said, the study showed no good connection.

"There were slightly more teetotalers and slightly fewer heavy users of alcohol among the sudden death victims," Klatsky said.

Also, he said, there was no direct link between persons drinking at least six cups of coffee per day and sudden death victims.

Klatsky said all of the men studied in the group had completed questionnaires during physical examination prior to their death and their answers were compared to a similar group of cardiac patients who did not die later of sudden attacks.

He said more than half the men had clinical evidence of heart disease prior to the deaths and the rest were found by autopsy to have heart disease.

In another symposium Tuesday, three doctors said congenital heart defects can be treated by proper care or surgery two weeks after birth.

A thought for the day: Scottish writer Thomas Carlyle said, "Music is well said to be the speech of angels."

The mail reveals that there are many women on the domestic scene who would like to write a humor column. The foremost problem confronting most of them is they have not laughed in ten years.

If there is one key word to writing humor, it is perspective. Something may not seem funny at the time it happens. However, given a few years it takes on a whole new dimension.

One of the foremost examples that comes to my mind is my son's bedroom. Who would have thought this could be a topic for humor?

When I visited his room in 1969, my son was six years old. I looked at the troll doll with the blind cord looped around its neck, tripped over a cereal bowl half-filled with leather pudding, roused the dog who was sleeping under a dish towel out of the top bunk, and went into shock when I discovered a coonskin hat made out of the tails on the only furpiece I was to ever own.

I didn't laugh that year. In fact, when my husband found me in a fetal position in the linen closet rocking gently back and forth singing Faith of Our Fathers to a coonskin hat.

In 1972, I again returned to his room as there were complaints from the family that the room smelled like a tire factory.

Things had changed. The room had deteriorated to the point where I couldn't tell where the clutter left off and the decomposition began.

One thing was certain. There was nothing in that room that would ever face extinction. Never before nor since have I seen living organisms being produced at such an astronomical rate. Bacteria was multiplying and dividing before my eyes. The goldfish were at Population 2000, the gerbils were living in Orgyville under the bed, and two tennis shoes were reproducing in the corner.

I tried smiling, but I wasn't ready to laugh yet, especially when a mechanical monster chased me all over the room and held me at bay until his batteries burnt out.

I almost laughed in 1973, the year the underwear which was draped over the desk lamp caught fire, but luckily there was a bucket of old hub caps from the dump that were soaking by the bed and the fire was extinguished but my husband slapped me across the face, postponing my hysteria.

Just to show you how time has a way of putting things in perspective, I went into his room yesterday. The stereo made my eyes lock, there were two years of TV Guides under his pillow, the only thing on a hanger was a canteen, his water bed smelled like a condemned gym and thanks to his open windows, we have been air-conditioning the state in the summer and heating it in the winter.

I laughed... all the way to my encounter group. Copyright 1974 Field Enterprises, Inc.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE
By FRED KARPIN

During the 1974 Summer National Championships, a player was contemplating a bid. The more he thought, the further he tilted back in his chair. Finally he crasheed to the floor in an almost undignified position. But did he try to regain his feet? Did he try to get out of that ungainly pose? NO, indeed, his first move was to scoop up his 13 cards which had fallen face up on the floor, before his opponents could get to see them. And so it is demonstrated that self-preservation (winning, instead of losing) is the first law of nature.

The classic example of the self-destructiveness that can result when one shows an opponent his cards can be observed in today's deal. Sitting south was the late Charles Lockridge, one of the great players of the 1930s and 1940s.

Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

The bidding by South and East has an aura of irrationality about it, and I will not attempt to analyze it. But, in fact, it did develop exactly as presented above.

After West had opened the jack of clubs, upon which East played the discouraging deuce, as Lockridge expressed it, "I was so impressed with my brilliant bid that I forgot to cover the jack with dummy's queen." West now went into a long huddle deciding what he should lead to trick two.

As Lockridge told the story, after about a minute had gone by, he didn't see any point in waisting everybody's time, so he exposed his cards and claimed the balance of the tricks. West, Samy Fry, Jr., of New York, had long possessed the attribute to essential to being a winning bridge player, he could count to 13. So it didn't take him long to recognize that East was void of hearts.

At trick two, West led a heart, which East ruffed for the setting trick. As to what West would have led if Lockridge had not exposed his hand will, of course, never be known. And if dummy's queen had been played on the opening lead I would have had no story.

Dr. Long Is Travis Speaker

The William B. Travis PTA met in the school auditorium, Nov. 14. Mrs.

TX TOPS Club No. 225 met recently in Skellytown library for their regular weekly meeting with the leader, Mrs. Frances Stamps, presiding. The meeting opened with the club pledge in unison and the singing of the fellowship song.

Mrs. Laura Jo Skaggs was crowned weekly queen for a loss of 2 lbs. The club members lost a total of 15 lbs. and only a gain of 4 lb. Odell Hassler was queen for the month of October for a loss of 6 1/2 lbs. She received a cash award from the club. Two members, Mrs. Jane Russell and Mrs. Barber were reported ill. Mrs. Dorothy Williams reached her desired goal last week after losing 24 lbs. and is a kop in waiting for the next six months. Three months perfect attendance were Mrs. Sadie Lane and Mrs. Dorothy Williams, both receiving their awards at a later date.

Members in attendance were Mmes. Margaret Simmons, Laura Jo Skaggs, Dorothy Williams, Evelyn Patterson, Frances Stamps, Cecil Grange, Juanita McCarthy, Phyllis Rich, Odell Hassler, Sadie Lane and Fannie Coleman.

Most Recipes For Fondue

Most recipes for fondue call for the cheese to be mixed or tossed with flour before it's added to the wine or base which has been warmed on a sauce pan. If cheese is not floured first it tends to remain in a mass or one piece rather than melting readily for the fondue.

Altruza Club members present were Louise Sewell.

Most recipes for fondue call for the cheese to be mixed or tossed with flour before it's added to the wine or base which has been warmed on a sauce pan. If cheese is not floured first it tends to remain in a mass or one piece rather than melting readily for the fondue.

Carbon Monoxide Unseen Hazard

One of the less obvious hazards faced by the cold weather driver, notes the Texas Safety Association, is deadly carbon monoxide poisoning.

Invisible, tasteless, odorless carbon monoxide gas is a greater hazard in cold weather because drivers roll up their windows on chilly days, cutting off ventilation that would normally sweep fumes out of the passenger compartment.

Positive ventilation — a movement of fresh air through the car's passenger compartment — is a strong defense against carbon monoxide poisoning. However, safety experts caution, simply opening side vent windows will not necessarily ventilate a car. Since vent windows opened to their normal position draw air out of the passenger compartment rather than funneling it in, the result could be to help draw in exhaust fumes already seeping into the passenger compartment.

Good automobile maintenance is the best insurance against carbon monoxide dangers. Exhaust systems should be free of blown-out gaskets, leaking pipe connections and holes in mufflers and tailpipes. Holes in the floorboards, firewall or trunk can also provide an easy entry for fumes leaking from the exhaust system.

Tip-offs to carbon monoxide poisoning include drowsiness, weakness, headache, dizziness, nausea, loss of muscular control and increased pulse and respiration. Although unconsciousness can occur without any warning signals, the motorist who feels any of these symptoms should get out of the car and breathe some fresh air. He should then drive with the windows down and have the exhaust system checked at the first opportunity.

He has preached in most of the largest Baptist churches of the nation as an active lay preacher; conducted WIN (Witness Involvement Now) institutes in Africa and conducted campaigns for Baptist institutions.

and Wisconsin under the "Big Cheese" program.

Officers to be installed are Dale Butler, president; Robert Johnson, vice president; Bryan Buck, program chairman; Roger Hedrick, Kenneth Steward, and "Shorty" Rochelle, group captains, and Jimmy Clark, secretary.

A chili supper will be served starting at 6:45 p.m. with the pastor of Hobart Baptist, Rev. John Hansford, as chef. Mrs. Billie Jean Shugart will be at the piano and will play for the ceremonies.

All Baptist men are invited to attend.

TAS Outlines Bicycle Safety Rules

Noting that fatalities resulting from bicycle accidents rose an astounding 71 percent during the first half of 1974, the Texas Safety Association recently outlined some basic safety rules for bicycle riders.

Since fall and winter weather conditions can present special hazards, TSA points out, cyclists should take extra care to protect themselves by observing traffic signs and signals as though driving a car.

Other safety measures suggested by TSA are:

—Ride single file on the right hand side of the street.

Jupiter has more than two-thirds of all the planetary material in the solar system.

as near the curb as possible. —Don't carry a passenger on a bicycle. It obstructs vision and makes steering and balancing difficult.

—Dismount and walk across especially busy streets.

—Be alert for suddenly opened doors when passing parked cars.

—Stop to make sure sidewalks and streets are clear when coming out of alleys and driveways.

—Your bicycle should have good brakes, a horn or bell, a rear reflector and a headlight. Light colored clothing is safest for night riding.

Price is right for hobo return

By JOHN SINOR
Copley News Service

A few years ago I wrote a piece expressing regret that the hobo of old was gone forever. From what I read in the papers, I may have been premature.

The price is just about right for the hobo to make a comeback.

There were hoboes around all through my early days. Grandpa said they became hoboes when the Depression hit, then a lot of them found they liked the life. They stayed with it even after times got better.

They weren't tramps, mind you. They were hoboes. And they raised the life to the level of a profession.

"Times are gettin' hard, boys. Money's gettin' scarce. If times don't get no better, boys, I'm going to leave this place."

That's the song they sang at first. Then, after a few years on the road, they changed their tune.

They started singing, "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum!" Hoboes would come around and cut our wood for us for the price of a sandwich and a glass of buttermilk. Then they would tip their caps and head on down the road.

Nobody knew where they had been or where they were going. ("Been everywhere, sonny. Going everywhere else.")

Nobody but themselves knew who they had left behind. Or why.

They roamed the highways and rode the rods. An old slouch hat and roll on their shoulder. Kings of the road, toasting their freedom with a tin cup of scalding coffee around a campfire in a grove of trees at the edge of every town.

Then, one day, most of the trains stopped running. And so did most of the hoboes.

Well, the freight train business is picking up again, I read.

And here we are in 1974 and times are getting hard, boys. And money's getting scarce.

I decided to be a hobo when I was 13. I mean, I was going to be one right then and there. (School was getting hard, boys.)

I packed up a knapsack with some dried chicken noodle soup and bread and rolled up a sleeping bag. Then I talked a friend into becoming a hobo with me.

We started walking out of Sacramento and by nightfall we set up our first camp in a cow pasture outside of Roseville. We sat around eating our chicken noodle soup and congratulating ourselves for finally discovering what life was all about.

We didn't know where we were going the next day, but we could hardly wait to get there.

Well, three days on the road walking and hitchhiking got us as far as Reno, Nevada. Circumstances prevented us from going beyond there. (The particular circumstance was a police bulletin on a couple of runaway boys.)

Our life on the road ended when our parents arrived to take us home. And we admitted we were very sorry for leaving and worrying everybody and all that.

But it sure seemed like a good idea at the time.

Lefors-Sundown Rated Tossup

By PAUL SIMS
Groom met Matador and lost in last year's area Class B bi-district game. This year, those two teams, both predicted for a return engagement in the playoffs, lost but one district game, keeping them out of post-season play and sending Lefors and Sundown to the second stop towards the state championship.

Lefors (5-5) nudged Groom (13-7), while Sundown (10-1) stopped Motley County (Matador), 26-20, for the 1-B and 2-B district titles last week. A year ago, Groom and Matador played with the latter winning on penetrations although the score was tied, 6-6.

This year's bi-district clash, set for 7:30 p.m. Friday at Hale Center (south of Plainview), looks to be just about as close.

Even the Harris Rating System sees the game as a tossup.

When Groom and Matador played, it was size versus speed with Groom carrying the weight and Matador owning the speed. Sundown coach Bill Dendy says this year's battle will be the same — size (Lefors) versus speed (Sundown).

"We're just little," said Dendy, who listed his largest player's weight as 175.

But rival coaches and others who have seen the Roughnecks say that Dendy is far too conservative, that his players probably average 170.

Maybe Dendy doesn't know how to read scales, but one thing is a certainty — he knows how to put together an exceptional football team. Dendy's been here before: in 1970, his Roughnecks beat Rule in the regional playoff, which was as far as a Class B team could go at the time. On the other hand, Lefors coach Leonard Tolbert hasn't been here; this is his first of likely several district championships.

Whatever the line ways is not important. All have done an outstanding job opening holes for the breakaway backfield, which consists of quarterback Phillip Smith, fullback Randy Wood and halfbacks Glen Faught and Mike Waygood.

Waygood, a senior, is the best possessing good speed (runner up in the intermediate hurdles at the state track meet this year) and some flashy moves. "He carries the ball a considerable number of times," said Dendy.

"We run considerably, and we can throw it some. "Lefors, they're tough. Every phase of their game. They do a good job of it, running, throwing and their kicking game is real good. Against Groom, our scouts thought the defense won them the ball game.

"They'll be the best ball club we've played this year. They have good size and good speed. We can't key on any one phase of any one or anybody. They've got some running backs that can break on you any time."

Those backs are full back Barney Sawyer, quarterback Greg Beck and halfbacks Jim Hix and Rick Jennings. All have been explosive but lately Sawyer has been most impressive, gaining 252, 178, and 145 yards in the Pirates' three district games.

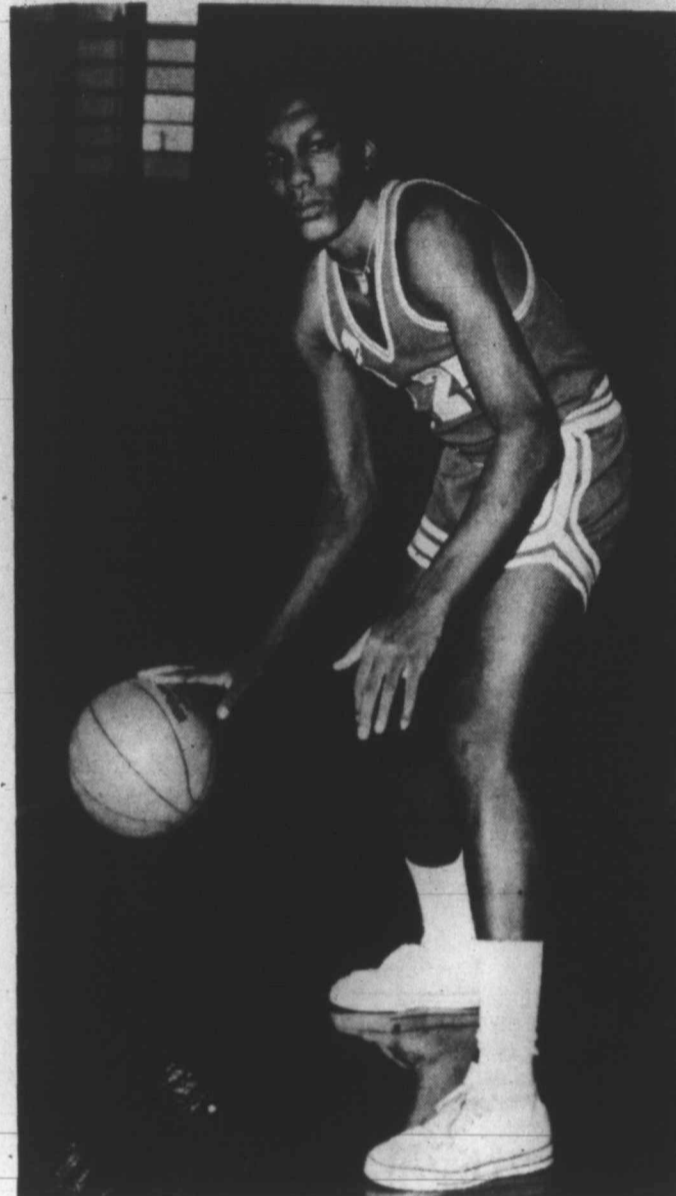

The Sundown defense comprises of ends Rodriguez and Terry Arnold (160), tackles Hogue and Scotty Hensley (140), linebackers Burnett, Menges and Wood, cornerbacks Smith and Buster Day (135), and safeties Fought and Waygood.

Neither team should have players out because of injuries.

MEET A HARVESTER — Senior Robert Young, a 6-1 guard, should give the Harvesters exceptional outside scoring this season. Young hit on 91 of 217 field goal attempts and 35 of 56 free throw tries for a seven-point scoring average last season while starting part-time. The Harvester should be among the best outside shooters in the district.

'Unusual Year' Claims Landry

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys are facing elimination from playoff contention for the first time in nine years, but don't expect coach Tom Landry to start "playing for the future."

"I don't like to lose regardless of the circumstances," Landry said Tuesday. "We might play some of the younger fellows, but whoever we play is going to have to be able to win for us."

"This has been an unusual year," Landry said. "It is hard to measure (why the Cowboys have faltered) because of all the disruptions."

"I don't see too many teams playing good football this year. Oakland is the only really good team I've seen."

Pampa Dolphins Take 6th Place

The Pampa Dolphin swim team participated in its third meet of the season at the Mabee Memorial Swim Center in Midland, Texas Friday through Sunday.

The meet was sponsored by the City of Midland Swim Team with 13 teams from Amarillo, Midland, Odessa, Lubbock, Abilene, San Angelo, Ft. Stockton and Pampa entering the meet, and the Pampa team placed sixth in team competition.

Clay Douglass led the Pampa by earning five individual "A" times and placing first in the 200 IM, fifth in the 200 free, and fourth in the 100 back, sixth in the 50 free and third in the 100 free. Reid Steger also earned two individual "A" times in the 50 back and the 200 IM.

Scoring points for Pampa in eight relay events were: Tammy Glascock, Kim Campbell, Robin Hill and Kris Douglass (Girls' 13-14 medley relay and free relay); Richard Steger, Rob Williams — Robbie Hill and Tim Hartin (Boys' 11-12 medley relay and free relay); Clay Douglass, Reid Steger, Richie Hill and David Dawson (Boys' 10-under medley relay and free relay); Sam Gilbert, Ronnie Gibson, Chris Alexander, Tony Hartin and Mark Lehnick (Boys' 13-14 medley relay and free relay).

Twenty swimmers from Pampa entered 188 individual events and bettered their best individual times in 135 of the events for the swimmers who bettered individual times in most events entered were Sam Gilbert, Robbie Hill, Robin Hill, Reid Steger, Clay Douglass, Rob Williams, Richie Hill, and Rhonda Woodard and Tony Hartin.

Ted Brown of Pampa, who swims for the Amarillo Aquatic Club, entered 13 events at the meet and improved his best individual time in 11 events. He also won a 1st place medal in the 500 free and the 1650 free.

Next Saturday, the Pampa team will sponsor a swim clinic at the Pampa Youth and Community Center featuring Doug Russel, coach of the Amarillo Aquatic Club. The following weekend, the Pampa swimmers will send approximately 30 participants to the Lubbock Thanksgiving Invitational Swim Meet at the Texas Tech pool.

Ranger Chosen MVP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jeff Burroughs of the Texas Rangers, a protege of Ted Williams who started the 1974 season hoping to avoid the "sophomore jinx," was voted the American League's most valuable player today by a decisive margin over a trio of the world champion Oakland A's.

The 23-year-old native of Long Beach, Calif., third youngest player ever to win an MVP award, received 248 points in voting by a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Stan Musial in 1943 and Vida Blue in 1971 were the only players ever to win the award at a younger age.

Following Burroughs in the voting were the Oakland Trio — Joe Rudi with 161½ points, Sal Bando with 143½ and Reggie Jackson with 119 — with Ferguson Jenkins of the Rangers fifth at 118 points.

"It's the greatest honor a player can get," said Burroughs when notified of his election. "And it makes it even greater being only 23 years old and in my second year of major league ball."

"I have to say that Ted Williams taught me to think at the plate a little more — that hitting isn't just walking up and then taking three swipes," Burroughs added. "And I also have to say that (Manager) Billy Martin was a terrific influence on me. It was really nice to start to win after we had been the dogs of baseball for two years. The year just kept getting more exciting as it went along."

Burroughs, who is known to his teammates as "Mr. America" because of his powerful build and enormous batting power, hit .301, connected for 25 homers and led the league with 118 runs batted in last season.

"My only real goal when I started the 1974 season was to avoid what they call the sophomore jinx," Burroughs said. "I had no idea that I might be a candidate for the MVP. I knew I had a decent year in 1973. I just wanted to come back and have a good season."

Groom Rips Clarendon Behind Kuehler's 50

Rose Kuehler popped the nets for a whopping 50 points to lead the Groom girls basketball team to a 71-50 win over Clarendon Tuesday night in the Groom gym.

Trevino Fined

SYDNEY (UPI) — Texas golfer Lee Trevino today was fined $655 by the Australian Professional Golfers Association for his remarks about Melbourne's Royal Golf Course and failure to attend the presentation after the Chrysler Classic Tournament earlier this month.

Colin de Groot, chairman of the PGA's tournament committee, announced the fine and said Trevino breached tournament rules by his criticism of the Royal's greens and imposed the fine immediately after the committee learned Trevino had left the course without attending the presentation.

Dear Consumer

New Law Assures Credit for Women

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Are you a working woman who handles her income wisely and who needs—or wants—credit? You can now be assured that your application for credit will probably be approved.

Under a new Federal law, the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, women may no longer be denied credit simply because they are women. As of October 28, 1975—when the new law becomes effective—sex discrimination will be banned in the granting of credit. However, I hope that many progressive stores will not wait that long to give women their due credit.

The law does not mean that stores and lending institutions must give charge accounts, credit cards and loans to every woman who fills out an application. What it does mean is that women applying for credit must be judged by the same standards used for men: a steady income, prompt payment of bills, a regular savings record, cautious use of credit.

This new law gives women protection they have long needed. Several years ago, during hearings of the National Commission on Consumer Finance, it became clear that women were often turned down for credit only because they were women.

At the hearings, a widow described how she was refused charge accounts in her own name, though she could get accounts in her dead husband's name. A 40-year-old divorced woman with a full-time job needed her retired father to co-sign with her so she could get a mortgage loan.

Fortunately, women will never again face such discrimination. But women—like men—do have a responsibility to show that they can handle credit cautiously. Never borrow more than you can comfortably repay, on a regular monthly basis. Never open more charge accounts than you can handle. Don't ever let yourself get in over your head when it comes to credit.

You would face problems if you were ever turned down for credit on the ground that your credit rating is bad. Keep that in mind as you consider these suggestions:

• Open a savings account and a checking account in your own name.

• Married women often neglect this, but it is useful in helping you to establish your credit standing.

• If you're ever refused credit, find out whether the reason is that you have a poor credit rating.

Whenever you apply for credit, a report on your credit standing is prepared, usually by a credit reporting company. Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act, you have the right to learn the name and address of the credit reporting company that put together the report on you. Contact that company—they must tell you what information went into the report.

• If the data in the report is accurate, and if you were turned down because you actually do have a poor credit rating, get some help. Talk with the credit manager at the credit reporting company. Ask for suggestions on what you can do to establish a sound credit rating.

• However, if the data in your credit report is inaccurate, take action. The law sets up ways for you to remedy the situation if a false credit report has been filed against you. Learn your rights by getting Consumer Bulletin No. 7 from Federal Trade Commission, Legal and Public Records, Washington, D.C. 20549. It's free.

• Take action, also, if you are turned down for credit even though you do have a good credit rating. Since the Equal Credit Opportunity Act does not become effective until Oct. 1975, it will take time for some stores and lenders to change their old ways of granting credit. If you encounter situations which you think may involve sex discrimination, contact the U.S. Attorney for your district. You will probably find the U.S. Attorney's office in your phone directory, under Department of Justice, in the U.S. Government listings. If there is no such listing in your directory, ask your local post office to help locate the U.S. Attorney for your district.

WHAT ABOUT RETIREMENT?

Volunteer work can mean new adventure

By FRANK CORRICK
Copley News Service

Q. Would you please advise my husband and I about a volunteer job as we have had skills and experience? — Mrs. T.S.

A. There are volunteer jobs that will make use of your own particular skills and experiences. You may want to contact your local schools, church, hospital, or charities to find out what kind of volunteer help is needed in your own community. Another source of information besides these local groups is:

The National Center for Voluntary Action, 1735 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

The many retired people who have involved themselves in voluntary activities are proving once again that "retirement" does not signal the end of something, but rather the beginning of some new adventure.

Q. What are the privileges for older persons to remember their age? — R.Q.

A. Most anyone cares about their age as well as their dollars so they can get the better benefits from both. Therefore, it is good for them to know about places, services and privileges and the help to save their money.

There are many services provided in several cities, which can mean convenience and benefits to the older person such as free checking accounts in the banks, where you don't have to pay the bank for each check you write.

There are such banks providing free checking accounts in Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Q. Are hearing aids misleading? — B.Y.

A. The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has warned consumers against advertising which claims that hearing aids can remedy all hearing difficulties. Many older people suffer from some loss of hearing and they are the main targets of misleading hearing aid advertising.

The FTC points out that not all hearing trouble can be solved by using a hearing aid. It advises everyone to be sure to have a doctor, audiologist (hearing specialist), or hearing clinic determine if a hearing aid will help.

Q. People on Social Security — do they receive an increase in benefits when the cost of living keeps soaring? — A.A.G.

A. After May 1975, benefits may automatically be increased to keep pace with increases in the cost of living if laws providing general benefit increases are not passed. You will recall that a general benefit increase of 11 percent was paid in a two-step increase earlier this year.

The first month for which a cost of living increase may be effective is June, 1975. The increase will be payable if the consumer price index shows an increase of at least 3 percent between the second quarter of 1974 and the first quarter of 1975.

Q. Could my daughter who is partially disabled qualify for my Social Security if I die first? My Social Security comes from my eldest daughter who passed away in 1964. This present daughter has worked enough for 21 quarters up to 1971 and some part time jobs in 1974. She is 51. — Mrs. B.C.S.

A. You must be receiving benefits as a dependent parent of the daughter who died in 1964.

Your disabled daughter would not qualify for benefits on her sister's account, but she might be eligible to receive either Social Security Disability benefits based on her own work or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments if she is in need.

To be considered "disabled" under either program, a person must be unable to engage in any substantial gainful activity by reason of any medically determinable physical or mental impairment which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.

Q. How many quarters of coverage do I need to get the maximum Social Security? Is it based on what I earned in the last 10 years? — L.D.

A. If you worked in employment covered by Social Security from 1937 up to now, you would have 152 quarters of coverage. That would certainly qualify you for a Social Security benefit.

BUT, it wouldn't necessarily mean that you would receive maximum benefits. The amount of your monthly benefits depend on how much you earned during your employment or self-employment under Social Security.

The benefit amount is based on an average of all but five of your lowest years of earnings from either 1937 or 1951 up to the year of attainment of retirement age. In most cases, the 1951 starting point produces the higher benefit amount.

Questions on retirement may be mailed to What About Retirement?, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One month has passed since President Ford's historic Future Farmers speech in which he outlined his hard-hitting, 12-point anti-inflation program.

During the interval, according to the latest report, wholesale prices have jumped more than two percent.

These figures seem to indicate that Ford's austerity plan is encountering some resistance. Here are three news items that may pinpoint the noncompliance:

SHAMBLES, N.C. — A PanFlied Airways flight from Malignant Springs, Ga., was delayed 20 minutes last night by a female passenger who refused to finish her dinner.

While the plane circled the airport here, crew members tried to persuade the woman to abide by President Ford's admonition to "clean up your plates." Airline officials said it would endanger the economy for the plane to land with food on her tray.

But she declined, complaining that the stewardess had ignored her instructions to "hold the grits."

"Ah hate grits," she snarled, "and Jerry Ford or nobody else can't make me eat 'em, inflation or not."

Both the pilot and the copilot came into the passenger compartment to reason with the woman. The fact that they left the cockpit together apparently caused some uneasiness among the other passengers.

The plane finally landed after a compromise was reached under which the woman, identified as Lacybug Slapforth of Buttermilk Springs, Miss., agreed to clean up her plate by putting the leftover grits in a doggie bag.

UPPER WROUGHT, Pa. — For the third straight day pickets marched outside the home of Herb Flingnail protesting his failure to dial down his thermostat to 68 degrees.

"I can't take the risk," Flingnail, a retired board bristle salesman, told newsmen. "I've got a certificate from my doctor affirming that I am allergic to goosebumps."

When the room temperature drops below 70, I get gooseflesh and that triggers the allergy, which causes my earlobes to vibrate.

But Flingnail's neighbors, who organized the demonstration, insist he is a slacker in the war on inflation.

"In this league, you play hurt," a spokesman said.

The Bureau of Mines has purchased an electronic "blue box" that can remain on continuous alert against concentrations of gases or a fire in any part of a mine complex.
