First Class Defense Wish of U. S. Chief

Additional Personal Reasons Urging 75 Million Expenditure

OTHER NATION'S PLANS STUDIED

Replacement Program to Require Much of Appropriation

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—Stressing his belief that America needs a first class navy, Secretary Wilbur placed today before the House naval committee both his personal reasons and those of the navy general board for asking Congress to authorize a $725,000,000 new warship construction program.

"In preparation of this program, the board has primarily considered the need of this government for its naval defense," he said. "It is true that in determining this need the general board at times has taken into consideration the condition of other navies and their construction and replacement program, so far as they are known to us."

LOCAL MAN RELEASED AT HEARING YESTERDAY

W. J. Ford, local man for whom extradition papers were received from Oklahoma, based on a charge of wife desertion, was released yesterday in a habeas corpus hearing before County Judge T. M. Wolfe.

This was the first habeas corpus hearing ever held before a county judge in Gray county. Jurisdiction was because of the fact that wife desertion is a misdemeanor offense in Oklahoma. Judge Ben Baldwin, attorney for Ford, argued that the defendant was a citizen of Texas at the time of the alleged offense, and that he has lived in Pampa for more than a year, and therefore could not be guilty as charged.

ANNUAL MEETING OF C. OF C. WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

The annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The session will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. At the last meeting, plans for this year were discussed and a committee to nominate directors was named. This committee has prepared its report, and will make its nominations at the meeting. This committee was composed of Chas. I. Hughes, W. R. Campbell, P. B. Carlson, A. F. Clark, and Roy McMillan.

MISS TOLLESON WILL TEACH PIANO HERE

Miss Elizabeth Tolleson, Amarillo girl well known here by reason of her visits with a sister, Mrs. G. C. Malone, will open classes in piano in Pampa January 16.

Miss Tolleson teaches according to the approved Progressive Series method, and has a number of pupils in Amarillo. She also plays, but does not teach, the violin, and has in the past been a member of various orchestras.

She is a pupil of Miss Minnie Hutchinson, widely known Amarillo instructor, who plans to present her in recital here in February. Miss Tolleson will have her studio at Mrs. Harvey Hayne's residence at the corner of Frost street and Browning avenue. She may be consulted by calling 552 or 109.

Roy Wilson has been given permission by the city council to haul away and sell junk metal from the old city dump ground.

Their Mothers

27 INTERSECTION LIGHTS TURNED ON HERE THIS WEEK

The Southwestern Public Service company this week turned on 27 intersection lights in the residential sections of Pampa and eight alley lights in the business part.

These additional lights were authorized by the city several months ago and the company has been stringing cable and making connections to complete the work more than a week sooner than expected.

Sixteen additional standards will be erected on Ballard street to complete the white-way system. The work has been delayed on account of shortage of cable but Manager W. H. Curry expected to finish in the near future.

At a later date, it is expected and requested by residents of the city that more intersection lights will be erected and that Pampa will have a more prominent skyline.

FLYING BOOSTERS RETURN

(By Associated Press) MEXICO CITY, Jan. 11—The Houston Chamber of Commerce good will flying party departed from here today in the two planes from which they flew here from Houston.

OIL SCOUT MISTAKEN FOR BANK BANDIT WOUNDED BY POSSE

(By Associated Press) LUBBOCK, Jan. 11—Mistaken for one of the men who robbed the First National bank of Sylvester yesterday, E. V. Hall, 25 years old, a scout for the Gulf Oil company, was wounded near Justiceburg, 65 miles southeast of here, last night when a posse fired at him.

The wounds are not considered serious.

HUGE APPROPRIATION BILL FORWARDED TO HOUSE BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—The second big appropriation bill of the session, provided $82,000,000 for the state, justice, commerce, and labor departments was passed by the House today and sent to the senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—Activities of the interior department will require an expenditure of $272,000,000 next year, under the second departmental supply bill. It was reported to the house today.

All but $62,000,000 of the total is provided for army and navy pensions.

Guernsey No. 1 McKinney Sprays at 3,297 Feet, But Bailer Must Be Fished Out Before Drilling In

A slight spray of oil was encountered yesterday at 3,297 feet in the Guernsey Oil company's No. 1 McKinney in section 163, block 3, but a dropped bailer necessitated a fishing job. The well is spraying in spurts from the top of the big pay, and as soon as the bailer is recovered the well will be drilled in.

This well has logged with the Empire Fuel and Gas company's No. 1 Archer. Three nice showings have already been encountered, and the local men who comprise the company are very optimistic.

The Guernsey Oil company's No. 2, McKinney in the same section is at 1,100 feet, with drillers setting casing. The company plans further drilling operations on its leases in that section in the near future.

Republican Group Starts Work on Kansas City Convention Plans

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 11—The problems of entertaining a republican national convention in June will occupy the attention of a host of Kansas Cityans and a sub-committee of the party from now until the event begins five months hence.

A group of six committeemen and three committeewomen has the responsibility for assignment of seats in convention hall, for distribution of floor space among newspaper correspondents, for housing of delegates and alternates in conveniently located hotels and for countless other duties.

David W. Mulvane of Kansas, chairman of this sub-committee, will face these tasks in the light of his experience in launching the Cleveland convention of 1924. From now until the opening of the big show on June 12 he will give constant attention to arrangements at Convention hall and also at the hotel which will serve as headquarters for the national committee.

Mulvane's home is in Topeka, some 60 miles from Kansas City, and therefore he will not be compelled to do so much traveling as he did while arranging for the 1924 convention.

William M. Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the national committee, will help launch the arrangements.

Besides Mulvane, the members of the sub-committee on arrangements are Charles D. Hiller of New York, Ray Williams of Oregon, R. E. Ham H. Crockett

Baptist Banquet One of Largest Ever Held Here

Styled as an event which had been planned for sixteen years, the banquet spread by the Baptist Laymen's Union for the women of the church and for a large number of other guests last night was one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings ever held in Pampa.

M. P. Downs, genial toastmaster of the evening, was energetic in providing merriment for the more than 325 present. The banquet was at the new J. M. Radford wholesale grocery building on East Tyng street. It was the first use to which this 50 by 150-foot structure had been put.

Prof. Otto Schick and his high school orchestra furnished much appreciated musical entertainment. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Mann, and Bob Rose, and Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn, the latter of Panhandle, gave vocal duets, and Mrs. Rose also sang several solos.

After the delicious meal prepared and served by the men, the Rev. D. H. Truhitte, pastor spoke in appreciation of his people and introduced Supt. R. C. Campbell. Supt. Campbell introduced his faculty, members of which were special guests of the evening.

Rev. Truhitte then introduced about 50 other guests. Mr. Downs called upon a number for short talks. These speakers included W. H. Doyle, M. K. Brown, C. P. Buckler, Olin E. Hinkle, J. D. Sugg, and J. E. McClarkin of Amarillo.

Mrs. Harry Barnard, president of the W. M. U., thanked the laymen for planning such a delightful occasion.

The Texas company's No. 1 Bowers in section 89, block B-2, continues to be the surprise well in Gray county. Sunday morning it blew in for 40 barrels an hour at 2,861 feet while workmen were preparing to set 5-inch casing.

Bonday the flow increased to about 1,200 barrels and the last 24-hours the well flowed 1,330 barrels and is reported to be increasing today.

REV. TODD SPEAKS ON ROTARY'S PART IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Rotary's influence in international relations was discussed at the Rotary Club meeting at the Schneider hotel today. The Rev. James Todd, Jr., gave an interesting talk on the great movement for peace relations and the work of the Rotary Clubs and Colonel Charles Lindbergh to that end.

"We are living in a wonderful age," Rev. Todd said, "and with all nations working harmoniously both in trade relations and club movements, we should see an age of prosperity before us." He quoted from the Rotarian magazine, which stated that 26 nations have organized new Rotary clubs, one of which was in the Belgian Congo, several in South America, and two in Mexico.

He suggested, and it was later adopted, that the committee on foreign relations should send a message of greeting to the two new clubs in Mazatlan and Matamoros, Mexico.

Visiting Rotarians were Ira Carpenter and W. D. Stepkin of Panhandle, and Dr. J. A. Odom of Memphis, Texas, now situated in Pampa.

Visitors at the luncheon were C. W. Sewell, L. A. Dennison and Harry E. Moore.

His Studebaker roadster was badly damaged.

E. M. Sheffer, an employe of the Howell Oil company, was taken to Pampa hospital in a dazed condition last night following a car collision on Kingsmill avenue. He was able to leave the hospital a short time later.

Refutes Libels on National Birds

American eagles apparently are not the "bad citizens" which popular tradition would indicate, says Dr. Francis W. Herrick (right) of Western Reserve University. Viewing their home life in a tree-top (above) day by day, Dr. Herrick came to the conclusion that they kill vermin and that they do not rob farmers of livestock.

VERMILLION, Ohio—Benjamin Franklin called the American eagle a "pirate and a bad citizen," but Dr. Francis W. Herrick of Western Reserve University doesn't agree with him. Dr. Herrick has been studying eagles for several years. From a tree-top perch along the shore of Lake Erie he had spent countless hours observing a family of the birds that makes its home in the fork of another tree, and he says his observations so far do not support popular libels on the eagle's character. These particular birds, protected by state and county, do not rob farmers of livestock, Dr. Herrick reports, but they do kill rats and other vermin. Fish is a favorite item on their bill of fare.

To this scientist, who knows them so well, the eagles have vivid personalities and in their cries he can read curiosity, fear, parental admonitions and other expressions of emotion. Dr. Herrick's studies have disclosed that four weeks are required for the incubation of the eagle egg. He estimates that an adult bird can fly 600 miles a day.

Whites four eggs, 1-4 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-2 cup grape jelly, 1 tablespoon hot water. Beat whites until foamy and add cream of tartar. Continue beating until dry. Melt jelly with hot water and slowly add to beaten egg whites. Turn into a well buttered mold and steam for 25 minutes. When cold, unmold and serve with a boiled custard made with the yolks of the eggs. Boiled Custard Dressing Yolks 4 eggs, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 cups milk, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Scald milk in top of double boiler over hot water while preparing other, ingredients. Beat egg yolks well and gradually beat in sugar and salt. Add 2 tablespoons hot milk and beat well. Slowly add more milk until sugar is dissolved. Stir into remaining milk and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until mixture coats the spoon. Cool and add vanilla before serving.

BANDIT OR REBEL.—About a year ago there was a serious revolution in Nicaragua, in which the United States supported the established government and Mexico the rebels.

In the revolution, a conference between the warring factions and a United States commission resulted in an agreement to end the revolution, with the understanding that United States Marines should remain in the country through the following summer to insure a fair election and the establishment of a stable government.

Sandin, former miner, criminal, and desperado, was a minor leader in the revolution. He did not like the agreement to end the fighting, finding that in it he lost his individuality and power.

Marine officers are opposing his advances on the theory that he is a common bandit, and that they are on duty to help preserve a stable order in the republic.

Considered from this standpoint, there appears to be little cause for criticism if this country is to continue to support the Monroe Doctrine and its later interpretations.

al procedure. Its relation to the League of Nations is sure to crop out strongly sooner or later. Moreover, because the bandit Sandino has many sympathizers in Nicaragua, and because bloodshed through the instrumentality of foreign troops is never truly popular with any people, the ultimate effect may be disagreeable.

What might be the procedure if this nation were a member of the League of Nations now is a good question for debate.

WANTED—The Houston office of Texas company announces the arrival of a Ford tri-motored, 12-passenger plane for use in Texas oil business.

The Texas company is writing to various cities to learn what landing fields are dependable. The pilots must map their tours over the state, showing what facilities each of the important cities maintain.

It will be but a short time until the airplane will be used by most men who must "make" a large territory. Pampa must prepare a municipal airport for the reception of these prominent visitors.

WASHINGTON LETTER

Tolstoy once declared that the word patriotism as commonly regarded was much too restricted in its application. He held that loyalty to the ideas and aspirations of one's country is commendable, yet he insisted that it is loyalty to an idealism broad enough to include the welfare of all humanity which gives to patriotism its highest meaning.

Patriotism limited to the support of one's national ideals and interests smacks of selfishness. Its basis is the desire for national supremacy, that is for one's country, because it is one's own, to advance to a position of prominence and power in the community of nations. Patriotism, in its best sense, on the other hand, holds to the course which makes for the progress of the race regardless of national boundaries, color, or creed. It often happens, however, that the ideals which are represented in national existence are universal in character, and therefore are worthy of whole-hearted support.

The highest development thus far attained seems to be a combination of the two concepts. Many good citizens find in the ideals which inspire the Christian nations their highest concept of fraternal obligation; others with a broader vision are satisfied only when the national concept of obligation envisages humanity. With the present structure of society, national existence is undoubtedly a necessity. Yet the lifting of vision to the far horizon of universal brotherhood will exalt and purify that national existence. For after all, selfishness on the part of nations is no more praiseworthy than when confined to the individual. But nations are healed of selfishness only in proportion as its constituent individuals are liberated from the bondage of self-will and self-desire. He who exalts his thought above the desire for personal gain submerges self in the glorious sea of unselfed service. Then loyalty to his ideal constitutes the highest type of patriotism.

Lindy "Takes Off" --- A Future Possibility

The mental attitude which would declare "my country right or wrong" is patriotic only in the degree that it prompts diligent activity in the promotion of the right in place of wrong, whatever may be the type of national delinquency. The day has passed when nations stand aloof from intercourse with other nations.

Hard Year Ahead

Sammy Mandell, the recognized holder of the lightweight championship, was placed in what the boys call the frying grease frequently during the past year and he'll be in there this year because he has not been what is fancied as a fighting champion. Just what are the specifications of a fighting champion cannot be fully defined because there are so few of them.

The name of Tommy Loughran comes to mind when there is any mental exercise given to the definition of a fighting champion, but he is one notable exception. Mandell's name appeared frequently late in 1927 as the winner of bouts here and there, but they weren't big "here and there" and the boys insinuated that Eddie Kane had been so successful in finding virgin territory that Rand-McNally wanted him to take charge of the new map.

Most of the criticism directed against Mandell and Kane came from the east side of New York where two Ghetto boys, Sid Terris and Ruby Goldstein, mounted the push carts and cried that they weren't getting a square deal. Most of the fighting talk that comes out of New York is heard and believed because the boys in that neighborhood can talk loud and they have convincing gestures.

Rights of Champions

It would seem, however, that Mandell hasn't been such a terrible champion. He will agree with you, and so will Kane, that he is not a Joe Gans or a Benny Leonard, but they would have you tell them, how do the present champions of the other classes compare with their predecessors of that period which is fondly recalled as the good old days of the three great American jacks—John L. Dempsey and McAuliffe.

Mandell hasn't defended his title for a long time in places, at weights or over distances that the New York Commission regards as championship requirements, but in refusing to be blackjacked into a match in New York he has merely exercised the rights that champions have taken unto themselves.

Mandell has just as much right as the other champions to hold out for his price. The lightweight championship cost him $20,000. He had to guarantee that Rocky Kansas would get $50,000 for defending his title and when the gate didn't come up to the proper figure Kane had to dig down and make the purse good.

There was no scandal attached to this deal. Kansas didn't dive. He was merely protecting himself financially in the event that he lost. Guaranteeing of purses to champions by challengers is a necessary part of all present-day matchmaking.

Kane has held out that if he had to go into his pocket to guarantee a purse, the gentleman behind Terris and the other challengers should do the same thing, but it seems those gentlemen are not so sure that their fellows can beat Mandell. The first crack at Kansas was considered a sure thing and Kane bid highest for it.

Kane Names Terms

Kane told Jess McMahon, Tex Rickard's matchmaker, not long ago that Mandell was ready to fight in New York and that they would not bring their opponent along in a suitcase. He mentioned the price and McMahon said it was not exorbitant. But Kane had other terms.

He insisted that an air-tight and financially bonded promise be given him that Terris or any other opponent selected would agree to give Mandell a return bout within a specified time in Chicago, in the event that Mandell lost. It was suggested that Kane have Terris' managers put up his purse as a bond that this provision be fulfilled, but nothing came of it because Chicago was Mandell's neighborhood.

Kane then wanted to know if Terris was a stranger in New York. "If we come into New York, we will have two strikes on us," Kane said. He explained that he had faith in the honesty of New York officials but that the judgment of some of the judges and referees had not always been backed by the public. The boys on the shelves in the Garden do well when "Sidneh" is fighting and some of the judges have been known to have very sensitive ears.

Before you put Mandell on the pan remember that the New York Boxing Commission never has slapped a suspension on him and that Rickard has not made any violent protest that he was sitting on his title.

Rickard did say in an interview that Mandell was one of the champions due for a flop in 1928 and that Billy Wallace was the boy likely to do it but—when Rickard made his ranking of the 1927 lightweights he named Mandell first, Goldstein second, Terris third. He didn't mention Wallace up there at all.

THE STORY THUS FAR

The story is in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '80's, when a fight was being waged for the opening of Oklahoma to settlement. Chief characters are: Tony Harrison, orphaned at 18 when his father was shot in a poker game;

Pawnee Bill, adventurer, teacher, Indian interpreter, showman; Joe Craig, who takes Tony to the Bar K ranch to live;

Titus Moore, owner of the Bar K ranch;

Moore is one of the chief enemies of the movement to open Oklahoma, David Payne, leader of the "Boomers," dies and Tony in his loyalty to Moore is troubled because of his sympathy for Payne's cause. He tries to forget his hopeless love for Rita but is unable to keep from declaring his love and when Rita admits she is engaged to another he disappears.

Pawnee Bill organizes his own show. Tony goes with it. It fails and Pawnee Bill is persuaded by the city of Wichita to go there and lead the Boomers into Oklahoma. The fight finally is won. On April 22, 1889, the gun is fired that sends 50,000 homeseekers scrambling over the border in a wild rush. Tony stakes a claim for a widow and two children and then rides on to Guthrie.

CHAPTER XLIII

Guthrie! A mere way station this morning and now a city of thousands! Tents were springing up everywhere, and a sign on the largest of these proclaimed it a hotel—the Guthrie House. A little farther on a bank, also doing business in a tent, Harrison marveled. The quickness with which men seized at opportunity!

Water was being sold, by the dipperful and bucket. Another man, just off the train, had sold entirely out of a huge stock of sandwiches. Food and drink, the primal necessities.

A voice spoke in his ear: "You got a claim, pardner?" and Harrison swung around and beheld a round little man, hatless and bald-headed.

"No, I haven't. Don't know what I'd do with one."

The man eyed him calculatingly. "How much money have you got?"

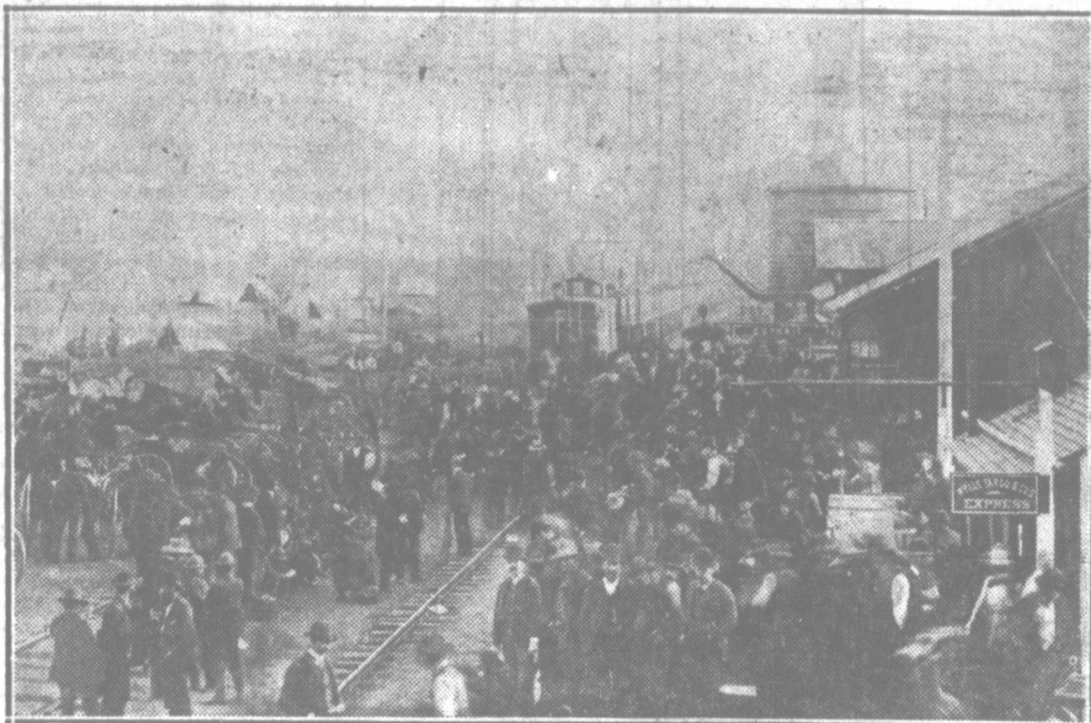

"Well, now," Tony began irritably. He had five hundred dollars in his pocket, representing part payment of Pawnee Bill's debt to him, but he saw no reason for telling his business to strangers.

The fat little man held up a hand. "I know you're thinking it ain't any of my business, but I'm in trouble. If you're looking for a real opportunity, I've got it to give you. How would you like to invest in a business?"

"Haven't given it a thought. What kind of business?"

"The hardware and feed business. Listen; My pocket was picked comin' down on the train from Arkansas City and I haven't got a dollar left. I've got a big freight shipment comin' in—lumber and feed and hardware supplies—and won't be able to pay for it. Man alive I'm up against it! I've got my townsie—my boy's sittin on it now, holdin' it down—and all my prospects 've gone up in smoke."

He made a gesture of despair. "Think of it! A hardware business —plows and tools, seeds, feed—in a place like this. There's a fortune in it."

Harrison felt an eager thrill and shoved his hand in his pocket. To be a part of this clamoring, bustling growth about him; to help build a new country, be a part of it. . . .

"I've got five hundred dollars," he said calmly, and the little man laid a trembling hand on his arm.

"I won't try to run a bargain with you. Five hundred buys a half interest. What do you say?"

"If it's all right with you it's all right with me."

"It's settled! Come along with me," and still holding on to Harrison's arm he led the way to his claim.

"My name," he said, "is Perkins—Fred Perkins. Man, you don't know what a lifesaver you are! I had every penny tied up in this thing What's your name, by the way?"

"Harrison—Tony Harrison."

"Glad to meet you—now that you're my pardner. This is my son, Freddy. I'm a widower."

Freddy Perkins was a freckle-faced boy of fifteen. He accepted Tony's handshake with a grin and then stood in open-mouthed awe in contemplation of Cherokee.

"Soon as the lumber comes in, we'll build," announced the busling elder Perkins. "May be in tonight."

"And maybe not for a week," Tony told him. "The way freight's coming down, the tracks'll be blocked solid."

"Lord! I hope not. Where you sleepin' tonight?"

Harrison smiled. "I'm used to sleepin in the open."

"Bunk right in this tent pardner."

He would think about it, Tony said. "Meanwhile, I think I'll browse around town. It's kind of exciting to look at. First of all, though, I'll put that five hundred of our in the bank."

Half an hour later he had a receipt for his deposit and Cherokee was taking him through the town. Wouldn't Pawnee Bill laugh when he learned he was in the hardware business? And Joe Craig—what would he think?—Craig, who entertained a vast contempt for every occupation save one. He would have to see Craig; that was certain. As soon as things were a little settled in Guthrie and his business—how strange that sounded!—running smoothly, he would have to run up and say hello.

"Or at least let him know what I'm doing," he told himself. "Cherokee, I've got two big regrets—one that I couldn't keep my mouth shut in front of Rita, the other that I've been so damned ungrateful to Titus Moore and Joe Craig."

He spent the night in Fred Perkins' tent, but Guthrie did not settle down to sleep. Men talked through the night and moved about excited, restless; and moved about, excited, restless; and more than once the echoes rang with the bark of six-guns.

The firm of Perkins and Harrison was fortunate. The next day their lumber arrived, and part of their supplies. The sound of driving hammers rang through Guthrie and when the sun went down on the second day there were other frame buildings in the town to keep the land office company.

The hardware store began doing business before the flimsy structure which housed it was finished. There was a rush for tools—hammers, saws, nails, planes—and Perkins had to order a new supply.

"Everybody's rushin' to build, but presently you'll see them comin' for plows and feed and such things. The farmers all around—wait till they begin to need things."

Freight continued to pour into Guthrie and rumor had it that the line to the north was so badly blocked with the heavy traffic that it had been necessary to sidetrack cattle trains from Texas. And the cattle were dying for lack of water.

And Guthrie was politically minded, despite the fact that Congress had neglected to provide Oklahoma with a government. Men walked to the polls on the second day and cast their ballots in a little tent flying the flag of the United States. Law and order was the watchword—some officials to head things up, a marshal whose honesty and fearlessness could be relied on.

A few days later Pawnee Bill arrived in quest of Tony Harrison. "I saw your sign—Perkins and Harrison, Hardware—and wandered in," he laughed. "Great Caesar! To think that you've settled down to a business career!"

"And making money—that's the best part of it," Tony told him. "We sell out faster than we can stock up. The farmers are drifting in already to buy seed and plows, and we've ordered a supply of kitchen ranges. Harness, feed—anything you want."

The long-haired man's eyes twinkled. Here was enthusiasm where he had least expected to find it. "You don't know how downright pleased I am to see you settled and satisfied. Figuring on staying?"

"He'd better stay," Fred Perkins put in. "He's the brains of the business, and he just about built the store by himself. Where'd I be without him?"

"He has a habit of making himself useful at most anything," Pawnee Bill said and let his hand linger on Tony Harrison's shoulder. "Through with the show business?" he asked him.

"The way things look now. Look here; why don't you stay down here?"

"I contracted to lead them in, not to stick. No sir. Next year I'll have another show of my own."

He had been to Oklahoma City, Pawnee Bill informed them, and shook his head sadly. "Couch is dead. Did you hear about it?"

"Couch! How?"

"He took a quarter-section in Oklahoma City and it seems there was another claimant. The other man hid behind a pile of fence posts and shot him. It's a damn shame. First Payne, then Couch—neither of them lived to see their work bring fruit."

"For all their efforts—death," Harrison murmured soberly. "Well I suppose the next move is to agitate for the opening of more land—the Sac and Fox country or the Strip. There wasn't near enough to go around this time, was there?"

Pawnee Bill shook his head. "There's a lot of heartbroken men and women in Oklahoma. The Strip, Tony will be the last to go. The call

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

THE HUMAN ELEMENT IN IN- DUSTRY

IN THE average manufacturing industry about 90 per cent of the cost of production is charged to raw material, the remaining 70 per cent to labor. The successful purchase of raw material at the lowest possible market price is only one factor in anticipating profits. The most important element is not material but labor, not stock but men, not things but personality. Ethical values are as indispensable to success in business as are material values. The ratio of importance would seem to be as seventy is to thirty.

Labor refuses to be reduced to an automaton. Employment of men and women as machines creates reactions disturbing to industry and lessens profits. Labor is human and will not be dehumanized, without disastrous results. The human element in industry claims that its most valuable asset is not cotton, lumber or wool, but the capacities of men to create, produce and serve. The most important thing is not machinery, materials or markets, but men, and that the biggest thing in men is mind and heart. The mobilization of the human element in industry is the most important undeveloped resource in the business world today.

Success in modern industry argues that right is superior to might, that the competition which destroys must give way to the competition which builds up. The surest way to the realization of profit is to safeguard production at its source. Inhuman treatment of labor either by unsanitary conditions, destructive environments or by wage which make impossible wholesome living conditions spells failure.

Found Begging Paid Better Than Writing

A beggar on the streets of Buenos Aires can make $1.25 in an hour. An unskilled laborer draws about $2 for eight hours of work. The working classes contribute 80 per cent of the money that beggars collect, and domestic servants give more than all the rest put together. Young girls are more charitable than older women, and widows more than women whose husbands still live. Among all classes, women contribute most to the beggar's board, giving more and more frequently than men. Among men, cart drivers are more liberal than chauffeurs, and clerks more free-handed than their employers.

This cross-section of the privy purse of Buenos Aires was drawn by a reporter who disguised himself as a "down-and-outer" and then spent a lucrative day begging in all sections of the business and shopping districts.

During the five hours he made $6.25, which was four times as much as he made working 15 hours as a reporter for his newspaper, which, he remarked to his friends, as he changed back to necktie and spats, would soon be looking for a man to replace him.
