A mine rescue team was summoned from Benton.

Blackmer, Fugitive Oil Witness, Becomes Man Without a Country

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Fleeing to Europe when the Teapot Dome oil scandal broke in Washington in 1923, Henry M. Blackmer, wealthy Denver oil man, has become virtually a "man without a country."

Disregarding demands and threats by the United States government, Blackmer has lived nearly three years in hiding. His passport has been revoked; he has ignored subpoenas; $100,000 of his Liberty bonds have been seized, and he has been cited to appear in the supreme court here January 6 to show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court.

Government attorneys believe Blackmer and James O'Neill, a former president of the Prairie Oil & Gas company of Kansas, also in hiding, possess important information regarding $230,500 in Liberty bonds which are alleged to have found their way from the Continental Trading Company, Ltd. of Canada to the accounts of Albert B. Fall after the leasing of the Teapot Dome oil to Harry F. Sinclair, Fall then was secretary of interior, in charge of government oil lands. Blackmer, Sinclair and O'Neill are alleged to have been interested in the Continental company.

The government is seeking to show the bonds traced to Fall's accounts were all or part of Sinclair's profits from his connection with the

Car, Men, and "Gorillas" Injured in Auto Wreck

A smashed car, two badly broken gorillas, and four bruised young men resulted from lack of lights around the new Panhandle station last night.

The car, an old Dodge touring with gorillas painted on the side to advertise a coming attraction at the Rex theatre, was being driven by the young men, who failed to notice the blind street in Panhandle at the depot. They caromed over two railway tracks and landed up against the station.

The occupants of the car were Dallas Caldwell, Ray Chambers, Red Breeding, and a visitor from Elk City. The car was left in Panhandle for repairs. The young men returned to Pampa by train this morning.

PRODUCTION IS 40 BARRELS AN HOUR TODAY

Flow Starts From Much Higher Pay Than Expected

NEW LOCATIONS ARE REPORTED

Shamrock Well Is Not as Large as Stated

The Bowers pool in the South Pampa field furnished another oil surprise yesterday morning and added another large well to the Gray county production.

The Texas company at No. 1 J. B. Bowers in the southeast corner of the northeast quarter of section 89, block B-2, was preparing to set 5-inch casing at 2,855 feet when the 14,000,000 million cubic feet of gas which the well had been making ceased and oil commenced to spray.

It increased at every minute and before long was flowing at the rate of 50 barrels an hour. It is holding at 40 barrels an hour today.

The Bowers pool is just as erratic as all other granite wash pools in the Panhandle, and this well is another surprise.

It is offset by wells of the Danceler Oil and Refining company, Gulf Production company and Operators Oil company.

The Rensaul Petroleum company has made four locations on its M Huseby lease in the south half of section 55, block 25, in the south eastern section of Gray county. The company only plans to drill on one of the locations at the present time.

Delaney, Eslick, and Reiger have made three locations on the Jackson lease in the southwest corner of the east half of the southwest quarter of section 88, block B-2. They will drill one of the locations immediately.

The Empire Fuel and Gas company has made a location to drill in the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of section 64, block 25, on the S. A. Cobb lease.

Biggs et al have made a location to drill 330 feet each way from the south and west line of section 5, block 26, on the J. S. Morse lease.

The Piney Oil company's No. 1 Walker, in the northeast corner of the northeast quarter of section 44, block 24, Wheeler county, about 14 miles northeast of Shamrock, which was reported to have come in yesterday morning for 80 barrels an hour, is flowing about 200 barrels today.

Drilling is being done by Shumaker and Palmer.

Old Man Joyful As He Is Taken to His Old Home

J. R. Baker, 63 years old, who was found a short distance from Pampa in a dazed condition two weeks ago, left this morning in the care of the Rev. Tom W. Brabham for his daughter's home in Toledo.

He is deaf and almost blind, and has been in the care of the city since being found. His daughter, Mrs. Marie, stated in a letter to Chief of Police John V. Andrews that she had not heard from her father in thirteen years.

The old gentleman just realized yesterday that he was going back home and was so excited that he could not sleep last night.

TRADE EXTENSION—In developing a trade territory, nothing is more effective than genuine courtesy and offering of worthwhile values.

In regard to the first of these factors, it should be kept in mind that the newcomer or stranger—prospective permanent customers—have much to learn about Pampa. This gives the opportunity for extending courtesies. Some cities have the reputation of being friendly; some of being aloof. The distinctions grow out of the attitude of the people on the streets and in the stores.

Merchants can do much to cultivate territorial good will by instructing their clerks to learn something of each new customer, to offer little services which cost nothing but which make the customer feel grateful. It is easy to make good impressions, or bad ones. Everyone can recall the various replies he has had given in reply to his questions in a strange place. Some persons can warm the heart of a stranger by the manner in which they give a direction, and others can antagonize a visitor by coolness or indifference.

Pampa Trade Day is cultivating good will by giving values that are worth coming miles to obtain. The entire population should help by being friendly with and showing an interest in the new people who come here.

THAT AIRPORT—The American Air Transport company has announced that new lines likely will be established in Northwest Texas, operating between Lubbock, Plainview, Amarillo and Wichita Falls.

Service is to start about April 1st.

Pampa, while somewhat off this route, is within half an hour of air time, and as this city grows it will have a very important relation to Panhandle aviation. The air maps which will be used for the next year or more are now being laid out. Airplane pilots will plan their trips accordingly. They take no risks, even in this prairie country, of landing close in to a city where wires, holes, or other obstructions may cause disaster. Pampa has no designated landing field. As far as air travel is concerned this city offers no more than any other unmarked place. At night it would be practically impossible to land a plane here. Not long ago a ship was nearly wrecked here in landing. Naturally, that pilot was not pleased.

Pampa must have an airport recorded on the nation's map as soon as possible.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Governor Al Smith is still shopping down South for a running-mate—or, at least, his friends are.

One hears that Josephus Daniels was not exactly haughty when it was suggested that he might have the Democratic vice presidential nomination if Smith were nominated, but when Tammany heard that the nomination of Uncle Josephus might completely ruin Al's hopes of carrying his home state of North Carolina, one didn't hear much more about Uncle Josephus.

He is very far outside the dominant Democratic organization of North Carolina, controlled by Senator Simmons, which hates Smith and Uncle Josephus with almost equal fervor. So the Smith firm is still shopping and is said to have made eyes at several Southern senators and governors, some of whom may be in the market, but none of whom want to break the news to the folks at home.

Mr. Hoover, as his strength increases, must be doing some thinking along the same lines. Whereas the Smith people are figuring just now that the second man ought to come from the hostile South, Uncle Hoover is supposed to be looking around in the East.

He might pick Senator George Higgins Moses of New Hampshire, except that the capture of New Hampshire won't be so tremendously important in November.

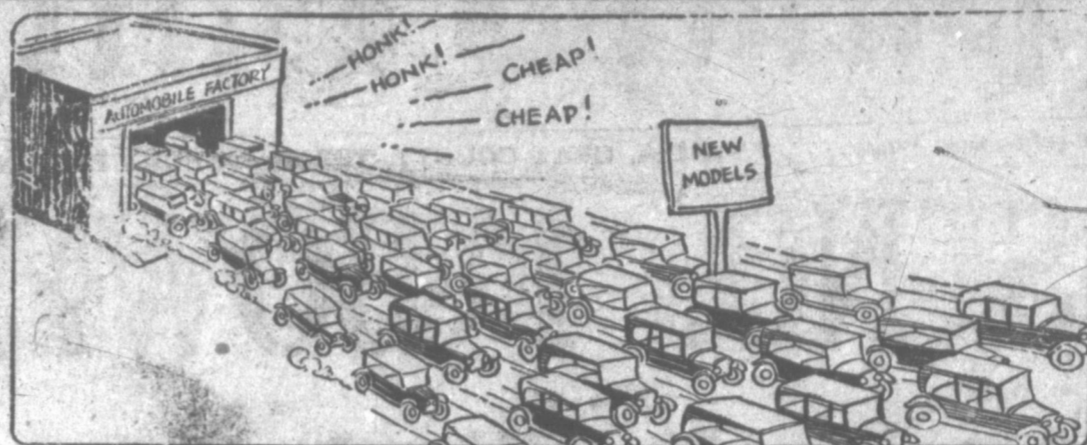

He has doubtless looked about New York State only to find no Republican who might otherwise be available who hasn't been thoroughly trounced by Al Smith and his gang.

He might try Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, but Fuller made many people sore in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, and we've got to get the Senate onto the ticket somewhere.

Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania would like the job, but Hoover would carry Pennsylvania anyway—although some sort of a pre-convention deal might be made. It may even be that Uncle Hoover would appreciate some suggestions.

Surely no candidate is in a sorrier pickle at this moment than Senator James Adonitzek Reed of Missouri. Senator Reed seems almost in the position of a gentleman hanging onto the rail of a burning ship with the sharks waiting for him in the water below, insofar as his chances for nomination are concerned.

Of course, the United States Cavalry may come dashing over the water to rescue our hero at the last moment, but one fears not.

If Senator Jim has a substantial bloc of delegates at the coming Democratic convention, they are likely to be just the delegates needed for Al Smith and if Senator Jim handed them over they might very easily nominate Al. But if Jim were to hang onto them, Al would hardly be likely to forgive him and then furnish the strength needed to nominate Jim.

Al and Jim may have a working agreement, although probably not—but someone will have to take the short end.

It turned out that many who intended to "swear off" of things this year were right only about the swearing.

Now that all the new cars are faster, how can all of us race without attracting an army of traffic cops?

It may be a mixed figure of speech, but Pampa should do something to pave the way for airplane traffic.

Boxing is Unsettled
 Being, as far as the recognition of title holders in several classes has been concerned, has been in an unsettled condition ever since the New York Boxing Commission had its right to run the whole works seriously disputed by the National Boxing Association, which also aspired to take charge of the entire business.

The political dispute between the two candidates for the Landis toga of boxing was a matter of petty bickering until boxing was legalized in Illinois and until a number of recognized champions got it into their heads to resign or vacate themselves out of the titles.

Before Chicago popped up to prove itself willing and capable of entertaining the high-priced artists of pugilism, the New York Commission was in a position to laugh at its critics and make them like it. All the commission had to do was to make a ruling or name a champion and if the boys didn't like it the exit from New York was open and there was no place outside—until Chicago and some far western spots were found on the map.

The New York Commission was then cut down to the size of the national association and acquiring a title became the process of claiming one and disputing the other fellow and all the bosses.

Tex, the Life-Saver
 Being rather a practical business man as well as a boxing promoter of some extended experience, Tex Rickard happened to remember that there was an ancient tradition that titles could be exchanged only in the ring and he was modern enough to amend the old tradition that a title did not have to be transferred by a knockout.

He amended it so far that he astounded the patriarchs by arranging two heavyweight championship matches in which the distance could have been no more than 10 rounds.

Ten rounds in both those cases was accepted as a sufficient weight of evidence, although Mr. Tunney complained that one more round in Philadelphia would have made him a champion of the old pattern and that Mr. Dempsey couldn't have gone much farther in Chicago.

Rickard had been very busy with the heavyweights and as the heavyweights are too expensive to be employed inside when cards as so scarce, he decided to help out the disputing salons by getting their champions together. Theoretically, it should have worked and it did work in the light heavyweight class when Tommy Loughran and Jimmy Slattery were brought together.

His plan helped to establish lazy Schwartz as the flyweight champion by defeating Newboy Brown but Joe Jacobs, who recently paid $50,000 for Jack Delaney, is still using the argument that Frankie Genaro, one of his other fellows, is the real champion.

It wasn't the fault of Rickard's matchmaking that Joe Glick established himself as a better boy in the junior lightweight class than Tod Morgan, the champion, as Rickard hardly had foreseen that Glick would lose on a foul when he had the title cinched. But the customers are not overly excited about the junior lightweights.

The New York promoter couldn't do any business with Mickey Walker, who gave him and the New York Commission the laugh by going out to Chicago to get the middleweight championship and by knocking off Mike McTigue and Paul Berlenbach, two light heavyweights, in the same spot.

Despite reports to the contrary, Rickard did not make any serious attempts to arrange a lightweight championship fight as the card would have cost him too much.

Principals of Tonight's Fight

FRED WHITTINGTON

WALTER VARNER

Two of the fastest boys in their class will clash tonight at the Pampa Athletic club and it will be a real grudge scrap, as Varner wants to get back at Whittington for his K. O. the only time they have met here.

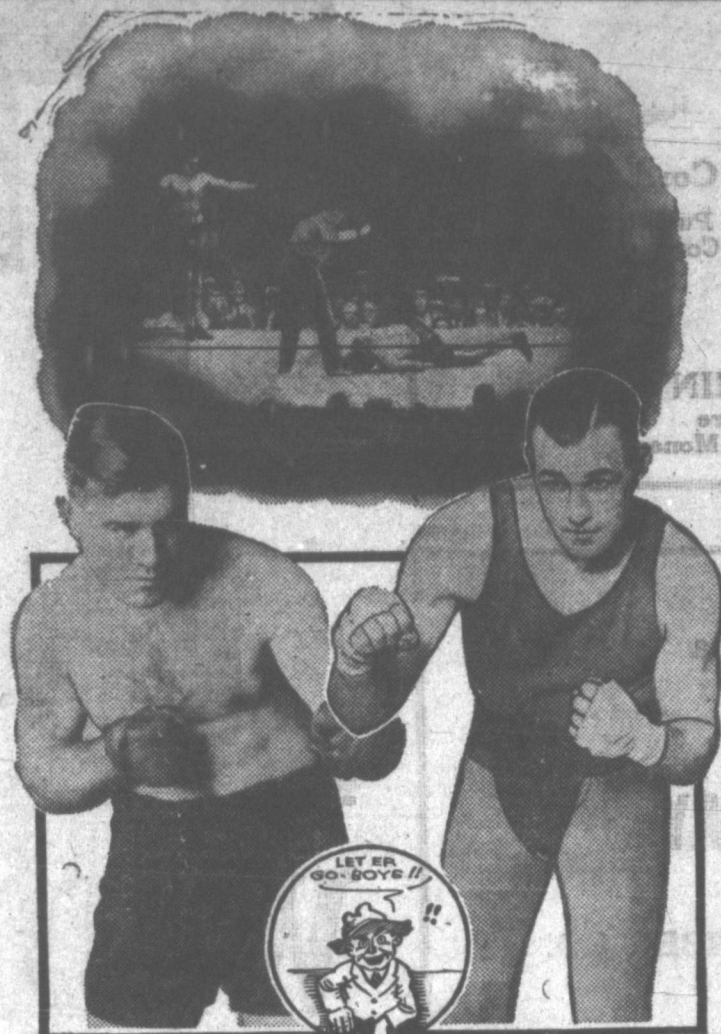

Varner, the boy from Roxana, has been stepping ten and fifteen rounds every day the past week and is in fine condition for his ten-round battle tonight. Whittington has recently won two titles in the state of Oklahoma and it is Varner's ambition to knock him off his recent won titles.

For a semi-final, two of Pampa's favorites will sling mitts. Rusty Cahill, substituting for Rip Blake, who sprained his wrist training, will meet Kid Granite, the boy who gave Wildcat Monte a hard battle recently.

Alfred Spicer, a new boy in the ring, will box the preliminary against Frankie Farrell. The new youngster has been working hard and looks good. He is likely to give Farrell a battle.

The curtain raiser will be a good battle also.

NEW YORK—Tom Heeneey, the solid Irishman from New Zealand whom Jack Sharkey is to meet in his first comeback test at Madison Square Garden, January 18, has risen to a place among the top ranking heavies in the scant six months Sharkey has been out of the ring.

While the somewhat silenced sailor from Boston has been partially eclipsed by the shadows cast by one of those furious Dempsey seventh rounds. Heeneey has bested three good heavies and held his own with another, incidentally developing a knockout punch.

The knockout was produced against Jimmy Maloney, Sharkey's old rival, in a minute and 17 seconds of boxing. Heeneey's other accomplishments since Dempsey knocked out Sharkey in July with his much disputed body punch included a victory over Bud Gorman on a foul in three rounds, a creditable draw with the Spaniard, Paulino and a 10-round decision over Johnny Risko.

In his lay-off, Sharkey, on the other hand, has done comparatively little boxing. The most sensational news of his progress was a report that he knocked out Rocky Stone twice in three rounds in training. While this was discounted by reason of the fact that Sharkey always was able to knock out his clownish sparring partner at will, it may at least indicate that the sailor is taking his comeback attempt seriously and sparring not even his faithful followers.

Tex Rickard already has served notice on Sharkey and Heeneey that it will take something sensational on their part to break up present plans for a third installment of the Dempsey-Tunney serial.

If they both look "terrible," Rickard says, then Dempsey probably can meet Tunney next summer without further ado. On the other hand, if either can dispose of the other in a thoroughly startling manner, he has a chance to meet Dempsey in the elimination final.

Physically, the Boston boy and the New Zealand champion are pretty evenly matched with Sharkey weighing about 196 and Heeneey a pound or so less. Sharkey at 26 is two years younger. With a reach of 74 inches, he has a four-inch advantage and is a little the taller, but Heeneey is put together more durably with his deep chest, big neck and oak tree frame.

Both boxers nominally have been eliminated from Rickard's heavyweight tournament, but in each case the defeat was accompanied by considerable controversy.

The echoes of the fair-or-foul argument over the longitude of Dempsey's telling punch to the vicinity of Sharkey's bread line have not yet died out and the decision that was given the Paulino over Heeneey soon after his arrival in this country last year is still viewed askance by some.

Well, Isn't It?

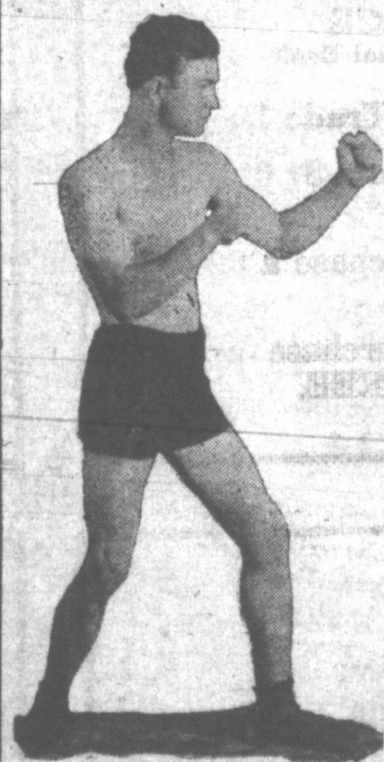

Bill Smith went down to Jackson recently and was seeing the sights with the help of an obliging new found acquaintance. They came to the state capitol building. "Caesar, what a big place," quoth Bill. "That ain't the gasworks, is it?" "Yeh," replied his guide, "that's the gasworks for the whole blinkin' state."

THE STORY THUS FAR

The story is laid in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '90's, when a fight was being waged for the opening of the territory to settlement.

Chief characters are:
Tony Harrison, orphaned at 13 when his father was shot in a poker game;
Pawnee Bill, adventurer teacher, Indian interpreter, showman;
Joe Craig, who takes Tony to the Bar K to live;
Eltan Moore, owner of the Bar K brand;

Rita, his little cowboy daughter. The boy grows up on the ranch and learns the cowboy's trade. When Rita and her mother depart for the east he learns for the first time how much he cares for the red-haired, arrogant beauty.

He tries to forget Rita Moore and accompanies Pawnee Bill and Buffalo Bill on a wild west show tour. After many adventures he returns; but Rita comes back for a visit and he is unable to keep from declaring his love for her. When she tearfully admits she is engaged to another, he leaves the ranch and disappears.

A letter from Craig, forwarded by Pawnee Bill, finally reaches him in Chicago and he learns that Rita has promised herself to another man in place of her mother, who is invalid. He is miserable, but harshly resentful toward Rita.

When Pawnee Bill organizes his own wild west show, Tony goes with it and in Washington he and another cowboy go on a spree and rape a cigar store Indian and drag it down Pennsylvania avenue.

When Pawnee Bill organizes his own wild west show, Tony goes with it, but it fails and Pawnee Bill is persuaded to go to Wichita to lead the "Homesteaders" into Oklahoma. Finally the battle is won; Oklahoma is declared open for settlement.

CHAPTER XLII

Shortly after nine o'clock on the morning of April 22, 1889, a Santa Fe railroad train pulled out of Arkansas City and headed for Guthrie, which yesterday had been a dot on the map. Nightfall would find it a city of 700 tents and 5000 milling inhabitants; the sun would not set before the first edition of Guthrie's newspaper had been issued from a freight train and Guthrie's first bank, capitalised at $50,000, had transacted business in a tent, and Guthrie's first hotel had offered sleeping accommodations beneath a canvas roof.

Two hundred and twenty-four tickets were collected on that train, the first one to be run into Guthrie before three o'clock that afternoon, carrying a total of 5000 passengers.

The first coach in the first train was reserved for newspapermen. Among the passengers were one hundred and eighty members of an old soldiers' colony, bound for Seward, Oklahoma, where they intended to found a Grand Army post. Among the more than one thousand passengers were two women, both from Topeka. Both of them, it was learned later, were successful in staking claims.

To the south of Guthrie was another dot on the map, which at nightfall would be the bustling town of Oklahoma City, only slightly smaller than Guthrie and settled in the rush from the southern border of Oklahoma. Other dots were Kingfisher, Muskogee, Edmond, and Stillwater.

The train which left Arkansas City shortly after nine o'clock was timed to reach the northern border of Oklahoma as near to noon as possible. Flat cars were filled up with blank seats, and for these the lucky ticket holders were off. Many times their coat for the day would arrive in Guthrie far ahead of the engine who would thunder down on a sound their horses.

Near the stage coach stand of Houseman's Pawnee Bill, looking big and bold, stood along the side of the Oklahoma line and was for the stroke of a hand. Across the line from them, cavalrymen were lined up at regular intervals. It was just the minutes until the first of the moving, easily along the first fringe of anxious settlers, carried Tony Harrison to a post about the Pawnee Bill, who sat his horse and conversed with a cavalry officer. With a snarl, the officer moved on, peered out his watch and glanced anxiously at him. Pawnee Bill waved his hand, "Nervous?" Tony asked him.

"Naturally. I hate to wait. These minutes seem like hours."

"You and I are bound to be separated in the scramble. Might as well say goodby and good luck." He held out his hand.

The other man grasped it. "Still figuring on going to Guthrie?"

"I don't know what for, but I am. I suppose I ought to be lined up women jumped nervously. "You just follow me." Tony whispered to the widow. "Try to keep your eye on this big stallion of mine, and I'll see that you get something nice for those children of yours."

There was a sudden movement among the cavalrymen. One of them lifted a bugle to his lips and its thin notes floated out to them like a call to battle. The sound had scarcely di-hadn't stumbled."

He saw two men plant their stakes in the same plot of ground, saw them argue heatedly about which had been first. His last glimpse of them was a picture of two men locked in a desperate struggle, while the wife of one called encouragement from a wagon.

"Right here," said Tony to the widow, "is where I run ahead. It farther east; it's longer from here. But not knowing what I want, I won't miss it especially if I don't get it."

"That's a comfortable feeling. My brother Al is aiming to stake a claim. I'm glad I haven't got the same thing on my mind." He turned to gaze at the motley array of vehicles. Many of them in the rear were inching forward and their progress was disputed by the favored ones in front.

"With Cherokee to carry me," Tony smiled. "I'm not afraid of anybody around here beating me in. I think I'll drop back and make room for that old man. Come on, Dad."

He waved carelessly to Pawnee Bill and wheeled Cherokee around, whistling. Here and there, as he progressed toward the rear, he saw a covered wagon with a man and woman in the seat and the heads of three or four little children peering over their shoulders. He stepped beside a buggy in which sat a woman and a little boy and girl. He spoke in a friendly tone and she told him that she was a widow and was making the run for her children.

"To find them a home," she said. "I sure hope you find it," he told her. "Maybe I can help you," and he ranged alongside and waited.

The minutes ticked slowly away and along the line there was a tightening, a sudden stirring; and voices fell to whispers. Somewhere a horse whinnied loudly, and men and so happens that I know a little about some of this country down here. Right over that rise there—the wagons will be going around it rather than up—is just the place for you. We'll see if we're lucky. Don't get lost, now."

He urged Cherokee forward. The big stallion leaped ahead, gathered speed and began to leave his fellows behind. Here and there Tony saw tall-hatted cowboys on their wily little mounts. They whooped and swung their hats and Tony knew that they were in the race only for the excitement of it and not with any thought of claiming a homestead. Suddenly his heart went out

She flashed a grateful look. "I don't know why you should lose out on my account," she told him. "With that horse of yours you could keep ahead of them all."

"The race," he retorted "is not always to the swiftest. Remember about the hare and the tortoise? These people will be so intent on what's beyond that they won't see opportunity when it rears up in front of their noses."

A man flashed past them on foot, chest heaving, breath coming in heavy gasps. "Lost his horse already," Tony speculated. "Probably stepped in a hole or something and broke a leg."

As he spoke the runner stumbled. On the spot where he fell he stuck his little flag in the ground. He had staked his claim.

"What did I tell you?" Tony asked the widow. "Nobody saw it but him, and he'd have missed it if he slipped to the ground and drove home a little flag the widow had given him. A bit of earth for a little mite of a woman and two small children. How in the name of heaven would she get a living out of it? There would be many who would turn back, disheartened, in a few weeks or a few months, he told himself. And there would be many just like this widow—brave but helpless women. God help her! She could only hope for kind and helpful neighbors.

With a widow's grateful kiss on his cheek, Tony Harrison rides on to Guthrie to see the drama at its height. In the next chapter.

Wouldst thou fashion for thyself a seemly life? Then do not fret over what is past and gone, and spite of all thou mayst have left behind. Live each day as if thy life were just begun. —Goethe.

TO HAVE FOR DINNER

THE planning of three meals a day, as well as preparing them and clearing away the debris after each meal, is the work of at least twenty million housewives, year after year, in our own U. S. A. The mere washing dishes for a family of five amounts to two and one-half acres of dishes a year to handle over from shelf to table, from table to sink and back to the shelves. Monotonous! Yes, but the fact that she is doing this for the ones she loves best, makes the task a labor of love. Because of the sameness of her work, a vacation is a great necessity, even if it be taken a day at a time.

If one has plenty of means to provide varieties of food, the problem is not so great, but the vast majority of our American people must count the pennies and make their stretch as far as possible in buying food.

Chop Suey.

Take two pounds either of pork or veal with a little beef or chicken four onions cut into small pieces, three stalks of celery cut into bits, one can of bean sprouts, a half dozen Chinese water nuts or potatoes, two teaspoonfuls of head molasses, two teaspoonfuls of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Heat a little oil—two or three tablespoonfuls in a frying pan, add the meat, brown and cook until nearly done, then add the vegetables, one cupful of beef stock, the seasonings and molasses. Cover and cook an hour, using great care to keep from scorching. Serve with boiled rice and soy sauce.

Spanish Toast.

Cut up two green peppers, a slice of onion, two sprigs of parsley and add a cupful of thick tomato sauce. Simmer until smooth. Toast rounds of bread, butter and put a spoonful of the tomato mixture on each with a poached egg on top.

EFFICIENCY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I FIND this fault with that efficiency. That talks in figures; after all, it is the man, and not machinery, by which your house will rise, or house will fall— Our problem always is humanity.

Not mathematical matter, but morale: The man who loves his work more work will do. Thus he who hates it. Study though we shall. Each whirling wheel, each operation through, That is the one, the certain, principle.

I do not mean to pamper him, to pet, To pay him much for little, make all ease. Some soft employment. Something greater yet. We all can do for every one of these Who earn life's bread with life's eternal sweat.

The less to do, still less forever done, The easy task the hard, and day the long; There is another way, a better one, To make his life and labor both a song; To make his work efficient make it fun.

Yes, make him love it! Help a man to see The glory of his craft, if high or low. There is in all our labor poetry. And music, if we only find it so— Who loves his work has found efficiency.

Who works for wages works for little pay, However much. We need the golden guide. Of other workers in another day Who thrived to see the ship they fashioned glide, From shore to wed the waters of the bay.

Pay well for service then, but o'er and o'er Have vision, vision for themselves and you; Go lead them in the shouting on the shore When your good ship slips down to meet the blue. Work loved is good work, now and evermore.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

A "PINK TEA" IT IS usually in masculine amusement at this form of entertainment that we hear the expression "pink tea." The term carries with it the implication of froth and superficiality in the essentially feminine institution that we call the "tea."

The origin of the phrase is attributed by Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, one of the leading social arbiters of New York, to a newspaper reporter who coined the expression in her own drawing room. As she chronicled the story:

"He came to my house for a story when I was giving a reception for my sons—having no daughters to bring up I did not see why my sons should not be properly introduced. The reporter entered my dining room, saw the pink candle shades to match the flowers, noticed the frosting of the same color on the cakes and exclaimed, 'I see you are giving a pink tea.' There was an article in next morning's paper about my pink tea."

Democrats to View White House Hopes at Jackson Dinner

Men to whom the democratic party looks as possible presidential nominees—including Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York (upper left) and Sen. James E. Reed of Missouri (upper right)—will join in discussion of party affairs at a Jackson day banquet in Washington, Jan. 12—the first such event in eight years. Clem L. Shaver (lower left), national chairman, and John W. Davis (over right), presidential nominee in 1924, will handle the gavel.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Probable starters in the democratic presidential nomination derby will go through their paces before party leaders at the Jackson Day dinner here January 12, the first national get-together of the party since 1920. Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York Senator James E. Reed of Missouri and a half dozen or more others whose names have been linked with democratic White House hopes will gather around the banquet board to give their views to the men who administer party affairs.

John W. Davis, Democratic standard bearer in 1924, will wield the gavel after being introduced by Clem L. Shaver of West Virginia, York, authority on the chairman of the national committee, and Claude G. Bowers of New Administrations of Jackson and Jefferson, will deliver one of the principal addresses.

Twelve hundred invitations have gone out to prominent democrats in the nation, and the fact that the national committee goes into session on the same day to decide a time and place for the national convention is expected to draw a host of acceptances.

The present get-together will offer a decided contrast to the situation eight years ago. Then the dem of the presidential campaign in eratic party had been in power for eight years, Woodrow Wilson still was in the White House and the democratic donkey was surfeited with political favor.

It was at that last Jackson day dinner that Wilson and Bryan parted company on whether the league of nations should be made an issue at the coming election, and it was there that Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio entered the 1920 campaign.

Now, after eight years in which the republican pachyderm has held the favored spot, the democratic donkey has heard the call to arms of the presidential campaign in President Coolidge's "I do not choose to run" statement, and it is gauging its possibilities for leadership.

BIRDS' TRAVELING TIME

"IT IS about time we were starting. Isn't it?" asked the Wild Geese of their leader, and the leader said: "Yes, it is time we should be starting. We are the first travelers to take the journey up further north. It is still the winter time—but we start when it is not yet spring, but then, spring expects to be along before many, many weeks past."

So the geese started off on their journey. "Even though there is ice in our marshy home we will not mind it," said the geese. And as they flew along, they said: "No, we will not mind it. We want to head the traveling procession." "Chirp, chirp," said little Mr. Robin. "It is time for me to go North. I like to be an early arrival, too. Perhaps some of my family will not come until later."

"But I want to go soon now. There is one person who greets me with absolute delight and joy when I appear. 'Oh, there is the first robin,' she says, 'how glad I am to see him, it seems like spring at last.'"

"And it is a pleasure to hear her say that." Then the purple grackles began to travel, and the bluebirds said it was high time for them to be leaving. And the other birds began to follow traveling for their spring and summer homes.

They went, carrying with them no trunks and no food and no releases! But their little wings were strong and their small bodies full of bravery. The ravens and eagles and owls were already starting in housekeeping and attending to their domestic duties when the hawks began their journey.

The hawks traveled by day, for they were not afraid. The red-tailed hawks flew higher than the others, and the duck hawks were on the lookout for prey as they traveled. They would even attack the players.

The bobolinks flew by night and from all over the birds started on their journey, which would keep them away during the spring and summer months. Always the birds had leaders who showed the way for the others to follow.

There were some young birds who had never been on a journey of any distance before, and they bravely followed along, although it all seemed quite new and strange.

"Come along, come along," said the leader bird, "this is the way to come. Do not get away from me. Stay close. Follow right behind."

And the birds did as their leader said. As a great flock of the robins were flying along, Leader Robin sang this song:

We follow the call of spring, spring, spring, And some of it with us we, too will bring. As we go up north where it has been so cold, And even now we're being quite bold To go so early in the season. Some birds think it's entirely out of reason. But we want to go early and see what's up. And upon the very first worm we robins will sup. Oh, we call the call of spring, spring, spring, Which with it soft rains will bring, bring, bring. We'll be so happy, we'll be so gay, Oh the spring, the spring we'll follow away!

"Yes," Leader Robin added, "we've become quite poetical, and we're going to sing this song with many variations and beautiful touches for the little person known as Dolly who loves us and whom we love."

"We're going to see her now. Come, birds, let us hurry, hurry, hurry!" And the birds needed no further urging, for this flock was going to the place where Dolly lived, and their little robin hearts were glad.

Doctor Tells How to Avoid Pneumonia

DALLAS, Jan. 9.—Good health and sane living are hostile to disease and premature death, but certain infections may overcome the strong man under circumstances peculiarly favorable, Dr. Manton M. Carrick director of public health in Dallas says. Pneumonia is one of these infections. "It is safer for all persons to keep away from those sick with pneumonia, except where it is necessary for the nurse and physician to attend the patient," he said. "Even these attendants should use great care in disposal of the patient's sputum, and should flood the sickroom with an abundance of fresh air. To treat these patients in the open would be best for all concerned."

"But equally important is the keeping of the body in the best possible condition through temperate living, outdoor exercise and fresh air. In this way pneumonia and other infections is decreased."

- Dr. Carrick gave the following six suggestions which will serve to lessen chance of having pneumonia: 1. Prolonged exposure to wet and cold invites pneumonia. 2. Try to get as much exercise and clean air as you can. 3. Dress your body so you will feel comfortable in the house and equally as comfortable when outdoors. 4. Keep your feet dry and warm. 5. Do not cough or sneeze into one's face or allow others to cough

BREAKFAST—Winter pears, cereal, cream, bacon in tomato sauce, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Casserole of vegetables, raised corn bread, nutted prune pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Roast beef, browned potatoes, brown gravy, creamed turnips, endive and grapefruit salad, potato caramel cake, canned fruit, milk, coffee.

The luncheon casserole dish is made of left-over vegetables combined with a small head of fresh cauliflower. This is an excellent way to use bits of vegetable since a hot dish is usually more desirable in cold weather than a salad.

Eight or ten slices of bacon, 1 onion, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-3 teaspoon pepper. Broil bacon in hot frying pan. Reserve two tablespoons bacon fat, draining off the rest. Mince onion and cook, over a low fire, in the bacon fat until soft. Stir in flour and add tomatoes rubbed through a coarse sieve to remove seeds. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Season with pepper and pour over bacon arranged on a hot platter.

Four tablespoons grated cheese can be sprinkled over the top and the dish slipped under the broiler long enough to melt the cheese just before sending to the table.

Pampa Bank Deposits Show Large Gain

Unmistakable evidence of the prosperity of the Pampa community in the face of the oil market slump is shown in the statements of condition of the local banks. These statements, made as of December 31, 1927, show a gain of $181,373.70 over the figures of the same day in 1926. The total for December 31, 1926 was $2,283,100.78, as compared to $2,464,474.48 shown in the last statement.

Miami to Sponsor Basketball Meet

An invitation basketball tournament will be held January 20 and 21 in Miami. It has been announced by Supt. Floyd B. Golden of Miami high school.

Twelve teams have been invited, and it is believed most of them will accept. Some of the strongest quintets in the Panhandle will compete, and the tournament is expected to show the relative strength of North Panhandle teams.

Teachers College Enrollment Larger After Holidays

CANYON, Jan. 9.—The West Texas State Teachers college began the second term of the long session this week with an increased attendance of 65 and with other students coming in each day.

The new students come from New Mexico and Oklahoma as well as from all parts of Texas. There are now between 1,100 and 1,200 students enrolled in the Canyon college.

Members of the faculty of the College stated in the monthly faculty meeting this week that there were fewer failures during the fall quarter and a higher standard of work maintained than ever before in the history of the institution. Credit for this improved condition is given to the high schools of Texas and those of the Panhandle especially that are rapidly raising their standards.

Bexar County to Have Bitter Fight Over Park Office

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 9.—The biggest test which Bexar county's dominant political organization, the City-County machine, has faced in years will come Saturday, Jan. 14, when voters select a new park commissioner to replace Ray Lambert, who recently died.

The City-County machine, which campaigned to many victories under the late Mayor Tobin, will attempt to win the commissionership for Jacob Rubiola. It will be the first big campaign managed by the machine's new leader, Mayos C. M. Chambers.

Dick Lambert, 30 year-old son of the former commissioner, however, is in the field, strongly backed, and is expected to run a close, if not a winning race, with the machine candidate. Lambert was a deputy sheriff at the time he decided to run and it is understood that he resigned by request after opposing Rubiola.

Several old employees of the park department, who refused point blank to sign petitions for Rubiola, have been discharged and, with this faction of the old machine as a nucleus—Lambert has built up a good following. A number of his own friends are campaigning for him and he has the support of the many friends of his father.

Lambert has had special training for the position. When his father became interested in parks he sent his son to college and gave him a thorough course in landscape gardening. Many of the voters, who ordinarily vote with the machine are expected to swing to Lambert because of their affection for his father, who is reputed to have spent thousands of dollars from his own pocket in beautifying waste corners and turning them into the many plazas and small parks which dot San Antonio.

Dr. F. H. Redmond is also a candidate, but he has not made an active campaign. He is understood to have a large following, however, in his own ward.

Sipes Self-Serving Store Will Open Here in 2 Weeks

A new chain grocery store, to be known as the Sipes Self-Serving store, will open here in about two weeks. The manager will be W. H. Thomas, who has purchased the Sipes franchise for Gray county. Mr. Thomas opened a grocery store on South Cuyler street last July 17, and closed it December 13 to take a vacation.

He is now completely remodeling his building according to the Sipes plan. The store will have a large "S" down the center, with the letter built in sections so that no customer will have to make the entire round of the store unless he desires. The central shelves will be low, affording clear vision throughout the building. New fixtures are being constructed, and painters are applying coats of white enamel to the entire interior.

The Sipes Self-Serving store will handle a full line of groceries and meats. A very large Frigidare and late types of cooled meat cases are in place. Sipes stores number more than 75 in Oklahoma, with No. 1 in Oklahoma City. However, the local store is the first one to be opened in Texas. Mr. Thomas considered the system so important that he bought the franchise for all of Gray county, and later probably will establish other stores. He is a strong believer in the future of this section, and especially of Gray county.

Canyon to Pave 36 More Blocks

CANYON, Jan. 9.—Canyon has just voted paving bonds for $30,000, which will take care of the city's share of about 36 blocks of brick paving. The bonds have already been sold, bearing interest at the rate of 3 3/4 per cent. Paving will be begun at once.

A new water main is being constructed on Seventh avenue, which will give the citizens of that street much better water protection. Canyon has been using natural gas for less than three months, but the city is already being petitioned for extensions of the gas mains and it is supposed that building of extensions will begin within the next two weeks.

trading company and were given to Fall as part payment for the Teapot Dome lease. Anticipating that Sinclair would stand upon his constitutional rights and refuse to testify, United States attorneys have made every effort to return Blackmer and locate O'Neill to question them concerning the transaction. O'Neill has successfully evaded all efforts of government agents to serve him with a subpoena.

Few in Washington expect Blackmer to return to answer the citation January 6. Instead, it is said he will force, by proxy, a test of the constitutionality of the Walsh act, under which his $100,000 in Liberty bonds was seized.

The law was passed at the instigation of Senator Walsh of Montana, prosecutor of the committee which unearthed the irregularities in the oil leases after Blackmer and O'Neill fled to Europe. It provided that an American citizen could be subpoenaed abroad and made subject to a fine of $100,000 if he failed to respond to the court's summons.

Blackmer rose to a position of eminence in the oil industry from the obscurity of a small town law office. He went west from Worcester, Mass., and began the practice of law in Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1891. He was district attorney there from 1893 to 1896. He was counsel for several railroads and president of one. He later was head of the International Trust Company of Denver and still later chairman of the board of the Midwest Refining company.

Blackmer's rise socially was almost as meteoric as his financial rise. He was twice married. The first marriage ended in divorce, the second in separation.

The first Mrs. Blackmer was Daisy Gordon, a belle of 30 years ago. Two children were born to them—Myron and Margaret, the latter now Mrs. Eric O. Kistler. Lucy Carter, whose father built a fortune from the manufacture of pills, was Blackmer's second wife.

Since Blackmer went to Europe he has steadfastly remained silent, except for his declaration that he will not return to the United States under any circumstances. Blackmer now is 60 years old. He has riches and comfort and luxury, but government attorneys wonder if, like Edward Everett Hale's pitiful hero, he won't some time feel an urge to return. If he does they believe they will then have the key that will unlock the real story of Teapot Dome.

FIRST HOUR OF SLEEP HELD MOST BENEFICIAL

AUSTIN, Jan. 9.—The popular adage—oft extolled to youths who keep late hours—that "one hour of sleep before midnight is worth two afterwards," like many other popular adages, is not necessarily true, psychologists have found.

What is true, however, is that one hour of sleep at any given time, whether midnight or after, is proportionately more beneficial than long sleeping. Dr. Lloyd A. Jeffress, professor of psychology at the University of Texas, says, in other words a man can get more benefit from just one hour's sleep than he could from any one hour of a long stretch of sleeping, after the first hour.

Mrs. Agnes Seither, who has been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Masters, returned to her home in Odessa this morning.
