PAMPA SCHOOL DISTRICT FINANCIALLY VERY STRONG

TAXES TO PAY ALL DEBTS IN CURRENT YEAR

Plant Expands Without Increasing Rate on Valuations

NEW TEACHER IS EMPLOYED

More Buildings Will Be Needed as the City Grows

Miss Pauline Roach, A. B. graduate of Texas Tech, last night was employed by the school board to take third grade work in the local schools. She has been teaching in Roberts county, where recently the enrollment decreased until she was no longer needed.

The board endorsed Mrs. B. F. Kirby as an instructor in expression.

After studying the financial condition of the district, board members found that for the first time since the independent district was formed it appears that current taxes will pay all bills, complete this school term, and finance the next term until new taxes are collected.

Last year, owing to the increase in enrollment without corresponding increase in taxes, the term's end showed a deficit of nearly $30,000. The new, high valuation total in the district, however, has wiped out this debt, and the assessed taxes for this year total $137,000.

According to Joe Smith, business manager of the system, the annual expense of the district should approximate from $93,000 to $98,000. This would leave an ample surplus for retiring outstanding bonds, paying the interest, and meeting any incidental expenses which may arise.

Building of temporary cottages, employment of additional teachers, and voting of a $150,000 bond issue for the Baker and Central ward school buildings comprise the efforts which have been taken in a financial way to care for the new needs of the district. The bonds were voted without raising the tax rate or the assessments. This method was used in order to make the increased valuations care for the bigger demands.

When the new buildings were voted it was intended that the cottages should be sold. The enrollment has so continued to increase, however, that all but two of the cottages are needed and further buildings will be necessary if Pampa grows during the coming months.

Chief of Police Says Score of Dogs Are Killed

Chief of Police John V. Andrews reports that dog owners in Pampa are very lax in buying dog tags and that up to today more than a score of dogs have been killed, some of them pets and valuable dogs. He states that he is determined to rid the city of stray dogs that are liable to be the cause of an outbreak of rabies this summer.

To date 118 tags have been purchased, but that is not a quarter the number of dogs in the city. The chief states that very few of last year's dog owners have secured tags, and that he will be compelled to destroy their dogs unless tags are bought immediately.

Bringing Good Will to Pan-American Congress

This scene soon will be enacted, with the harbor of Havana, Cuba, as the locale. President Coolidge is going to Havana on the battleship Texas, shown above, for the Pan-American Congress beginning Jan. 16. Colonel Charles Lindbergh in his Spirit of St. Louis, will fly to Havana from Panama in time for the convention. Both Coolidge and Lindbergh are shown wearing the best "good will" smiles.

Phillips Company Is Granted Permit for Carbon Plants

Word has been received from the railroad commission at Austin that the Phillips Petroleum company has been granted permission to erect three carbon, black plants in the Panhandle.

Construction will commence immediately and the plants will be in operation within six months. Plant B will be situated in the Bowers area of Gray county in section 87, block B-2, on the Myrtle Davidson lease. This plant will be completed as rapidly as possible and will have a maximum capacity of 25 million feet and a minimum capacity of 10 million feet.

Plant A will be an addition to the old plant in Hutchinson county while Plant C will be located in section 26, block 47, north Hutchinson county. It will have a capacity of between 8 and 12 million feet. These various plants will represent an expenditure of more than $300,000 and will make the Phillips company the greatest manufacturer of carbon black in the Panhandle.

PRICE WARS—Trends in the auto markets indicate that vehicle buyers were never so likely to receive real values. With practically every manufacturer putting out new models obviously improvements over the older ones, the potential demand appears to be great.

Any argument that the point of saturation is near is apt to appear foolish before the year is out, since the low prices that are being announced now are based upon the better products. Price wars, however, are not to be taken as free from criticism. In the first place, while they cut out exorbitant profits, they also tend to kill off competition, and, ultimately to restore the old profit scale.

Very likely someone put Dave up to it, but who and why has not been explained. His motive apparently wasn't unfriendly to Hearst. His political strength lies in a city where Hearst owns a newspaper. He is attorney and senatorial representative for Mellon interests, which are large Mexican oil well owners, and Hearst has been soft-soaping Mellon for a long time.

It is not to be assumed that 1928 models are near perfection. Transmissions, fuels, engines, and designs are far from being stabilized in type or efficiency. But the new cars are more comfortable, more beautiful, more powerful, better equipped, faster, and more economical than ever before. The automobile is an expensive machine, based upon depreciation and upkeep, yet it is one of the most American of all necessities, and the tendency is toward more cars per family.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The game of jab and counter-jab has been developed to a science in Congress. Frequently someone puts over a fast one which is not fully appreciated except by those immediately concerned.

Senator Dill of Washington, a Democrat, introduced a joint resolution for an amendment to the constitution limiting all presidents to eight years in the White House. There is still some sentiment for drafting Coolidge in a pinch and a vote on the resolution would be embarrassing to some Republican senators, for unless they ducked to the cloakrooms their positions might later become difficult.

Actually, Smoot was hurling a harpoon at Dill. Poindexter, who has been a lame duck Republican ambassador to Peru for several years, recently returned to the United States and announced an attempt to regain his Senate seat from Dill, who beat him by less than 4,000 votes in 1922. Hence, Smoot was merely providing Poindexter with ammunition for the campaign for, after the government's opening campaign shot may be broadcast all over the state.

Some of the juiciest of recent gossip has concerned Senator Dave Reed's promotion of the investigation into Hearst's Mexican slush fund charges. To attribute it to Dave's solicitude over the good names of Borah, Norris, La Follette and Heflin is absurd. Some of our best gossips point out that Reed had just been licked in his fight to seat Vare. As soon as the Senate had voted to seat Vare, after preliminaries in which Norris, La Follette and Heflin had all spoken bitterly against him, Reed was up with his demand for investigation. Did he act in a revengeful mood? Even one or two of the Vare-Smith supporters have suggested as much.

Leadership in Government.

A democracy which follows the "foolish philosophy of the Declaration of Independence" cannot long endure in this age of science and business, says Darwin P. Kingsley, life insurance president. Mr. Kingsley is exaggerating a bit perhaps to emphasize what he says. The Declaration of Independence still holds good but he points out a weakness of which the American people should take cognizance.

"To endure," he says, "a democracy must be ruled by its best. Leadership today is no longer in government. It is in science and business." To a large extent that's true. Leadership is more in business and in science than in government. Many of the best men, the best leaders, take no part in politics. "The really great men of America are rarely in politics," says Mr. Kingsley. There's strong men in politics, of course, but politics carries few rewards and many troubles and much ingratitude. It is small wonder that the men best equipped to lead refuse to do so. They would have to make sacrifices if they did. Some of them have made sacrifices and then they have been relegated again to private life by an ungrateful public.

Mr. Kingsley says that we get legislators who "represent the average intelligence and sense of responsibility of the electors." Will the time come when the electors will insist that only men of the very highest type shall be in office? If they do they must make it worth while for such men to serve. National advertisers are increasing their 1928 quotas. They know their oats, also how to bring in the business.

Varner Returns to Ring to Win Draw With Whittington—Has to Take Last Round to Even Fight

A comeback in the tenth round of the main event at the Pampa Athletic club last night gave Walter Varner, 155 pounds, the Roxana boy, a draw with Fred Whittington, 155 pounds, of Tulsa.

Without a doubt it was the best ring card that has ever been presented in Pampa. The two boys fought from gong to gong, first Varner being in the lead and then Whittington. Varner much the cleverer of the two, was in the lead until the fifth round, when Whittington began to chop with that well known left to have the Roxana boy in trouble.

Whittington jabbed himself tired, but failed to connect half the time. If he had a right like the jabbing left he would be sitting at the top of his class. He is clever, fast, and packs a hard punch in his left fist.

Varner showed more ring ability than had ever before been displayed in Pampa. His footwork was perfect, his timing was good and his hitting was hard and accurate. If the Roxana boy had kept his face out of the way he would have won the decision. But his habit of fighting is to keep his head out.

For the first four rounds Varner was in the lead by a large margin. He was landing hard and had Whittington missing more than half his blows. Whittington was warned several times for using the rabbit punch, which seemed to bother Varner, who lost the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds by a large margin, but started his comeback in the ninth with body blows.

The ninth round was fairly even, but the last round saw Varner leading the fight all the way and hurting Whittington with every blow. The Tulsa boy seemed surprised at the comeback and landed only three clean blows during the round.

The largest crowd that has ever attended a fight in Pampa was on its feet all during the fight.

Rusty Cahill's second threw the towel in the ring at the end of the fifth round of his scheduled eight-round bout with Kid Granite.

In this semi-final Kid Granite, who has never fought other than main events in several years, met Rusty Cahill who substituted for Rip Blake who was injured training. The Kid has been training with Varner and consented to fight the semi-final to back the Roxana boy.

The Pampa boy, although not in condition, put up the best battle he has ever fought in Pampa. He was the aggressor from the first and had the Kid in trouble all the way through until he gave out in the fifth. He was down twice in the fifth for counts of nine from solar plexis blows.

Spicer, a new boy in the ring, quit in the fifth round of his battle with Frankie Farrell and left the ring. The battling Farrell had the decision won, but took a lot of punishment as Spicer is a slugger and had landed several telling blows. The newcomer's spirit was broken from a series of lefts to the face.

The youngsters provided the amusement in the opener.

Aed Andrews of Amarillo refereed the preliminary events.

For January 23 the matchmakers are trying to match Buster Martin and Babe Hunt, two promising heavyweights.

When Evans Lost to MacFarlane

It was back in 1914, and Chick Evans, after a pleasant and evidently beneficial visit in Atlanta, where he played a lot of golf in preparation for the British Amateur Championship—taking advantage of the early Dixie spring—was overseas in the great amateur classic, played that year at the Royal St. George's Club, Sandwich. Chick was then 24 years old, I believe, and he was going great guns. Indeed, he was the leading favorite to win, as the competition got under way and he began smacking his opponents off neatly, in the 18-hole matches, which our British cousins insist are long enough for championship play—until they get to the final match.

And then came along a little, wiry, ruddy Scot with a strong burr in his speech and a very decent game, though nothing, the wise ones fancied, to interrupt the course of Chick's triumphal progress.

Well, well—when I was in Britain in 1926, with the American Walker Cup team, the first place the boys went after reaching London, was Walton Heath; the great, bleak, grose-trimmed course where James Braid holds forth.

Several British sport writers were at Walton Heath, and on being interviewed to one of the

a bit sensitive about it. He says he doesn't altogether care for being famous as the man who beat Chick Evans. Yes, that's Charley MacFarlane.

Now, a number of persons have defeated the great Chick, hither and yon about the world. But until last summer at Minikahda, I do not recall that anyone ever went quite so fast against him in the opening burst of nine holes. And even the astonishing rush of Bobby Jones, going out in 31 in that first round at Minikahda, cannot be regarded as quite so calamitous as the punishment administered at Sandwich, so many years ago, by this quiet little Scot. You see, the Minikahda match was at 36 holes, which left Chick a chance to recover.

And Chick Evans, playing superb golf, traveled the first nine holes exactly in par—and he was 5 down!

Charley MacFarlane, with a bad 6 on non a par 4 hole, was out in 31 strokes.

Years after, I asked Chick what he thought about, as he stood on the tenth tee. Chick grinned reminiscently.

"I looked out over the blue Atlantic," he said, "and I thought about home, sweet home!"

More Eliminations

Another one of those heavyweight elimination tournaments arranged to eliminate any public fancy that Jack Dempsey should not be called back to restore the heavyweight championship to the common people will be started this week by Tex Rickard when Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney are scheduled to drop one contender from the list.

The first elimination was a financial success and an artistic one, for the field was cut down to Sharkey and Dempsey and nothing could have been sweeter for Rickard when Dempsey knocked off Sharkey.

Even if there was that thing about the low punches, the fight showed at least that Dempsey had come back to the extent of standing on his feet and taking the wants.

It is significant in his rating of the heavyweights for 1927 that Rickard named Tunney first, Dempsey second, Sharkey third and Heeney fourth and the ranking might indicate that if Dempsey can't be maneuvered back into '1928's big shot without exposing him to the danger of being knocked off that he would prefer to have Sharkey in there.

Still, if Jack Delaney or Johnny Risko should wind up as the logical contender it might be a paying bout. At least it would prove whether Tunney is right in his conviction that Dempsey always was grossly overrated as a drawing card.

THE STORY THUS FAR

The story is laid in the Indian territory and along the Kansas border in the '80's, when a fight was being waged for the opening of the territory to settlement.

Chief characters are:

Tony Harrison, orphaned at 13 when his father was shot in a poker game;

Pawnee Bill, adventurer teacher, Indian interpreter, showman;

Joe Craig, who takes Tony to the Bar K to live;

Titus Moore, owner of the Bar K brand;

Rita, his little tomboy daughter.

The boy grows up on the ranch and learns the cowboy's trade. When Rita and her mother depart for the east he learns for the first time how much he cares for the red-haired, arrogant beauty.

He tries to forget Rita Moore and accompanies Pawnee Bill and Buffalo Bill on a wild west show tour. After many adventures he returns; but Rita comes back for a visit and he is unable to keep from declaring his love for her. When she tearfully admits she is engaged to another, he leaves the ranch and disappears.

A letter from Craig, forwarded by Pawnee Bill, finally reaches him in Chicago and he learns that Rita has promised herself to another man in place her mother, who is invalid. He is miserable, but harshly resentful toward Rita.

When Pawnee Bill organizes his own wild west show, Tony goes with it and in Washington he and another cowboy go on a spree and rope a cigar store Indian and drag it down Pennsylvania avenue.

Pawnee Bill organizes his own show. Tony goes with it. It fails and Pawnee Bill is persuaded by the city of Wichita to go there and lead the Boomers into Oklahoma. The fight finally is won. On April 22, 1889, the gun is fired that sends 50,000 homeseekers scrambling over the border in a wild rush. Tony stakes a claim for a widow and two children.

CHAPTER XLII

He waited. Before long the wagons began to come skirting around the hill. He saw spirited races as, with the first sight of the little valley, men became obsessed with the single purpose of having part of it for themselves.

A family in a light buckboard dashed up to the claim next to his. They unloaded a spade, which the father put in the hands of his young son. Both were returned; then, to ing mass of horses and vehicles and humanity. The white tops of new schooner wagons continued to glisten in the sun and tetter perilously where the going was rough. Here was one with a broken axle, a man sitting beside it in despair and a woman crying.

"Unhitch one of your horses and ride him," Tony called and the man looked at him dully and made no move.

Here was another wagon that had overturned and men making desperate efforts to right it, and still another, its faded cover a tattered mass of ribbons, going forward on three wheels.

Cherokee ran swiftly, smoothly, easily. Another few minutes and again he had left most of the vehicles behind. He passed a supine figure—a man lying still in the sun, his eyes sightless and glazed, in his forehead a little round hole; victim, no doubt, of a deadly quarrel over one hundred and sixty acres of land.

They were crazed, these people—mad! Two men swinging from their saddles and racing to be the first to plant a little stick in the earth. Words—a blow—and then a killing. With a shudder, he passed on. Men were not normal human beings today; they were beasts. A primitive lust possessed them, and it was as though time had rolled centuries away, stripping them of the vestiges of civilization, revealing them in all the stark savagery of prototypes ages remote. A place to live to call their own, to wrest a living from with their bare hands; but first to possess—and death to him who moved beneath him like a piece of tireless machinery.

Ahead of him the ground dipped a little. He passed a man in a sulky, an odd looking vehicle in a place like this but no odder than hundreds of other queer contrivances he had seen. Anything, that man might travel without tiring. As he turned his head for another glance, the man sprang to the ground and Tony nodded approvingly. Here was choice bottom land and it had been passed by.

So he came to the Cimarron, swollen by rain and running red, with eroded soil. Here was more confusion than ever. Men cursed and shouted and tried to urge their mounts into the current. A wagon lodged firmly in the mud and abandoned. A drowned horse. Women and children crying. Someone was saying, despairingly, "Quicksand," and shaking his head.

Tony Harrison felt a quickening pity. Here was tragedy, and it was just the beginning. Thousands more were coming to add to the confusion and the despair. The Cimarron river—and just beyond was Guthrie—and these people were desperate with the knowledge that thousands would be there ahead of them and the fear that they would be too late.

The Cimarron—where hope would abandon the weak and the fearful; where hundreds would see their pitiful little plant go to smash as wagons would go to pieces in the crossing and horses drown.

Here was where experience and a cool head were needed, but there were many who knew next to nothing about horses, who were excitable risons voice, jumped out in thigh-deep water and ran back and pushed. Tony, urging Cherokee into the river, seized one of the horses by the bridle.

"All right, now—the whip." The woman lashed furiously, the man strained at the wheel, and the wagon moved.

"Now jump in," Tony told him, "and follow me." Calmly he rode ahead and conducted them safely across.

"I didn't think I'd ever make it," the man told him gratefully.

On the south bank Tony paused for a minute or two to look back at the struggle. He shook his head, then spoke to Cherokee. Not many more miles now and he would be seeing the drama of Oklahoma's opening at its height—Guthrie, mecca of the city-lover and those who lacked the courage to wrest a living from a lonely farm; of the get-rich-quick and the gamblers, the prospective merchants and the sharpers, the crooks, the adventurous—a many-sided humanity with a common purpose.

The failure of the Springer bill would leave 50,000 people without government of any kind, for the appropriation bill amendment provided for nothing but the opening. There would be thievery and murder and all forms of outlawry; the only salvation would be for a united citizenry in the cities to provide charters and ordinances and abide by them, even though they would have nothing more behind them than the sanction of the day-to-day acquiescence of the people.

All this Pawnee Bill had made clear to him—a tract of land peopled by 50,000 prospective citizens, the majority of them law-abiding, the rest with an eye to mischief. And no one at the head of things.

It would be a test—a test of men's decency and fairness—and whether Oklahoma would emerge from her chaotic beginning with a fair name or a black one would rest with a few strong men.

The name of Bill Tilghman came to his mind—Tilghman, whose fame as a peace officer had spread beyond the borders of several states. Tilghman, he knew, was in the race. If there were more like him in the rush, Oklahoma would not lack for men to put the fear of God in the hearts of the lawless.

"They ought to make Tilghman marshal of Guthrie, Cherokee; and they ought to persuade Pawnee Bill to stay."

He rode on, and marveled at the smooth stride of the powerful stallion beneath him. He was still passing other riders by the dozen; some of them tense, anxious, staring straight ahead; others halting him with amiable cries.

And Guthrie suddenly reared up ahead of him, a town of tents and milling men and—bedlam. The land office, and he heard a man say, "They tell me three hundred and twenty acres were set aside by the land office for the town of Guthrie. Three times that many have been staked already, and the same thing's probably happening down in Oklahoma City. And still they're coming."

Still they were coming. A train was pulling in and Tony Harrison saw men scramble from it, too impatient to wait for it to stop, and roll over and over in the dirt beside the tracks. (To Be Continued)

Beautiful Church Wedding Here Sunday Unites the Lives of Miss Laura V. Brown and Wesley C. Upton, Both of Pampa

The marriage of Miss Laura V. Brown and Mr. Wesley C. Upton was solemnized at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon Jan. 8, at the First Methodist church. The Rev. Tom W. Brabham performed the beautiful ring ceremony which united the lives of these popular young people.

Rainbow-coloring formed the motif of the decorations. Grouped about the altar were ferns and baskets of pink radiant roses, with background of lattice work, while suspended above was a large white wedding bell from which showered ribbons of rainbow colors. Corresponding colors marked the spaces reserved for relatives.

Promptly at the appointed time, Mrs. J. O. Jackson of White Deer sang "O Promise Me", accompanied at the piano by Joe Strother and by J. Kreggar with the violin obligato. Former pupils of the bride, the Misses Lois Enoch, Addie Simmons, Claudine Horn, Bonnie Hodges, Georgia Crutchfield, Lula Mae Brady, Geneva Brazil, Margaret Burns and Ione Potter of White Deer, and Miss Myrtle White and Elizabeth Bolten of Pampa, wearing taffeta dresses of the chosen colors, marched in first before the bridal party, and sang the bridal chorus, which shaded into the wedding march. Mr. Strother and Mr. Kreggar rendered the marches, which were Mendelssohn's for processional and Lohengrin's for recessional, and played the "Flower Song" as a soft undertone to the ceremony.

Forming the bridal party were the bridesmaids who were Miss Edith Simmons of White Deer, escorted by W. T. Fraser of Pampa, Miss Nancy Works of Amarillo, escorted by J. K. Stevens of Amarillo, and Miss Julia Mae Barnhart of Pampa, escorted by Biggs Horn of Pampa. The bridesmaids carried Shepherd's Crooks in matching shades of their beautiful bridesmaids' frocks of pastel shades, and picture hats and accessories of harmonizing colors. Each maid carried a dainty bouquet of sweet peas of soft color.

Mrs. C. N. Hitchcock acted as Matron of Honor and was dressed in a flesh color beaded crepe dress with accessories to match carrying an arm bouquet of pink rose buds. Miss Freda Dillon of White Deer as maid of honor wore a lovely pink, satin crepe draped with silver lace, with hat matching, and carried a sunburst bouquet of sweetheart roses.

The flower girls, little Eleanor Ruth and Helen Odell Gilliam in dainty dresses of pink and blue georgette, and carrying baskets of rose petals which they scattered in the path of the bride, were neices of the bridegroom.

Master Brian Dillon of Amarillo, cousin of the bride, wore a Tuxedo with boutonniere of orange buds, a miniature of the other masculine attire, and carried the ring on a white satin and lace cushion.

The bride, who approached the altar on the arm of her father, wore a strikingly beautiful costume of beaded georgette, satin slippers with rhinestone buckles, and veil showered with orange buds and caught at the brow with a wreath of orange blossoms.

The bride's traveling dress was of midnight blue hand painted satin with hat and accessories in harmony.

At the reception following the ceremony the bride's cake, built up of three tiers with a tiny bride and bridegroom topping it, was cut by the maid of honor.

Mrs. C. N. Dillon and Miss Edith Simmons presided over the punch bowl.

Both the bride and bridegroom presented to their attendants beautiful and appropriate gifts. They left immediately after the ceremony on a honeymoon trip to various points in New Mexico, Arizona, and Colorado, and on their return will be at home in Pampa.

Mrs. Upton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Brown, formerly of White Deer, and moved to this city with her parents in September. She taught in the Pampa schools until the holidays, and during that time has made a host of friends who wish her all happiness in her new life. Mr. Upton has lived here for some time and is a favorite in business as well as in social life.

The house guests include Mrs. W. J. Dillon, grandmother of the bride, Miss Freda Dillon, and Miss Edith Simmons of White Deer; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Dillon and son, Brian, of Amarillo.

Mrs. Bill Jackson underwent an operation at the Pampa hospital this morning.

Mrs. F. S. Adkinson was taken to the Pampa hospital yesterday.

A. C. Heck, independent oil man from Stratford, Calif., is here on business this week.

Hollywood Has Blonde Winter, With Wigs

Filmland is having a blonde winter with brunettes hiding dark hair under yellow wigs. Marie Prevost (left) is cast in "Blonde for a Night"; Helene Costello (middle) wears a blonde wig in "Good Time Charley"; and Mary Philbin, once a blonde, but now dark-haired, is blonde in the "Drums of Love" and "The Man Who Laughs."

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—This is a blonde winter in filmland.

One studio is making almost a crusade out of its determination to perpetuate in celluloid the historic preference of gentlemen for blondes; and as for the better known brunettes of the screen, they seem to be inclined to hide their hair under yellow wigs until the blonde storm blows over.

To cite a few; Marie Prevost is cast in "Blonde for a Night," and since she is the star of the picture she has picked out a blonde wig to make herself look like the title. Colleen Moore masquerades as a blonde duchess in "Love and Kisses," Helen Costello wears a blonde wig in "Good Time Charley," and Mary Philbin will be blonde in both "Drums of Love" and "The Man Who Laughs."

And with Mary Philbin the transformation from brunette to blonde is more than an incident. Mary began life as a blonde. She was a little Goldie Locks as a child. When Erich

Von Stroheim discovered her in Chicago her hair had become golden-brown. It kept on getting darker as her film fame grew, and now it is black.

It may have been her blonde infancy that somehow influenced D. W. Griffith. Anyway, after the veteran star-maker decided that 14 months was long enough for Mary Philbin to remain off the screen he began creating for her in his laboratory of pre-production, rehearsals and screen tests a new personality. When she emerged, ready for filming as the heroine in "Drums of Love," she was once more a blonde, and with something new about her screen personality that led Universal to cast her with enthusiasm as the blonde heroine opposite Conrad Veidt in "The Man Who Laughs."

So Mary will be mostly blonde this winter, though two other films, completed but not yet released, will show her as the dark-haired girl most film fans remember.

Although Mary is enthusiastic about her new blonde personality on the screen she is not at all eager to be a blonde in real life.

"I would be an insipid blonde," she said. "My own dark hair gives me character."

"Photographically it is great to be a blonde. Apparently the camera likes me that way. But off-screen I do not choose to bleach."

favorably for the second hand if Tunney hadn't interfered with a demand for two fights that Rickard doubtless will have to accommodate.

One of Tunney's grievances against Rickard is that Rickard used him to exploit the last elimination tournament and to make a barrel of money out of it, none of which went to the champion.

Those heavyweigh elimination matches would not have attracted the crowds they did it Rickard hadn't given the assurance that the survivor would be my opponent," Tunney said recently. "He gave Dempsey two opportunities last year and he is going to give me at least two this year of he wishes to use my services."

All of which places Rickard in a sort of a jam. One of the best cards in the class will have to be knocked off if the Sharkey-Heeney match is decisive. The winner then would have to fight some heavyweight and the field of possibilities will consist of Risko, Delaney, Paulino or a gift from heaven.

It would be logical to toss Dempsey in with the winner but that would be an outdoor shot and there wouldn't be a place for it on the calendar if Tunney can't be made reasonable. It may be significant that Tunney recently was accorded the distinction of being made a member of Rickard's private and exclusive club of "600 millionaires," ahead of a waiting list of 2000 less distinguished millionaires.

Under the circumstances, the managers of all the eliminators are wondering where the tournament is going to get them. Only one of those concerned has no manager of record.

Postal Inspectors Find Local Needs to Be Imperative

Roy D. Myers of Washington, D. C. and A. S. Page of Fort Worth, postal inspectors, made a thorough investigation of conditions in Pampa and will make recommendations for necessary improvements.

They stated that more clerks are necessary and that a larger office is needed on account of the increased business in Pampa. Postmaster W. A. Crawford was commended in the way he has handled the growing business in Pampa which has increased beyond all expectations.

Texas Bowers No. 1 Increases to 1200 Barrels Daily

The Texas company's No. 1 Bowers in section 89, block B-2, which blew in Sunday morning at 2,861 feet while workmen were getting ready to set 5-inch casing, for 40 barrels an hour, increased yesterday to more than 1,200 barrels. The well was making 14,000,000 cubic feet of gas, which ceased when oil commenced to flow.

This well is another surprise in the Bowers pool and will substantially increase the daily production in Gray county. The Sinclair company is taking the oil.

The Texas company's No. 2 Bowers in section 92, block B-2, is drilling ahead at 2,870 feet. The elevation at this point is higher than at the company's No. 1 which came in as a surprise well.

The Empire Fuel and Gas company has made a location to drill in the center of the southeast quarter of section 134, block 3, Gray county, on the C. B. Bell lease.

The Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1 Merten in section 82, block 3, made 75 barrels from 3,035 to 3,164 feet.

The Majestic Oil company's No. 2 Bowers in section 93, block B-2, made 900 barrels from 3,038 to 3,042 feet.

It is said by his friends that if business interferes with hunting, Mr. Smyth goes hunting. He at one time held the state of Kansas rifle championship.

MANY WOMEN'S GROUPS

AUSTIN, Jan. 10.—There are fifty-three recognized organizations of women student organizations at the University of Texas, according to records kept in the office of the dean of women at the University. Of these organizations, fifteen are social sororities and the remainder come under the general head of athletic, class, debating, dancing, dormitory, dramatics, executive, discussion, home economics, honorary, language, literary, music and religious organizations. Approximately forty-three per cent of all the women students enrolled in the University are members of these organizations, the figures show.

Moodys Grants Respite to Man Sentenced to Die

(By the Associated Press.) AUSTIN, Jan. 10.—Anastacio Vargas, scheduled to be electrocuted January 16 for saying a San Antonio Mexican woman, was granted a 60-day respite today by Governor Moody in order that plans to more thoroughly establish Vargas' innocence or guilt may go forward.

HINTS FOR FARM and HOME by THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The kitchen is not the place for old ill-fitting shoes. It is better and in the long run cheaper to buy and wear working shoes that are sensible and comfortable. The gain in health and efficiency makes the practice popular.

"Efficient housekeeping," says one of the extension agents of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, "is not necessarily good home making, but usually the two are found in the same home. As better working equipment is installed in homes, the housekeeper finds more time and energy left for interests other than the daily routine duties."

What the home management specialists in the Federal Extension Service are trying to do is to help farm women perform their great variety of duties with less expenditure of energy and time. If some household task can be done in one hour instead of two, and with less physical effort, by the use of labor and time saving equipment, extension agents have tried to bring that fact to farm women in an interesting and impersonal way.

Here is at least a partial list of the responsibilities of a farm woman, some of which, at least, distinguish her from her city cousin. They include her housekeeping, her material care of her family, and her responsibility to herself, her family and her friends for mental and spiritual growth. She is usually manager of a small farm business such as poultry raising, the home dairy, or the garden. As farming is a true partnership business, she is the farmer's business partner, planning the work with him and deciding with him where the money earned shall be placed to the greatest advantage. "This," a student of relations in farm homes remarks, "gives her an especial opportunity for progress and for happiness, provided she can find time to think about it constructively."

Cabbage heads the list of vitamin-rich fresh vegetables available in the colder months. It need not be cooked the same way every time it is served; in fact it need not be cooked at all, but used for slaw, or take the place of lettuce when that always-desirable green-leaf vegetable cannot be obtained. There are many good ways of serving cabbage so the family will not tire of it. Turnips and carrots supply vitamins, and are among the stored root crops on hand nearly all winter. When grated and used raw in salads they are especially valuable. Spinach is in many markets during the winter and is an excellent source of vitamins. Onions, potatoes and cooked, may be used. Potatoes too contain one or more vitamins but need to be supplemented by other vegetables and fruits.
