AUSTIN (AP) — Former Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, suffering from congestive heart failure, has left an Austin hospital for home care.

The 69-year-old Bullock was diagnosed with lung cancer 4 1/2 months ago. His recent struggles with pneumonia pointed to the coronary condition. He had a pacemaker implanted last fall to correct an irregular heart beat after undergoing heart bypass surgery in 1994.

According to the Austin American-Statesman, he entered the Austin Heart Hospital on Thursday.

A recovering alcoholic and chain smoker, Bullock had one-third of his right lung removed in 1972 because of nonmalignant tumors, suffered a heart attack in 1979 and had the bypass operation shortly before winning a second term as lieutenant governor in 1994.

4-wheeler accident kills Pampa man, 69

Services are pending at Carmichael-Whately Funeral Directors for a 69-year-old Pampa man killed in a four-wheeler accident Monday afternoon.

Elvis Wyant died when the all terrain vehicle he was using flipped on an incline, crushing him.

The ATV was equipped with a spray rig, authorities said today. Wyant was on a ranch about 15 miles north of Pampa spraying weeds at the time of the accident.

"They went out to look for him about 3 p.m.," Roberts County Justice of the Peace Fanny Greenhouse said today.

She said ranch hands found him with the ATV on top of him. Authorities said it appeared he had gone up a hill and hit a dip. The ATV apparently flipped back on him, trapping Wyant.

Citizens to get health survey calls

The health practices and risk behaviors of Gray and Roberts County adults will be the subject of a summer telephone survey conducted by the Texas Department of Health.

Gray and Roberts are among 10 counties in the state where the surveys are to be conducted. There are about 300 residents in the two counties who will be called at random.

Questions will cover such topics as access to health care, high blood pressure, diabetes, tobacco use and diets. Residents who receive the calls from survey takers are urged to take a few minutes to answer the questions.

All information will be confidential.

TDH and local health departments will use the survey results to learn more about behavioral health risks and chronic diseases in Texas and to improve public health services. The survey will be conducted in June and July with information expected to be compiled by September.

Ellis County juries go light on drug defenders, local newspaper reports

WAXAHACHIE, Texas (AP) — In the past year, Ellis County's chief felony prosecutor has handled five drug trafficking cases in which the defendants were either placed on probation or acquitted.

The reason wasn't a lack of evidence, legal loopholes or high-priced attorneys, a frustrated prosecutor Don Maxfield says.

Maxfield blames the juries. In Sunday's editions of the Waxahachie Daily Light, prosecutors and police officials said they were disturbed that "good cases" were being dismissed or resulting in light sentences.

"It is a startling phenomenon," Maxfield said. "You would think that an informed public would realize these people who are deep into drugs are the problem and would want to do something about it when they have the opportunity. But they seem to be ignoring that."

Prosecutors cited a recent case in which two men pleaded guilty to possession of 320 pounds of marijuana. A jury set their punishment at 10 years' probation.

Officials said that jurors often sympathize with "mules," a name given to those who agree to transport drugs for a small fraction of the shipments' value.

"Really, it's more the story they tell," Maxfield said. "It's, 'Hey, I'm the innocent carrier. I'm making a few bucks off of this, but I'm not the one you're really looking for.'"

Some officials say the sentences will get tougher if the jurors and the general public realize the role of the traffickers in the operation.

Officials said unless jurors begin to understand that the mules are the key to drug distribution, there will be an unlimited supply of prospects because profits are good and stakes aren't high.

Before last year, drug cases that ended in probation were rare, Maxfield said. Prosecutors avoided recommending probation because jurors regularly sentenced people convicted of transporting narcotics to prison terms of five to 15 years in prison, he said. That's no longer the case with jurors, Maxfield said.

"We feel the crime deserves time in the penitentiary," he said. "But we don't have that threat because juries are basically willing to give a second chance."

Singer Jones vows Fan Fair three months after accident

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Ending his classic hit "He Stopped Loving Her Today," George Jones drew the word "today" out to eight syllables, minimum.

Fans at International Country Music Fan Fair on Monday loved the vocal trademark, as they did almost everything about Jones' nine-song set at the country music festival. It was an early highlight from the annual event that brought about 20,000 country music fans to Nashville.

They were cheering not only the 67-year-old singer's talent, but the miracle that he survived a life-threatening wreck in March after drinking vodka.

"We thought we'd lost him," said fan Joyce Harper of Pittsburgh. "But he sounds better than ever."

The Texas-born Jones pleaded guilty last month to drunken driving charges in connection with the one-vehicle accident, which put him in the hospital with a severely lacerated liver and collapsed lung. He was fined $550 and ordered to seek counseling for alcoholism.

He has a long history of drug and alcohol abuse that have threatened his health and put him in conflict with the law. But he had stayed out of trouble for more than a decade before the March accident.

"I TOLD you I'd be back," Jones said mischievously after finishing his first number, "High-Tech Redneck," at a showcase of his record label, Asylum.

Jones looked thin and complained of trouble hitting low notes. He sang selections from his new album "Cold Hard Truth," seemingly full of references to his recent troubles. "Choices" was about living with the consequences of one's actions, and "Sinners & Saints" rebuked people who are too judgmental.

RODEO

Saturday, July 17 is loaded with fun for everyone when the rodeo parade kicks off at 10 a.m. Starting at the M.K. Brown Auditorium lot and winding its way through downtown Pampa, this parade is one of the largest in the Texas Panhandle and always provides lots of interesting and unusual sights. Entries are now being taken for anyone interested in participating in the parade.

Once again, the Wrangler Bullfight will be presented each night. This is one of the most exciting events of the rodeo and it is sponsored by Wayne's Western Wear and Bowers Ranch.

Some of the top PRCA bullfighters are coming to compete this year. Former World Champions Greg Rumohr and Rob Smets will challenge newcomer Dustin Brewer to be his very best. The 1998 Barrelman from the Wrangler Bullfight Finals, Jim Bob Feller, will be assisting these bullfighters and helping to protect them. Come early because the bullfights now start the rodeo instead of being the last event.

Special entertainment each night will be provided by the Tommy Lucia Revue. Tommy Lucia and his trained animals have provided laughter and entertainment to crowds from Canada to Latin America for over 30 years.

When Whiplash, the Cowboy Monkey, rides into the arena astride his Border Collie mount, the audience will be assured of an incredibly unique performance. This is a must-see performance.

A bus tour and interpretive summary at the Adobe Walls site is planned on Sunday, June 27. The trip will begin at the PPHM at 8 a.m. with an orientation and tour of the Adobe Walls exhibit and Red River War artwork. At Adobe Walls, stewards and museum personnel will lead tours through the site and provide insight into the archeology of the Red River War.

The cost for the bus trip will be $45 for PPHM members and $50 for non-members. Cost will include transportation, materials and programming, lunch and snacks. Reservations are required and must be received by Friday, June 18. For additional information on the trip or to receive a registration form, please call the museum at (806) 651-2244.

The Adobe Walls exhibit will include artifacts recovered during PPHM excavations at this Red River War site in Hutchinson County. The site is a Texas State Archeological Landmark and is on the National Register of Historic Places. The exhibit will examine the archeological process and how it has assisted with interpreting and understanding the information available from historical records. The exhibit will begin in June and continue through November.

The "Art of Adobe Walls" exhibit will open June 12 and continue through Sept. 5. Interpretive paintings and drawings of Red River War sites, participants and events by Ben Carlton Mead, Harold Bugbee, John Elloit Jenkins and others from the society's collection and corporate and private lenders will be exhibited in the Alcove Gallery.

Family really is important

I like people, I really do. I also think family is important, up to a point. So why do I dread the family reunion every year?

Now, mind you the one that's coming up this year is not like ones that we had several years ago. One like you've probably had. The ones where people you never saw or knew about or had anything in common with except that a great grandmother somewhere married some guy who died before she married your great grandfather, who you never saw or knew about or had anything in common with.

Introductions are always fun at those. "You remember your second cousin Pete from Dropoff, he's the one that helped your granddad milk cows back in the 1940s," someone would say.

You'd say, sure you remembered and ask about their health and what they are doing and how is the family. Of course, you wouldn't mention the family by name because you had no more idea who their family is than who they are. Heck, you didn't even know your granddad ever milked cows.

When you were little you always got stuck with a bunch of kids who you didn't know and wouldn't see again for at least a year. Then you got a driver's license and tried to come as late as possible and leave as soon as no one was asking you if you wanted any more of your great aunt's "wonderful" dish, which you never could really identify, but you knew it had died a horrible death.

The sad part of those reunions, (besides the bean casserole), was when fewer and fewer of the people you were familiar with are around for the reunion. That's what happened at our reunions; maybe another reason I'm less than fond of reunions, watching time march on is never a glorious procession.

Now, family reunions are a smaller affair, at least everybody knows everybody, sorta. At least you knew them when they were kids. You played together when you were kids, unless they were a lot older than you. Then they tormented you when you were kids. But now they live elsewhere. Where they are more successful, have more money, have a life. But a lot a life you share. So you share memories. Memories can be a good thing, but they tend not to lead anywhere.

Maybe we should stay closer to our families, if we could, but to paraphrase Ricky Nelson, if memories are all we share, I'd rather drive a truck.

Be good to one another and be good to yourselves.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, June 15, the 166th day of 1999. There are 199 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 15, 1215, King John put his seal to Magna Carta ("the Great Charter") at Runnymede, England, granting his barons more liberty.

On this date:

In 1775, the Second Continental Congress voted unanimously to appoint George Washington head of the Continental Army.

In 1836, Arkansas became the 25th state.

In 1844, Charles Goodyear received a patent for his process to strengthen rubber.

In 1846, the United States and Britain signed a treaty settling a boundary dispute between Canada and the U.S. in the Pacific Northwest.

In 1849, James Polk, the 11th U.S. president, died in Nashville, Tenn.

Opinion

Why make this a federal case?

■ Georgia school district was responsible for the system failing.

The facts of the case that impelled a sharply divided U.S. Supreme Court to rule that public schools can be sued in federal court and forced to pay damages for failure to stop sexual harassment by students were horrifying enough that almost any decent person would agree that something should have been done. The question is whether that something had to be done in the federal courts.

LaShonda Davis, who in 1992 was a fifth-grader in an elementary school in Georgia, was repeatedly and pervasively sexually abused by a boy in her class who tried to grab her breasts, rubbed against her in hallways and talked repeatedly of wanting to "get in bed" with her, according to court documents. School officials apparently did nothing about the situation despite repeated complaints from LaShonda's mother. The harassment is said to have continued until the mother filed suit in 1994 under Title IX of the 1972 federal Education Amendments.

The mother also took her complaints to the local sheriff, who did file charges in juvenile court; the boy eventually pleaded guilty to sexual battery. So something was done. The court filings say nothing was done by the school district, however.

This is far from a trivial point. As Timothy Lynch, assistant director of the libertarian Cato Institute's Center for Constitutional Rights reminded us, children are required by law to attend school. Unless their parents are wealthy or some sort of voucher system is in place, students have no choice about spending most of every day in a particular educational institution. Those who run that institution should bear some accountability for their safety and well-being.

The question is whether that accountability should be enforced at the local or state level or by the federal courts. The justices disagreed as to whether Title IX, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex, put school districts on notice that they would be responsible for preventing student-to-student sexual harassment.

The majority (Justices O'Connor, Stevens, Souter, Ginsburg and Breyer) said that it did, while the minority (Justices Kennedy, Rehnquist, Scalia and Thomas) said it didn't do so explicitly and the decision would open the floodgates to a situation in which (as Justice Kennedy put it in his dissent) "the routine problems of adolescence are to be resolved by invoking a federal right to demand assignment to a desk two rows away."

It is worth noting that such federal micromanagement is virtually inevitable when local school districts receive funds from the national government, something the country's founders did not anticipate.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, in her majority opinion, did try to set a high standard to discourage frivolous suits. Districts would only be held responsible for misconduct that is "so severe, pervasive and objectively offensive" that it makes it impossible for students to receive the benefits of public education. "It is not enough to show ... that a student has been 'teased' or 'called offensive names,'" she wrote.

Timothy Lynch believes that while that sounds like a high bar, the decision will invite a wave of federal suits against school districts. "We'll be arguing for years in court, with meters ticking, about what is truly 'objectively offensive,'" he said. "Districts will have a strong incentive to settle, and some parents will sue simply to get a settlement. Some frivolous cases will eventually be dismissed but the process of figuring out what the court means in practice will be lengthy and expensive."

There is also the danger of over-reaction by school districts. The extreme of simply ignoring repeated complaints of patently offensive behavior could be replaced by the "zero tolerance" extreme of setting out minutely detailed rules and regulations that could amount to a speech code enforced by aggressive "harassment monitors." It is difficult — especially in a society in which older cultural norms have been progressively undermined — to find a happy medium.

This decision is unlikely to make the process easier. Most local school districts say they already have policies in place that make it unlikely successful suits could be brought under the new court-determined standards. That won't immunize some of them from efforts to bring suits and reinforces the argument that it was not necessary to make a federal case out of this failure by a Georgia school district to act responsibly.

Minimum wage, maximum folly

President Clinton and many members of Congress have proposed raising the minimum wage from its current $5.15 per hour to $6.15. Most academic economists who've studied the minimum wage conclude that higher minimum wages cause unemployment, not so much among the general labor force, but among low-skilled workers, especially teenagers. Differences in unemployment rates reflect this: the unemployment rate for adults over 25 years is 3.1 percent; for teenagers it's 14.3 percent.

You say: "Williams, the president and Democrats love America's children. If the minimum wage hurt them, why would liberals support such a monstrosity?" First, you have to recognize the reward and punishment structure in political life. The fact of business is that no congressman or senator owes his seat to the teenage vote, but many do owe their seats to the union vote and other interests that benefit from higher minimum wages. Thus, in the hurly-burly hardball of political life, you dump on people who can't dump back on you.

To understand how people can benefit from the minimum wage, let's examine the general principle of Congress setting minimum prices using a nonlabor example. Businessmen and labor unions frequently belly-ache about foreign manufacturers charging too low a price for a product. They call on Congress or the White House to bully foreign manufacturers to raise their produce prices or they lobby

Congress to raise tariffs.

Walter Williams
Syndicated columnist

Do you think American businessmen and labor unions want foreign goods to sell at higher prices because they're concerned about and want to raise the living standards of foreign producers and their workers? If you think so, I have a bridge to sell you. Their sole motivation is to set higher minimum prices on foreign goods so they can get away with charging higher prices for American-made goods as a means to higher profits and higher wages.

The identical principle explains the union's push for higher minimum wages. If unions can make part of the labor market less competitive through minimum wages, they can demand higher wages for their members. Businesses may also benefit from higher minimum wages.

For example, let's go back several decades and pretend you produced automatic dish-washing machines. Your salesmen put on a sales pitch, but restaurant owners say: "Why should we buy your costly machines when we can hire people to wash dishes for $2 per hour? It isn't worth it." You would benefit from Congress raising the minimum wage to say $4 per hour. Why? It raises the cost of restaurant owners using people to wash dishes. Thus, they'd have greater financial incentive to buy dishwashing machines from you.

Supporters preach that minimum wages don't cause unemployment for low-skilled workers. But ask them why they pushed so hard for Congress to enact the Welfare-to-Work Tax credit and the Work Opportunity Tax Credit. Both tax credits have the effect of reducing the employer's wage cost to low-skilled entry level workers by 35 percent or to $3.33 per hour.

The real problem for low-skilled workers is not that they're underpaid, but that they're underproductive. The solution is to improve their skills and education. One of the ways to do this is to have a climate where youngsters can have early work experiences. The little bit of money a youngster can earn after school and weekends is nice but not nearly as beneficial as the lessons learned, such as proper work attitudes, promptness, and respect for supervisors.

For youngsters living in dysfunctional homes and attending rotten schools, a job might be their only chance to learn something that will make them more valuable workers in the future. I'm glad today's do-gooders weren't around in the 1940s when I was a teen.

Someone to watch over Hillary

DENVER — She drills her steady, steel-blue eyes into yours and keeps them there. Politicians are trained to do this, but few of them do it regularly, consistently. She does. That tells you something about her discipline.

It also tells you this woman has been campaigning, constantly, most of her adult life.

All smiles as she enters the room, she is trim in a blue pantsuit — and shorter than a reporter remembers. She has been standing tall for so long that one forgets it's not her natural condition. Sometimes, indeed, standing tall must require a tremendous effort from Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Yet she insists, "I've really been blessed." She could be forgiven if she thought otherwise. Since the 1992 presidential campaign, she's weathered unceasing criticism of her husband's private character and her own. The Office of the Independent Counsel has investigated every aspect of her personal and professional life; she may yet face criminal charges from prosecutor Kenneth Starr.

Political opponents in both parties and big-money business interests regularly attack her, most notably when she bungled proposals for health-care reform in 1994.

Last year, her husband became only the second president to be impeached. And despite accusations and admissions of his extramarital misconduct, Mrs. Clinton stood by her man — at times resembling the character from the Tammy Wynette song she once scorned.

Dan Rather
Syndicated columnist

How does she get through it? A reporter feels uncomfortable asking such questions, but the interest of your fellow citizens is more than superficial or sensationalist. They're not prurient gossips. Their questions are of intense political importance, probably historic and possibly anthropological: How DOES anybody keep standing tall through all this? How has Hillary Clinton endured the slings and arrows of one of the most outrageous fortunes in American political history?

"When you go through any kind of difficult experience, you have a choice," she says. "I mean, you can let it break you and embitter you, or you can take whatever you've experienced, whatever pain or suffering ... and decide that you're still going to have faith, you're still going to have your faith in God, your faith in your fellow man. You're still going to believe that you can make a contribution to a better life."

Her voice takes on a softer, richer quality as she speaks. Maybe she practiced this answer, but it doesn't come through that way.

"It's a choice. Every single day we wake up, you can choose to be cynical or hopeful. You can choose to be grateful or contemptuous. You can make all those choices. And for me, it's not a very hard choice."

Mrs. Clinton is espousing old-fashioned values, yes, but made of muscle and not maple syrup. Marilyn Manson sounds more like Pollyanna than this woman does.

"I've prayed a lot, and I have been prayed for a lot. And I have been grateful for the prayers of people I know and people I will probably never meet. And it has helped me enormously. And you know, sometimes (prayer) is a way not only of pouring your heart out, but of really getting it filled up again, with — you know, some energy and some hopefulness, and positive feelings, that can carry you forward."

"I do think that prayer is a very important part, certainly, of my life. But it's a very important part of our time in the White House, too."

Still campaigning? Maybe. But she sounds like she's speaking from her heart, as much as she dares.

She's been teased for standing by her man. But it may disappoint their critics to learn that Mrs. Clinton believes somebody else has been standing by — and watching over — them both.

BASEBALL

PAMPA — Ledrick defeated Wastewater 10-5 in a 7-8 Optimist league game earlier this month.

Wastewater's top hitters were Tyler Kimberly, Dustin Forsythe and Haley Smith.

Rodriguez caught a 31-pitch first inning before being lifted for pinch-hitter Gregg Zaun in the top of the second.

Rodriguez, in a 7-for-40 slump, is batting .301 with 10 homers and 34 RBIs.

PHOENIX (AP) — Despite a stomach ache, Randy Johnson pitched two-hit ball for seven innings Monday night and the Arizona Diamondbacks opened a 13-game homestand with a 2-0 victory over the Florida Marlins.

Tony Womack was 2-for-4, including his first home run of the season, and scored twice. Luis Gonzalez also was 2-for-4 with an RBI double.

Johnson (9-2) won his fifth straight decision, striking out eight and walking none before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the seventh. Team officials said he left because of a stomach virus that had bothered him throughout the day.

Three Arizona relievers combined to complete the four-hit shutout.

HOCKEY

DALLAS (AP) — If the Dallas Stars win the Stanley Cup the victory parade and post-parade celebration will be paid for by funds from private sources, planners say.

Plans call for a parade in downtown Dallas and a post-parade celebration to be held at Reunion Arena, home of the National Hockey League team.

"We will cover all the costs," spokeswoman Lisa LeMaster said Monday.

The Stars hold a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series with the Buffalo Sabres. Game 4 will be held at Buffalo tonight.

The Dallas City Council last month earmarked $116,000 of taxpayers' money to pay for police, security and liability insurance. But Ms. LeMaster said that she is confident the city contribution will not be needed.

Wine wins high honor as college freshman

She was only a freshman, but shot putter Barbara Wine had a high honor come her way at the University of Memphis-Tennessee this past year.

Wine earned the school's outstanding female performer award in track and field after winning two meets and placing second in the USA Indoor Conference Championships in Houston. Wine placed in the top five in every meet except one and she tied the school record with a 45-0 toss.

Wine plans to continue her education and track and field career at U of M-Tennessee.

"I really like it there," she said. "I'm going to stay."

Look for Wine to break that school-record tie next year. She threw the shot better in high school than anybody ever did at U of M-Tennessee. Her 45-7 1/4 as a PHS senior set a school record. Incidentally, the 8-pound shot is used in both high school and college.

Wine had competed for the Lady Harvesters since she was a 9th grader. That year (1995) Wine displayed her vast potential by placing second at the district meet. For the next three years she would become a dominant force at area meets, district and regional competition. Wine won the bronze medal as a junior and the silver medal as a senior at the Class 4A state meet in Austin.

PHS girls' track coach Mike Lopez wasn't all that surprised at Wine's early success at the university level.

"Making the transition from high school to college is a big step, but she handled it in fine fashion. It was a big year for her at the university level," Lopez said.

Wine suffered some butterflies in her first collegiate outing, but she still placed a respectable third.

"Barbara called me after that first meet and said she had been pretty nervous," Lopez said. "I told her to concentrate mentally on what she was doing and she would be okay."

Sports Editor

Wine was one of the few bright spots for U of M-Tennessee, which finished eighth in the conference standings. Wine sees better days ahead for her team.

"We should be decent next season," she said. "We've got some pretty good recruits coming in."

Wine, who is presently in Pampa, will have a short summer vacation. She reports for workouts July 1.

"The competition is much more intense in college," she said. "That makes the training more intense."

Miss Wine has handled that intensity just fine.

It was a week senior golfer Oscar Sargent won't soon forget.

Playing in a pro-am tournament June 1 at Palo Duro Creek, Sargent used a six-iron to make a hole-in-one on No. 4. His playing partners were Hidden Hills club pro David Teichmann and amateurs Bill Harwood and Howard Musgrave.

Five days later, Sargent used his six-iron again for another hole-in-one on the 164-yard, No. 15 at Hidden Hills. Musgrave, Ted Erickson, Bill Abernathy and John Darby witnessed the shot.

Flashback, 1974: Amarillo's Doug Roush had no problems winning the 40th annual Tri-State Senior Golf Tournament. His four-under-par 67 gave him a six-stroke advantage over former champion Web Wilder of San Antonio.

Softball Shoot-Out

Ace Acevedo gets his bat on the ball during the 7th annual Coors Light Silver Bullet Shoot-Out last weekend at Recreation Park. Acevedo was playing for KC Express, which was one of the 33 men's and mixed league teams entered in the softball tournament. The tournament was a USSA State Qualifier.

Stanford rallies past Florida State

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Justin Wayne took care of the pitching and Stanford's hitters took care of Florida State.

John Gall went 3-for-4 with a home run, Craig Thompson hit a three-run double and Stanford survived a seventh-inning rally, beating Florida State 10-6 on Monday at the College World Series.

Stanford won't play again until Thursday, awaiting the winner of today's elimination game between the Seminoles and Cal State-Fullerton. The Titans beat Texas A&M 4-2, sending the Aggies home.

In another elimination game today, Alabama (52-15) plays Rice (59-14).

Wayne (10-1), a right-hander whose 15-1 record in two years represents the best winning percentage in Stanford history, pitched 7 2-3 innings as the Cardinal (50-13) won its 11th straight.

"There are four or five times where a pitcher has to come up with big pitches," said Stanford coach Mark Marquess. "You hope you win those spots. That was the difference. When we needed the big pitch, we got it."

Marquess was thankful to have an 8-1 lead through six innings when Florida State (54-13) rallied in the seventh.

Thompson doubled down the right-field line in the second, driving in three runs to break a 1-1 tie. The Cardinal got two more in the third and added runs in the fourth and fifth and the lead held up.

The hit came with the bases loaded and two outs against right-hander Jon McDonald (9-3). The ball was fair by a few inches.

"If you're looking for the key to the ballgame, it was probably the double down the right-field line in the second," Seminoles coach Mike Martin said.

The 8-1 cushion was important because Wayne escaped a bases-loaded jam in the fourth but wasn't as fortunate when the Seminoles did it again in the top of the seventh.

Marshall McDougall singled to score Chris Smith, and John Halliday scored when Wayne was called for a balk. Matt Diaz hit into a fielder's choice, scoring John-Ford Griffin to trim the deficit to 8-4.

Wayne threw two balls to Sam Scott before being replaced by Dan Rich, who walked Scott to put runners on first and second.

Then, with Seminoles fans doing the "Tomahawk Chop" and the Florida State players on the top step of their dugout, Jeremiah Klosterman swung at a third strike and the ball got away from Stanford catcher Damien Alvarado.

Klosterman ran for first while Alvarado chased down the ball and threw, hitting him in the back. The error allowed Diaz to score from second, but that would be all for the Seminoles until they added a run in the ninth.

Florida State would surely have added more runs early in the seventh, but Brett Groves made the first out on a controversial force play at second.

Martin sprinted across the infield to argue with second base umpire Ken Couch, but he wouldn't say anything about the call in the interview room.

"Ain't touching it, ladies and gentlemen," Martin said. "I want to play tomorrow."

Yankees continue mastery of Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) — Any chance the Texas Rangers had of hanging close with the New York Yankees vanished with a 49-minute rain delay in the fifth inning.

Chili Davis' two-out RBI single keyed a four-run inning after the delay, and Hideki Irabu shut down the Rangers to help the Yankees continue their mastery over Texas with an 8-2 win Monday night.

Mark Clark (3-6), who gave up four runs in the first four innings, had nothing left after the delay. He gave up a leadoff single to Derek Jeter and a two-out walk to Bernie Williams. Davis, who earlier hit a three-run homer, followed with an RBI single to make it 5-0.

Jorge Posada added an RBI single and Scott Brosius ended the scoring with a two-run single. New York has won 16 of the last 20 games against Texas, including a three-game sweep in last year's playoffs.

"I would like to say it was just another series," said Texas manager Johnny Oates, whose team has been swept by the Yankees in the playoffs two of the last three years. "I don't think it is imperative that we win now, but it would be nice to win a couple here."

While Clark struggled after the rain, Yankees manager Joe Torre was most impressed with Irabu after the delay. Irabu has been so inconsistent during his tenure in New York that it wouldn't have been a surprise if Torre had been satisfied with five shutout innings and turned the game over to the bullpen.

But he decided to push the right-hander, and was pleased with the results despite a two-run homer by Juan Gonzalez in the sixth inning. Irabu (3-3) allowed two runs and five hits in seven innings, equaling his longest outing of the season.

"He's been improving his last three times out," Torre said. "But today was even better because of the number of pitches and the delay."

Pitching after a delay was new to Irabu. In Japan, there are no rain delays — they either play through the rain or call the game.

"I didn't know when the delay would end," Irabu said. "I was thinking about throwing in the bullpen, but I didn't want to overdo it. So I just stretched in here. I don't have much experience coming back from delays, but I thought things went real well after that."

Davis was the hitting star for New York after being mostly a spectator last week. With the Yankees playing without the designated hitter in National League parks, Davis' only opportunities came as a pinch-hitter and he went 1-for-4.

Every Yankees rally seemed to find Davis, who had 11 men on base in his five at-bats.

Best Friend's Late Birthday Gift Is Whole Lot of Spite

DEAR ABBY: I have never written you before, but I have a big problem.

My best friend of 26 years got drunk at my 50th birthday party. I begged and pleaded with her, asked her for her keys, and offered to have her spend the night at my house -- or let me drive her home. The only alternative was to get physical and forcibly take her keys. That wasn't an option.

My friend is 61 years old and a great-grandmother. She got a DUI that night. She blames the DUI on me! I offered to loan her $2,000 for the lawyer because we have been friends for such a long time. One day I was her best friend and received a beautiful birthday card and gifts. The next day I was the world's biggest heel.

My friend reads your column. Please comment on this. I decided not to talk to her anymore because I feel betrayed. This isn't the first time she has gotten drunk and driven her car. It's just the first time she got caught. I am very hurt.

BEST-FRIENDLESS

DEAR BEST-FRIENDLESS: There is a term for your former best friend's behavior. It's called "displaced anger." What it means is that your friend is unable to direct her anger at what happened where it belongs -- at herself for her foolish judgment and refusal to admit she has a problem with alcohol. Therefore she is aiming it at you. For the sake of a 26-

Abigail Van Buren

your friendship. I hope she recognizes the unfairness of her actions. Right now it's easier for her to blame you than to blame herself. You have my sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: This has been bothering me for many months. I am a senior citizen member of a musical group that presents a major concert during the holiday season. Many of our members have sons, daughters and grandchildren. Sometimes not one family member will come to the concert. They are all "too busy."

Yet Grandma and Grandpa are expected to attend all sports events, glee club performances, pageants, cheerleading contests -- nursery school through college graduations, etc. Believe me, some of those events are boring, too. But Grandma and Grandpa sit through them proudly.

My question to all is, "Is sitting through a concert too much of a sacrifice?"

HURT IN CONNECTICUT

DEAR HURT: In the interest of family solidarity, it shouldn't be. Everybody needs positive strokes at one time or another.

DEAR ABBY: I have been living with my fiancé for more than three years. My parents are upset and show their disapproval when they send us letters or cards on various occasions.

They address the mail to us as "Mr. and Mrs. John Doe, C.L." The letters mean "common law." The postman has asked what the letters represent. I answered, "It's a joke between mother and me."

How can I get my parents to stop using the letters on correspondence and greeting cards?

UNHAPPY PEGGY, FULTONDALE, ALA.

DEAR UNHAPPY PEGGY: Get married!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

***** Lighten up about what is going on. You might not be able to figure out which way to go. Chaos prevails. Be a free thinker; use your ingenuity. You might be pleasantly surprised. Your positive attitude, mixed with your vitality, draws what you want. Tonight: Let the good times roll!

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

*** Expenses easily go overboard. Listen to your instincts about money. An associate might not be handling finances as strongly as you would like. Take charge. Head in the direction that's right for you. An expenditure which you are considering might be worthwhile. Tonight: Talk with a roommate or a family member.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

***** Think before you leap into action. Somehow, you might not see everything clearly, especially when it comes to dealing with a key partner. Humor goes a long way in handling today's tensions. Your appeal is magnetic; others gravitate toward you. Tonight: Having a good time!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

*** Read between the lines. Express your frustration in a way that another can hear. Bosses are demanding, but they mean well. Use care in a family or domestic issue. You don't have all the facts. Listen to your inner voice. Tonight: Could be a late night.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

***** You see way past the immediate. Understanding another helps him to be less uptight and critical. Good vibes come from your positive attitude. Still, confusion reigns. You might not always see eye-to-eye with others, but you do enjoy a charged conversation! Tonight: Follow the music.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

**** Make strong decisions about money and a partnership. You understand another's clear message. Let caring evolve; share deeper feelings. A business partnership is a go, but be careful financially. You could end up giving away more than you realize! Tonight: Add some romance to your life.

Extension Service announces two-day Ranch Estate Planning Seminar

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will hold a two-day Ranch Estate Planning Seminar Aug. 8 and 9 at College Station in conjunction with the Annual Beef Cattle Shortcourse. The seminar is structured to help ranchers learn how to lower their tax burden and ease administrative burdens that affect passing their estates on to their loved ones. In addition to discussing estate planning systems, tax savings possibilities will be discussed using corporations, partnerships and trusts when family members are involved in the business.

"A properly drawn estate plan may save many ranch families over $200,000 in estate taxes," Wayne Hayenga, Texas Extension economist and attorney, said. Hayenga will be the keynote speaker.

Making gifts to avoid estate taxes will be explored also.

There are three problems with making gifts — the first is dying poor; the second is the adverse income tax consequences the gift can cause the recipient; the third is when somebody other than your intended beneficiary ultimately gets the gifted property."

Two problems affect family operations — planning for inflation and growth needs of the business will be discussed as well as how to be fair among all children when one child is interested in the ranch while others are not.

Hayenga is a professor and an Extension specialist. He works extensively with farmers, ranchers and family-owned firms in financial, business and estate planning. Dr. Hayenga is a member of the Texas and American Bar Associations and the American Agricultural Law Association. He is active in the Agricultural Law Committee of the State Bar of Texas. His teaching makes full use of his broad background and practical experience as a farmer, lender and lawyer.

The registration fee for the seminar is $75 and registration information is available from: Wayne A. Hayenga, Agricultural Economics Department, Blocker Building, Texas A&M University, College Station, TX 77843-2124; phone, (409) 845-2226; fax, (409) 847-9374; e-mail, w-hayenga@tamu.edu.
