A one-horsepower grin is better than an 80-horsepower frown.

Right or wrong, Colonel Mitchell has succeeded in getting a lot of advertising for the airplane.

No man is as good a workman as he ought to be—and few are as worthless as they sometimes seem.

Representatives of organized labor in Germany are coming to America to study the whys and wherefores of the high wages paid American workers.
And still some people howl about the way this country is run.

Fall's crisp atmosphere is being felt for the first time this week and calls out of the memory of twenty-two men, attired in well padded suits, out on the gridiron fighting for supremacy. Probably no other sport leaves a deeper impression upon the memory than football. With all that may be said against it, it will doubtless always remain one of the greatest of all American games. Pampa High School has for the past five years put out excellent teams for a school of its size, and this year indications are that another fighting corps of Harvesters will represent the green and gold on the popular football fields of this part of the Panhandle. To some the game probably appears rough and brutal at times, but nevertheless, its good points far outweigh its bad points, in the opinion of the writer. The boy who spends his spare time through the fall season undergoing the arduous training demanded by the game, learns something of discipline, something of the value of team work, and much of the meaning of loyalty, not to mention that admirable trait called tenacity. He is brought at this early age to realize that the individual must give up many life pleasures in order to arrive at a desired goal.
He also discovers that it isn't the work of the stars, but the co-operative effort of the entire squad that counts over the winning touchdown. And above all he comes to understand the loyalty to the team, and the school (which later will probably develop to loyalty for employer, the country and state), being an integral satisfaction and pleasure that mere money could never buy.

Doing a $2,000,000 business in a town of 2,000 population would seem the wild dream of a visionary. "Absolutely impossible," some of Pampa's merchants may say, and yet that is exactly what the Hand Trading Company did in Pella, a small town in Georgia last year. "And how is it done?" you ask. Well, here is the answer given by its president, Thomas F. Hanson, in an article recently published in System magazine, the largest business publication in America: "Our avowed purpose is to buy everything the farmer has to sell, and sell him everything he has to buy. In our community we come fairly close to meeting this ideal." Then he goes on to tell something of the business done in his community, the nature of the town, and so forth. As you read you learn that it is just an ordinary community. The territory has not been especially prosperous for several years. But the Hand Trading Company has prospered, nevertheless. The total volume of retail sales in that town amounted to $5,000,000 last year.
But the farm produce bought and sold out of town brought the total volume of business transacted by the company up above the two million dollar mark. It is impossible to go into details of management that have made this one of the wonder small town stories in America. It is sufficient to say that big business can be done in a small community. Of course it requires brains, hard work, and a sincere desire to be of service to the community as a whole. But the reward seems to be well worth the price demanded.

Among Our Exchanges

Lynn County News: President
Coolidge has appointed a committee of nine well known citizens to investigate the air-craft policy of the army and navy departments. This comes as a result of the recent wrecking of the Shenandoah in a storm with the loss of 14 lives and the almost fatal consequences of an attempt by army seaplanes to make a flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, and the consequent criticism of the departments' administration of the aviation service by Colonel Mitchell and others.

Claude News: Someone has again started the "cow, sow and hen" music.
Sounds good, all right, and will really produce the goods. As a clothes buyer, a bread winner and mortgage lifter, the cow, the sow and the hen take the lead over any single crop a farmer can produce. Every farmer who handles the proper number of chickens, hogs and milk cows, with care and diligence, will never have any kind of a mortgage hanging over his farm or farming implements or anything else very long. The cow, the sow and the hen will put him over the top.

Wellington is looking forward to a great business season this fall. Although the cotton crop may not be as large as last year, it will be a good average yield, and the farmers have more money at the beginning of the fall season than they had this time last year. If the weather favors the gathering of the crops there will be more money in the county this year than in 1924. The progressive merchants are planning on going out after the business this year. They do not intend to let it come to them for they know it will not come if they wait for it. They know that people appreciate an invitation to trade at their stores, and they intend to invite them through the columns of their local paper. Business is good this fall.

Randall County News: The cartoonist and paragraphers are busy picturing the boys and girls being driven or dragged back to the school house. That is not the case, excepting in rare instances. The average boy or girl enjoys going to school, just the same as he enjoys vacation.
It is a part of his life's program. The schoolroom appeals to the normal boy and girl, as it should appeal. If there is any indifference in the home regarding education, it is almost certain there will be indifference on the part of the pupil. If there is rebellion in the home regarding a teacher or the management of the school, there is certainly to be rebellion on the part of the pupil. Stand by the school this year, and see how fully the school will stand by you and better serve you than it ever has in the past.

The motto of the following we do not know, but to him we tender our sympathy to the extent that we are able. I thought to be read and inspired, we hope, thereby:

When you see the Stars and Stripes displayed, stand up and take off your hat! Somebody may liter. You may blaspheme in the street, and stagger drunken in public places, and the bystanders will not pay much attention to you; but if you get down on your knees in the street and pray to God Almighty or if you should stand bewildered while a company of old soldiers march by with their flag in the breeze, some people will think you are following off. But don't you forget—When Old Glory comes along, salute, and let them think what they please! When you hear the band play "The Star Spangled Banner," while you are in a restaurant or hotel dining-room, get up, even if you rise alone; stand there, and don't be ashamed of it, either! For all the signs and symbols since the world began, there is never another so full of meaning as the flag of this country. That piece of red, white and blue bunting means 5,000 years of struggle upward.
It is the full-blown flower of ages of fighting for liberty. It is the contrary plant of human hope in bloom. It means the answered prayer of generations of slaves; of the helots of Greece; of the human chattels of Rome; of the vassals of feudalism; of the serfs of Russia; of the blacks of America; of all who, whipped and carned, have crawled from the cradle to the grave through all time. Your flag stands for humanity, for an equal opportunity to all the sons of men. Of course, we haven't arrived yet at that goal, there are many injustices yet among us, many senseless and cruel customs of the past still clinging to us, but the only hope of vanquishing the wrongs of men lies in the feeling produced in our bosoms by the sight of "that flag."

CURRENT COMMENT

By J. M. Lowry
Yes, it's a cruel wind that blows nobody good. The short skirt, so cruelly attacked by pulpit and press, has added greatly to the attractiveness and popularity of many girls. And the balloon trousers, the sartorial monstrosity of the age, are the best friends bow-legged men ever had.

Now that it is known the cotton crop is to be short, many are asking what we can do to help most in creating a greater demand for and boosting the price of our great staple crop.
My suggestion is that we employ a few of the great scientists who are engaged in writing health hints to publish it to the world that the wearing of silk underwear and silk hosiery causes the wearer to have seven-year itch.

I do not say, and I will not say, that all politicians have their convictions shaped by public sentiment. But I take the liberty of stirring up your memory to the fact that way back yonder, when prohibition was the big issue in our State, all the politicians who dwelt in the dry counties of North Texas were pros, and all the politicians who resided in the wet counties of South Texas were antis.
Also to the fact that when it was seen that victory was to perch upon the brow of prohibition, a very large percent of the politicians who had been antis caught the prohibition band wagon and rode in on the front seat.

All must in time endure things that are unpleasant, and it is the way we meet such annoyances that marks us as heroes or weaklings. A few days ago a man of my acquaintance found it necessary to have a troublesome molar removed, and his screams caused those within hearing to believe a cruel murder was being committed.
About the same time a fine young fellow endured the ordeal of a "pulling" with a subdued "ouch," spit out the blood and went his way smiling at flappers. A real man makes less ado over the destruction of a crop by a drouth than a brainless party of joy-riders make when they are delayed a minute or two by a funeral procession.

The news comes from France that the President of that republic has refused to permit the use of poisonous gases in the war being waged against the Riffians. For this stand the French President has been applauded by many, who acclaim him a humanitarian and declare his decree a great victory for humanity. It is not easy to find mercy or humane feeling in warfare so long as the chief purpose of the war is to kill. The soldier who is killed by a bursting shell or a bayonet thrust is as dead as the one who is asphyxiated, and the wounds inflicted by shell or sword are as painful as the injuries inflicted by gas.
The desire of those who wage war is to kill, and it is not less humane to kill off an army in a day than to prolong the time of the killing to a week or month. I am inclined to believe that the most humane war is the war that is ended quickest. When nations go to war they wage the conflict until the losses on one side so weaken it that it is impossible to continue the struggle, and it would be better for all concerned if the killing could all be done in one day.

horsefly now. I saw a horsefly the

the same saucy look, the same kind of eyes and the same kind of legs, but my hatred for the old enemy had departed. The fly was hungry, and I looked longingly, east and west, for the coming of something that prom-

Dozens of Fords, and many cars of prouder names, came and went, but never a horse or mule, and the poor fly panted for blood, even as the tired deer pants for the waterbrook. If I could have done so, I would have changed myself for a time into a sympathizing tear over his sorrowful fate in the day of adversity, which comes to us all sooner or later.

Stranger Than Fiction

By PEARCE THORN

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

THIS oath that Rex Field swore would have done credit to a pirate. He jumped up from his easy chair, threw the Book Review section of the Sunday paper on the floor, and stamped furiously.

He stooped and picked up the Book Review, glanced again at the paragraph referring to his latest novel. "Percy Weekland!" he roared. "A man with a name like that—having the nerve—the impudence—the effrontery to insult me! D—n him, he can't get away with that! He can't accuse me of plagiarism. By gad, sir, I'll show 'em! I'll show 'em they can't insult Rex Field, and not have to pay!"

He jerked the receiver off of the telephone on the mahogany desk. "Number?" inquired Central sweetly. "Dern it!" shouted Rex Field. "I don't know the number!" He replaced the receiver on the hook and raced through the telephone directory. Then he took up the receiver again, and after some delay, got the editor of the Sunday Supplement on the wire.

"I want the address of Percy Weekland!" he thundered.

"I'm sorry," said the editor, "but we do not give out the addresses of our contributors."

"Now, listen," said Rex Field, endeavoring to be calm and reasonable. "Your dirty—that is, your paper published a review of my novel by this fellow Weekland, and that review insulted me. I'm not going to stand for it. I'll get satisfaction from him—or somebody! This is Rex Field talking."

There was a silence while the editor thought. Rex Field had a rather fearful reputation for physical strength. The editor had no such reputation, and nothing to create it with.

"The manuscript from Weekland was sent in from 11 Cedar Lane, Bronxville," said the editor.

"Good!" cried the famous novelist gruffly. He banged up the receiver and strode down the street to the railroad station.

"I'll show him!" he muttered as he bought his ticket.

"Bronxville!" shouted the brakeman. Mr. Field hastily grabbed his heavy cane and demounted from the train. A taxi accepted him as a passenger and jiggled him over a mile of rough road to deposit him in front of a rather decrepit-looking dwelling house.

By this time Mr. Field's rage had been converted by his imaginations into something—close to trepidation. But he had gone too far to draw back. He grasped his stick firmly and entered the weather-beaten doorway. At his right was a set of push belts and speaking tubes, evidently communicating with walk-up apartments. He pushed one of the bells vigorously. It was just above a small mail box bearing the handwritten legend: "Percy Weekland, Apt. 5."

Out of the slot of this box protruded a slip of paper. Rex Field couldn't help seeing that it was a bill for milk, totaling $2.40. He peeped a little, and his heart jumped when he saw that the bill was made out to "Mrs. Percy Weekland." Just at this moment he was startled by a weird whistle apparently originating in his front collar button. The whistle came from the speaking tube, and was followed by a sweet feminine voice which inquired: "Who is it?"

"It's me," answered the novelist somewhat ungrammatically. "Er—that is, it's Rex Field. You—er—somebody wrote a review of one of my books and I want to talk to—er—them."

"Won't you come up?" said the voice. And in a moment there came an automatic click at the front door. Rex Field pushed the door open and went up the stairs, cursing inwardly. A door was open on the third landing, and a rather attractive looking young woman was standing in it. Rex Field promised himself that he would never enter that door. The prospect of a prolonged conversation with this woman who had lampooned him was too embarrassing. He knew how to handle men; his way of handling women was to avoid them. Even if she had been so grossly insulting that it seemed almost intentional—what could he do?

"Is this Mrs. Weekland?" he inquired of the girl in black.

"Yes," she replied.

"I was just passing by," he lied glibly. "And I wanted to discuss with you one or two points in your review of my novel. But—ah—just looking at my watch—er—an appointment—"

(Hang it, she was laughing at him!) "I must run to make it. Some other time!"

Mr. Field, the famous novelist, turned and went immediately down the stairs. As he went out of the front door he muttered: "Confound it! Just as I expected—stranger than fiction! Stranger than fiction!" He mopped his brow and walked hurriedly toward the station.

The girl on the landing had meanwhile gone back into the room and closed the door. It was a small living room, cheerfully but inexpensively furnished. On the left a heavy green curtain shut off an alcove that contained a double bed. This curtain was now pushed cautiously aside and a man's sensitive humorous face protruded. He had disheveled ash-blond hair, and his quizzical blue eyes looked through horn-rimmed spectacles.

"Come on out, Percy," the girl giggled. "The poor boob thought I wrote it!"

WHAT IS EVAPORATED MILK?

Did you ever stop to figure out the exact meaning of "Evaporated Milk"? The word "evaporated" may give you the idea that in the process of evaporation the milk has lost some of its valuable qualities. It hasn't. It has lost only water. Sixty per cent of the water is evaporated from the milk after it comes fresh from the cow. The first step in processing the milk is the evaporation, when a portion of the water content is removed. The second step is the homogenization, which insures the cream being distributed evenly throughout the milk. The third is the canning. The fourth is sterilization, which takes place in the can when the milk is subjected to sufficient heat to destroy the bacteria. Thus evaporated milk remains as pure and fresh in the container as when it foamed into the pail in the farmer's barn.

Evaporated milk is now generally recognized as the freshest milk available to those not living on farms and producing their own milk. For freshness in milk means purity.

Transportation of milk from the dairy country to the city is well systematized and rapid and yet owing to the immense quantities of milk that must be rushed in daily, much of it must be obtained at considerable distances and a large per cent is necessarily some days old when it is delivered by the milkman.

Evaporated milk, on the other hand, is last night's and this morning's milk. From the dairy barn, always under rigid inspection, it is hurried by farmers to factories located in the heart of the dairy country and delivered when it is fresh. Evaporated milk is canned just at its "freshest moment," when it is in its finest state. It is never allowed to get old. The whole process from cow to can requires only a few hours. It may be interesting to know that the process of sterilizing takes place after the milk has been sealed in its containers. Once in its sterilized containers, there is no possibility of deterioration.

The sterilizing of evaporated milk insures its purity—it makes a safe milk for the children. Evaporated milk is boiled milk, and this makes it more digestible.

It may be used for any milk need with safety and economy.

For ordinary cream needs, use it just as it comes from the can. When a rich milk is desired, add an equal part of water. For cooking and baking, two parts water and one part milk will usually suffice.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS FEWER

The American Railroads have earned the right to be considered authorities upon the matter of safe operation. During the year 1924 there were only 149 fatalities among the 931,000,000 persons carried, or one fatality for every 6,314,000 persons carried safely. This result reflects the intelligent and persistent efforts of railroad officials to operate their properties safely and indicates that in railroad parlance safety is far more than a mere phrase.

There are over 18,000,000 passenger and commercial automobiles using our highways today, with approximately 19,000 fatalities and 450,000 injuries per year. That there is gross incompetence and reckless operation of automobiles upon our highways is beyond question. We can well afford to most seriously consider and apply the American Railway Association's grade crossing slogan—"Cross Crossings Cautiously."

Caution at railroad crossings will beget caution elsewhere. Those who will not voluntarily be cautious should be driven from the highway.

Relatives are oftentimes persons who wonder how you managed to keep out of jail so long.

STEERS ON PASTURE PROFIT BY SUCCULENT WINTER RATION

Cattle feeders in the Appalachian Mountain region have differed for some time in their opinions regarding the best way to winter steers that are to be finished the following summer on pasture. The general practice in that area has been to winter steers on dry feed, such as hay, corn stover, and wheat straw, and also on corn silage to a less extent, in such a way that they are permitted to lose weight. Some cattlemen hold the idea that it is profitable to permit this loss of weight, which with older steers usually varies from 25 to 100 pounds each. Others believe that cattle wintered on silage, or a ration of which silage is a part, will not do well on grass the following summer.

Some intensive experiments have been in progress since 1914 in co-operation between the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the West Virginia Experiment Station, the results of which show that on the whole steers which make larger winter gains also make larger total gains for the year when fattened on grass the following summer.

The results of these tests also showed that the steers which made only slight gains or loss in weight during the winter made greater gains on pasture than steers which made larger winter gains. Thus, while the light-winter-fed steers tended to overcome the advantage of the heavier-winter-fed steers they were not able to do so entirely during the grass-fattening period. It is important, says the department, that cattle be marketed early should gain considerably more weight during the winter than if they are marketed late. Whether to feed to make large winter gains or not depends more, perhaps, on the cost of the ration than any other factor, however.

The winter rations which gave the greatest gains and the cheapest gains in those tests were the more succulent ones composed of silage alone, or silage, cottonseed meal, and straw, or silage, legume hay, and straw, as compared to the dry rations of mixed hay and ear corn or mixed hay and wheat straw. The cost of wintering steers is generally two-thirds of the cost of keeping for one year. Therefore the profit depends to a large extent upon the cost of the winter ration.

IF YOU GET UP NIGHTS YOU'RE OLD BEFORE YOUR TIME

Prostate and Bladder Trouble Blazes Many Men Feel Twenty Years Older Than They Are.

It is said that fifty per cent of men past forty and many younger ones are victims of prostate trouble.

One of the commonest symptoms of this dangerous disease which saps vitality and makes you old before your time is the necessity of getting up several times a night.

Other symptoms are dull, draggy, aching at the base of the spine, pain in groin, burning sensation of organs, back, of vigor and frequent attacks of the blues.

But there is hope for you, no matter how old your years, from a wonderful new formula. It seemingly brings new health, vigor and freedom from those troubles to both old and young.

This wonderful treatment is known as Walker's Prostate Specific, and is prepared in convenient, pleasant tablet form. All you need do is take one tablet after each meal and the symptoms seem to vanish like magic.

To prove these statements the Walker Institute, 1538 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo., generously offers to send a 14 treatment under plain wrapper, postpaid and free of charge to any sufferer who will write for it. If it cures you tell your friends and pay whatever you think is fair, otherwise the loss is ours.

Remember that you are the judge and you pay nothing now or at any time unless you wish, so send your name today before the introductory offer is withdrawn. It is good for only 9 days and guaranteed in every way.

COWPONY RACES AT TRI-STATE FAIR

Some cowpony from the Panhandle section is going to win a cash prize of $100 and a beautiful loving cup for its rider or owner.

The occasion will be the cowpony race at the Tri-State Exposition at Special attention to this race has been called by O. V. Vernon, secretary, who, both because of the handsome prizes and the sport of this event, believes that a number of ponies from the three states always represented at this fair will be entered. He especially asks that all interested send in their names and the name of their horses at once. This should be done immediately so that proper provision can be made for those coming.

The loving cup is offered by the Amarillo Daily News and can be seen on display at the Finkler jewelry store. It will bear the name of the horse and owner, the date of the race, and the place and fair.

Rules for entering this race follow: All purses paid on evening of same day of races.

All entries must be made by 6 o'clock prior to day of race.

Cowpony races—Any cow horse eligible to this race which has been actively in use on a ranch 30 days prior to this meet and are not to be entered in any other class of races during this meet. Stock cowboy saddles must be used. No entrance fee charged in any race.

Maid—No, ma'am, Mrs. Hughes is out.

Visitor—How fortunate! When I saw her peeping through the curtains as I came up the path I was so afraid she would be in.

Gas Compared to Other Fuels

In a test made in the Department of Home Economics of the State University to determine the relative cost of various fuels used for cooking, the following startling relationships were found:

Natural gas at $1.12 per 1,000 cubic feet is equivalent to coal at $6.50 per ton.

Natural gas at $2.00 per 1,000 cubic feet is equivalent to gasoline at 27 cents per gallon.

Natural gas at $2.20 per 1,000 cubic feet is equivalent to electricity at 3 cents per kilowatt.

Natural Gas at $2.40 per 1,000 cubic feet is equivalent to coal oil at 15 cents per gallon.

TESTS MADE FOR HEATING SHOWED—
Natural gas, with gas furnace, at 75 cents has 809,000 heat units to the dollars worth of fuel. Natural gas under coal or wood furnace has 443,600 heat units.

Nut coal under coal furnace at $14 per ton has 246,750 heat units to the dollar's worth of coal.

Steel Eclipse Windmill

Runs in the Lightest Wind Self-Oiling

THE Fairbanks-Morse Steel Eclipse Windmill is designed differently and built differently. It is the most advanced mill of the day. Working parts are few—mechanisms simple and adjusted in a dust-proof cast-iron case. No possible chance for dirt, snow or sleet to blow in and clog the oil. Working parts and bearings of high quality materials drop-forged crankshaft with turned, ground and polished surfaces. Finished worst gear and piston with machine-cut teeth. Every part running in oil, with no chance for a groan or squeak. A high-grade machine-precision job throughout—no rough cast iron gears used, as is common practice in many mills.

Simple, all-metal construction—built for a lifetime of service. Quick, smooth, slow lift means actual pumping two-thirds the time. Wheel is fitted to take advantage of lightest wind. Speed is self-regulating. Costs no more than the ordinary type of windmill. Sizes 8 feet and larger.

Let us show you the many remarkable features of this windmill, or ask for latest descriptive literature. Send FREE without obligation to you.

DOINGS IN WEST TEXAS

Furnished by W. T. C. of C.

Crosbyton.—A high line is under construction from Halls to Crosbyton. The Texas Utilities is supplying the service.

Anton.—The Anton Progress is a new publication for Hockley County. It is a weekly local newspaper devoted to the work of telling the world about Anton and Hockley County.

Midland.—Business men of Midland have been boosting for Midland County farmers but the farmers turned the tables and tendered a big picnic entertainment in honor of Midland business men particularly honoring Midland's three winners.

Crowell.—The potash deposits of Foard and Cottle Counties are to be developed. The National Potash Co. has taken leases on a large tract of land off Herring & Johnson ranch and will sink several wells at once.

San Angelo.—Two new hotels are in prospect for San Angelo to replace the recently burned Landon Hotel. L. W. Walker is pushing to completion a three-story 38-room structure and S. A. Nawlor is planning a fireproof structure to be built on the Landon site.

Lamesa.—Public improvements are under way here to catch up with the great growth of Lamesa and Dawson County. The city is laying four and one-half miles of water mains and three and one-half miles of sewer extensions. Contract has been let for installing a model white way street lighting system.

Quannah.—Natural gas for Quannah and other cities of the "Green Belt" is assured. The Upham Gas Co. of Texas has secured a franchise to supply gas to Quannah and expects to supply Memphis, Childress, Wellington, Vernon and Chillicothe. Gas will be piped from the Texas Panhandle.

ESSAY ON COWS

The cow is a female quadruped with an alto voice and a countenance in which there is guile. She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filter for hash, and at last is skinned by those she has benefitted, as mortals commonly are.

The young cow is called a calf, and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad.

The cow's tail is mounted aft and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies, and the tassel on the end has unique educational value. Persons who milk cows and come often in contact with the tassel have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force.

The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as a warehouse and has no other function. When this one is filled the cow retires to a quiet place where her ill manners will occasion no comment and devotes herself to belching. The raw material thus conveyed for the second time to the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach, where it is converted into cow.

The cow has no upper plate. All of her teeth are parked in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result she bites up and gums down.

The male cow is called a bull and is lassoed along the Colorado, fought south of the Rio Grande, and shot in the vicinity of the Potomac.

A slice of cow is worth 8 cents in the cow, 14 cents in the hands of the packers, and $2.40 in a restaurant that specializes in atmosphere. —Baltimore Sun.

PRACTICAL FORMS OF COTTON STAPLE STANDARDS

Decision to issue practical forms for 17 lengths of staple in American upland cotton and four lengths of American Egyptian cotton has been announced by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine in an amendment to the order establishing official cotton standards of the United States for length of staple. The amendment becomes effective Aug. 1, 1926.

The 17 lengths of staple American upland cotton are: 3-4 inch; 7-8; 15-16; 1; 1 1-32; 1 1-16; 1 3-32; 1 1-8; 1 5-32; 1 3-16; 1 7-32; 1 1-4; 1 9-32; 1 5-16; 1 11-32; 1 3-8, and 1 1-2. The four lengths of staple in American Egyptian cotton are: 1 1-2; 1 9-16; 1 5-8, and 1 3-4 inches.

As to the question of "character" of cotton in relation to the staple standards, over which there has been some misunderstanding in the trade, the department has issued the following statement:

"The obvious purpose of the original order issued Oct. 25, 1913, establishing staple standards was to make the inch rule the standard of length. No departure has been made from this purpose in this amendment. Physical representations of the standards have been issued and distributed from time to time to facilitate their interpretation. As these types represent length only, it has been believed that differences in the character of cotton used in their preparation might lead to some difficulties in their application.

"To remove the possibility of such difficulties, the department invited leading organizations of cotton growers, merchants and spinners to send representatives to Washington July 27 last, to collaborate in a decision as to the proper character of the cotton to be used through the range of the length standards. Cotton of normal, uniform character and medium body was selected, and this character is to be maintained in all issues of the new length types.

"While the new types, like those at present in use, will officially represent length only, it is believed that the matter of character has been well taken care of and that the usefulness of the staple standards has been greatly increased."

A PLEA FOR MODERNISM

(By V. Ledrick, Pampa, Texas)

Is this world a sure enough "rotter"? Or are folks just sort of blue? Seems like every day brings less of what we ought to say and do. Is it really "simply awful"? When she lights a cigaret While he has smoked for scores of years And will for hundreds yet. If dimpled knees aren't to admire Why were they made that way? 'Tis certain that the bathing suit Was styled for their display! Isn't bobbed hair quite becoming— That men rave so about? Or do we merely have it cut Because it's falling out? Aren't rosy cheeks and red lips The kind one loves to see? Then why condemn the rouge that Makes them like they ought to be? So after all, who is to blame? 'Tis just the modern way— If we live for the joy of living Why take the joy away?

Thoughtful Student—I can't say much for my skin, but I've a pocket-book they love to touch.

PANHANDLE GAS FOR PANHANDLE PEOPLE

The establishment of a super-power plant in the Panhandle to utilize the natural gas found there has been proposed.

Great deposits of natural gas are known to underlie large areas in the Panhandle. Eventually this gas will either be used for domestic power and manufacturing purposes in the Panhandle itself or will be piped to Kansas City or other points where its use will be of none or little benefit to the community in which it is a natural resource. The Panhandle ought to grasp all the benefit it can from the use of one of its greatest natural resources.

If Panhandle gas is used at home it adds to the comfort of living for many years. If the resource can make that section a beehive of industry piped away it will soon become exhausted with little benefit to the community left to show for it.

The Panhandle's gas for the Panhandle is a good slogan, provided the Panhandle takes the steps for the best use of this resource.—Wichita Falls Times.

TO BROADCAST PROGRAMS

As part of the program of the Fourteenth Annual Congress, National Safety Council, then in session at Cleveland, Ohio, I am advised that on Tuesday, Sept. 25, from 10 to 11 p. m. Eastern standard time, radio station WEAR, Statler hotel, Cleveland, will broadcast a program consisting of a short safety talk and singing by the Pullman Porters' Octet known as "The President's Own."

On Wednesday, Sept. 29, at 7 p. m. Eastern time, this station will broadcast the addresses of the principal, and nationally known, speakers at the annual banquet, at which time the Pullman Porters' Octet will also be heard.

Santa Fe radio fans having this advance information will "tune in" on station WEAR on these nights.

Wasn't Crazy

The house surgeon at a private asylum met one of his male patients in an irritable mood. "What's the matter with you this morning, my man?" he asked.

"I want to get married," doctor, was the reply.

"Get married?" repeated the doctor, "how old are you?"

"Fifty-seven" replied the lunatic.

"Then I suppose you would like a wife of about fifty?"

"Well, sir, if it's all the same to you, I'd rather have two at twenty-five."

Uncontrollable

"I understand you are helping to hold an investigation."

"Not strictly speaking," answered Senator Sorghum. "This investigation has got past the place where anybody can hold it."

AGED TEXAS COWPUNCHER STILL RIDES THE RANGE

Childress, Texas.—Supple as a youth in muscle, vigorous and hearty, H. R. Mangum, 95 years old, is still riding the range on the big ranch of the Smith Bros. near here.

He is said to be the oldest cowboy still in active service in the country. Mangum has been a cowhand ever since he came to Texas from South Carolina three-quarters of a century ago. He was well along toward middle life when the famous Chisholm trail was established. He went up the trail with herds of cattle many times.

In his early life he worked on ranches in the southern part of Texas. As the wild lands of the more western parts of the state were opened up he went with the venturesome cattlemen into their new grazing territory. He was upon the frontier when Indian raids were common and when buffaloes populated the unbroken region by countless thousands.

Mangum says that he has observed no set rules of living. He "went the usual paces" of a cowboy in the stirring days and has devoted himself to hard work and life in the open air.

BIBLE STUDY CLASS

The Bible Study Class held no meeting this week, owing to the rains. The time and place of the next meeting will be announced later.

P. T. A. MEETING

The local Parent-Teacher Association met Friday afternoon of last week with the vice president, Mrs. G. C. Walstad, presiding. Reports of the various officers were given, and the following program rendered:

Piano solo—Mrs. T. E. Rose. Vocal solo—"A Little Child Shall Lead"—Mrs. A. H. Doucette.

An interesting paper on the State, National and Local P. T. A. was given by Mrs. L. C. McMurtry. B. Q. Green, principal, made an instructive talk on "Competitive Athletics," and Superintendent Campbell spoke on co-operation as applied to the school work.

Mrs. Grace Meador was unanimously chosen president of the association for the ensuing year, and she made a brief speech of acceptance.

At the close of the meeting an informal reception was held in the domestic science dining-room for the teachers. Punch and wafers were served.

BIRTHDAY DINNER

Mrs. J. F. Hukill, entertained with an old-fashioned birthday dinner Sunday, honoring her husband, J. F. Hukill and T. B. Solomon, whose birthdays come on the same date. Those enjoying the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Sailor and Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson. This is the fifth year Mr. and Solomon and Mr. Hukill have celebrated their birthdays together.

W. M. S. POSTPONED

The Womans Missionary Society of the Methodist church postponed its work and business meeting until next Wednesday on account of the inclement weather. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dave Pope, and the members are requested to bring their bazaar work. The ladies plan to serve a Thanksgiving dinner this year. Next Wednesday the reports of officers will be given, dues paid, etc. A good attendance is desired as there are several important matters to be discussed and disposed of.

KINGSMILL CLUB

The Kingsmill Club met with Mrs. J. G. Wears as hostess. The first part of the afternoon was turned over to Mrs. Clayton, who gave an interesting talk on how to furnish a bedroom. The club decided to meet with Mrs. J. G. Gantz Thursday to do some quilting for her. Most all the garments that were made for the little orphan boy were turned in, and will be sent to the home at an early date. The next regular meeting will be held with Mrs. Bennet Watson, Oct. 2. The hostess served dainty refreshments to the 15 members and four visitors present.

EL PROGRESSO CLUB

El Progreso club met with Mrs. Jno. V. Andrews Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. V. E. Fatheree. Roll call was answered with current events. After a short business discussion the program was turned over to Mrs. C. P. Buckler as leader, the program for the afternoon being "Special Articles," was carried out. "As Europe Sees Our Tourists," given by Mrs. Buckler, proved very interesting. Mrs. H. L. Ledrick followed with "Our Democracy of Bad Manners," by Elizabeth Robbins Penne'l. The author compared in her article the manners and good breeding of the American public in former years to the hurried and brief public of today. Mrs. Pope then concluded the program by giving an interesting article on Grace Abbott, known as the "mother of forty million children." Miss Abbott is one of the greatest child welfare workers in America. At the conclusion of the program, delicious refreshments were served the following members: Mesdames H. L. and P. C. Ledrick, C. C. Cook, C. P. Buckler, R. B. Thompson, V. E. Fatheree and Jno. V. Andrews.

PARENT-TEACHERS

The Parent-Teacher Association will meet Friday afternoon, Oct. 2 at 2:15, when the following program will be rendered:

Opening exercises by fifth grade. Prayer—Rev. James Todd, Jr.

The seven ages of childhood as a course of study by the president, Mrs. Grace Meador.

The dramatic age, 3 to 7—Mrs. W. Purviance and Mrs. Joe M. Smith, followed by discussion and business session.

"The capital ownership of great service and production is rightly being diffused among millions of individuals. America is finding herself on the road to a solution of the greatest of all her problems; that is, a method by which social satisfaction is to be attained with the preservation of private industry, of initiative and full development of the individual."—Robert Hoover.

Flounces Return to Fashion List

Decoration Serves to Give More Interesting Touch to Straight Frocks.

The Spanish influence, which plays such an important part in the modes of the hour, shows unmistakably in an interesting model. Not alone in its color that vivid shade of red so appropriately named castilian, but in line and in its use of lace it reveals its inspiration.

Frocks of this type are shown again by the best designers and that their vogue is established is proved by the number of smartly gowned women one sees wearing them. The flounce, whether single, double or triple, has returned to fashion and serves to give a more interesting aspect to the straight little frocks of yesterday without disturbing the slim silhouette that is the keynote of present modes.

One popular model is an appealing exponent of the vogue for simple lines and unobtrusive details. While the original is very expensive, since it comes from the salons of a couturier known internationally, it is not a difficult model to copy and may be reproduced by the little seamstress.

Fashioned of crepe de chine in the new shade of red, which has a bit of yellow in its tinting, it is a straight slip, very short as are all the new frocks, and with two gathered flounces of black chantilly lace. The narrow streamer ties on the shoulders and long ends reach almost to the bottom of the skirt, and there is also a narrow string sash.

Coral color and cream lace or pearl-white blue with silver are other color combinations which would be equally attractive for a frock of this type.

Nightrobes and Other Dainty Things to Wear

The necklines of nightrobes are varied. A much favored line is the bateau, which is usually tied on the shoulders with smart little ribbon bows. Strictly tailored types have hemstitched hems, and a very simple hand embroidered motif. There are others with narrow plitzers in contrasting color. This idea is exemplified in a gown with square necklines, and tiny sleeves pin-tucked at both edges so that they gulf in the middle. The same pin-tucking runs across the front of the garment.

Elaborate tuckings show edges of real Valenciennes or bricé lace and create in line, or cut work. Georgette in matching color makes the border and inserts in some sets, where it takes the place of net. A novelty is a Mack chantilly lace. This features the two-piece set, which is preferred to the one-piece combination.

Coquette slips are very straight and short, and designed to fit so accurately that they require no draw strings.

Nightgowns are largely of easy style, with borders of marabou or folds of contrasting color. Platted puffing makes a smart finish for a tailored robe of tea rose crepe with lined in yellow, and some fine lace like sleeves or margin are featured on other robes of simple styles.

Flowers Add Cheerful Note to Your Ensemble

Just some little detail, a trifle, is very often sufficient to give a new and smart note to a woman's toilette, and nearly every month some new vogue is launched by the fashion authorities of Paris and is immediately taken up by elegant Parisiennes.

The pretty mode of the flowered buttonhole permits since last spring and the latest novelty is to add a flower to the button of your small hat. It must, of course, match the one in the buttonhole.

When the flower is well chosen the effect is very charming. Garnitures in various colorings and sizes are among the latest and most seen.
