HOUSTON (AP)
 Dangers posed by commercial trucks are an increasing concern as deaths on the region's roads continued to drop last year.

In 1999, traffic accidents killed 225 people, compared with 236 the previous year. In 1997, there were 180 fatalities.

Harris County Sheriff's Department officers reported 100 traffic fatalities in their jurisdiction last year. That's up from the 91 in 1998 and 88 in 1997. And more than 25 of Houston's road deaths last year involved commercial trucks.

That prompted the Houston Police Department in October to create a truck enforcement unit to inspect trucks on the road.

"The trucking industry is going to need to assist us in policing themselves," Sgt. C.J. Klausner, who heads the unit, told the Houston Chronicle. "They've got to do a better job of monitoring their drivers and the condition of their trucks."

He said a significant number of unsafe commercial trucks are on the roads, in part because of a lack of inspection enforcement in the past.

"Consequently, perhaps, drivers and companies have become lax," Klausner said.

Pampa residents welcome in Year 2000

Hundred of Pampa residents viewed the fireworks display at Recreation Park at midnight Friday night. The spectacular display helped residents say goodbye to 1999 and ushered in the Year 2000.

Library fines will be forgiven, according to library director

By NANCY YOUNG, Managing Editor

Do you have a library book stuck back in the closet which you forgot to return several months ago, or even years ago? Now is the time to make that return, as there will be no charge.

Library fines will be forgiven and library cards replaced free during the first 17 days of January at Pampa Loyett Memorial Library, according to Annie Stobbe, library director.

Books, cassettes, CDs, and videos may be returned to the library, no matter how overdue, and there will be no fines. While the library was closed on Saturday, the first day of January, no fines will be charged on any books in the book drop on Sunday morning.

Fines will be removed from library patron's records if they bring a can of food or other nonperishable food items to the library, or a donation to Good Samaritan Christian Services.

Lost library cards will be replaced at no charge.

In order to have fines removed and library cards replaced, patrons should go to the circulation desk. The local library can only remove fines for books checked out at the Pampa Loyett Memorial Library. The books must be returned for the fines to be removed.

Annie Stobbe, library director, says this is a one-time offer, and the opportunity will not be repeated. She said many people use books for a special project and then forget to return them.

"By offering this amnesty period we hope people will return books that are needed by other patrons," said Stobbe. "Because of the circulation system the library uses, fine and overdue books remain on the person's record indefinitely."

Stobbe said overdue books and fines at the Loyett Memorial Library can prevent anyone from getting a card at another library in the Panhandle, she said additional information may be obtained regarding the fines and overdue books by calling the library.

Sierra Club takes aim at Bush again

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The Sierra Club is trying to get New Hampshire citizens to pay attention to the environmental record of Texas Gov. George W. Bush with a second ad targeting the presidential hopeful.

The Washington-based environmental group plans to run the television and radio ads starting Tuesday, two days before Republican hopefuls debate in Durham, according to Rick Katzenberg, co-director of the Sierra Club's global warming education project in New Hampshire.

The ads will run at least through the week and will talk about toxic substances caused by manufacturing in Texas.

The group ran earlier ads about air pollution in Texas before Republicans gathered in New Hampshire for a debate in December.

No Y2K problems reported

By NANCY YOUNG, Managing Editor

Several hundred residents stayed up to welcome in the Year 2000 in the Pampa area by viewing the fireworks display in Recreation Park.

Kathleen Chaney, a local volunteer with the project sponsored by the Celebration of Lights and the City of Pampa, said she was very pleased with the turnout.

"The fireworks were as outstanding as they have ever been. It was fabulous," she said.

Many cars were reported parking along the highway outside the Recreation Park area and on overpasses throughout the area to view the spectacular display as 1999 ended and the year 2000 began.

Numerous local and area residents viewed the fireworks from homes as they celebrated in the New Year.

Pampa residents along with people throughout the world crossed into the 21st century without any Y2K problems at midnight Friday, according to local leaders.

Pampa City Manager Bob Eskridge said Saturday morning there were no problems locally.

"We had no problems," he said.

Numerous city employees and officials gathered at City Hall before midnight in case of problems. No problems were reported with electricity, phone, or any other public services.

Jerry Barnes, public relations director at Pampa Regional Medical Center, told The Pampa News Saturday morning there were no problems at the local medical facility. "Everything went off without a hitch," he said.

Celebrants across the world welcomed in the New Year as television networks broadcast scores of countries' celebrants throughout the world.

In Paris, France, the Eiffel Tower was lighted as fireworks spewed from it as the clock struck midnight in that country.

Thousands crowded into Red Square in Moscow and at the Vatican. Catholics and non-Catholics joined together in a religious observance as Pope John Paul addressed the crowds.

While no computer problems have been reported, some experts say that problems could arise Monday, when workers return to their offices after the holiday weekend.

Gray County Commissioners hold last meeting of century

By NANCY YOUNG, Managing Editor

In the last Gray County Commission meeting of the 20th century, on Thursday, the commission approved a payroll of $182,297 and agreed to pay county bills in the amount of $160,427.

Payroll amounts and funds which they were paid out of were: $124,575, general; $401, records management; $401, farm to market and lateral road fund; $449, Community Service; $300, Correctional Department; $10,865, juvenile probation; and $1,559, Discretionary Target Program.

Accounts payable amounts approved, funds which they were paid out of were: $10,495, farm to market and lateral road; $40,696, general; $7,304, records management; $1,306, CSD; $2,805, juvenile probation; and $57, Discretionary Target Program.

A budget amendment was approved in Precinct 3 regarding Lake McCallan Federal money. Commissioner Gerald Wright said the portion which came out of budget was back in budget.

Approval was granted by the commission to advertise to sell a 1976 GMC pickup which was used in Precinct 2. Bids will be opened Feb. 1.

Commissioners approved the continuation of hangar leasing to IRI County Judge Richard Post told the commission the older contracts which have been used for hangar lease need to be revised. He said the IRI hangar has not had a plan in it for several years while the contract provides that the hangar be used for planes.

Post and other hangars at the county facility also fall in that category. The commission authorized Post to contact the Airport Board to investigate revising airport contracts.

Approval was granted to purchase a mover for Precinct 3.

The next regular meeting of the county commission will be Jan. 14.

Moving trucks back up to nation's third-largest criminal justice system

HOUSTON (AP) - The brand-spanking new Harris County criminal courthouse doesn't have the mold on the walls, the grease on the ceilings and the wear five decades of justice put on its predecessor.

For state District Judge Ted Poe, that's not necessarily good. "The old courthouse had a character to it, with each of the courtrooms different," said Poe, a Houston judge for 18 years. "The four old courtrooms were massive rooms with big ceilings, as if to say something important takes place here."

"A certain amount of that atmosphere probably will not occur in the new building."

Trucks finished hauling the nation's third-largest criminal court system Thursday to its new $98 million home, where Harris County's criminal system will be under one roof for the first time in three decades.

The building replaces the two old criminal courthouses nearby, including the main one built in 1951 and the converted Fire Station Building. The district attorney's office already has moved in from its own building down the street.

"I'm getting old, and change is hard on old dogs," said District Attorney John B. Holmes Jr., who arrived at the office in the early 1970s and has been at the helm since 1979.

"It's nice and new. It smells like somebody hasn't urinated in the corner," Holmes said. "It was nice being in our own facility, but I think everyone is going to enjoy the new building. "We still have a lot of little bugs that have to be addressed, though."

Key cards allowing employees access to secure areas aren't all working properly yet. Holmes himself had trouble this week getting through a gate to his parking spot.

The judges' private elevator still isn't working, but Poe pointed out that there was no such animal in the old place.

"I'm used to coming in through the front door. It's no big deal to me," he said.

Also moving from various other locations to the new 20-story courthouse are the grand jury rooms, the district clerk and prisoner intake. The building is linked to the county jails, bringing an end to orange-clad chain gangs that once were common on downtown streets.

The new building, called the Harris County Criminal Justice System, is home to a total of 15 county misdemeanor courts and 22 criminal district courts. County officials planned the move for the typically slower holiday period. No trials are scheduled until Jan. 10.

The county's 24-hour prisoner intake courtrooms already are operating in the new building, so officials said the move does not affect plans for the New Year weekend. Two temporary courtrooms are ready to handle other minor matters during the move.

Poe and some other judges plan to start holding some court proceedings that do not involve juries on Monday even as contractors continue to work out bugs.

"If we waited until everything was signed off and ready, we wouldn't get started for another millennium," Poe said. "We're going to start Monday and work through any problems we have."

For all his complaints about the new place's sterility, Poe concedes the county needed to build it. Less-senior judges have been stuck for years in cramped spaces where inmates used the same halls and elevators as the public.

All courts are wired for all the modern electronic equipment that didn't exist half a century ago. Wheelchair access, also not a priority in days gone by, is widespread.

Every new courtroom is identical except for a slightly larger ceremonial court on the top floor. The first big case there likely will be the scheduled Feb. 14 trial of accused serial killer Angel Maturino Resendiz.

As dated as the old buildings look now, Lisa Rodriguez of the courts administrator's office acknowledged that the new building might someday fall into the same category and technology and growth march on.

"That building (the old courthouse) was probably state of the art when it opened," she said, noting the ornate granite work and other fine touches there. "But after 50 years it's kind of dingy, and after 50 years, this one might become dingy, too."

Many teens seek abortions prior to state abortion notification law going into effect

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - At least one teen-age girl's hurried search for an abortion doctor has preceded a new state law requiring that unmarried teens notify their parents about the operation.

A 16-year-old girl walked into a San Antonio clinic this week, seeking an abortion. But when she learned the clinic's doctor was on vacation, the teen redoubled her search for another clinic.

Beginning today, the hotly debated law requires physicians to notify a parent or guardian at least 48 hours before a girl age 17 or younger gets an abortion. But a girl may bypass that rule by getting a waiver from a local judge.

The teen in the Alamo City didn't take that option. "She's looking to have an abortion this week, before this law goes in effect," Nancy Snodgrass, executive administrator at Reproductive Services, said. "Most of our minors have parents already involved, but there are going to be a few people who it's going to be a problem for."

The president and chief executive officer of Planned Parenthood said the law complicates matters for a relatively small number of teen-agers who may have good reasons not to notify their parents.

"I see it as unnecessary legislation," Jeffrey Hons of Planned Parenthood of San Antonio and South Texas told the San Antonio Express-News.

If a minor trying to get an abortion fails to produce an affidavit signed by a parent, under the law passed earlier this year and signed by Texas Gov. George W. Bush, a physician must send a parent a registered letter, then wait 48 hours before performing the abortion.

Figures show that 73 of the 792 abortions performed at Planned Parenthood clinics through the region in 1999 were to minors. Of those, 67 girls had a parent or family member with them, leaving at least six who had abortions without parental involvement. "These last six girls, I don't think this law is going to help them," said Hons. "My experience tells me that those girls come from family situations (in which) it's not possible to talk to their family."

A troubled teen walked into Planned Parenthood offices this week to schedule an abortion for the first week of 2000. Workers told the girl that if she waited a week, her parents would have to be called under the new law's provisions.

"We told her about parental notification and that we would have to notify her parents," said Hons. "She chose to have it this week. We helped her find a place for (the abortion) immediately."

Texas Department of Health statistics show minors accounted for 509 of the 9,378 abortions performed in Bexar County in 1998, or less than 6 percent. But state officials keep no data on how many told their parents first.

Weather focus

PAMPA - Today's forecast is windy with a high in the mid-50s. Tomorrow should be colder with a high around 48. Saturday's high was in the mid-60s; the low was around 35.

STATEWIDE - A warm weekend is on tap for the first weekend of the new year.

Light fog shrouded some parts of East Texas Saturday.

Early-morning temperatures ranged from the 30s and 40s to 50s and 60s.

Readings included 36 degrees at Terrell, 52 at Abilene, 33 at Junction and 66 at McAllen.

Fog was reported at Tyler and Longview. Visibility at both cities was more than five miles.

Winds were light and variable in direction early in the morning. But intensifying low-pressure area was forecast with strong southerly winds to North and Central Texas.

A wind advisory and high grass fire danger alert was in effect for North Texas.

Low clouds and fog moved up the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Fog was reported from Brownsville to Corpus Christi.

Through Monday, afternoon highs should reach the 70s to around 80 in the south. Overnight lows were expected to reach the 20s in the Panhandle to 40s to 60s elsewhere with passage of a weak cold front.

Light southeasterly winds brought gulf moisture back to the region and allowed patchy dense fog to develop along the entire coastline.

A slight chance of showers was predicted in the far west.

West Texas Tiguas elect youngest governor ever

EL PASO (AP) - A new American Indian governor is the youngest ever of a West Texas tribe embroiled in a battle with the state to keep its casino open.

About 175 people voted Friday in the secret Tigua tribal elections at the tuh-la, a sacred building on tribal land in the Lower Valley. The tribe, which has more than 1,200 members, has voted on new leadership by a show of hands on New Year's Eve for more than 300 years.

Albert Alvidrez is the successor to Vince Munoz. He left his position as governor Sept. 7 amid a conflict with the Tribal Council.

"It went smoothly," Alvidrez, 27, said of Friday's election. "Overall, the community is pleased with the work and progress achieved by the Tribal Council over the last year."

But he would not comment on a pending lawsuit filed by the state to shut down Speaking Rock Casino. It's a legal battle that tribal leaders predict will be one of their biggest issues in the coming years.

"This is not the appropriate time or place to discuss that," Alvidrez told the El Paso Times.

Attorney General John Cornyn sued the Tigua Indians in September, arguing that the slot machines and card games at their Speaking Rock casino are illegal.

But lawyers for the Tiguas responded in October that as an Indian tribe, it has sovereign immunity to lawsuits, and that the attorney general lacks authority under state law to sue it.

An internal faction split several years ago from the tribe at an election. Ousted members last year protested removal from tribal rolls, based on a determination from the tribe that they did not meet a blood requirement. But neither group was at the election Friday.

Alvidrez also had been the youngest man to be elected as a tribal councilman several years ago. He was general manager of Running Bear Stations Inc., the tribes gas-station venture. He said the tribe plans to expand that company and its Big Bear Oil Co. to pay for more services for tribal members, including a new medical insurance plan and additional housing.

Letters to the editor

Sex offender tracking laws

To the editor,
I have some serious concerns in regards to the sex offender public notification began its community notification program in 1995. Sex offenders were then identified through newspaper ads that detailed an offender's sex, age, current address and type of crime. The Texas Legislature encouraged no doubt by the public's languid response to its "feel good" legislation, voted to follow suit with other states and expand its programs to include the World Wide Web. As of Sept. 1, 1999, it became possible for the general public to access more specific information about released sex offenders, complete with a recent photograph, via the Internet. (This information is not currently published about other violent criminals.)

GOLF

PAMPA — The century's last tournament was held Friday at the Pampa Country Club golf course.

Merlin Rose and Bryan Rose won a playoff against Kelly Everson and Phil Everson to take first place. They were tied at 63-all at the end of regulation play.

Sam White and Tim Whipple placed third at 64, defeating Randy Holt and Joe Manzanaras in a playoff.

Terry Hall and Lee Garcia shot 65 to place fifth. Bill Houston and Jeff Pike shot a 66 to take sixth after a playoff.

BASKETBALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sterling Davis scored 25 points and Tulane outshot SMU by 23-16 from the foul line Friday to beat the Mustangs, 75-70, and extend its winning streak to nine games.

Tulane (10-1), which led by 33-27 at halftime, had a decisive 19-10 foul-shooting advantage in the second half in snapping SMU's seven-game winning streak.

Davis went 8-for-11 from the foul line and Morris Jordan added 10 points for Tulane.

Jeryl Sasser's 25 points led SMU (11-2). Willie Davis and reserve Quinton Ross added 15 points, and Stephen Woods had 11.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Ed Schilling wiped his brow and smiled. He'd just awakened from what seemed like a dream — a huge upset.

Soon, the Wright State coach was asked when he first realized that his undervalued team actually had beaten No. 8 Michigan State?

"When I shook coach (Tom) Izzo's hand is when I figured we had them," Schilling said.

The Raiders upset the Spartans 53-49 Thursday night even though Michigan State (9-4) had just about everything in its corner.

The Spartans have won the last two Big Ten titles, made it to the Final Four last March and have a lineup so deep that Izzo's second team is good enough to beat Wright State on most nights.

But this wasn't most nights. Wright State's Nutter Center — aka The Nuthouse because of its maniacal fans — had 9,413 people shoehorned into its seats, most of them wearing the home team's hunter green and gold.

The Raiders came in at 3-8, having lost five of their last seven games, most by double figures. Michigan State had a 10-point win over North Carolina and a 12-point victory over Kansas — golden names in college basketball.

Meanwhile, Wright State had an 80-48 black eye from St. Mary's of California and a 61-35 setback at home to Northern Iowa.

But Wright State scored the game's first seven points and built a 21-12 lead. With the crowd roaring and the Raiders playing as the were, Izzo knew it wasn't going to be easy.

He was right. "They wanted it more than we did," he said.

Cowboys one win away from last playoff spot

IRVING, Texas (AP) — In a season marked by underachievement throughout the NFC, it's only fitting the final wild-card berth comes down to a game between two 7-8 teams.

The Dallas Cowboys are guaranteed of making the playoffs by beating the New York Giants in Texas Stadium on Sunday. Things are a bit more complicated for the Giants, who could be practically eliminated by kickoff.

The win-and-you're-in scenario should comfort Dallas. Then, again, the Cowboys already would be in if they knew how to handle prosperity. Since knowing a 3-0 finish would win the division, they've lost two straight to teams that won't make the playoffs.

"We've had so many chances, it's crazy," safety Darren Woodson said. "But this is it. If we don't win this one, we'll be at home, vacationing, watching other teams."

The Cowboys took that lonely feeling for a test ride last weekend after a Friday loss in New Orleans left them expecting to be eliminated. Instead, they learned late Sunday that they were alive — and in control.

As incredible as that is, Dallas could even end up with the fifth seed if Detroit loses. That's the potential reward awaiting a team that has gone 4-8 and hasn't won consecutive games since starting the season 3-0.

"It's been a strange season all the way around," running back Emmitt Smith said. "I don't know what it is. All I know is that everybody in the NFL is going through something this year."

New York has spit in the face of opportunity, too.

The Giants opened December with consecutive victories, then doused whatever momentum they'd built by losing the next two. They've dropped five of seven since a bye week in early November.

But redemption — aka, a playoff spot — awaits if Arizona beats Green Bay and the Giants beat the Cowboys, as they did 13-10 in October.

"It's good to know parity is working for us," cornerback Jeremy Lincoln said.

Technically, New York would still be alive even if Green Bay wins. However, the Giants would have to beat the Cowboys by 56 points more than the Packers' margin of victory. Carolina also is alive at 7-8, but to get in the Panthers need a blowout over New Orleans and a New York victory or a Cowboys-Giants tie.

As ridiculous as it all sounds, you can't rule anything out in a season when only five of the 15 NFC teams have winning records. After Sunday, that number could go down to four. Seven AFC teams already are assured of finishing above .500.

"You've got more teams coming down the wire having a chance to make the playoffs, and that's what the league wants to keep a whole bunch of cities interested." Giants coach Jim Fassel said. "In some aspects, we better not get frustrated by it. We've just got to keep fighting our way through it."

Fassel expects the Giants to keep fighting Sunday regardless of the Arizona-Green Bay outcome. Quarterback Kerry Collins, however, admitted a Packers win would change things.

"I don't think it should affect how we play or how we approach the game. But human nature says that it probably will," said Collins, who is 3-0 against Dallas from his days in New Orleans and Carolina.

Both teams will be playing with their ears still ringing from speeches made earlier in the week.

Fassel has made it clear that every player's final evaluation for the season will hinge on this game. Anyone not deemed capable of helping New York win a championship may not return next season.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones — who after the Saints game said he felt "a little foolish and stupid" for having spent $41 million in bonuses this past summer — called about 20 veterans into his office on Monday to make sure they realize what's at stake in this game.

Jones had never before held such a gathering in his 11 seasons in Dallas.

"I enjoyed it," cornerback Deion Sanders said. "If that speech doesn't encourage us million-dollar players, then something is wrong with this team."

A big reason the Giants beat the Cowboys earlier this season was holding Smith to 26 yards on 22 carries, a 1.2-yard average that's among the worst of his career.

"That was our very best game up front, without a doubt," Fassel said. "I can't expect us to play that good again."

With these teams, low expectations are probably best.

Rebels trim OU in Independence Bowl

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Mississippi provided its football fans with a New Year's Eve to remember.

The Rebels, after seeing a 21-3 halftime lead slip away, drove for a game-winning field goal in the final 2:17 Friday night to beat Oklahoma 27-25 at the Independence Bowl.

Les Binkley's 39-yard field goal as time expired gave the Rebels (8-4) their second straight victory in this bowl and their fourth straight postseason victory.

"Happy New Year, and it really is," coach David Cutcliffe said. "I thought first of all we deserved one like this after what we've been through in the fourth quarter this year."

The Rebels had closed out the regular season with three-point losses to Georgia and Mississippi State, games in which they failed to hold fourth-quarter leads.

It appeared the same might happen this time after Oklahoma (7-5) scored its third touchdown of the second half to take a 25-24 lead. But the Rebels rebounded to win.

"While they were driving, we talked about what we were going to do, how we were going to approach it. We felt we could get it done," Cutcliffe said.

Duce McAllister's 42-yard kickoff return gave Ole Miss the ball at the 43-yard line. He then carried for 8 and 9 yards on the first two plays of the drive.

Later, Oklahoma was penalized five yards for having too many players on the field on a third-and-2 play.

"They said defense broke the huddle with 12 men on the field. We don't huddle," Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops said. "I've never heard of defense being called for breaking the huddle with 12 men on the field, have you?"

The penalty gave Ole Miss a first-down at the 27. Three plays later, on third down, Binkley came on and cleanly made the game-winner as time expired.

"I felt pretty confident," said Binkley, who had hit from 49 yards during the regular season. "I didn't hit it great, but good enough to go in."

Oklahoma quarterback Josh Heupel was 39-of-53 for 390 yards, all Independence Bowl records, and led two scoring drives in the third quarter to pull Oklahoma within 21-18. He was 10-of-12 for 109 yards on the drives as the Sooners outgained Ole Miss 148-15.

A 29-yard field goal by Binkley capped a 14-play drive for Ole Miss and gave the Rebels a 24-18 lead with 11:18 remaining in the game.

Heupel appeared to commit a costly turnover when he fumbled at the Rebels 20 on Oklahoma's next drive, but Ole Miss didn't take advantage and Oklahoma got another shot. The Sooners drove 79 yards, including a 24-yard run by Quenton Griffin and a 22-yard completion to Brandon Daniels, before scoring the go-ahead touchdown on a 17-yard pass to Griffin.

McAllister caught a 25-yard touchdown pass and had an 80-yard TD run — longest in the bowl's history — in the first half. The Rebels also scored on a short pass from Romaro Miller to Adam Bettis.

The Sooners drove to the Ole Miss 18 on their first possession, but Tim Duncan missed a 35-yard field goal. The Sooners also lost two fumbles, Heupel had a pass intercepted in the end zone, and a fake field goal on the final play of the half resulted in a 17-yard loss.

"Give Ole Miss credit," Stoops said. "They made more plays than we did and won the football game. We made a few too many mistakes that cost us the game."

Golden Eagles fly away with Liberty Bowl trophy

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Southern Mississippi could manage only a field goal in the second half of the Liberty Bowl. Thanks to Adalius Thomas and his defensive teammates, it was enough to hold off Colorado State.

Thomas had three sacks in the second half as the Golden Eagles shut out Colorado State in the final two quarters to preserve a 23-17 victory Friday for their second Liberty Bowl win in three years.

Thomas also had eight tackles and broke up a pass.

The 16th-ranked Golden Eagles (9-3) spent the first half getting a feel for Colorado State (8-4) and an offense led by running back Kevin McDougal.

Thomas seemed to be everywhere and he needed to be, as the Golden Eagles' defense spent nearly 19 minutes on the field in the second half. Even so, McDougal, who averaged 116 yards per game, got just 17 of his 59 yards in the half.

The Rams finished with 268 yards total offense, their second-lowest total of the season. They got 116 yards after halftime.

Southern Miss managed only 187 total yards.

The Golden Eagles were the nation's eighth-stingiest defense during the regular season, but coach Jeff Bower had held off ranking the unit among the school's best until the bowl game.

"I'm officially declaring this the best defense ever in Southern Miss history," Bower said.

Southern Miss led 20-17 at halftime and managed only a 25-yard field goal by Brant Hanna midway through the third quarter.

Colorado State had one last chance to win in the final two minutes, with two downs from the Southern Miss 24. Matt Newton threw incomplete on third down and Southern Miss safety Leo Barnes knocked away a fourth-and-3 pass with 1:15 to play.

Jennifer Lindsey scored 15 points to help lead Pampa to 48-40 win over Byng, Okla. in the Ardmore Tournament. The victory gave the Lady Harvesters the consolation trophy. Their next game is Tuesday night at 7:30 in Perryton.

Colorado sets record in routing Boston College

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Cortlen Johnson led Colorado's powerful running attack with a career-best 201 yards and two touchdowns, and Ben Kelly set an Insight.com Bowl record with an 88-yard punt return as the Buffaloes routed No. 25 Boston College 62-28 Friday.

It was Colorado's sixth consecutive postseason victory, the longest active streak in the country.

The Buffaloes (7-5) scored twice on interception returns — 29 yards by Jashon Sykes and 21 yards by Rashidi Barnes — to set a school bowl record with three return scores.

The Eagles (8-4) got their first TD on a 78-yard interception return by George White, and the last on a 9-yard return of a blocked punt by Doug Bessette with 5:55 to play.

Boston College also scored in the third when William Green fumbled into the end zone on a 1-yard run, and tight end Bryan Arndt recovered, and late in the game on a 2-yard pass from Tim Hasselbeck to Jamal Burke.

Burke's catch kept the game from being the worst blowout in the bowl's 11-year history, just behind a 52-17 victory by Kansas State over Wyoming in 1993.

Colorado quarterbacks scored twice — starter Mike Moschetti on a 2-yard run and Zac Colvin on a 4-yard run seven seconds into the fourth quarter. Roman Hollowell took a lateral 18 yards for a rushing score, and Jeremy Aldrich kicked 26- and 21-yard field goals.

Johnson ran 10 yards for the game's first points, and made it 42-7 with a 2-yard run with 5:59 left in the second quarter.

A sophomore in his first year as a starter, Johnson had 137 yards in the first half, more than in any game of his career save the 185 he gained against Iowa State. He had 34 yards on Colorado's first drive, setting up Moschetti's TD with a 30-yard run, and went 49 yards on the last of his 15 carries late in the third.

The Eagles were on their heels from the start after Moschetti came out throwing a 14-yard completion Marcus Stiggers, and the Buffs scored on their first possession for the fourth time this year.

The outcome still was in question when Moschetti dropped back, then ran in untouched with 1:47 left in the first quarter, making it 14-0. Sykes, a linebacker, scored 30 seconds later when he picked off Hasselbeck's attempt to arc a screen pass to tailback Cedric Washington.

White cut Colorado's lead to 28-7 with his scoring return 4:13 into the second quarter, but Johnson gained 40 yards in three straight carries to score his second TD and Aldrich sent the Buffs to a 45-7 lead with his first field goal 27 seconds before halftime.

Arrington turns pro

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Although his final decision didn't surprise many, LaVar Arrington wrestled with the question of leaving Penn State early for the NFL.

There, he is expected to be a top-five draft pick and a rich young man.

"There's nothing left for me to prove at the college level," the All-America linebacker said Friday. "I got a state title in high school, and I would have loved to have had a national championship in college, but at this point, I think it's time for me."

But few knew of the emotional tug-of-war that resulted in that conclusion.

Arrington had made up his mind a week earlier, but late Thursday afternoon, he lay on his parents' bedroom floor, still going back-and-forth about it with his mother, Carolyn. The phone was ringing off the hook.

"We've got to get out of here," she told him.

So they went to the mall. They walked around, bought a pair of shoes, talked more about the NFL. It was at the food court that Carolyn Arrington knew it: Shad, as he's known around the house, was officially going pro.

"I saw a peace come over Shad," she said. "He was finally comfortable with his decision."

On Friday, Arrington strode into the wood-paneled board room at North Hills High School — fashionably, 10 minutes late and wearing a brown suit — to the applause of about 300 fans and family.

Highlights from Arrington's high school days flickered on a screen, right above the 1999 Butkus Award trophy, one autographed North Hills game ball and other mementos.

"Growing up, you always dream about being a good athlete, being the best at what you do," Arrington told the audience. "You always sit there and you tell your mom or you tell your grandparents or you tell your brother, 'One day, one day, I'm going to play on Sundays.' ... That chance is here for me now."

Draft experts predict Arrington will be among the top picks in the draft, with teammate Courtney Brown, and Florida State's Peter Warrick.

He had hemmed and hawed all season about whether to stay or go, but there seemed little doubt from the beginning that he would go a year early. Adoring fans and coach Joe Paterno had hoped he would stay, in part because his departure further depletes a defense losing eight starters to graduation.

Before the announcement, Penn State assistant Tom Bradley turned to Arrington.

"It's getting lonely up here," said Bradley, who recruited Arrington out of high school. "So if you want to take another shot —"

Actually, Arrington said that made it easier for him to go.

What made it difficult, his father Michael, said, was that Arrington fed off those college football rivalries, and Penn State's traditions riding the blue buses over the stadium and running out the tunnel.

Hull collects 600th goal as Stars notch 5-4 victory over Anaheim

DALLAS (AP) — Brett Hull was more relieved than excited after scoring his 600th goal. Hull became the 12th player in NHL history to reach the milestone Friday night, and added No. 601 minutes later to give the Dallas Stars a 5-4 victory over Anaheim. "Finally it's over," Hull said. "I was pressing. I sat in the locker room between the second and third periods with my head in my hands. I was frustrated and angry."

I was sick of answering questions, sick of the whole thing." Hull, set up in the high slot on a power play, took a pass from Kirk Muller and fired a one-timer past goalie Guy Hebert to tie it at 4 with 13:24 left in the third period. Hull added the winning goal 2:13 later, connecting on a wrist shot from the left circle. "It's a neat thing to score the last goal of the millennium in the NHL," said Hull, who also scored the game-winning goal to give the Stars their first Stanley Cup in June. "It's been a great year and a half for me in Dallas, to win the Cup and now this." Hull and his father, Bobby, are the first father-son combination in the 600 club. Bobby Hull had 610 goals. Brett Hull said scheduling problems prevented his father from attending. "What's great is to see all the names of the players I'm joining,"

Hull said. "I grew up watching my father, then I played with quite a few of the others." Wayne Gretzky, Hull's former St. Louis linemate, is the leader with 894. Hull is tied for 11th with Jari Kurri. Hull accomplished the feat in 900 games, becoming the third-fastest player to 600. Gretzky got his 600th goal in his 718th game, and Mario Lemieux reached the milestone in 719 games.

"I wanted 600 in 900 games because they're round numbers and it's easier to do the math," Hull said. Hull retrieved the puck from his 600th goal and was mobbed by his teammates. He received a three-minute standing ovation from the sellout crowd at Reunion Arena, twice rising to his feet from the bench and waving to the fans. Hull's milestone goal drew the Stars even after Ted Donato gave the Mighty Ducks a 4-3 lead at 1:40 of the third period. Hebert said he saw Hull score many goals from the slot when they were teammates in St. Louis. "That's the memory of him that I have when I sat the bench in St. Louis," Hebert said. "The majority of his goals were one-timers from the slot. I didn't want to be the victim, but I was." Mike Modano assisted on both of Hull's goals.

Oregon wins Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Oregon Ducks knew that Billy Cockerham was really a running back in a quarterback's body. So, they stacked up to stop Minnesota's elusive playmaker and also stuffed Thomas Hamner, whom Gophers coach Glen Mason hailed as having as good a year as Heisman Trophy winner Ron Dayne; in a 24-20 upset in the Sun Bowl on Friday. Without their running game working, the 12th-ranked Gophers were rattled and Oregon capitalized. The victory came with 1:32 left when Keenan Howry made a sliding 10-yard catch of a pass from Joey Harrington, capping an 87-yard drive that featured a fourth-and-11 conversion with three minutes left.

or less in Bellotti's five years as coach. Howry's TD reception capped an 87-yard drive highlighted by Tony Hartley's 23-yard catch over the middle on fourth-and-11 from the Gophers 44 with three minutes left. The Ducks' sixth straight victory made Bellotti the first Oregon coach with two nine-victory seasons and also denied the Golden Gophers (8-4) their first nine-win season since 1905. It also provided a measure of comfort for the Pac-10, whose teams were 0-3 in bowls after the league endured a spotty regular season. "This will bring a little bit of respect to the Pac-10," Harrington said. "This is a great boost to the program. To win against the 12th-ranked team in the nation on national TV is just awesome."

Howry was the accidental hero. "The play was designed to go to the running back, who was circling out of the backfield," Howry said. "But Joey found me in the back of the end zone. "Even though I knew there was some time left on the clock, I had confidence in my defense," Howry added. And why not? The Ducks' defense limited Cockerham, who had rushed for more than 100 yards four times this season, to 26 yards on the ground and Hamner to just 64 yards on 20 carries. "We knew to have a chance, we were going to have to come up and stop the run," said linebacker Dietrich Moore, who sealed the victory by sacking Cockerham and forcing a fumble in the closing seconds. Close calls and comebacks are nothing new to the Ducks (9-3). "We've done that so many times this year," Harrington said. "I don't want to say it's becoming old hat, but we just have a feeling in the huddle. No one is nervous. No one is fidgety. Everyone just knows we're going to come down and get the job done." The Ducks, 4-1 this season in games decided on the final possession, improved to 20-7 in games decided by a touchdown

The Ducks improved to 13-3 in games in which Reuben Droughns (21 carries for 95 yards) plays. They're 4-4 without him the last two seasons. The Gophers, in their first bowl game since 1986, drove to the Ducks 39 after Howry's TD but Moore sacked Cockerham, forcing a fumble recovered by Oregon defensive end Saul Patu. Cockerham threw three touchdown passes, two to Ron Johnson, including a 7-yard pass on the first play of the fourth quarter that gave the Gophers a 20-17 lead. Cockerham also had three turnovers, including two interceptions, but garnered game MVP honors nonetheless. Cockerham and Arland Bruce connected on a 38-yard scoring play to open the second half, but freshman Dan Nystrom's second miss in 42 extra-point attempts left the Golden Gophers ahead 13-7. Harrington's sneak on fourth-and-inches tied it and Nathan Villegas' extra point gave Oregon its first lead at 14-13 in the third quarter. The Ducks, in their seventh bowl of the 1990s, increased the lead to 17-13 on a 37-yard field goal by Villegas, playing despite a torn knee ligament in his kicking leg.

Tulsa rips North Texas, 113-77

DENTON, Texas (AP) — The way No. 25 Tulsa is playing, coach Bill Self shouldn't worry about not having a go-to star. Everybody is helping out right now. The Golden Hurricane (13-1) had six double-figure scorers in a 113-77 victory Thursday night at North Texas (2-7). It was the 11th time this season that at least four Tulsa players scored in double figures. "I think the only negative would be is who is your go-to guy late in the game," Self said. But during their current six-game winning streak, the Golden Hurricane haven't needed anyone to step up at the end. They have won every game by at least 14 points, including victories over Baylor, Alabama, North Carolina

Charlotte and No. 16 Tennessee last week to win the Puerto Rico Holiday Classic. "The thing about the way we are playing is, take away inside and that leaves the opportunity on the perimeter," Self said. "If you pressure out on the perimeter, we can isolate on the posts. We have good balance right now." Tulsa scored 50 of its points against North Texas inside the paint, and also made 10 3-pointers while posting the largest winning margin by a visitor at The Super Pit in the building's 27 years. The Golden Hurricane had a 50-29 rebounding margin. "These guys shoot the ball well, run the floor well, rebound and play defense," North Texas coach Vic Irlitz said.

THE FAMILY

A PROCLAMATION TO THE WORLD

THE FIRST PRESIDENCY AND COUNCIL OF THE TWELVE APOSTLES OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS

WE, THE FIRST PRESIDENCY and the Council of the Twelve Apostles of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, solemnly proclaim that marriage between a man and a woman is ordained of God and that the family is central to the Creator's plan for the eternal destiny of His children.

ALL HUMAN BEINGS—male and female—are created in the image of God. Each is a beloved spirit son or daughter of heavenly parents, and, as such, each has a divine nature and destiny. Gender is an essential characteristic of individual premortal, mortal, and eternal identity and purpose.

IN THE PREMORTAL REALM, spirit sons and daughters knew and worshiped God as their Eternal Father and accepted His plan by which His children could obtain a physical body and gain earthly experience to progress toward perfection and ultimately realize his or her divine destiny as an heir of eternal life. The divine plan of happiness enables family relationships to be perpetuated beyond the grave. Sacred ordinances and covenants available in holy temples make it possible for individuals to return to the presence of God and for families to be united eternally.

THE FIRST COMMANDMENT that God gave to Adam and Eve pertained to their potential for parenthood as husband and wife. We declare that God's commandment for His children to multiply and replenish the earth remains in force. We further declare that God has commanded that the sacred powers of procreation are to be employed only between man and woman, lawfully wedded as husband and wife.

WE DECLARE the means by which mortal life is created to be divinely appointed. We affirm the sanctity of life and of its importance in God's eternal plan.

HUSBAND AND WIFE have a solemn responsibility to love and care for each other and for their children. "Children are an heritage of the Lord"

(Psalms 127:3). Parents have a sacred duty to rear their children in love and righteousness, to provide for their physical and spiritual needs, to teach them to love and serve one another, to observe the commandments of God and to be law-abiding citizens wherever they live. Husbands and wives—mothers and fathers—will be held accountable before God for the discharge of these obligations.

THE FAMILY is ordained of God. Marriage between man and woman is essential to His eternal plan. Children are entitled to birth within the bonds of matrimony, and to be reared by a father and a mother who honor marital vows with complete fidelity. Happiness in family life is most likely to be achieved when founded upon the teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ. Successful marriages and families are established and maintained on principles of faith, prayer, repentance, forgiveness, respect, love, compassion, work, and wholesome recreational activities. By divine design, fathers are to preside over their families in love and righteousness and are responsible to provide the necessities of life and protection for their families. Mothers are primarily responsible for the nurture of their children. In these sacred responsibilities, fathers and mothers are obligated to help one another as equal partners. Disability, death, or other circumstances may necessitate individual adaptation. Extended families should lend support when needed.

WE WARN that individuals who violate covenants of chastity, who abuse spouse or offspring, or who fail to fulfill family responsibilities will one day stand accountable before God. Further, we warn that the disintegration of the family will bring upon individuals, communities, and nations the calamities foretold by ancient and modern prophets.

WE CALL UPON responsible citizens and officers of government everywhere to promote those measures designed to maintain and strengthen the family as the fundamental unit of society.

Texas economy has gone from Spindletop to Silicon Prairie

By JIM VERTUNO
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — From cows and cotton to computer chips, commerce in Texas has changed dramatically over the last 100 years.

Economists predict a bright future for the state's evolving economy, which has moved steadily away from its agrarian roots and staked more of its future in technology.

Some of it has happened—quite naturally. Children in farming families have moved off the land in search of high-paying jobs in the cities.

Some of it has happened quite unfortunately. The oil crash in the 1980s that crushed the pocketbook of many a Texan forced the state to rely less on a volatile world market and develop other means of making a living.

"By 1960, Texas was still pretty much driven by natural resources. ... Texas was the world leader in the energy industry and in some ways still is," said Bernard Weinstein, director of the North Texas Center for Economic Development.

"After the bust, we see dramatic changes. There was not only a decline in energy prices, but all prices for natural materials, timber, farm products. The world had too much of what Texas produced."

The eruption of the gusher at Spindletop near Beaumont in 1901 is credited with spawning worldwide attention on Texas as an oil-producing state and starting the exploration and drilling that has occurred ever since.

"The major oil gushers in the early century clearly were defining moments in our history," said economist Ray Perryman.

Oil, and speculation of its prices, was at the center of another defining era—the crash of the 1980s.

"As much as anything then we were lulled into a false sense of security. Nobody was working off the prospect of it going down," Perryman said. "All of a sudden you just had a flood of oil on the market."

With some investors counting on the price of oil reaching $100 a barrel, some economists had warned a reality check was necessary, Weinstein said.

"Not that everyone listens to economists, but I remember giving a speech that $100 a barrel was a pipe dream," Weinstein said. "At that time you had 250,000 people a year moving out. It was a huge and unforeseen swing of the pendulum."

But fortunately for Texas, the state had already taken strides as a technological haven. Driven in part by defense contracts and the juggernaut by President Lyndon B. Johnson that brought space technology to Houston, Texas was moving toward the future.

"Texas is not doomed to be natural resource-based. And the bust happened right at the dawn of personal computers," Perryman said.

"It didn't hurt that Michael Dell's dorm room was in Austin, either," Perryman said.

Among the technology giants based in Texas and diversifying its economy are personal computer rivals Dell and Compaq, as well as Texas Instruments and Tandy.

Although the future seems to be focused on technology, the Lone Star State hasn't abandoned its agricultural history. Agricultural production remains significant although the landscape has changed radically.

At the end of World War II, 25 percent of Texas' population was involved in agriculture, said Commissioner of Agriculture Susan Combs. That number stands at about 2 percent today.

Agriculture and related businesses are still the second-largest economic engine in Texas with a $45 billion annual impact, Ms. Combs said.

The problem, she said, is keeping some families on the farm.

"Where the challenge is going to be is for the individual producer. I'm taking a very deep interest in rural economic development. These farm and ranch families are looking for ways to diversify their income. We have to find ways to keep people from having to move away from their roots," Ms. Combs said.

Cheap land should make Texas attractive for companies seeking to invest in rural areas, she said.

"We have tremendous infrastructure. We are in the dead, smack center of the country," she said. "We may be big, but we're central and you can buy land in West Texas for $50 an acre."

The North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) has created some changes as well. Texas is the centerpiece for the 1993 agreement designed to eliminate trade barriers in the United States, Mexico and Canada.

NAFTA has resulted in increased exports but job losses as well. At the start of 1999, the U.S. government said trade between Mexico and the United States had soared, rising from $80 billion before NAFTA to about $200 billion now. Labor unions, however, estimate that between 300,000 and 400,000 American jobs have been lost to Mexico in the past five years.

El Paso has seen the downside. The border city has had more NAFTA-related layoffs than any other U.S. city.

Frank Hoy, dean of the business college at the University of Texas-El Paso, said although there was an initial "high discontent with NAFTA," he views the trade pact as merely accelerating a normal economic migration process. The jobs that left the city, most of them in the low-wage garment industry, would have disappeared eventually anyway as employers hoped to pay workers less.

The city seems to have recovered from the early job losses. In five years under NAFTA, the border city has had a net job creation of 20,000 more jobs, many in electronics and call service centers that need bilingual workers, Hoy said.

Those jobs typically pay better than the ones that were lost, Hoy said. Weinstein sees Texas' economy as well-poised to enter the next millennium.

"The key will be what happens globally," Weinstein said. "As we have learned, Texas cannot march to a different beat. As the nation and planet goes, goes Texas."

Cities likely to spread out, not sprout up

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — If current trends persist, the population growth projected for Texas in the coming century will make cities look much like they do now — big and spread out.

Only more so. "That's what we have the land for, and that's what people want," said Jack Inselmann, regional director for American Metro Study Corp. "Builders and developers will continue to build where the consumers want to go."

Because of the state's size, land is available to accommodate horizontal expansion, rather than vertical.

Urban high-rise apartments exist, of course. And historic buildings and warehouses in downtown areas increasingly are being transformed into fashionable housing.

But the prevailing Texas attitude seems to be that even people in large cities shouldn't live all bunched up and close together," so Texans mostly move into new suburban neighborhoods as a city grows, said Inselmann, who analyzes the San Antonio and Austin housing markets for home builders and banks.

The Sierra Club takes a dim view of what it calls "sprawl," or aggressive suburban growth. The environmental group predicts more of it is in the state's future unless dramatic public policy changes occur.

As new houses and shopping centers sprout up in traditionally rural areas, it harms farm land, wildlife habitat and recreation, said Ken Kramer, state director of the Sierra Club.

"How we grow is definitely going to be a key factor in what this new population growth means to us," Kramer said.

Some 3 million people lived in Texas in 1900. In 100 years, the Lone Star State has increased its population by more than 60 percent, to about 20 million people. It is the second most population state, behind California.

By 2030, the state's population is expected to reach 34 million, according to the Texas State Data Center.

The biggest growth is projected for the "urban crescent" stretching from Dallas-Fort Worth, south to Austin, San Antonio and Houston, according to the Texas State Data Center at Texas A&M University.

The Texas Hill Country already is experiencing heavy population increases because of job growth in Austin and San Antonio. Development extends from San Antonio northwest to Boerne and from Austin west to Marble Falls.

Especially popular recently have been larger home lots, ranging from one to five acres, Inselmann said.

As for location, Inselmann notes that newcomers from big cities out of state may be accustomed to long commutes and don't consider a 30- or 45-minute drive into the city a burden.

But the Sierra Club warned earlier this year that "uncontrolled sprawl" around Austin and San Antonio is threatening the Hill Country, including the Edwards Aquifer, a natural water reservoir beneath it.

As more roads are built, outlying development becomes easier and the "march of suburbia" will continue. So the Sierra Club would like to see the state's transportation policy shift from an emphasis on road construction to light rail, buses and safe pedestrian and bicycle traffic, Kramer said. But such a change may not come any time soon, Kramer said.

"Unfortunately, I think that's something where we are very behind the curve in Texas," he said.

Mexican government limits minimum wage increases

By ALBERTO ALVAREZ
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government decided to limit an increase in minimum wages to the projected inflation rate, despite calls from residents who say they need more.

In announcing the decision Thursday, the government argued that low wages are needed to fight inflation. The country's minimum wage has declined by more than 30 percent in real terms since 1994, even as Mexican workers have steadily increased their productivity during those years.

"This increase is just a joke being played on the Mexican people," said Rosalba Miranda, a widow and mother of two who was catching a bus to her home in a low-income neighborhood outside Mexico City. "I didn't have a penny in my pocket all this year, and I guess I'll start next year the same way."

Mexicans who earn minimum wage — 20 percent of the workforce — will get an increase of 36 cents per day, or $2.20 per week, in their paycheck starting Jan. 1. That will keep pace with price increases, if the government meets its inflation goal of 10 percent for the year 2000.

The 1999 minimum wage of 34.50 pesos ($3.63) per day will rise to 37.90 pesos ($3.99) in 2000 for workers in urban areas. The rural wage — the lowest allowed by law — was at 29.80 pesos ($3.14), and will rise to 32.70 pesos ($3.44) per day in 2000.

Francisco Vega, a 46-year-old electrician and father of two, said the increase is purely symbolic.

"You can't even buy a piece of gum with that," he said. "It would be laughable, if it didn't make you want to cry."

The increase even angered leaders of pro-government labor unions, who normally keep wage demands low and their union members in line. Union leaders on the government's National Minimum Wage Commission abstained when asked to vote on the 10 percent increase for 2000, the government news agency Notimex reported.

The government commission said in a press statement that "a lasting improvement in the purchasing power of wages can only occur when inflation is low."

Soybean prices jump after bad year

By The Associated Press

Soybean prices jumped higher Thursday in a fairly quiet end to the trading year on the Chicago Board of Trade, but still ended the year down 14 percent.

In other markets, coffee futures surged nearly 5 percent and crude oil and other energy products fell.

Dry weather in South America propelled soybeans higher. Heavy rains failed to materialize Wednesday in key growing areas of southern Brazil and forecasts called for dry weather both there and in northern Argentina over the weekend, combining to buoy the price.

Brazil is the world's No. 2 soybean producer, while Argentina is No. 3. But weather worries concerning their crops have not sent the price skyrocketing like Brazil's drought has done to coffee, largely because future soybean harvests are not seen to be drastically reduced by the dryness.

"It's difficult to sustain a rally because occasional rains in Brazil have brought in enough moisture to sustain plants," said Steve Koch, an analyst for the Stewart-Peterson Group in West Bend, Wis.

Soybeans for March delivery rose 6 1/2 cents to $4.69 3/4 a bushel. That pushed them to roughly mid-August levels, but with the over $5-a-bushel prices of earlier this year still a distant memory.

"We're just swimming in stocks" worldwide, said Koch. "You can look for more complicated answers, try to blame the decline on economic problems on the Pacific Rim. But part of that was that we built up stocks and they weren't able to absorb all the excess."

Magazine converts two houses into Shakespearean-era wedding

By JANA RITTER
Beaumont Enterprise

BEAUMONT, Texas - On a recent Saturday, a local historic house was transformed into a Shakespearean-era wedding.

The lawn was a swirl of silks and satins in white, gold, deep red and green that shimmered in the sunlight as the bridal party gathered for a photograph. The bride was radiant in a sleeveless wedding gown of iridescent peau de soie, a dull-faced satin, that turned golden when the sunlight brushed across it.

The bridesmaid, the bride's twin sister, was bedecked in a sleeveless gown of deep wine-colored dupioni, or raw silk, with a lace-up bodice.

A small flowergirl in a miniature cloak with a gold silk hood and a page, an older version of a ringbearer, were also present.

The only thing missing in this picture of period elegance was the groom.

But he really wasn't missed because this wasn't actually the real thing, but a photo shoot for Sew Beautiful, a bi-monthly international sewing magazine.

The magazine's photographers were in town to shoot photos of clothing designed and created by Maryanne Martines, owner of a local fabric shop, for next year's winter issue.

The eight hours of squirmy models, glaring overhead lights, beautifully detailed garments, and cameras were the result of years of effort by Martines.

It all began two years ago when Martines, owner of Maryanne's Fabrics, submitted her store for consideration for the pictorial section of the magazine.

The specialty-sewing magazine, based in Huntsville, Ala., features a fabric store or clothing designer in a four- to eight-page pictorial spread in each issue.

The November/December issue is a glossy, full-color, 144-page magazine. It sells for $5.99 an issue on newsstands.

"When they selected us I was so honored," she said. "And then the pressure was on. This has been the priority of my year."

Martines, 47, a life-long Beaumont resident, said the idea of her work appearing in a magazine that is read around the world thrilled her, she said. And so did the idea of bringing attention to her hometown.

The photo shoot, on Dec. 11, was actually two photo sessions.

In the morning the group met at the Jordan House, a three-story historic house owned by Ralph and Virginia Jordan, on Hazel Street to photograph a group of children indoors.

Then in the afternoon the group moved to another historic house for the outdoor wedding shots.

The eight-hour shoot capped two years of dedicated effort.

The selection process is an arduous process of judging by a panel of sewing experts.

The months of waiting to hear from the magazine were followed by months of frenzied planning, buying, hand sewing, fitting and tailoring - all aiming for one day.

The idea to base the photo spread around a Shakespearean wedding was pure inspiration, Martines said.

"I got the idea at 3 o'clock one morning when I was lying in bed awake," she said.

For the children's costumes she got together with her sewing group and held a brainstorming session.

"We all got together and came up with ideas," she said. "And then one idea caused another idea, and then another until finally we had to say, 'We've got enough.'"

The actual sewing was done by Martines and employees from her store.

"We had five seamstresses sewing and they're all experts at what they do," she said.

The group spent about eight months sewing 13 garments for the photo shoot.

Martines selected her own models for the shoot.

For the bridal party, she pressed her twin 21-year-old daughters into service.

The rest of the modeling assignments went to children and grandchildren of customers, she said.

"Our best customers," she emphasized. The children ranged in age from 10 months to 8 years.

"We selected the children first and then selected a garment to match that child," she said.

Four of the garments that were used are original designs, she said.

Fabric was brought in especially from New York.

The outfits were fitted, adjusted, fitted again.

And then the big day was here. "It was just like Hollywood come to Beaumont," Martines said of the photo shoot.

"We had kids running through the house, lights, cameras, the whole shebang."

Eight hours later it was all over. Until October when Martines will receive a box of Sew Beautiful magazines from Alabama filled with page after page of her ideas and work.

The magazine is a kind of confirmation of her selection of sewing as her artistic outlet, Martines explained.

Growing up, her family was creative and very involved with art. Her father covered the walls with beautiful paintings that he collected.

Sewing became Martines' creative outlet. Fabrics became the palette from which she developed her own personal style.

But it wasn't until she got married and had her first child that she really began to seriously sew, she said.

"I was a stay-at-home mom and I wanted something to do," she said.

"Then someone asked me to make them a pair of pants and then someone else wanted something and then on and on."

So Martines became a professional dressmaker, creating dresses, suits and casual wear for local women.

"I was a dressmaker for 15 years," she said. "But I was limited in what fabrics I could get for my customers."

The frustrating experience of having to settle for fabrics that weren't exactly what she wanted led her to open her own sewing store 9 1/2 years ago.

"We needed a quality fabric store in town," she explained.

Maryanne's Fabrics, located at 3965 Phelan Blvd. in the Albertson's shopping center, specializes in quality fabrics and includes an heirloom and smocking department.

Martines has six employees who have been with her since she opened the shop.

The store is smaller than the chain fabric stores, she agrees.

But quality is not measured by square footage.

"We carry fabrics that no else has between Houston and New Orleans," she said proudly. "That's one of the reasons we were chosen."

The shop features the most extensive button selection in town and a wide variety of fabrics, especially bridal fabrics, she said.

All of the salespeople in the store are experienced seamstresses and can provide assistance on almost any project, she said.

There is something about shopping for fabric that is unlike shopping for anything else, Martines said.

The thick bolts of richly hued silks, satins and velvets contrasting with the light cottons and dainty laces entice you to lightly run your fingers across them, to feel their textures, to see the way the colors change when light catches them.

And the pattern books. Customers can spend hours poring over the heavy, glossy paged albums before carefully selecting that one perfect project, she said.

"It is an experience to come in our store," she said. "It is a creative experience. You are encouraged to create something for you."

But it is an experience that fewer and fewer people make time for, a fact which Martines laments.

People are busy these days and sewing takes time, she said. "That is a problem," Martines said. "That's why there are fewer and fewer fine fabric stores."

But buying clothes off the rack is not the same as creating something yourself, tiny stitch after tiny stitch.

"It's my escape from the everyday pressures," Martines said. "It's a stress reliever, especially the hand work."

"It allows me to create myself in the clothes I make," she said.

Influential producers shaping Latin genres

By RAMIRO BURR
San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — As Latin music genres evolve, simultaneously dividing and creating new-wave fusions, a few powerful players will have much to say on those genres' stylistic directions in the new millennium.

To little surprise, the list of the most influential producers, musicians and thinkers in the next 10 years starts with familiar East Coast players, such as Sony label head Tommy Mottola, and label head/producers Emilio Estefan, Sir George and Jellybean Benitez.

Mottola has directed the giant Sony machine with a successful bumper crop of pop crossover acts including Jennifer Lopez, Ricky Martin, Shakira and Marc Anthony.

Estefan has produced or co-produced top artists including Shakira, Ricky Martin, Alejandro Fernandez and Jon Secada.

Sir George, through independent production deals with Sony and WEA, has worked with Tito Nieves, Marc Anthony, India, Jerry Rivera and hip-hop artists Huey and Dark Latin Groove.

In 1996, Benitez, who wrote and mixed hit songs for Madonna, Sting and Whitney Houston, started H.O.L.A. (Home Of Latin Artists) Records with $15 million in venture capital.

In the three years since, he's signed 10 artists including Veronica (who is casting for the lead role in the "Selena Forever" musical), hip-hop/rappers Proyecto Uno and Hurricane G and the Voices of Theory.

Despite the explosive Latin music market, the label closed down last summer, laying off about 20 employees.

Perhaps Benitez's timing was off: Nonetheless, he's still an influential player. In the last half of 1999, he produced several albums including the "Cool Cuts" series, featuring a mix of R&B, hip-hop and dance music, as well as the "Superstar" soundtrack.

The talent these men have in common is a knack for recognizing solid talent and a sense of what works on the street. Oftentimes that's a fusion of styles. In Estefan's case, he applied a smooth pop sheen to Shakira's rock grooves and Fernandez's earthy rancheras. Sir George and Benitez go further, injecting hip-hop, freestyle and techno for a harder edge.

But while the Ricky Martins and Jennifer Lopezes seek pop crossover triumphs through complete assimilation, another batch of young Latinos is bravely seeking the more treacherous middle ground, reaching the mainstream while holding on to their roots. It's a tense battlefield where the longevity of bands such as Los Lobos and Santana is rare.

A sleeping giant for years, rock en Espanol has been slowly lumbering to life.

The next decade may produce the break-out year. The key players include Hollywood Records executives Cameron Randle and Joe Trevino, Warped/Wacha tour producer Kevin Bynum and Warner Music/Alterlatino label head Maribel Schumacher.

In years past, U.S.-based Latin-major labels tried to break Latin American rockers in the States. That still continues but with new approaches. Mainstream labels Warner Music, Hollywood Records and several U.S.-based indie labels are pushing American Latin rock bands beyond the always reliable college radio market. The challenging concept involves breaking Latino rock not on Spanish radio first, but at English-language alternative rock stations.

The distinction between Latino and Anglo rock markets is slowly blurring. Conventional methods have given way to new thinking. The lead players realize that while Latino rock's popularity has been partly fueled by the rapidly growing Latino population, the key is an untapped second- and third-generation market that is bilingual and lives comfortably in both cultures.

"Our research shows that (market) is the fastest growing market in the U.S. and record companies have overlooked that," said Warner Bros./Silverlight Records A&R director David Jordan.

The new offensive requires marketing and promotional campaigns in both markets, simultaneously.

And so more bands are recording CDs that are completely or partly bilingual, including Chris Perez Band, Los Lobos, Molotov, South Park Mexican and Viva Malpache. Even the more sedate artists, such as Ricky Martin and Enrique Iglesias, throw in a few Spanish-language tunes on their pop CDs.

In the future we can expect more fresh-faced Latinos to enter the mainstream arena where ethnic identities and cultural roots are sometimes sacrificed for assimilation and accessibility.

The more interesting theater will be the hip-hop fusionists and the rock 'n' rollers, a band of bold if not rebellious artists who are defying convention. At the dawn of a new millennium, they are running with the original spirit of rock 'n' roll, the eternal challenge of breaking constrictions and expanding horizons.

But as in the ever-changing mainstream pop and rock world, the larger struggle persists. The never-ending choices will rage on between renaissance and revolution, tradition and diversity, recycling and reinventing, tension and resolution.

Lover's Promise of Marriage Won't Stand Up in Court

DEAR ABBY: Please help. I fell in love with a married man. He claimed he loved me. My husband caught us. He hates me now and has filed for divorce. My lover called it quits and ran back to his wife. Can I sue my lover for breach of promise because he promised to get a divorce and marry me?
DESTROYED IN THE U.S.A.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR DESTROYED: I recommend against initiating such a lawsuit. Instead, count your blessings that you haven't been sued for alienation of affection.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column often and have recently been especially interested in your letters concerning manners. I am a 22-year-old, old-fashioned man in Dallas. I enjoy opening doors, pulling out chairs, offering a hand in and out of cars, and all the other small but significant signs of respect. My problem is, it's difficult to find women my age who are receptive to what I consider common courtesy. I can't tell you how many times I've been snapped at with, "I can open my own doors!" or, "I can get out of the car by myself!" My all-time favorite occurred recently in a nice restaurant as I stood up when my dinner partner would leave the table. With a bewildered and condescending look, she said, "Do you have to stand up every time I do?" It seems as though, in my generation at least, being considerate and showing respect for a woman is considered a sign of disrespect. I have read with interest how many of your readers appreciate well-mannered men; unfortunately, and I mean no disrespect to your readers, I haven't seen a single letter from someone close to my age.

I am beginning to believe that it's better to be rude and inconsiderate on dates. However, I have no intention of changing my ways. My standards are set and anything less would be embarrassing for me. Are there any young women who appreciate "old-fashioned" manners?
DISILLUSIONED IN DALLAS

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: Any young woman who believes that someone who displays consideration and respect is disrespectful needs her priorities reorganized. Good manners are an instant tip-off that a young man is disciplined, thoughtful and well brought up in other areas of his life. Lack of good manners usually indicates a lack of education in that area, or complete self-centeredness. Not all young women believe as the ones you have encountered do. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: As a feminist graduate engineer, I'd like to give a logical reason why women should appreciate having doors opened for them.

The amount of energy it takes to open a door is a smaller percentage of a man's available energy than it is of a woman's. Multiply this difference by the number of doors opened during the day, and the average woman will see that it's better to accept the courtesy and smile — which also uses less energy than does a frown!
FAITH LEE, HENDERSON, NEV.

DEAR FAITH: I hope your argument will prove persuasive. It's a basic law of physics.

What teens need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with peers and parents is in "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $9.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447.  The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  Sometimes gaining a perspective takes work, especially when you see the need to revamp plans and ideas. Keep a handle on your temper during the next few months. Explore new ways of expressing your discomfort. Effectiveness needs to be your keyword. A friend's spontaneity refreshes you. Tonight: Answer your e-mail.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  Structure your finances today. Aim for what you want. Think in terms of long-range benefits: You come out ahead because of your foresight and general sense of direction. Use your sixth sense with a boss. Tonight: Express your appreciation to a partner.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Others test your limits, which, fortunately, are well-defined. Obtain a clearer point of view. You could see another as controlling, but recognize that you might have similar issues. Bosses prove to be demanding. Meet responsibilities, and you'll gain. Unusual information pours forth while you're doing research. Tonight: Accept an invitation.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)  Dig into work, do needed research and explore options. You might not always have the right answers for a co-worker. Be willing to revamp your work methods and open up to new technology. Matters involving unions could be touchy. Stop and consider what you want here. Tonight: Off to the gym!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Your persuasive side comes out with a child or a difficult/loved one. Avoid controlling behavior, if possible. Discussions on a one-on-one level evoke strong responses. Use the next few weeks to get to the bottom of a problem. You gain unexpected benefits from a partner. Be open to him. Tonight: Heat up the night!
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  Some matters might be too tough to deal with right now. Be smart and let them be. Get a good start to your workweek. Others clearly verbalize ideas and feelings that you haven't heard until now. Be willing to go the extra mile with a co-worker. Together, you come up with a better method. Tonight: Head home.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Conversations prove to be touchy. Clearly, you don't see eye to eye with another. Accept a challenge with a bit of cynicism. Pace yourself. You quickly get a lot done. Creativity and ingenuity merge. You are a power within yourself. Examine recent exercise and health patterns. A change could be in the offing. Tonight: Hang out.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  Expenses rapidly go out of whack. It's imperative that you put a halt to your current habits. A child or loved one could be manipulative, wanting to do whatever he wishes. Unexpected developments touch your personal life. Get to the roots of issues, and you'll gain. Tonight: Pay bills first.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Opt to change course or move in a new direction. Process what is going on at home. Listen more to your sixth sense over the next few weeks. The unexpected occurs with calls and mail. Another means well, even if he is erratic. Put your best foot forward. Know what you want. Tonight: Smile.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  Take a step back and do some solid thinking. Transform your way of looking at a critical matter. Follow through on a key money issue. If you let them, your instincts will guide you. Others seem unusually verbal and direct, and they will for a while. Tonight: Early to bed.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Follow your aspirations, but be realistic about expenditures and expectations. Your unpredictability is often unsettling to others. Attend meetings, network and visit with friends. Events force you to re-evaluate a friendship or a long-term goal. Ask questions. Tonight: Aim for what you want.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  Mars enters your sign, adding unusual vitality and strength. However, a co-worker or boss might force your hand or challenge your thinking. Be willing to go that extra step. Be sure of yourself. Look for a better job if you aren't happy where you are. Continuing as is won't support you. Tonight: In the limelight.

James Byrd Jr., a 49-year-old African-American, was chained by his ankles to the back bumper of this rusted 1982 Ford pickup truck and dragged more than two miles down a twisting, bumpy road outside of Jasper, Texas, until he was decapitated and dismembered in June 1998. Three white men, Shawn Allen Berry, 23, the truck's owner, Lawrence Russell Brewer, 31, and John William King, 23, were indicted for capital murder. In February 1999, John William King was found guilty of capital murder and received the death penalty. Lawrence Russell Brewer was found guilty and received the death penalty on Sept. 23, 1999 and Shawn Allen Berry's trial is slated for Oct. 25, 1999.

New stock issues raise record $69 billion, investors bet on Internet

By NOELLE KNOX
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sexy new Internet stocks, like Commerce One Inc. and VA Linux, helped make 1999 a record year for initial public stock offerings and the trend looks like it will continue in early 2000.

Investors poured $69 billion into 546 first-time stock offerings in the United States — almost half of them technology companies — easily eclipsing the record set in 1996 of $50 billion, which had 872 IPOs, according to Thomson Financial Securities Data.

U.S. stock markets, which were preparing for Y2K, barred companies from issuing shares this past week. But the calendar is full of companies poised to go public in January and February, and of course many of them are Internet companies. The new darlings on Wall Street, business-to-business Internet companies, will continue to steal the spotlight.

There were, however, some warning signs this week that investors' love-affair with some Internet companies is waning.

"Investors increasingly have concerns on when they're going to turn the corner to profitability," said Jay Ritter, a finance professor at the University of Florida.

Shares of eToys Inc., which went public in May, fell to a new low this week after an analyst raised concerns about the company's Christmas sales. The online toy seller's shares have dropped 71 percent from their high of $85.25 in October.

On Wednesday, Value America Inc., a struggling online retailer that went public in April, fired almost half its work force and its two founders resigned. The company's shares have fallen 92 percent from the $75.25 on their first day to a new low this week.

This could be the fate of other electronic retailers, if their year-end financial results disappoint investors.

"This honeymoon period is going to end, and it could end in the first quarter," said Linda Killian, portfolio manager of the IPO Plus Aftermarket Fund. "The e-tailers are going to bring the first focus of how the Internet group is doing as a whole; because investors will be able to evaluate the growth during the Christmas and Hanukkah rush, and the companies will have to answer to that." The surge in Internet IPOs and online brokerage firms has attracted millions of individual investors into the fray. The whipsaw price swings have redefined the concept of volatility for many investors. The adrenaline ebb-and-flow has turned some into addicted day-traders, and left traditional, white-shoe Wall Street brokerage firms struggling to find new valuation models.

Federal regulators are already worried about losses individual investors could sustain betting on IPOs. In December, Arthur Levitt, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, campaigned to discourage individual investors from jumping into "the IPO game."

"I'm worried about investors making short-term judgments, and firms (hyping) ... hot new issues," he said. Investors who focus on IPOs "are taking an unwarranted risk," he added.

But for many, the risk has paid off. All of the top-performing IPOs in 1999 were Internet companies.

"My portfolio is up 300 percent this year," said Harold Davis, an individual investor in Berkeley, Calif., who trades online. "One of my disciplines is to sell half of (the new shares) when it doubles to lock in some of the gains, because these stocks are very volatile."

One of the year's big winners is Commerce One, which is helping companies like General Motors Corp. put its auto parts purchasing system on the Internet to save money. Shares of Commerce One rose as much as 3,400 percent since July to a high of $993 this week before a 3-for-1 split.

The average IPO, both foreign and domestic, produced an eye-popping return of 187 percent, according to Renaissance Capital. The largest first-day gain goes to VA Linux, which rose 698 percent to $239.25 a share on its debut this month.

These one-day gains have turned money-losing startups into companies with market values equal to the gross domestic product of a developing country.

Before 1999, no startup company had ever been worth more than $3 billion at the end of the first day of trading. This year, there were 14 such companies, Ritter said.

"For nine months now I've been expecting that to return to more normal levels," he said. "But December had the highest average first day return for IPOs."

LETTERS

While the manner, place and genealogy of Jesus are carefully described in the opening chapters of Matthew and John, none of the Gospel writers mentions the date or the month of His birth. If the Romans had not destroyed Jerusalem in 70 A.D., we might have had a record of His birth. No one celebrated His birth for four centuries. The first recorded "Christ mass" was not held until 435, when Pope Sixtus III conducted it in Rome. But, why the date of the 25th of December?

The tradition of celebrating Christ's birth came to the Romans from Persia. Mithra, the Persian god of light and sacred contracts was born out of a rock on Dec. 25. Rome was famous for its flirtation with strange gods and cults. In the third century (274), the unchristian emperor Aurelian established the festival of Dies Invicti Solis, the Day of the Invincible Sun on Dec. 25. It is believed that the Emperor Constantine adhered to Mithraism up to the time of his conversion to Christianity. He was probably instrumental in seeing that the major feast of his old religion was carried over to his new faith. (See the "Christmas Almanac," 1979, P. 17).

The origins of Christmas cannot be traced either to the teachings or practices of the earliest Christians. So basically we celebrate our Lord and Savior's birth on a pagan holiday. I really had a problem with what I found. But, then I got to thinking of the meaning of the Christmas spirit and realize that any day we choose to honor our Lord is a holy day. But, I also think that we should honor Him 365 days out of the year and not just one day. So let's try to carry that Christmas Spirit everyday and continue to give to others and spread the Gospel.

I hope you had a Merry Christmas.

News website is a comfort to read, see

To the editor,
I enjoy reading the paper on the net every so often just to see what the highlights of Pampa are. I spent most of my life there, but now I am a California resident, having been in the Marines for the past 3 1/2 years. It is nice to see names that I recognize, getting married or off in their own adventures around the world serving in our nation's armed services.

I have also been upset when I see names of my friends that have died, or been arrested, since I've been near death on the streets of San Diego, Tijuana and L.A., and wrongfully arrested and spent time in pretrial on occasions. I have been there and done that and turned my life around from the 17-year-old who left for boot camp in the summer of 1996 to the proud father I am today. In the Marine Corps, the change is forever, but when you realize the precious life that sees you as his hero, it is a totally different change.

I appreciate the work you put into making the paper simple and quick to read compared to the "L.A. Times" or the "Union Tribune" which takes hours to mill over, and full of such horrible stories. It is a comfort to read your newspaper on the net with such ease. Thank you.

The Pampa News welcomes and encourages readers to express their opinions on issues of public interest and concern. However, we also reserve the right to accept or reject any letter for publication.

Letters should be 300 words or less. Letters submitted for publication should be neat and legible, typed if possible, or at least handwritten in a clear manner. Letters may be edited for length, clarity, spelling, grammar, taste and potentially libelous statements. Submission of a letter does not guarantee its publication, nor can we guarantee a date of publication due to space and time limitations.

ALL letters must be signed for publication; no unsigned, name withheld or anonymous letters will be published. The writer must list an address and a telephone number or numbers where he or she may be contacted for verification; addresses and telephone numbers will not be printed, unless requested for a specific reason.

Poetry, candidate or political endorsements, letters to third parties and "thank you" letters will not be published except at the discretion of the editor, depending on general interest.

Letters may be dropped off at the office, 403 W. Atchison, or mailed to The Pampa News, Letters to the Editor, P.O. Box 2198, Pampa, TX 79066.
