Battered Jail Bristles With Machine Guns Today

TAMPA, Fla., June 1.—Sheriff Hiers announced today that 30 persons have been arrested as members of the mob that attacked the county jail here.

(By The Associated Press.)
TAMPA, Fla., June 1.—Three men were killed and 19 wounded seriously, in two clashes with troops last night during rioting around the county jail, where 12 others were wounded Monday.

There were clashes throughout the night between soldiers and a crowd of 2,000 persons, and once the troops opened fire with machine guns.

Rioting has been in progress since Sunday, when a mob gathered around the jail in search of B. F. Levins, confessed murderer of five persons.

A large crowd congregated just outside an area two blocks in each direction which had been roped off to prevent any approach to the jail. While mounted troops were in the midst of a sortie to scatter the groups, a portion of the crowd dashed for a squad of 16 national guard troopers marching on patrol outside the rope. The mob was ordered back and when it failed to halt the soldiers emptied their pistols into the advancing ranks. Six men in the forefront of the attacking party fell and were rushed to hospitals.

Orders were given the militiamen to shoot to kill if any further threatening movements were made. The battered jail was being protected on each side by machine gun batteries, while in addition to the mounted and foot patrols in the forbidden area, riflemen were stationed at vantage points inside the jail and in the cemetery adjacent. A machine gun also bristled from the belfry of a negro church across the street, which last night housed mob snipers.

Troopers on top of the four-story structure were armed with machine guns, hand grenades and tear gas bombs.

COMPANY BUYS TWENTY ACRES OF C. W. DODD

Booster Station, With Lines, To Cost $250,000

COTTAGES WILL BE CONSTRUCTED

More Than Thirty Men Are To Be Employed

An investment of a quarter million dollars in the Pampa vicinity will be made at once by the Empire Gas and Fuel company, which has purchased 20 acres from C. W. Dodd in the southeast corner of section 90, block 3, about three miles southeast of the city.

A huge booster station will be placed on this land, to which gathering lines will run from various parts of the Pampa field. The 20-inch gas line to Kansas will extend from this central plant. Giant Diesel engines will force the gas to the big cities of the Middle West, among which are Wichita and Kansas City.

Between 30 and 40 men will be employed at the booster plant, and a colony of houses will be placed there. The work on the various lines will begin soon, and will require several months to complete.

All of the required right-of-way from the plant to the Gray county line has been obtained, and agents are signing up properties along the route. The Empire company also is contemplating a southwest line into Central Texas, which would likewise receive gas from the Pampa field.

In selling his land Mr. Dodd retained all oil and mineral rights. He is said to have obtained $150 an acre.

WANTED: MUCH FEWER CROSSING ACCIDENTS

American railroads are in the midst of a seven-year campaign, which began January 1, 1924, to "reduce all railway accidents at least 35 per cent by the end of 1930."

Learn the slogan: "Cross Crossings Cautiously."

Simple—but not effective if not always followed. Exceptions are fatal.

Many rules and suggestions have been made, some seemingly ridiculous. But study the following:

1. Learn to recognize high-way railroad crossings upon crossing them.
2. Approach all crossings prepared to stop, if necessary.
3. Recognize your responsibility for the safety of those in your car.
4. Remember that one person can positively prevent every crossing accident—the driver of the car.

These rules take in a wide territory. A big per cent of the crossing accidents grow out of failure in one of these points.

Railroads are conducting an essay contest, to begin June 1 and last through September, to encourage students to think and write upon the slogan of the drive. Prizes totaling $750 are offered the winners. These are made up of three awards of $200 each, available to grammar school students and college students. The essays are limited to 250 words in length. The papers must be terse, logical and constructive and must stress the need for greater care in approaching and passing over railroad crossings.

Under the plan, teachers will select the best essays and submit them to the principals, who will send the best to the county superintendent. The latter will then submit them to the American Railway association.

There is reason for concern over the fact that in 1926 there were 5,921 crossing accidents, in which 2,492 persons were killed. If this condition continues, legislators will have to consider licensing of drivers. Nearly everyone has a car these days, and the highways are getting too narrow for the heavy traffic.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—The father of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh was a pioneer in politics, as the son is a pioneer in the air.

The father failed to accomplish his aims and lapsed into comparative obscurity because he was opposed by the established convictions and interests of his fellowmen, while his son had only to contend with the elements.

Charles A. Lindbergh, the elder, who was a Republican congressman from the state of Minnesota from 1907 to 1917, was one of the first of the western insurgents. He was elected as a progressive and maintained his progressive principles until he died.

Some men now in Washington, but not a great many, recall both Lindberghs. The son is recalled only as a quiet, unassuming lad in short pants. The father is recalled as a man of intelligence and courage, of modesty and efficiency, of great industry and of most impeccable integrity, and, perhaps as important as anything, a man of ideals.

His iron nerve was demonstrated when he underwent a major surgical operation without anaesthetic and talked to a friend the while.

The first Charles A. Lindbergh became one of the first progressives in Congress when he defeated a conservative incumbent in the Little Falls, or sixth Minnesota congressional district. Minnesota farmers at the time were bitter against the "money trust" and Lindbergh fought their battle in Washington. He fought the framers of the Federal Reserve Act and pushed a bill of his own which he held would do more to free the farmers from financial domination. The bill was regarded as radical and it lost out. The same fate met other measures, dealing with banking and currency evils, which Lindbergh introduced.

If Capt. Lindbergh is an emissary of peace, his father was no less an apostle of peace in the days before the United States entered the war. If his constituents had not voted him out in favor of Harold Knutson, who is still in office, he undoubtedly would have voted against the declaration of war against Germany.

He made vigorous speeches attacking money and armament interests for their alleged attempts to push the country into conflict and declared that America should keep out of this "welter of blood, greed and militarism."

But he never bellowed. He never played to the grandstand. He was calm and deliberate and not given to picking quarrels. His modesty has been mentioned, and proof elsewhere adduced that he gave as his biography in the Congressional Directory only the words "Charles A. Lindbergh, Republican, of Little Falls."

PRESS FORUM

A mistaken idea with some people is that the newspaper is an individual proposition. They do not realize that the local paper is just as much a part of the community as the schools, churches or anything else. The newspaper is different from any other business, it is a community affair. It is for service to the people and not for any individual.

There is nothing personal with it, it is here for a purpose and that purpose is to do what good it can in every way it can and the greater the support of those it undertakes to serve the better service it can render. It takes the people to make a good newspaper and without the help of the people no one can run a successful newspaper. It requires money to operate any kind of business—even the churches and the papers are no exception and for this reason they must have the financial support of the business interest as well as the good will. Few newspaper publishers make more than a comfortable living and scarcely one is reported wealthy from money made in the newspaper business. They deserve to be trusted and to be understood by the people—it is the editor and not the plant that makes a newspaper useful in a community, though a liberal patronage is necessary if the paper is to be a credit to the town.

Detectives Dig Up $325,000 In Cash

(By The Associated Press.)
PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The detective bureaus of Pittsburgh and Allegheny counties have in their possession over $325,000 in cash which detectives have dug up with pick and shovel at one time or another. Claimants have been found for $100,000.

The money is loot which thieves buried and were forced to abandon when criminal investigations seemed likely to lead to its recovery. Detectives are spurred on in their search by an award of 10 per cent of all money restored to its rightful owner. The courts will be asked to dispose of the quarter of a million still unclaimed.

Tennis Crowds Golf As Capital's Sport

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON—Uncle Sam, who does quite a bit to keep the thousands of government clerks here happy and healthy, has found that, as far as outdoor sports tennis is overshadowed only by golf in popularity.

This is the observation of those in charge of public parks, in which there are 69 public tennis courts. A small fee is charged for the use of most of them, but the income is insufficient to pay for construction and upkeep, so Uncle Sam obligingly digs down into his pocket to make up any deficit.

Although Washington tennis devotees think they are well cared for, a dozen additional courts are to be provided. They are needed to take care of the crowds early in the morning before the work of the day begins and late in the afternoon after the government departments close.

WHAT WAVE LENGTH?
SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Hog calling contests at the Illinois fair are henceforth to be judged 50 per cent on volume, 25 per cent on persuasiveness and 25 per cent on melody.

Before trying too hard to get in "the swim" of things, it is well to test the depth.

300 Rare and Historic Trees Cast Shade On Presidents

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON—The White House grounds, 15 acres of which contribute generously toward Washington's reputation as one of the most beautiful cities in the world, are flush at this season with the full glory of their verdure.

Few parks harbor such a varied collection of trees. Ever since it was laid out, landscape gardeners have applied themselves to the cultivation of as many kinds of trees as were combatable with practical uses for which the gardens were intended. The result is about 300 cast their rich shadows about the home of the presidents, including many rare specimens imported from Europe and Asia.

The American elm, because of its shade-giving qualities, has the largest representation in the grounds, but it is followed closely by the ash, oak and basswood. Among the foreign trees the Japanese cypress, European elm, purple beech and horse chestnut are most numerous. The most valuable include specimens of cedar of Lebanon, the Japanese varnish tree, Kentucky coffee tree, Japanese weeping cherry, certain mimosas and a black walnut, rarely seen in a city. Some of the enormous ash trees are so old they are believed to have flourished on the site before the Revolution.

In the southern part of the grounds are two boxwoods which legend says were planted by John Adams or Madison. The magnolias which have perfumed the slumbers of presidents for the larger part of a century were planted under the window of the principal bedroom by Andrew Jackson.

The large elm which crowns the East knoll was planted by Hayes, while two beeches which stand on each side of the East garden entrance were planted there by Roosevelt. McKinley contributed a fine oak in the northwestern section of the grounds, and Wilson set out a young elm in the northeastern part to replace one which had been uprooted in a summer storm.

Mrs. Taft was responsible for the California privet hedge that surrounds the southern section of the grounds. Mrs. Harding planted a magnolia near the northeastern entrance which bore its first flowers this year, and Mrs. Coolidge has planted a silver birch in honor of the mothers of the presidents.

All of the trees are given meticulous care. In addition to the usual seasonal spraying, regular inspection is made by experts, and tree surgery is applied whenever necessary.

Firpo and Uzcudun Are Matched For Ring's Thrift Championship

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK—When his ring days are over Paulino Uzcudun plans to carry back to the Pyrenees mountains of Spain just as many dollars worth of doubloons as Luis Angel Firpo did to the Argentine pampas in 1924.

Firpo won no official title in an invasion that brought him a knockout from Jack Dempsey, then the heavy-weight champion, and loss of decisions to Harry Wills and Charley Weinart. Neither is it probable that a ring crown may ever grace the brow of the squat Basque, who has all the color of a Firpo, but little of his "killer" power. Between them, however, the two Latin maulers apparently hold the pugilistic championship for frugality.

The Argentine lugged close to $1,000,000 back to South American for profitable investment. As yet Paulino has gathered less than $100,000 for knocking over three lesser lights and gaining decisions over Knute Hansen and Tom Heeney.

The woodchopper, however, will at least double all his previous American earnings if he meets Jack Dempsey in the former champion's first come-back battle. Such a battle will either check the Basque's ambitions abruptly or put him in a bigger money class. It depends largely on how much of his old punch Dempsey has recovered. Paulino's "million" would be in sight if he battered his way past Dempsey, Sharkey or Maloney for a title match with Gene Tunney, but the Spaniard's prospect of this appears slim.

Paulino trains for prospective riches as Firpo did, living quietly and economically in modest quarters. Backed by two platoons of managers, who wheel and file into promoter's offices behind Al Mayer, their commander-in-chief, Paulino mulls over the value of his colorful ring personality and in his broken English suggests figures for his services that seem to stagger matchmakers.

Paulino's board of control probably outpoints in numbers the various mentors of Firpo, who handled most of his own contract details. For conservation of finances where lavishness is expected of all celebrities, however, Paulino could hope for no more than a draw with the South American, who came to be known as "Dead Pan Louis" along Cauliflower Alley.

Firpo, as the story tellers relate was wont to fall back upon the lack of knowledge of American customs and language to explain his careful handling of personal finances and at one time almost went to court to collect $150 he thought due him because he had "honored" a magazine with an advertisement.

A barber who shaves Paulino regularly had this to say of his spendthrift qualities as he eased the Spaniard out of the chair recently:

"He knows about seven English words," he sighed, "and not one of them is 'tip.'"

Many Thrills In Boxing Card Here

Pampa fight fans were handed a surprise at the boxing card last night for the benefit of the flood relief fund. "Dutch" Hust knocked Duncan out in the second round. From the first bell, the two began to "mix things" and continued to do so until the sudden close of the exhibition. It was a grudge scrap from the beginning, and the best man got the decision.

The preliminaries were fast, clean affairs and the fans liked seeing the youngsters do battle.

The semi-final between "Hook" Shaw and Paul Pone was a hard-hitting affair with Pone much too fast for Shaw. Pone played a dancing, running game and soon tired Shaw out. After a long trip to Lubbock Shaw soon tired, and the slim boy had the better of the argument. Shaw depends more on his hitting ability.

"Rusty" Cahill and Young O'Brien staged four rounds of the best boxing ever seen in Pampa. The boys were evenly matched and gave a classy exhibition. In a longer fight Cahill would get a decision, as he has the greater initiative, packs a hard punch, and can take punishment.

Walter Herndon broke a bone in his foot during training and couldn't appear on last evening's card. Young O'Brien made a good substitute. Oscar Dodson of Pampa refereed last night's affair.

A finish wrestling match between Oscar Dodson of Pampa and "Dutch" Teck of Panhandle is scheduled for Friday night at the Pampa wrestling club.

A challenge has been received here from "Speedy" Sparks, Lawton, Okla., boxer, offering to meet any man in his class the latter part of June. Sparks has a long string of victories to his credit and the match, if arranged, should be a good one. He fights from 155 to 165 pounds.

Eighty Seniors In Graduation Program At Teachers College

CANYON, June 1.—Unusual beauty and dignity marked the opening of commencement week at the West Texas State Teachers college Sunday when Rev. J. Pat Horton of Plainview delivered the baccalaureate sermon, taking as his text David's question "What is Man?"

Eighty seniors and the entire faculty in caps and gowns, music especially chosen for the occasion, and the presence of hundreds of parents and friends of the senior class, made the occasion a momentous one.

Tuesday's most interesting feature to the people of the Panhandle was the presentation and unveiling of the Ferdinand Paul Guenther memorial, which is the gift of the class of 1925. The class chose a beautiful fountain as peculiarly fit to honor the memory of Professor Guenther who gave 15 years of his life to the service of the West Texas State Teachers college.

THE TOWER OF LIES
How does Lon Chaney preserve his intricate make-up, which plays such an important part in his screen characterizations?

Known as the greatest make-up artist of the screen, Chaney often takes several hours to complete his facial characterizations. Should this make-up become marred during the day, it would be necessary to take off the entire thing and spend several more hours replacing it with a similar one.

When there is any danger of the heat causing his grease paint to run, Chaney now applies small packs of some mysterious substance to his face. If the grease has become soft, it immediately hardens again. This process is repeated between scenes, thus permitting the actor to wear the same make-up throughout the entire day.

Chaney, who is co-starred with Norma Shearer in "The Tower of Lies", a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production directed by Victor Seastrom, to be shown at the Crescent theatre Thursday, has repeatedly refused to let others share his secret.

"It took many years of experimenting to solve this very difficult problem," says Chaney, "and because it is not patentable it will have to remain a mystery as long as I am on the screen. Many other character actors have tried to find a solution to the problem of keeping his make-up fresh under all conditions but others have not been able to solve the question."

"The average make-up used by a character actor is easily and swiftly put on so it makes little difference if it has to be replaced several times a day, but in such characterizations as Jan in "The Tower of Lies" it took several hours to put on the grease-paint properly. I tried for years to find a formula for something that would keep my make-up from running. Now, since I have been successful, I feel that my discovery is a professional secret not to be shared with competitors."

Through his mastery of the art of make-up Chaney has been able to play a wider variety of character roles than any other actor in pictures. His disguises are frequently so effective that his most intimate friends fail to recognize him either on the screen or at the studios where he works.

It was Chaney who made possible the success of George Loan Tucker's "The Miracle Man" by his role of "The Frog" one of the principal characters of this stirring drama. In "The Penalty" he played the role of "Blizard," a legless man who was the leader of San Francisco's underworld.

In "The Monster" he was a mad surgeon and in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" he had the role of the hunchback, a characterization which made him world-famous. Since signing with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Chaney has played two very difficult roles, that of the clown in "He Who Gets Slapped" and of the ventriloquist and Mrs. O'Grady in "The Unholy Three."

In "The Tower of Lies," Chaney and Norma Shearer are supported by a remarkable cast which includes: Ian Keith, Claire McDowell, William Haines, David Torrence, Anne Schaefer, Edward Connelly, Leo White and Bodile Rosing.

WEDDING BILLS

When the wedding bells are through ringing there are the bills to pay, but sometimes there's a great deal more to it than that, as the action of "Wedding Bills," Raymond Griffith's latest Paramount comedy which shows at the Rex theatre tomorrow.

"If you've been a harassed best man, you can appreciate how Ray feels when life is just one wedding after another with no prospect of immediate relief from the arduous duties of chief nuptial assistant. He swears off all wedding, but to no avail, for his best friends decides to get married, and Ray has to be there to lend moral support. A blonde vamp, and a supersensitive bride contribute to the sum of uncertainties, and the trouble commences. Ray is elected to pacify the vamp who is much perturbed over the coming wedding since she was once the sweetheart of Tom Milbank, the bridegroom. Moreover she holds certain letters of his that if shown the jealous bride would break up the romance. Trouble follows trouble until Ray finally hits upon the solution, but only after a series of episodes in which the well-known high-hat comedian exhibits every known trick in his well stocked repertoire. The laughs are plentiful."

THE MIDSHIPMAN

"The Midshipman," Ramon Navarro's starring vehicle which comes to the Crescent theatre today was filmed in its exact locale, the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis under the direction of Christy Cabane.

Flew Almost as Far as "Slim"

Two British flyers, Lieutenants L. M. Gillman (left) and C. H. Carr, held the world's non-stop flight distance record for an hour when they plunged into the Persian Gulf after a 3,400-mile jaunt from England. Their record was broken by Lindbergh's 3,600-mile trip, the American flyer reaching Paris just an hour after the British plane was wrecked in the gulf. The two men were rescued.
