Camel No. 1 Harrah Extends Field Mile Nearer Pampa

PAY 54 FEET HIGHER THAN OTHER WELLS

First Heavy Flow Goes Over Top of Derrick

LOCAL MEN OWN CAMEL COMPANY

Derrick for Guernsey Well in Same Section Up

A flow of oil which followed the bit out of the hole in the Camel Oil company's No. 1 Harrah in section 168, block 3 Gray county, Saturday morning indicates a large well to that section of the Pampa oil field. Drilling was at 3,140 feet when the flow commenced. Considerable difficulty was encountered when placing the control head but the flow was successfully turned into the derrick pit.

First pay was reached last Saturday morning at 3,117 feet, which is 54 feet higher than first pay in any of the other wells in that territory. First gas of about 1,000,000 cubic feet was reached at 3,070 feet with an increase yesterday morning.

This well brings production more than a mile nearer Pampa on the north side and proves up considerable territory, and a different strata. Following the first heavy flow, which went over the top of the derrick, production practically ceased and drilling-in will be suspended for a few days to connect the pipe line.

The Camel Oil company is composed of W. R. Campbell, B. E. Finley and H. G. Twiford who have the derrick on the ground for the drilling of the Guernsey well in the same section, on the Mrs. McKinney lease, about a quarter of a mile southwest of the Camel well.

Art Hurst, veteran driller of the Pampa field drilled the Camel well and will have charge of the drilling of the Guernsey well.

New Ambassador To Mexico Urges Better Relations

(By Associated Press)
MEXICO CITY, Oct. 29—The first official words of the new United States ambassador Dwight Morrow, to President Calles when he was received in formal audience today, were to express hope that through cooperation a mutually satisfactory solution would be found to problems with which the two countries are faced, a respect which should mark international relations with that dignity and mutual respect which should mark international relations between the two sovereign and independent states.

Several high officials of the foreign office, troops of cavalry and the presidential guard served as an escort of honor to conduct the ambassador where

Vincent-Granite Match Expected To Be Great

An unusual bout at the Pampa Athletic club will be witnessed tomorrow night when Bobby Vincent of Stillwater, Okla., who shaded Jimmie Carter here last Monday night, meets Kid Granite, of Hobart, Okla., the boy who has packed the house on his two previous appearances here.

Vincent and Granite are clever fighters who combine science and speed with a heavy punch.

The winner of the bout tomorrow night will meet Wildcat Monte who stayed three rounds with Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion of the world, in Oklahoma City last week.

In the semi-final Speedy Snow will go eight rounds with Battling Bob who put up a real battle against Ruby Cahill last Monday night and who beat Buckshot Peebles in Borger Wednesday night. These boys are steppers and will provide a real battle.

The chief preliminary will introduce Chief Neir, the Indian boxer from Borger, who will step four rounds with Kid Sherrod, the fighting Pampa boy. Two 50-pound mid-gets will provide the curtain raiser.

Something new will be staged when six negroes of Pampa will step in the ring, proceed to leave only one of them at the end. The last two negroes in the ring will box six rounds for the purse.

John Mitchell, Noted Illinois Banker, Dies Following Auto Accident Near Libertyville

(By Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Ill. Oct. 29—John Mitchell, 74 years old, chairman of the board of the Illinois Merchants Trust company, died at Libertyville, 35 miles from here, shortly after he had been injured in an automobile accident which also claimed the life of Mrs. Mitchell.

He was born Nov. 3, 1853, at Alton, Ill., moving to Chicago at the age of 20 where he started his banking career as a messenger. He became president of a Chicago bank at the age of 26.

John Mitchell retired from active business life after one of the most brilliant careers in banking history to be called four years after retirement, to head the second ranking bank in Illinois, at the age of 70.

He was a member of the boards of several other Chicago and New York financial institutions and was a director of five railway companies and many large business enterprises.

Mr. Mitchell in 1890 married Mary Louise Jewett of Bristol, R. I.

City Officials in Many Places Like Manager

The city manager plan, proposed for Pampa under the proposed charter embodying also the Board of City Development provision and other advantages, is best known for its businesslike character.

Actual experience with the plan is reflected in the following letters from other cities where the city manager system is in use.

Chas. M. Campbell, banker, Temple—“Our city is being run on a very economical basis and is handled as nearly like a man handles his own business as is possible. We don't have the stir and strife and corruption of city politics. We elect three commissioners each year and the commissioners elect the city manager. I think this is the only form of government for a city to adopt.”

Manager's Work Checked
Jno. W. Turner, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Eastland—“We have found the city manager plan very satisfactory and believe it quite an improvement over the old aldermanic form previously in vogue here. About the only comment I can make with reference to the success of this form of government is the importance of selecting a competent man to fill the position of manager. Our manager holds office from month to month and is subject at all times to be discharged by the city commissioners in case his services prove unsatisfactory in any way. By this means we keep a pretty close check on the situation, and the City Commissioners meet on an average of twice a month to check over the manager's work.”

Old Plans Obsolete
T. L. Overby, banker, Eastland—“To my mind the cardinal difference between the city manager plan and the others is the difference between modern and obsolete governments, efficiency and inefficiency. If your city is looking for a forward movement and will adopt the city manager plan and then have nerv enough to select your city manager without reference to political preference but solely look to ability and competence you will have made forward step, but if you let politics intervene it will avail you nothing.”

Helped Fort Worth
Wm. Moring, dry goods, Fort Worth—“The city of Fort Worth has been under the city manager plan for the past two and one half years and I happen to be one of the councilmen and I have no hesitancy to say that the city comes nearer getting 100 cents on the dollar for what money they spend than they did under the former plan of government. I also feel sure that we have been enabled to do a lot more improving and the city is far more prosperous than it was before the

COUNTY TOTAL IS BOOSTED BY BOWERS AREA

Panhandle Increases to 88,754 Barrels Daily

NET GAIN IS ONLY 1,109

Big Oil Lease Is $50,000 Deal in This Pool

In one of the dullest of recent weeks from the standpoint of new production, Gray county has taken another leap to offset a Hutchinson county loss. The county produced 15,465 barrels, an increase of 2,100 barrels daily.

The Bowers area is responsible for Gray county's bigger production, and when its new locations are drilled the total is expected to go above 25,000 within a short time.

Carson county made 7,930 barrels daily for the week, which is an increase of 10 barrels per day. Hutchinson dropped to 64,000 barrels, a decrease of 1,445 barrels daily.

Wheeler increased 10 barrels per day, the total being 1,290 from 26 wells.

Potter had 35 barrels and Moore 29 barrels daily.

The Panhandle total was 88,746 barrels, for an increase of 1,109 barrels.

Outstanding oil deals of the week again brought Gray county into the limelight. W. A. Maupin, R. A. Burnett, and L. S. Stogner of Amarillo purchased a big lease from W. H. Taylor of Wichita Falls, paying $50,000 cash and probably other considerations.

The lease involves 3,780 acres in sections 9, 10, 11, 12, 28, 21, and 22, Block B-2, Gray county.

The first well, according to the contract, will be started within 30 days. It will be located in the center of the northeast quarter of section 10.

HEAR BRABHAM AT THE METHODIST CHURCH TODAY MORNING THEME: Is the World Growing Better? EVENING SERVICES: A Harvest Day Program Will be Rendered

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

International Sunday school Lesson.

General topic: Amos Denounces Sin. (World's Temperance Sunday.)

Scripture lesson: Amos 2:4-12.

4. Thus saith Jehovah: For three transgressions of Judah, yea, for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they have rejected the law of Jehovah, and have not kept his statutes, and their lies have caused them to err after which their fathers did walk.

5. But I will send a fire upon Judah, and it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem.

6. Thus saith Jehovah: For three transgressions of Israel, yea, for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof; because they have sold the righteous for silver and the needy for a pair of shoes.

7. They that pant after the dust of the earth on the head of the poor, and turn aside the way of the meek; and a man and his father go unto the same maiden, to profane my holy name:

8. And they lay themselves down beside every altar upon clothes taken in pledge; and in the house of their God they drink the wine of such as have been fined.

9. Yet destroyed I the Amorites before them, whose height was like the height of the cedars, and he was strong as the oaks; yet I destroyed his fruit from above, and his hoots from beneath.

10. Also I brought you up out of the land of Egypt, and led you forty years in the wilderness to possess the land of the Amorite.

11. And I raised up of your sons for prophets, and of your young men for Nazarites. Is it not even thus, O ye children of Israel? saith Jehovah.

12. But ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink, and commended the prophets, saying, Prophecy not.

Time: Amos prophesied about 793 B. C.

Place: Amos lived in Tekoa, south of Bethlehem, in Judah, but he prophesied in Bethel, an important city in southern Israel.

Golden Text: "Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live; and so Jehovah, the God of hosts, will be with you, as ye say."—Amos 5:14.

INTRODUCTION

"The opening of the Book of Amos is a series of prophetic judgments on the nations for their wickedness. These judgments begin with far-away Damascus, the oldest city of the world, the capital of Syria. Next they sweep to the Philistine capital of Gaza on the west, the ancient foe of Israel. Turning northward again, the fiery sentences attack Tyre, the great commercial city which stands for Phoenicia. Leaping south once more, the prophecy assails Edom, below the Dead Sea, and predicts terrible disasters there. He has now passed in a survey of condemnation all the neighbors of Palestine, lashing them for their wickedness and foretelling the woe which the Infinite Judge will bring upon them. There remain only his own country Judah, and the land in which the prophet was speaking, Israel. To these, with superb daring, he next directs his attention.

The Transgressions of Judah, v. 4

"For three transgressions of Judah, yea for four." It is not meant that Judah's sins are literally four, but that Judah has healed up the measure of iniquity; if any one names three sins the nation has committed, yet another may be added to the terrible list. "I will not turn away the punishment thereof." This is, he will allow the deserved punishment to fall upon them, because the nation will have gone so far in sin that it will not repent. "Because they have rejected the law of Jehovah, and have not kept his statutes." God's commands, written in His Book, and spoken by His prophets, have been contemptuously rejected, as if men could pass upon the divine ordinances. Law enforcement is ever the fundamental need and a reverential obedience to God's law is the first requirement to be emphasized by wise religious education.

"A Fire Upon Judah," v. 3

"I will send a fire upon Judah." This threat was fulfilled a century and a half later, when the Shaldeans captured Judah. During that time the warning was often repeated, and the people were constantly implored to avoid by repentance the coming calamity, but instead their wickedness grew worse and worse until the cup of their iniquity was full. "And it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem." When Nebuchadnezzar captured Jerusalem he "burnt the house of Jehovah, and the king's house; and all the houses of Jerusalem, even every great house, burnt, he fire." (II Kings, 26:9.)

The Prophets of Israel, v. 11

"And I raised up of your sons for prophets." When we speak of the prophets we are likely to think solely of Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and the twelve so-called "minor" prophets; but Moses was the greatest of all prophets and Samuel was second only to him. Nathan was an influential prophet, Elijah and Elisha were perhaps the most majestic of all the prophets, and there were also Gad, Ahijah, Shemaiah, Jehu the son of Hanani, and Nijah the son of Imiah, prophets all of them, not to speak of the prophetesses and the large companies of unnamed "sons of the prophets."

Israel's Punishment for Sin, 2:13

The remainder of the chapter, and the next chapter, are spent in detailing the punishments that are to fall upon Israel for the sins of the people. Drawing, as he was wont, a metaphor from his farm life, Amos declares that the nation is to be pressed by foes as the heavy load of sheaves presses down on the cart that carries it. Attacked by the violent enemy, flight is to perish from the swift, Israel's strongest warriors are to fling aside whatever can hinder and to flee naked. Drawing another comparison from pastoral life, Amos asks, "The lion hath roared; who will not fear? The Lord Jehovah hath spoken; who can but prophesy?" Again Amos paints a picture from his shepherd experiences; a lion has fallen upon the flock and the shepherd brings to his master two legs of a piece of an ear, all that is left of a slaughtered sheep, and such pitiful, bleeding fragments alone will be left of Israel after her foes are through with her, "And I will smite the winter-house with the summer-house and the houses of ivory shall perish, and the great houses shall have an end, saith Jehovah. It is a terrible scene of desolation, and all the inevitable and just result of the people's sin."

Benefits of Prohibition

"There is probably less violation of the liquor law today than we have had in America for 140 years. Forty-nine fiftieth of all the property that was engaged in the manufacture and sale of liquor is now used for other purposes. Nineteen-twentieths of all the people who used to be engaged in the sale of liquor are now employed in other trades. We hear more about one bootlegger with a single bottle of whiskey in his pocket than we used to hear of the wide open saloons plying their trade night and day and all through Sundays in violation of law.

"To have outlawed the liquor traffic is alone a vindication of prohibition. It has removed organized and legalized temptation from the pathway of the young, the weak, the habit-bound. The most appetite-cursed drunkard can walk the streets of any American city today sober if he will. Millions of excessive drinkers have stopped. They bring their pay checks to their wife every Saturday, and instead of going out to the saloon and drinking and bawling it away alone, they go down with mother and the children to do their shopping, and through the stores of Saturday afternoons.

"Prohibition saved America from what came as a crash upon every other country; and that financial advantage ought to be remembered to the credit of the Eighteenth Amendment."

The Sure Penalties of Sin

"Misery follows sin; sin itself is misery; and the soul that sinneth dies of course, without any means taken to put that soul to death."

"No sin is small. It is a sin against an infinite God, and may have consequence immeasurable. No grain of sand is small in the mechanism of a watch."

"That is the hardest of all,—to wear the yoke of our own wrong doing."

"And, oh, when the whirlwind of passion is raging,

When sin in our hearts its wild warfare is waging,

Then send down thy grace, thy redeemer to cherish;

Rebuke the destroyer; 'Save, Lord or we perish.'—Heber.

Izaak Waltons to Conduct Campaign Next in the West

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—The next major campaign of the Izaak Walton League of America for definite and constructive conservation of wild life will be in the West, it was announced today by national officers of the league.

The campaign will be officially opened from Denver October 31 over KOA radio station to all Westerners to enlist on the side of humanity and of the future of Western duck shooting.

The ducks of the Bear River Marshes in Utah, and in other localities throughout the inter-mountain region, have been dying by the millions in recent years from alkali poisoning, and it is the intention of the Walton League to step in at once and push through remedial measures which will save these ducks, according to the announcement.

This is the third major campaign of the Walton League to be undertaken during the past five years. The first was the creation of the Upper Mississippi River Wild Life and Fish Refuge, 300 miles long and comprising the bottom lands of the Mississippi river from Lake Pepin, Minn., to Rock Island, Illinois. The second, well known to Westerners was the purchase and setting aside of the Walton League Winter Elk in Jackson's Hole, Wyoming.

That the third major issue should develop in the West was a surprise to Westerners, but it was pointed out by League officials that the entire force and power of the national organization must be thrown into those sections which need help the most, and it was decided by League conservationists that the Western duck situation was the outstanding example of the need of immediate action.

Lion Says Begging in City Should Be Regulated

Pointing out that many other cities are now launching drives for community chests or other charity plans, Ivey Duncan, toastmaster, urged members of the Lions club yesterday to consider a similar drive for Pampa.

Mr. Duncan called attention to the fact that much begging is now going on in the city, and that the burden is not evenly distributed. There is also the question of the worthiness of some of the cases, while others are perhaps not done justice.

The Lions club also took steps to greatly increase its membership. President H. Otto Studer announced the formation of the following new committees:

- Membership—Ivey Duncan, Bert Curry, Biggs Horn.
- Entertainment—Tom Brabham, P. B. Carlson, Tom Ashby.
- Ways and Means—J. M. McDonald, C. W. McMillan, Frank Catterton.
- Publicity—M. A. Turner, McGarity, Porter Malone.

Constitution and By-Laws—Bill Fraser, Marvin Lewis, W. A. Bratton.

Civic welfare—F. P. Reid, Carol Kingsbery, C. L. Tanner.

Fellowship—John Willis, Jack Gatton.

Local Editor—Olin E. Hinkle.

TRUCE ENDS BATTLE TO CONTROL IN ARTIFICIAL SILK

An agreement signed by Dr. Henri Dreyfuss (left), chairman of British Celanese, Ltd., and Capt. Alfred Lowenstein (right), chairman of the International Holdings and Investment company, has ended a commercial battle between the two big artificial silk firms.

LONDON—One of the bitterest international money wars in the history of militant finance, in which millions of British pounds were arrayed against tens of millions of Belgian francs, has come to an end.

An agreement has been signed between Dr. Henri Dreyfuss, chairman of British Celanese, Ltd., the famous artificial silk firm, and Captain Alfred Lowenstein, chairman of the International Holdings and Investment Company. Captain Lowenstein is the Belgian financier who offered to lend the Belgian Government $50,000,000,000.

For months these great companies, which control the making of the majority of the world's artificial silk have been opponents in the courts and on the stock market.

The conflict began when Dr. Dreyfuss obtained complete financial control of British Celanese. He dismissed the three directors who were nominated to the board by International Holdings. He was likewise preparing to launch a legal offensive to test the royalty agreement by which British Celanese had to pay a percentage on all sales to the Belgian firm.

By the terms of the peace settlement, the present royalty agreement, will terminate, and the royalties payable to International will be capitalized.

At a meeting of the board of international it was unanimously agreed that the assets of the company, including royalty agreements, should be sold to a company to be registered with the same name in Canada.

International waived its right to appoint three directors to British Celanese offered no objection to the sale of the royalty agreement to the new Canadian company.

Shows Water Colors of French War Areas

NEW YORK—From the shelter of an English garden beside a thousand year old castle to activity in the devastated France during the rehabilitation days is only one adventure in the life of Mary Elwars, noted English painter, whose water-colors of France, are on exhibition at the Anderson Galleries.

Miss Elwars' ancestry includes a knight of King Stephen's time who built the tower of Dunster Castle, a governor of the Tower of London who lost his head protecting a prisoner of state from a poison plot, a voyager who sent around the world with Captain Cook and a grandmother who sketched out of doors until over 80. She herself served as a Red Cross nurse during the war and for ten months after the armistice ministered to refugees in the devastated areas.

During that time she made many sketches in the villages and on the battlefields. When she returned to London she included them in an exhibition which was visited by many well known persons, including Queen Mary, who purchased one of the garden pictures.

IT'S COMING CAT and the CANARY

Iceland Awakens, Plans First Railroad

REYKJAVIK, Iceland—The little northern kingdom of Iceland has taken on a new lease of life, after being in the doldrums for years after the war, and it has begun to formulate plans for building its first railroad and for celebrating in 1930 the millenary of the Althing, claimed to be the world's oldest democratic parliament.

Tentative plans include the building of a national theatre in Reykjavik, the capital, and the erection of a church on the Thingyalla as memorials to the foresightedness of the intrepid pioneers of a thousand years ago.

There is a difference of opinion as to certain religious aspects of the event, but history records that it was in 930 that the principal peasants and traders of the country assembled to determine upon a faith as against the Pagan Wod cult. The outcome was the Christianity was unanimously accepted. Althing, meaning a national or preme "thing," or council, resulted from this. Seventy years afterward the Icelanders discovered the mainland of the new world, Vinland the Good.

Premier Elect Tholakksson, formerly a country parson, is now editor of the Timinn, Reykjavik's leading newspaper.

In addition to consideration of the proposed railway and automobile roads, the new government is also confronted with the task of stabilizing the currency, of harnessing the numerous waterfalls, and the long contemplated project of utilizing for domestic and industrial purposes the geysers of Iceland's famous hot water springs.

THE BUNK—Mayor Thompson before his election in Chicago promised to "get" William McAndrew, superintendent of schools. The long expected effort is under way, and absurdities abound as might have been expected.

McAndrew has been suspended, and brought to trial on a charge of insubordination. The charge: "The English lion talks through our schools and libraries, eager to turn our patriotism to love for Great Britain and thereby annex this country as its own—and Supt. McAndrew is responsible for poisoning of Chicago textbooks with pro-British toxin."

Mayor Thompson has gone further with his spectacular absurdity, commissioning a former stage hand to read all the histories and confiscate all in which objectionable matter is found. The censor said he was going to make a big bonfire of the tainted books, but appears that decree will not be tolerated.

The public has been fed some crude untruths through the old method of picking partial quotations. For example, the public was told that one history contained the statement: "The capital of Massachusetts was the seat of vulgar sedition."

A strong statement that, and one that sounded treasonable in connection with the charge that Great Britain is spending money to insert her propaganda in American textbooks. As a matter of fact, however, the entire statement read "To George III's eyes the capital of Massachusetts was a center of vulgar sedition."

Major Colbert, editor of the Sweetwater Reporter and close follower of history and military developments, takes a firm stand in opposition to the ultra-Americanism urged in my quarters. He says:

"There is no doubt that many of our school histories are inaccurate and many could be better written. Some few are deliberately biased and give the children wrong conceptions, but if anything, all of the histories glorify our heroes too much rather than too little."

"One of the worst faults of the American public is its self-satisfaction. A certain amount of self confidence is highly admirable in any individual or people, but we as a nation pat ourselves on the back too much in every way. We are brought up to believe we excel in everything, and that the manner of doing things in other countries is wrong unless it is done as we do it. As a matter of fact, we could take valuable pointers from other nations on many things if we would just admit it. Little Holland, in particular, can show us cards and spades any day in the dairy business and it is common knowledge that most European farmers get more out of the soil per acre than we even think of doing."

"When it comes to political history, we as a nation think we are unsurpassed. This thought has cost us dearly. Our histories teach us that we have gone into our various wars with banners flying, almost without committing a mistake, and have come out gloriously victorious. As a matter of fact, we have stumbled through all our wars, making one gross blunder after another at the cost of thousands upon thousands of lives, and often have been victorious in the end through a combination of circumstances that have included luck and our vast resources, which have enabled us to hang on despite reverses until we could obtain victories."

Probably the general public will differ, but Major Colbert believes we should eat a little humble pie and not go on encouraging overconfidence. Preparedness is rarely based upon a wrong sense of security.

HIS POLICY—Daniel Willard became president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad many years ago. At that time that road was in none too good a condition. It was looked upon then, according to a writer in the Nation, as a tumbledown and disreputable road. It was the butt of vaudeville jokes and the target of newspaper attacks.

But Mr. Willard had some ideas on railroads. He stopped all advertising, as it is stated, "until such time as the passenger service of the railroad was brought to the point where it deserved to be advertised."

He introduced the slogan, "Safety above everything else." He introduced another slogan, the "Will to please," which has not become the guiding spirit of the employees of the B. & O. system. He introduced the "good neighbor" policy, which meant that any superintendent could bring the resources of the road to bear for relief in any emergency of fire or flood without awaiting approval from above.

He introduced a plan for encouraging shop employees to make suggestions for the betterment of the service which resulted in 18,000 suggestions in four years, many of which were adopted and which effected a saving of $3,000,000. Half of that sum was returned to the employees in increased wages.

Summing up in one statement his policy of railroading, Mr. Willard says: "I am anxious that the Baltimore & Ohio employees should at all times be courteous in their relations with the public and with each other, and that they should make every reasonable effort to operate the trains safely and on time. I would like also to have constant and helpful co-operation toward improving the operation of the property in such ways as may be possible—not, however, because they feel obliged to do so, but just because they want to do so."

Mr. Willard took the "tumbledown" railroad. He put his policies into effect. The B. & O. is now one of the best and one of the biggest railroads in the United States.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
N.E.A. Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The news that Gene Tunney, the genteel-prize-fighter, had conceived the idea about becoming an ambassador after he retires undefeated from the ring at the age of 35, aroused considerable interest at the Department of State.

Secretary Kellogg and Under-secretary Olds being absent, other officials would not allow their names to be used in commenting upon this unexpected compliment which Mr. Tunney had paid the diplomatic profession.

It almost appeared as if some of these gentlemen didn't take the idea very seriously. This was rather puzzling, for, as everyone knows, the very best people have patronized the intellectual Mr. Tunney, and many of our very best people are right here in the State Department.

One official was unkind enough to point out that the lowest grade of the foreign service has about 20 vacancies a year for which there are some 200 applicants. The applicants must take written, oral and physical examinations and it was admitted that Mr. Tunney ought easily to pass the physical examination. If he were lucky enough to obtain an appointment he would go on the payroll at $2,400 a year and spend six or eight months in the Foreign Service school before being shipped off as a vice consul at Belize or Karachi.

Mr. Tunney, however, undoubtedly would depend upon a presidential appointment, for the way up through the ranks is long and arduous.

TWINKLES

Well, since the "best" teams can't beat the Harvesters, we will have to keep out a sharp eye for dark horses, if any.

It is all right to respect an opponent, but it appeared that Miami's respect went a little too far, and the neighbor boys let the game slip before they knew it. Expecting things, they soon saw them come to pass.

Some people pray at their enemies every time they pray for themselves. Think it over.

They have invented noiseless street cars, but they shouldn't have—New Yorkers have defended their noise until they like it.

These scientists just will tear up our fancies; now they say courage is not a matter of sand, but of glucose.

At least it never can be said that the designers of women's clothing aren't giving every chance to the "survival of the fittest" idea.

It seems President Coolidge called in Senator Fess to explain that what he meant when he said he "did not choose to run" was that he "did not choose to run."

We know that the new Ford is going to be. A barber from Detroit told us. It will be a copy of the Rolls-Royce, the only difference being that it will either fold stack or flatten into a space where no Rolls-Royce could squeeze.

her stamp always wears her jewels when she desires to make an impression on strangers. Moreover, she's the kind that would have jewelry even if the larder was empty. It was therefore merely a question of getting her to talk.

"On the whole, you did very well," observed Markham.

Vance gave him a condescending bow.

"Sir Hubert is too generous—But tell me, didn't my little chat with the lady cast a gleam into your darkened mind?"

"Naturally," said Markham. "I'm not utterly obtuse. She played unconsciously into your hands. She believed Pfyfe did not arrive in New York until the morning after the murder, and therefore told us quite frankly that she had phoned him that Benson had the jewels at home."

"The situation now is, Pfyfe knew they were in Benson's house, and was there himself at about the time the shot was fired. Furthermore, the jewels are gone; and Pfyfe tried to cover up his tracks that night."

Vance sighed hopelessly.

"Markham, there are altogether too many trees for you in this case. You simply can't see the forest, y' know, because of 'em."

"There is the remot possibility that you are so busily engaged in looking at one particular tree that you are unaware of the others."

A shadow passed over Vance's face.

"I wish you were right," he said.

It was nearly half past one, and we dropped into the Fountain Room of the Ansonia Hotel for lunch.

Markham was preoccupied throughout the meal, and when we entered the subway later, he looked uneasily at his watch.

"I think I'll go on down to Wall Street and call on the Major a moment before returning to the office. I can't understand his asking Miss Hoffman not to mention the package to me. . . . It might not have contained the jewels, after all."

"Do you imagine for one moment," rejoined Vance, "that Alvin told the Major the truth about the package? It was not a very creditable transaction, y' know; and the Major most likely would have given him what-for."

Major Benson's explanation bore out Vance's surmise. Markham, in telling him of the interview with Paula Banning, emphasized the jewel episode in the hope that the Major would voluntarily mention the package for his promise to Miss Hoffman prevented him from admitting that he was aware of the other's knowledge concerning it.

The Major listened with considerable astonishment, his eyes gradually growing angry.

"I'm afraid Alvin deceived me," he said. He looked straight ahead for a moment, his face softening. "And I don't like to think it, now that he's gone. But the truth is, when Miss Hoffman told me this morning about the envelope, she also mentioned a small parcel that had been in Alvin's private safe-drawer; and I asked her to omit any reference to it from her story to you."

"I knew the parcel contained Mrs. Banning's jewels, but I thought the fact would only confuse matters if brought to your attention. You see, Alvin told me that a judgment had been taken against Mrs. Banning, and that, just before the supplementary proceedings, Pfyfe had brought her jewels here and asked him to sequester them temporarily in his safe."

On our way back to the Criminal Courts building Markham took Vance's arm and smiled.

"Your guessing luck is holding out, I see."

"Rather!" agreed Vance. "It would appear that the late Alvin, like Warren Hastings, resolved to die in the last dyke of pervervication."

"In any event," replied Markham, "the Major has unconsciously added another link in the chain against Pfyfe."

"You seem to be making a collection of chains," commented Vance drily. "What have you done with the ones you forged about Miss St. Clair and Leacock?"

"I haven't entirely discarded them—if that's what you think," asserted Markham gravely.

When we reached the office Sergeant Heath was awaiting us with a geatific grin.

"It's all over, Mr. Markham," he announced. "This noon, after you'd gone, Leacock came here looking for you. When he found you were out he phoned headquarters, and they connected him with me. He wanted to see me—very important, he said; so I hurried over."

"He was sitting in the waiting-room when I came in, and he called me over and said: 'I came to give myself up. I killed Benson. I got him to dictate a confession to Swacker, and then he signed it. Here it is.' He handed Markham a typewritten sheet of paper."

Markham sank wearily into a chair. The strain of the past few days had begun to tell on him. He sighed heavily.

"Thank God! Now our troubles are ended."

Vance looked at him lugubriously, and shook his head.

"I rather fancy, y' know, that your troubles are only beginning," he drawled.

When Markham had glanced through the confession he handed it to Vance, who read it carefully with an expression of growing amusement.

"Y' know," he said, "this document isn't at all legal. Any judge worthy the name would throw it precipitately out of court. It's far too simple and precise. It doesn't begin with 'greetings'; it doesn't contain a single 'wherefore-be-it' or 'be-it-known' or 'do-hereby'; it says nothing about 'free will' or 'sound mind' or 'dispositin' mem'ry'; and the Captain doesn't once refer to himself as 'the party of the first part'. . . . Utterly worthless, Sergeant. If I were you, I'd chuck it."

Bookmaker Serves As English Mayor

STAFFORD, England—Alderman Tom Richardson, head of the municipal government of Stafford, is the only bookmaker-mayor in England.

For 20 years he has been a familiar figure at Ascot and all Midland and Northern race meetings, taking bets.

Bookmaking, forbidden in America, is permitted and taxed in England.

The bookmaker-mayor dashes back and forth from race tracks to Stafford in a big car. In the first eight months of his mayoralty he fulfilled 834 engagements. Yet he does it all for the honor of it, since there is no salary attached to the position, and he says he has spent $10,000 during his first term of office.

Rosy Glow Is Harmful to Eyes Says Only Lamp Expert in U. S.

NEW YORK—Lamps should suit the personality just as glasses the eyes, suggests Bernice Bowser, one of the few women lamp experts in the United States. All her life Mrs. Bowser has been interested in lighting effects, and for six years has bought and sold lamps for many department stores. She is also equipped with a highly specialized electrical knowledge.

The obstacle Mrs. Bowser finds hardest to overcome is the general belief on the beauty of rose colored lamp shades. For most people, she says, the rosy glow gives a pleasant aspect to a room, whereas it is very harmful to the eyes and not conducive to work or recreation.

Many men have complained to her that their homes were so suffused with red that their nervous systems were affected. Thousands of such cases convinced Mrs. Bowser that people could be made happier by better lighting. She is exhibiting some of her lighting effects at the sixth annual Exposition of Woman's Arts and Industries, held in New York.

Little Want Ad Brings 75 Replies

Daily News want ads are little business magnets.

There is a special rate on them for three insertions, but many people find one or two publications more than sufficient. In fact, many are more anxious to have them stopped than they were to place them in the first place.

The reason? Daily News want ads get results. An example: A Pampa woman had a house to rent. She inserted a want ad in hopes of renting the property. Seventy-five replies were received in the next 24 hours, and others kept piling up. No wonder she asked that the ad be taken out.

You too, can profit by using the Daily News' big circulation—a circulation that is supreme in its news and business interest. It's available every day.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Vance eliminates Miss St. Clair as suspect and prevents Markham from arresting Leacock when Pfyfe's statements strengthen the case against the captain. It is brought out that Pfyfe had forged Alvin Benson's name to a check. Paula Banning admits to Vance that she had loaned her jewels to Pfyfe to put up with Benson as security.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XL

(Wednesday, June 19; 1 p. m.)

When we were again outside Markham asked:

"How in heaven's name did you know she had put up her jewels to help Pfyfe?"

"My charming metaphysical deductions, don't y' know," answered Vance. "As I told you, Benson was not the open-handed, big-hearted altruist who would have lent money without security; and certainly the impetuous Pfyfe had no collateral worth $10,000 or he wouldn't have forged the check. Ergo: someone lent him the security."

"Now, who would be so trusting to lend Pfyfe that amount of security except a sentimental woman who was blind to his amazing defects? Y' know I was just evil-minded enough to suspect there was a Galypso in the life of this Udysses when he told us of stopping over in New York to murmur au revoir to someone."

"When a man like Pfyfe fails to specify the sex of a person, it is safe to assume the feminine gender. So I suggested that you send a Paul Pry to Port Washington to peer into his trans-matrimonial activities; I felt certain a boane amie would be found. Then, when the mysterious package, which obviously was the security, seemed to identify itself as the box of jewels seen by the inquisitive housekeeper, I said to myself: 'Ah! Leander's misguided Dulcinea has lent him her gawgaws to save him from the yawning dungeon.'

"Nor did I overlook the fact that he had been shielding someone in his explanation about the check. Therefore, as soon as the lady's name and address were learned by Tracy, I made the appointment for you."

We were passing the Gothic-Renaissance Schwab residence which extends from West End avenue to Riverside drive at Seventy-third street; and Vance stopped for a moment to contemplate it.

Markham waited patiently. At length Vance talked on:

"I know, the moment I saw Mrs. Banning I knew my conclusions were correct. She was a sentimental soul, and just the sort of professional good sport who would have handed over her jewels to her amorous

Harvesters Run Over Miami Warriors Friday, 37-6

BREAKS HELP RUN UP SCORE

Fumble is Recovered Behind Pampa Goal

By impressive opening up an offensive which startled their opponents, the Pampa Harvesters early put away the football game with Miami Friday, and emerged the victors, 37 to 6.

With the wind to their backs, the Harvesters hit viciously and often, following the ball and taking advantage of every break. The quarter ended 19 to 0 in favor of Pampa, and the locals kept right on to end the half at 31 to 0.

The Warriors of Miami hich came back fighting in the second half, and by hard, low plunging pierced the Pampa line for long gains, but their only score was on Walstad's fumble, which was recovered behind his own goal.

Walstad kicked off with the wind and Cunningham was downed on his 20-yard line. Following three unsuccessful line plays Cunningham, the Miami captain, kicked to Walstad. On the first play Walstad went around left end for 22 yards and the first first down of the game. The second came on the next three plays when Pampa made 14 yards on plays by Maness, Carlton and Roberts. Walstad went around right end for 6 yards, to be followed by Roberts who went over for a touchdown. The extra point was not added.

Walstad Adds One
The kick-off Keeney fumbled on his 10-yard line, Walstad recovering the ball and on most spectacular run of the game went across for a touchdown, but a kick for the extra point failed in the heavy wind.

Miami again fumbled on the kick off and Herlacher recovered on the 9 yard line but on the next play Maness lost the ball on a fumble. Miami made a first down on four line plays but had to boot on the next fourth down. Walstad took the ball on the Miami 35 yard line and again ran it for a touchdown. He added the extra point on a drop kick, as the quarter ended.

Still Another
On the first play in the second quarter, Kahl intercepted a forward pass and ran it to the Miami 10-yard line before being downed. On the next play Walstad made the necessary 10 yards for a touchdown, but failed to kick the extra point.

Seitz was substituted for Mason. Miami tried line plunges, but was thrown for losses twice in a row by Stalls, who was going through the line. Christopher went in for Cravey. Miami kicked on the next play and Carlton recovered for a gain. Walstad and Maness made 35 yards on four plays when Walstad fumbled but recovered. Roberts then made 18 yards through right tackle and was followed by the only completed forward pass of the day when Clayton took Walstad's pass and made 16 yards. Green followed with a 2-yard plunge for another touchdown.

Former Pampa Good
Duncan, a former member of the Harvesters team replaced Shelton in the backfield and the Miami attack became stronger immediately. Bishop replaced Seitz in the Pampa line. Duncan made 7 yards on the first play and on the next five line plunges Cunningham, Duncan and Byers made 35 yards and had the ball on the Pampa 35-yard line at half time, with the score Pampa 31 and Miami 0.

On the kick off Carlton lost the ball in the sun and Miami recovered on the Pampa 25 yard line. Three line plays brought the ball to the Pampa 16 yard line and Cunningham attempted to drop one over but Stalls broke through and broke up the kick recovering the ball on his 32-yard line. Miami took a 10 yard penalty for roughing and was warned. Pampa tried two forward passes and was penalized 5 yards.

Punt Is Blocked
Keeney broke through and smothered Walstad's punt, which he recovered on the Pampa 33-yard line. Miami made and lost 8 yards on two plays and then kicked to Walstad who fumbled. Walstad then proceeded to kick the ball over his goal line and Keeney fell on it for a touchdown, but failed to add the extra point.

Punts exchanged and on an attempted forward pass Cunningham to Keeney Roberts got between and took the ball 5 yards, but Pampa lost it when Walstad booted to the Miami 8 yard line as the quarter ended.

After Cunningham had kicked to Walstad Pampa started a march down the field. Walstad, Roberts and Maness, the latter carrying the

BILLY EVANS Says

Survival of Fittest

The business of being a football coach for one of our leading universities is anything but a soft job.

With the terrific overhead that goes with the modern football stadium, it is almost a necessity that the coach turn out a winner each year if he is to get financial as well as artistic results.

A poor team means empty seats and since football takes care of all other major sports, as well as intramural athletics, the football coach carries many added responsibilities.

Aside from the failure to produce big financial returns to take care of the stadium overhead as well as the other sports that lose money, there is also the wall of the undergraduates and the roar of the disgruntled alumni to face.

This football coaching business has reached the stage where it is a survival of the fittest, with big names going into the discard annually.

Jones Winning at Yale

Prior to the opening of the present season, Tad Jones of Yale tendered his resignation to take effect at the close of the season. Apparently Jones had decided he wasn't satisfying some of the critical as well as more prominent alumni.

When Georgia defeated Yale in the first game of the year, it created the feeling that possibly Jones knowing what he was up against, beat the wall for his retirement by his early resignation.

Then came a victory over Brown, followed by a glorious triumph over the much vaunted Army team. Which ball 18 yards, made 27 yards. Roberts followed with 9 yards more when Clayton and Stalls were injured. Both players were able to continue in the game, but Stalls was groggy for the rest of the period. Roberts made a necessary 2 yards through center for another and the last touchdown of the game.

Hardin Goes In
Hardin was substituted for Roberts, and on the first two plays carried the ball 9 yards. Walstad booted and Miami commenced a series of line plunges that carried them nearly 50 yards up the field. Gatlin, Duncan and Cunningham carried the ball for three first downs and had the ball on the Pampa 30-yard line when the whistle blew.

Roberts and Walstad were the big ground gainers for the Harvesters and were ably assisted by Maness whenever he took the ball. Carlton was not being used much on the offensive, but played a great defensive game. Captain Herlacher was going through the line regularly, although two Miami men were looking after the 200-pound Pampa captain. Stalls and Kahl played heads up games in the line along with the rest of the local linemen who showed up well against the heavy Miami team.

Duncan Is Star
Duncan, after he went into the game, was the big man on the Miami team. Cunningham and Gatlin were heavy ground gainers and are the type of players who put their heads down and hit the line hard. They repeatedly went through the Pampa line on headlong drives which netted yards. Keeney played a nice game in the line as did Cravey and Wells.

The line-up:
PAMPA (37) SAULSBURY, le. STALLS, lt. KENNEDY, lg. KAHL, c. MASON, rg. HERLACHER, rt (C) CLAYTON, rs. MANESS, lh. CARLTON, rh. ROBERTS, fb. WALSTAD, q. CUNNINGHAM, q. (C) PAMPA substitutes—Hardin, Bishop, Seitz, Green, Mullen Barnett, H. Ayres, J. Ayres, Robinson, Benton and Jones.

Miami substitutes—Duncan, Christopher, Kinney, Davis, Seitz, Bailey and Kennedy.
Officials—Retree—DeFord (E. T. S. N. Commerce) Umpire—Flacey.

Makes it seem that Yale is in for a pretty good year after all. If such proves to be the case, football fandom, as fickle as any other variety, will, no doubt be asking Jones to reconsider and continue as head coach at Yale.

It would be a great year for Jones if he could top off the season with victories over Princeton and Harvard.

Two Big Disappointments
East, west, south and north, there is the same clamor for the heads of the various football coaches, who are not delivering as it is believed they should.

Ohio State, with most of last year's stars back, figured on a good season and hoped for the Big Ten title. Early defeats by Northwestern and Michigan have ruined all chances. Dr. John Wilce, head coach, is now the target for much criticism.

In the east last year, Brown and its much touted "Iron Men" were the sensation of the country. Coach Tuss McLaughry was being hailed as the miracle man of football.

Much the same Brown team of 1927 has already been thrice defeated, the worst blow being a trimming at the hands of the almost unknown Lebanon Valley College team. McLaughry is now experiencing the bitter woes of a loser after the glory of a winner.

Football coaches cannot make tackles on the field, run the ends, buck the line or throw forward passes, but they are held responsible for the failure of their players to do those things.

Letter Machines Do All Except Posting

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK—A new automatic office appliance placed on the market recently eliminates about everyone except the postman in handling office correspondence.

The device weighs a letter, determines and affixes the postage and seals the envelope. Its use in conjunction with older machines which write the address, salutation, facsimile signature and even a portion of the letter itself, and then fold the letter and place it in the envelope, leaves only the postman to do his stuff by hand.

The machines, however, are too fast and too expensive for use except in offices having voluminous outgoing mail.

NEW YORK—The passing of Walter Perry Johnson from baseball's big tent after 21 years of active service with the Washington Senators closes a career of noteworthy achievement which promises to stand for some time to come.

Although there is many a good game left in Johnson's strong right arm, the "Big Train" requested his release because he felt that it would be only a short while before he would be "forced to stand aside. He will celebrate his fortieth birthday anniversary November 6.

During his fifth of a century in baseball, spent entirely with Washington, Johnson won 414 games and lost 275. His biggest season was 1913 when he recorded 36 victories against seven setbacks.

"Barney" holds the record for most pitching years in one of the big leagues, also for most games pitched and most games won in either major circuit. His American League career was rounded out with 3,494 strikeouts which is also a record performance of its kind. Another mark credited to Johnson is shutouts pitched, 113.

The feat of leading the American League most years-in games won likewise is held by Johnson. He headed the parade through six campaigns which was equaled by Grover Cleveland in the National. Alexander led his circuit five years with the Phillies and one season with the Cubs.

Johnson tops the list for pitching the greatest number of consecutive shutout innings, 56, made over a period stretching from April 10 to May 14, 1913.

While Johnson had several big winning streaks, his longest was 16 during the 1912 campaign. That mark was tied during the same season by Joe Wood of the Red Sox. Rube Marquard holds the best performance of consecutive victories in modern baseball with 19, which oddly, was made in 1912 also.

There were many unusual incidents contributed by Johnson. In 1924, he pitched a one-hit shutout game against Chicago, striking out 14 batsmen, six in succession. Back in 1910, Sir Walter struck out three pinch hitters in succession against the Athletics. Opposing the same club later on, Johnson retired his opponents on three pitched balls in one inning. He repeated the latter feat against the Browns. He once shut out the Yankees in three straight games but not on successive days.

Johnson had one no-hit, no-run contest, scored against the Red Sox in 1920, the Senators triumphing by 1 to 0.

Born in Humboldt, Kan., the "Big Train" stepped into the majors from the Weiser, Idaho, semi-pro team, in 1907. He took a berth with Washington as a free agent and on trial. His first contract with the Senators was reported to have called for a salary slightly exceeding $2,000.

Johnson was voted the most valuable player in the American League for 1924. After pitching for 17 years, his first world series opportunity came the same year. Then, opposing the Giants as a relief hurler in the deciding game of the series, he received credit for the victory first which also gave Washington its first world championship, after he had been beaten twice previously in the series.

Mrs. Joe Smith, who has been ill for the past few days, is improving but will be confined to her home for several days.

Has Two Medals

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—Only five years old and yet a swimming wonder and the wearer of two hero medals is Palm Tippy. Palm won his medals by rescuing a baby and a boy larger than himself.

The youngster was born on a Mississippi houseboat. He learned to swim almost as soon as he learned to walk. He was reading when only three years old, and by special permit entered school in Florida when he was four. He made two grades in his first year.

Palm's father is in charge of a beach at Lake Lure and the lad is the center of attraction for tourists. Bronzed by the sun, his bobbed hair bleached almost white, Palm spends most of his time in the lake.
