Legion Commander Says Liquor Amendment Failure

SPAFFORD IS FOR REPEAL IF NECESSARY

Asserts Constitution Is Suffering From Disregard

SPEAKS TO DALLAS GROUP

Law Should Be Upheld or Withdrawn He Believes

(By the Associated Press.)

DALLAS, Dec. 2.—The prohibition amendment either should be upheld or should be repealed, and it is not now being enforced, Edward Spafford, national commander of the American Legion, said here today.

The constitution will fail in all parts if it is allowed to fail in one, he said, "therefore I say challenge the eighteenth amendment if it is not going to be upheld."

Sharp Starts Big Brick Building to Cost About $25,000

Work started today on a $25,000 brick building on the corner north of the Thut-Saunders Motor company. It is being erected by Chas. H. Sharp, local contractor, who is gaining the reputation of being one of the strongest believers in the future of the city.

The building will be 100x100 feet in size, and entirely fireproof. It will be of brick, with steel lath, plastered walls, and steel posts. The foundation will be strong enough for the addition of another story if desired later. Completion is expected to be within 30 working days.

Several firms are anxious to obtain the leases on the floor space, but definite arrangements are pending.

General Summerall Avoids Subject of Housing Conditions in His Report

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The first annual report of Major General Charles P. Summerall as Chief of Staff of the Army, awaited with interest because of its possible remarks on army housing conditions, had no word to say on that subject.

As a matter of fact, the document, made public today by the War Department, is almost completely devoid of mention of any of the army problems involving budgetary questions.

In summarizing army conditions General Summerall said there had been "gradual progress toward the attainment of the desired peace-time effectiveness," he commented briefly, however, on the "promotion stagnation which leaves junior officers faced with the prospect of almost indefinite service with little if any promotion," adding the hope that studies underway would aid Congress in solving the problem.

The belief that the chief of staff might discuss the housing shortage of the army arose from the incident of last summer when he was recalled from the Pacific Coast by a White House order after he had delivered an address at San Diego on that subject. The General denied that he had made the remarks at-

Forbes Free

Col. Charles R. Forbes, former director of the Veterans' Bureau, is shown upon his release from the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., after serving a sentence for fraud in the awarding of contracts. Col. Forbes, a Harding appointee, declares he means to clear the former president's name of any stigma which may have resulted from his conviction.

Col. Charles R. Forbes, under whose administration of the United States veterans' bureau millions of dollars were alleged to have been wasted through graft and mismanagement, left the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., a confessed pauper.

Declaring he was unable to pay the $10,000 fine imposed in Chicago when he was sentenced to two years in prison for defrauding the government, Forbes elected to take a pauper oath and to spend 30 additional days in the penitentiary to satisfy the court's judgment.

Parole Denied
 Had the former director of the veterans bureau paid the fine he would have been freed October 27, at the expiration of his sentence. His term automatically was reduced 144 days for good behavior. A parole had been denied him.

YOUTH NEEDED FOR AVIATION, REPORT SHOWS

Physical Demands Are Above Those of Other Branches

MORE FLIERS IN ACUTE DEMAND

Promotion Blockade Is Hard on Morale of Service

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Further concrete evidence that aviation is an art that demands youth in its devotees stands out sharply in the first annual report rendered by F. Turbee Davison, assistant secretary for air in the War department. He related that air corps commissions are going begging for lack of youngsters to take them.

"There is still a shortage of commissioned personnel, caused chiefly by reason of the fact that fewer of other branches have applied for transfer to the air corps than expected, although the War department has made every effort to encourage such action," the report said. "Furthermore, a substantial number of those officers who did apply were unable to pass the physical examinations and complete the course in flying training.

"Experience has shown that transfers afford scant relief because the great majority of officers have reached ages beyond which few men learn to fly sufficiently well to be satisfactory service pilots. The type of personnel most valuable to the Air Corps is graduates of the United States Military Academy or of technical civil institutions of learning. Efforts are being made to interest his type in electing the Air Corps in the former case and in qualifying for examination in the other."

Nor is it merely youth that fills the bill, for Davidson says the ratio of graduates from army flying schools to the number of candidates who begin the training is discouragingly low. How to get more men qualified without lowering the standard of requirements forms a grave problem.

It now appears that certain changes in training methods themselves, combined with a more efficient selection of cadet personnel, will bring about the desired result," he added. "There is no doubt that important progress is being made in that regard."

Still another adverse condition in the corps affecting commissioned personnel is the post-war promotion blockade which the air secretary said results in lower efficiency because of its effect on morale. He deferred recommendations, however, pending completion of the promotion study for the entire army now in progress.

Amplifying the seriousness of the part that age plays in building up and maintaining adequate officer personnel for the air, the secretary said another on which he reserved recommendations was that of what to do with air officers "no longer fit to fly" because of age.

Robber Is Given 25-Year Penalty

CORSICANA, Dec. 2.—Dick Potter, charged with robbery with firearms in connection with the hold-up of the First State bank of Richland Oct. 12, entered a plea of guilty in district court here today and a jury assessed his punishment at 25 years in the penitentiary.

1927 Prosperity Gave Country High Living Standard, Hoover Says

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Economic progress during 1927 brought Americans to the highest material living standard this country or any other has ever known, Secretary Hoover declared today in his annual report to the President.

A situation of prosperity which he said "has now been characteristic of American industry for six years," was maintained, marred only by some continuing depression for a agriculture, and some backwardness in individual lines of industry.

Mr. Hoover's statistics showed a steady level of wholesale prices, declining slightly in recent months, maintenance of relatively large building construction programs; an increase in the operation of railroad transportation along with a bettered service to users; and a year of "sound but uneventful growth" in the banking field.

Foreign underwriting by Americans during the fiscal year exceeded that of any corresponding period in the history of the United States, the report said. Foreign capital securities privately taken, plus direct new investments abroad probably raised the total to $1,850,000,000 for the year. Financial reconstruction abroad continues on the whole to be encouraging.

Exports Below Increase
 "The value of American exports during the fiscal year 1926-27 was greater than that of any other fiscal year since 1920-21, and when account is taken of the much lower price level, as compared with the war years' trade, was the largest in our history," Mr. Hoover continued. "The value of imports was about 5 per cent less during the last fiscal year, but here again a fall in prices occurred after allowing for which there is a quantitative increase."

New construction undertaken in 1927, "amounting to some $7,000,000,000 in value, constituted a powerful factor in maintaining business activity and prosperity," Mr. Hoover added.

He paid high tribute to the management of American railroads, asserting that "the continued advance in the efficiency of the railways which has been going on since the war" had "reacted favorably upon the entire economic structure." The rapidity of freight transportation in the United States had increased since 1919 by 80 or 40 per cent.

Industry Expands
 In seeking out the cause of the material prosperity Mr. Hoover described, E. Dana Durand, of the department's bureau of statistical research, laid down the proposition that "extraordinary increase in the production of American industry during recent years" had most to do with a "corresponding advance in the standards of living."

"Between 1899 and 1925 the output of agricultural products increased about 47 per cent," Dr. Durand said, "that of mining about 248 per cent, and that of manufacturers about 178 per cent, while the volume of railway service increased by 199 per cent. Meanwhile population had grown only about 55 per cent, so that per capita output rose also by about 55 per cent."

"Even that comparison," it was added, "failed to measure fully the progress in production, since larger proportions of the country's population in recent years engaged in professional, mercantile, and service occupations, rather than in actual production."

"The true causes of the prosperity and economic progress of the country are not difficult to discern," Dr. Durand continued. "At the foundation lie the rich resources of the country, not taxed by an excessive population, and the energy, intelligence and skill of the people."

NO. 1 A. RILEY RUNNING WILD IN SOUTH POOL

Bit Drops Into a High Formation in the Bowers Area

STORAGE NOW BEING RUSHED

Operators No. 1 Jackson Likely Will Be in Tonight

Phillips Petroleum company's No. 1 A. Riley, section 88, block B-2 of the Bowers pool of Gray county unexpectedly encountered second pay while drilling last night, and today is running wild with a flow of about fifteen barrels of oil an hour and much gas.

Storage and pipeline connections are being rushed, while scores of interested spectators look on. The well gives indications of matching the other big wells nearby. While at 2,942 feet last night the bit suddenly hit pay and the flow started. Drilling in will be as soon as possible. The well is an offset to the Daneger No. 1 Jackson, and is across the Red River from the big Delaney gusher. The second pay is about 40 feet higher than the other wells struck, leading oil men to believe that this may be the biggest producer of the lot when the formations are fully tested.

The Operators No. 1 Jackson, nearby, is drilling ahead and may be brought in tonight. It has first pay at 2,836 feet.

Daneger et al's No. 2, which came in day before yesterday, today is maintaining its flow of more than 4,000 barrels daily.

Freight Shipping Shows Increase

A substantial increase in shipping from the Pampa freight department of the Santa Fe is announced for the month of November. Oil shipments showed the greatest increase of the month.

In all 2,100 car loads of oil were shipped from the Pampa loading racks for a total of 470,000 barrels. Increased production in the Pampa field has caused much of the added shipping from the local loading racks.

Ernest Bagenstos, former chief clerk of the Borger office of the Santa Fe, has been transferred to the Pampa office as chief clerk. Joe Tyler, whose place Mr. Bagenstos takes, is in charge of the new office at Skellytown.

C. of C. Directors To Discuss Roads in Meeting Tonight

Directors of the Chamber of Commerce will meet at 8 o'clock this evening. It has been announced.

One of the subjects to be discussed will be the Texas road situation. Manager Scott Barcus of the Chamber of Commerce attended the Southwest road conference in Fort Worth this week, and aspects of that meeting will be given in a report to the directors.

It is being proposed in Texas that four main roads be paved entirely across the state through a state-wide bond issue, and this question may be a political issue in the next election. Many see in the proposal a danger to county paving programs, and Chambers of Commerce all over the state are discussing the matter.

That better methods of connecting highways are needed is recognized, and it is claimed that it will take 30 years to connect the roads already designated at the present rate of progress. The solution of the problem is one that, it is pointed out, is of especial importance to West Texas.

Turkey Raisers Warned Against Holding Too Long

(By the Associated Press.)

FORT WORTH, Dec. 2.—Texas turkey breeders today were warned against holding their flocks for higher prices by John Collier, past president of the Texas Poultry Egg association, who declared turkey raisers would find themselves in similar circumstances with the cotton farmer—a surplus on hand and prices low.

Germany Moves Toward Revision of Versailles Treaty

(By the Associated Press.)

GENEVA, Dec. 2.—Germany today made what is generally regarded here as the opening step in the campaign for eventual revision of the Treaty of Versailles.

Speaking before the security committee preparatory to the disarmament conference today, Count von Bernstorff, German delegate, declared that any study means promoting international peace through strengthening of international security should give importance to Article 19 of the League covenant.

(By the Associated Press.)

GENEVA, Dec. 2.—The security committee preparatory to the disarmament conference which has been in session here for the last few days adjourned today at the call of the chair and probably will hold its next meeting February 20.

CHAPTER X

The week following was the week of Dec. 12, 1880. On that day, which was Sunday, there was a large parade and demonstration in Hunnewell by David Payne's Boomers. Led by Payne himself, they marched through the streets of Hunnewell 500 strong, singing and shouting. An inspiring sermon was delivered by a preacher who evidently believed in Payne's cause. He spoke of how Moses led his followers into the Promised Land.

It was a day of high hopes and exultation on the part of the agitators for free homes in Oklahoma. Banners were borne through the streets and David Payne was something of a hero, although there were many who looked on in doubt or contempt.

The next day Colonel Moore and Tony Harrison drove into Caldwell. Mrs. Moore and Rita arrived late that afternoon and the colonel immediately installed the whole party in a hotel. Shortly afterward he left to attend to some business.

"If you'll sort of look after Rita and her mother, Tony," he suggested. "I'll count it a favor. There's a meeting of cattlemen I've got to look in on. We're going to try to get together on some points that we've been unable to agree on."

Rita was as imperious as ever. She ordered Tony to walk back and forth while she watched him to see if his accident had left any trace. But he walked easily and without any limp.

She seemed quite satisfied. "Now I can stop being sorry for you; can't I, Mother?" Her gray eyes sparkled mischievously.

"Marguerita, how shocking!" Katherine Moore reproved her. "Of course, you mustn't stop being sorry for being the cause of it. You can be happy, though, that it was no worse. It might have crippled him for life."

Apparently Rita did not like to dwell on that thought. "Take me for a walk through Caldwell, Tony," she commanded.

Her mother demurred but finally consented. However, she insisted that she accompany them. She knew very little about Caldwell herself, but much of what she had heard had been shocking.

Rita insisted on being shown the Big Buffalo saloon. Her mother told her that she was morbid and that she lacked consideration for Tony's feelings. Nevertheless, she had her way.

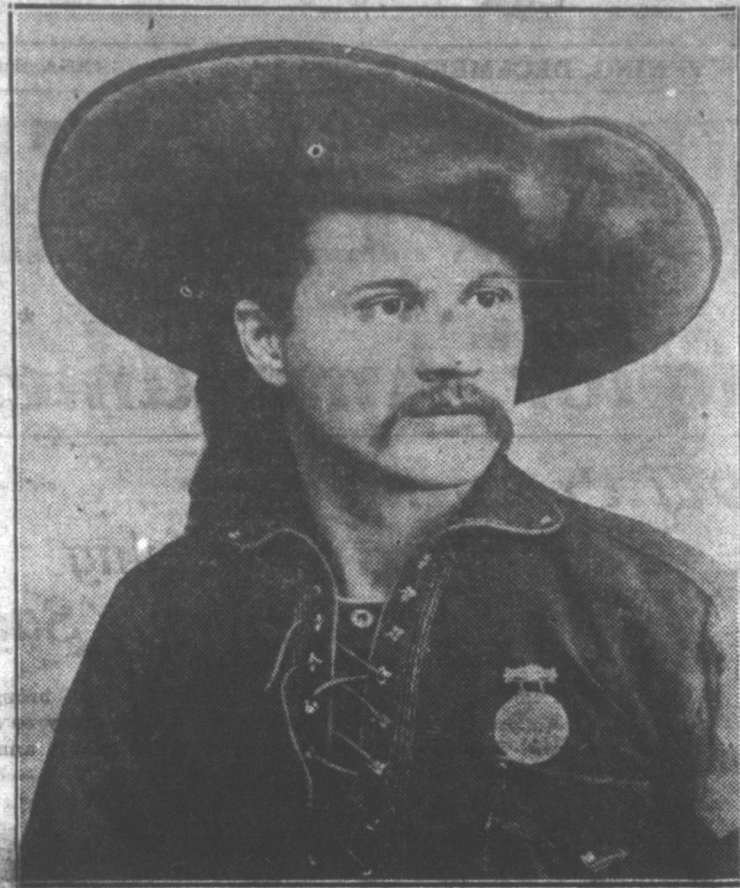

She took a keen interest in everything and piled Tony with questions. As they passed Mag Woods' place her eyes suddenly turned toward Tony's with a puzzled expression in them. "Why is that man staring at us like that?" she demanded.

The boy turned in the direction indicated by her and beheld Shafter, the marshal. He was leaning indolently against a building, picking his teeth, and was regarding them with an insolent stare that seemed to hold some amusement.

"That's the marshal of Caldwell," Tony explained to Rita. He noticed Mrs. Moore redden angrily and avert her face as she chanced to look in Shafter's direction and decided it would be as well not to mention the incident to Colonel Moore. The colonel was the sort of man who would kill another who looked at his wife in a way she didn't like. Tony had that on the authority of Joe Craig.

They did nothing, or practically so. The following day, Dec. 14, Payne and his fellows moved on to Caldwell and watched and hoped for action. But there was no action to speak of. The demonstration which had seemed so successful in Hunnewell missed fire in Caldwell and the crowds were disappointed because of the absence of the spectacular.

"Just about what I thought would happen," Colonel Moore chuckled.

Gordon Lillie (Pawnee Bill)

on the way home. "Some of the other downers were real alarmed about it. They sort of thought all Caldwell was going to cross the border en masse. Last May Payne and about ten or eleven of his followers were arrested down near the north fork of the Canadian and escorted by the military back to the Kansas line. Since then I believe he's been afraid to go back in the territory."

Tony's brows knit in a puzzled frown. "Who owns the land down here?" he asked.

"It's Indian land; that's why they call it Indian Territory. I borrow my range from the Cherokees." He accented the word "borrow," and laughed.

"And what's Payne's argument?" "Oh, he's got some fool notion that just because the noble red men can't possibly use all the territory that's been allotted to them they should throw the land open for settlement."

The boy was silent, but the puzzled frown remained for some time. He found it difficult to share Joe Craig's and Titas Moore's hostility toward David Payne.

Gordon Lillie had found the school teaching job at Pawnee the most interesting assignment of his youthful career. Furthermore, he had found a staunch friend in Major Bowman, Indian Agent at Pawnee.

Gordon was put in charge of the day school, with one man under him. The head of the boarding school was superintendent over both.

The work was not too exacting and he found plenty of leisure time to spend in the open. Major Bowman was a picturesque looking individual, as were most of the whites.

men he encountered passing through Pawnee, and he decided to follow the example set by the Indians whom he tutored and let his hair grow long. This, he thought, would lend an air of the picturesque to his own personality.

He began to pick up weight; his shoulders broadened and his muscles swelled. Before taking the job in the Caldwell restaurant, he had worked for awhile on the Santa Fe railroad extension between Wellington and Caldwell, holding a scraper all day long. At night he had been so tired that he had dropped to sleep as soon as he touched the ground. His boss, a gruff but friendly Irishman, had advised him to quit before he broke under the strain of such strenuous labor.

Largely his weakness had been due to a severe illness back in Bloomington, Ill. He had contracted it through exposure during his first visit to Kansas and before the rest of his family had joined his father at his new home in Wellington.

He told all this to Major Bowman after the latter had commented in a pleased manner on Lillie's improved appearance.

"I very nearly died," he related to Bowman. "In fact, the doctor gave me up, but the butcher we dealt with insisted that I drink beef blood. He pulled me through. Every time he slaughtered a cow he took me along in his wagon—I was flat on my back—and he made me drink the hot blood by the cupful."

Bowman smiled. "I think," he said dryly, "that I'd rather have died."

The Indian agent was always ready with advice. It was he who impressed on Lillie the importance of students.

"If you are afraid of any of them don't for the love of heaven, let on or they will make life miserable for you."

"I haven't run across any mutineers yet," Lillie told him. "And maybe you won't. If you have any trouble come to me."

The first difficult situation he had to deal with was precipitated by Spotted Horse, a Pawnee chief. The Pawnees were a piece loving and tractable tribe, but Spotted Horse, who was not a hereditary chief at all but only by reason of his own aggressiveness and force of character, was the meanest of them all.

He entered Gordon Lillie's class room one day, accompanied by his son, Frank West, and demanded a suit of clothes for Frank.

Lillie patiently explained that the government allotment of clothes was something he had nothing to do with. "You'd better see Major Bowman," he advised.

"Spotted Horse was obdurate." "You get it for him." He spoke in Pawnee.

"I can't, I tell you. Chances are Frank's already got his clothes, anyway."

The Pawnee chief glared and tapshook his head obstinately.

The knife flashed and the young school teacher turned pale. But instead of retreating or capitulating he advanced steadily on Spotted Horse and pushed him out of the room. The Indian, either out of fear of the probable consequences of a knifing or respect for this display of fearlessness, made no further show of hostility.

"From what I had heard about Spotted Horse," Lillie said afterwards, "I was pretty scared. If any of the Pawnees were capable of sticking a knife into your ribs, he certainly was. I figured a brave front might turn the trick and it did."

His second encounter with a rebellious red man was not to end so mildly. Blood flowed, and Lillie came very near to joining the ranks of those of whom there were so many on the frontier in that day and of whom it could be said that they were killed.

Lillie was a peace-loving young

He has a comfortable reception room at the front of his office and an adjoining private office and ladies' room with mirror and vanity. At the rear of the office is the dental parlor with a small, up-to-date laboratory.

Mrs. Hicks is also a dentist and assists her husband. A lady assistant is in attendance also.

Mid-Winter Poultry Show Opens Today

WAXAHACHE, Dec. 1.—With attractive prizes offered and an unusually large number of birds on display, the Texas Mid-Winter Poultry show opened here today to continue until the night of December 6.

Entries for the affair have come in from various parts of Texas and a number also are here from outside the state, principally from Oklahoma. The premiums this year were attractive and have drawn a great deal of interest.

Leaders in the poultry show movement declare that there is more to be considered about the project than the exposition in itself, and explain that it offers a strong incentive for an important diversification feature in region that turns in the main to cotton production.

Held as it is in the leading cotton country, the show, they point out, is indicative of the interest in getting away from the all-cotton fallacy.

I wish to recommend to my old customers and the public in general, Mr. Dyke Cullum, who is taking the business over. I recommend him as a real business man, truthful and honest in his dealings. I speak of Mr. Cullum from business dealings with him for the past two years. I wish him great success in the business and still believe that Dodge Brothers cars and Graham Brothers trucks are the best merchandise in the market for the money.

Come around and meet Mr. Cullum; he is in the same building, formerly occupied by Cobb Motor Co. Having taken a long lease on the building, he will be permanently located for sales and service. He has also purchased the shop, formerly operated by G. C. Crocker and will maintain Mr. Crocker as service manager.

Again thanking the public for the business and courtesies extended to me for the past six years, I remain sincerely yours,

SKYSCRAPERS IN MONEY CENTER RISE ON SOIL OF FABULOUS VALUE

Six new skyscrapers, erected on land that amounts to a treasure in value, are altering the skyline of New York's financial district. They include (left to right) the 33-story building of the Chase National bank, the tallest; Bank of New York and Trust company, and the Equitable Trust company.

(By the Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The skyline of the city's financial district is undergoing million dollar alterations.
Six skyscraper buildings, now under construction, five of them in or near Wall street and the sixth on Lower Broadway, will before spring send new and higher towers piercing the blue.
In round sums $100,000,000 or more is being expended on these structures. The land on which they stand alone is valued at millions; so costly, in fact, that it probably is worth more as real estate than as mining property, even were the world's richest subterranean treasure chests hidden beneath it.

The three tallest of the new skyscrapers each have 33 stories. The Chase National Bank, now under construction on the $5,000,000 plot at Nassau, Pine and Cedar streets, will rear its recessed stories above the old United States Sub-Treasury. The Equitable Trust company building, whose squared tower rises above Wall street at Exchange place, will cast its shadow upon the comparatively low structure housing J. P. Morgan and Company. At 39 Broadway the Harriman 39 Broadway building will stand in slender magnificence, virtually unchallenged as the highest peak in the lower reaches of the famous thoroughfare.

Each will house the population of a small city, 12,000 persons being employed in one building alone.
A 32-story building for the Bank of New York and Trust Company will mark Wall street with a tower, cupola and weather vane rising far above the corner at William street. The structure will increase real estate value of a plot for which the bank is reported to have paid $33,000 back about 1800.

Adjoining, on the plot at 52 Wall street, the National City Company is building a companion 32-story structure topped by what is in effect a Grecian temple. Turrets and minarets will gleam in the sunlight above the corner at Broad and Beaver streets upon the completion of a new 31-story International Telephone building.
A number of smaller structures small in comparison with the six also are being erected, but they are giants and cannot affect the skyline. Notably among them is the 12-story building for the Commercial Exchange Bank. It is being built at 70 Wall street upon a plot only 25 feet wide and 100 feet deep, but worth a fortune.

Lives in Same House For One Full Century

REYKJAVIK, Iceland—Rannveig Thorkelesdottir celebrated her 100th birthday on her old property Svadasladir, where she has lived for the last century as did her folks before her for many generations. Her sister is 97, and their father died when he was 95.
Miss Thorkelesdottir never married, has never been ill, and is always in high spirits. She is still doing all the usual woman's work—sewing, embroidering, baking, etc. In the summer, she is to be found in the fields using her rake with the other women.

She believes that the discontent of the younger generation is due to "gadding about," shifting from one place to another, from one occupation to another. She does not believe in "movies," she has never allowed a photograph to be taken of her.

Female "Rebellion" Aroused in Poland

WARSAW, Poland—All the "emancipated" women of Poland have been aroused by the new order of Minister of Posts and Telegraphs Miedzinski requiring married women employed by his office to file written permission of their husbands to remain in employment.

A few months ago the Minister provoked the women of the capital by introducing measured telephone service, thus interrupting many long-winded afternoon chats which had monopolized the telephone service.

This time, however, he has been subjected to so many showers of letters every day from angry "modern" women that there are indications he may rescind the latest orders.

House Around Tree Loses Landmark

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The "house built 'round the tree' has lost the attribute that made it a landmark for many years in Oak Park, Chicago's west side residential suburb. A spreading willow tree that poked its trunk up through the kitchen of the sprawling, picturesque mansion has been cut down.

The home was built by Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect, more than a third of a century ago.

When the contractor informed him it would be necessary to cut down a young willow tree to make room for the foundation, Mr. Wright would not allow it to be destroyed.

So the contractor built the house around the willow, and its green branches piercing the roof long were a sight for visitors.

Offers Sons Careers In Stone Quarries

KNOTTINGLEY, England—By searching about for a business opportunity for her sons, Mrs. Anne Greaves, who has invented a new stone for buildings, is now in the sand quarrying business, employing 30 men. She travels 600 miles a week selling the products of her quarries.
Mrs. Greave's husband is a ship-owner, but she did not believe there was a future in shipping for her four sons. She decided to try quarrying on some land she owned at Hensall.

"The first sand I produced," Mrs. Greaves said, "was moulder's sand used in iron foundries. I traveled round the foundries in the West Riding selling the sand. I must have been the first woman seen in the foundries. Since then I have opened three more quarries and two river wharfs."

DAILY NEWS' 1928 PROGRAM FOR PAMPA

- One or more new railroads. New city hall-auditorium. County agricultural agent. Additional street paving. Oil Exchange building. Expedite road paving work. Encourage existing industries. Invite new industries. Complete water, sewer systems. More and better homes. Extend Pampa trade territory. Develop dairying industry. Municipal band. Municipal airport. Pampa Fair. Associated Charities. County home demonstration agent. High school gymnasium.

HOUSE NUMBERS—The city manager of Pampa, whoever he is, will have a lot more suggestions than he will be able to act upon or recommend to the council for some time.

The streets have been marked, but a uniform system of house numbering must be put into effect before it will be possible to direct strangers properly.

House numbering is not as simple as it sounds, but a good city manager will quickly solve the problem and we'll help him put on a campaign to sell the numbers.

The commission does well to go slow in picking a man to become city manager. It is a specialized job, and these matters cannot be handled quickly and efficiently by just anybody.

GOOD WORK—Out in a rural district of Oklahoma is a tiny high school which boasts only 20 pupils, but which is distinctive because it claims three of the four boys who won honors for livestock judging at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago.

Richard Chiles and Loyce

Holding Up Some Good Men, Cal

Kennedy of Woodland high took first and second places, and Richard's brother Bill was fourth. Richard is pretty proud of his school. He says they do not have enough boys for a football team, but they have fine basketball quintets and these boys are three of the five players.

How did these boys gain such distinction? They give credit to J. B. Taylor, their county agent. The Fairfax Chamber of Commerce financed their trip to Chicago.

The boys of Gray county or any other community can likewise gain distinction if they are given the opportunity. It is the duty of the county to extend the opportunity to the remotest corners of its jurisdiction. Gray should employ a county agent.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The gentlemen who have spent great wads of money trying to prevent government operation of Muscle Shoals, Boulder Dam and other power projects must harbor a furtive respect for George W. Norris, the most distinguished of the two very distinguished senators from Nebraska.

In the first place, Norris is entirely immune from the methods of attack commonly depended upon to drive most other members of Congress to cover. Other members lie awake nights worrying about re-election, but he was tricked into a renomination last time and will fight like a steer against any attempt to send him back here again.

In the second place, Norris is so honest that it is almost a shock to find him in Washington at all. He has become a veritable symbol of integrity here. Years ago, the lobbyists gave him up as a hopeless case.

All of which has been proved once more by his latest shots in defense of Muscle Shoals and its great hydroelectric power potentialities.

Norris, you will recall, has been boosted for the presidency by the western progressive senators who recently banded together. Many persons would go daffy with joy if he were ever nominated or elected and others would die of apoplexy, but whatever initial strength he might have would be concentrated among the western farmers.

In his place, any other presidential possibility would be mighty careful not to offend any of the big farm organizations—would, in fact, jump through almost any hoop they held up. But not Uncle George!

This veteran warrior has gone right out and defied the American Farm Bureau Federation, largest of farmer organizations, and the most politically active. The Federation is enthusiastically supporting the American Cyanamid Company's bill to take over Muscle Shoals, claiming that it would mean cheaper fertilizer for the farmer.

It is sending out large gobs of editorialized propaganda in the form of newspaper stories on behalf of the Cyanamid bill, which comes second only to farm relief on the Federation's legislative program for the coming session of Congress.

"That talk about cheap fertilizer is so much camouflage," replied Norris. "New inventions in the fertilizer industry have rendered present equipment at Muscle Shoals obsolete for fertilizer production. The objects of the private companies is to get the power there for themselves and to keep the government out of the power business at all costs.

"It would take about 100,000 horse power to obtain the same amount of nitrates at Muscle Shoals which can be obtained elsewhere by the much cheaper new process from 16,000 horse power. These bills like the Cyanamid bill are full of jokers. The power trust lost out last year on the so-called 'fertilizer' bill which would have made the company promise to make 40,000 tons of fertilizer—if it could make an 8 per cent profit on it. It is absolutely impossible for the Cyanamid company to make a profit like that at Muscle Shoals and if it gets the lease we simply won't have our fertilizer or our power."

Single-handed, Uncle Geo. has fought off Henry Ford, Cyanamid, power companies and all other interests anxious to lease Muscle Shoals. He wants the farmer to have cheap fertilizer, but says it can best be furnished if the government uses its profits on power there to install the latest methods of nitrate production. Primarily he is anxious to have the government produce the power, believing that it could establish by its example fair rates on electricity throughout the country. He will have to make his fight all over again in the next Congress, and this time he may win instead of merely holding the others off.

TWINKLES

Pampa grade pupils are picking local citizens as their "ideals." How do you stack up with and for the youngsters?

Recent trials in which insanity was pleaded suggests that it might pay the average person to act a little "off" now and then.

The Empire company has "discovered" Panhandle production where it really is—in the Pampa pools. Let other big companies do the same.

Sad is the way of the world, for although every college basketball team is reported to have "bright" prospects, many of the stars will fail to twinkle.

What is needed in the South, apparently, is a little more energetic cultivation of presidential timber.

The wheat king of North America recommends "elbow grease" as a success formula. Diversification fans will insinuate that his joints needed grease after loafing along while the gain ripened.

They are going to motorize bee hives and carry the sting-equipped insects from flower to flower. What with this and the faster Ford, will the poor pedestrian next be afflicted?

BARBS (By N.E.A. Service Inc.)

For the 1928 presidential campaign is suggested, free of charge, the slogan: "Keep Coy With Coolidge."

"Third Wife Charges Man Is Bigamist," says a newspaper headline. A kind of companionate bigamist, maybe.

Somebody has said that the old-fashioned husking bee has vanished. But don't take that as final until you've asked at the corner drug store.

It isn't always the biggest car that honks the loudest. The same holds true for people.

Don't worry over the Christmas card list. The chances are that you won't overlook the same ones you did last year.

Women Rule Missouri "Tiny Town" Composed of 10 Houses, 35 People

MOBERLY, Mo., Nov. 25.—Missouri has a "tiny town." It is a village composed of ten houses, with a population of exactly 35, and women rule it.

Urbandale, the "tiny town," is located on the outskirts of Moberly. Mrs. Ruth Stamper Fleming, chairman of the village board, can count off hand the noses of the town's citizenry.

Urbandale was incorporated this fall, when residents of the little settlement decided it could function better in a civic way if it were an entity unto itself.

Deciding that women should rule the village, the men quietly elected a governing board composed entirely of women.

At first astonished, the women immediately got busy on a "city beautiful" program. They provided that each house should stand in a tract of two acres or more and that no commercial enterprises should be established on Urbandale's main street, which is its only street.

Board members, immersed in civic problems, say the petticoat government probably will be ready to retire at the next election in April.

German Girl Wins Fencing Championship

The women's international fencing champion is Fraulein Helen Mayer, of Germany, who is shown above, at the left, in her match with Mrs. Mary Freeman, British champion, whom she defeated in the third round of the tournament in London. Two other English women and the French and Belgian champions engaged in the tournament for the Alfred Hutton memorial cup which Fraulein Mayer (lower right) won by coming through undefeated. Mile. Addams (lower left), the Belgian champion, was eliminated in the finals.

LONDON—The feat of a German girl winning the women's fencing championship in London attracted more attention throughout Germany than in England where girls have long taken prominent part in sport.

The winner in an international fencers tournament here, Fraulein Helen Mayer, age 19 wearing her hair in plaits, was the first German girl to take such honors since the war.

Much interest generally was shown in the competition cup, the final pool consisting of three English women and the champions of France, Germany and Belgium.

Fraulein Mayer, experts said, won all her five assaults in the finals with considerable ease. Each assault was determined by the best of nine hits, and no opponent succeeded in hitting her more than twice while she was scoring the five hits necessary for victory.

At the end of the round of fights, Fraulein Mayer, Mile. Prost, French champion, and Mrs. Mary Freeman, British champion, were undefeated, but in the third round Mile. Prost lost to Mile. Addams, Belgian champion, by the odd hit in nine, and Fraulein Mayer beat Mrs. Freeman by five hits to two and held the lead until the end of the match.

Lady Duenedin, wife of Lord Duenedin, one of the law lords, was among the English women competitors for the cup.

Wildcat Monte to Meet Kansas Flash Here Next Monday

Wildcat Monte, who is making Pampa his home and who has been a favorite with boxing fans in Pampa, will meet Tex Mills the Kansas Whirlwind, Monday night in the main event of the American Legion boxing card at the Pampa Athletic club, west Foster avenue.

Both boys are in the lightweight class and are not only the best in the Southwest, but have met the champions of the world. Monte boxed Sammy Mandell in Oklahoma City a month ago.

Young Mickey Walker, the boy with the sleep punch, will meet Babe Ruth of Amarillo, another terrific slugger, in the semi-final. Walker finished Chief Near in the second round last week.

The Fighting Dutchman will be seen in the ring in the special event with Young Burke of Breckenridge.

The management is open to receive challenges for any 100-pound boy who will stand up against Bill Barnett, the young Pampa whirlwind, in a four-round preliminary. They also want a 50-pound boy to meet J. O. the scrapping midget, in the opening bout of the evening.

the Aggies, conquerors of S. M. U. to a scoreless tie. It would be more correct to say "Rags" Matthews made possible a tie game for Texas Christian.

"These are strong words, stating one man dominated a football game, but I am ready to explain and leave it to you."

Now let us listen to how one man can so perform that his play, practically single-handed, kept the contest from going to a decision, or in other words, saved his team from defeat.

"Since the praises of Joel Hunt Texas Aggies' quarterback, have been loudly sung by those experts who regard him as outstanding in Texas among football players, permit me to offer some proof to the contrary in rebuttal.

"In the game between the Texas Aggies and Texas Christian, Matthews made Hunt look like a high schooler all day. He rushed his passes until he was helpless, hurried his punts so that Hunt was kicking the ball straight up in the air, and tackled him so many times they found 'Rags' printed on Joel's legs at the end of the game.

"Just listen to this one: Texas Aggies had the ball on Texas Chris-

PLAYING THE GAME

All-Americans Far Flung

By FIELDING H. YOST

(Director of Athletics, University of Michigan)

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—If America's football players are to be classified as All-American each boy playing the game has a right to justice in his classification.

The principle of All-American selections was a fine conception in the early days of a great game. The far flung border lines of football today make the carrying out of that eminent conception a matter of extreme difficulty if each boy is to receive his right—a just rating.

Forty years ago when Walter Camp, father of American football, thought of his first All-American team, selection was comparatively easy. A glance at his first 15 teams shows no player-picked from West of the Allegheny mountains. Football talent and ability was confined to a small sector of the United States.

Today the personnel from which All-American teams are picked extends from ocean to ocean. Hundreds play football where one played it when Camp was young. It is not now a matter of the New England states with the game edging over into the South Atlantic division. There are a lot of rugged men west of the Mississippi river—men with a fine knowledge of football. The basin between the Mississippi and the Ohio river is full of great players. The South also cannot be left out of the picture.

In track and field athletics where there is a known standard of achievement, it is shown by the records that there are good athletes in every part of the Union. It is safe to suspect that the athletic ability disclosed in track and field also extends to football and that there is not a section but has its great football players—players entitled to justice if a classification is to be made.

It would be possible to select the best men in the Western Conference, an organization that now has more good football players than were in existence when Camp made his first selections. Several men see all players of the Big Ten every season and are capable of making comparisons. But the Big Ten is one of 40 such conferences and outside these larger organizations are many teams with high class men.

The difficulty is to compare the different men—an impossibility when players are found from Brunswick, Maine, to Dallas, Texas; from Grand Forks, N. D., where the rivers flow north to Baton Rouge, near the tropical gulf; from Chapel Hill, N. C., and its magnolia blooms to the pine trees of Walla Walla, Wash.

Under the conditions, a hundred have the right to the classification. One now gains—the hundred have the right to be justly rated.

Under such conditions, who can select a team with the feeling of certainty that he has the right eleven? What system can be formulated giving justice to the youth playing in the unknown locality? With the whole United States teeming with football teams, what man can say to a player—Thou art the one? Who can place the cloak of an All-American on the shoulders of any player and in his heart of hearts feel that justice has been given to all?

HORSES TOO RISKY?

LONDON—The Prince of Wales would like to try an automobile race with his royal brothers, to judge from remarks made and questions asked by him after opening the Glasgow motor show. Rivalry is generally known to exist between Wales and his brother in such matters as golf, dancing and hunting and the heir to the British throne has to do considerable practicing to keep up.

Judge Ben S. Baldwin returned yesterday from Panhandle where he has been attending district court.

BILLY EVANS Says

Difference of Opinion

This All-American stuff is more mysterious than trying to solve a murder problem, for every grid sleuth has different clues.

Recently a noted football authority from Texas wrote me that no all-star team would be complete without one Joel Hunt of the Texas Aggies in the back field. Plenty of proof accompanied the letter.

A few days later I received another document from another grid expert, as well known in the south as the man who boosted Hunt. His effusion had to do with one "Rags" Matthew of Texas Christian University, whom he rated superior to Hunt.

Here are some of the arguments that he offered to prove his case and I must admit, since based on fact, they are quite convincing.

"Rags Matthew is the best football player I ever saw at any position," says the champion of the Texas Christian star. "You know I have seen some pretty good ones, but this guy is in a class by himself.

"For instance, the Texas Aggies beat S. M. U. badly, yet S. M. U. smothered the powerful Missouri Tigers. S. M. U. beat Texas badly and Texas walloped Vanderbilt. The Aggies trimmed Sewanee. All of which makes us look pretty good in Texas."

One of New Fords Displayed Widely Today

Here is the new Ford automobile.

This picture's publication has been awaited by the United States ever since Henry Ford announced, last May, that he was closing down his plants to prepare for a new model. Since that time there have been countless rumors about the new car; and here is the photo of it, to end them all.

The new car bears not the slightest resemblance to the old Model T—the time-honored "Lizzie." Note the higher hood, the more graceful mud guards, the long windows and the general air of smartness—all qualities that the old model never tried to adopt.

This picture was taken in downtown Detroit when the new model was being tested by a prominent Ford executive.

Markets

KANSAS CITY—Hog prices were quoted up 10 to 15 cents Monday taking the market 25 to 40 cents above the low point last week. Demand is increasing and quality is improving, so that there will probably be a further advance. Sheep and lambs are 25 cents above last week with demand considerably improved. Most classes of cattle were steady with last week's close and 25 to 35 cents above last week's low point. Calves were off 50 cents. Demand remains active.

Receipts were 19,000 cattle, 7,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep, compared with 15,000 cattle, 6,500 hogs and 5,000 sheep a week ago, and 19,075 cattle, 10,635 hogs and 8,000 sheep a year ago.

Trade in fat cattle remained fairly active with prices practically the same as late last week and 25 to 35 cents above the low point Tuesday. Choice to prime steers were lacking so that values for finished classes were not tested. Short fed steers sold at $11 to $14.50, with some grass steers $9 to $11. Receipts though slightly larger than a week ago, were not heavy for this season of the year. In proportion to total cattle receipts the supply of fat cattle was unusually small. Indications are that fat steers will continue to sell readily. Butcher cattle were fully steady. Some prime heifers sold up to $14.50, and short fed heifers brought $9 to $11.50. Colorado grass heifers sold up to $10.25. Canner and cutter cows sold at $6 to $8 and good fat cows at $7 to $8 with choice kinds at $9. Veal calves were 5 cents lower, and bulls off 10 to 25 cents.

Fairly liberal supplies of stockers and feeders met a ready demand at steady prices. Most of the offerings came from Texas, New Mexico and Colorado. This movement will not continue much longer.

Hog prices were quoted up 10 to 15 cents, compared with last week's close, and 25 to 40 cents above last week's low point. Demand has broadened considerably and packers are showing an inclination to buy more freely. Shipping demand has increased also. Today the 170 to 350 pound hogs sold at $8.75 to $9.15; 140 to 170 pounds $8.25 to $8.75; packing sows and stags $7 to $8, and stock hogs and pigs $8 to $8.25. The price spread on fat hogs will narrow considerably in the next few weeks.

Sheep and lambs are 25 cents higher than last week and the general market seems to be gathering strength for a further advance. Fat lambs are bringing $13.50 to $13.85; yearlings $9.50 to $11; shorn yearlings $10.50. Ewes are quoted at $5.50 to $6.60; and wethers $7.25 to $8.25.

Trade in horses and mules remains active. Best kinds are quoted firm. Demand is from a wide area.

Attorney Burke Mathes returned from Amarillo last night.

Government Man Sees Better Era For Agriculture

The prophecy of a phenomenal development in agriculture that will merge into an entirely new era for the industry was given by Loring B. Schuler, editor of the Country Gentleman, nationally distributed publication, Monday at the joint luncheon of the Dallas Agricultural club and the Dallas Electric Club, given in his honor at the Baker hotel at Dallas. "Agriculture is at a turning point," Mr. Schuler said. "It is getting in line with industrial development. Low cost of production, more power and other factors are entering the agriculture question to make possible mass production at a low cost for the near future."

For Texas Mr. Schuler had a message, which he gave in the morning before the address.

"Texas is the fastest growing, and, withal, the most modest of all the rapidly developing States in the country," Mr. Schuler said. "This modesty in advertising itself is admirable, but I am certain the State should be doing more to tell the world about itself. There is marvelous opportunity here for industrial development."

Eggs represent the only article of animal food produced in a natural package—the shell; so long as the shell is unbroken the egg can not be adulterated.—Dr. M. A. Jull, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

1927 Prospect---
genese and attitude toward work of the producing population.

Electricity Vital
"In our earlier days, advance was in considerable measure attributable to the opening of new resources, but during the past quarter century this has not been a major influence. The principal factors in the recent increase in productivity are what may be called human as distinguished from natural factors. One of the most profound modern tendencies is the swiftly expanding use of electric current."

For the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Dr. Julius Klein, its chief pointed out that American foreign trade today represented 16 per cent of the world's total commerce, whereas in 1913 it represented only 11 per cent. He predicted that "manufactured goods will continue to gain in relative importance in our export trade," while the growth of population at home will "continue to call for the consumption of a larger and larger proportion of foodstuffs and raw materials produced by our farms."

Senate Republicans Sidestep Controversy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Side-stepping all controversial matters, Senate Republicans perfected their party organization today for the first session of the seventieth Congress and unanimously nominated George Moses of New Hampshire to succeed himself as president pro-tempore.

Forbes---

Forbes was assigned to work as a draftsman and architect at the prison, but was incapacitated at various times by Bright's disease. He had not fully recovered from a stroke of paralysis when he was committed March 20, 1926.

Once an army officer with a distinguished record in France, a confidant of a president and the chief of a government agency supervising the expenditure of nearly half a billion dollars a year for the relief of veterans of the world war, Forbes was sent to the penitentiary on conviction for accepting money in a conspiracy to defraud the government in the letting of contracts for veterans' hospitals.

Sensational Testimony
Testimony that debauchery, bribery, and extravagance existed under his administration of the veterans' bureau was given at his trial in Chicago and before a congressional investigating committee in Washington.

Forbes was appointed director of the bureau by President Harding. The contracts mentioned in the charges were let to a St. Louis firm owned by James W. Black and John W. Thompson. Both Black and Thompson are dead. The latter was convicted with Forbes, but died before he was ordered to prison.

Charles F. Cramer, one time general counsel of the veterans bureau, also was named as a party to the conspiracy. He died more than a year before the trial.

Elias H. Mortimer, the government's chief witness and self-confessed "go-between" and "fixer," testified concerning corrupt transactions with Forbes, described lavish parties given by the bureau director and charged that Forbes had broken up his home. Mrs. Mortimer later obtained a divorce in Philadelphia.

The trial of Forbes and Thompson consumed nine weeks. Neither defendant took the stand to deny Mortimer's testimony. The principal overt act alleged was the payment of $5,000 to Forbes by Mortimer in a Chicago hotel, June 20, 1922. Mortimer testified he was acting for Black.

Former Drummer Boy
Forbes was a drummer boy in the marine corps at the age of 12. He served two years and then at the age of 22 enlisted in the signal corps. He deserted, returned, and was reinstated, was promoted to a sergeant in the Philippines and received an honorable discharge.

After his army experience he engaged in the construction business in the Pacific northwest, going later to Hawaii, where he rose to be commissioner of public works. There he first met Harding, who as senator from Ohio was making a tour of the islands.

When the United States entered the world war, Forbes was commissioned a major. He served overseas, won a distinguished service medal

Clarendon Lions To Be Entertained Here December 9

Pampa Lions will entertain members of the Lions club of Clarendon Friday evening, December 9, if that date is agreeable to the neighboring organization.

A banquet will be held at the New Schneider hotel at that time. A number of local Lions attended a luncheon of the Clarendon club recently.

W. H. Curry was chairman of the local luncheon yesterday in the absence of President Otto Studer. Lion Tom Brabham made a strong plea for Associated Charities, declaring that the goal must be reached to put giving upon a logical basis and stop begging on the streets.

A collection was taken to help buy playground equipment for the Baker school. F. P. Reid urged members of the club to study the Texas road situation, with special attention to proposals of a state-wide bond issue.

Biggs Horne, chairman of the entertainment program, presented Mrs. Carson Loftus and Joe Strother, who gave very enjoyable readings and piano solos, respectively.

Carson Loftus spoke briefly upon the work of the Pampa Business Men's association, which, he said, has grown so rapidly that a competent stenographer is needed. Much more service than mere rating is being provided, and the members of the organization are meeting regularly to discuss their problems. The greatest present need is a greater membership to increase the financial strength of the body.

M. P. Downs of Pampa and Oak Lewis, and Oak Lewis, Jr., of Cross Plains were visitors.

Citizens Urged to Keep Cars Locked; Thefts Increasing

An epidemic of car thefts has been reported to Sheriff Graves this week. Since Wednesday night four cars have been stolen from the streets of the city and only one recovered up to this time.

A Nash sedan owned by A. E. Arnold was taken from in front of the Schneider hotel Wednesday night. Thursday morning a Dodge coupe belonging to the American Tank company, with their name painted on the side of the car, was stolen from in front of the Schneider hotel about 10 o'clock.

Wednesday night a Ford coupe was taken from in front of the Adams hotel, and last night a Ford coupe owned by Elmo Poe was stolen from in front of Heflin's store in South Pampa. It was recovered this morning about 8 miles out on the Borger road.

Another Ford sedan was taken from the street earlier in the week.

Keep your car locked, is a warning issued by Sheriff Graves, whether it be in the day time or at night, as either the car or its contents may be taken. He also requests immediate notification so that his department may notify surrounding cities.
