HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas farmer is making contacts in Cuba — even visiting the island — in hopes of cultivating a market for his rice, soybeans and corn.

But despite the interest of Cubans he met there, Curt Mowery is unlikely to sell even one grain of rice from his farm to Cuba for a while that because of a nearly 40year U.S. trade embargo with the communist country. So Mowery, along with several dozen other Texans, is pushing Congress to open trade with Cuba.

"It's going to open up sooner or later, and we might be in a position to take advantage of the contacts we made there," Mowery said.

To Mowery, Cuba's market 11.2 million residents and a booming tourist sector is worth courting because it could mean the difference between profits and losses for rice farmers. Cubans consume 600,000 tons of rice annually, but the island can produce only 200,000 tons, he said.

SAN ANGELO (AP) - Afederal jury convicted a 56year-old Santa Anna man on four counts of child pornography on Friday.

Prosecutors said Robert B. Runyan hired girls for odd jobs and eventually manipulated them with drugs and alcohol to pose for pornographic photos.

Law officers who searched his home last year found over 13,000 images of child pornography and other evidence.

New well plug rules proposed for oil industry

Area oil industry officials expect a compromise within the next couple of months on an environmentally friendly proposal by Texas Railroad Commissioner Tony Garza and the oil industry concerning abandoned wells.

Earlier this month, Garza proposed new rules to force oil and gas companies to plug most of their open, unused wells after a year. Garza, at the commission's meeting, called for an immediate scaling back of unlimited well plugging extensions. Michael Williams, chairman of the Railroad Commission which regulates the oil and gas industry in the state, referred the proposal to a committee for further study.

Rules now allow companies to keep their wells open indefinitely if they pay a $100 fee. Garza's proposal would give companies one year to plug abandoned

In reality, according to Pampa area oilmen, a well that is inactive for more than three years, probably isn't going to go back into production anyway.

Near the end of the life of a well (when it gets to the point it produces 1.8 barrels or less per month), a producer usually files a cessation of production report. That is normally followed within 90 days, under Railroad Commission rules, by a plug and abandonment report.

However, if the producer has reason to think that at some point in the future the well may again be profitable, he can pay a $100 fee and file what is essentially an indefinite extension, (See WELLS, Page 2)

Jobless rate holds

The latest employment picture for Pampa and Gray County show little change during March as compared to the numbers issued by the Texas Workforce Commission in February.

Pampa's rate remained at a 5.5 percent jobless count while in the county the jobless number dropped from 5.7 percent to 5.6 percent. Those counts are higher than the statewide seasonally adjusted average which showed 4.6 percent of the job-seeking workforce without work during March. The number was 4.5 percent in February. Despite the increase in the unemployment rate, the raw figures showed the number of employed Texans grew by 33,300, from 9.83 million in February to 9.86 million in March.

Statewide, the service industry led all sectors in job creations, adding 13,3000 jobs in March and more than 71,000 during the past Construction added 2,300 jobs in March, although down from the 6,100 new construction jobs in February. More than 80 percent of the jobs were in the home-building industry, the commission reported. Employment by the federal government increased by 4,3000 in March, the largest monthly increase since May 1990. Hiring by the U.S. Census accounted for most of the gain.

The state's highest jobless rate, 14.4 percent, was recorded in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission. The lowest reported rate was in Bryan-College Station with 1.6 percent.

Other rates include Dallas, 3.1; El Paso, 8.4; Fort Worth-Arlington, 3.1; Lubbock, 3.0; Wichita Falls, 4.6; and Odessa-Midland, 6.4.

Pampa Police Officers Tony Wooley and Cory Powell try out tint meter on a pickup outside the police station. The new device measures the density of tinted windows, indicating whether or not they are within the legal standards set by state law.

Police will soon be testing tinted windows. Police said they have noticed an increase in

Under Texas law, only 35 percent of the light can be blocked on the driver's and passenger

The suit says Brookshire "was negligent in failing to keep his dogs contained or confined in an appropriate enclosure ..

No date has been set for the hearing of the suit. Shortly after the incident, Lester told The Pampa News she wants to see the dogs destroyed and plans to spearhead a drive for stricter laws regarding "vicious" animals.

"I told the boy that his dogs were dead, legally or whatever, but his dogs were dead," said the owner of the 38-inch-tall horse known as H.E.

According to Municipal Court records, Brookshire, 533 Doyle, received four citations in connection with the attack. Two were for animals at large and two were for failure to display rabies

Sheriff: Definitive evidence links man to nine slayings

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — An alleged serial killer has been definitively linked by DNA and other physical evidence to the slayings of nine women and authorities say that total is expected to climb to Further lab tests are expected to tie Robert Lee Yates Jr. to the slayings of three other women shot to death from 1996 to 1998, Sheriff Mark Sterk said

"We don't have to rush through it," county prosecutor Steve Tucker said.

Investigators today planned to continue searching the home of Yates, a 47-year-old father of five, located in an upper middle-class neighborhood in this eastern Washington city.

Sheriff's spokesman Dave Reagan described the house as "not neat" — the disruption perhaps caused by the family's abrupt eviction Tuesday morning by deputies.

Family members are staying in a motel while their home is searched, and have refused to talk with reporters. They aren't likely to be allowed back in for months, Reagan said.

On Friday, Yates had a jailhouse visit from his wife, Linda, their first contact since his arrest Tuesday, Sterk said.

Yates, an aluminum smelter and Army National Guard helicopter pilot, so far has been charged with first-degree murder in just one death, that of 16-year-old Jennifer Joseph in 1997.

Investigators also are looking for possible links to Yates in six other killings in Washington dating to 1990, Sterk said. In all cases, the victims were involved in prostitution, drugs, or both.

All victims had been shot, with most of the bodies dumped in remote areas on the edge of this city of 189,000 people.

Investigators have not offered a motive in the Yates' lawyer, Richard Fasy, said Friday he could not yet comment on the allegations and had spoken to his client just once in jail, and only briefly. Yates is being held in lieu of $1.5 million cashonly bond at the Spokane County Jail.

Ranchers and environmentalists say open wells pose a threat to the state's ground wate

In reality, according to Pampa area oilmen, a well that is inactive for more than three years, probably isn't going to go back into production anyway.

Railroad Commissioner Charles Matthews complained that Garza's proposed changes to the rules governing the abandonment of wells was made through the news media rather than to the commission.

Matthews called for further study, saying the oil and gas industry hasn't had time to study the proposals. Matthews said Garza's recommendation would hurt the industry's ability to hold a well open until it was economically feasible to produce

In other parts of the state, when a well gets to the point it should be abandoned and plugged, rogue producers have walked away from the situation, claiming they couldn't afford to plug the well. This

Garza has expressed concern that unlimited permitting would create a drain on the commission's Oil Field Cleanup Fund.

While Garza has in the past said such a situation puts tax money at risk, local producers said the money used by the commission to plug abandoned wells comes, not from tax money, but from industry generated fees.

"We end up picking up the tab for bad actors," Wayne Hughes, head of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said. "Bad actors cause our fees to go up."

The program in which well can be kept open indefinitely covers some 15,600 wells across the state. Almost 6,500 of them are unplugged after five

"Commission inaction has resulted in close scrutiny of the program and calls for real substantive changes," Garza said. "That's why I asked my colleagues to take immediate action and encourged them to have the courage to show real leaderhip by joining me in moving toward a responsible solution of this program."

Local producers said this week that they expect some sort of compromise proposal on the issue to come out of William's office in late May.

In Little Havana, a surprise raid and tears in the crowd

(See related story on Page 5)

MIAMI (AP) - Some threw rocks and shouted in anger. Others waved signs and flags — Cuban and upside-down American ones. One man stalked through the crowd with a baby doll pinned to a cross, fake blood streaming from its hands.

Across Elian Gonzalez's Little Havana neighborhood today, hundreds of Cuban Americans poured into the streets, denouncing the government for snatching the 6-year-old from his great-uncle's house on the day before Easter.

"This is like crucifying the Messiah all over again. This is a slap in the face to the Cuban-American community and the Christian community," said Ralph Anrrich, a social worker helping the family at the house, where more than 500 people had massed by midmorning.

On one street, a debris fire burned. Some protesters marched onto Route 836, a main highway, slowing traffic. Others threw rocks, one smashing the rear window of a police car. Still others stood around in small groups and talked quietly.

Within hours of the pre-dawn raid, police in riot gear faced off with the crowd. They blocked off 35 square blocks of the neighborhood around the house, even barring residents from their homes. "They broke through my window and put a gun to Elian's head. This is not freedom, putting a gun to a 6-year-old's head," Marisleysis Gonzalez, Elian's cousin, screamed to the crowd gathered outside her home. The government appeared to catch the family side the modest stucco house just after 5 a.m., and agents battered down the door and poured inside. The boy cowered in a bedroom closet as an agent in riot gear pointed a huge automatic rifle and barked demands. A crowd of supporters waited completely off guard. Vans screeched to a half out-outside, anxious to find out what was happening. "They took this kid like a hostage in the nighttime," said Donato Dalrymple, the fisherman who rescued Elian on Thanksgiving Day and held the child in his arms inside Lazaro Gonzalez's house during the raid.

Within minutes, Elian, wearing a white T-shirt and shorts, was carried outside in a white blanket by a female agent, lifted gently into a van and driven away by a man in a mask. He seemed bewildered.

"All of a sudden I heard people yelling that the police are here," said Anrrich. "Before you knew it, they were here with guns. They came through the back, the side and the front. This was the last thing that was expected.

As the reality of Elian's departure began to set in, the restless crowd milled about. While some wept, others screamed. One man flailed his arms and "No liberty, no justice for all," one sign said. In another, Fidel Castro holds two dalmatians by the collar; their faces are those of President Clinton and Attorney General Janet Reno. Joel Beltran said he was standing next to the front

Report: Federal agents didn't fire at Branch Davidians

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Federal agents did not fire at Texas. Branch Davidians in the 1993 siege that ended in a deadly blaze at the group's compound in Waco, Texas, according to a preliminary report from last month's simulation of the confrontation.

Vector Data Systems, the firm that conducted the simulation, provided the written report to U.S. District Judge Walter S. Smith Jr. earlier this month. The test was performed March 19 in Fort Hood, Vector found that flashes produced by sunlight reflecting off debris were considerably longer in duration than flashes produced by gunfire, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Saturday.

That finding would support the government's claim that similar flashes seen on a 1993 infrared tape were the result of sunlight reflecting off debris from the crumbling complex, not gunfire.

History of Pampa High school song

For 70 years, Pampa High School students have (high school annual) for the first time in 1931. been singing the school song, "Dear Old Pampa High School," but many do not know its history. The words were written about 1930 by R.B. Fisher, superintendent of Pampa schools at that time.

The school song is sung to the melody of the chorus of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," words by Beth Slater Whitson and music by Leo Friedman. Published in 1910, the song became an all-time hit and was the sure-fire opening for almost any community singing group for many years.

Ruth Greene remembered that the pep squad approved the selection of "Dear Old Pampa High School" as the school song. Several Pampans remember an assembly in the new gymnasium (corner North Cuyler and West Browning) when copies of the song were distributed and Superintendent Fisher sang it for the student body. The words appeared in the Harvester

Several Pampans remember an assembly in the new gymnasium (corner North Cuyler and West Browning) when copies of the song were distributed and Superintendent Fisher sang it for the student body.

Roy B. Fisher received the A.B. degree from Northwestern Teachers' College in Alva, Okla., in 1924 and was superintendent of schools in Cherokee, Okla., for two years before he came to Pampa in August of 1927. For two years, he was principal of the high school, taught algebra classes and did his own secretarial work. He was promoted to superintendent of schools for the year 1929-30 and continued in that capacity until January 1938 when he resigned to become superintendent of schools in Corpus Christi, Texas, on Feb. 1, 1938.

Fisher received the master of arts degree from Columbia University in 1933 and made an educational tour of Europe in the summer of 1935. In 1937, Pampa teachers presented him with a life membership in the National Education Association. He was a member of Phi Delta Kappa and Phi Beta Sigma, educational fraternities, and he was a Mason, president of the Lions Club and a member of the Methodist Church where he directed the choir for several years.

Fisher and his wife Gertrude lived at 806 N. Somerville for several years before they built the house at 900 N. Somerville.

At the beginning of Fisher's first year in Pampa, there were 40 teachers and 1,629 students in the whole system. When he left in 1938, there were 125 teachers and 3,500 students. He came before the east and west wings were added to the high school building at 126 W. Francis. Woodrow

This picture of R.B. Fisher is in the 1930 Harvester that honored him "because of his efficiency, first as High School Principal and then as Superintendent and because of his enthusiasm, interest in the students, and his cooperation in the publication of the 1930 Harvester.'

Wilson had not been built, but B.M. Baker and Horace Mann were under construction. High school athletes were playing basketball on the grounds of the future courthouse and football on the old airport grounds (LeFors Street at the northeast corner of Twiford). Fisher had a great deal to do with the planning of the auditorium of the beautiful new high school building at 111 E. Harvester.

The entire curriculum of the Pampa schools was completely revised several times while Fisher was superintendent and the 12-year grade system was installed. His primary consideration in planning the curriculum was finding better ways with which to improve the personalities of the students.

He inaugurated physical education, art and socialized recitations into the Pampa school system. L.L. Sone, high school principal who succeeded Fisher as superintendent, said, "Mr. Fisher has welded together the efforts of the entire faculty and has gained loyal support from every individual. His motto has always been, 'Be happy in your work.' One among many outstanding things that he has done is that of promoting music in the system through the bands and glee clubs. He has pioneered the field of band work in the elementary schools.

Underneath his picture in the 1937 Harvester, this caption appears: "R. B. Fisher, our superintendent, who gives to his administration of the Pampa Public Schools the viewpoint of a scholar, a man of practical experience, and an idealist."

(The research of John Mead at Lovett Memorial Library is greatly appreciated).

The first appearance of "Dear Old Pampa High School" in the Harvester was in 1931.

Paying taxes isn't my idea of fun

Well, not exactly.

He's the same one who bellowed about folks not working and pointed to some particular types of people. He said they needed to get a job. Since he was in a management/hiring position, I asked him how many of them he was willing to

You can figure out the answer.

Like most of you, I pay my taxes faithfully and honestly every year or every quarter ... and it's not the most fun thing I do. Though, I must say, not having to pay state income tax has been an ok deal since living in Texas. That's pretty cool.

And while tax paying isn't my favorite thing, I am not looking for some big tax cut, either. Besides, who do you know, except the very rich or very poor, who ever got a break when there has been a tax cut? And realistically, when tax cuts are made at the federal level, states, counties go up on taxes and/or fees. So what's really accomplished anyway?

Even if the middle class does by chance get a break, what's $30, or $50 or even $150 less in the whole scheme of things?

Right now there's this projected budget surplus hopefully in our future and the Republicans, including presidential nominee-inwaiting George W. Bush, are anxious to squander it on election-year tax cuts. Tax cuts that are too high to be prudent given the fact the surplus is a projection and given the Social Security and Medicare needs that should be taken care of first.

In reality, Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers pointed last week to statistics showing that millions of middle-class Americans pay a lower percentage of their earnings in federal income and payroll taxes than at any time since and local governments get hurt and they have to at least the mid-1970s. Although tax collections as a percentage of U.S. gross domestic product are at a post-World War II high, Summers said that is driven by higher overall incomes, including money made in the stock market.

er, frankly I'm a lot more worried about our environment than I am getting a tax cut.

The show made me think about a recent conversation I had with one of my other mothers. Miss Carolyn and Mr. Larry Joe have four sons with whom I grew up, went to school and church with, rode horses with and baby sat the two

Two of the boys are going to farm land this vear that my mother has an interest in. And for any of you farmers, you know how frightening it is these bad days to be a family farmer. Low prices, high costs. In 30 years of receiving income rom that land, last year my mother got less money than she ever has ... and we aren't talking about adjusted for inflation dollars, either.

One of the 'boys,' Larry, told me a few years ago that when he was a child he always got excited in the spring when he heard the tractors crank. Now, he says, hearing them makes his stomach hurt.

It used to be, Miss Carolyn said, that her husband readied the ground, planted the crops, plowed and chopped, sprayed, etc., got rain about when it was needed, harvested the crops then did it all again the next year. And did it all while raising a family and without having to borrow money on which to farm.

... But that was before all this crazy weather,"

Animal control laws need teeth

In the wake of the latest dog attack — this time two pit bulls maimed a 300-pound miniature horse — city and county officials need to take a look at putting more teeth into animal control

It may be that additional laws, addressing breeds of dogs that have a propensity for being vicious, are needed to keep not only our pets safe, but ourselves and our children, too.

The dog attack on the little horse follows an attack not too long ago in which coyote-killing greyhounds were set free on private property an act that resulted in the killing of a 12-year-old pet dog. The little dog was only steps away from his owner's door when the greyhounds pounced on him, ripping him to shreds.

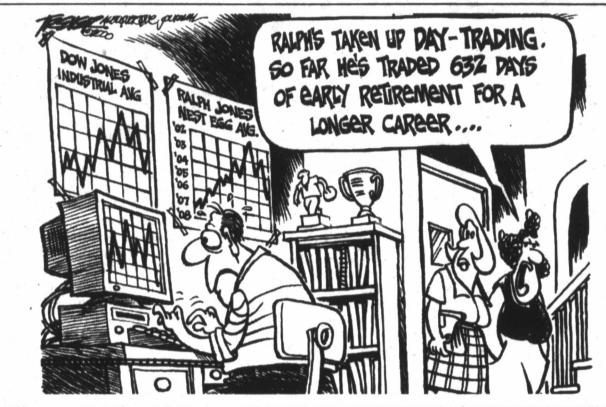

Just why people want dogs like these is another question all together but if they are going to have them, they must be responsible.

The owner of the pit bulls was quoted as saying his dogs escaped when someone left the gate open. With dogs like these, one gate simply isn't adequate to protect the public and pets from being maimed or killed

And once these animals commit such an act, they should be euthanized ... not put back into the same yards and pens from which they just

Today is Easter Sunday, April 23, the 114th day of 2000. There are 252 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: April 23, 1564, is believed to be the birth date of English poet and dramatist William Shakespeare; he died 52 years later, also on April

On this date:

In 1348, King Edward III of England established the Order of the Garter.

President-elect Washington and his wife moved into the first executive mansion, the Franklin House, in New York. In 1791, the 15th president of the United States, James Buchanan, was born in Franklin County, Pa. In 1896, the "Vitascope" system for projecting movies onto a screen was demonstrated in New

Rocky relations between U.S., Russia predicted

■ The election of Vladimir Putin as Russian president might cause trouble for the United States.

If there was any surprise in the election of acting president Vladimir Putin to the position of Russian president, it was in the small margin of victory — 52 percent, barely enough to avoid a

Then there is the potentially ominous fact that Communist Party leader Gennady Zyuganov came in second, with almost 30 percent. Putin faces a difficult job in trying to bring order and some measure of prosperity to Russia. In part because he probably will choose the wrong methods to achieve this, his presidency is likely to feature tense relations with the West, and especially with the

The hopes that flourished briefly after the collapse of the Soviet Union — that Russia would become a functional democracy with a thriving market economy — lie in ruins.

Without a working system of private property rights and a legal system willing and able to enforce legitimate property claims and contracts, Russia quickly deteriorated into a kleptocracy. It has a mostly criminal "family" surrounding President Boris Yeltsin and ruthless business people able to function well in chaos, gaining economic and political power.

As a KGB agent Putin was involved in efforts to bring foreign investment into the Soviet Union during the "perestroika" era, and he may see foreign investment as the path to future prosperity. But to keep public opinion behind him — here is where the Communist showing is ominous — and create the impression that he is restoring national greatness after years of humiliation from NATO and the West, he may have to pick fights with the United States.

So we can expect new criticisms of a U.S. missile defense system, resistance to further NATO expansion, veiled threats directed at the Baltic countries and criticism of Western activities in the Caspian region. What appears to be a burgeoning strategic-military affiance with mainland China is likely to be buttressed.

The emergence of what Cato Institute foreign policy analyst Ted Carpenter calls "a new breed of Russian politician — a noncommunist housebroken nationalist who will govern more like Boss Tweed than like Stalin" might not be a surprise. "The West blew its chances for a pro-Western Russia by hooking Russia on IMF money and rubbing its nose in its weakness, by expanding NATO and by the disastrous war in Kosovo," Carpenter said.

We don't look for Putin to find a miracle for the Russian economy, largely because he believes the key is a strong government rather than private property rights.

Russia's international ambitions likely will be effective only close to home — bringing Belarus closer to Russian control, asserting control in central Asia and the Caspian area.

It all suggests the United States watch carefully, and broadly rethink its Russia policies.

Government monopolies allowed full-rein

U.S. District Judge Thomas Jackson ruled that Microsoft violated federal antitrust laws and harmed consumers. Jackson found that the company: (a) used its position to "monopolize the Web browser market" to the detriment of competitors (b) "unlawfully tied its Web browser to its operating system" and (c) could be sued under state anti-competition laws.

U.S. Assistant Attorney General Joe Klein said the decision against Microsoft will benefit consumers by opening the door to competition. The Clinton administration's attack on spreading lies about the attributes and quality Microsoft, along with the court's acquiescence, of their competitors' product as a means to should worry all of us. Let's look at it.

The government's chief economic expert accused Microsoft of predatory pricing, a practice where low prices are charged in order to drive one's competitors out of business and then later raised to high prices. Fisher's testimony is a disgrace to the economics profession. If one surveys modern economic literature, or polls academic economists, he'd find very little evidence, if any, for the use of predatory pricing as a means to monopoly wealth. There are far more effective means to monopoly wealth that don't entail the costs and risks of a predatory pricing strategy.

Let's look at competition in general. The point of competition is to attract, to the detriment of your competitors, customers. There should be laws preventing people from bombing their competitors' production facilities or inition. Monopoly practices are not inherently evil monopolies.

Walter Williams

attract customers. Also, companies shouldn't be able to go to lawmakers to get laws passed witness, MIT's Professor Franklin Fisher, to the detriment of their competitors. However, legislators encourage that practice in return for campaign contributions. There's no evidence that Microsoft has committed any of these despicable acts to capture their competitors' customers.

Microsoft's competitors, in the high-tech industry, are the people who've gone whining to Washington — it wasn't customers. After all, Microsoft is as profitable as it is because customers like you and me voluntary chose its product. Computer manufacturers voluntarily installed its operating system, bundled as it is, rather than use some other operating system they were free to use if they desired. Microsoft, unlike Congress, has no power to coerce.

Many people think monopoly is evil by def-evil. For example, I hold a monopoly on the affections of Mrs. Williams. She holds a monopoly on mine. Read the Commandments. The first says, "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me." The second says, "Thou shalt not make any graven image ..." A third says, "... for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God." That sounds like a monopoly to me. If you assume monopoly is evil, then marriage and Christianity are evil.

There are monopolistic practices that are evil that we need to address. There's the U.S. Postal Service monopoly that threatens violence against anyone who competes against it in the delivery of first-class mail. There's the government education monopoly, a.k.a. public education, that's destroying our children whilst charging us higher and higher prices for doing so. Then there's the American sugar industry monopoly that gets Congress to enact tariffs and quotas on foreign sugar so they can charge us higher sugar prices.

The list of these government-backed and sponsored harmful-to-the-customer monopolies is virtually without end. Unlike Microsoft, who has been providing customers with higher and higher quality products at lower and lower prices, the government-backed and sponsored monopolies have been giving us at least higher prices if not lower quality at the same time.

I say leave Microsoft alone and go after these

Don't be too quick to judge police officers

Lots of people are yapping about police brutality. Many of them have hidden agendas (like discrediting Hillary Clinton's opponent in the Senate race in New York). But let's look at the subject anyway.

The first point one must realize is that the police officer is given the most terrible burden of any public official, high or low, state or federal. The police officer is given a firearm and authorized to make a life-and-death decision in a matter of seconds under stress, usually in the dark and with the information only his own eyes can supply.

Now compare that with a judge in a capital case. The judge is calm and not under stress. He or she has the benefit of all the information developed during the trial. The judge gets a pre-sentence investigation report and in most states hears testimony from people - pro and con — during the sentencing phase. Only after all of that does the judge have to make that terrible decision: Does this person live or die? And if the judge makes a mistake, the defendant doesn't get to kill the judge.

In the dark on the street, if a cop makes the wrong decision, he or she can get killed or be permanently disabled. Well, if you are going to put that terrible burden on the shoulders of police officers, you're going to have to cut them some slack. They're human, and, given enough confrontations, mistakes will be made.

It is grossly unfair of people, politicians and They are not like the actors in the movies who news-media types, with all the benefit of hindsight, to rush to judgment on an officer. To arrive at a fair evaluation of an officer's actions, you have to be where the officer was and know only what the officer knew at the moment. Because that's what drives the decision to shoot: the officer's perception at the moment of the threat against him or her and others, based on the only information the officer has — what he or she can see and hear.

Unfortunately, in a gunfight, you can't call time-out and go confer with a coach. It is really, really unhealthy to be the person who hesitates. And, unlike movie gunfights, real gunfights usually start and are over in a matter of

So, now that we are clear on the police officer's burden, let's clear up something else. Real cops hurt when they have to kill somebody.

mow people down and make wisecracks. In real life, taking a human life is traumatic and an emotional experience, unless you are a sociopath or in war, where killing becomes routine. Some cops have a hard time getting over it, even when the person they shot deserved it.

But lots of people don't know that. They've never seen a real killing. They've just seen thousands of simulated killings on television and in the movies. The motion-picture and television industries continuously distort reality. It's probably not an exaggeration to say that too much exposure to visual fiction over many years can induce a mild case of insanity.

So, don't be so quick to judge when a police officer is accused of acting wrongly. Look for the hidden agendas. It could be political. It could be people angling to hit the lawsuit jackpot. It could be a leftist trying to inflame racial and ethnic hatred as part of his long-term campaign to bring down the system. There are some bad cops, but they are far fewer than chronic critics of police work say.

And one more thing: If a cop with a drawn gun ever confronts you, do what the officer says and don't make any sudden or unannounced moves with your hands.

Remember that you're a sixteenth of an inch of a trigger pull and one second from death: You don't want to make the officer with the gun nervous. Staying calm will ensure that a confrontation will end peacefully.

Environmental laws, regulations need updating to reality

To the editor,

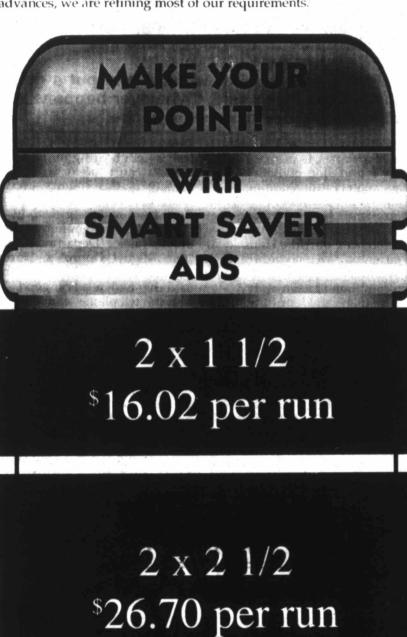

Fuel prices have not increased at average inflation rates, so we really can't complain about current prices. Think, what the price of fuel would be if it had increased the same percentage as motor vehicles in the past 25 years.

Liberal Democratic presidents have a hard time keeping our fuel supply in balance, they support a "radical far left-wing environmental faction," which is a major wing of the their party, and a weak foreign policy. In 1995, a Republican congress passed a measure to allow the petroleum industry to increase our production and supply more of our requirements. President Clinton vetoed the measure, saying it would harm the environment and was unnecessary.

The current Republican congress is making another effort with a similar measure. It has little chance of becoming law without support of Congressional Democratic leadership and a presidential veto threat. Under President Clinton, production declined 17 percent, usage increased 14 percent and imports increased to 55 percent of our

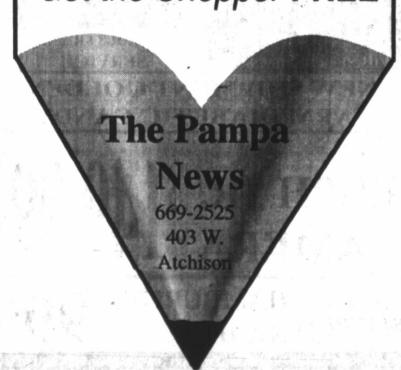

equirements

Environmental restrictions cost the oil industry $600 million in 1970, $7.8 billion in 1990, and an all-time high of $10 billion in 1995 — a 29 percent increase in five years with decreasing activity. Environmental restrictions on exploration, production and refining have resulted in 50 percent fewer refineries than we had 20 years ago. With technological advances, we are refining most of our requirements.

2 x 3 1/2 $37.38 per run

Run Weekly Or Every Other Week And Get the Shopper FREE

It has been 25 years since a new refinery was constructed in the U.S. primarily because of federal and state environmental policies excessive costs. If we continue the current policy of over-regulation of our petroleum industry by these federal and state agencies with bureaucratic interpretation of laws to suit their personal agendas, then imports will create shortages and unstable prices that control our nation's economic well-being and the continuous loss of millions of good paying jobs in the oil and allied industries.

We have states where their environmental laws prohibit exploration, production or refining of petroleum products. We do not need to drill in Alaska for oil, we need to drill more off-shore wells on the West Coast and along the Gulf of Mexico. If there are oil reserves along areas of the East Coast, open them up. The New England states and New York need a refinery to take care of their requirements. Every state should carry their fair share of risk.

Questions for our environmentalists: Which would be the worst disaster scenario, an off-shore oil well or an oil tanker breaking up? How many and how often do either occur? If Al Gore achieves his electric autos, where will the electricity come from? We already have frequent shortages in high population areas. Most of our electric generating plants use fossil fuels and create as much or more pollution than all of our autos, trucks, trains, etc.

Want to decrease pollution from fossil fuels 40-50 percent in the next 20 years from our current levels? Phase out current fossil fuel electric generating plants over the next 20 years, replacing them with nuclear powered plants with all new construction being nuclear powered plants. This will necessitate a major overhaul of our environmental laws which are sorely in need of updating to reality anyway.

We export technology to the world to construct and operate them in other countries. We have the fuel to operate nuclear power plants. How often and how many cause environmental problems? Spend the money we are putting into wind and solar power experiments, add in the cost of Al's electric car — these turkeys have taken enough of our money — and develop a nuclear-powered engine for travel on street, highway, rail and space.

This is the 21st century. If the youth of today see 50 percent of the changes we have seen in the last 50 years of the 20th century, this technology is not only possible, it will happen. Advancement depends on when they stop letting a few "radical left-wing nuts"

(with stripped threads) run their country.

Production shouldn't out-weigh human lives ...

To the editor

Pampa's Jordan Unit is home to Texas Correctional Industries which manufactures boots and canvas shoes for inmates throughout the system.

TCI has come under scrutiny from various labor groups due to the amount of jobs being taken from law-abiding citizens (over 5,000).

The local TCI in Pampa is sacrificing safety in lieu of production. The factory is dangerously overcrowded and is in direct violation of the Uniform Building Codes for manufacturing facilities. Using the occupancy load ratios provided therein, the capacity is double the required rate. In the event of an emergency — i.e., fire, tornado, prison riot, etc. — evacuation could reach chaotic proportions.

This matter is being investigated by unit safety and grievance per-

Help LifeGift save lives, be an organ donor

To the editor,

As the managing director of LifeGift, I work with families of organ and tissue donors every day. I see them in hospital emergency rooms when they have just lost a loved one, and I see them grapple with their pain during what is surely one of the darkest moments in their lives.

I also see them say "Yes" to donating the organs and tissues of a son or daughter, a spouse or a parent. My job is heart-wrenching work, but it is a most rewarding vocation.

More than 20,000 people received organ transplants in 1999, and thousands of them took place right here in Texas. During the third week of April every year, LifeGift celebrates National Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week to honor and remember the people in our area who have given the gift of life. We hope Organ and Tissue Donor Awareness Week (April 16-22) raised public awareness about the importance of signing a donor card and informing your next of kin about your wish to be an organ donor. It is very simple, but it can make such a difference.

You see, I have such respect for people who, during such a difficult time, are somehow able to see beyond their own despair and make a decision that literally saves the lives of others. To me, the miracle of transplantation occurs in that moment when a grieving family allows life to spring from death. I see this miracle happen again and again, and I am always moved by their courage and generosity.

Organ donors and the families who carry out their wishes are truly extraordinary. With their final act of generosity, they teach the rest of us great lessons — that out of death can come life, out of sorrow can come hope and out of crushing loss can come a gift.

Transplantable organs include hearts, livers, kidneys, pancreas, lungs and intestinal organs. Tissues include skin, bone and corneas. With these precious gifts, people who had been desperately ill get up out of bed and go home, rejoin their families, friends and co-workers and begin or resume active, productive lives.

Today, more than 68,000 patients are registered for organ transplants, but the current supply of donor organs does not meet this critical demand. Last year, an average of 13 people died each day because the organ they desperately needed did not come in time to save them.

We at LifeGift work every day to change those statistics with a powerful team of volunteers (many of whom are donor family members) in 109 counties and more than 187 hospitals throughout Texas.

In the West Texas region, we are constantly amazed, but not surprised, by the altruistic nature of the community as well as the support shown by area hospitals. This past year, organs were recovered from 36 donors, resulting in 110 people being offered a second chance at life.

You can help us, too. Make the decision to share your life and then share your decision with your family. You, too, can make miracles happen.

For more information about becoming an organ and tissue donor, call LifeGift at (806) 353-4334 in Amarillo or (806) 798-5568 in

Doesn't pay to ignore the risk of colon cancer

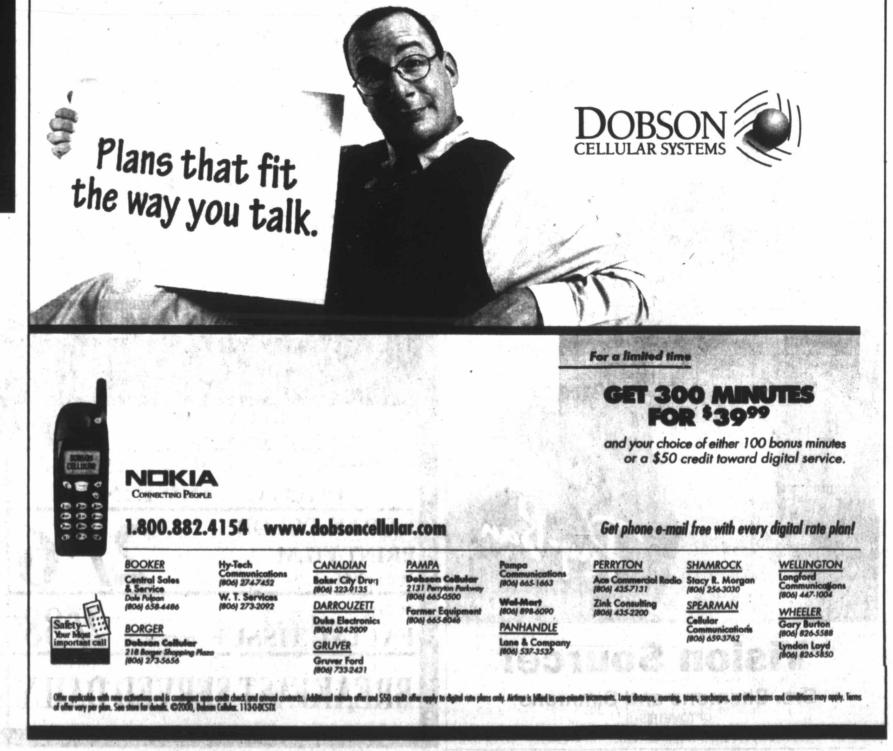

To the edito

Katie Couric of NBC's "The Today Show" has been on a public awareness campaign about colon cancer. Her husband died two years ago when the disease was discovered too late.

I am 59-years-old and had never had a colonoscopy and didn't want one, but my wife suggested on several occasions that I have one. She said from start to finish you won't even know, and it is an easy process.

I found an occasion to be at my primary physician's office, and he sent me to Dr. Sam Marupudi in Amarillo, Texas. I'm sure there are many physicians in Amarillo who can do this procedure, but my physician, who has practiced medicine for 50 years, recommended Dr. Marupudi.

It is my understanding that the polyps are a slow growth process, 10 to 12 years in some cases, and you don't know it's there. But when they become cancerous its growth and spread is fast and many times it is found too late...

Pampa Post Office is of local historic significance

One of the most historic buildings in Pampa was not included in those selected to receive the National Register of Historic Places and I submit the following information.

About 1930-31, the Pampa Board of City Development distributed "Pictorial Pampa," a brochure showing businesses and homes in Pampa. The brochure, done in sepia, consists of 24 pages each measuring 10x14-inches.

the 1970s) and the new Combs-Worley office building.

The foreword of "Pictorial Pampa" included this statement: "It (Pampa) has beautiful homes, fine churches, an up-to-date school system and paved streets. Moreover, its 'million dollar row' of public buildings is indicative of a much larger city and the Government has authorized the construction of a $180,000.00 Federal Building."

The Pampa Post Office building, the only federal building in Pampa, was dedicated on Aug. 8, 1934. The "History of Post Office" (published in 1982) begins:

"The Pampa Post Office was conceived in Washington through the efforts and influence of Congressman Marvin Jones, when times were good and before the full brunt of the depression was felt by the American people. It was felt that there would be no other post office building even approaching the beauty and magnificence of the local building, constructed in the near future in any town the size of Pampa, on account of the economy. However, the structure seemed to fit in with the progressive spirit of Pampa, the intense business activity and the quality of other new buildings erected in the city at that time.

The opening of the Federal Building to the public was an event of the moment. Its dedication constituted the greatest and most concrete gift that Uncle Sam could bestow upon an average community in a material way. Completion of the Pampa Post Office building climaxed an era of construction which was one of the most inspiring epics in the history of municipalities of the

Since the Pampa Post Office building was completed, the structure of any United States post office building is restricted to a box-like shape, made of undecorated concrete blocks. The Pampa Post Office building is one of the last two post office buildings in the entire United States that was completed — or ever will be — using the beautiful architecture of that period.

We need laws to protect us, livestock from dog attacks

I am the owner of a 38" miniature pony named H.E. who was attacked by the two pit bulls.

The story was lost in all the excitement. The following is what really happened as I saw it, Sheryl Lester, the owner of H.E.

A neighbor saw my pony H.E. being attacked, not just by one dog, but two pit bulls. She called the city police who stated they could not respond to the call since it was out of the city limits and for her to call Gray County Sheriff's Department. While this was going on, the attack was in full-swing.

Then the neighbor called another neighbor and asked who owned the pony and told her what was going on. Then this neighbor raced over to my home and told me what was happening. I ran over to my pens and saw the first neighbor trying to distract the pit bulls. They stated "the pit bulls have had the pony down three times." At that time, the Sheriff's deputy arrived.

The deputy went into the pen to see what he could do and I went in behind him. While the deputy was trying to separate the pit bulls from my pony, in a panic, I seized H.E. around the neck, who was bloody all over and near exhaustion from trying to defend himself. When I turned to lead H.E. away from the dogs, one of them lunged for my leg and the deputy (who I didn't realize was next to me) maced the dog.

After leading the pony away from the dogs, a city officer fired a weapon, causing the dogs to go home, which was in the city limits, to their owner, Nicholas Brookshire, 533 W.

Nancy Poole is just another victim of dog attacks to her horses in

The owner of the dogs stated to me the dogs had been put in a kennel. The next day my husband, Homer, drove down Doyle Street and saw one of the dogs on a chain.

Dogs may pose threat to human beings

To the editor,

It is fortunate ladies provided quick action to save a little 300pound pony from further injury from being attacked by two pit bull dogs. I am concerned that these dogs may pose a further dan-ger to the surrounding areas — livestock, pets and most of all the children in the area.

These two dogs were capable of getting a 300-pound stallion pony down to the ground, what chance does a child have? It is unfortunate that no one has the power to remove these danger-ous dogs until a human is attacked. These dogs have already tasted blood and are working as a pack. They will attack again if they escape their yard and that fence is not that secure. Caroline Bichsel

Each year, the JASON Project takes millions of elementary and middle school students worldwide on scientific "expeditions" without taking them from the regions in which they live. The expedition annually culminates at approximately 40 Primary Interactive Network Sites throughout the United States, Bermuda, Mexico and the United Kingdom, where students watch the expedition live and even control live-feed video cameras and communicate with on-site scientists.

Through funding from the ANRC, which twice has paid WTAMU's $68,000 annual PINS registration fees, the university has become established as one of only three PINS in Texas. Since 1999, more than 16,000 fourththrough ninth-graders have visited the campus to participate in the IASON Project.

However, WTAMU's participation in the project was jeopardized year when the U.S. Department of Energy cut funding from the ANRC budget, a portion of which had been used to underwrite the project on campus. Aside from PINS registration fees,

"These three grants, along with residual money the ANRC has given us, assures us that we can go forward with the JASON Project for at least one more year," Frannie Nuttall, WT grant writer, said. Meanwhile, we will continue to work at obtaining funding for future JASON Projects.

Advanced you-are-there telecommunications technologies are the key to the JASON Project, which Dr. Robert Ballard, the discoverer of the Titanic, founded in

The JASON Project is truly the best science program I've ever seen, and it would be a shame to see it end here," Brasher said. "This is a really exciting program, the kind of thing that can have an impact on kids.

WT will receive its $20,000 grant on Tuesday, April 25 when representatives of the NCE Foundation board and SPS visit the campus to honor several groups at a 3 p.m. reception in the Hazel Kelley Wilson Room at the Jack B. Kelley Student Center. Others receiving NCE grants at the event include the Canyon Public Library building fund, the Amarillo Independent School District, the

BASEBALL

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Marco Cunningham had three hits and three RBI, including his sixth-inning single that drove in the winning run, as Texas Tech beat host Kansas 9-4 on Friday.

Cunningham also had a double and another single as the Red Raiders (26-18, 14-8 Big 12) banged out 13 hits.

The Jayhawks (21-22, 7-15) tied the game at 4-4 in the bottom of the fifth on back-toback doubles by John Nelson and Doug Dreher. Nelson went 4-for-5 on the night.

But Cunningham erased that tie, then Kansas reliever Jeff Davis balked in Shaun Larkin from third.

Tech wasn't through. Chaz Eiguren blasted a two-run homer to left to score Cunningham in the eighth, and Eric McLamore scored on a sacrifice fly by Scott Holzhauer.

reliever McGinley (4-0) pitched 4 1-3 scoreless innings in relief of starter J.J. Newman.

KU starter Pete Smart (6-8) was saddled with the loss, having left the game in the putting sixth after Cunningham on.

GOLF

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Hal Sutton's golf game looks invincible these days.

He claims otherwise. One month after holding off Tiger Woods to win the Players Championship by one shot, Sutton will take a commanding five-shot lead into today's third round of the $3 million Greater Greensboro Chrysler Classic.

Sutton's 8-under-par 64 Friday included 11 birdies, but the PGA Tour's second-leading money winner insisted he can be caught.

"I have a great deal of respect for the game itself and all the guys that play the game," said Sutton, who finished at 13under 131 through 36 holes. "There are many, many capable players on this tour." However, Sutton's closest competition is Barry Cheesman, who has missed 111 of 178 cuts in his career and never won on tour. He moved into contention with a 66 and is at 8-under 136.

Seven other players are tied for third at 138, seven shots behind Sutton. That group included defending champion Jesper Parnevik, who shot a second straight 69, and Brian Henninger, who shared the first-round lead with Scott Verplank.

"In no way would I ever, ever allow myself to have that feeling that I don't think I can be beat," Sutton said following his best round of the season. "That is possible, by many folks. A lot of people can beat me." But there is no mistaking Sutton likes his position and chances over the weekend at Forest Oaks Country Club.

"We all aspire to have the lead," he said. "That's what we want. That's what we come here for. I just hope I'll be up for the challenge.

Sutton needed only 24 putts on the speedy greens, including birdie putts of 35 and 50 feet in carding a 5-under 31 over his final nine holes.

Allison captures regional honors at Tyler College

TYLER — Collegiate golfer Shelbie Allison, 1998 Pampa High graduate, captured firstplace medalist honors in Region 14 for the Tyler Junior College Lady Apaches this spring.

Participating in the Regional Qualifier Tournament in Midland last weekend, the Tyler JUCO sophomore shot back-toback rounds of 73, leading her team to second place. Allison was second-place medalist for the tournament, but won overall medalist honors for the region.

Midland College sophomore Linzi Morton, a native of Scotland, was the qualifying tournament medalist with a two-round total of 142. Midland won the team title with a 620 while Tyler beat McLennan in a playoff for second. Both teams had shot 628. Stars take first round

DALLAS (AP) - It's hard to tell which the Dallas Stars are more excited about, advancing to the second round or avoiding a return trip to Edmonton.

The Stars accomplished both Friday night by beating the Oilers 3-2 to close out their firstround Western Conference series in five games. A sixth game would have been Sunday in the raucous Skyreach Centre.

"I really did not want to jump on a plane tomorrow," Dallas captain Derian Hatcher said. "We wanted to spend Easter at

There's still some ringing in the Stars' ears from the shouting that began in warmups and ended long after the final horn during the third and fourth games in Edmonton. The fans might not have been also cheering between games, but it sure seemed that way to Dallas play-

"Edmonton is the last place we wanted to go," said Dallas center Mike Modano, whose two assists made him the franchise's postseason scoring leader. "They have one of the loudest buildings I've ever been in or played in."

The Stars managed to split the games there, then took care of business at home. They've beaten the Oilers in 12 straight games at Reunion Arena and have bounced them from the playoffs three years in a row.

Minus 4 starters, Mariners still defeat Royals, 10-2

First, Mike Cameron left the game with an injury, then Freddy Garcia. Then John Mabry. And then Edgar Martinez.

"It was like a war zone out there," team medical director Dr. Larry Pedegana said after the Seattle Mariners routed the Kansas City-Royals 10-2 Friday night. "I don't think I've ever seen so many injuries in this short a time. Even in a football game.'

Jay Buhner hit a three-run homer for Seattle, which sent Kansas City its seventh straight loss.

Jamie Moyer, Seattle's No. 1 starter, went on the 15-day disabled list before the game because of a strained muscle in the back of his left shoulder.

Cameron, Seattle's center fielder, bruised his left knee in the second when he was hit by a foul ball off the bat of teammate Dan Wilson.

PHS choirs sweep regional UIL meet

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

Pampa High School choirs swept the 2000 Region I UIL Concert and Sightreading contest at West Texas A&M University in Canyon, bringing home four "Sweepstakes" trophies.

The PHS choirs, directed by Fred Mays and Jennifer Scoggin, were among 41 choirs performing in the two-day event. Twelve "Sweepstakes" were awarded this year. PHS was the only school to bring home four of the prestigious awards, Mays said.

"The PHS Concert Choir, Concert Men's Choir, Concert Women's Choir, and Mixed Choir all won Sweepstakes," he said.

The Concert Men's Choir was one of two men's choirs to receive a Sweepstakes and the Concert Women was one of only two 4-A varsity women's choirs to receive a Sweepstakes. Only one other 4-A concert choir earned a Sweepstakes.

In addition, the PHS Women's Choir won a first division in sightreading and a second division in

"We are very proud of the Pampa choirs. They represented our school and themselves with great style. They were successful because they are talented and have worked very hard."

- Fred Mays, PHS Choir director

"We are very proud of the Pampa choirs," Mays said. "They represented our school and themselves with great style. They were successful because they are talented and have worked very hard. The Pampa High School choirs are recognized by regions all over Texas for this long-standing tradition of excellence."

Mays said Dr. Steven Weber, head of Amarillo College's choral department, said Pampa High School had the finest UIL performance he has seen in the eight years since coming to this area.

In UIL competition, each choir performs three selections from a UIL performance list and then participates in sightreading a piece of music the choir has never seen. A panel of three choral pro-fessionals judges each category, either concert or sightreading. The judges then rate each choir on a scale from I to V with a I, or first division, consid-ered a "superior" rating. To earn a "Sweepstakes" award, the choir must receive a first division in both concert and sightreading.

Judges for this contest rated all of the PHS choirs highly for musicality and high level of vocal per-formance. Comments made in the judging includformance. Comments made in the judging included "extremely talented," and that "it was a great pleasure to hear each of the Pampa choirs."

Judges for the concert portion were Sharon King of Garland, Michael Matlock of Lamesa and Walter Wright of Plainview. Sightreading Judges were Carl Brown of Frenship High School, Jo Scurlock-Dillard of San Antonio and Michael O'Hern of Garland.

Pampa's Concert Choir sang "Kyrie" from the Mass in C Major by Beethoven with solos by Tiffany Bruce, Traci Shelton, Josh Gibson and Dillon Hill; "Bimple Gifts" arranged by Clausen; and "Zion's Walls" by Copland.

Walls" by Copland.

The Concert Women performed "Laudamus Te" from Glorin by Vivaldi, "The Death of Trenar" by Brahms, and "Ave Maria" by Keating.

Songs presented by the Concert Men included "All Ye Saints Be Joyful" by Davis, "Mary Ann" by Franklin and "Herbslied" by Mendelssohn.

The Women's Choir sang "Velvet Shoes" by Evans, "O Clap Your Hands" by Knowles, and "Lachen Und Weinen" by Schubert.

Mixed Choir concert selections included "Let Joyful Anthems Rise" by Handel, "Confitemini Domino" by Constantini, and "O Waly, Waly" by McIver with a flute solo by Holly Myers.

Women turning to diet, herbs to keep healthy

By EMILY SPICER San Antonio Express-News

SAN ANTONIO — Englishwoman Linda Kearns was 52 when she found the dark spot on her breast, which she was convinced was cancer. After several tests, doctors told her not to worry. But Kearns was taking no chances. She stopped hormone replacement therapy cold turkey, even after 13 years of taking the hormones since surgery to remove her ovaries. The side effects were devastating.

"I had horrible symptoms: hot flushes, night sweats, palpitations, it was awful. I had to go back on (HRT) because I felt so dreadful," says Kearns, now 54. She then weaned herself off HRT over four weeks.

Her symptoms, while not as intense, were still bad. As a self-described lifetime wholefoods eater, with a background in nutrition, she decided to find a way to ease her symptoms naturally.

So she joined the thousands of women who start to experience menopausal symptoms seeking a different way to treat their menopause symptoms: through diet, herbal supplements or even plant-derived prescrip-

Menopause, when women stop menstruating, usually happens in women 50-52, but as local gynecologist Deborah McNabb points out, there is a wide range of normal. The problem with current HRTs, which use synthetic hormones and hormones from other animals, is that while some studies show it helps reduce the risk of heart disease and osteoporosis in post-menopausal women, other studies link it to an increased risk for breast cancer.

For that reason, McNabb says that women with a family history of breast cancer are not good candidates for conventional HRT.

Things can also get tricky when women have begun to question the standards of con-during peri-menopause, the stage before ventional, Western medicine, and who are menopause when periods become infrequent and irregular before stopping altogether.

Often, women in this phase suffer the same symptoms of hot flashes, palpitations, Relief for these women is hard to find,

McNabb says, because estrogen levels are fluctuating tremendously. One day, the body could have almost none, resulting in menopausal symptoms, and another day there could be a lot, perhaps resulting in menstruation. Giving the right amount of hormones at any given time is nearly impossible.

And with hormones, there can be too much of a good thing.

If a woman comes in with a great family history and she eats right and exercises, then she's probably a good candidate for getting HRT," McNabb says. (See, HERBS, Page 16)

Neck and Low Back Pain

What can cause neck or low back pain?

- Radiculopathy
- Myofascial pain
- Spinal Instability
- Spinal Stenosis
- Tendon/Ligament pain
- Repetitive Strain Injury

Physical Therapy treatment of neck low back pain

Physical Therapy department at the Pampa Regional Medical Center recommends treatment for any neck or low back injury as soon as possible to minimize any further aggravation, Treatment for neck and low back injuries occurs in three phases.

During the first phase, called the acute phase, a physical therapist will treat pain and inflammation. A specific treatment plan is developed for each patient and may include ultrasound stimulation, massage, myofascial release, and heat application.

In the second phase, called the recovery phase, treatment focuses on returning the patient to his/her daily activities. This goal is achieved through a individualized program for cervical (neck or lumber (back) stabilization, flexibility and strength training, a home exercise program and patient education.

The third phase, the maintenance phase, focuses on preventing further injury or a recurrence of symptoms. This consists of total body fitness including: aerobic exercise, body mechanics training, and further patient education.

Where There's a Will, There's A Way to Secure Pets' Future

DEAR ABBY: Please remind your readers, young or old, to make provisions for their beloved pets in the event of major illness or death. I have rescued more than 10 cats from the local shelters this week

These were all brought in individually by families of people who have passed away and made no specific provisions for their pets. The families are always happy to take the personal property, house, furniture, cars, etc., but the pets are up for grabs and end up in a cold, sterile animal shelter, not knowing what happened to them and why their home and their human companions are gone.

This is a real tragedy, and in most cases these animals are euthanized. The lucky ones are adopted by people like me who hear about their plight. Even if people cannot afford to have an attorney draw up a will, they should have handwritten instructions (holographic will) and leave it with a responsible person. There is no one to speak for these animals when their owners are gone. Please, Abby, get the word out to the public.

At $2 a minute, the doctor is in

Associated Press Writer

WALLINGFORD, Vt. (AP) — The board in the waiting room tells patients what they'll be charged: $2 a minute for labor, $5 for an ear wash, $30 for a knee splint, $10 for a suture, $2 for a large bandage, $1 for a small one.

If it sounds like a mechanic's shop, that's what Dr. Lisa Grigg had in mind. While waiting at the garage for her car one day last year, she noticed a board listing charges and wondered why medicine couldn't be that simple.

Now she runs Simply Medicine, an acute care walk-in clinic where patients know what services they'll get and how much they'll pay. Grigg takes only cash as payment and doesn't accept insurance. The 36-year-old osteopath treats ear infections for as little as $8 and wraps simple sprains for $20. For a $40 flat rate, she'll make house calls.

"You put a board up and tell people what you're going to charge them and skip all the middle people. Just make it reasonable," Grigg says. She says she doesn't need to make a lot of money and hopes to turn a profit next year. About two-thirds of her patients have health insurance, and Grigg's services are no cheaper than the insurance copayment they would make to see their regular doctor, she says. But for simple problems like a cold, most of her insured patients would rather walk in to Grigg's clinic than drive the often-congested seven miles into Rutland to see their doctor.

For more serious ailments, Grigg urges patients to see their own primary care physician.

Patients seldom have to wait long before getting to see Grigg. "This is just walk right in, look down your throat, $7. You're in and you're out," says Carol Martin, who works next door at the post office. She has health insurance and a regular doctor up the road, but she prefers the quick service Grigg

"I went with a sore throat and she gave me antibiotic. I would have waited until it got worse," she says, before seeing her regular doctor.

Martin brought her daughter in, and it turned out the 16-year-old had mononucleosis. Grigg hand-delivered the lab results to the post office the next day, Martin says.

In the age of managed care, when patients don't always choose their doctors, this type of encounter is rare. The one-to-one doctor-patient relationship is an ideal that Grigg wants to return

"The other reward about doing this is helping to repair the doctor-patient relationship," the soft-spoken doctor says in her office, an old house converted into a clinic.

"I wanted a way to return some control to the patient, especially about time," she says. "A lot of people come in quite troubled, and you're supposed to be able to see them in between 5 and 10 minutes and you're always pushing people. I have a real distaste for doing that."

Now patients can talk to Grigg for as long as they're willing to pay. She keeps track with a stop clock in her office, which she punches only after patient cuts down on the amount of tests and preshe has introduced herself and had a minute to

Rutland before leaving the practice last July. Many of the patients were on Medicaid. She grew tired of writing and phoning insurance companies to fight for coverage.

"I was very frustrated by insurance," she says. The demands don't stop.

Now her involvement with insurance is limited to giving patients receipts they can send to insurance companies. Grigg is not the first to shun insurance. A group of doctors in Seattle set up a program called SimpleCare made up of 200 physicians around the country. The doctors offer patients who pay in cash their "best prices" on office visits. A husband and wife in Denver have set up a practice called HMNo. Drs. Heather Sowell and Jonathan Sheldon say they want to treat patients based on for more complicated cases, but for acute care medicine and not on insurance coverage.

Patients pay in cash. Sowell and Sheldon charge $80 for a 20-minute interview and $240 for a full hour. If a patient knows he or she has an ear infection, the appointment will be quick. The doctors even do house calls and take phone calls at home.

They opened the practice in Colorado two years ago after working for Community Health Plan in Montpelier. Sheldon says he wanted to perform a bone density test on a woman for $150 to see how to proceed, but the HMO wanted him to prescribe drugs that would cost more than $300 a year.

They say their method of getting to know the scriptions they would have otherwise prescribed. the whole purpose will be defeated."

"It's odd that it becomes news when doctors Grigg spent three years in family practice in simply rediscover our role as healers and passionate patient advocates," Sheldon says.

Skeptics say that, though they appreciate the concept of doing away with insurance, it can only go so far.

"In concept, I think it's nice. Those of us that deal with the nightmare of insurance, government and regulation would love to be free of it," says Dr. Stephen Brittain, a neurologist at Rutland Regional Medical Center.

"I think it's very nice when patients are pay-ng," he says. "They really will think about what they're paying for. Presumably the physician will also think about that. The problem is with all the higher-tech diagnostics."

Grigg concedes her approach would not work sinus infections, earaches, and sprains — the concept appears to be working.

Another doctor works at the clinic one day a week, and a registered nurse works part-time, at half her emergency-room salary. "Just because I believe in it so much, I'm willing to hang in there," nurse Jeanne Raiche says.

Patients cross the border from New York and drive from Rutland to see Grigg. She figures she'll have to see nine to 11 patients an hour to make a profit; she hopes to reach that point next year.

"My biggest fear is that she'll be a tremendous success," Martin says. "That you won't be able to get in there and sign your name because there will be 40 people ahead of you all the time. And then
