FALL-SINCLAIR CASE IN MISTRIAL

Citizens to "Be for Charter All Day Long" Tuesday

MANY APPROVE CITY MANAGER PLAN FOR CITY

T. D. Hobart in Charge of Round Table Discussion

AUTHORITY IS DESIRED HERE

B. C. D. Provision Also Important Part of Document

Unreserved approval of the new city charter proposed for Pampa was expressed by each of a large number of speakers at the Chamber of Commerce banquet at the New Schneider hotel last night.

The charter, drawn up by a charter commission of fifteen appointed by the city council, and embodying what are regarded as measures keeping with the growing city and community, will be voted on November 8.

Charles C. Cook, president of the Chamber of Commerce, opened meeting and after giving the history of the charter movement introduced T. D. Hobart, chairman of the charter commission.

City a Corporation
"We believe we have provided in this charter the best for Pampa, both for the present and the future," Mr. Hobart said. "A city is a corporation, and the citizens are stockholders. The present city officials are doing their best with the present system, but they realized its limitations and appointed the commission to draw up a charter."

"There should be some one placed in authority, as in any other corporation, subject to removal on short notice. The city manager plan concentrates this authority, putting the manager on his heels to deliver results. He is employed from day to day. There are two commissioners and the mayor on the commission, and a recall provision affects them. City Powers Enlarged.

"We have examined many other charters and selected the best portions we believe, eliminating some provisions not applicable here. The powers of the city government would be broadened and strengthened. We have tried to cover every possibility, having in mind both the existing and probable future needs of Pampa."

Mr. Hobart called a number of local men for the expressions concerning the charter. Some of them follow, in part:

J. M. Dodson—"I am very much sold on this form of government. Other cities have found good men, and I don't see why Pampa cannot get a good city manager. He can be hired and fired easily if he doesn't do the work."

"Charter Is Need"
B. E. Finley—"The charter commission has worked diligently to provide the best for Pampa. I have made inquiries at a number of cities, and the more I investigate the more I am convinced that this charter is what we need here."

Chas. H. Sharpe—"I am for anything for the advancement of Pampa. I have studied the charter and I think the best thing we can do is to support it."

Ivey Duncan—"We have passed from the small town into a city, and now we have much more funds for every purpose. Our needs are greater. But we must explain these things to some who do not fully understand. I believe the charter will carry, and I intend to vote for it."

Indianapolis Might Work Mayors in Shifts

With two men claiming the mayoralty following the ousting of Mayor John Duvall, Indianapolis might solve the problem by working its chief executives in two shifts. Here are the claimants, Claude E. Negley (left) and Ira L. Holmes. Holmes claims the office by reason of appointment from Duvall as city controller, while Negley, president of the city council, has been chosen mayor pro tem by that body. Here they are shown seated at the executive desk while the courts are trying to decide who's who.

Tax Board Cannot Meet to Reduce Ad Valorem Rate

AUSTIN, Nov. 2.—Attorney General Pollard ruled today that the state automatic tax board cannot hold a special session, as proposed by Governor Moody, to reduce the state ad valorem tax rate from the present 25 cents to around 20 cents.

The Governor sought the opinion claiming improved financial conditions not foreseen in the July meeting of the tax board, justified the decrease.

German Envoy to United States Named Today

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, Nov. 2.—Dr. Friedrich Wilhelm von Preußner-Gaffron, counselor to the German embassy at Rome, has been confirmed as the successor to Baron Ago von Maltzan, late German ambassador to the United States. It was learned in diplomatic circles today.

Cold Wave Is Moving Eastward in West Today

(By Associated Press)
KANSAS CITY, Nov. 2.—A cold wave originating in the Rocky Mountain states moved eastward today after breaking up several weeks of unusually warm weather in the Northeast and Southwest.

The thermometers in Kansas and western Missouri stood in the upper thirties this morning, which is a drop of more than 30 degrees from yesterday's maximum.

A drop in temperature was also recorded in North Texas this morning.

TY COBB WILL CHANGE CLUBS

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Ty Cobb will not be with the Philadelphia Athletics next year it was announced today after a conference between Cobb and Connie Mack, the manager of the Athletics.

Bishop E. C. Seaman of the Amarillo diocese of the Episcopal church gave an interesting address at the Rotary club dinner today at the Schneider hotel. He took for his text, sign in a Pampa window, which read, "Boys Wanted."

Bishop Seaman said "boys are associating with some man every day. Chance often throws them with men who are weak or strong morally, and it is up to the men of your town to take that chance away."

Bishop Seaman is a powerful speaker and his address was much enjoyed by the members of the Rotary club and the guests.

Tom Nelson, area executive of the Panhandle council of the Boy Scout movement, stressed the Boy Scout institute now being conducted in the city and urged the men to attend.

W. R. Arnold of Panhandle told of the great work of the institute and urged the men to get interested in the boys.

Visiting Rotarians were W. R. Arnold and Roy M. Walker of Panhandle, Bishop E. C. Seaman and Tom Nelson Amarillo; and Kenneth Hudson of Ardmore, Okla.

Visitors at the luncheon were Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Riggs, Amarillo; Rev. J. L. Rice and Joe Coffee, Miami; Floyd Whalen and R. E. Miller, Texarkana; O. C. White, Dallas; S. L. Long, Ardmore, Okla.; V. E. Stephens, San Antonio; and B. E. Finley, of Pampa.

Prof. Schick Has Thirty-Fifth Song From Publishers

Prof. Otto Schick has received copies of his thirty-fifth published song, the name of which is "Sweetheart of Mine." He wrote both the words and music.

Several local musicians have expressed their approval of the new song, and Mrs. A. H. Donnette and Mrs. E. E. Fisher will use it as a vocal number.

This song, and another ready for publication, were written since Prof. Schick came to Pampa a few months ago. The unpublished song is "Morning Glories Bloom for You."

Copies of the song received today may be obtained from Mr. Schick, but his older compositions have been sold out.

"Sweetheart of mine" will be translated into Spanish and song by the high school Spanish classes, which like the melody very much.

Rensaul Producer To Have Been Shot At Noon

The Rensaul Petroleum company's well was to have been shot at noon today at 3,400 feet, where the first pay was encountered. No word has been received here as to the result of the shot.

The Rensaul well is in section 55, block 25 on the Mark Huselby lease. The well had been previously shot and was flowing 30 barrels daily from 2,859 feet. The total depth was 2,959 feet.

The separator is being placed on the Camel oil company's No. 1 Harrah, in section 163, block 3, which struck oil last Saturday and is spraying 100 barrels a day. The well will be drilled in within the next two days.

The LeFors Petroleum company's well in the Travis Leach survey, is drilling past some dropped casing, which was loosened yesterday and is to be pulled today. About 70,000 cubic feet of gas has been casing off from two depths. The well is standing at 2,655 feet.

Hereford Calves Weighing 500 Lbs. Sold by Hobart

Two hundred and fourteen thoroughbred Hereford steer calves, owned by T. D. Hobart averaged 500 pounds when weighed yesterday at the Hobart ranch at Hoover, and the rest on the Washita.

The calves were sold to Mr. Campbell of Wichita, Kan., who declared he had never seen a better herd of calves.

Search for Bandits Is Under Way at Houston Today

(By Associated Press)
HOUSTON, Nov. 2.—The search for the two bandits who robbed the First National bank at Texas City of $8,500 Tuesday shifted to Houston today when a car, believed to have been used by the robbers, was found here. The car was identified as one stolen from here October 37.

Tacks similar to those thrown in the street at Texas City and Fort Worth, following an attempted robbery there was found in the car, which caused officers to believe that both hold-ups had been planned by the same men.

WARREN G. HARDING

Resignation from his seat in the senate was necessary before Warren Gamaliel Harding could take office as twenty-ninth president of the United States in 1921. He was the sixth chief executive to hail from Ohio, where he had achieved a reputation as an editor and publisher of The Marion Star.

An orthodox republican, Harding was elected by an overwhelming majority, largely, it was believed, as a reaction to the democratic administration which preceded his.

Harding denounced the centralization of power which a war period had brought to his predecessor. His first efforts were directed towards "normalcy" and economy in expenditure. Accordingly he authorized a budget bureau in the treasury department and opposed a cash bonus to war veterans.

Harding disapproved of the entrance of the United States into the league of nations, but gave his full support and interest to the Washington conference on limitation of armaments, which resulted in a ten-year respite in naval increases by the leading world powers.

At least one president of the United States had an Imperial title. James Knox Polk, the anniversary of whose birth is celebrated today, was called "Napoleon of the Stump" because of his oratorical proclivities.

The eleventh chief executive, an anti-abolitionist democrat, was born in Mecklenburg County, N. C., Nov. 2, 1795. The career that led him to the White House began with a study of the law, brought him into congress, where he was made speaker of the house of representatives, made him governor of his state and finally brought him the presidency after a unanimous nomination at the democratic convention.

In his ardor to extend the boundaries of slavery Polk approved the annexation of Texas, which necessitated virtual war with Mexico in 1845-1846. The troops were recalled after the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.

AGREED THAT TRIAL COULD NOT CONTINUE

Jury Tampering Laid To Detective Hired by Sinclair

JUROR TALKED OF BIG AUTO

New Date Will Be Set Soon by Counsel

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The long, winding trial and Teapot Dome investigation took another turn today when the attempt to convict former Secretary Albert Fall and Harry Sinclair for criminal conspiracy ended for being in mistrial.

Charges of jury tampering including allegations that a detective employed by Sinclair had sought to make improper contacts with the jury led the court, prosecution, and defense to agree that it was useless to proceed further with the original jury.

Counsel will confer soon on arrangements for another trial with the government favoring a date in January. In the meantime, the grand jury is inquiring into the government's charges that the jury was improperly shadowed by detectives, and that one jurymen, Edward Kidwell, 31 years old, a leather worker, had talked indiscreetly in the case and of a "car as long as a block" which he hoped soon to possess. He described the charges against him as lies.

Kidwell was summoned before the grand jury soon after the trial jury was discharged.

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Expressing regret over the mistrial in the oil case, Albert Fall said in a statement today that Justice Hildons took what was obviously the right course.

Officers Will Enforce Parking Law at Fire

Members of the Volunteer fire department last night appointed Fire Marshal John Andrews and Officer Cottrell and Downs to plans means to make the runs to fires without being hindered by motorists.

Failure to park when the sire sounds, and the practice of rushing to fires are the principal dangers. Hereafter the officers will arrest motorists who violate the city ordinance and it will be the policy of the city to prosecute such cases to the limit it was said.

It has been found that the present accident policy protecting the firemen in case of accident or sickness resulting from duty is unsatisfactory, and a new policy will be taken up by members of the department. A subscription will be taken up by members this week to help pay the hospital bill of the firemen injured last Thursday night.

Mrs. R. J. Kiser, driver of the car which was in the collision with the fire truck, said today she had not been to the fire, but was caught in the traffic jam while going to the home of a friend who lives near where the fire was. She stated that the mass of cars, and the resulting dust, made driving very difficult.

DETECTIVES—Gov. Henry S. Johnston of Oklahoma may or may not have been reading the Benson Murder Case, but at least he has instructed the bureau of criminal identification to inform him of all murder mysteries.

Although praising the bureau for its work in bank robbery cases, the governor said "we have made some real progress, but this should only stimulate us to more intense activity. We have them on the run at this time. The number of bank robbers killed, those caught and sent to prison, and those awaiting trial administration should be proud.

while chasing bank robbers has been a science, many murder cases go unsolved for lack of deductive reasoning and the power to discover and follow remote clues. The suggestions appear to be well founded. The number of police departments or state bureaus who have men capable of following clues to their end is small, and both the personnel and the financial strength are limited in most cases.

Moreover, in oil fields a shifting population offers possibilities for not only repressing crime, but discovering wanted men who frequent such places. Co-operation between all kinds of officers, with efficient means of communication, will better the rather poor reputation of American law enforcement.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON—To Harry Sinclair, Teapot Dome has meant the difference between a good opportunity to become the world's greatest oil magnate and the present possibility that he will be branded as a felon and sent to prison.

At one time Sinclair hoped to obtain a concession covering all the oil in Russia, which is supposed to have the largest and most valuable oil fields in the world.

was laid for a concession, not as ambitious as Harry's original vision, but an important one such as no other interest had been able to obtain. Sinclair departed, leaving his European representative who, in November, signed an agreement by which a company in which the Soviet and Sinclair were to share equally was to exploit the Baku and Grosni fields.

The feelings of Standard Oil upon receiving this news can only be imagined. Standard had certain claims on the Baku fields which would have been worthless once Sinclair got in.

But when the lid blew off Teapot Dome, Sinclair became no longer a serious rival of Standard Oil in the great Russian oil fields.

Soon afterward, Sinclair lost out in the northern half of Sakhalien Island, where he also had a concession from the Soviets the carrying out of which was contingent on American recognition.

on all fronts, had aligned himself with the Standard interests. If Sinclair is acquitted in the present trial, it will be interesting to see whether he even again starts out on his own to recover his lost ground and attain the gigantic ambitions which once were his.

PRESS FORUM

Justice White on Crime. The address of Justice John T. White of the state supreme court to the Missouri Bar association was a thoughtful, interesting and helpful contribution to the general discussion of prevailing crime and the administration of the criminal law. While making a reasonable defense of criminal procedure and practice, Justice White admits certain weaknesses of both. His main point is that neither the law nor the administration of it should be charged with the abnormal crime conditions that have afflicted the country in recent years.

An impressive point made in this address is that if the fault lies with criminal procedure, the lack of effective criminal codes, then there should have been crime waves in the past of similar proportions. It must be conceded, as Justice White points out, that our criminal procedure has progressed rather than retrograded, and that our trial and appellate courts of late have been less inclined to let technicalities urged by criminal lawyers enter on behalf of these lawyers' clients.

At the same time, as suggested in this address, we must look beyond the legal system for the main causes of crime. A few of these causes are obvious. The psychological effects of the war, the high-tension age in which we live, a prevailing spirit of cynicism, a noticeable breaking down of moral restraints, the enticements for youthful indulgence if money can be had to indulge, the greater economical independence of young people, the facility of movement afforded by the motor car and the ease of obtaining cars for any purpose—these and less easily defined factors contribute to criminal tendency.

Unquestionably the greatest direct deterrent of crime is to make criminal acts dangerous to the life or freedom of the criminal. This has been notably demonstrated in the effects of the Baumes laws in New York and similar legislation in a few other states. Another great need is larger and more competent police forces in every city where crime is a grave problem.—Kansas City Star.

War correspondents are somewhat idle in Mexico these days, but perhaps they can be transferred to the British front near Chicago.

This is an age of unlimited opportunities. Let him who says times are getting worse consider the New York man who makes a living selling worms to zoological students of Columbia University.

Shed your tears over Weepah, desert hole that last March flourished with a gold rush, but which now is little more than a name. Oil is better.

The wise frequent the company of their betters, says a writer. The unwise seek the company of inferiors to get acclaim, but soon find themselves on the common level.

Our hotels are full, the streets bustle with activity, and mild Panhandle winters offer little discouragement to any activity. Look around you and see, as visitors do, the possibilities of your home town.

Panthers From North Plains Are Beaten Here, 36-7

HARVESTERS IN FIGHTING MOOD HERE TUESDAY

An Undefeated Team, Follett Is Turned Back

VISITORS LOOK GOOD AT FIRST

Score on Locals in First Minutes of the Game

Assured by an early thrust across their goal, the Pampa Harvesters Friday afternoon flashed their best form of the season to turn back the hitherto undefeated Follett Panthers, 36 to 7.

Both offensively and defensively, the local boys showed much improvement, breaking through a fighting Panther line. Six times the Pampa team crossed the visitors' goal, but not once could they muster the extra point.

This victory virtually clinched the division championship, since Panhandle high, whose team will play the Harvesters here November 11, has already been defeated. Shamrock, victors in that division, will come here November 13 to play what will be one of the most important elimination battles.

Perryon, scheduled to come here today, has canceled the engagement, and the locals will rest up for hard games approaching.

Follett kicked off, Herlacher having won the toss. He defended the goal, playing the wind. Roberts took the ball on his 10-yard line and returned it to the 30-yard line. Follett recovered. Three line plunges netted 12 yards and a first down. On the next play Follett used a criss-cross play. Crites to Brown for a gain of 23 yards and a touchdown. Crites kicked the forward pass for the extra point.

Stalls substituted for Clayton in the Pampa line. On the kick-off, Roberts carried the ball to his 28-yard line. Walstad carried the ball 55 yards over left tackle. Reynolds went in for Arthur. Carlton took the ball 4 yards through tackle and a first down. Carlton and Maness made 14 yards off tackle. Walstad carried 12 more through guard. Carlton made 11 yards and then carried it 2 yards through the line for a touchdown, but a pass for the extra point failed.

Stalls kicked off to Kahoe, who made to his 35-yard line before being downed. Three line bucks netted Follett 8 yards and Tites kicked to Walstad who was downed on his 39-yard line. Maness hit the lone hard for 12 yards followed by Walstad and Carlton for 14 more through the line. Pampa started a steady drive up the field with Walstad, Maness and Roberts carrying the ball 36 yards, Walstad going over for a touchdown after Carlton and Roberts had failed to make the necessary 3 yards. The try failed.

Still Scoring
Frazier went in for Kahoe in the Follett line. Stalls kicked off to Crites who fumbled, but recovered the ball on his goal line and made 17 yards, as the whistle blew for the quarter.

Brown, Crites and Heil made 11 yards through the line, followed by another criss-cross play that netted 3 yards. Crites fumbled and Herlacher recovered the ball which was given back to Follett for a 7 yard loss. Russell came out of the line to punt but Herlacher broke through to break it up and recover the ball on the Follett 8-yard line. Roberts then went over for a touchdown, but a drop kick went wild.

Pampa kicked off to the 33-yard line. Brown and Crites made 12 yards and two criss-cross plays netted Follett 6 yards. Kennedy broke through and threw Brown for a 3-yard loss and Heil punted to Walstad who made 15 yards. Walstad and Carlton made 9 yards, followed by a forward pass, Walstad to Salsbury, for a gain of 15 yards. A Walstad-to-Roberts pass netted 8 yards. Pampa was penalized 15 yards for holding, and on the next play Walstad fumbled and Follett recovered on tier 44-yard line.

Stalls Breaks Through
Three line plunges netted Follett 9 yards on an attempted criss-cross play. Stalls broke through and recovered a fumble. Walstad made 4 yards and the ball was on the Follett 45-yard line at half time. Score: Pampa 19, Follett 7.

Walstad took the kickoff and made 16 yards to his 33-yard line before being downed. Carlton made 5 yards then booted to the Follett 37-yard covered for a loss of 5 yards. Walstad then booted to the Follett 37-yard line. A forward pass, Heil to Travis, netted Follett 28 yards. The Pampa line held for three downs and Heil punted out of bounds on the Pampa 20-yard line.

Pampa then started another parade up the field. Maness, Walstad, Carlton and Roberts making 47 yards on three first downs, through the line. Walstad then passed over the Alex Smith, of the Smith Brothers of Caranostic, Scotland, is one of the pioneer Scottish professionals in American golf, and by all odds the most whimsical character.

A great golfer, Alex, and a former national open champion, a man of vast native intelligence and common sense. A plain-spoken man with a rough tongue on occasion, and not too great a patience with lady-like hitters of the little ball, either masculine or feminine—Alex was ever one to advise you to hit it, and not try to cajole it. Alex and his younger brother, MacDonald, Smith are quite at variance in their personal methods of golf. Where Mac Smith is regarded as the true "swinger" in golf, Alex, holding the club in a brawny and two-fisted grasp, smacks the ball with a stroke driven through viciously with the right hand and forearm. And he has done amazingly well with that mode, and has developed some of the great champions of golf, notably Jerry Travers, four times national amateur champion and once national open champion.

Alex to me always was deeply interesting by reason of his swift philosophy. He was, and is, a fatalist in golf. When he found the ball rolling against him—as the ball will do, inexplicably, at times—in place of railing at the breaks or furiously setting himself to overcome his luck, Alex would say, resignedly: "Awel, it's not my day!"

And he would play along calmly and easily, secure in the idea that if it was not his "day" this time, his day would come around later, perhaps when he needed it more.

Alex was ever a quick man on the putting green. He never took much time lining up or studying a putt.

"Miss 'em quick," was Alex's motto. And he didn't miss so many, at that.

He never cleaned off the line of line to Kennedy for 18 yards. Carlton, Maness and Roberts carried the ball 15 yards Roberts going over for a touchdown.

Some Passes Good
Crites took the kick-off on his 37-yard line. On the first play, Crites fumbled and Herlacher again recovered for Pampa. A forward pass Walstad to Salsbury, was intercepted by Brown on his 43 yard line. A forward pass netted Follett 8 yards, line plays gained 5 yards and Heil punted out of bounds on the Pampa 22-yard line.

DEMPESEY-TUNNEY GO BOOMS CHICAGO AS NEW BOXING CENTER

CHICAGO—The invasion of Tex Richard, with his heavyweight championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, has made Chicago a boxing center instead of leaving a famine in fistiana, as many predicted it would.

Walker, once welterweight champion, is on the trail of the world's light heavyweight title. No fighter in the history of boxing ever has held three world's championships, but Walker is determined to create a new record in fistiana.

Since the battle of the "long count" there has been more ring activity here than at any time since the enactment of the boxing law a year ago last July. The game is on the boom, unquestionably. Three title bouts have been booked for November.

Mickey is finding it difficult to make the middle weight limit of 160 pounds. He found it hard to get down to that poundage in his last defense of his title against Tommy Milligan in England.

The Dempsey-Tunney affair created fans, particularly among women, with the prospect that they will attend "standout" boxing shows in ever increasing numbers. Promoters are beginning to note their attendance more than ever.

Walker and McTigue fought once before, back in 1925, meeting in a 12-round, no decision battle, with the winner in dispute. Walker at that time weighed around 150 pounds, but he gave the one-time holder of the light heavyweight championship a terrific fight. Now Walker weighs around 165 pounds, is an inch and a half taller and figures he is a sure shot to stop McTigue, whom he believes has about reached the end of his pugilistic rope.

The season of winter ring activity starts off with the appearance of three title holders within a month, all of them under the direction of Promoter Jim Mallen. Mickey Walker, the New Jersey Irishman, and king of the middleweights, leads the parade of champions, in his engagement with Mike McTigue at the Coliseum November 1.

Mrs. H. H. Hicks has returned from an extended visit in Dallas.

Sammy Mandel, the lightweight title holder, will defend his crown against an outstanding challenger in the same spot November 14.

Ralph P. Lee, Western Kansas stockman, was the guest of his friend during the first of this week. Mr. Lee used to live in this section, and expressed amazement at the development that has taken place in Pampa during his absence of several years.

Bud Taylor, the blonde king of the bantams, engages Archie Bell, the Brooklyn challenger, on a date late in November, for what is regarded as the 118-pound title. This may be Taylor's last engagement as a bantam, because he is finding it difficult to make the 118-pound weight

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Williams of Perryton are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williams.

Follett relied on criss-cross plays for their gains, but after the first touchdown the local boys smothered that style. Repeatedly the ball would go from Heil to Crites to Brown before passing through the line, but was more regularly stopped at or behind the line.

W. H. Shields of Shamrock is in Pampa on business.

Crites and Tites showed up well at times in the backfield, and Harris and Arthur were doing some hard line punting.

Notice where Coach Stagg of the All-American football team, for a million dollars, All of which may be his, but I would hate to have, say one of my men pick him up.

able to agree on who was the best pitcher in the American League. It was all even between Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics, Muddy Ruel of Washington and Luke Sewell of Cleveland.

Stagg is perfectly correct in saying that no one man can pick an All-American. As a result, Walstad Camp had built up a system whereby he had assistance from at least a score of the leading grid players scattered all over the country.

It is said that since the writers were unable to agree, Ruth himself, named Ruel as the best of the trio of stars.

When the lineup finally appeared Ruel, who had been picked for the 1926 team, was again honored by being awarded the position of catcher.

Too Many Curves
It was generally believed by the players that Mickey Cochrane of the Athletics who had the best year of his career would be given the preference. I am inclined to think that even Mickey felt that way about it.

On the Philadelphia club are two of the best left-handers in the game, "Lefty" Grove and "Rube" Walther. Both boast a curve ball that is almost uncatchable for a left-hander.

Ruth came to the bat, both Walbers and Grove led him a curveball diet exclusively.

"So the Babe passed you up?" said Dugan of the Yanks, in a joshing way to Cochrane, the last time the two clubs met.

"Yes, and I know why," replied Mickey. "I signaled for too many curve balls any time I came to the bat."

There may be more truth than poetry to that wisecrack, for it must be admitted that Babe has a decided preference for the fast ball over the curve.

There was not a weak man on the Harvesters line-up. Each played the best football of the season, especially Roberts, Maness, and Herlacher. Walstad was playing his usual snappy game, and made the extra yards when necessary. Maness and Roberts were hitting the line hard and low for the first time this season and made long gains.

In the line Herlacher and Salsbury were going through repeatedly and tackling behind the line, while Stalls and Kennedy played their best games of the season. The rest of the line was especially good, holding repeatedly when necessary.

Heil, the Follett full-back, was probably the fastest man on the field. Big and rangy, he repeatedly got away for runs, but was always brought down before doing any dam-

Here are two reasons why Dartmouth is enjoying a successful fifth season: top, Coach Jess Hawley; bottom, Captain Bob MacPhail. Hawley and MacPhail are guiding an undefeated eleven to date.

"I—" he began, and stopped. Then finally: "At the switch."

"And where is that switch located, Captain?"

"I can't just recall."

"Think a moment. Surely you can remember."

"By the door leading into the hall, I think."

"Which side of the door?"

"How can I tell?" the major asked piteously. "I was too—nervous. . . . But I think it was on the right-hand side of the door."

"The right-hand side when entering or leaving the room?"

"As you go out."

"That would be where the book-case stands?"

Vance appeared satisfied.

"Now, there's the question of the gun," he said. "Why did you take it to Miss St. Clair?"

"I was a coward," the man replied. "I was afraid they might find it at my apartment. And I never imagined she would be suspected."

"And when she was suspected, you at once took the gun away and threw it into the East River?"

"Yes."

"I suppose there was one cartridge missing from the magazine too—which in itself would have been a suspicious circumstance."

"I thought of that. That's why I threw the gun away."

Vance frowned.

"That's strange. There must have been two guns. We dredged the river, you know, and found a Colt automatic, but the magazine was full. Are you sure, Captain, that is was your gun you took from Miss St. Clair's and threw over the bridge?"

"I knew no gun had been retrieved from the river, and I wondered what he was driving at. Was he, after all, trying to involve the girl? Markham, too, I could see, was in doubt.

Leacock made no answer for several moments. When he spoke, it was with dogged sullenness.

"There weren't two guns. The one you found was mine. . . . I retrieved the magazine myself."

"Ah, that accounts for it." Vance's tone was pleasant and reassuring. "Just one more question, Captain. Why did you come here today and confess?"

Leacock thrust his chin out, and for the first time during the cross-examination his eyes became animated.

"Why? It was the only honorable thing to do. You had unjustly suspected an innocent person; and I didn't want anyone else to suffer."

This ended the interview. Markham had no questions to ask; and the deputy sheriff led the Captain out.

When the door had closed on him a curious silence fell over the room. Markham sat smoking furiously, his hands folded behind his head, his eyes fixed on the ceiling. The Major had settled back in his chair and was gazing at Vance with admiring satisfaction.

Vance was watching Markham out of the corner of his eye, a drowsy smile on his lips. The expression and attitudes of the three men conveyed perfectly their varying individual reactions to the interview. Markham frowned, the Major pleased, Vance cynical.

It was Vance who broke the silence. He spoke easily, almost lazily.

"You see how silly the confessor is, what? Our pure and lofty Captain is an incredibly poor Munchausen. No one could lie as badly as he did who hadn't been born into the world that way. It's simply impossible to imitate such stupidity. And he did so want us to think him guilty. Very affectin'."

"He probably imagined you'd merely stick the confession in his shirt-front and send him to the hangman. You noticed, he hadn't even decided how he got into Benson's house that night. Pfyfe's admitted presence outside almost spoiled his impromptu explanation of having entered with his intended victim. And he didn't recall Benson's semi-negligé attire.

When I reminded him of it, he had to contradict himself, and send Benson trotting upstairs to make a rapid change. Luckily, the toupee wasn't mentioned by the newspaper. The Captain couldn't imagine what I meant when I intimated that Benson had dyed his hair when changing his coat and shoes. . . . By the bye, Major. Did your brother speak thickly when his false teeth were out?"

"Noticeably so," answered the Major. "If Alvin's plate had been removed that night—as I gathered it had been from your question—Leacock would surely have noticed it."

"There were other things he didn't notice," said Vance: "the jewel-case, for instance, and the location of the electric-light switch."

"He went badly astray on that point," added the Major. "Alvin's house is old-fashioned, and the only switch in the room is a pendant one attached to the chandelier."

"Exactly," said Vance. "However, his worst break was in connection with the gun. He gave his hand away completely there. He said he threw the pistol into the river largely because of the missing cartridge, and when I told him the magazine

Children Need Mother's Care, Not Governess', Says Mrs. Lowden

OREGON, Ill.—The surest way to get Mrs. Frank O. Lowden to talk animatedly and with enthusiasm is to mention children and child rearing.

She believes that the mothers of today in the upbringing of their children face the most perplexing problems of any in any period of history. From her own experience she proffers this advice: "No mother must delegate to an outsider any portion of her responsibility."

The daughter of George M. Pullman, one of the country's richest men and wife of Frank O. Lowden, former congressman and former governor of Illinois, Florence Lowden has been content to make motherhood her life work.

She has reared the four Lowden children on their great Mississippi estate of 4,500 acres at Oregon, Ill. When George M. Pullman Lowden, now 39, or his sisters, Frances, Harriet or Florence, stubbed their toe or bumped their head they went to mother for comfort, not to a nurse or a governess. As they grew older they spent their school vacations

A. T. CASE

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Vance eliminates Miss St. Clair as a suspect and prevents Markham from arresting Leacock when Pfyfe's statements strengthen the case against the captain. It is brought out that Pfyfe had forged Alvin Benson's name to a check. Paula Banning admits having loaned her jewels to Pfyfe to put up with Benson as security. Leacock confesses to the murder, but Vance believes he is lying and starts to trip him up on his story.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

"The color of it, I mean. When Mr. Benson sat before you under the table-lamp, didn't you remark some difference, let us say—in the way his hair looked?"

Leacock closed his eyes, as if striving to visualize the scene.

"No—I don't remember."

"A minor point," said Vance indifferently. "Did Benson's speech strike you as peculiar when he came downstairs—that is, was there a thickness, or slight impediment of any kind in his voice?"

Leacock was manifestly puzzled.

"I don't know what you mean," he said. "He seemed to talk the way he always talked."

"And did you happen to see a blue jewel-case on the table?"

"I didn't notice."

Vance smoked a moment thoughtfully.

"When you left the room after shooting Mr. Benson, you turned out the lights, of course?"

When no immediate answer came, Vance volunteered the suggestion: "You must have done so, for Mr. Pfyfe says the house was dark when he drove up."

Leacock then nodded an affirmative.

"That's right. I couldn't recollect for the moment."

"Now that you remember the fact, just how did you turn them off?"

CITY MANAGER--

ter. I think that under city manager government we can get quicker action. I am going to help put it over."

Ohn E. Hinkle—"The city manager or plan is relatively new, but the people of the Panhandle have never been afraid of progress. The charter, furthermore, contains many other provisions that commend it to the voters. The Board of City Development plan is, in my judgement, almost as important as the city manager provision."

T. Mason—"I am in favor of anything which will be an improvement. I have seen both kinds of government functioning. Much depends upon the kind of men selected. I think the citizens of Pampa are able to choose good men, and there is no argument against the proposed plan of government."

"Heartily in Favor

Tom Rose—"Pampa has great possibilities, but you cannot do anything well without someone having the responsibility. If the president of a bank had to consult his stockholders, instead of being given powers by the directors, he could not get very far. I am heartily in favor of the charter."

J. H. Lavender—"Study and observation have convinced me that the city manager government is the form we should have. I expect this city to have a good growth, and we need the form best fitted to promote it. Each of us should take a number of voters to the polls Tuesday. I am going to be for the charter all day long."

I. B. Hughey—"I have confidence in the judgment of the men who drew up the charter. I hope to see the election go over big."

The Rev. W. L. Evans—"You have something good in this charter. It is in line with other similar cities. I know of this plan, both in towns and cities. It is the better form of government. We should be enthusiastic in getting people to the polls. I am daily meeting visitors who are greatly impressed with our city. We must continue to go forward."

Secretary Scott Barcus—"We wrote to all Texas cities having the city manager plan by charter to obtain names of prominent citizens. We wrote to the latter for their opinion of the plan, and received more than one hundred letters from twenty cities. And although we made no attempt to pick the men, not a single letter failed to express approval."

Mr. Barcus sketched the history of the city manager plan. While the politician formerly planned city government for himself, now it is the business man who is doing this work. And naturally, business men modeled the government after their own affairs, and the city manager plan is the result, he said.

The necessity of getting out a large vote was stressed. Mr. Barcus commended the attitude of Mr. Lavender, and suggested as a motto "Be for the Charter All Day Long."

Sketches City Growth

Before adjournment, Mr. Cook recalled the history of Pampa, and how as the town grew it adopted statutes of the general law. But now the city has gone beyond these statutes intended for towns and villages. The present city government is behind the charter, and half of the members of the council were on the charter commission.

Mr. Cook, after pointing out some of the accomplishments of the Chamber of Commerce, said that much of its energy is wasted in raising funds for its support, but that the proposed charter makes the Board of City Development tax supported—the only fair and democratic method.

Christian Endeavor Closes Hallowe'en Season With Picnic

The young people of the Christian Endeavor closed the Hallowe'en celebrations with a picnic at Mrs. L. H. Greene's Monday night. The merry-makers were taken to the chosen place in trucks, and the first sight that they saw was a large bon-fire. Attending the fire was a real witch, who told the guests' fortunes and quarreled with the large number of ghosts who added spirit to the occasion.

Out-door games were enjoyed for a while, then the group gathered around the camp-fire and told ghost stories until a late hour. Miss Hazel Campbell, who played the part of the witch, added much to the merriment of those present.

Pumpkin pie, coffee, and apple were served to the group of about 30 young people present.

Mr. and Mrs. Heyle Are Honored With Farewell Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gray entertained a number of their friends Monday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. Heyle, who are leaving soon for Midland to make their home. The guests enjoyed a delicious dinner served them by the hostess, after which the evening was spent in the playing of Hallowe'en games, and bidding the honor guests good wishes for their enjoyment of their new home.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Dick Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. George Cox, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williams, Mrs. Lawrence Cox and daughter, Miss Elsie Cobb, and the honor guests, Mr. and Mrs. Heyle.

Mrs. Roy Webb Entertains Friends Of Son Monday Night

A group of the young friends of Roy Webb, Jr., were entertained in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Roy Webb Monday evening in celebration of Hallowe'en. The hours were spent in enjoying games and contests, novel prizes being given to the winners.

Mrs. Webb served delicious refreshments to the seventeen guests present.

Mrs. Harry Marbough Is Hostess to Club Tuesday Afternoon

Mrs. Harry Marbough was hostess to the Just a Mere Bridge club Tuesday afternoon. The rooms were beautifully decorated with Autumn flowers and other season's decorations.

During the interesting bridge games, the high scores for each table were won by Mrs. C. M. Bryson, Mrs. Walter Darlington, and Mrs. J. K. Holt. Lovely hand-painted handkerchiefs were given those winning the prizes.

Dainty refreshments of sandwiches, salad, dessert, and coffee, were served to the following guests: Mrs. Walter Darlington, Mrs. J. T. Clark, Mrs. W. W. Humphrey, Mrs. H. M. Lester, Mrs. H. W. Hickman, Mrs. Porter Malone, Mrs. C. M. Bryson, Mrs. T. K. Underwood, Mrs. R. W. Mitchell, Mrs. D. C. Hurst, and Mrs. J. K. Holt.
