BETTER LAW PROCEDURE URGED

Two Additional Names Are Placed on Ballot Saturday

OBORNE AND MASON WILL BE IN RACE

Now Two Out for Each Place As Commissioner

HOBART HAS NO OPPOSITION

Election of Tuesday Is for the New Government

Closing of the ballot list for the city commission election to be held Tuesday showed two additional candidates for commissioner.

The new candidates are D. W. Osborne for commissioner No. 1 and F. T. Mason for commissioner No. 2. T. D. Hobart stands unopposed for mayor as far as the ballot list is concerned.

Mr. Osborne, whose name was filed last, could not be reached by telephone last night.

F. T. Mason, present city commissioner, authorized a statement of his candidacy to be made by The News. He said that while he had no political ambitions, his friends placed his name on the ballot and so urged him to make the race that he finally consented. In doing this, he asserted, he considered his interest in the affairs of the city, and that his experience on the council might be of value in placing the new form of government in operation. Because of this opportunity, and recognized the importance of the commission-manager plan, he consented to the placing of his name before the voters. Mr. Mason was a member of the charter commission which drafted the charter.

The ballot in this election will bear the following names: For Mayor, T. D. Hobart. For commissioner No. 1, W. R. Campbell, D. W. Osborne. For commissioner No. 2, Lynn Boyd, F. T. Mason.

Twenty School Children Injured by Run-Away Car

(By Associated Press) NOGALES, Ariz. Nov. 19.—Twenty school children and two teachers were injured near Nogales, Sonora today when a run-away railway flat car crashed into a picnic party. More than 100 school children were trapped on a railway bridge across which they were walking.

The railway car was traveling at a high rate of speed down grade when it rounded a curve and tore into the crowd of panic-stricken children. Some of them did not see the car until it was almost upon them. Many of them leaped to the ground twenty feet below.

Several smaller children escaped when they lay down between the rails. They were unscratched as the car passed over them. Others hesitated and were knocked off the bridge by the onrushing car. Gil Media, chief of police at Nogales, Sonora, said the accident was unavoidable. No arrests were made.

QUIET SESSION

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—An ominous quiet settled over the grand jury investigation of the government's charges of jury tampering in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial as the jury reconvened in short session today without taking up anything in connection with the case.

Shown above is the big group of prominent newspaper men of the Panhandle, Southwest, and Middle West who as guests of the Cities Service company visited Pampa this week. The picture was taken in front of one of the buildings at the million-dollar gathering plant of the Empire Gas and Fuel company, located about a mile southeast of Pampa.

Scissors Grinder Murdered; Wife and Man Are Held

(By Associated Press) FORT WORTH, Nov. 20.—Charged with murder in connection with the slaying last night of Edward Wyatt, 58, a one-legged scissors grinder, his wife Lulu and Jim Langston are being held today. Mrs. Wyatt and Langston were arrested immediately after the body was found.

Harvesters Use Scoring Punch To Defeat Shamrock Irishmen in Brilliant Offensive Game Friday

By a score of 13 to 0, the Pampa Harvesters succeeded in breaking through the stubborn defense of the Shamrock Irishmen on Ayres field Friday and won the championship of sections 3 and 4 of District 1.

The first touchdown came early in the second quarter, when, on a fake place-kick play, Walstad outgeneralized the Irishmen and carried the ball 20 yards across the goal. Carlton carried the ball around right end for the extra count.

A long pass, Walstad to Clayton 25 yards from the goal, gave the Harvesters an additional 6 points late in the fourth quarter.

The game as a whole, however, was a closer contest than the score indicates. Quite frequently the tricky Irishmen backfield tore through the Harvester line or made sensational end-runs for substantial gains. Once they came in striking distance of the goal, only to lose the ball to the fighting Harvesters, who kicked out of danger.

Both teams were successful in making frequent gains through the lines. The Harvesters were stronger on end-runs, and netted a large portion of their yardage by this route.

Neither team was strong at passing. Pampa completed two out of six attempts, one of which netted six points. Shamrock completed two out of eight attempts. Most of her tries for passes came late in the game when other scoring methods seemed hopeless.

In first downs, Shamrock showed a slight advantage by making 14 first downs to Pampa's 10. The Irishmen were consistent gainers through the Pampa line, but lacked the necessary punch at the right time to score a touchdown.

The game was practically free of penalties. Only two five-yard penalties were given one for each team.

Outside of the stellar work of the Pampa backfield men, Bob Kahl, the roving center of the team, was the outstanding star of the game. Kahl was in on every play and was successful in intercepting three forward passes. He also recovered two

Country Club May Be Organized Here Tuesday Evening

The organizing of a country club for Pampa and the surrounding territory will be discussed at a meeting to be held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock. It is thought by members of the Pampa Golf club that the city is large enough to have a country club.

Plans are to secure a location where a 9 or 18-hole golf course can be set out and where a large clubhouse can be erected. All members of the Pampa Golf club and those interested in a club are urged to attend this meeting.

The present club was organized four years ago and has been a source of joy and recreation to its 40 members. The course consists of seven holes, which is considered too small. At the meeting Tuesday night P. B. Carlson will present a report on the present organization and its activities.

Columbia, Mo., Couple Are Married Here Saturday

M. G. Madorin and Opal Melloway of Columbia, Mo., were married here Saturday afternoon by the Rev. Joe Strother, educational director of the Methodist church.

Those present at the ceremony included Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Reno, formerly of Columbia.

Mrs. Madorin formerly was Miss Opal Melloway, until recently a student in the University of Missouri, where she was a senior. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Melloway of Columbia. Mr. Madorin is a son of Mr. E. F. Madorin of Columbia, and is a brother of Mrs. B. F. Reno of Pampa.

The young couple will make their home here.

Mrs. R. B. Griffin is visiting her mother in Henderson, after undergoing a serious operation at Dallas a short time ago.

New Wells But Gray County Is Slightly Slower

Although several new wells were reported, production in the Panhandle area fell off 1,755 barrels in daily production this week, dropping to 81,925 barrels. Every county with the exception of Wheeler showed a decrease, with Hutchinson county dropping 1,690 barrels.

Gray county slowed down to 14,155 barrels, losing 185 barrels, but this report is still large. The coming week's production is expected to increase production in Gray county, as several wells are expected to be drilled in. Two wells in the Bowers pool are expected in, while increased production is looked for in the Wilcox and McConnell pools.

Carson county continued on the decline losing 192 barrels while Hutchinson county tobogganed 1,680 barrels to reach a total of 59,010 barrels.

Wheeler county produced 1,415 barrels, or an increase of 285 barrels, while Moore county produced 20 barrels daily for an increase of 15 barrels.

After being deepened 120 feet, an increase of 240 barrels a day is reported in the Empire Fuel and Gas company's No. 1 J. F. Meers in section 107, block 3. The well had formerly been flowing 10 barrels a day from 3,180 feet and after deepening to 3,320 feet a flow of 250 barrels is reported, with a slight increase of gas.

This well was brought in several months ago for light production which, decreased. Following the successful deepening of several wells in the Wilcox pool of the Pampa field, the Empire company successfully deepened its Meers well for a large increase, natural flow.

The Last Chance Gas company's No. 1, (formerly Tipton-McConnell) McConnell in section 201, block 4, Carson county, is swabbing more than 100 barrels a day at 3,286 feet, with a light flow of gas. This well is being deepened after being abandoned at 3,025 feet several years ago.

This well has been taken over by local men who are drilling it in. The well was three years in drilling to its former depth when it was abandoned as a gasser.

Much interest is being taken in the Camel Oil company's No. 1 Harrah in section 163, block 3, Gray county, which is being drilled by B. E. Finley, W. R. Campbell and H. C. Twiford. The well is standing at 3,349 feet and will be shot Monday or Tuesday from 3,140 to total depth through three pay formations.

This location extends the field more than a mile nearer Pampa on the northwest side of the city.

The Empire Fuel and Gas company plans to deepen its No. 1 Hughey in section 129, block 3, which is at present making 10 barrels a day.

The Guernsey Oil company's No. 1 McKinney in section 163, block 3, is shut down at 1,050 feet to set 10-inch casing. This location is close to the Camel Oil company's No. 1 Harrah in the same section.

R. R. Osborne, local man, will drill a well on the McKinney lease in section 163, block 3, which is a direct offset to the Guernsey Oil company's No. 1 in the same section.

The Magnolia Petroleum company will drill a well on the J. J. Wall lease in section 162, block 3. This location is a half-mile south and a quarter-mile east of the Camel Oil company's No. 1 Harrah in section 163, block 3.

The Sun Oil company will drill a well No. 1 Jackson in section 94, block B-2, Gray county.

The Naville Oil company's No. 1 Sullivan in section 9, block 26 between the Amagray well and the Lefors townsite well is reported from

GRAND JURY SAYS OFFICERS ARE NEGLIGENT

Cites That Sheriff Should Not Take Fines

MANY PAPERS LOST ENTIRELY

16 Indictments Are Returned—All Are Felonies

Emphatic recommendations for closer following of legal procedure in Gray County were made by the grand jury in its final report Thursday, when Judge Newton P. Willis further discussed allegations that county officers have been negligent in many instances.

After stating to the grand jury that the facts and circumstances found by them had made convictions difficult or impossible in many cases, Judge Willis turned to a discussion of the county commissioners and the ways they may help to improve the situation. He declared it the duty of the commissioners to exercise greater diligence in requiring legal procedure in all county departments. And he particularly urged the immediate construction of a new jail, maintaining that the present structure is so inadequate that proper detaining of all prisoners while the necessary legal steps are being followed is impossible.

The full grand jury report follows:

We have returned into your court 16 true bills of indictment, all dealing with offenses of a felony grade. We have not inquired into any offenses of a felony grade. We have not inquired into any offense of a misdemeanor grade and have returned no bills covering these characters of offense because of the many felony matters which we have had to deal with.

We have endeavored to investigate every law violation that has been brought to our attention, and in every case we have tried to fairly and impartially view the evidence and do our duty under the law. It has been brought our attention that our county officers have been collecting fines in misdemeanor cases and at a later date having said cases docketed upon the dockets of the courts. This practice has been condemned time and time again by other grand juries and by the proper court officials of this county and other counties and consequently, we see no reason why such a pernicious system should not have been abolished long ago. A system of this character is not legal and will never in any instance work as a means towards proper law enforcement. The law violator knows that as long as he is allowed to pay the officers petty fines that he is nothing more than a licensee under the officials to violate the law. This system has been practiced considerably in cases where a violation of the prohibition laws was involved and in each instance the offender was made to pay a petty fine and then released. As a matter of law, the offender should either be punished by being confined in the penitentiary or acquitted by the proper court having jurisdiction, in the event he is found not guilty by a jury of his peers. We condemn this practice severely and strenuously recommend that every of-

THIS HAS HAPPENED

After accusing Markham of employing old-fashioned methods, Vance promises to name the murderer on a certain date. He builds cases against several persons and deliberately breaks them down—to prepare Markham to accept his case against the guilty one. He takes Markham to Major Benson's apartment, finds the gun with which Alvin Benson was shot and a box of jewels that had been taken from the scene of the murder. He warns Heath to beware of Major Benson when he arrests him.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER LVIII

"Well, Chief," rasped Phelps, "I guess your troubles are about over—though I sure did think that fellow Leacock was your man. Who got the dope on this Major Benson?"

"Sergeant Heath and the homicide bureau will receive entire credit for the work," said Markham; and added: "I'm sorry, Phelps, but the District Attorney's office and everyone connected with it, will be kept out of it altogether."

"Oh, well, it's all in a lifetime," observed Phelps philosophically.

We sat in strained silence until the Major arrived. Markham smoked abstractly. He glanced several times over the sheet of notations left by Stitt, and once he went to the water-cooler for a drink.

Vance opened at random a law book before him, and pursued with an amused smile a bribery-case decision by a western judge. Heath and Phelps, habituated to waiting, scarcely moved.

When Major Benson entered Markham greeted him with exaggerated casualness, and bulsed himself with some papers in a drawer to avoid shaking hands.

Heath, however, was almost jovial. He drew out the Major's chair for him, and uttered a ponderous banality about the weather. Vance closed his law book and sat erect with his feet drawn back.

Major Benson was cordially dignified. He gave Markham a swift glance; but if he suspected anything, he showed no outward sign of it.

"Major, I want you to answer a few questions—if you care to," Markham's voice, though low, had in it a resonant quality.

"Anything at all," returned the other easily.

"You own an army pistol, do you not?"

"Yes—a Colt automatic," he replied, with a questioning lift of eyebrows.

"When did you last clean and refill it?"

Not a muscle of the Major's face moved.

"I don't exactly remember," he said. "I've cleaned it several times. But it hasn't been refilled since I returned from overseas."

"Have you lent it to anyone recently?"

"Not that I recall."

Markham took up Stitt's report, and looked at it a moment.

"How did you hope to satisfy your clients if suddenly called upon for their marginal securities?"

The Major's upper lip lifted contemptuously, exposing his teeth.

"So! That was why—under the guise of friendship—you sent a man to look over my books!"

I saw a red blotch of color appear on the back of his neck, and swell upward to his ears.

"It happens that I didn't send him there for that purpose." The accusation had cut Markham. "But I did enter your apartment this morning."

"You're a house-breaker, too, are you?" The man's face was now crimson; the veins stood out on his forehead.

"And I found Mrs. Banning's jewels. . . . How did they get there Major?"

"It's none of your damned business how they got there," he said, his voice as cold and even as ever.

"Why did you tell Miss Hoffman not to mention them to me?"

"That's none of your damned business either."

"Is it any of my business," asked Markham quietly, "that the bullet which killed your brother was fired from your gun?"

The Major looked at him steadily, his mouth a sneer.

"That's the kind of double-crossing you do!—invite me here to arrest me, and then ask me questions to incriminate myself when I'm unaware of your suspicions. A fine dirty sport you are!"

Vance leaned forward.

"You fool!" His voice was very low, but it cut like a whip. "Can't you see he's your friend, and is asking you these questions in a last desperate hope that you're not guilty?"

The Major swung round on him hotly.

"Keep out of this—you damned slimy!"

"Oh, quite," murmured Vance.

"And as for you,"—he pointed a quivering finger at Markham—"I'll make you sweat for this."

Vituperation and profanity poured from the man. His nostrils were expanded, his eyes blazing. His wrath seemed to surpass all human bounds; he was like a person in an apoplectic fit—contorted repulsive, insensate.

Markham sat through it patiently, his head resting on his hands, his eyes closed.

When, at length, the Major's rage became inarticulate, he looked up and nodded to Heath. It was the signal the detective had been watching for.

But before Heath could make a move, the Major sprang to his feet. With the motion of rising he swung his body swiftly about, and brought his fist against Heath's face with terrific impact. The Sergeant went backward in his chair, and lay on the floor dazed.

Phelps leaped forward, crouching; but the Major's knee shot upward and caught him in the lower abdomen. He sank to the floor, where he rolled back and forth, groaning.

The Major then turned on Markham. His eyes were glaring like a maniac's and his lips were drawn back. His nostrils dilated with each strenuous breath. His shoulders were hunched, and his arms hung away from his body, his fingers rigidly flexed. His attitude was the embodiment of a terrific, uncontrollable malignity.

"You're next!" The words, guttural and venomous, were like a snarl.

As he spoke he sprang forward. Vance, who had sat quietly during the melee, looked on with half-closed eyes and smoking indolently, now stepped sharply round the end of the table.

His arms shot forward. With one hand he caught the Major's right wrist; with the other he grasped the elbow. Then he seemed to fall back with a swift pivotal motion. The Major's pinioned arm was twisted upward behind his shoulder-blades. There was a cry of pain, and the man suddenly relaxed in Vance's grip.

By this time Heath had recovered. He scrambled quickly to his feet and stepped up. There was the click of handcuffs, and the Major dropped heavily into a chair, where he sat moving his shoulder back and forth painfully.

"It's nothing serious," Vance told him. "The capsular ligament is torn a little. It'll be all right in a few days."

Heath came forward and, without a word, held out his hand to Vance. The action was at once an apology and a tribute. I liked Heath for it.

When he and his prisoner had gone, and Phelps had been assisted into an easy chair, Markham put his hand on Vance's arm.

"Let's get away," he said. "I'm done up."

(Thursday, June 20; 9 p. m.)

That same evening, after a Turkish bath and dinner, Markham, grim and weary, and Vance, bland and debonaire, and myself were sitting together in the alcove of the Stuyvesant Club's lounge-room.

We had smoked in silence for half an hour or more, when Vance, as if giving articulation to his thoughts, remarked:

"And it's stubborn, unimaginative chaps like Heath who constitute the human barrage between the criminal and society! . . . Sad, sad."

"We have no Napoleons today," Markham observed. "And if we had, they'd probably not be detectives."

"But even should they have yearnings toward that profession," said Vance, "they would be rejected on their physical measurements."

"As I understand it, your policemen are chosen by their height and weight; they must meet certain requirements as to left—as though the only crimes they had to cope with were riots and gang feuds. Bulk, the great American ideal, whether in art, architecture, table d'hôte meals, or detectives. An entrancin' notion."

"At any rate, Heath has a generous nature," said Markham palliatively. "He has completely forgiven you or everything."

Vance smiled.

"The amount of credit and emulsi-fication he received in the afternoon papers would have mellowed anyone. He should even forgive the Major for hitting him.—A clever blow, that; based on rotary leverage. Heath's constitution must be tough, or he wouldn't have recovered so quickly. . . . And poor Phelps! He'll have a horror of knees the rest of his life."

"You certainly guessed the Major's reaction," said Markham. "I'm almost ready to grant there's something in your psychological flummery, after all. Your aesthetic deductions seemed to put you on the right track."

After a pause he turned and looked inquisitively at Vance.

"Tell me exactly why, at the outset, you were convinced of the Major's guilt?"

BILLY EVANS Says

The Old College Spirit
"Well, I gave it the old college try."

That is a term often used in big league baseball, when some player keeps on going after a fly ball, usually in foul territory, with the odds about 10-1 he would never reach it.

Teammates of such a player often beat him to it by shouting in unison, with the thought of humor uppermost:

"Well, kid, you certainly gave it the old college try," as he falls short of making the catch.

On other occasions, when some player does something that professional player might not ordinarily attempt, such as colliding with a fielder who had the ball ready to touch him out, in the hope that he might make him drop the ball, regardless of the danger he was courting, someone is sure to say, often ironically, if the speaker happens to be one of the players in the field:

"That's the old college spirit."

In professional circles, there is a realization that there is a difference, but the treatment of the situation is more or less from the humorous angle.

Lived Up to Agreement

Within the past week or so, we have seen a number of concrete examples of the real college spirit and what it means.

Perhaps the most notable was the sportsmanlike attitude of Princeton relative to the status of Bruce Caldwell.

"By all means let Caldwell play," was Princeton's answer to Yale's action in declaring Caldwell ineligible, because as a freshman at Brown he had played two games of football.

That was typical spirit of old Nassau. I have always had the greatest admiration for Princeton but the attitude toward Caldwell greatly increased that feeling.

The transfer rule adopted by Yale, Princeton and Harvard really had no bearing on a case like Caldwell's. However, since it did apply in a technical sense, Yale ruled its star should be barred.

That was the old college spirit that Princeton displayed when it urged that Bruce Caldwell be permitted to appear in the Yale lineup.

The Georgetown-Lafayette game of a recent date offered a chance for Captain Claude Grigsby to display his sportsmanship, and he rose to the occasion in true All-America style.

Georgetown ran rough-shod over

Lafayette, winning 27-2. In the second period, while still having a chance, Lafayette, after a drive of 40 yards, had one of its players injured. About to take time out, Captain Cochran of Lafayette discovered he had gone the limit.

"I can't afford the penalty for excessive time out," he told the referee and ordered play to resume.

Captain Grigsby of Georgetown overheard him and finding he still had one more time out for his team, said:

"I'll take time out for Lafayette. Charge it to Georgetown."

That was more than a mere gesture on the part of the Georgetown captain, it was the old college spirit and it rang true.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—A powerful array of line-plungers, end-runners and passers from Southern California will seek revenge from the flashing lightweights of Notre Dame on Soldiers Field here November 26.

Howard Jones, still stinging under the one-point defeat handed the Trojans by Notre Dame last year, takes east with him probably the greatest offensive football team ever developed at the University of Southern California. Though U. S. C. lost nearly the whole of its team last year through graduation, Jones has made of his green material a perfectly working machine which has torn opposing lines almost at will.

The Trojan offense is built around its big blonde captain, Morley Drury. Not only does he call signals from the quarter berth, but he takes the snap and carries the ball through and around for long gains at almost every attempt. Alternating with him is Harry Edelson, fullback and short range batting ram. Don Williams, greatest driver in the Trojan team, relieves Drury when short gains are needed near the goal line. Both are good pass heaters. Howard Elliott is the third big threat. The Trojan defense is centered about the pass-intercepting Drury and Jess Hibbs, All-American tackle choice, in breaking up plays.

John Niemiec, who comes from the hill country around Bellare, Ohio, and who scored the touchdown that gave Notre Dame the 13-12 victory in the Los Angeles Coliseum last year; Christy Flanagan, of Port Arthur, Texas, and rangy Fred Collins from Seattle, Wash., are the Notre Dame stars who have flashed brightest this season.

Niemiec and Flanagan have alternated at left half and they began the battering that sunk the Navy, 19-6. Collins turned the tide of battle in the defeat of Georgia Tech, accounting for two touchdowns after brilliant 18 and 11-yard runs.

Flanagan, flipping passes to his

Friday friend, Kiley, signal caller, and a smooth moving front wall, just about completes the story of the Notre Dame offense, which brought sad sighs to the teams that felt its power this season. The 100,000 capacity of the stadium was sold out weeks ago for the Notre Dame-Southern California game.

H. Otto Studer is on a hunting trip in New Mexico.

Mrs. S. A. McDaniels underwent an operation at the Pampa hospital Friday night and is doing nicely.

F. E. Carter was able to leave the hospital yesterday and return to his home.

FOREIGN MARKETS—Despite the fact that neither major party finds it advisable to consider lowering of the tariff on farm products to stimulate world trade, President Coolidge has found it proper to suggest that agriculture would not be helped by drastic revisions in the tariff on other products.

Perhaps he is right when all is considered, but there are some Democrats who dispute it. Tariffs which protect certain manufacturers to the extent of enabling them to make big profits, sell implements for large prices, and suffer no competition from abroad are susceptible to criticism. Lower tariff would mean lower prices in this country. It might mean that the international exchange would be benefited to the extent that the farm market would improve.

How to buy profitably in order that we may sell is one of the biggest of present-day problems, especially since with our fine machinery we can produce more than we can use of many commodities. To hurt manufacturing is to injure the financial structure, just as poor farming methods and worse marketing opportunities injure it. Yet American manufacture is going forward, finding new markets and adding to the credit holdings of America, the world's banker.

Take automobiles, which are in nearly every American home and for which the market would seem limited. The present world demand for automobiles indicates the opening of a new field in the industry. Having demonstrated the need for automobile transportation abroad, the manufacturers expect to enjoy a growing demand there.

There were 322,000 cars and trucks shipped abroad during the first eight months of 1927 as compared with 222,000 for the corresponding period of 1926. The foreign motor truck market doubled. Roads in other countries are rapidly being made suitable for the pneumatic tire.

Cultivation of this foreign demand coupled with the ability of the people of the other countries to buy is enabling American manufacturers to compete with the factories of those other nations, and to invade many markets. If something similar can be accomplished for American agriculture, which has stronger competition, that industry too will be helped.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—It probably is mere coincidence that the best newspaperwoman in Washington is also the most attractive and the most feminine.

She is one of 13 girls admitted to the House and Senate press galleries among more than 300 men. Her name is Ruth Finney and she is correspondent for the San Francisco News and other Scripps-Howard newspapers over the country.

Miss Finney found herself in the news last month when the Fall-Sinclair oil trial opened and defense attorneys asked prospective jurors whether or not they had read any of her stories in the case. Miss Finney has a faculty of putting known facts together and letting them draw their own conclusions.

The Fall-Sinclair lawyers didn't want anyone on the jury who might have been impressed by her articles. She is reputed to know as much or more about the oil cases than any newspaperman in Washington. After a mistrial had been declared and an investigation begun, William J. Burns indulged in some fancy cussing during an interview with newspaper reporters outside the grand jury room and Miss Finney made careful note of the fact in her next day's story, much to the open disgust of a person named Burns.

Miss Finney's fame has spread so far that the other day she blossomed out as a public speaker on invitation of the Ohio Newspaperwomen's Association meeting in Toledo. She talked about newspaper work for women in Washington and elsewhere, with feminist touches.

"There were women in the press gallery years before the Civil War," she said. "Political newspaper work is easier for women in Washington than anywhere else. In covering state legislatures and home politics, most information is obtained in hotel rooms and lobbies or in saloons or elsewhere over a drink.

"In Washington, the senators and congressmen all have individual offices where it is easy and practicable to interview them. My chief difficulty has been that very often when I interview a man, he takes up a lot of time asking me how I happened to take up this work, how I like it and so on.

OUT OUR WAY - A Mental Hazard - By Williams

After getting past that stage, however, I have no more difficulty."

Apparently the only radio set to be found in congressional or senatorial offices is the one installed by Congressman Lamar Jeffers of Alabama some years ago. Jeffers was an officer in the A. E. F. and after the war, the army had some superfluous signal corps sets to sell. Hence the one in Jeffers' office, which has no loud speaker but two sets of ear phones. Jeffers hasn't much time to listen in on it during the day because, popular report to the contrary, nearly all members of Congress who stay in their offices at all are kept quite busy. And, incidentally, Jeffers is the only congressman who has a large "COME IN" sign on his door.

BARBS

(By N.E.A. Service Inc.)

This country seems to be full of dignified, self-contained politicians who will refuse to accept the presidency unless they are elected.

Oh, what is so rare as a day in November, in the Arctic zone?

A headline says: "California Girl Runs 26 Miles." But the story doesn't tell whether the man got away.

A Washington correspondent says Charles Evans Hughes isn't the man he was seven years ago. Neither is Lon Chaney.

Why is it that you never see two prize fighters evenly matched—dollar for dollar?

A woman is suing for divorce because her husband plays poker; another is suing because her husband won't play bridge. Men, you can't win.

Chicago has been fighting for home rule in the Illinois legislature. Maybe that's why Bill Thompson is so hot after King George.

PRESS FORUM

MUSSOLINIAL

Pampa Daily News: Mussolini has insisted that no special demonstration of any kind be made in connection with the birth of his fourth child, who, to repeat his father's words, is "the first of a new series." Yet many citizens have found ways of evading the dictator's ruling.

That man Mussolini has a good many drawbacks, from the viewpoint of a safe and sane democracy. But, at the same time, he has good points that should not be overlooked. And one of them is common sense. It is frequently pointed out by way of criticism that he was once a violent Socialist. That was when Il Duce was poor and ill-fed and did not like the situation. A great many violent Socialists could be cured by giving them lots of money. Since he achieved power and prosperity, Benito has not run with the Socialists. He has chased them. This edict concerning the Mussolinian progeny is another instance of his plain intelligence. A large part of the national debt of kingdoms is made up of paying for the ammunition, bunting and general entertainment in connection with the birth of various royal heirs as well as in meeting the bills for bringing them up. But, in spite of the arguments of hereditarians, the combined histories of all the royal families in the world is the best evidence that heredity has its failings more than its successes. A great King breeds a royal prince, but very seldom a great man. The fitter family folk will argue that this is due to failure to observe the eugenic theory. Doubtless, true enough. But until the race is perpetuated by a single parent along the lines of Jove and Minerva that tragedy will exist. Mussolini knows that the fourth child is just a little Mussolini, not another Il Duce. So why in heck celebrate? Of course, christening cups and silver spoons and ivory rattles will be welcome. The little fellows like 'em. But no salvos are needed. There is no real argument, by the way, against titles, although we don't have them over here. A man who performs a great feat might just as well be made a duke of something as have a medal pinned on him. But the dukedom ought not to be hereditary. Keep Mussolini around long enough and there will not be any titles in Italy. There may not even be an Italy. Sub S. P. continues to admire Mussolini more and more every day, and increases also his admiration for the fact that he admires him from over here instead of from over there.—State Press in Dallas News.

Hypnotism was used during an operation upon a woman in Chicago. Now, if some Svengali could only discover a way to hypnotize a woman when she starts talking about it.

It's better to stop for a minute at a railroad crossing than forever.

One way for the farmers to make money this year is to sell their corn by the gallon instead of the bushel.

One of the detectives named in the Fall-Sinclair trial was named Catchim. The very man to send to Europe after those missing witnesses.

Where New Yorkers Motor Under the Hudson

How New York has obtained relief for many troublesome traffic problems through the recently opened Holland vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river is evident in this remarkable aerial view, taken from 9000 feet. The twin tubes are the first vehicular link between Jersey City (A) and Hoboken and Weehawken (B) on the Jersey side of the river and congested downtown Manhattan (C) and (over the East River bridges) Brooklyn (D) on the New York side. It is estimated that 16,000,000 vehicles will traverse the tunnel annually.

FEATURES FROM OTHER LANDS

Vienna State Opera To Appear in Paris

PARIS—The war is almost over so far as the art and music of France's former enemies are concerned.

German music came back to Paris shortly after firing ceased but it was years before German artists and scientists were welcomed.

Vienna's famous state opera, however, is to send its company here in May and it will play in the government's Opera.

Many German art works also have been shown and praised here but every now and then a spark of the old flame of hatred starts a little backfire. When it was planned recently to show the works of the German painter Liebermann in the small museum in Tuilleries gardens, the government building near the statue of Edith Cavell, there was an outcry that caused it to be shifted to a private gallery.

When Max Reinhardt, the great German producer, was invited to play at the government's theatre, the Oden, there also was some criticism but he was welcomed when he came here and was entertained by theatrical folk. Gradually hostility is disappearing in the artistic world but there is a halt whenever someone tries to bridge the gap too rapidly.

French Automobile Tells Its Own Story

PARIS—An automobile that talks is the latest Boulevard sensation. Strollers admiring a chassis in the show rooms of one of France's most popular makes were startled to hear a hollow, frating voice coming from the entrails of the machine. "Before you, you have the famous B14 1928 model," it said and proceeded to reel off a fine line of selling talk.

The management claims that the phonographic salesman is bringing more business than any two living experts. It has the additional advantage of costing nothing for the makers of the phonograph are only too glad to provide it free for the sake of the publicity.

"Barman" Turns Bar In Parsian Homes

PARIS—"Bar" and "bartender" have turned French.

The bar is accepted now as a sort of "high-life" (pronounced igg-liff) adjunct and small private ones are regularly being installed in pretentious homes.

The bartender, however, has a name. He is a "barman" here.

The "Bar American" came here after the war and is inscribed on the windows of thousands of cafes, hotels and restaurants in France. It is not always a real, mahogany bar; usually there is nothing but the sign and a disposition to sell mixed drinks, so far as the mixing ability of the waiters permits.

The private home bar is considered quite "chic" in modern, frivolous society and photographs of new installations are shown quite frequently in magazines and newspapers.

Kentucky Women Seek State Office

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Three Kentucky women, two of whom are making their debut in politics, are trying for state offices in Kentucky at the November election. This is the largest number of women that have ever appeared on the ballot in the Bluegrass state.

Mrs. F. D. Quisenberry, a daughter of one of Kentucky's pioneer families, successfully defeated a male opponent for Secretary of State in the primary to represent the Republican party. She is now faced by Miss Ella Lewis, the Democratic nominee, who conquered her male opponent in the primary by a large majority. Both are embarking on their first political venture.

Mrs. Emma Guy Cromwell, the third woman to appear on the ticket, is at present Secretary of State. She was the first woman office holder in Kentucky. She defeated another "mere man" in the Democratic primary, and is opposed by J. C. Rogers, the Republican nominee for State Treasurer.

CHILDREN OF CHILDRESS WILL GIVE PLAYS

CHILDRESS, Nov. 18—The Children's theatre of Childress will present three one-act plays here tonight. About 60 members of this organization, which is said to be the only one of its kind in a small community in the United States, will take part in the plays.

The cast of the Children's theatre is composed of children between the ages of five and sixteen. The organization is independent of any other body and was formed through Emperor William the Second of Germany?

The announcement from Madrid that King Alfonso will preside at Barcelona in 1929, a congress of the Knights of the Order of the Golden Fleece, has brought the matter before the French public.

All the reigning sovereigns and heads of large European democracies are members of the order. A special clause says "that sovereigns who have abdicated or retired" must also be convoked. This would cause the King of Spain to issue invitation to both former Presidents Poincare and Loubet of France and Ex-Kaiser William of Germany.

These congresses are few and far between. The last one was held under the presidency of Emperor Charles-Quint during the 16th Century, after his abdication.

It was upon this occasion that the "abdicated sovereigns" clause was inserted into the rules of the order.

the efforts of Mrs. Anna Durlacher, Mrs. A. J. Brown and Mrs. Ray Green for the purpose of discovering and developing talent that might otherwise remain unknown.

The three plays to be presented are "Under the Rainbow," in which three choruses will appear; "Joint Owners of Spain," a comedy in which high school girls will participate, and "Tatters."

W. D. Hardin, formerly of Dallas and now residing in Amarillo, is visiting with his mother Mrs. Fanny Hardin and family.

Judge S. D. Stennis is in Dallas on business this week.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20—Asserting that correspondence between himself and District Attorney Gordon had been made public without his permission Justice Siddons today ordered an exchange made in part of the record in which he ordered the investigation to determine whether a contempt of court had been committed during the Fall-Sinclair tea-pot dome trial.

WELCOME TO THE METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY MORNING AND EVENING THEME, By Pastor, MORNING: "The Upper Room."--EVENING, "A Life Made Over." Mrs. J. M. Dodson Will Sing

International Sunday School Lesson BY DR. J. E. NUNN

International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday.

Micah Champions the Oppressed. Scripture Lesson:— Mic. 2:1-3; 6:1-13.

1. Woe to them that devise iniquity and work evil upon their beds; when the morning is light, they practice it, because it is in the power of their hand.

2. And they covet false, and seize them; and houses, and take them away; and they oppress a man and his house, even a man and his heritage.

3. Therefore thus saith Jehovah: Behold, against this family do I walk haughtily; for it is an evil time. Mic. 6:1. Hear ye now what Jehovah saith: Arise, contend thou before the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice.

2. Hear, O ye mountains, Jehovah's controversy, and ye enduring foundations of the earth; for Jehovah hath a controversy with his people, and he will contend with Israel.

3. O my people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? testify against me.

4. For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of bondage; and I sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.

5. O my people, remember now what Balak king of Moab devised, and what Balaam the son of Beor answered him; remember from Shittim unto Gilgal, that ye may know the righteous act of Jehovah.

6. Wherein shall I come before Jehovah, and how myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt-offerings, with calves a year old?

7. Will Jehovah be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? Shall I give my first-born for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?

8. He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?

9. The voice of Jehovah crieth unto the city, and the man of wisdom will see thy name; hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it.

10. Are there yet measures of wickedness in the house of the wicked, and a scant measure that is abominable?

11. Shall I be pure with wicked balances, and with a bag of deceitful weights?

12. For the rich men thereof are full of violence, and the inhabitants thereof have spoken lies, and their tongue is deceitful in their mouth.

13. Therefore I also have smitten thee with a grievous wound; I have made thee desolate because of thy sins.

Time: Micah prophesied during the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, B. C. 754 to perhaps 710.

Place: Micah lived in Moresheth of Gath, about twelve miles west of Bethlehem.

Golden Text: He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?—Mic. 6:8.

INTRODUCTION

The teaching of Micah possesses remarkable qualities both in style and thought. His language is vigorous, graphic, and varied. At times he is emotional and pathetic, anon terse and trenchant, and again elevated and sublime, as the occasion and subject demand. He does not quite command the grand style of Isaiah, but he is more sharply telling and direct. In width of survey and weight of movement he differs from his great contemporary, somewhat as a tribune of the people or a preacher of righteousness differs from a statesman of the first order.

Micah is the prophet of the poor. He is the preacher of social righteousness. More than that, he is the herald of the far-off Messiah. Mic. 5:2 is the prophecy of Christ's birth in Bethlehem which is quoted in Matt. 2:6. "And thou Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, art not the least among the princes of Judah; for out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel."

Micah Condemns the Oppressors. Mic. 2:1

"Woe to them that devise iniquity and work evil upon their beds." The wicked oppressors of Micah's day are represented as using the quiet hours of the night, when honest men are resting or communing with God, in fixing upon some evil scheme, and planning ways of working it out. "Might makes right" is their motto. Whatever oppressive deed they can do, they will do. They argue that if a man is too weak or stupid to hold on to his possessions, he deserves to lose them. The Christian principle, on the contrary, requires men to look out for their weaker brothers, and care for their interests as heedfully as for their own.

Micah's Earnest Call vs. 1-8

"Hear ye now what Jehovah saith, v. 1. Micah begins a number of his prophecies with the earnest call, "Hear ye." This great utterance (vs. 1-8) has been called "the most important in the prophetic literature"; it closes v. 8, with a definition of religion which is "the greatest saving of the Old Testament." The tenderness of the plea reminds us of Hosea, the appeal to argument reminds us of the wisdom literature. It thus seems to epitomize the teachings of the old Testament that it prepares us for the revelation of the New. It finally answers the question, "What is true religion? But the further question, How it can be realized, was not answered until Christ, "whose goings forth are from of old, from everlasting," appeared with the invitation and the promise, "Come unto me—learn of me—I will give you rest."—New Century Bible.

Human Sacrifices, v. 7

"Shall I give my first born for my transgressions, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul?" The story of Jephthah's daughter shows this cruel superstition for back in the days of the Judges; King Ahaz offered up his son on the fiery altar of the altar of the idol Moloch, and many other barbarous immolations took place in the Valley of Hinnon south of Jerusalem. The origin of these inhuman rites was the true idea that the best and dearest of our possessions must be dedicated to, and this outrageous form which the idea took shows how even the highest and purest thoughts may be desecrated and vitiated by superstition.

God's Three Requirements, v. 8

"And what doth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to talk humbly with thy God?" This famous verse rests on Deut. 10:12. Amos had urged justly dealing from man to man. Amos 5:25, etc. Hosea had taught the blessed doctrine of mercy. His, our own selves, the meaning of that plain word DUTY, or the meaning of those two plain words, I OUGHT. No; that simple thought, that thought which every one of us, even the most stupid, even the most sinful, has more or less, comes straight to him from God the Father of Light, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit of God, the Spirit of Duty, Faith, and Obedience."—Charles Kingsley.

The Prophet's Sadness.

The closing chapter of Micah's prophecy opens with a lamentation, "Woe is me!" cries Micah. "There is none upright among men." Princes, judges, great men, all conspire to be evil "The best of them is as a briber." Neighbors and friends and even wives no longer to be trusted. Sons dishonor fathers, daughters rise up against mothers, and a man's foes are they of his own house.

The Prophet's Confidence

But the good man holds up his head in the worst of times. Micah, though all men fail him, will look to Jehovah. "I will wait," he says, "for the God of my salvation; my God will hear me. "When I fall, I shall arise; when I sit in darkness, Jehovah will be a light unto me." The invincible confidence of the good man is in God. He will not see righteous forsaken.

The Prophet's Hope

And so the Book of Micah, with all its forebodings and denunciations and omens of doom, closes with a burst of sunshine. The door of hope is flung wide open. Micah sees the Lord performing again for his people such marvels as led them out of Egypt, while all the nations stand in awe at the disclosure of the power of God. "Who is a God like thee?" the prophet cries in a final paean of praise. "He will again have compassion upon us; he will tread our iniquities under foot; and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea."

ficer refrain in the future from following same.

We further note that in cases of a felony grade arising before the justices of the peace for preliminary hearing that the justices of the peace are very negligent with all papers in the case. In every instance the justice of the peace should first see to it that an examining trial is not waived by the state. Next, he should see that the testimony for the state is taken down in writing under his direction. Then he should see that all complaints, search warrants, the written testimony, and every other paper in case be carefully preserved by being placed in a sealed envelope and forthwith forwarded to the clerk of the district court to be held by him until the following grand jury convenes. Gross negligence has been discovered in many instances relative to the papers and on divers occasions practically all of the papers in a criminal case have been lost. The Grand Jury and officials are totally unable to cope with a situation like this and the result always is that the law violator is released and not made to suffer the penalty of the law.

Our county commissioners have been very delinquent in checking over the financial affairs of the county. Every officer in this county who handles the county's financial affairs should be carefully checked. The public funds of this county cannot be guarded too closely and carefully and urgently insist that the Commissioner's court require every officer in this county who may be entrusted with the county's funds be made to report monthly as to the funds which he is entrusted with.

The county attorney of our county should see that every paper in each criminal cause be preserved. He should prepare these cases for trial when they are brought before him on preliminary hearing and the name of every witness who may appear in behalf of the State, together with his address, should be preserved, and in the event it appears that the witness is a transient, he should be required to make a bond for his appearance. Along the line of officers collecting fines we suggest that the county attorney refrain from trying the cases and collecting fines but suggest that this matter be handled solely by the court. We suggest that the county attorney, in the future, stay with the Grand Jurors as from time to time they may convene. During our recent session, our county attorney absented himself from our body, which necessarily inconvenienced us because of the fact that he was the only one who was really familiar with the criminal cases presented to our body.

We have endeavored to do our duty as grand jurors during our brief session of eight days and in every instance without fear or favor tried to bring law violators before the bar of justice. With this final report, we beg leave of your honor for final adjournment for the term. Respectfully submitted,
SILER FAULKNER,
Foreman.

PORT ARTHUR, Nov. 20—The standing on prohibition of Al Smith flared up in the annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, here today. A resolution was offered describing the eighteenth amendment as "the greatest blessing which ever came to any nation."

During the discussion a resolution was made by the Rev. E. A. Maness of Lufkin in which he declared he would stump the state for Herbert Hoover in case that Al Smith was nominated by the Democrats.

fumbles by the Harvesters backfield, and broke up a punt.

Captain Herliacher was also playing great football, recovering a fumble near the Pampa goal line which allowed Walstad to kick out of danger. The entire Harvester line was holding when in danger and more than once the Irishmen lost the ball on downs with only a short distance to go.

V. Close, the rangy Irish quarterback, was the star of the Shamrock team. He made long gains through the line and around end. E. Close played the hiding game and accepted a forward pass with a clear field for a touchdown but fell and was tackled by Carlton.

The entire Shamrock team played good individual football but seemed to lack team play.

Next Friday the Pampa Harvesters meet the Canyon high school team. The coaches of the Pampa team are in Canyon over the weekend making arrangements as to where the game will be played.
