Sober guilty: Gets' 12-year sentence

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Staff Writer

After deliberating more than four hours, jurors found Justin David Sober, 23, guilty of intoxication manslaughter in the death of Stacey Kaye Sehorn.

After hearing evidence of previous DWI convictions and impassioned testimony (see related story this page) from the victim's father and sister, the jury sentenced Sober to 12 years in prison.

Sober remained in Gray County Jail at press time today awaiting transfer to Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) institutional division, according to Gray County Sheriff Don Copeland. Copeland said his office had not received the paper work needed for the transfer early today.

"I hope we will be able to take him to the chain bus in no one else has in this court-Amarillo," he said, explaining that the chain bus comes from TDCJ in Huntsville and picks up power," Warner said. "With that prisoners from this area to transport back to Huntsville.

He listed the numerous witnesses who saw Sober driving his C71 pickup the night of the fatal crash; Sober's repeated protests that though he didn't know who was driving, he was certain that he wasn't the driver; and Sober's lack of serious injuries while everyone else · found in the truck equipped with a driver's air bag either died or were seriously injured.

Cash for Trash pays out $5,550

By NANCY YOUNG Managing Editor

Paying Cash for Trash to Pampa residents last Saturday brought in more trash than the city could have collected in fourto-six months, said Jim Benton with the City of Pampa Sanitation Department.

The city paid out $5,550 for the trash taken to the Pampa Sanitation Department by local residents.

Local residents were in line to dispose of their trash and get a little money for it at 6 a.m. Saturday, said Benton. The gates didn't open until 8.a.m., he said.

He said some local residents appeared with mattresses tied to the top of their family vehicles while others had hot water heaters in the back seats.

Benton described the effort as a "tremendous success." "Our alleys are in excellent condition

because of the success of Saturday's program," said

Getting paid for the trash that had accumulated in alleys and backyards seemed to be quite an incentive to local residents. He said those taking advantage of the program experienced a wait. of one and one-half to two hours: to dispose of their trash. Benton: said there were at least 50 vehicles in line waiting to get their cash as they got rid of their trash.

Source: Giuliani dropping out of Senate race against Hillary

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - New York City Mayor with his campaign cash Rudolph Giuliani has decided to drop out of the U.S. Senate race against Hillary Rodham Clinton, a Republican close to the mayor said today.

The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the information came in a conversation with the mayor at City Hall.

"The mayor will announce today he will drop out," the source said.

Giuliani, plagued by health and marital problems, has been weighing his political future for three Republicans in New York City and Albany said they were getting telephone calls from the mayor but did not disclose what he was telling them.

Clinton said, "I will wait until we know for sure. ... I don't do anything different because of that. I try to do what I have done for many months now." "I have no control or say over what happens on the other side," she said. Another GOP official, also close to the mayor and helping to prepare for the news conference, said Giuliani planned to attribute his decision to his health. He is telling Republicans that "he can't devote his full attention to the race," the official said. There was no immediate word on whether Giuliani would endorse someone or what he does

Three weeks ago, the 55-year-old mayor announced he was suffering from prostate cancer and wasn't certain if he could continue in the Senate race. He said the political decision would hinge largely on his determination about how to treat his cancer and whether he would be able to campaign effectively while undergoing and recovering from

Republican leaders, including Gov. George Pataki, had passed the word that if the mayor bowed out of the race, their favored candidate to take on the first

The congressman, who has about $3.5 million in his campaign bank account, had been preparing to run for the Senate until August when Pataki endorsed the mayor's bid and asked Lazio to suspend his effort. Lazio did so.

Proposed Southern Baptist statement of belief opposes women pastors

NEW YORK (AP) - The Southern Baptists, America's largest Protestant denomination, have Southern Baptists, and local congregations would drawn up a proposed statement of belief declaring that women should no longer be allowed to serve as pastors.

The statement, released Thursday, will come up for ratification at the denomination's annual meeting June 13-14 in Orlando, Fla.

The text reads: "While both men and women are gifted for service in the church, the office of pastor is limited to men as qualified by Scripture."

While the text opposes ordination of women in the future, the 1,600 or so current Southern Baptist clergywomen, about 100 of whom are pastors leading congregations, would not lose their credentials.

The statement is not binding on individual remain free to ordain women. But the statement represents Baptist orthodoxy and affects hiring decisions by the denomination, which has 15.9 million members in 41,000 congregations.

The statement also includes other new wording against abortion, homosexuality and mercy killing that reflects the denomination's rightward shift in theology in recent years.

The chairman of the drafting committee, the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., said: "We receive and affirm those doctrines revealed in the Bible, and we are unembarrassed to take our

SKELLYTOWN

"Unfortunately, there are those who do not trust me, and I can no longer work under these conditions. The stress has become unbearable, even with the support of my caring friends and co-workers. I feel things are collapsing about us, and I can do nothing to stop it. Therefore, it is time for me we move on," said Ulmer in her letter.

She continued, "I will not leave the city in any kind of bind. I will be happy to help the person that will be replacing me. It may require spending time at City Hall after my date of resignation, but I will be more than happy to help in any way I can.
"My prayer is that the City of Skellytown will continue to make strides towards improvements. If everyone works together for the good of all, this community will not only survive, but thrive.

Ulmer told The Pampa News this morning that the citizens of Skellytown don't realize what is going on. She said a small group of people with special interests have caused the problem. She said much of the problem has existed since one person was elected to the city council a year ago. She declined to name the councilman. Ulmer said there are many good people on the council.

She said there were also local residents contacting the Texas Municipal League, and were representing themselves as council members when they are not.

"There have been so many rumors and innuendoes, and it's just a small minority. Most of Skellytown are great people," she said. "It's a great lin.e community."

Uln.er's resignation is effective May 31, 2000 Mayor Varren Kayler issued a two-sentence res-

'Due to continuing health problems I hereby tender my resignation for the position of Mayor of Skellytown. This resignation is effective immediately as of 7:55 p.m. on May 18, 2000," concluded Kayler's letter.

Kayler could not be reached for comment before press time today.

Borger attorney Tom Edmonds, Skellytown City Attorney, said this morning he was not aware of the resignations, and seemed surprised at Ulmer's res-

DPS Trooper Tony Polito told the court that on May 23, 1998, he arrested Sober on Texas 70 one mile north of Clarendon for driving while intoxicated (DWI). Polito said he stopped Sober after he saw Sober's truck cross the center line and come toward his patrol car.

Other testimony from Pampa police officers showed that Sober had been arrested for DWI three times before the fatal wreck on May 30, 1999. One DWI arrest was not prosecuted. On May 28, 1999, two days before Stacey Sehorn died, Sober was convicted of a second driving while intoxicated charge in Gray County Court and given a probated sentence, testimony showed.

Pampa Police Officer Cory Powell testified that he arrested Sober for driving while intoxicated -third offense after stopping him for traffic viola-tions on Jan. 21, 2000. Sober was free on bond in the Sehorn case at the time. He was then returned to jail with no bond allowed.

One DWI arrest was not prosecuted. On May 28, 1999, two days before Stacey Sehorn died, Sober "When the state is asking you to send someone to jail for 20 years, you need to be 99.3 or 4 percent while intoxicated charge in Gray while intoxicated charge in Gray County Court and given a probated sentence, testimony showed.

District Judge Stephen Emmert who presided over the trial read the court's charge for punishment to jurors before they left the courtroom. Intoxication manslaughter - second degree carries a punishment range of from two to 20 years confinement in a state penitentiary and/or a fine not to exceed $10,000, he said.

Emmert also told jurors they had the option of assessing probation for the defendant and/or a fine up to $10,000; or they could choose a combination of prison time and probation.

In his plea for probation, Warner told the jury that since his client has been convicted of a felony, Sober has lost his right to bear firearms, to vote and to obtain any type of state license.

You have the power to determine what is best for a 23-year-old kid who caused the death of a girl," he said, pointing out that most of Sober's offenses involved alcohol. "If you give him probation, they can send him to alcohol rehabilitation where he can get help.

"You should consider the totality of circumstances and the conduct of everybody involved," he said.

Mann countered by pointing out that Sober was not a "kid" but an adult.

"The brutal frank honesty is Justin Sober is a self-"Isn't it true law enforcement had it out for Justin ish young man who doesn't care about anyone but Justin Sober," Mann responded.

'Why should we give him probation now? It didn't work in Clarendon. It didn't work here in Pampa," he said. "Warner says he lost the right to vote, to have a firearm. Well, I'm here to tell you

Mann said if Sober was given probation "he wouldn't have any more respect for the laws or the rules than when he was convicted on May 28 for DWI and put on probation and he goes out the next day and drinks and drives and somebody

"Ladies and gentleman, if you decide to give him probation, please join me and go to Stacey's grave and help me tell her that her life was worth nothing more than a probated sentence," he said.

After hearing Warner's and Mann's passionate statements, jurors deliberated 90 minutes before returning and handing up a sentence of 12 years in the state penitentiary and no fine. At Warner's request, Judge Emmert polled the jury, all of whom answered "yes" to the 12-year sentence.

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — Jurors have acquitted an affair and that he struck the woman in the face a Henderson teen-ager accused of stabbing to death a popular high school coach.

Yvonne Oliver, 16, was charged in the Dec. 12 murder of her mother's boyfriend, West Rusk High School Coach Larry Jones.

Defense attorneys argued that the teen was acting in self-defense to protect her mother, Vernita Oliver, when she stabbed Jones in the arm and chest with a kitchen knife. Jones died about four hours later.

Rusk County juvenile prosecutor Bob Smith said the girl had other options.

She had six months to think of an alternative instead of taking this knife and using it," he said. "This was out and out murder. Her frame of mind was murder. It had nothing to do with selfdefense.'

The Jones family also was upset following the trial.

"It seemed like my heart stopped beating," Helen Wallace, the victim's sister, told the Longview News-Journal. "We're kind of shocked. We're sad house merited Yvonne defending her mother." because he (Larry Jones) was such a good person.

Sehorn was given permission to tell about the grief his family had experienced.

Grief," he said. "It's a hard thing to describe. You get so tired of dealing with it. It's like a chain around your neck and you can't take it off.

Every night you long to be able to sleep all night and not wake up every night about the time of that wreck," he said.

Sehorn said he still listens for the "thunk" of the front door about the time of Stacey's curfew and the sound of her bedroom door closing, letting him know she's at home safe in her room.

"All these things have become a total vacuum," he said.

Saying he spoke for himself and his wife, Sehorn said their marriage has remained strong despite the tragic loss of their daughter, unlike the marriages of many who have had children die.

'We're trying to carry on for one another," he explained. "The vows that were taken in 1972 are just as solid today.

"We hurt most for Shannon," he added. "We're 56. We're on the downhill side of things and we know that one of these days we're going to close our eyes and we'll wake up with Stacey. But Shannon, by her scheme of things, has a lifetime to live without Stacey."

"Stacey was the person I loved most in the world," Stephens said. "The gap in our ages only made us closer. I thought Mom and Dad had had her just for me.'

Stephens told of how she took her little sister with her almost everywhere "like she was a little doll," and how her sister became the "dorm pet" while she attended Texas Christian University. "She would color pictures for me and my dorm mates and hang them on the door where we could find them," she remembered.

On the day of Stephens wedding, she remembered Stacey crying all morning, "like she thought she was going to lose me.

> "We've pulled together as a family; we're very close," she said. But I'm so sorry my husband has had to adjust to being married to a different person. I'm not the same person I was before.

An occupational therapist for a rehabilitation facility for children, Stephens said her sister wanted to follow in her career footsteps.

She said that for five months before the wreck, Stacey had worked at ADVO, a sheltered workshop facility for the physically and mentally handicapped in Amarillo.

Stacey had always wanted to work for the physically and mentally handicapped," Stephens said. "She should be in college right now."

RELOCATING

Companies often reward valued employees with a push up the corporate ladder and a higher salary. An upward move in one;s career path may also bring relocation from a soft market to a more expensive real estate market. If so, employees should check their company's relocation benefits to see if it will share in any transfer-related real estate losses. Some companies deal with this situation on an individual basis, while others have a policy of reimbursing employees for a percentage of any loss they might incur on a home sale. Such programs take into account the discrepancies in real estate market activity among geographical locations across the country. A knowledgeable real estate agent can be invaluable in helping with relocation

In 1998 1 had the blessing from God to help coach a group of dedicated Christian young women. We didn't win any state championship and our season record was 17-6. However, that season was one of the most incredible spiritual experiences of my life.

At the end of practice each day every girl was expected to stand toe to toe with me, my nose about two inches away from theirs, and at the top of their lungs give the team shout. I still have a picture of that group on my wall in my office. At the end of the season, at the Pampa Academy Athletic Banquet, each girl stood up at the front of the Heritage Room each looking like a million dollars. One at a time, in front of every parent, classmate and friend they each shouted the team shout in my face and received a deafening applause. A few weeks later they each came to my church and willingly (kind of) repeated the process. Each time my heart almost burst with joy for them. Each of them still warm my heart when I think about those practices. Tiny girls standing up with fire and faith to a big old man with a mean look. I can't ever thank them enough for those wonderful afternoons

The words of that shout need to be something that more and more people are willing to shout from the rooftops. You men and boys would have to change daughter to son, but it will change your life. If you don't believe me, just try it. Stand up and shout these words and just see if it doesn't change something

My name is ****** and I am a blessed daughter/son of God, Living in abundance and praising the Almighty. I'm on the top and not the bottom.

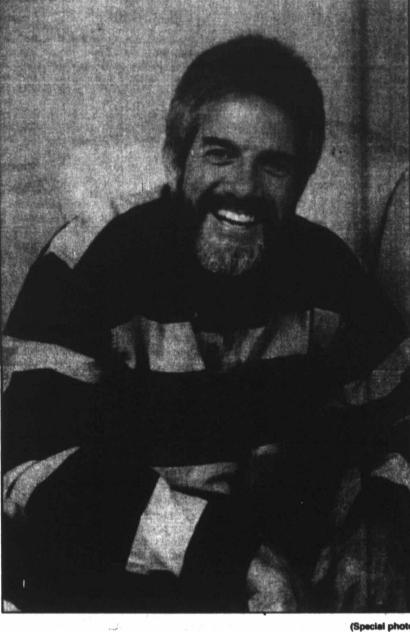

I'm above and not beneath. I have victory and not defeat. I'm an overcomer and not an underachiever. I'm not just saved, I have stepped over the line for Jesus. I won't look back, let up, slow down, shut up, back off or be still.

I am proud to be a blessed daughter/son of God Almighty.

HiLand Church hosts weekend revival

HiLand Church, 18th and Banks, will host revival services with the Rev. Arnold Walker of Athens at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday. Walker is a seasoned pastor and minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ. He and wife, Judy, work together in the ministry of word and music. Nathan Hopson, pastor, and the congregation of HiLand cordially invite all to attend these special services.

Best wishes to the graduates

Dear Seniors-For-Only-A-Few-Days-More,

By the time the press rolls next Friday you will be preparing for your high school graduation. Some of you will be nearly dancing with joy and others will be sad to the core that their lives are about to change so radical-

Whichever end of the spectrum you occupy, the anxiety of making that final walk, shifting the tassel on your cap and looking into your mother's teary and sentimental eyes will be part of that evening.

For you it is the end of the readin', writin' and 'rithmatic routines as you've known them for the last 13 years and a whole new world separated from you now by the space of a mere summer is about to open.

Some of you will marry in the next month or so, some will sign on Uncle Sam's dotted line and others will pack their trunks for college. Whatever you choose, your life change will be your own to make or break.

For those who might be planning to marry, all the books in the world cannot tell you how to be part of a successful couple, how to love one another until the day you die and how to treasure another human being like only God

Fromthe Back Pew... By Cheryl Berzanskis

For the young men and women who will enter the military service, may our national leaders have the sense to keep us out of a war which 18-year-olds like you will have to fight. For those packing up for academia, I suggest you read your professors' syllabus closely. Students have been known to fail a whole class because they overlooked some detail required by a cranky cld prof.

What you might find interesting, grads, is that the world is more complicated than you thought. Uh huh. Your mom and dad have told you that before, but when it's you standing on the side of the road with a car broken down because you neglected to fill the crankcase with oil, their advice might seem a little wiser.

Their moral advice, which might purposely designed to keep you from having a lick of fun, is not just the ranting of a terrified parent; it is the wisdom of the ages from the One who invented the idea of wisdom in the first

This is a glorious time in your lives with so many firsts - the first time to live alone, manage your money alone, make friends away from papa's watchful eye - but it might seem for awhile that firsts are your only score. If your mental and emotional hard drive is soon full from all you learn and there doesn't seem room for another first, relax. Your hard drive will expand to accommodate all that you choose to learn from life.

Because so many Pampa High seniors have been friends since elementary school, my heart will be a little heavy next Friday night as you transition from student to graduate. Yet as I cry a tear for the closing of your life's chapter, I will celebrate your accomplishments and exult in your dreams. God bless you, children, and be safe.

Your friend,

Watson gets sendoff to attend seminary

A luncheon was held recently at Dyer's Bar-B-Que in honor of Mike Watson. Watson will be attending the Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth.

Watson has been in prison ministry for three years, serving as an in-house chaplain and establishing a regular prayer meeting. Watson, J.B. Walker and Bob Anderson alternately taught the class. Watson also taught a Bible study course while under the leadership of J.B. and Bethel Walker. The course focused on the Book of John. In addition, he was a mentor and a dedicated volunteer. Those attending the luncheon were Reese Watson, John Schlewitz, J.B. and Bethel Walker, Melvin Dennis, Reed Kirkpatrick, Bob Andersen, Johnie Alexander, Jo Johnson, Margie Moore, Aaron and Kathy Farrah, Joyce Field, Chaplain Willard Kipee and Chaplain David Schlewitz.

Watson answered a calling in prison ministry where much work is waiting to be done. The Pampa prison ministry is always in need of volunteers. For more information, contact Bob Anderson at 665-4252 or J.B. Walker at 669-2266.

DEAR ABBY: I am asking that you get the word out to veterans across the country and encourage them to start a Veterans in the Classroom program in their local schools. We started the program described below after a history teacher called for help in teaching her students what the war was really like. These are stories that cannot be found in history books.

One veteran from each branch of service, and from both the European and Pacific theaters, make up the program panel. Before the presentation, we ask that students submit five questions that interest them most. During our presentation, we try to address as many of those questions as possible. Each vet covers the following topics:

1. A brief personal history from enlistment to overseas departure. 2. Arrival overseas - where,

when, major battles, etc.

3. A close-call story. 4. A funny-experience story. 5. Time for questions and

AUTO RACING

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) -Qualifying for the Indianapolis 500 can be terrifying.

"I never hyperventilated any place but here in qualifying, said retired star Mario Andretti, who was honored Thursday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

In the unique qualifying format for the May 28 race, the drivers must complete a fourlap, 10-mile run.

Their average speed determines if they make the 33-car field and where they will start the 500-mile event.

"It's a good thing it's a big oval," Andretti said, grinning. "Sometimes, those four laps were harder than a 200-mile race and I needed the time on the cool-down to keep from being embarrassed."

Like Andretti, who won the 1969 Indy 500 and three poles on the 2 1/2-mile oval, Rick Mears, a four-time race-winner and six-time pole-winner here, also considers qualifying for it as one of the hardest things he ever did on a racetrack. Mears, who was honored by the speedway on Wednesday, said, "I never believed I could hold my breath for four laps on a 2 1/2-mile oval, but I did every time I went out there."

Liquid crystals — the state of matter that has both liquid and crystalline characteristics - are capable of inexpensively storing and retrieving information at high rates of speed and in three-dimensional form. Carlisle's research has focused on storage and retrieval capabilities of liquid crystals through diffraction-shooting intersecting laser beams through the crystals. One beam carries information, while the other beam seeks to retrieve it. The results of his research have been published in an international journal and presented at international and national meetings.

Parker, who is in his fourth year at the university, has established an extensive track record in research related to agricultural waste management. Since arriving at WTAMU, he has published nine articles and has an additional seven in publication or review. In 2000, he has already published three articles in peer-reviewed journals. He has presented eight American Society of Agricultural Engineers conference papers and 20 other conference proceedings or abstracts. He has also received eight grants from federal, state and regional entities totaling more than $150,000. He has also served as the major professor for eight graduate students and as a committee member for five others. All 13 have completed master of science degrees.

To say that David Parker is having an impact on the future scientific capacity of agriculture in the Texas Panhandle is truly an understatement," Dr. Don Topliff, head of the WTAMU Division of Agriculture, said in nominating Parker. "The influence of his graduate mentoring will be felt worldwide."

Smith oversees the WTAMU's Master of Professional Accounting Program, which now has 25 students and has already produced graduates who consistently pass the Certified Public Accountant's exam and obtain employment. She teaches three of the four graduate seminar courses required in the program and four senior level courses that can be taken for graduate credit. She has published several articles and co-authored a book directed at the 60-plus investor.

"Dr. Darlene Smith is the perfect candidate for Distinguished Graduate Faculty Member," Todd Weddington, WTAMU president of the Accounting Club, wrote in nominating Smith. "Her extensive knowledge of accounting and tax is surpassed only by her desire to help her students succeed."

Izat helped develop the university's instructional technology degree. His efforts have included teaching on-line courses and helping students develop on-line materials. Last summer, Izat instructed a group of Taiwanese teachers who came to Canyon to start the graduate program and are completing their coursework on-line in Taiwan.

"Dr. Izat's commitment to developing a clear instructional design is exceeded only by his personal commitment to maintaining personal contact with each of his students," nating Izat for the award.

Nominations for the Teaching and Research/Creative effectiveness. Excellence and the Distinguished Graduate Faculty Member honors were solicited from faculty, students and and a $1,000 cash stipend.

Dr. George Mann, professor of education, wrote in nomi- alumni. Selection was based on outstanding teaching, advising and other activities directly related to classroom

Each faculty award winner received an engraved plaque
