No ticket(s) correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said.

The ticket would have been worth an estimated $4 million.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 8-29-30-9-21-28.

Wednesday night's drawing will be worth an estimated $6 million.

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury that has spent two weeks hearing how Mexican drifter Angel Maturino Resendiz killed six people in Texas and two more in Illinois has not heard the last of the gore heading into today's testimony.

Calling their final witness the coup de grace, prosecutors seeking lethal injection for the so-called Railroad Killer planned today to detail the beating death of University of Kentucky student Christopher Maier.

Maier's girlfriend, whose name is being withheld, was raped, stabbed and left for dead along a Lexington, Ky., railroad line Aug. 29, 1997. The attack happened after Resendiz fatally bludgeoned the man with a log, prosecutors said.

Alleged voting misdeeds spelled out

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Allegations of specific voting violations are at the heart of an election contest lawsuit filed by defeated GOP 31st District Attorney John Mann and set for trial on May 31.

That was revealed in the first amended notice of election contest filed Thursday in the 31st District Court at the Roberts County Courthouse in Miami.

Mann is contesting the results of the April 11 Republican runoff for the district attorney position in which Richard J. Roach defeated him by six votes. His attorneys are Selden Hale and Jeff Blackburn, both of Amarillo.

The 31st District is comprised of five counties — Gray, Lipscomb, Roberts, Hemphill and Wheeler. Mann is alleging election violations in four of the five counties.

A civil trial is set at 9 a.m. for May 31 in Miami. Senior Judge John T. Forbis of Childress will preside over the trial.

Mann alleges numerous violations occurred in Lipscomb County, and states the Lipscomb County Republican Chairman, who is James Shearer, had made the statement that Richard J. Roach "would be elected". Shearer and Shirley LeBlanc, Wheeler County Republican Chairman, are alleged to have violated provisions of the Texas Election Code.

While the Election Code provides for a combining of election boxes for a runoff election, Mann contends that ballot boxes may not be combined to fewer than at least one ballot box for each commissioner precinct of the county.

The only ballot box location in Lipscomb County during the April 11 runoff was located in Darrrouzett.

Mann identifies nine Lipscomb County residents — Jeff Detrixhe, Marge Long, Grant Long, Lance Bussard, Holean Perry, Jerry Perry, Stella Kerns, Lilly Zedja and Rose Whitsitt — as being disenfranchised by the county election officials in that county by an election box not being placed in each county commissioner precinct.

He contends that many eligible and qualified voters in the southern half of Lipscomb County were renounced by the county election officials, stating they were faced with an inconvenient journey of many miles in order to vote.

The suit further contends the Perry's, the Long's, Punt, Bussard and Whitsitt were required to travel one to two hours from their home or work to vote. It further states the Long's, Bussard and Detrixhe were unable to vote because they did not have time to get to the election site after they left their place of employment.

Mann further states much hostile sentiment is in place against him in Darrrouzett because of a case he prosecuted in Darrrouzett.

In Wheeler County, Mann contends they did not have ballot boxes in at least each commissioner precinct as required by law, and this could have affected the outcome with only six votes separating the candidates. Mann alleges Precinct 1 as the commissioner precinct without a poll.

Claims of illegal voters, 'vendetta,' revealed in filing

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Allegations of "political vendettas," illegal voting and the public endorsement of Rick Roach by Lipscomb County Republican Chairman James Shearer are expected to be heard when the district attorney election lawsuit goes to court.

Incumbent 31st District Attorney John Mann is contesting the outcome of the April 11 Republican runoff which gave Roach a six-vote margin. His answer in his first amended notice of election contest lists several witnesses who will appear in the case in the Roberts County courtroom on May 31. (See related story this page).

Testimony about the placement of ballot boxes within Lipscomb County (Darrrouzett) for the run-off is expected from Shearer of Follett, Republican County chairman in Lipscomb County. Specifics are to include where the box was placed and the reason given for its placement there as well as his public endorsement of Roach.

Selden Hale and Jeff Blackburn, both Amarillo attorneys for Mann, are expected to question him as to his reasons.

Janita Pendleton, who is the wife of defeated Republican candidate Phil Pendleton for District Attorney, is expected to testify that Shearer told her there was no need for her husband to go to

New plan available for health coverage

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Fear of a child becoming ill is a very real fear for many parents. The fear is magnified when the child does not have medical insurance coverage.

The relief of getting medical insurance coverage for Texas' 1.4 uninsured children is finally becoming a reality for many parents throughout the state and local area. Sign ups are scheduled locally for a new plan which contracts the state with a private company during the next two weeks.

Three programs are available to these children. Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) covers children from birth through age 18 who do not qualify for Medicaid. Parents may pay as little as $15 per year or as much as $18 per month for a family. In addition, co-payments for office visits and prescriptions are based on a family's income and will cost from $2 to $10 per visit or per prescription.

Medicaid covers children from birth through age 18 from families with low incomes. If a child qualifies for Medicaid, co-payments for doctors or prescriptions are not required and there are no monthly premium costs and no deductibles to pay. To qualify for Medicaid in Texas, certain income and asset requirements which are based on the ages of the children must be met.

The Texas Healthy Kids Corporation covers children from ages 2 through 17. Family income does not affect which children can qualify. (See PLAN, Page 2)

PMS summer school set

Summer school classes in reading and English will be in session for Pampa Middle School students June 5 through June 30. Students who failed classes in those subjects are required to attend the summer sessions, according to PMS Principal Tim Powers.

Parents may send their child to summer school in these classes even if they passed.

Stylin' for the prom!

As evidenced by the crowd visible in the background, lots of parents and 'sight-seers' were on hand Saturday evening to watch the arrival of PHS Prom goers. Tradition calls for special arrivals such as that of Bill Campbell and Ashley Burns who rode in a Hoover Volunteer Fire Department truck. All those attending, including Thomas Long and Brook Pope (right) get the red-carpet treatment outside M.K. Brown Auditorium. Couples arrived via everything from pony cart to motorized skateboard to antique car to stretch limousine.

90-year-old man's road trip odyssey ends here

By KATE B. DICKSON
Associate Publisher

A wrong-way turn on Friday night sent a 90-year-old Oklahoma man on a road trip odyssey that didn't end until Saturday morning — in Pampa.

Robert Work of Carman told Gray County Sheriff's Deputies that he left home to run an errand and became confused when encountering road construction.

"He said he intended to turn around but it was dark and he just kept driving all night," said Chief Deputy David Russell.

Work was stopped just outside of Pampa by Deputy Gary Noblett who was responding to a call that had come into the dispatcher regarding a drunken driver, Russell said. Work had not been drinking but was driving his Ford Escort very slowly. There was about a quarter tank of gas left in the car.

"He was so cute," Russell said. "He was like a model for a Norman Rockwell painting."

Work was described as "disoriented" when Noblett stopped him and Russell said the elderly man may have been near dehydration ... "he drank a whole lot of water."

The man's family was notified and deputies took care of Work — including providing for a bath and letting him take a long nap — until family could make the trip to Pampa to get him.

National Mental Health Month

Nearly everyone will experience some form of depression in their lifetime with over 15 percent of Americans suffering from clinical depression.

AMARILLO — Mentally healthy people have a positive self-image and can relate successfully to others most of the time. They are able to handle life's everyday challenges and changes as well as its traumas and transitions — such as the loss of loved ones, marriage difficulties, school problems, the challenge of retirement.

Mental illness is a term used for a group of brain disorders causing severe disturbances in thinking, feeling, and relating. Just like physical illnesses, they range from mild to severe. Fortunately, most mental illnesses are treatable and they become much better understood in the last 20-30 years. Help ranges from counseling to medication to support groups and other types of support.

Mental health issues affect people of all ages, races, cultures and economic conditions. Several million people in this country suffer from serious, long-term mental illnesses. The cost to society is high due to lost productivity and treatment expenses. People with mental illnesses are usually of normal intelligence, although they may have difficulty performing at a normal level due to their illness. There is nothing to be ashamed of if you or a loved one is experiencing a mental illness. You are not alone.

Schizophrenia is one of the most serious and disabling of the brain disorders. It affects approximately one person in a hundred — men and women equally. It's onset is usually in the late teens or early twenties. Some of the symptoms include disconnected and confusing language; poor reasoning, memory, and judgment; eating and sleeping disorders; hallucinations — hearing and seeing things that exist only in the mind of the ill person; delusions — persistent false beliefs about something; e.g., others are controlling their thoughts; deterioration of appearance and personal hygiene; and tendencies to withdraw from others.

There are many myths about schizophrenia. People with this disease do not have a "split personality" and are not any more prone to violence than the general population when they are receiving treatment. The illness is not caused by bad parenting or weakness of character. The disorder is due to a biochemical disturbance of the brain.

Depressive illnesses are the most common of psychiatric disorders. They are generally less persistently disabling than schizophrenia. The primary disturbance of these disorders is that of affect or mood. Bipolar or manic depression manifests itself with mood swings between extreme high and low moods; or they may be unipolar, in which a person suffers from persistent severe depression. About six percent of the population suffers from an affective disorder — a major cause of suicide.

Persons with bipolar usually have symptoms before the age of 35. Approximately 1.5 million Americans have been diagnosed with bipolar. Most persons with this illness will exhibit several of these characteristics during a period of mania — rapid, unpredictable emotional changes; the person may be both euphoric and irritable; the energy level is high and the person can get by with very little sleep.

Nearly everyone will experience some form of depression in their lifetime with over 15 percent of Americans suffering from clinical depression. These persons may have four or five of these characteristics — difficulty sleeping, loss of interest in daily activities, loss or increase of appetite, feelings of worthlessness, guilt, and hopelessness, feelings of despondency or sadness, inability to concentrate, psychotic symptoms and/or suicidal thoughts and actions. If a person is experiencing depression for more than two weeks, he/she needs to see their primary physician or a mental health professional.

Brain research is resulting in significant new discoveries about behavioral and thought disorders. Revolutionary new medications, improved diagnostic techniques and a new understanding of the biological causes of many previously misunderstood problems offer new hope for the successful treatment and management of all forms of mental illness.

Texas Panhandle Mental Health Authority serves the people of the upper 21 counties of the panhandle who have a mental illness to live and work in their homes and communities. Studies show that many people with mental illness are vital, productive citizens. "Mental Health Matters" is the theme for National Mental Health Month.

TPMHA strives to keep the public informed about mental health, not just during the month of May, but all year long. The agency serves children and adolescents needing mental health interventions, ages 2-17, and adults who suffer from severe and persistent mental illnesses — schizophrenia, major depression, and bipolar disorder. Also served are adults with other severely disabling mental disorders which require crisis resolution or ongoing and long-term support and treatment. Services are available for persons who have a dual diagnosis of mental illness and chemical dependency. The agency had offices in Amarillo, Dumas, Perryton, Hereford, Borger, Clarendon, and Pampa.

Study: Drug may ease hot flashes in women with breast cancer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Postmenopausal women whose hot flashes are caused by the breast cancer medication tamoxifen may find some relief in a drug normally used to treat high blood pressure, researchers suggest.

In a study of 194 women taking tamoxifen, researchers at the University of Rochester Cancer Center found that the drug clonidine had a "small beneficial effect" in reducing the frequency, duration and severity of hot flashes.

Hot flashes — sudden spikes in temperature that cause sweating and dizziness — are the most common side effect of tamoxifen, the treatment of choice for women whose breast cancer tumors are fueled by estrogen.

Millions of women take estrogen and other hormones to ease hot flashes brought on by menopause. But doctors are reluctant to prescribe estrogen in conjunction with tamoxifen.

"There's a lot of concern among oncologists that combining two hormones can cause inadvertent side effects. Blood clotting is the most dreaded one," said Dr. Kishan Pandya, who led the study, published in today's Annals of Internal Medicine.

Women taking clonidine suffered a median of 2.2 fewer hot flashes per day, according to the study. Women who received a placebo reported a median of 1.2 fewer hot flashes per day over the course of the eight-week study.

EPA: Cancer risk from dioxins high

NEERGAARD
AP Medical Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consider it a possible additional reason to eat a lowfat diet.

A draft report from the Environmental Protection Agency suggests the cancer risk from dioxins may be greater than previously thought, but only among people who eat lots of fat.

That may sound scary but even if it's true, these long-controversial chemicals still would play a very small role in anyone's individual risk, say cancer experts.

Eating a lowfat diet with lots of fruits and vegetables, regular exercise and not smoking are the best recommendations for preventing cancer and preventing heart disease, the nation's No. 1 killer.

"An ordinary person should base their health decisions on the known major (risk) factors," says Dr. Michael Thun of the American Cancer Society. Worry about dioxins "shouldn't be one of them."

At the same time, "the kind of diet that is healthy for your heart ... is also healthy as far as protecting you from dioxin," said Dr. Gina Solomon, a physician with the Natural Resources Defense Council.

The health effects of dioxins, toxic compounds produced from combustion and certain manufacturing processes, have been controversial for decades. While very high doses sickened laboratory animals, the health effects in people have remained uncertain.

But studies have found that people worldwide have at least some dioxin in their bodies. Dioxin is released into the air and water and works its way into animals and fish, accumulating in fatty tissue. Eventually people eat it.

The concern is over cumulative lifetime exposure, not eating a single food.

In recent years, the EPA has imposed tougher regulations on many dioxin emitters. As a result, dioxin emissions have been reduced by about 80 percent since the 1980s, according to the agency.

The EPA began reviewing the health issue in 1991. Draft conclusions say a small segment of the population who eat lots of fatty foods may have a cancer risk as high as 1 in 100 from dioxin.

The draft does "show that the health risks associated with dioxin are greater than previously suspected," EPA Administrator Carol Browner said Wednesday.

But she stressed the draft report needs additional scientific review.

"We do enjoy one of the safest food supplies in the world," Browner added. "It's important to understand where dioxin is found. It tends to accumulate in fat. So a low-fat diet for any number of reasons continues to be advisable."

As dioxin in the environment dropped, it also dropped in the food supply, said Dr. Susan Alpert of the Food and Drug Administration, which has tested foods after dioxin pollution scares.

Last summer, the FDA stopped some Belgian food imports because of dioxin contamination, and in 1997 it stopped shipments of some poultry and catfish fed dioxin-contaminated feed.

But even in pollution cases, scientists find minute amounts — so small they're measured in parts per trillion.

Many scientists had thought dioxins were turning out to be less hazardous than initially feared, "so the EPA's report represents a real reversal in that opinion and it's really important to see what data they have," said the cancer society's Thun.

A higher risk might urge tougher pollution-control standards without meaning people should worry about dioxin at the dinner table, he said. "People have trouble separating issues that are important for a regulatory agency from issues important for individual life decisions."

Alpert agreed "it's premature" to offer diet recommendations. "The best thing we can say ... is to eat a varied diet," she said.

Researchers find link between hostility and heart disease

CHICAGO (AP) — Young adults who scored high on a hostility test were 2.5 times more likely to have signs of heart disease 10 years later than those who were rated average or below, according to a study in a recent journal of the American Medical Association.

Researchers studied 374 people — a nearly equal mix of men and women, blacks and whites — who were 18 to 30 in 1985. They were given a 50-question test that asked them to respond to true or false statements such as "I have at times had to be rough with people who were rude to me" and "No one cares much what happens to you."

Ten years later, they underwent a heart scan to measure calcium deposits in the arteries, which are an indicator of heart disease.

Seventeen percent of those who scored above average on the hostility test showed calcification, compared with 9 percent in the below-average group.

Researchers put the risk at 2.5 times higher for the high-hostility group after adjusting for the other factors.

The study was led by Dr. Carlos Iribarren of the Kaiser Permanente Medical Care Program of Oakland, Calif.

He said one reason for the difference could be that hostile people release more stress hormones that raise blood pressure and can lead to heart disease.

He said the next step is to find out if lowering someone's hostility level will stem the progression of heart disease.

Earlier this month, a study published in Circulation, the Dallas-based journal of the American Heart Association, found that people who are highly anger-prone are nearly three times more likely to have a heart attack.

That link held true even after risk factors such as smoking and obesity were taken into account.

Recruiting retirees is big business for State of Mississippi

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — When she was young, Shirley Perry was a Cold War spy. Now retired, she wants to write about those cloak-and-dagger days. A small town in Mississippi offers the perfect inspiration.

Perry, who left the Central Intelligence Agency decades ago, moved to Oxford last September. The draw?

A town rich with battlefield history — from Civil War to Civil Rights. And with literary history that includes William Faulkner, native son and Nobel Prize winner. And home to 15,000 people and the University of Mississippi.

Perry spends days jotting memories on a legal pad, participating in plays and getting the autographs of visiting authors. "There's so much here to see and learn," she says. She is not alone.

Mississippi is attracting many of the nation's retirees. Lower crime rates and low costs make it a real challenge to Florida, says Barbara McDonald, marketing and advertising manager for the state's Department of Economic and Community Development.

Currently, Florida is the state most favored by retirees. Mississippi is not even among the top 10. According to U.S. Census data from 1998, 12.2 percent of Mississippi's population is 65 or older, compared to 18.3 percent of Florida's population.

But McDonald lauds Mississippi's one big advantage — four seasons.

"In Mississippi, the leaves change colors and we have a little snow every now and then," she says. "The seasons are important to a lot of people from up north."

McDonald heads the Hometown Mississippi Retirement program, a part of the state's department of Economic and Community Development. Last year, the program initiated the weekend getaway.

Using national advertisements and pamphlets, state officials tout Mississippi as a retirement haven. McDonald said this year's getaway, June 2-4, is already fully-booked with 150 people choosing to pay the $175 fee that does not include transportation. Participants are treated to such entertainment as jazz bands and an Elvis impersonator.

The retirees are surveyed at the end of the weekend to see if their perception of Mississippi has changed, and McDonald says most of the time it has.

Since the retirement program began, officials report more than 160,000 requests for information. And Steve House, executive director of the American Association of Retirement Communities, based in Bowling Green, Ky., calls it the country's most progressive retirement program — though he's quick to point out that popular vacation spots — Florida, Arizona — attract more retirees.

Retirees who do choose Mississippi are helping the state's economy — with an estimated 1,600 new households. McDonald calls this the economic equivalent of 3.7 factory jobs.

House's group, based at Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green, Ky., grew out of a program funded by federal grants. It aims to show community leaders the economic benefits of attracting retirees.

Research values the typical retiree household from $250,000 to $300,000. "Many people think of retirees as old, poor people who are sick," says House. "Many these days are younger and have accumulated money."

Retiree spending offers Florida a $75.8 billion wallop, according to the state's Department of Elder Affairs. Its data also show that retirees pay another $1.3 billion in real estate taxes.

Perry lauds Mississippi's tax structure because unearned income is not taxed. She said the cost of living in the state enabled her to buy a $175,000 four-bedroom, two-bath house in Oxford.

Mother's Day tea ...

Mother's Day made the visit all the more special when husband Jim Locket and daughter Margie Pugh paid a visit to Margaret Locket at Pampa Nursing Center.

Zenith Lang (seated) spends Mother's Day at Pampa Nursing Center with family including her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Lang and daughter Laurann Gilbert, right.

The weather attracted Marjorie Fritz. Fritz, 61, lived in Florida for a decade after the death of her husband. Then she moved to Mississippi's Gulf Coast.

Originally from Massachusetts, Fritz considered Florida too warm. But Gulfport's mild weather allows her to play 18 holes of golf each day. She calls this "a beautiful retirement area," and close enough to Florida for vacations.

The Gulf Coast, a longtime favorite of snowbirds, will soon feature a $1.8 billion-development partly devoted to retirees, a master-plan community built over the next decade.

Even this is new for Mississippi — mostly, says McDonald, because retirees want to live in a mixed-age community.

Perry, who has lived in Europe and Canada, was certain that she did not want a retirement community. Yet she was uncertain about life in the South.

"You need the diversity of ages," she says. "You want to feel part of a genuine community, not an artificial one."

GOLF

PAMPA — Hidden Hills seniors held a four-man scramble last week and the results are listed below:

First place: Ted Jett, Larry Ogden, Buddy Briley and Jim Osborne 63.

Second place: Carl Johnson, Bill Harwood, Ralph Ridgway and James Gray 64.

Third place: Dale Haynes, Carroll Petit, Jack Davis and Gene Strother 65.

Fourth place: Larry Schneider, Oscar Sargent, Pat Montoya and Callens George 66.

BASKETBALL

MIAMI (AP) — Chris Childs caught the inbound pass with 2.1 seconds left and hurled the ball high into the air, finally putting the seasaw series between the New York Knicks and Miami Heat out of reach.

For the second year in a row, the Knicks were a single point better than their arch-rivals, beating Miami 83-82 Sunday in a thrilling Game 7.

The action didn't end when the game did. Miami's Jamal Mashburn chased after the referees shouting insults, and the Heat said bad calls tainted the Knicks' victory.

"They had three officials in their pocket," Mashburn said. "You can print that. I don't care if I get fined or not."

New York, jubilant after eliminating Miami in a winner-take-all game for the third consecutive year, began looking ahead to the Eastern Conference finals. They start Tuesday at Indiana.

"It was a big win, but we still have a job to do," forward Larry Johnson said.

The 65th and final lead change in Knicks vs. Heat came when Patrick Ewing slipped past Alonzo Mourning for a dunk with 1:20 to go. That ended the scoring, but there was plenty of excitement to come.

Mashburn and Tim Hardaway missed shots for the Heat, but they got the ball back with 12 seconds to go. Clarence Weatherspoon then missed Miami's final shot of the season, and New York's Latrell Sprewell grabbed the rebound as he stumbled out of bounds.

Referees Dick Bavetta, Dan Crawford and Bennett Salvatore deliberated, then signaled a timeout for the Knicks and awarded them possession with 2.1 seconds to go, clinching the outcome.

"I had Sprewell calling time out, but I wasn't sure where his foot was," Salvatore said. "I didn't believe he was out of bounds, but I wanted to check with my partner to make sure he was not out of bounds when my whistle blew. He confirmed that there was no question that the timeout came before he went out of bounds."

There was only one problem with that explanation.

"I didn't call timeout," Sprewell said. "I don't know who called it."

Miami was unhappy about several other calls down the stretch and a disparity in free throws throughout the game. And the Heat renewed complaints about the disputed foul that helped the Knicks pull out Game 6.

"We're a better team than they are," Mourning said. "The last two games, we were (robbed) on the two calls."

In such a close series, it was perhaps inevitable that the officiating would become a factor. The average margin of victory was four points, with no game decided by more than eight.

But the Knicks won Game 7 for many reasons. Childs had his best game of the playoffs, scoring 15 points, while Mashburn went 3-for-15. The Heat missed their first five free throws in the fourth quarter and finished 11-for-21 at the line, while New York went 28-for-31.

HOBBS, N.M. — Pampa came close to making baseball history over the weekend. It wouldn't be the case however as El Paso Riverside came away with a 5-4 win Saturday in the Class 4A regional quarterfinals at College of the Southwest.

Pampa had evened the best of three series at 1-1 with a 11-5 win the second game. That set up the elimination contest.

No Pampa baseball team has ever advanced to the regional semifinals, but the Harvesters looked like they might be on their way after a four-run outburst in the fifth inning gave them a 4-2 lead. Cody Shepard's two-run homer was the big blow.

Kaleb Snelgrooves had led off the fifth with a double and moved to third on a flyball by Jesse Francis. He came home when Casey Owens tripled. Greg Lindsey's sacrifice fly tied the score at 2-

all. After Justin Barnes drew a walk, Shepard stepped up and hit Joe Villarreal's first offering over the left field fence to give Pampa the lead.

Riverside, however, plated two runs in the bottom of the sixth to tie things at 4-4.

The Harvesters were looking to break the tie in the top of the seventh when Lindsey led off with a single off Riverside reliever Beto Romo. With one out, Shepard reached first on an infield error. But Romo struck out the next two hitters to end the Pampa threat.

The Harvesters put themselves in a hole to start the bottom of the seventh when Joe Villarreal led off with a triple. The next two batters were intentionally walked in hopes of setting up a force play at home plate. However, Sol Acevado delivered a single that plated Villarreal with the winning run.

Lindsey (6-3) took the loss in going the full seven innings on the mound. He gave up seven hits while striking out five and walking six. Two of his walks were intentional.

Pampa had 11 hits off two Riverside pitchers. Romo, who relieved Villarreal in the fifth, was credited with the win. He was the winning hurler in Riverside's 7-1 win in the first game of the series.

Pampa lefthander Brent Coffee hurled a two-hitter in Pampa's 11-5 win over Riverside in the second game of the series on Saturday. Coffee surrendered a three-run homer to Beto Romo in the first inning, but he didn't allow another hit until the sixth when Omar Farcina had a single.

Leading 7-5, Pampa put the game away with a four-run explosion in the top of the seventh. With one out, Jesse Francis was hit by a pitch and Casey Owens followed with a single. Francis stole third and a throwing error allowed him to score. A run-scoring triple by Greg Lindsey and an RBI single by Justin Barnes produced two more runs. After Cody Shepard singled, pinch-hitter Carey Knutson knocked in Barnes with a base hit for Pampa's final run.

Coffee, who struck out three and walked six for his complete game victory, closed his senior season with a 9-2 record.

Francis, Owens, Lindsey and Shepard had two hits each to lead Pampa's 14-hit attack.

Pampa, which won the District 3-4A championship this season, finishes with a 22-10-1 record.

Mickelson rallies for Colonial golf victory

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Phil Mickelson thought he might have done enough to get into a playoff at Colonial when he capped his 7-under-par 63 with a long birdie putt at the 18th hole.

What he actually had Sunday was the lowest final round by a PGA Tour winner this season, and his third victory of the year, after Stewart Cink and Davis Love III struggled down the stretch.

"It was weird to be finished, watching the tournament on television and still be in it," Mickelson said. "I thought there was an outside chance I would get into a playoff."

Mickelson instead finished Colonial at 12-under 268, two strokes ahead of Cink and Love. He joined Tiger Woods as the only three-time winner on the PGA Tour this season.

After sinking his final putt from more than 20 feet, his fifth birdie on the back nine, Mickelson had to wait about an hour for Cink and Love to finish their rounds.

During that time, Cink had bogeys on three of the last four holes and Love was unable to recover from earlier problems. That allowed Mickelson to get his 16th PGA Tour victory without picking up another club.

With two victories and two other top-10 finishes in his last six events, Mickelson is ready to turn his attention to next month's U.S. Open, during which he will turn 30.

Last year, Mickelson was the runner-up to the late Payne Stewart, whose 20-foot putt on the 72nd hole was the longest ever made on the final green to win a U.S. Open.

Mickelson, who also won the Buick Invitational and the BellSouth Classic this year, plans to take the next two weeks off the tour. He will play at the Buick Classic the week before the Open.

Mickelson began his final round at Colonial six shots behind Cink, who was trying to follow up his victory in the MCI Classic last month. When Mickelson lost another shot after hitting into a greenside bunker and taking a bogey 5 on No. 9, he thought he was too far behind to win.

"I got off to a good start and was thinking a lot about winning," Mickelson said. "When I made the turn, I tried not to think about winning. I tried to hit some good golf shots because I was too far behind to win."

Then he birdied the next three holes.

The 18th-hole birdie for Mickelson came just before Cink's drive at the 15th dropped into thick rough after hitting a tree.

Cink's approach at the 430-yard hole stopped just short of a greenside bunker, then he made a nice pitch within about 6 feet only for him to slide the par-saving putt past the hole. That dropped him even with Mickelson and out of sole possession of the lead for the first time during the final round.

The lead was gone when Cink three-putted the 17th. His 40-foot putt slid past the hole, and then he missed the 4-footer coming back and ended with a bogey 5 that put him 11 under.

Expos finish three-game sweep of struggling Astros

MONTREAL (AP) — Like so many other games this season, it just wasn't Jose Lima's day.

Lee Stevens hit a three-run homer and rookie Andy Tracy also homered off Lima, leading the Montreal Expos over the Houston Astros 8-3 Sunday for a three-game sweep.

Houston lost its fifth in a row as Lima (1-7) was tagged for seven runs and 10 hits in 5 2-3 innings, giving him an 8.77 ERA.

A 21-game winner last year, Lima has allowed 19 home runs in nine starts this season.

"I stunk," Lima said. "Sometimes you try to keep the ball down and it doesn't go your way. When things are not going your way, there's nothing you can do about it. It's part of baseball."

Astros manager Larry Dierker didn't hesitate to lay blame for the loss squarely on Lima's shoulders after his beleaguered starter popped out on a sacrifice attempt in the fifth and failed to cover first in the bottom half to open the gates to a four-run Expos outburst.

"Every game has its moments," Dierker said. "And this one, when you look at the things you're supposed to do as a starting pitcher, like get a bunt down, or cover first base, our starting pitcher didn't do it. That's a four-run swing. We lost by more than four runs, but you never know."

Peter Bergeron, who fell a triple short of hitting for the cycle Saturday night, hit a one-out single in the fifth, and advanced to third on Jose Vidro's single.

Rondell White then hit a check-swing grounder to Ward for a run-scoring single as Lima forgot to cover first.

"Sometimes you react and get to first base," Lima said. "I don't know if I had a chance, even if I got there quick, because I know Rondell can run. I looked bad right there because the pitcher always has to come over to first base and make the play."

Vladimir Guerrero then struck out before Stevens followed with a three-run shot.

"If he covers first, he's out of that with one run," Dierker said. "He gets a bunt down and we score a run there and it's anybody's ballgame."

A crowd of 20,111, the largest at Olympic Stadium since opening day, gave Javier Vazquez (5-1) a standing ovation when he left in the ninth inning.

He exited after giving up Richard Hidalgo's leadoff home run.

Vazquez allowed seven hits, including Daryle Ward's two-run homer in the fourth. He struck out six and walked one.

Tracy homered down the right-field line in the second and Stevens hit his 10th to cap a four-run fifth. The Expos claimed their first three-game sweep since last Aug. 23-25 against St. Louis.

Vidro had three hits for the Expos, including his first triple of the season, to increase his average to .393.

"He's not going to be struggling for the whole year," Vidro

Geoff Blum homered for Montreal off reliever Billy Wagner.

The Expos finished their 12-game homestand with an 8-4 mark to raise them seven games over .500 for the first time since July 21, 1997.

Nebraska wins second straight tourney title

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Nebraska's baseball team came to the Big 12 tournament expecting to do well, and why not? The Cornhuskers had finished second during the regular season and were highly ranked.

Then they fell immediately into the loser's bracket, losing 12-10 to Missouri.

"We thought we were going to hang around for a while, and we were one game away from going home early," coach Dave Van Horn said. "I think the guys were just determined not to go home."

That determination showed itself in a five-game run through the loser's bracket, capped Sunday with an 11-3 victory over Baylor that gave the Cornhuskers their second straight Big 12 tournament title.

As they had in a doubleheader sweep of Oklahoma on Saturday, the Huskers (47-15) got another strong pitching performance Sunday. This time Chad Wiles came through, throwing 5 1/3 hit-less innings. Wiles, who before the tournament had not won since Feb. 18, was 2-0 in the tournament. He threw 10 1/3 innings, including two relief stints, and gave up seven hits and just four runs.

"I knew I had it in me to do it, I just struggled all year long," Wiles said. "I just came in going as hard as I could, trying to get outs."

Wiles (4-2) hit the third batter he faced, then retired the next 14 before giving up back-to-back walks and an RBI single in the sixth. He allowed a solo homer to Ron Zboril and three straight singles in the seventh before being replaced with an 8-3 lead.

"That's probably the most intense I've ever seen a pitcher on the mound," coach Dave Van Horn said. "He had a vision and he knew what he wanted to do and he did it. He pitched til he ran out of gas."

Sunday's effort by Wiles was Nebraska's third straight strong performance by a pitcher not normally in the rotation.

The Cornhuskers, who also beat Baylor for the tournament title a year ago, earn an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

No. 1 seed Baylor (45-15) had swept the three-game series with Nebraska on its way to the regular-season league title, but this time didn't get a hit until Jace Brewer's RBI single ended the non-hitter and the shutout.

White's first-inning sacrifice fly put Montreal ahead 1-0 and Tracy homered leading off the second.

Vazquez retired the first eight batters before Lima singled with two outs in the third.

Moises Alou singled leading off the fourth and two outs later, Ward, who started at first base as Jeff Bagwell was rested, hit his ninth homer deep into the right-field stands to tie it at 2.

Notes: Astros second baseman Craig Biggio returned to the lineup despite a heavily bandaged right hand. Biggio left Saturday night's 8-7 loss after he was accidentally spiked by Vidro after he stole second in the first inning. ... Montreal had not swept Houston in a three-game series since Aug. 8-10, 1995 at the Astrodome.

On Saturday, Scott Fries threw a complete game five-hitter in a 3-1 victory over Oklahoma. The Cornhuskers had to beat OU again to reach the title game, and R.D. Spieth came through with 7 2/3 solid innings in a 6-1 victory.

"I couldn't have expected all the guys to do as well as they did," Van Horn said. "It figures somebody would have a bad outing. But what we're talking about is Fries had his best outing, Spieth might have had his best outing, and Chad had definitely his best outing of this year, given the number of innings and that he was coming off two relief appearances this week."

The Cornhuskers, who also beat Baylor for the tournament title a year ago, earn an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

No. 1 seed Baylor (45-15) had swept the three-game series with Nebraska on its way to the regular-season league title, but this time didn't get a hit until Jace Brewer's RBI single ended the non-hitter and the shutout.

Rigdon makes memorable debut as Cleveland beats Yankees, 6-1

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Rookie Paul Rigdon got off to a great start. And once again, so did Rickey Henderson.

Making his major league debut, Rigdon shut out the New York Yankees on two hits for seven innings in pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 6-1 win Sunday at Jacobs Field.

"Unbelievable," Rigdon said. "This was better than I ever imagined. Before the game I tried to visualize what I would do, but this was better. Unbelievable."

At Safeco Field, Henderson hit another leadoff home run for Seattle in an 8-4 win over Tampa Bay.

Henderson has been in the starting lineup twice for the Mariners since being cut by the New York Mets, and he's homered in the first inning both times. His 77 leadoff home runs are a major league record.

"Ten years ago, I used to do that all the time," said Henderson, who later singled and scored. "Maybe it's now starting all over again."

In other AL games, Chicago got only one hit but topped Toronto 2-1, Texas beat Baltimore 6-5, Oakland downed Minnesota 13-4, Detroit beat Boston 7-5 and Kansas City defeated Anaheim 10-6.

Rigdon arrived in town Friday, called up from Triple-A Buffalo after the Indians put pitcher Jarret Wright, Charles Nagy and Ricardo Rincon on the disabled list.

The 24-year-old right-hander put on a quite show for a sellout crowd that included his parents, Larry and Penny, and his fiancée, Diane, all in from Jacksonville, Fla.

"It's awesome," said Rigdon's dad, standing near his son in the Indians' clubhouse. "I was a little apprehensive about him facing the Yankees."

Rigdon gave up a third-inning single to Chuck Knoblauch and a seventh-inning double to Jorge Posada. He walked four and struck out two.

"He pitched wonderfully," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "There's a lesson to be learned here by young pitchers — throw strike one."

Jim Thome and Manny Ramirez hit two-run homers off Orlando Hernandez (4-4). Enrique Wilson added an inside-the-park shot.

Hernandez lost his fourth straight decision. He is 0-4 in five career regular-season starts against the Indians, though he beat them in the 1998 playoffs.

Mariners 8, Devil Rays 4
Dan Wilson, Mike Cameron and Edgar Martinez homered and John Olerud went 4-for-4 for Seattle.

Gerald Williams hit a two-run double in the seventh that pulled Tampa Bay to 8-4. Arthur Rhodes, ejected after a bench-clearing brawl Saturday, relieved and, after walking Vinny Castilla to load the bases, struck out Greg Vaughn and Jose Canseco to end the inning.

Rangers 6, Orioles 5
Pinch-hitter Frank Catalanotto had a two-out RBI single in the eighth as Texas overcame a 5-0 deficit to extend its winning streak to a season-high six games.

Mike Venafro (1-0) pitched 2-3 of an inning for the victory and John Wetteland worked the ninth for his 10th save. Buddy Groom (2-2) took the loss, Baltimore's 15th in its last 17 games.

Rafael Palmeiro and Lamb homered for the Rangers, and Mike Bordick connected for the visiting Orioles.

White Sox 2, Blue Jays 1

Mark Johnson singled with two outs in the third inning for Chicago's lone hit at SkyDome. It turned out the White Sox didn't even need it, as they took advantage of Toronto's five errors.

The Blue Jays lost their fourth in a row despite Frank Castillo, Pedro Borbon and Billy Koch combining on a one-hitter.

Chicago scored two unearned runs in the seventh on errors by second baseman Homer Bush and third baseman Tony Batista.

Tigers 7, Red Sox 5
Hideo Nomo won for the first time since opening day, beating Boston at Comerica Park.

Gregg Jefferies hit a leadoff homer for Detroit. The Tigers have won five of six against the Red Sox and Yankees in the last 10 days.

Nomo gave up one run and five hits in 5 1-3 innings. Boston has lost two in a row for the first time since April 28-29.

Athletics 13, Twins 4
Jason Giambi hit his fifth career grand slam, highlighting an eight-run second inning at Oakland.

The Athletics ended their season-high five-game losing streak. Ryan Christenson hit an inside-the-park homer and Eric Chavez had a solo shot.

Tim Hudson pitched seven scoreless innings and won his fourth straight decision.

Royals 10, Angels 6
Joe Randa, David McCarty and Carlos Beltran homered and Kansas City finished 6-6 on its longest road trip of the season.

Garret Anderson hit a grand slam for Anaheim. It was the record sixth slam of the day in the major leagues — four of them were in the NL.

Reliever Jose Santiago won with four perfect innings after the Royals blew a 5-0 lead.

Red Bullet could miss Belmont

BALTIMORE (AP) — Preakness winner Red Bullet is "50-50" for the Belmont Stakes.

Kentucky Derby winner Fusaichi Pegasus will be stabled "temporarily" at New York's Aqueduct Racetrack until a decision is made whether he will run in the final leg of racing's Triple Crown.

If neither starts in the June 10 Belmont, it would be the first time in 30 years that neither the Derby nor Preakness winner competed in the race.

In 1970, Derby winner Dust Commander and Preakness winner Personality both skipped the Belmont Stakes, which was won by High Echelon.

Since 1919, when Sir Barton won the Triple Crown, there have been only 10 Belmonts in which neither the Derby nor Preakness winner has competed.

The Belmont is still three weeks away, but the trainers of Red Bullet and Fusaichi Pegasus have yet to commit to the race, which for the past three years has had a Triple Crown on the line.

"He came back great, no nicks or anything," Joe Orseno, Red Bullet's trainer, said Sunday after his colt ran off with a 3 3/4-length victory over 1-5 favorite Fusaichi Pegasus in Saturday's $1 million Preakness at Pimlico before a crowd of 98,304. "I'd say we're 50-50 to go in the Belmont."

Red Bullet returned to his Belmont home base Sunday.

Fusaichi Pegasus, who had his wings clipped as his five-race winning streak ended, was to be shipped today to New York.

"He pulled up well after the race, and will temporarily go to Aqueduct," trainer Neil Drysdale said. "He came up with a tiny cut under his knee which indicates he got hit by some horse. He was bumped when a horse went by, but that really didn't mean anything."

Drysdale said he believed Fusaichi Pegasus would be well-suited for the Belmont Stakes as he is a "big, long-striding horse."

There are quite a few 3-year-olds pointing to the Belmont, including Aptitude, who was a fast-closing second in the Derby and then skipped the Preakness; and Impachment, third in both the Derby and Preakness.

Others considering the Belmont include Wheelaway, fifth in the Derby; Curule, seventh in the Derby; Tahkodha Hills; Unshaded; Globalize; Commendable; and Chief Seattle, runner-up in the Breeders' Cup Juvenile but unraced this year.

High Yield, trained by D. Wayne Lukas, has been pulled out of the Triple Crown series after finishing seventh in the Preakness and 15th in the Derby. Commendable, 17th in the Derby, also is trained by Lukas.

Orseno, who won his first Triple Crown race in his first attempt, has evened the score against Fusaichi Pegasus, having finished second to the Derby winner in the Wood Memorial. Orseno and owner Frank Stronach chose to skip the Derby with their lightly-raced colt, a son of 1990 Derby winner Unbridled, and the strategy paid off.

Five weeks rest, a new jockey in Jerry Bailey and the ability to handle an "off" track allowed Red Bullet to turn the tables on a horse who had been touted as the next Secretariat.

"Pegasus is a great horse, and so is Red Bullet," said Stronach, owner of six racetracks and one of racing's most influential breeders and owners. "I don't enjoy spoiling somebody else's plans. But we decided after the Wood to give Red Bullet a rest, skip the Derby, and have another shot at Pegasus in the Preakness. It's all in the stars."

Red Bullet and Fusaichi Pegasus made their moves simultaneously entering the far turn. At the quarter pole of the 1 3/16-mile Preakness, Red Bullet took command in the middle of the track and pulled away.

"We've all seen over the years horses coming off the Derby who looked like they were invincible," Bailey said. "And two weeks later, at 5:45, we see they're not invincible."

Red Bullet, the 6-1 second choice in the field of eight, returned $14.40, $3.20 and $2.80 and earned $650,000 for Stronach. Fusaichi Pegasus, the shortest priced favorite since Spectacular Bid went off at 1-10 in 1979, paid $2.60 and $2.20. Impachment paid $3.60 to show.

The winning time was 1:56. Captain Steve was fourth, followed by Snuck In, Hugh Hefner, High Yield and Hal's Hope.

Red Bullet and Fusaichi Pegasus may not hook up in the Belmont for their "rubber match," but there's always the Haskell at Monmouth Park in early August or the Travers at Saratoga on Aug. 26.

"There will be a good showdown somewhere along the line," Orseno said. "We'll just have to figure out when."

For the past three years, the Belmont featured a horse with a chance at becoming the 12th Triple Crown winner and first since Affirmed in 1978. Silver Charm (1997) and Real Quiet (1998) finished second in the Belmont; Charismatic was third last year.

The last horse to win the Preakness and Belmont after not starting in the Derby was Pillory in 1922.

Goalie Belfour helps Stars even series with Avalanche

DENVER (AP) — The Dallas Stars, trailing 2-1 in their series with the Colorado Avalanche and facing a must-win situation on the road in Game 4, did the improbable.

The Stars beat the Avalanche 4-1 Sunday despite being outshot 39-15, and in the process regained home-ice advantage.

Ed Belfour recorded 38 saves in handing the Avalanche their first playoff loss at home after seven wins. Brett Hull had two goals and an assist for the Stars, who tied the best-of-seven Western Conference finals at 2-2.

Game 5 is Tuesday night in Dallas.

Mike Modano added three assists for Dallas, which scored four times on its first 11 shots.

"We're sitting here at 2-2 with three games left, two at home," Dallas coach Ken Hitchcock said. "Our team feels pretty good about itself right now."

"We got the win in this building that we badly needed. Colorado plays perfect in this building. We play really well in our building, too. The game changes dramatically when it goes into our building now."

Colorado goalie Patrick Roy, who stopped 11 shots, mused on the missed opportunity to take a 3-1 series lead.

"It's too bad because we thought we had them right where we wanted them," Roy said. "Now we're going to have to go back to Dallas and play a solid Game 5 and try to come back here up 3-2."

Hitchcock, who switched his lines in an effort to inject life into a squad that was shut out twice in the first three games of the series, said Hull's second goal was critical.

"They scored their goal after an unfortunate turnover (to make it 2-1), and we were on our heels," Hitchcock said. "That goal by Hull was huge for us."

But Hitchcock reserved most of his praise for Belfour.

"Eddie was terrific," Hitchcock said. "He's been terrific the whole series. He's played four great hockey games."

Belfour said he "felt real strong the whole game and I was seeing the puck real well. All I had to do was make the first save. Guys took care of the rebounds."

Colorado coach Bob Hartley said Dallas "played well with the lead, and whenever we had a good scoring chance, Belfour was there."

Joe Nieuwendyk and Hull scored first-period goals as Dallas, despite being outshot 10-4, took a 2-0 lead.

Nieuwendyk, stationed to the right of the goal, took a pass from Jamie Langenbrunner from behind the net and beat Roy on a power play at 7:12.

Hull scored his sixth goal of the playoffs at 17:30. Modano intercepted Dave Andreychuk's pass and fed Hull in the slot.

CLAIMED

Lipscomb County to campaign for the office. The court papers state that "Shearer was campaigning for Rick Roach and that everybody was voting for Rick Roach."

Pendleton came in third in the March 14 primary with 907 votes. Mann lead the totals with 2,427 votes and Roach garnered 1,786 votes, placing the two candidates in the April Republican runoff. Pendleton endorsed Mann in the runoff.

Sheriff James Robertson is expected to testify about "his political vendetta against the contestant (Mann) and his desire and efforts to see to it that the election was held in such a manner that the contestant (Mann) would be defeated."

Several Lipscomb County residents are expected to testify they were denied the right to vote.

Jeff Detrixhe of Higgins is expected to testify that he did not vote in the run-off election because it was too far to drive to the place of voting.

Marge Long, who live in a rural area and receive their mail out of Canadian, is expected to testify that she and her husband did not vote in the run-off election because it was too far to drive to the place of voting. Also expected to testify that he did not vote in the runoff election because it was too far to drive to Lance Bussard.

Holeen and Jerry Perry, who also live in a rural area and receive their mail out of Canadian, are expected to testify that it would have been over a 60-mile round trip to vote and "they could not drive that far to vote because they did not have that much time."

A Democratic election judge, Jerry Punt, is expected to testify there are more eligible voters in Precinct No. 1, and that Precinct 1 has a better voting percentage than where the voting box was placed.

Stella Kerns of Booker is expected to testify she is elderly and ill, and that it was impossible for her to make a trip to Darrouzett to vote in the run-off election.

Lilly Zejda of Booker is expected to testify that she does not drive and has to rely upon neighbors to take her to vote. She did not vote in the run-off election because she could find no one from Booker who was going to vote.

Rose Whittitt of Higgins is expected to testify that she is elderly and it was too far to drive to Darrouzett to vote.

County clerks of the named counties in the lawsuit have also been called to testify. Susan Winborne, Gray County Clerk, is expected to present official documents maintained by her office.

Wheeler County Clerk Margaret Dorman is expected to present official documents maintained by her office as well as the location of the voting box in the run-off election.

Lipscomb County Clerk Terry Parker and Roberts County Clerk Donna Goodman will testify to the official documents maintained by her office.

Richard Hefley of Shamrock is expected to testify to the location of the voting boxes in Wheeler County and names and qualifications and eligibility of persons secured by him to man and work in the election.

Roach, who is Roberts County Attorney, is being represented by the Strasburger and Price, L.L.P. law firm of Austin.

Ruling favors passengers with lost airline luggage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today let stand a ruling that could force airlines to pay a lot more to some passengers whose luggage was lost or damaged.

The court, without comment, rejected an appeal in which American Airlines sought to limit how much it may have to pay for five suitcases that disappeared, or arrived empty, during a family's 1995 trip from the District of Columbia to the Dominican Republic.

The nation's major air carriers told the justices that a federal appeals court ruling in the American Airlines case "will senselessly harm the airlines and raise the cost of air travel for their passengers."

At issue was a now-amended provision of the Warsaw Convention, a treaty on international air travel, that generally limited air carrier liability for lost or damaged luggage to $9.07 per pound.

The English-language translation of that provision listed various information to be contained on luggage receipts given to passengers. That information included the weight of each package checked with the airlines.

The treaty stated that a carrier's failure to provide for two other pieces of information "and" the piece of luggage's weight on the receipt disqualifies that carrier from liability limits.

The required listing of luggage weight on passenger receipts was dropped last year.

Fourteen members of the Cruz family from Silver Spring, Md., checked 28 bags with American at Washington's National Airport as they began a trip just before Christmas 1995 to attend a relative's wedding in the Dominican Republic. Four of the bags never arrived at the airport in Santo Domingo, and a fifth eventually arrived damaged and empty.

American Airlines initially refused to pay any compensation, and the Cruz family sued for $15,000 — the asserted value of the bags and their contents. A federal trial judge ruled that the $9.07-per-pound limit applied even though Fort Worth-based American had failed to record any weight for the lost luggage on the passengers' receipts.

ALLEGED

He additionally contends at least two persons voted in the Republican run-off in Wheeler and should not have as they voted in the March 14 Democratic Primary.

Six Gray County voters, Melvin Lee Batman,

Barbara R. Baird, Martrileyn Echols, Carolyn M. Friend, Frank G. Hernandez and Lela M. Logue, are listed in Mann's answer as voting illegally.

Voters in the Roberts County election who are alleged to have voted illegally by not possessing the requisite residency requirements are Hobart McMortie of Amarillo and Don and Fran Morrison of Pampa.

Beaux Arts Dance Studio to hold 52nd annual revue, 'Dance 2000'

Beaux Arts Dance Studio, under the direction of Jeanne Willingham, will present its 52nd annual revue — this year entitled "Dance 2000" — at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 27 at M.K. Brown Auditorium. The guest artist will be Laura Johnson, Miss Area-Amarillo 1999.

Awards will be presented during intermission, and the "2000" Dance Award will not be announced until showtime. The program will include ballet, tap, acrobatics and jazz dances. The Junior Ballet will perform Napoli and Etudes and the senior ballet will perform Ballo della Regina. In addition, Pampa Civic Ballet will dance the "Fairies" from "Sleeping Beauty Ballet." This year's recital will also showcase the talents of four graduating seniors — Beth Buzzard, Jennifer Hinds, Kristen Stephens, and Lindsay Tidwell. Awards for perfect attendance will be presented to NaKayla Hardman and Kayla Taylor, one year awards; Clair-Elizabeth Boyd, two year award; and Carrie Angel and Rachel Heuston, four year awards.
