Clemency hearing set for Pampan's murderer

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Staff Writer

District Attorney John Mann plans to testify at a clemency hearing for convicted murderer Gregg Francis Braun June 27 at McAllister, Okla.

Braun is scheduled to be executed in July, Mann said.

A representative of Oklahoma's Attorney General's office asked Mann to testify at the hearing later this month which will determine whether or not Braun will be granted clemency or be executed next month.

"I predict he'll be denied clemency," Mann said today.

"I will testify that Pete Spurrier's cold blooded execution justifies the punishment he is scheduled to receive," he added.

The 1989 killing of Gwendolyn Sue Miller, 31, of Ardmore, Okla., is the only death for which Braun received the death penalty.

Braun was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment in the murder of Pampa businessman Pete Spurrier in 31st District Court here on Oct. 3, 1994. Mann served as prosecutor in the capital murder trial.

Braun also received four life sentences in the deaths of two Garden City, Kan., convenience store clerks and a life sentence in the death of a Springer, N.M., convenience store clerk.

Mann said he purposely did not seek the death penalty when trying Braun for Spurrier's murder.

"I knew he would get 'death' in another state and I wanted to save the tax payers some money," he said.

Local officers earn praise

Honored for roles in ending theft ring

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

SHAMROCK — Four area law enforcement officers were recognized here this week for the parts they played in breaking up a suspected theft ring that had plagued the Texas Panhandle and Western Oklahoma for the better part of a year.

Gray County Deputies Cary Rushing and Morse Burroughs, Texas and Southwest Field Inspector Kelly Rushing and Texas Ranger Gary Henderson were awarded certificates by the Area Law Enforcement Association here for their parts in breaking a up a suspected theft ring in May that had been operating in the Texas Panhandle and Western Oklahoma since August, 1999.

Wheeler County Sheriff Jimmy Adams and

Hemphill County Sheriff Dean Butcher made the presentations at a luncheon here Wednesday.

"It was kind of a thank you for being out there and making the area safe," said Kenneth Martindale, Wheeler County probation officer in Shamrock.

Kelly Rushing, who as a TSCRA Field Inspector carries a law enforcement commission in Texas and Oklahoma, and Texas Ranger Gary Henderson had been compiling information on a series of thefts and burglaries over the past nine months that seemed to follow a pattern. Based on information Henderson and Kelly Rushing developed, Gray County Deputies Burroughs and Cary Rushing on May 29, arrested two men who have since been charged in a number of the thefts that covered eight counties in the Texas Panhandle and two in Oklahoma.

Martindale, who helped organize the Area Law Enforcement Association, said the organization started at the beginning of the year in Shamrock and initially consisted only of the Wheeler County

Rescue scene

(Pampa News photos by Dee Dee Laramore)

In the photo above, Pampa firefighters Warren Billington, Rusty Horton and Charles Douthit extricate the driver of a car involved in a collision Wednesday at Starkweather and Kingsmill. The woman was rushed to Pampa Regional Medical Center by Rural/Metro Ambulance to be treated for internal injuries. A 13-year-old boy was also taken to PRMC for treatment of a cut over his right eye. A 6-year-old girl was treated for head injuries. Pampa police officers said a fourth person in the car was not injured. All the injured were in a car that was eastbound on Kingsmill. The eastbound car was in collision with a southbound car on Starkweather. Officers said no one in the southbound car was hurt. In the photo at left, Pampa firefighters Rusty Horton and Scott Reesor immobilize the 6-year-old girl injured Wednesday in the collision. Further details were not available at press time today.

Early voting begins

Misty Payne in the Gray County Clerk's Office is preparing for early voting in the Court Ordered Republican Primary runoff election. The election, which is to be held June 27, is to determine the Republican Primary nominee between John Mann and Rick Roach. Early voting begins Friday, June 16, and goes through Friday, June 23. Voters in each of the five counties-Gray, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts and Wheeler- in the multi-county district may cast ballots in their county clerk's office during early voting for the Republican Primary election.

County jail passes annual inspection

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Gray County Sheriff Don Copeland told Gray County Commissioners Court Thursday morning the county jail passed the annual jail inspection Wednesday with "flying colors."

Only one deficiency, which was a non-working smoke alarm, was cited in the inspection by the Jail Standards Commission. Sheriff Copeland said he believed the smoke alarm is already in working order again.

Inspectors went over "every piece of paperwork," said Copeland. "The jail staff are the ones to be thanked for this outstanding accomplishment. They do a good job," he said.

While Gray County Commission deterred any action on matters dealing with the courthouse restoration project, Judge Richard Peet said he visited with Lawrence Oaks of the Historical Commission Tuesday regarding the percentage of funds Gray County will have to furnish to receive the $3.8 million grant for the courthouse. Peet said Oaks is to notify him following the state historical commission meeting next week.

Judge Peet also said the manual including the rules for receiving the courthouse restoration was received 2 1/2 weeks after the grant selections were announced. He said the architects on the project received the manuals at the same meeting as what he did.

Items concerning funding agreement with State of Texas with regard to funding restoration, preservation easement format, and a contract with ArchiTexas will be acted upon at a future meeting.

Commission members approved joining Preservation Texas for a yearly dues of $10. Judge Peet said he will be (See JAIL, Page 2)

Pampa police examine vandalism and burglary

Police officers were today investigating reports of vandalism to a repossessed car at a Pampa credit union and a burglary on North Wells.

Officials at Page Credit Union reported to Pampa police Wednesday that a repossessed automobile parked behind their building at 807 N. Sumner had been vandalized.

Police said today a 1991 Ford Escort had been destroyed by vandals.

Officers said the roof of the small car had been bashed in along with the quarter panels. They said the windshield had also been shattered. The car was turned over on its side.

Authorities estimated damage to the car at $3,559.33.

The car, which had no front tires, had been up on blocks behind the credit union.

Pampa police today were also continuing to investigate a burglary in the 300 block of North Wells.

Alton Watson, 32, 322 N. Wells, told police Wednesday that a camera, some photographs and a video tape recorder was missing from a house he owns at 324 N. Wells.

Officers said it appears some one broke into the house through the front door over the weekend and took a Pentax 35mm camera valued at $300, a video tape recorder valued at $250 and a box of photographs.

Gregg Francis Braun, left, is escorted to a Gray County courtroom by Deputy Rob Goodin in late September, 1994. Braun was convicted in Pampa on Oct. 3, 1994, in the execution style killing of Pampa businessman Pete Spurrier. Braun, who is facing the death penalty in Oklahoma for the 1989 killing of Gwendolyn Sue Miller of Ardmore will have a clemency hearing later this month in the Sooner State.

HEARING

crime spree that began in Kansas, continued through Oklahoma and Texas, and ended in New Mexico.

The killing spree began July 19, 1989, in Braun's hometown of Garden City, Okla., with separate abductions of Barbara Kochendorfer and Mary Rains taken from the convenience stores where they worked. Both were shot to death and their bodies dumped three miles apart outside Garden City.

On July 20, Spurrier was shot to death at his photo processing store on Hobart Street in Pampa. Spurrier was found on the floor of the business with a gunshot wound to the back of the head. A .25-caliber shell found at the scene of the Pampa shooting matched a handgun Braun had in his possession at his arrest.

A day later, Braun shot a customer and two employees at an Ardmore, Okla., flower shop, 320 miles from Pampa. Miller died.

Geraldine Valdez, Springer, N.M., convenience store clerk, was shot and killed on July 23.

Braun testified in Raton, N.M., that he had been receiving counseling in Garden City since June 1989 for recurring violent dreams, and that recent, heavy use of cocaine worsened a lifelong violent tendency.

He pleaded no contest to the Oklahoma murder.

Braun's execution date was set by the Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals in May after the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear his final appeal, without comment, on May 15.

OFFICERS

Sheriff's Office, Shamrock Police Department, Department of Public Safety, Probation officers and other local law enforcement authorities. Martindale said the informal organization soon expanded to include Ochiltree, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts, Gray and Collingsworth County officials, as well as officials from Beckham, Roger Mills and Ellis Counties in Oklahoma.

The group meets once a month for lunch, Martindale said.

"It gives us a chance to compare information on crimes that might involve more than one jurisdiction," Martindale said.

Information developed by Kelly Rushing and Henderson concerning the string of thefts over the past nine months was shared with other law enforcement officers in the group.

That information helped alert Cary Rushing and Burroughs to the importance of a pickup they stopped for traffic violations early in the morning of Memorial Day.

The two men in the pickup, which matched the description of a pickup that had been seen near several of the thefts, have since been charged with more than 20 counts of theft or burglary, Martindale said.

The commission also agreed to participate in the Texas Association of Counties Leadership Foundation Awards program.

Commission eyes early lottery payments

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Lottery Commission has begun an audit after officials discovered that a computer glitch may have caused some lottery winners to be paid improperly during the first two years of the game.

Originally discovered in 1994, the glitch caused winners to be overpaid or underpaid because the computer problem resulted in some ticket sales being recorded twice, said Linda Cloud, lottery executive director. Because prizes are determined by ticket sales, the payouts could have been affected, lottery officials said.

Lottery officials believed the problem was corrected shortly after it was originally discovered, but Gtech, the company that runs the games, said it found evidence the glitch could have been more widespread than originally believed.

Retailers who overpaid will be reimbursed but there is little the state can do about incorrect prizes, Cloud said.

Fires

Pampa Fire Department responded to the following calls during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.

3:40 p.m. — Two units and six firefighters responded to a motor vehicle collision at Starkweather and Kingsmill streets.

7:00 p.m. — One unit and three firefighters presented a fire prevention program in the 1800 block of West Harvester.

7:56 p.m. — Two units and five firefighters responded to a report of smoke in the 500 block of Carr. Someone was burning oil in metal box.

Weather focus

PAMPA — Mostly sunny today with a high of 90 to 95 and south winds at 15 to 20 mph with some gusts. Tonight, partly cloudy with a low in the mid-60s. Friday, partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms and a high in the upper 80s. Friday evening, mostly cloudy and a 20 percent chance of storms. Low will be near 60.

STATEWIDE — The weak cold front that dumped heavy rains over North and West Texas was stalled Thursday along the state's midsection, with more precipitation expected through the weekend.

Street flooding remained in the Brownwood area. Strong storms on Wednesday forced hundreds of cancellations at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport. More flights were delayed on Thursday.

Flooding of streets, roads and low-lying areas was also reported in Johnson, Dallas, Tarrant, Hunt, Hopkins, and Somervell counties.

Heavy rain continued in Rains and Hopkins counties and from Brownwood to Hamilton and just south of Cleburne.

The front stretched from just south of Paris, through Dallas and Corsicana to between Abilene and San Angelo.

Showers and thunderstorms, some with very heavy rain, were generally south of a line from Coleman and Glen Rose to Garland to Greenville.

Early-morning temperatures ranged from the 50s to 80s. It was 57 degrees at Amarillo and

FCC on verge of approving Bell Atlantic, GTE merger

By KALPANA SRINIVASAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anticipated merger of Bell Atlantic and Texas-based GTE will create a telephone powerhouse with the most local lines and wireless customers in the nation.

A majority of the commissioners at the Federal Communications Commission have signed off on the deal, according to sources familiar with the process. While all the commissioners must cast their vote for a decision to be complete, a formal announcement of the approval could come as early as Thursday, the sources said.

The combined business, to be called Verizon Communications, will control 63 million of the phone lines into people's homes — making it the nation's largest local phone company — and have a presence in more than 30 states. Verizon will serve more than 25 million wireless customers, with a footprint covering more than 90 percent of country.

The merger, originally valued at $52 billion, is another example of the wave of consolidation that has taken over the telecommunications industry in recent years. Bell Atlantic is one of the four Bell companies still remaining of the original seven carved up from American Telephone & Telegraph in 1984. The Irving, Texas-headquartered GTE, although not a Bell company, stands among the top local phone operators.

Together, the two will trump in size SBC Communications — which last year combined with Bell company Ameritech — create a regional phone giant.

To gain approval, the companies have sought to address thorny issues surrounding GTE's Internet backbone — the massive data pipelines that crisscross the country carrying computer traffic. For regulatory purposes, this constitutes long-distance service, which Bell companies cannot offer within their region until first showing that their local markets are open to competition and then gaining FCC approval for each state.

Bell Atlantic in December secured FCC permission to offer long-distance in New York state only, but it could take years before it gets the ability to provide long-distance throughout its local calling region of 13 states and the District of Columbia.

In the meantime, the two companies have proposed spinning off GTE's Internet assets into a new corporation, called Genuity. The merged Bell Atlantic/GTE would only have a 9.5 percent interest in the company. But once the combined business gets approval to offer long-distance in all of Bell Atlantic's territory, it will then be permitted to hold up to an 80 percent stake in Genuity.

Company officials say the plan gives them an incentive to open their local markets quickly to competition. Rivals like AT&T have argued that the plan is unfair.

The companies also have proposed spending hundreds of millions of dollars to compete with local companies in regions beyond their current territory.

The merged company would then provide rival telephone services or Internet connections to customers in other Bell regions.

The two companies already received approval from the Justice Department, after agreeing to shed some assets in areas where they had overlapping wireless interests.

In April, Bell Atlantic launched Verizon Wireless, a result of its partnership with Vodafone AirTouch PLC, and begin to offer cellular, PCS and paging services under that name. The merger with GTE will boost Verizon's wireless holdings.

The companies derived the name Verizon, pronounced "horizon," from two words: veritas, which means truth, and horizon.

The deal has sparked criticism from some consumer advocates, who warn that a few big phone companies will now control a large number of U.S. phone lines.

"These large telephone companies should be challenging each other as competitors and rivals rather than joining forces and merging," said Gene Kimmelman, co-director of the Washington Office of Consumers Union.

Opinion

Internet privacy is a touchy deal

■ The best regulation would be no regulation at all.

There is one reason one might be tempted to go along with the Federal Trade Commission, which recently issued a report on Internet privacy practices recommending that Congress pass new legislation mandating that Internet sites adopt uniform practices concerning information collection. But it's not quite compelling enough.

As Deborah Pierce of the Electronic Frontier Foundation notes, state legislators all over the country are getting into the Internet privacy act. More than 100 pieces of Internet privacy legislation have been introduced in state legislatures, some of which contradict one another and some of which reflect profound ignorance of how the Internet really works.

If 50 states passed 50 different laws, the confusion could make it almost impossible for the Internet to function. Maybe it would be better to have one uniform federal standard for protection of consumer privacy on the Internet.

On the other hand, perhaps concern about protecting consumer privacy from private companies is overblown — especially insofar as it diverts attention from the fact that the government poses a greater threat to citizens' privacy and freedom than all the private list collectors combined.

The concern about privacy on the Internet is not trivial for many people. Many Internet sites, especially those that sell products or feature advertising or have a registration system, collect information from site visitors, creating databases designed to refine marketing practices. Sometimes such information is traded among companies or sold to other companies.

Solveig Singleton, director of Information Studies at the libertarian Cato Institute, has a hard time getting worked up about that. "Most private-sector firms that collect information about consumers do so only in order to sell more merchandise," she says. "That hardly constitutes a sinister motive. There is little reason to fear the growth of private-sector databases."

Some people find the offers and advertisements that come from businesses learning about your habits and preferences annoying, even as many find junk mail annoying. For those who wish to avoid data collection, a number of technological solutions are available and if the demand is sufficient others will be produced. Internet browser preferences can be set so as to refuse data-collecting "cookies."

The FTC promulgated a four-part Fair Information Practices guideline three years ago, then did surveys to show that website proprietors have been slow to adopt them without legislation. The four principles — Notice of how information will be used, consumer choice to stay out of databases, consumer access to what's been compiled on them and adequate security — are fairly reasonable. The question is whether consumer and marketplace pressure, or government legislation is the best way to increase the number of sites that are serious about consumer privacy.

We would hope that Web businesses looking for long-term success take consumer concerns seriously and respond appropriately.

On balance, there should be no hurry to pass new laws.

—Odessa American

If you don't vote, don't complain

"If you don't vote, you can't complain." That's what I was always taught.

In case you haven't heard, there's an election coming up June 27. While voters in five counties — Gray, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts and Wheeler — are being urged to vote in the contest, there are 2,891 voters in these combined counties who are not allowed to vote. To find out why, read on.

This political contest which features incumbent John Mann in one corner and Rick Roach, Roberts County Attorney, in the opposite corner is going to climax one of the most intense local political campaigns in recent history.

Most local residents are tired of the battling and hope this election will be the end of the political warring between the two feuding attorneys. Many divorces don't have as much animosity as has existed in this continuing campaign.

Strong accusations have been leveled by supporters of both candidates. What began as sparring has seemed to almost have been a slugfest.

On March 14 the two attorneys, along with Shamrock attorney Phil Pendleton, were listed as candidates on the Republican Primary ballot. Mann came in first in that election. Roach was second and Pendleton third. As Mann did not receive a majority of the votes, he and Roach faced off in a Republican runoff on April 11.

Only six votes separated the two men in the runoff with Roach getting the most votes. Mann considered a recount, but instead filed a suit alleging election law violations. Those infractions included not enough balloting locations in two counties and voters who had cast ballots in the Democratic Party Primaries casting ballots in the Republican Runoff. (This is a no-no and definitely is not allowed by the Texas Election Code)

Nancy Young
Managing editor

After a day of testimony and legalese in the 31st District Courtroom in Miami, Senior Judge John T. Forbis ruled a new election was in order due to election code violations. A court-ordered Republican Party Runoff was ordered by the visiting judge.

It will be the voters of the five counties—Gray, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Roberts and Wheeler—who decide the outcome of this political contest on June 27. Early voting begins Friday, June 16, and goes through Friday, June 23.

Voting is a privilege which is very important. There are many people out there who do not ever say how they vote, but do go vote. Others don't even bother to vote in elections saying their vote won't make any difference. Seven people making that assertion could have changed the outcome of the April 11 election.

A young man I know sought a seat on a city council three years ago and was defeated by one vote. A few months later a council member resigned, and he was appointed, and later elected, to fill out the unexpired term. In March he sought reelection to the council, and he was beaten by one vote. Now, one vote would have made a tremendous difference in that race.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, June 15, the 167th day of 2000. There are 199 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 15, 1215, King John put his seal to Magna Carta ("the Great Charter") at Runnymede, England, granting his barons more liberty.

On this date:

In 1520, Pope Leo X threatened to excommunicate Martin Luther unless he recanted his religious beliefs.

In 1775, the Second Continental Congress voted unanimously to appoint George Washington head of the Continental Army.

In 1836, Arkansas became the 25th state.

In 1849, James Polk, the 11th U.S. president, died in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1864, Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton signed an order establishing a military burial ground, which became Arlington National Cemetery.

In 1904, more than 1,000 people died when fire erupted aboard the steamboat General Slocum in New York's East River.

In 1944, American forces began their successful invasion of Saipan during World War II. Meanwhile, B-29 Superfortresses made their first raids on Japan.

In 1960, the Billy Wilder movie "The Apartment," starring Jack Lemmon and Shirley MacLaine, opened in New York.

In 1978, King Hussein of Jordan married 26-year-old American Lisa Halaby, who became Queen Noor.

In 1994, Israel and the Vatican established full diplomatic relations.

Ten years ago: Real estate mogul Donald Trump missed a payment due on junk bonds used to finance one of his Atlantic City, N.J., resorts.

Iranian woman receives short-shrift

Every time I think the Clinton administration has reached the apex of outrages, it tops itself. The latest? The administration apparently intends to trade a young woman's life for some secret backroom deal it is trying to make with the mullahs ruling Iran.

Mahnaz Samadi, 35, an Iranian feminist and human-rights activist who was granted political asylum in 1995, was arrested this year and is being treated by the Immigration and Naturalization Service almost as inhumanely as the Iranian government treated her. Her alleged crime? She tried to liberate Iran — not during the years she has lived in this country but before she arrived.

Now make sense out of this. The U.S. government has officially branded Iran as a sponsor of terrorism. It has passed all kinds of punitive laws against Iran. Yet it has now belatedly decided that those Iranians who fight against the same Iranian government the United States opposes are now terrorists.

Since she was granted asylum, Ms. Samadi has simply made speeches on behalf of human rights and particularly on behalf of the rights of women in Iran.

She was arrested in Iran at the age of 17, sexually abused, tortured and held in prison for four years. She was forced to watch her younger brother being tortured. He and another brother were later executed. Her parents died of a broken heart. Her younger sister was imprisoned for 10 years.

Charley Reese
Syndicated columnist

When she was released, she continued to work in the underground for human rights until 1991 when she went into hiding in Iranian Kurdistan to escape arrest. She went to Iraq and there joined the resistance. Later she went back to Iranian Kurdistan and finally made her way to the United States.

Now, get this. The resistance she joined, the National Liberation Army, was not designated a terrorist organization at the time she was a member. The Clinton administration arbitrarily labeled it terrorist in 1997 — two years after she was granted asylum. Members of Congress, members of the U.S. Senate, and parliamentary majorities in Britain, Italy and Belgium have recognized the NLA as a legitimate resistance organization.

Ms. Samadi, arrested in Buffalo, N.Y., has been subjected to the federal shuffle — suddenly moved from one jail to another — denied bail, and is now being held in an Alabama county jail, far away from her attorneys and the people who are trying to help her. Even though a federal judge has transferred her case to Arlington, Va., the INS has refused to move her from Alabama. When her attorney visited her, the Farsi translator was denied admission, and after every visit by her attorney, she is strip searched.

If the Clinton administration sends this woman back to Iran, it will be an act of cold-blooded murder. She will be tortured and publicly executed, and the Iranian government is already saying publicly that Clinton is going to deport her — before she's even had a hearing.

Obviously the administration is hoping to trade an innocent human life for some favor from the mullahs. What, I don't know, but the evil of this administration has no bottom. It's bad enough to send a 6-year-old Elian Gonzalez back to be brainwashed in Cuba so some American businessman can cut a deal with Castro. Now it is condemning an innocent woman to death in pursuit of some hidden agenda.

Even Sen. Robert Torricelli (D-N.J.), normally an ardent Clinton supporter, is raising hell about this, as indeed the American people should. To condemn an innocent woman to death because she tried to liberate Iran is blasphemy against the Declaration of Independence.

Retired Army Reserve colonel stands accused of spying for Soviet Union

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — As his wife waited in a car outside, George Trofimoff stepped inside a Tampa hotel for a meeting. The retired Army Reserve colonel with an address on Patriot Drive emerged in handcuffs, accused of spying for the Soviet Union and Russia for a quarter-century.

Wednesday became the highest ranking U.S. military officer ever charged with espionage, U.S. Attorney Donna Bucella said. Trofimoff allegedly photographed U.S. documents and passed the film to a boyhood friend who recruited him into the KGB.

He was arrested after an FBI agent posing as a Soviet agent lured him to the hotel with the promise of a past due payment for spy services. Trofimoff was under investigation by German and American officials for seven years and the charges against him could bring a life sentence in prison. Authorities said his wife, Jutta, was not involved. According to a federal indictment, Trofimoff sold "documents, photographs, photographic negatives and information relating to the national defense of the United States" while serving as a civilian employee of the U.S. Army at the Nuremberg Joint Interrogation Center in West Germany from 1969 to 1994. The center is where refugees and defectors from the Soviet bloc were questioned.

FBI Special Agent Frank Gallagher said it isn't clear what damage Trofimoff's alleged spying might have caused. At a hearing Wednesday, U.S. Magistrate Judge Mark Pizzo ordered Trofimoff held without bail and gave him a court-appointed attorney. Trofimoff retired from his Army civilian job in 1995 after 35 years. He has been living in a gated community in Melbourne, Fla., and works as a part-time bagger at a supermarket. Trofimoff's telephone number was unlisted. "He's a very good neighbor and a good friend," said one resident, John Callaway. "These people are wonderful people. What happened, that's way in the past."

Yasser Arafat looks to President for lift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat is looking for a lift from President Clinton as he presses for an immediate Israeli pullback on the West Bank and, ultimately, a state with its capital in Jerusalem.

Clinton already has endorsed what he called Palestinian "aspirations," but with a mid-September deadline for an accord just over the horizon, Arafat would like to bank on concrete U.S. help to achieve his goals.

American mediator Dennis B. Ross joined negotiations here Wednesday and Secretary of State Madeleine Albright invited Arafat to her home in Georgetown for lunch Thursday after his White House meeting.

The Palestinians briefly halted the negotiations on Wednesday in a dispute over a promised Israeli pullback on the West Bank and Israel's refusal to release more than a few Palestinian prisoners.

A settlement is Clinton's highest foreign policy priority in the little more than seven months he has remaining in the White House.

Clinton talked to Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak on the telephone for 40 minutes Wednesday and said the two sides were not ready for a Camp David-style three-way meeting with him.

"I think we need to get the parties a little closer before we can go there," Clinton told reporters. "We don't have a lot of time. We're down to all the hard issues now, and we're working on it. I'm hopeful, but I don't want to hold out false hopes."

Palestinian negotiator Saeb Erekat said Israel had agreed to release only three of 250 prisoners whose freedom was sought and was trying to delay the pullback due later in the month. "We will not allow its delay for even one minute," Erekat told The Associated Press.

The pullback, which Israel had promised, would not involve any Palestinian gestures in response. But if it were part of negotiations for an overall settlement it could provide Israel with a useful bargaining chip.

The Palestinian negotiator said the offer to release three prisoners had been rejected. "We don't want goodwill gestures from the Israelis. All we want from Israel is to implement the agreements. They can keep their goodwill gestures for themselves," Erekat said.

The State Department spokesman, Richard Boucher, said there was no halt to the negotiations overall, but some of the talks, which are spread between two U.S. air force bases, may have been interrupted. The decision to have Ross join the talks indicated the administration was preparing to apply some heat in its quest for a settlement.

Refugees, water problems and the promised Israeli pullback this month on the West Bank also were on the agenda for the talks at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland and at Bolling Air Force Base in southeast Washington.

In Jerusalem, Barak's spokesman, Gadi Baltiansky, said "the only way to bridge the gaps is through talking," and that any other approach would not help solve problems.

Before the flap surfaced, the negotiators were considering an extension of their slow-moving talks on the future of Jerusalem and Palestine's aspirations for a state.

Many playgrounds dangerous for children, report says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Christine Cichello's 7-year-old son, Sam, ran over and told her what had just happened: He was hanging from the playground's elevated rings when another boy jumped off a nearby platform and grabbed him by the legs. Sam hit the ground face-first.

"He said, 'Mom, I hit my face really hard.' He said he was dizzy, and within five minutes, he was unconscious," the Milton, Mass., mother recalled earlier this week.

Sam died that evening last October at Children's Hospital in Boston, one of 17 children who die annually from injuries sustained on playgrounds, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

A report released Thursday by the U.S. Public Interest Research Group and the Consumer Federation of America says hard playground surfaces, equipment that is too high, openings that can entrap children, and swings that are too close together pose serious threats at a majority of the nation's public playgrounds.

In the report, titled "Playing It Safe," researchers surveyed 1,024 public school, municipal and federal playgrounds in 27 states and the District of Columbia between March and May. They found 80 percent had surfaces that were too hard, such as concrete, asphalt, or packed dirt, and nearly half had climbing equipment that was too high — more than 6 feet tall.

"Playgrounds can be wonderful places for children to have fun and face new challenges, but far too many playgrounds contain dangers that can injure and even kill," said Rachel Weintraub, staff attorney for U.S. PIRG and co-author of the report.

Government figures show that 170,100 children require hospital emergency room treatment each year because of playground accidents. Weintraub noted that 75 percent of those injuries are caused by falls.

The researchers also found:

- 27 percent of swings have spacing hazards, positioning them too close to each other or to other objects.
- 31 percent of slides and climbing equipment have an inadequate "fall zone" because there are obstacles where a child might fall.
- 34 percent have openings in the equipment where a child's head could become entrapped.
- 38 percent have small gaps, hooks or other protrusions where clothing, particularly drawstrings, could become entangled.

—47 percent have peeling, chipped or cracking paint.

This was the fifth biannual survey conducted by U.S. PIRG and CFA during the last 10 years. The survey showed some improvements as older playground equipment is gradually being replaced. For example, this year, 80 percent of playgrounds had surfaces that were too hard, compared with 87 percent in 1998.

Another survey released in April and conducted by The National Program for Playground Safety at the University of Northern Iowa examined 3,052 childcare, school and city parks and found that 46 percent had relatively new and appropriate equipment.

"We really believe that the playground companies are doing a better job of making equipment safe, and we believe the surface manufacturers are building more appropriate surfaces," said program director Donna Thompson.

However, she said, people need to do a better job of supervising children and ensuring that smaller children and larger children have separate play areas with age-appropriate equipment.

State crime rate remains steady over past two years

AUSTIN (AP) — The number of homicides in Texas dropped about 10 percent last year, according to a Texas Department of Public Safety report.

And major crime totals decreased from 1,009,868 in 1998 to 1,009,253 in 1999, the agency said.

DPS statistics released Wednesday show the state's overall crime rate has remained steady for the past two years.

Preliminary figures show incidents of rape, murder, burglaries and car thefts decreased last year, while other thefts and robberies increased.

There were 615 fewer reports of major crimes — including 125 fewer murders, 285 fewer rapes, 4,525 fewer burglaries and 4,622 fewer car thefts — in 1999 for a .06 percent decrease in crimes across the state since 1998.

However, with 7,636 more thefts, 752 more robberies and 517 more aggravated assaults, the state's crime rate remained the same, with about five reported crimes per 100 Texans.

The number of homicides dropped in 19 of 25 Texas cities with a population greater than 100,000. Four cities, including San Antonio, showed slight increases, according to Wednesday's editions of the San Antonio Express-News.

Homicide numbers began falling in most Texas cities after record totals in the early 1990s, reflecting a national trend experts attribute to factors such as low unemployment, a decrease in the number of people classified as being crime-prone, and a slowing of the crack cocaine trade.

The state's murder rate fell 10.3 percent last year from 6.8 to 6.1 per 100,000 Texans.

"We're especially glad that the murder rate continues to drop in the state," Michael Jones, spokesman for Texas Gov. George W. Bush, told the Houston Chronicle. "The extensive effort that the state has made to deal with juvenile crime seems to be paying off."

In San Antonio, the numbers began dropping after a record 229 homicides in 1993. The 95 homicides in 1997 was the lowest number in 26 years.

Last year, San Antonio slayings edged up to 96, according to DPS records, after dipping to 89 in 1998.

As of Thursday, the San Antonio homicide total for this year was 33, compared to 51 in the same period a year ago.

Coast Guard continues search for stowaways

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Three Colombian nationals who escaped after being captured as stowaways are being sought today in Corpus Christi by the U.S. Coast Guard and immigration authorities.

The trio had been held on a German freighter ship before jumping to freedom through a porthole.

A fourth man remained aboard the 477-foot cargo freighter Meta, hoping to seek political asylum once the ship reaches its final destination port of Quebec, Canada.

His companions were almost 40 feet above the water when they jumped about 3 a.m. yesterday from the moving ship near the Port Aransas jetties. News of the escape was released by Orion, the German company that owns the freighter.

It's not known if the three fugitives were hurt in the jump. Ship officials said darkness prevented the crew from witnessing the escape.

Florida unkind to pedestrians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walking may be healthy exercise, but going for a stroll in Florida can often be deadly.

Four of the five metropolitan areas considered the most dangerous for pedestrians are in Florida, with the Tampa region leading the list, according to a study released Thursday by the Surface Transportation Policy Project, a Washington-based environmental group that advocates alternatives to driving.

Analyzing federal data from 1997 and 1998, the group found Atlanta was the second most dangerous urban area for walking, followed by three in Florida: Miami, Orlando and Jacksonville. Rounding out the top 10 were Phoenix; West Palm Beach, Fla.; Memphis, Tenn.; Dallas; and New Orleans.

The authors of the "Mean Streets 2000" report charge that sprawling development, including wide roads without sidewalks or frequent crosswalks, has put more pedestrians at risk.

"We're spending a minuscule amount of our transportation money trying to solve this problem. All of the energy and resources goes to making it safer for people inside the car," said Roy Kienitz, executive director of the project. "As a result, driving is getting safer, but walking is not getting any safer."

Inadequate planning and spending for pedestrians also deters people from walking, which contributes to health problems related to inactivity, he said.

The project study used a "pedestrian danger index," which seeks to rate relative safety. Using Census information on the number of people walking to work, the group calculated pedestrian safety based on fatalities relative to the number of people walking.

It said the number of trips taken on foot has dropped 42 percent in the past 20 years. Americans took less than 6 percent of their trips on foot in 1997 and 1998, while pedestrians accounted for 13 percent of all traffic deaths. Of those nearly 11,000 deaths, more than 1,500 were children.

Rae Tyson, a spokesman for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, said he hadn't seen the study and couldn't comment.

Of the 47 regions listed, the report said the three safest cities for pedestrians were Pittsburgh, Boston and Rochester, N.Y.

Walking is more dangerous in newer Southern and Western metro areas designed for fast automobile travel, Kienitz said. These sprawling communities have wider roads with fewer sidewalks and places to cross.

The study found that of the pedestrian deaths where location information was recorded, 59 percent occurred in places without a crosswalk, and another 19 percent outside a crosswalk. Ten percent occurred in a crosswalk, while 7 percent took place on the shoulder of a road.

The study recommends that states match the proportion they spend on pedestrian safety to the proportion of traffic deaths that involve pedestrians. It also suggests that communities survey their streets to identify problem areas, make sure new streets have sidewalks, and create "traffic calming" programs to slow the speed of drivers on local streets.

Comptroller awards sales tax rebates

AUSTIN — Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander sent Texas cities and counties $199.3 million in monthly sales tax rebates. June payments to the 1,103 Texas cities and 119 counties that impose a sales tax are up 8.3 percent compared to the $184 million rebated in June 1999. Year-to-date sales tax rebates are up 7.9 percent, compared to 1999.

Comptroller Rylander sent sales tax rebates totaling $183.6 million to Texas cities, 8.3 percent higher than last June's payments of $169.4 million. Rebates of $15.6 million to Texas counties were up 7.4 percent compared to allocations of $14.5 million in June 1999.

In addition to city and county sales tax rebates, the state's six metropolitan transit authorities and two city transit departments received $72.2 million. Another $6.5 million went to 51 special purpose districts.

June sales tax rebates represent sales taxes collected in April and reported to the Comptroller in May.

For more details of June sales tax allocations, locate the Monthly Sales and Use Tax Allocation Comparison Summary Report on the Comptroller's website at <www.window.state.tx.us/tax-info/allocsum/compsum.html>

Florida relatives face deadline in Elian case

MIAMI (AP) — Elian Gonzalez's Miami relatives are planning to meet a deadline Thursday to file an appeal in federal court in their bid to keep the 6-year-old Cuban boy in the United States, attorneys for the family said.

The relatives said in a statement Wednesday they would seek a rehearing of their case before all 12 judges of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

"Based on direction of other courts in this country, we think there's a very compelling case of the entire 11th Circuit to reconsider its past views," attorney Kendall Coffey said Thursday.

Coffey also said the family was concerned that the Immigration and Naturalization Service was ignoring its own procedures.

According to recently released documents, the federal government was "just simply trying to appease to Fidel Castro and the Cuban government" in its handling of the Elian case, Jose Garcia-Pedrosa, another attorney for the family, said.

A three-judge panel ruled against the family June 1, saying the Immigration and Naturalization Service acted within reason when it decided that only Elian's father could apply for asylum on his behalf.

The unanimous ruling blocked Elian from leaving the country immediately and gave his Miami relatives two weeks to appeal — either to the full appeals court or the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Miami relatives will ask the appeals court to consider "whether aliens like Elian have a constitutional right to seek asylum," according to the statement from family spokesman Armando Gutierrez.

"The issue of constitutional protection for asylum seekers is especially critical for the thousands of refugee children who reach our shores each year," the statement said.

In its decision, the appeals panel said no federal law addresses whether a child as young as Elian can seek asylum against the wishes of his parents. Because of that, the court said, INS was required to come up with a policy dealing with "the extraordinary circumstances" of the case.

If the relatives' strategy fails, it is unclear how soon Elian could return to Cuba. A court order requiring Elian to stay in the United States could be extended if the court decides to rehear the appeal.

DEAR ABBY: My mother is married for the second time. They were married when I was 14. A year later, she discovered he'd had an incestuous relationship with both of his daughters from the age of 5 until the oldest went to college and the second girl was 14 or 15. The relationship with the second daughter ended six months before he married my mom. Mother forgave him, and we all went to counseling.

I'm 29 now, with a 7-year-old daughter. We see them only on holidays. My mother doesn't understand why my daughter can't go to their home without me or my husband. My daughter is asking why she doesn't get to see Grandma or spend the night when Grandma asks. Should I tell her why? Is she old enough to understand? My mother has threatened to take me to court for "grandparent rights." What do I do?

DEAR SUSAN: Your daughter is old enough to be told the difference between appropriate and inappropriate touching, and she should report to you any behavior that makes her "uncomfortable."

I feel so betrayed by Ruth that I'm not sure I'll ever want anything to do with her again. Abby, Ruth and I had been friends since high school. We shared our most intimate secrets over the years. I would never have discussed her personal business with my family, and I'm hurt that she disclosed mine.

She was the only person other than my husband that I trusted with my innermost feelings. Should I write her off or should I confront her?

DEAR BETRAYED: I hope your son has recovered from his automobile accident.

Before writing off such a long friendship, talk to Ruth and give her a chance to explain. If her reasons for revealing the secrets make sense, give her another chance. However, should you discover a malicious streak in your old friend, say farewell to her.

DEAR ABBY: My 67-year-old husband has taken up with a 45-year-old married woman. We live in a small town, and of course everybody knows about it.

As I see it, I have two options. The first is to maintain the status quo and pretend all is well for the benefit of friends, family, children and grandchildren.

The second option is to sue him for divorce and clean his clock. I have all the evidence I need — credit card receipts, motel records and eyewitnesses. Perhaps he won't be so darn "charming" without his money.

I could also sue her for "assault on a marriage," which I saw on TV the other evening.

Can you think of any other options?

House passes E-signature bill

By JIM ABRAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Businesses will soon be able to seal multimillion-dollar mergers and consumers will be able to buy a car, apply for a loan or close a mortgage with the tap of a computer key — no scrawling in ink. Legislation passed by the House on Wednesday would give electronic signatures the same legal status as a penned "John Hancock" on a paper document.

The bill "will further move us from the paper age to the digital age," smoothing the way for a change in the way people have done business since the time of the ancient Egyptians, said House Commerce Committee Chairman Tom Bliley, R-Va.

The bill, passed 426-4, was considered likely to get quick Senate approval, and President Clinton said he looked forward to signing it. "It will encourage the information technology revolution that has helped lower inflation, raise productivity and spur new research and development," Clinton said in a written statement.

In addition to easing commerce for individuals, the legislation would open the way for companies to supply their customers with contracts, documents and information online rather than with paper through the mail.

The bill would set national legal standards for e-commerce that is expected to triple from $500 billion last year to some $1.6 trillion by 2003.

It will give consumers "increased confidence that an online transaction has the same legal standing as if we had traveled down to the bank, stood in line for an hour and signed a bunch of papers," said House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas.

The measure is the result of months of negotiations among the House, Senate and the administration on how best to move business transactions into the electronic age without sacrificing consumer protections.

Commerce Department Secretary William Daley applauded the legislation, saying it "enables companies to harness modern information technologies" while "ensuring that consumers in cyberspace will have legal protections equivalent to those in the offline world."

The administration opposed earlier versions of the bill that passed the House and Senate last year, saying they didn't adequately protect consumers from fraud and abuse.

A particular concern was that businesses could convey legally binding information on interest rate increases, new fees or recalls to customers lacking the computer skills or technology to receive it.

The compromise bill makes clear that consumers must agree to electronic transactions and consent to receiving electronic records. The company must verify that the customer has the hardware and software to obtain its online documents.

Notices of termination, such as electricity cutoffs, health insurance lapses or evictions, must still be in paper form.

Consumers Union spokesman David Butler said his consumer advocacy organization believes the new version "does an adequate job of ensuring that consumers will be reasonably protected when they sign a contract."

A tip sheet on electronic signatures put out by Consumers Union advised customers to be sure their hardware and software is compatible with that of the business, to keep backup paper copies of electronic documents, to close unused e-mail accounts and to refrain from giving out e-mail addresses if the person doesn't want to receive e-mail notices from a business.

Rep. Billy Tauzin, R-La., chairman of the Commerce Committee's telecommunications panel, noted the concerns of some business groups that the legislation, in the interest of consumer protections, sets up too many bureaucratic hurdles to online transactions. "It literally goes overboard to make sure that when people consent to be part of the electronic age that they really consent," he said, adding that he thought the bill was "a great step forward."

If signed by Clinton, the legislation would take effect Oct. 1. As of March 1, 2001, companies could begin the electronic retention of legal records such as mortgages and financial securities.

The four House members who voted against the bill were Reps. Helen Chenoweth-Hage, R-Idaho; Ron Paul, R-Texas; Bob Stump, R-Ariz., and Gene Taylor, D-Miss.

Senate approves CIA official to head nuclear weapons programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by another security breach at the Los Alamos weapons lab, the Senate swiftly confirmed on Wednesday the No. 2 man at the CIA to head a new nuclear weapons agency within the Energy Department.

The White House welcomed the action, but it did little to blunt sharp criticism from both Republicans and Democrats in Congress over the disappearance of secret computer files containing information on how to dismantle an array of nuclear weapons.

"Is the Department of Energy a national security risk?" asked Sen. Pat Roberts, R-Kan., as the department's security experts and the Los Alamos lab's director testified at a Senate hearing about the missing nuclear weapons material.

As accusations and dismay swirled around the Capitol over the embarrassing loss, investigators at the New Mexico lab began giving polygraph tests to the first of about two dozen nuclear scientists who had free access to the highly secured vault where the nuclear data had been kept on two computer hard drives.

With his Energy Department under congressional attack, President Clinton said he retained faith in Energy Secretary Bill Richardson, but the president, in remarks to reporters, left little doubt that he was deeply troubled by the latest security flap.

"We don't have the answers we need on this issue," Clinton said. "We've just got to see this through. It's a serious matter, and I don't think any of us need to be characterizing anything until we know what happened."

Air Force Gen. John A. Gordon, now deputy CIA director, won unanimous confirmation by the Senate after his nomination had been held up for months. The vote was 97-0 with no one eager to suggest opposition in light of the Los Alamos controversy.

Gordon in a statement acknowledged he will "face many challenges and difficult problems" but said he looked forward to addressing "these challenges" as head of the new agency, which will still report to Richardson. Gordon will assume his new job June 26.

Richardson, saying he was outraged about the security breach and the fact he was not told of it for nearly a month, said that he wants Gordon to "immediately conduct a top to bottom review of our three nuclear weapons labs."

"I want accountability. There is going to be disciplinary action," Richardson told reporters.

Meanwhile, senior Energy Department officials, appearing at hearings in both the Senate and House, told lawmakers that the FBI had taken over what now is a criminal investigation. They acknowledged that so far they have no idea what happened to the two hard drives which were last seen on April 7 and discovered missing a month later. The incident was not reported to DOE officials until June 1.

Retired Air Force Gen. Eugene Habiger, the DOE's director of security, discounted the possibility that the missing hard drives might have disappeared during a training exercise in early May at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory in California.

DOE and FBI agents conducted interviews and "extensive searches" at Livermore and "we concluded ... that in fact when the Los Alamos team went to Livermore they did not, in fact, take any of the (missing) equipment," he told senators.

Edward Curran, the DOE's director of counterintelligence, told senators he doubts espionage was involved. He said the investigation was "at a very sensitive stage."

While the loss of the nuclear material appeared to focus on 26 scientists — members of an emergency response, or NEST, team — who had access to the vault, six lab managers, including the head of the nuclear programs, have been put on paid leave pending an explanation of their actions," said Curran.

Los Alamos lab director John Browne said "several" of the six, although not senior lab officials, knew that the devices were not in the vault on May 7, but did not tell anyone up the chain of command. None of the scientists was identified. On that day, members of the response team wanted to safeguard the disks from wildfires that threatened to engulf the lab, but found the container empty, said Browne, who said he did not learn of the missing material until May 31.

Detroit outage enters third day

DETROIT (AP) — It's still dark in parts of Detroit.

Officials couldn't predict when power would be restored as an electrical failure which caused a blackout at city office buildings, schools and jails stretched into its third day Thursday.

Crews working overtime went door-to-door to restore power to the city's municipal electric system, which broke down Monday and caused outages Tuesday. Mayor Dennis Archer's office said he was unsure when all the 4,500 buildings, 87,000 street lights and 1,250 traffic signals affected by the outage would have power again.

"The reality is, the backup to the backup failed and that never happened before," mayoral spokesman Gregory Bownes said Wednesday.

Most homes and businesses in the city get service from Detroit

Edison. But hundreds of public agencies rely on the municipal system.

As of 7 p.m. Wednesday, electricity had been restored to 72 percent of the Public Lighting Department's 1,400 "customers."

"It's a very sort of manual labor-intensive effort," Bownes said. "Instead of racing to full power so that administrators can have air conditioning and spending all our resources, time and energy on that, we want to get to the critical services and maintain them."

City employees were told to call early Thursday to find out if they should report to work. Officials didn't immediately decide whether classes would be canceled for a second day at Detroit's schools, affecting 170,000 students. Even some jurors were told not to report Thursday.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — JaRo Jones, a disabled golfer with a progressive muscle disease, must be allowed to use a cart in U.S. Senior Open qualifying, a federal judge ruled.

Jones, 53, filed a lawsuit against the United States Golf Association, saying denying him a cart violates the Americans with Disabilities Act.

U.S. District Judge James R. Nowlin agreed and issued a preliminary injunction ordering Jones be allowed a cart during Monday's qualifying round in San Antonio. The U.S. Senior Open starts June 29 at Saucun Valley C.C., in Bethlehem, Pa.

AMARILLO — The High Plains Drifters, a competitive youth soccer club, has announced their upcoming tryout schedule for the Fall 2000-Spring 2001 season. The soccer club is comprised of boys' and girls' teams from Under 11 to Under 19 Divisions. A player must be 10 years old by July 31, 2000 to be eligible to play competitive soccer in the Fall-2000-Spring 2001.

The High Plains Soccer Club was founded in 1995. They are members of the Amarillo Soccer Association, the North Texas State Soccer Association, and the United States Youth Soccer Association. During the season, the club's 12 teams play in various competitive leagues, including the West Texas Premier League, the Lake Highland Girls' Classic League and the Coca Cola Classic League. The teams also traveled to many competitive tournaments throughout the season. Several of the club's older players will attend college this fall with scholarship assistance obtained through exposure in competitive tournaments and league play with their teams.

The club's coaching staff is highly-trained, many with collegiate and international playing experience, according to Publicity Director Sue Monaghan.

"They are devoted to the development of the individual player, while promoting sportsmanship, team effort, and enjoyment of the game," she said.

The first open tryouts are scheduled for July 1 at the West Texas A&M University Soccer Fields.

For more information on the tryout camps and dates, contact Ian Crowe at 353-5579.

BASEBALL

PAMPA — Duncan, Fraser & Bridges downed Tejas Feeders 7-2 Wednesday in Major Bambino 11-12 action at Optimist Park.

Braydon Barker, Matthew Trusty, Weston Teichmann, Shane Goldsmith, Luke Raber and Chris Peoples had one hit each for DFB.

Teichmann, the winning pitcher, gave up two runs on three hits while striking out 14 and walking four.

Jake Booze, Casey McDowell and Ryan Adams each had a single for Tejas.

Cody Roda pitched an outstanding game for Tejas, giving up seven runs on six hits while striking out four and walking six.

DFB improves to 9-2 and trails league-leading Glo-Valve Service (9-1) by one game.

Dallas will miss the "Moose"

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Emmitt Smith has so many great memories of running behind Daryl Johnston that he can't pick a favorite. Instead, he'll use the last one to illustrate the bond they shared.

"We played Washington and I had a fumble on our goal line," Smith said. "He made the block, yet he recovered the fumble. That was the knock he had for feeling where I was and being in the right place at the right time."

Johnston's fourth-quarter fumble recovery helped the Dallas Cowboys keep alive the biggest comeback in franchise history. A few days later, the fullback went on injured reserve with his second serious neck injury in three years, effectively ending his career.

He made it official Wednesday with a news conference at Texas Stadium.

"You can't be sad, you can't be disappointed, because this career has exceeded any of the expectations I could've had growing up in a small town," said Johnston, whose long goodbye last season helped him remain composed as he reminisced on his career and his life. Reading from notes that he pinned to a table, Johnston thanked his coaches and teammates from Pop Warner to the Cowboys, and many of the other people who impacted his life.

Some of his highest compliments were for the two guys he gave up his body for the most, Smith and Troy Aikman.

Johnston called Aikman "one of the most incredible competitors I've ever had an opportunity to be with" and credited the quarterback for his own involvement in charity work.

As for Smith, Johnston said it was his privilege to spring open the holes that helped him become the No. 3 rusher in NFL history. "I never regretted my role here," Johnston said. "I always wanted to do everything I possibly could for you, and that goes to you as being a great person."

In describing his own career, Johnston cited a line from his former position coach, Joe Brodsky: "I fully utilized the limited skills I had as a running back."

Lee is named to 4A All-State track team

For the second consecutive year, Pampa distance runner Beth Lee has been named to the Class 4A Girls' Track & Field All-State Team.

Lee, a recently-graduated senior, won the 3200-meter run at the state meet in Austin this year. She also competed in the 1600 and placed seventh.

Lee became the first Pampa High School athlete to win a gold medal at state since 1988 when Tanya Lidy won the 200.

Competing in the 3200, 1600 and 800, Lee was victorious in 12 meets this season. She had entered the 3200 only four times in her career going into state competition.

As a junior, Lee claimed the bronze medal (third place) in the 1600 at the state meet. The 5-foot-11 Lee is also a cross country standout. She was on the team when the Lady Harvesters won their first state cross country title in 1995.

Lee will be attending South Plains College in Levelland on both track and cross country scholarships.

Lee is the daughter of Kenneth and Marilyn Lee.

First State Bank of Miami has perfect 12-0 mark

PAMPA — First State Bank of Miami picked up three wins last week, improving their record to 12-0 for the season in the Optimist 9-10 year old Cal Ripken League.

On June 6, FSB of Miami pitchers Aaron Carr, Lane Douglass and Colby Greenhouse combined for a no-hitter to shut out the Lefors Pirates 16-0 at Optimist Park. Carr started for FSB and struck out three while walking two in one inning of work. Douglass pitched the next two innings and struck out six while giving up two walks. Greenhouse came on to finish the game and struck out three with two walks.

FSB batters pounded out 11 hits, including a home run and six doubles. Darius Kimberling led the team with a home run, two doubles, three RBI and three runs scored. Other heavy hitters were: Greenhouse two doubles, a single, two RBI and two runs scored; Chris Bengé two singles, two RBI and three runs scored; Douglass a double, two RBI and one run scored; Cameron Underwood a double, one RBI and one run scored; Carr a single, one RBI and three runs scored. Benjamin Tyler picked up his first RBI of the season with a base-loaded walk.

Others scoring for Miami were Justin Lake (2), Kenton Sappenfield (1), Jonathan Smith (1) and Benjamin Tyler (1).

Ryne Hutcherson was the outstanding defensive player for Lefors.

Hutcherson made three unassisted outs from first base and combined with Tory Coombes on third base for another out.

Optimist Baseball

On June 8, Cameron Underwood came through with the game-winning hit as First State Bank of Miami defeated Moose Lodge 9-8 in Miami in one of the most exciting games of the year.

Moose's leadoff hitter, Dakota Gowan, greeted FSB pitcher Darius Kimberling with a single. It was the first hit given up by Kimberling all year. Shane Davis reached base on an error and Chris Smith was hit by a pitch to load the bases with no outs. Brady Russell struck out, but consecutive walks to Jamichael Mitchell and Kadin Kirkland forced in two runs.

FSB managed to get a run in its half of the inning when Aaron Carr singled, reached second on an error, went to third on a wild pitch and then stole home.

Moose picked up four more runs in the second. With one out, Gowin walked, Shane Davis doubled sending Gowin home. Smith doubled sending Davis home. After a strikeout by Russell and consecutive walks to Mitchell and Kirkland, Michael Davis doubled scoring Smith and Mitchell.

Moose's Gowin held FSB scoreless in their half and the score stood Moose 6, FSB 1, after two innings. Carr came on in relief in the third inning and held Moose scoreless in the top of the third.

FSB's bats came through in the third as the bankers came up with four runs. Kimberling led off with a walk and scored on a single by Carr. After a walk to Chris Bengé, Colby Greenhouse drove in Carr and Bengé. Underwood followed with a double to drive in Greenhouse. FSB couldn't bring home another run although they left the bases loaded.

Moose was able to pick up a run in the top of the fourth when Dillan Pierce drew a bases-loaded walk from Carr to make the score 8-5 in Moose Lodge's favor. Darius Kimberling led off for Miami with a double and scored on a single by Carr. Bengé and Greenhouse then walked to set the stage for Underwood. With the count 3-2, Underwood lined a double to right center driving in Carr, Bengé and Greenhouse to give FSB its 11th straight win against no losses.

Defensive players of the game were Carr, Kimberling and Greenhouse. Carr came in with Miami trailing 7-1 and pitched the final two innings, giving up one run while striking out four and walking four to pick up the win. Kimberling tagged two runners attempting to steal home. Greenhouse made a nice play at second base to throw out a runner at first.

Cameron Underwood, however, was the hero of the day with two doubles, four RBI and two runs scored.

On June 10, FSB of Miami defeated Lefors 14-0 in a game played at Legion Field in Miami.

Aaron Carr was the winning pitcher for the bankers. Colby Greenhouse was the leading hitter for Miami with a home run, double, two runs and four RBI. Other top hitters were Aaron Carr three singles, two RBI and three runs scored, and Darius Kimberling single and one run scored. Others scoring for Miami were Underwood (2), Douglass (1), Bengé (1), Lake (1), Tyler (1), Jerome

Schulze (1) and John Shaver (1).

For Lefors, pitcher Tory Coombes struck out three Miami batters in the first inning.

First State Bank players Jonathan Smith, John Shaver, Colby Greenhouse, Aaron Carr and Chris Bengé wait for gametime on a golf cart owned by Olen Douglass of Miami.

Tennis camp

Several campers (above) turned out for the first Harvester Tennis Camp held June 5-9. The next two camps (June 19-23 and July 10-14) still have openings. A camp for younger players (ages 6-11) is going on now at the high school courts. Campers are (front row, from left) Jareth Fortenberry, Colden Fortenberry, Katlin Ingram, Jordan Regan and Lauren Acker; (middle row, from left) Mitchell Crow, Tiffani Neef, Natalie McVay, Ashley Stout, Brenna Coutts and Austin Morton; (back row, from left) Coach Carolyn Quarles, McKinley Quarles, Tara Jordan, Ashlei Jordan, Liz West, Zack Hughes, Jay Gerber, Michael Cornelison and Bryce Jordan.

Lakers win in overtime

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — So this is how Kobe Bryant breaks out. This is how he puts substance in front of style. This is how his game becomes as good as his name.

With Shaq out of the game with six fouls, Reggie Miller scoring at will and an enemy crowd at his throat, the 21-year-old kid with the bad ankle saved the Los Angeles Lakers.

Bryant reached new heights in his soaring career Wednesday night, scoring 28 points — including three exceptional baskets in overtime — as the Lakers beat the Indiana Pacers 120-118 in Game 4 of the NBA Finals.

Playing on a sprained left ankle that kept him out of most of Game 2 and all of Game 3, Bryant started gingerly, but picked up speed all evening. By game's end, he had given the first transcendent performance of a career that always had more promise than achievement — until now.

"He was feeling it. He was hitting shots. He was rebounding," said O'Neal, who had 36 points and 21 rebounds, but watched the final 2:33 from the sideline.

"He was the hero of the game." Bryant, O'Neal and Co. went up 3-1 in the series. They are one victory from their first championship, one win from validating their NBA-best 67-15 regular season and their Western Conference title.

They got there in style, winning what was easily the best game of the series only after Bryant's putback layup with 5.9 seconds left and Miller's miss on a 3-pointer as time expired.

"I thought we were going to shoot ourselves in the foot, but we managed to survive in the overtime," Lakers coach Phil Jackson said. "Kobe was great. He carried us."

Bryant, who has cultivated a media image of unimpeachable cool, couldn't hide his youthful enthusiasm afterward. He was awash in superlatives, citing the best game he had ever played in and the biggest points he had ever scored.

"This is the game I had been dreaming about," Bryant said. "I mean, I dream about it every day. I dreamed about it before I came to the game today."

Bryant's dream game didn't look that way midway through overtime when O'Neal fouled out on a foolish attempt at a rebound. As he headed to the bench amid the joyous screams of the Consecro Fieldhouse crowd, Bryant looked at him.

"Kobe winked at me and said, 'Don't worry about it. I got it,'" O'Neal said. "That's what a 1-2 punch can do for you."

When O'Neal fouled out, Bryant went to work. Jackson cleared out the offense to focus solely on Kobe — something he last did two years ago for a guy named Michael Jordan — and Bryant responded with consecutive pressure-packed jumpers over Miller. The second, with 1:20 left, gave Los Angeles a 116-113 lead.
