Woman, 39, burned while doing laundry

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Staff Writer

A Pampa woman remained at UMC Hospital in Lubbock Saturday after she was burned while washing clothes with lamp fuel Friday. The resulting fire destroyed the mobile home where she lived.

Antonia Marquez, 39, 224 S. Miami, was listed in satisfactory condition Saturday by a UMC -Lubbock nursing supervisor.

Marquez was flown to Lubbock by Lifestar Helicopter shortly before 4 p.m. Friday after first receiving treatment at Pampa Regional Medical Center Emergency Room.

At 1:07 p.m. Friday, Pampa Fire Department received a report that a house was on fire and someone had been injured at 224 S. Miami.

Five fire trucks ar 10 firefighters responded to the scene where they found a single-wide mobile home with smoke streaming from the windows.

Rural Metro Ambulance was also called to the address to help the injured woman.

Marquez reportedly suffered first and second degree burns on her right arm and leg while cleaning clothes in the bathtub with lantern fuel.

Sidewalk messages divide town

By JOHN KEKIS Associated Press Writer

MEXICO, N.Y. (AP) — Michael Havens thought he had a great idea for his students to raise money: Sell bricks to members of the community and allow personal messages to be etched on them, then use the bricks to repave the sidewalk in front of the high school.

"It was beautiful," said Havens, who saw the same thing during a trip to Idaho a couple of years ago. "We have a beautiful Georgian building, and changing the blacktopped front entranceway to nicely, personally engraved bricks seemed like a nice idea."

But when a few brick buyers wanted their religious sentiments inscribed, tempers flared in this village of 1,500 about 30 miles north of Syracuse.

Now the school district is being sued in a battle of constitutional issues — freedom of speech vs. the separation of church and state and Havens, the former superintendent, is long gone.

Three residents - two of them reverends — filed suit Thursday in U.S. District Court in Albany, charging the district with violating their free speech and equal protection rights.

Three art exhibits to open at Amarillo museum this fall

■ The museum's earliest patrons and supporters were very often collectors and enthusiasts of modern American art of the 1950s and 1960s. ... This circumstance directed the Amarillo Museum of Art's collection toward art of that period and the region continues to enjoy a somewhat surprising number of private collections that focus on what was the mid-20th century's "cutting edge."

AMARILLO — "Texart 2000," "Works by Women: Selections from the Permanent Collection," and "Modernist Traditions: Mid-20th Century Art/Collecting in the Panhandle" will be shown at Amarillo Museum of Art Sept. 10 through Nov. 5. These three exhibits will officially open at 1 p.m., Sept. 10 and close at 5 p.m. Nov. 5.

Texart 2000" is a survey of professionally trained artists who are working in some of the largest artistic centers in Texas. Different media — painting, sculp-ture and photography, for example — as well as different modes of expression ranging from realism and abstraction to minimalism will be represented in the

This exhibition, which includes many mid-career artists currently working around the state, reflects current trends, not only in art, but in society today. Some artists participating in "Texart 2000" are: J. Hall, Houston; Otis Jones, Dallas; Ken Dixon, Lubbock; Jack Gilson, Austin; and John Pomara, Dallas.

Much of the work in this exhibit reflects a shift toward abstract painting which is often influenced by images and processes related to electronic technology. Other pieces, however, remain closely tied to an interest in surface and subtlety with the content grounded in a response to the human experience.

'Works by Women Artists" will feature the work of such prominent women artists as Georgia O'Keeffe. Street campus.

Over the past 28 years, many works by women artists have been gifted to the museum and many are notable for their contributions to American art. The museum's first acquisition was by a woman artist, Electra Waggoner Biggs, in 1972. This little-known fact serves as a touchstone for this exhibit taken from the museum's permanent collection.

Bernice Abbott, O'Keeffe and Dorthea Lange will represent the early and mid-20th century while such nationally recognized artists as Melissa Miller, Linda Connor and Joan Brown will represent the last quarter of the 20th century. Camilla Friedlander and Marguerite Gerard and other European women artists will also be featured.

Showcasing American painters from the mid-20th century, "Modernist Traditions" will be dominated by abstraction, both in paintings and drawings by east and west coast schools of art. Artists Larry Bill, Louise Nevelson and Elaine de Kooning, among others, will be represented.

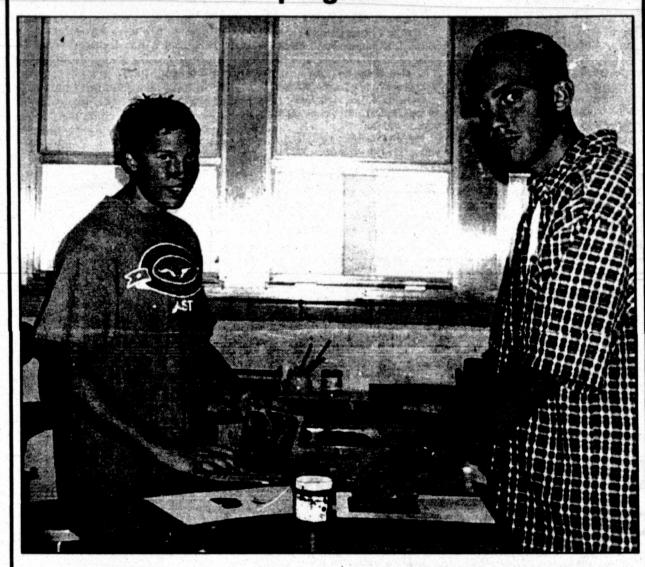

The museum's earliest patrons and supporters were very often collectors and enthusiasts of modern American art of the 1950s and 1960s. They were drawn to the vibrant New York art scene as a source for both information and acquisition. This circumstance directed the Amarillo Museum of Art's collection toward art of that period and the region continues to enjoy a somewhat surprising number of private collections that focus on what was the mid-20th century's "cutting edge."

Free gallery talks in September and October will highlight two of these new exhibits. John Pomara, assistant professor of art at the University of Texas at Dallas, will lecture at 7 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 21 about his work in "Texart 2000." Kathryn Davidson, associate director for the Center for Women and Their Work Gallery in Austin, will speak at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct., 19 about "Works by Women." Both of these lectures are open and free to the public. Refreshments will be

Everybody is tightening up

One of the big topics of conversation around the newsroom in recent weeks has been budgets — the city's, the county's, the school's.

Everybody needs money. Everybody is going up on taxes. Everybody is making cuts. It's kinda frightening ... the whole picture, that

I've been covering the city for three years and have watched as commissioners have struggled to make our dollars stretch to cover needs. And, they have been diligent about cutting the budget. There are 32 fewer employees than there were just a few years ago, the city buys fewer cars, has reduced other purchases, cut out much of the travel and training budget and on and on.

And in their search to cut, they've gone after just about everything. Example: no longer will employees get a Christmas ham or turkey and volunteers on the city's boards and committees won't be treated to any more annual thank you dinners at city cost. The cookies and soft drinks at commission meets will be gone if one commissioner has his way.

After covering meetings (mostly city and county government) — going on 30 years I feel qualified to make some judgments. And even though one of our now ex-readers called last week to say I have no right to make any of my political feelings known, I will anyway. And besides, she was wrong. That's why editorial and op-ed pages were created.

While we are on that subject. We're glad to publish your opinions, too. Matter of fact, we really like to run your writings. Just get us a signed letter or guest column by our noon every Wednesday deadline. Include your phone number for verification purposes. Excuse the digression.

Kate B. Dickson

effort to be good stewards of the money. While it is true there can be more cuts, they will have to be in categories that are going to noticeably

It won't be a supervisor's job this time, or shutting down a warehouse, or contracting out maintenance work, not going to a seminar or to meeting with lawmakers in Austin - it's going to have to come from what Mayor Bob Neslage calls the "meat and bones" of the budget.

And don't call for a cut of commissioner's pay. They get $10 a meeting for regular meetings and nothing for special meetings. So, tops they make $20 a month each.

If we get rid of the fire department and go to an all-volunteer service, what's that going to save? Nothing much, considering our property insurance will go up. And, besides, how many volunteers can afford to put in the time for training and service it would take? And is that what you really want if it's your house that's on fire? Not me.

We can, as Commissioner Faustina Curry said, stop mowing some parks as often and let others "go natural." And if that's done, how long will it be before dusgruntled citizens calls to complain about "weeds" in the parks. The city can start picking up trash less often. not talk.

I believe the commission has given a stellar Or get rid of more police officers — this from a department that is already short. Maybe the swimming pools can be closed and the rents raised for groups that want to use M.K. Brown Auditorium. Maybe funding for the library and museum can get tossed.

But is this what the people of Pampa really want? Because that's where meaningful cuts will now have to come from. Everything else has been cut time and time again. Unfortunately, as one citizen noted, Pampa's a town that was once supported by more people and more businesses.

... And while I am on this subject, it bugged the heck out of me the other night at the public hearing at City Hall when the vast majority of those there couldn't answer the oft asked question: "Please tell us what it is you want cut ... what service can you do without?"

Few had anything to say other than they are against higher taxes. And I wondered how many of them had bothered to even find out from commissioners or city staff the particulars of the current financial situation. How many of them went by the library and reviewed the public's copy of the budget plan?

But, I reminded myself this is America. One can gripe ... just because.

Many of those at the public hearing were senior citizens. Retired folks. Why don't they come to the regular city commission meetings and learn more about what goes on? If they did, their input could be very valuable.

When Tuesday night's public hearing came to a close and commissioners were getting ready to go into a work session to talk budget specifics, Commissioner leff Andrews told those in the crowd they were welcome to stay for the public meeting. They could listen, but

U.S. tax code lacks common sense

"Common sense is not all that common in Washington." Someone passed these words of wisdom along to me a few years back, and it's something I've tried to remember ever since. It's also something that, more often than not, is unfortunately true.

Our nation's tax code is a good example. It punishes hard work and success when it should be doing just the opposite. It taxes you when you work. It taxes you when you get married. It taxes you when you retire. And it taxes you when you die. If there was ever a time to restore some common sense to the tax code and bring some real relief to the American people, it is work and success when it should be doing just the opposite. It taxes you when you work. It taxes you when you get married. It taxes you when you retire. And it taxes you when you die. If there was ever a time to restore some common sense to the tax code and bring some real relief to the American peo-ment is running a budget surplus. We need to pay down the debt and strengthen Social Security and Medicare. But we also need to return some of this money to you. Over the past few months, the House and Senate have passed a number of bills

In July, the House passed legislation to repeal death tax that threatens so many families and small businesses. In May, the House voted to repeal a 102-year-old excise tax on telephones that was originally passed to help pay for the Spanish-American War. And in February, Congress passed legislation to reduce the marriage penalty that affects nearly 56,000 couples in our District alone.

President Clinton vetoed this marriage tax penalty relief bill, and he remains opposed to repealing the death tax and providing broad relief in other areas. But it's critical that we keep pushing and try to return part of the surplus to you.

Political expediency and Groveling 101

When Vice President Al Gore announced that Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., was his running mate, many people applauded. Lieberman, an honorable man, was seen as a refreshing choice that just might help voters forget the immorality and corruption emblematic of the Clinton-Gore administration. Having had the occasion to share a couple of dinners and conversations with Lieberman, I am among those who respect his honor and integrity.

Since Lieberman's selection as Gore's runfor his honor and integrity. Lieberman has seen race." it necessary to accommodate political reality and learn to grovel, defined by Webster's dictionary as: to behave humbly or abjectly, as before authority; debase oneself in a servile fashion. Why? He has taken some policy positions inimical to powerful voting blocs within the Democratic Party.

One of those offended blocs is the Congressional Black Caucus and the civil rights establishment. Lieberman has come out strongly against racial preferences and quotas. He also voiced support for California's Proposition 209, which banned racial preferences in college admissions. In a 1995 speech on the Senate floor, Lieberman said, "Affirmative action is dividing us in ways its creators could never have intended because most Americans who biased don't think it is fair to discriminate. For after all, if you discriminate in favor of one risk.

Walter Williams

group on the basis of race, you thereby disning mate, I've come to have a bit less respect criminate against another group on the basis of

> That kind of talk earned Lieberman the ire and suspicion of black congressmen such as John Conyers, D-Mich., and Maxine Waters, D-Calif. During the Democratic Convention, Lieberman had a private meeting with Waters and he addressed 300 members of the Black Congressional Caucus and the Democratic National Committee's Black Caucus and others. He back pedaled and recanted, and swore that he'd be a team player in a Gore administration and support racial preferences. I sincerely feel pity for Lieberman. He hasn't changed his thinking about racial preferences, but in the name of political expediency he has had to grovel and dishonor himself. A Gore-Lieberman ticket has no chance for the White House without the enthusiastic support of do support equal opportunity and are not black voters. A vice presidential candidate hostile to racial preferences puts that support at

A Gore-Lieberman ticket also has no chance without the support of the powerful National Education Association (NEA), the teachers' union. Lieberman earned their ire and suspicion by coming out in support of education vouchers. In an interview in the summer 1990 issue Policy Review, when asked about solutions to rotten public education, Lieberman said: "I am intrigued by the ideas of vouchers and choice as a way to create competition in the educational marketplace. I bet such competition would be popular, and would excite a lot of families, a lot of parents, a lot of students."

The notion of competition and accountability is not only an anathema to the public education establishment but to the Black Caucus and civil rights organizations, as well. The largest percentage of black professionals are members of the public education establishment, and like their white counterparts, they don't want competition and accountability. So Lieberman has back pedaled, saying he only wanted to test

The fact that vouchers are favored by up to 80 percent of black parents, and routinely condemned by the so-called black leadership, is just another example of divergent interests between that leadership and the majority of their constituents. Often, when privately funded vouchers are about to be awarded, 20,000 parents might line up for 1,000 vouchers.

Lieberman's transformation is an object lesson on how politics can separate honor and dignity, and political expediency.

Nobody votes for vice presidents in U.S.

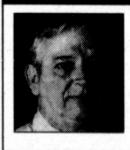

It seems that one of the main functions of naming a vice-presidential candidate is to give the press something to talk about for a week.

You might recall that the press spent a week nitpicking the voting record of the Republican nominee, Dick Cheney, and then spent another week praising the Democratic nominee, Sen. Joe Lieberman. I hope you are not surprised by the difference in treatment. A majority of the nation's journalistic elite are liberal Democrats.

Nobody, of course, votes for vice presidents. They vote for the presidential nominees. Other than to provide a little fodder for the press, vicepresidential candidates don't seem to have much of a role in a modern presidential campaign. They probably never did.

The media hoopla about how brave Al Gore was to choose a religious Jew reminds me of a Southern politician. Seven years after the 1964 Civil Rights Act rendered the subject moot, this guy made a speech condemning racial segregation. Since he was a liberal Democrat, the local press swooned and crooned about how brave he was. Of course, they knew, or should have known, that this particular guy had been in public office since the 1950s, when segregation existed. He never opened his mouth in public about it then.

In other words, this guy waited until better men had slain the dragons and their bones were seven years old before he declared himself against drag-

Charley Reese

Syndicated columnist

Likewise, it would have been a brave thing in the 1950s to select a religious Jew. In 2000, it's not worth any Brownie points. There is no anti-Semitism in America, except on the edge of the fringes. Jews occupy high public offices and prominent positions in the private sector. There are more lews in the U.S. Senate than there are blacks and Hispanics combined. If there were any anti-Semitism for Gore to be brave about, it would have shown up in the Senate races. It hasn't. If Gore had wanted to be brave, he could have selected a Muslim or Hindu or one of the Buddhist monks who, despite a vow of poverty, delivered a hundred grand to him.

Consequently, I don't see that Lieberman offers Gore much help. Those people most impressed by the senator are just those people already committed to Gore. And while George Bush can draw on Cheney's knowledge and experience, Gore cannot borrow Lieberman's morality or reputation.

Take note, as always, of the press members' hypocrisy and double standard. They had no sooner finished sneering at Bush's expression of his Christian faith than they fell into a swoon over Lieberman's expression of his faith. And what do you think their reaction would be if a Republican Christian candidate opened his campaign speeches with a prayer, as Lieberman has on several

The members of the press these days generally swoon or snarl according to the partisan script. They have no credibility, and I would advise you to rely on C-SPAN and the candidates' position papers and websites. If you download and read their position papers, you will have done more than most of the so-called political reporters.

My practice has always been to confess my biases - in this case, I plan to vote for Bush - so that readers can at least evaluate what I write in its proper context.

I genuinely dread the prospects of listening to Al Gore's singsong voice lecturing us for four years as if we were not very bright kindergartners. Gore has told too many fibs for my tastes. Furthermore, any man who thinks Bill Clinton has been one of our greatest presidents certainly lacks the judgment to be one. Monica Lewinsky aside, Clinton's administration has been a zero. His only accomplishment is to set a world record for attending fund-raisers at the taxpayer's expense.

drought. Changes in Farm Programs. Land and water conservation. Environmental concerns. Consumer preferences. How are these issues affecting agricultural productivity? What our global trading partners expect in the future? To gather reliable, objective information about these and other concerns, the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service (TASS) will soon begin data collection for the annual Agricultural Resource Management Study.

Information on chemical applications, production practices and pest management practices are topics this study will address during the fall of 2000. Fewer than 12,000 of the 2 million U. S. farm operators and only 694 in Texas — will be asked to participate in this study, so each response is criti-

The agricultural producers selected to participate in the Agricultural Resource Management Study will be making an important contribution to the overall welfare of the U.S. agricultural community. As with all TASS surveys, individual reports will be kept confidential.

- Continuing All study information will be combined and used by commodity analysts, producer organizations and others to benefit Texas farmers and ranchers.

-Study participants have an opportunity to set the record can the American public and straight about issues that affect them, such as use of fertilizers and pesticides.

-Respondents are helping in the research for improved production, marketing and profitability of U.S. agricultural commodities.

-Agricultural production practices can be developed to improve productivity for farm operators and ensure a safer, cleaner working environment for producers, their families and communities.

Texas farm operators selected to participate in this year's study will soon receive a letter from State Statistician Robin Roark to let them know about the survey. Interviewers will visit each selected farm operator personally to collect data at the operator's convenience. The USDA will publish national information on agricultural chemical usage and analyses of commodity production costs and returns in a series of reports to be released in 2001.

The Agricultural Resource Management Study is only one way that USDA and producers work together to provide the meaningful, accurate and objective statistical information and services to help keep U.S. agriculture and rural communities among the most robust in the world.

U.N.: Ozone depletion'unprecedented'

By GEIR MOULSON Associated Press Writer

GENEVA (AP) — The hole in the ozone layer is now three times larger than the United States — its biggest size ever, scientists at NASA said.

U.N. weather experts said the hole over the Antarctic is growing earlier in the year than usual.

Measurements of ozone depletion vary from year-toyear, making it difficult for scientists to determine the longterm environmental impact of changes in the ozone layer. Still, this year's hole — large and early — caught atmospheric experts off-guard.

The fact that it's real big right now is kind of a surprise," said Dr. Paul A. Newman of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in

The center detected an ozone hole of about 11 million square miles on Sept. 3. That was the biggest ever, beating the previous record of 10.5 million square miles on Sept. 19, 1998, it said.

In Geneva, the U.N. World Meteorological Observation said stations in the Antarctic reported decreases in ozone of between 10 percent and 50 percent compared with the period between 1964 and 1976, before the ozone hole was observed. Though ozone levels decrease each year starting in July, such a large drop was "unprecedented" this early in the season, the WMO said Friday.

"It is remarkable to find these low values so early in September, perhaps one or two weeks earlier than in any previous year," the agency said.

Experts stressed that atmospheric variations from year to year combine with man-made gases to determine the hole's size. They said they can't be certain what the measurements mean for the rest of this year and beyond.

Depletion of the ozone layer over Antarctica and the Arctic is being monitored because ozone protects Earth from harmful ultraviolet radiation. Too much UV radiation can cause skin cancer and destroy tiny plants at the beginning of the food chain.

Antarctic ozone depletion starts in July, when sunlight triggers chemical reactions in cold air trapped over the South Pole dur-ing the Antarctic winter. It intensifies during August and September before tailing off in WHEELER - It's not very often that a Wheeler team takes a beating on the foot-ball field. Friday night was one of those rare times as Paducah crushed Mustangs 54-14 in the season opener for both schools.

Caleb Finsterwald scored both Wheeler touchdowns, the first one on a 65-yard run and the second on a 6-yard pass from James Chapman.

Peducah found the end zone from both the air and on the ground.

Pete Cruz caught three touchdown passes and ran for another one. Patrick Hemphill ran for 81 yards and two touchdowns.

Finsterwald led Wheeler's offense with 129 yards rushing on 17 carries.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - An appraisal by the University of Texas System for the Sun Bowl pegs the 38-year-old stadium to be worth $1,600, a figure El Paso County officials call "a joke."

"If that's what their idea of an appraisal is, I'll buy it," El Paso County Commissioner Charles Hooten told the El Paso Times in Saturday's editions. "I'm going to say that does not follow the industry standard. It's probably a multimillion-dollar facility. It needs to be done correctly, not like a joke."

The university's offer to buy the stadium, which itdeases for $1 a year from the county, came after the county's proposed amendments the university's 99-year lease.

The university called the changes, which included allowing the county to use the bowl for eight public events each year, "unacceptable."

The lease isn't up for renewal until 2062, but the university needs permission from the county before it can build the Larry K. Durham Sports Center.

The star quarterback barely broke a sweat in the opening 30 minutes, completing five passes for 56 yards. But Virginia Tech still managed a 31-0 lead in beating the Pirates (1-1) for the fifth straight time since 1993.

Vick closed with 106 yards passing and 13 yards rushing, but the Hokies didn't really need a big game from him after blocking two kicks, disrupting another one deep in East Carolina territory and getting an 87-yard punt return in the first half.

Virginia Tech's defense, criticized for giving up more than 400 yards to Akron in Saturday's season-opening 52-23 win, limited the Pirates to 132 yards in the opening half.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Texas manager Johnny Oates is very happy to have Rusty Greer back with the Rangers.

After missing four straight starts with a stiff neck, Greer made his presence felt quickly as Texas took an early lead and then hung on to beat the Kansas City Royals 6-5 Friday night.

Greer had a three-run homer in the second inning and finished 3-for-5.

"It's very nice to have Rusty back," manager Oates said. "It just shows how important he is. He's still not 100 percent. But he put a charge into that home run."

The Rangers got rolling early, jumping to a 5-0 lead after an inning and a half on Rafael Palmeiro's two-run homer in the first and Greer's homer, but Oates still wasn't comfortable. In this game, even in the sev-

British instructor teaches art, science of shotgunning

Most Texas hunters subtive shotgun shooting, and shotgunning is an instinctive and reflexive discipline. Every veteran hunter has had the experience of suddenly being offered a difficult and unexpected shot and making the shot without thinking about it.

That's reflex and instinct at its finest, but it doesn't solve shotgun woes, says Blakely. If you don't know how you made the instinctive shot, the odds are slim you can do it again, at least not the same

About 20 percent of the shooters Blakely has worked with have the wrong dominant eye. They are generally right handed and shoot from their right shoulder but their left eye is dominant. Assuming your dominant eye and your dominant hand match, you should ideally

You can test for eye dominance by forming a circle with your fingers. With both eyes open, extend your arms in front of your face and center a distant object in the circle formed by your fingers.

Hold the circle in place and close first one eye, then the other. The dominant eye is the one that still sees the distant object in the center of the circle. Blakely coaches crossdominant shooters to blink their dominant eye as they mount their shotgun and acquire the target.

Many shooters, particularly those who learn to shoot a rifle before they learn to shoot a shotgun, pay too much attention to the bead sight on the end of the shotgun barrel. You sight a rifle but you point a shotgun. Blakely coaches mechanics can be improved by using a shotgun that fits the shooter. Blakely uses an adjustable gunstock to determine the ideal stock dimensions for a student. Shotgun mounting and coordination of the swing can be improved by practice. Since dove season opened in most of the state Sept. 1, over 300,000 hunters have been humbled by the state's sportiest game bird. Most of the hunters in opening weekend dove fields had not fired a shot since last hunting season and now they're discouraged about the remaining prospects.

Congress has embezzled Social Security, our trust fund

Most people correctly believe that Social Security has been our most successful social program, however as the program has matured it faces many obstacles to its viability.

The first major crisis it faced was in 1981 when concerns were raised about the Trust Fund running out of money by 1983. The Greenspan Commission was formed which made recommendations to resolve the short-term financing problems the program faced. A combination of legislation enacting the recommendations, low inflation and the economic boom has contributed to yearly Trust Fund surpluses until the proclaimed total is now in excess of $700 billion.

Unfortunately within the Treasury, Social Security taxes are co-mingled with general tax revenues which allows Congress to spend Trust Fund surpluses to fund other expenses within the budget. For example, the 1999 so-called budget surplus existed only because Congress included the Social Security surplus when the actual budget showed a deficit. To cover up the embezzlement of Trust Fund money by Congress, the Department of Treasury has been forced to issue nonnegotiable IOU bonds to the Trust Fund.

Congress has exploited the co-mingling flaw in the Trust Fund to achieve a spending coup without having to increase income taxes, but at a severe cost to low-income workers. Workers have been hit hard when the regressive Social Security tax has also been used to fund other spending programs. This has been particularly devastating to the self-employed business people such as entrepreneurs, freelancers, independent contractors and farmers who must contribute at double the normal Social Security tax rate. Isn't the embezzlement of Trust Fund money a felony?

United Medicorp will bring diversification to community

I would like to take this opportunity to inform you of the progress United Medicorp is making as they move into our community. As you know, they have purchased the building at 200 N. Cuyler, and are in the process of constructing offices, and physically moving their operations here. The general manager and one supervisor have already moved here from Dallas.

They began renovation of the building three weeks ago, cleaning, painting, repairing, and upgrading electrical and plumbing fixtures. They are using all local contractors and hope to be operational within the next few days. They have hired 16 consultants so far and should be at 40 by Dec. 31. It takes approximately six weeks of training of each employee, so you can well imagine how anxious they are to be fully operational. In addition, a comptroller has been hired, who is a local citizen who has been commuting to Borger each day, and they are currently interviewing for an additional collections supervisor and an accounts receivable manager. If you are interested in applying with UMC, you may pick up an application at the Texas Workforce Commission offices.

This new business not only offers new employment opportunities for our citizens but also provides new business for our local merchants. So far they have purchased office equipment, DSL and telecommunication service, janitorial supplies, office supplies, water and insurance from our local businesses. These accounts will grow as UMC grows.

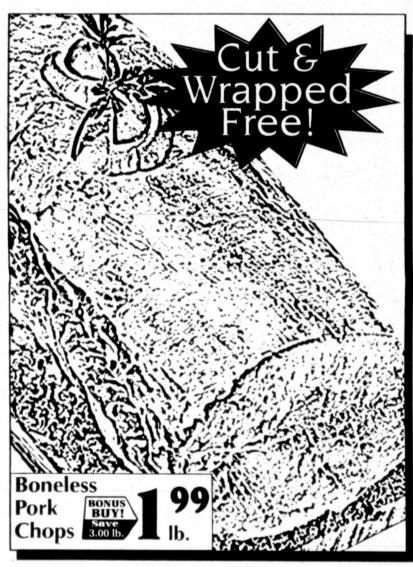

One of the reasons they chose Pampa was because they liked our friendliness and home town atmosphere. And, they tell me they are very favorably impressed with our work ethic and the caliber of labor force we have to offer.

Please help welcome UMC to Pampa. They bring a much needed diversification to our economy as well as good paying jobs, with full benefits, into our community. And, with higher wages, the employees will have more expendable income to "Shop Pampa First." As soon as construction and renovation to the building is complete, we will plan an open house so you all can see first-hand the great addition they make to Pampa and its future.

Yes, Mr. Citizen, it's me, the lousy cop ...

Being a previous resident of Pampa, I have kept up with the news in your city. It's sad to hear through television, newspapers and the Internet, "good" policemen are scarce and "bad" policemen are Between politics and citizens, your city has recently lost numerous officers as of late, my stepdad, Corey Powell being one of them. He grew up in your city so everyone knew him. They either met him in church, or on the side of the road. Say what you will, I'm proud of the difference he tried to make in your city streets.

Wake up, Pampa. Did you know that at any given time, you have the same number of policemen baby-sitting in your school system as you do on your streets! That number would be two. I'm writing this letter to ask you to take care of, and respect the officers you still have and the one's yet to come.

Officers, continue to do the job you are sworn to do. The enclosed is for you, that the citizens appreciate you and think twice the next time they have a complaint about what you do all day, when they are ignorant as to why you are sitting in parking lots, talking, etc.

Me, The Lousy Cop Well, Mr. Citizen, I guess you've figured me out. I seem to fit neatly in the category where you've placed me.

Attachment: Moms share experiences

By REBECCAH CANTLEY-FALK The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - It's lunchtime at the Red Hot & Blue restaurant in Plano. Seated among the crowd is a group of eight moms and their children. High chairs and booster seats line the group's table, its top covered by crayons, coloring sheets and Play-Doh.

"It's starting to get a little wild in here," says Valerie Yoder, as she helps her daughter, Alexa, drink from a cup that's too big for her 2year-old hands. The moms do their best to talk over the frequent squeals of their children. This is their time to find support.

The women belong to an attachment-parenting group that meets weekly. The women are in their 20s and 30s, and live in Plano, Allen, Carrollton, Richardson and Dallas. Eight of the 12 members are stay-at-home moms. All are committed to attachment parenting, a philoso-phy that asserts that establishing early bonds between parents and young children helps them grow to be secure and well-adjusted Experts have written a lot on the topic; this meeting offered a glimpse of how mothers put it nto practice.

Attachment parents sleep with their children, carry them in slings for the close physical contact and breast-feed them, sometimes until age 2 or 3. This can be exhausting. and like all parents, the women sometimes struggle with the dayto-day difficulties of motherhood. At their meetings, they trade advice on a variety of subjects, including getting the kids to sleep, dealing with tantrums and getting husbands to help out.

"Being an attachment parent is the better choice for me, but it's not the easy way," says Wendy Whitaker, a stay-at-home mom from Richardson. "Your baby's around you 24 hours a day, if you don't work. If you breast-feed, you can't leave the baby for long periods of time. There's always someone in your personal space."

Ms. Whitaker says even sleeping is a challenge when her daughter, Elizabeth, has restless process of weaning.

"I only find her wanting to nurse when she's really tired or if she gets hurt," she says. Still, Ms. Brown says paying equal attention to both children is difficult.

'Sometimes, I just have to decide who needs me more, which is really hard," she says. "I try to involve Sierra. I'll say, 'Get Mommy a diaper' or 'Tanner is crying because he wants that toy. Could you get it for him?' The more I can involve her in those things the better. "They both like to read a book. Sometimes, we do that when I'm nursing Tanner so that even though I have to spend that time with him, she's getting attention, too," she says.

Paying more attention to the kids often helps with tantrums, the moms say. Ms. Whitaker explains what she does when Elizabeth starts to get upset: "I sit down in the floor and make myself completely available to her," she says. "Then, she'll sort it out, and off on her own she'll go. It's more time-efficient."

Meetings like these allow the women to talk about the rough times. They say having support helps them cope with the demands of attachment parenting. "You know you're doing the right thing, but you need to be reminded," says Teresa Katsulos, who lives in Plano. "Otherwise, you feel like it's you and the baby against the world."

Ms. Katsulos, who quit her job after her daughter Maria was born, says it's important for attachment parents to find time to spend with other adults.

"I still keep in touch with my old work mates," she says. "I make the effort to reach out to them, because if you never call, they won't call you.'

Even when friends do call, it's difficult for the moms to take time

"I never have time to unload the entire dishwasher," says Cynthia Engro, who lives in Dallas. "It always seems like when I'm busy with something or when I'm just getting on the phone that she wants the most attention. Sometimes, I just have to give up on whatever it is I'm working on." The moms say asking for sup-port from their husbands isn't always easy

"If I feel frustrated because I think he's not helping, I tell him, which is hard to do," Ms. Katsulos says. "He'd come home from work and do a load of laundry, but what I needed was for him to take her. I'd love to do a load of laundry. That's like therapy."

The support the women find gives them energy to discover what works best for their children.

"The principles of attachment parenting aren't black and white," says Annette Story, a group member from Allen.

"It's about meeting the needs of your child and knowing that each child is an individual. To be a good attachment parent, you don't always have to use the sling or co-sleep. The whole idea is that you try to do what's best for your child."

Letter to editor hit nail on the head concerning tax hikes

I want to congratulate Mrs. Eldridge for her letter in last Sunday's paper. She really hit the nail on the head.

There is something I will never understand about this town and I have been here 44 years. When I got here, there were 18,000-plus population. In the early 1970s, it was over 22,000.

It's confusing that Clarendon ended up with a factory, but the bus factory took the taxpayers money and left town and now everyone is expected to make up the difference by paying higher taxes.

Then I understand that Wal-Mart wanted to expand and the city said no, not enough parking space. Then the theater wanted to move downtown. Same old story, not enough parking. Well, go uptown at 8 p.m. or 9 p.m. and see how many cars you count.

Why do the powers that be not wake up? A major highway would be the first order of business. Then a truck stop just west of town. I wonder if anyone ha noticed how many trucks pass through this

With all the empty places in Coronado Center, with plenty of parking, the medical billing company is taking part of Texas Furniture. The people here go to Borger to K-Mart to shop and save money. I

If the city managers and the tax people don't wake up and smell the roses there won't be anything left here in eight or 10 years time.

Best take what is offered or join the Army

In reference to the letter to the editor by Floyd D. Allen in the Pampa News on Sept. 3: Were you drafted into the TDCJ? When I was in the Army a few years ago, we had the same problem. We had cold feet

Thank goodness I had a size 10 and could stuff a Pampa paper in around the brown paper bags to keep my feet warm. The guys with the big feet had to use the New York Times or the Washington Chronicle. I feel for you, but if you decide to leave you will not go far as you are evidently a tenderfoot. If you want some new boots, join the Army and keep your nose clean. Otherwise, take what is offered.

Phil Richmond

TDCJ operates on a different wave length employment-wise

To the editor,

Many articles and letters have appeared in this and other newspapers in the past few months about the overcrowding in the prison system and the inability if the Texas Department of Criminal Justice to satisfactorily maintain the required number of guards and employees to safely incarcerate these inmates. It has been speculated that due to low pay, the state has been unable to obtain, train and retain the needed number of personnel. And in fact, the prison system of this state is indeed understaffed.

The guards have recently received a pay raise. And if pay was indeed the trouble with retention, then the problem would be fixed. But pay is not the problem. Don't get me wrong, the officers that enter those chain link fences need and deserve more pay than they receive. But the purpose of working is not just the money. People need a job in which they feel good about themselves and what they do. They do not receive that feeling within

The Texas Department of Criminal Justice promotes from within — as it should. But little regard is given to a job well done or to the officer being qualified to perform the management skills he or she will face in the next step. The Texas Department of Criminal Justice operates on the good-ol'-boy program. It is not what you know but rather whom you know that determines who prevails in this type of promotion program. TDCJ is a breeding ground for sycophants. Yes-men if you may. Nepotism is rampant. And even who you party with on your off-time is figured into the promotion process.

The result is that TDCJ is run by a group of people who have never worked anywhere else but this type of institutional environment, who treat their subordinates as they would the inmate population, that is with indifference and disrespect, and do not have the management skills needed to correct the problem.

Their weapon against all that dare to stand in the way is their disciplinary process. And in a "you lie and I'll swear to it" organization, to be accused is to be convicted. The circus that they call the appeal process does nothing but further degrade the honest employees who are trying to correct a wrong. Those higher up will not contradict the decision made on a unit level.

Qualified employees are run off or get discouraged and quit. All that remains are those that can't work anywhere else. The Texas Department of Criminal Justice has operated under this level of incompetence for over 150 years, and has perfected the art of the cover-up. It can not and will not improve until someone from outside the department steps in.

You might ask why am I now writing this letter? It's simple. I quit. And because I quit I am beyond the reach of their petty hands. But I leave behind numerous friends and co-workers that deserve better. People of this community that for one reason or another remain in this feudal system. Trapped, if you may, by either physical or economical restraints. I send this to you as a gesture to them, and I send this with my condolences and best wishes for the future.

Pampa Duplicate Bridge Club

Pampa Duplicate Bridge Club recently held a life master reception in honor of Gloria Casey at Pampa Country Club. Amarillo's Unit 210 president, Marji Morton, presented Casey with a corsage and Margaret Lowry of Pampa pinned on Casey's life master pin. Barbara Talley delivered the welcome and Norma Tarbet presided over the traditional toast. Many bridge players from the surrounding area enjoyed a buffet and an afternoon of bridge under the direction of Charlie McDaniel of Amarillo. Casey's husband, Bob, and their daughter, Barbara Gilley of Lubbock, were also present. NEW YORK (AP) - Aretha Franklin, Smokey cated to lesser-known acts such as the Chi-Lites, Robinson, Erykah Badu and Bonnie Raitt were who faded into obscurity although their harmonies among the stars who paid tribute to forgotten soul on hits such as "Have You Seen Her" helped define

"It's one the most important awards that we ever While superstars such as Stevie Wonder and the received," said Chi-Lites founding member Eugene late Marvin Gaye were also honored Wednesday Record. "They (the R&B foundation) do things that night, the bulk of the four-hour ceremony was dedi- are very unusual as far as helping artists who have fallen on hard times, and I don't know any organization that does that for musicians and entertainers." In addition to bestowing long-overdue recognition, the foundation awards most honorees with cash - $20,000 for groups, and $15,000 for individual artists. Motown founder Berry Gordy helped boost the foundation's coffers, announcing a $750,000 donation to aid former acts from the legendary label who are struggling. "These are our pioneers, the people that we got something from, we benefit from, so we have to look out for them like all people do," he said. "It's everyone's responsibility. It's our legacy. Some of the artists honored by the foundation in years past were cheated out of their royalties and received little during their brief celebrity. 'Many artists did not get adequate compensation, and even today, find it very difficult to survive even though their music is known and played," said Mary Wilson, one of the original Supremes. "As human beings, they're sort of forgotten. I think the Rhythm & Blues organization gives not only sort of an award, as human beings, to be respected." Besides the Chi-Lites, the foundation gave pioneer awards to Huey "Piano" Smith, who performed on the hit "Don't You Know It/High Blood Pressure"; Sylvia Robinson, who had a hit with "Love is Strange" in 1957 and years later helped start the rap revolution with the discovery of the Sugarhill Gang; Clyde Otis, who wrote and produced songs for blues.org artists including Nat "King" Cole and Dinah Washington; The Impressions, whose hits include "It's All Right"; Johnnie Johnson, a legendary pianist who discovered and played with Chuck Berry; and Betty Wright, who may best be known for her hit "Clean Up Woman." Wonder received the lifetime achievement award, while Gaye's children accepted the Legacy Tribute award on his behalf. Ahmet Ertegun, founder of Atlantic Records, received the R&B Founders The event also served as a concert and jam session, as the honorees performed some of their biggest hits. Wonder's performance was perhaps the most rousing, as he sang a medley of hits like "Superstition," and "I Was Made To Love Her," with Raitt, Badu, Sister Sledge, Robinson and Dionne Warwick singing backup.

Wonder called for today's performers to unite with past artists for an album that would feature old hits and give back royalties to those singers and their

LETTERS Petitions support student-led prayer

To the editor, People wonder why there is so much violence in school. Well, I would like to express my idea of why this

It is because our government has said that it is no longer legal for student-led prayer to be allowed in

God is no longer allowed in school. If students wear religious T-shirts, they are sent home to change. They're not allowed to carry their Bibles on their desk because some student may see it.

We aren't even allowed to display our nation's motto, "In God We Trust," according to American Family Radio.

I say, people it is time we take a stand and demand that prayer be allowed back in school. If you feel as I do, please join me by signing petitions to return prayer to school.

You can find these petitions at the following locations: United Supermarket; Texaco on Hobart next to Hastings; Sun Loan Co.; Pack N Mail; Hardee's; Texas Rose; Eye Care Plus; Rent A Center; Furniture and More.

If you don't see the petition, ask where it is and sign it and let our government know we want prayer back in school.

If we continually bombard the Supreme Court with these petitions, they will have to hear us and change the ruling and allow student-led prayer back in school.

Gold-Digging Accusations Tarnish Plans for Wedding

DEAR ABBY: I am being married in October, and something is really bothering me. I have a 14year-old daughter - and she is a big problem, but not the only problem.

A few weeks ago, I received a phone call from my fiance's mother. She told me the only reason I want to marry her son is for his money. Abby, we have lived together for more than a year. To this day I don't know what he earns or what he has in the bank, and I don't want to know. What she said was extremely hurtful. I never have been and never will be a gold digger. My fiance knows that. She also told me that if he married me, my daughter will receive nothing in his

My fiance is now telling me that because he doesn't want my daughter to get any of his money, he wants to get a prenuptial agreement. I don't have a problem with that - but here's the deal: If we get divorced, I'll get nothing. That's OK with me. But if anything happens to him, I will also be left with nothing everything will go to his sons.

Abby, is it wrong of me to want some security for my old age? This is something I didn't think I would have to think about, but now I do. Either way I am being made to look like a gold digger. I'm so hurt I don't know how to deal with it. I love this man with all my heart, but I'm lost and don't know what to do. Please

By ANJETTA McQUEEN AP Education Writer

Palm Beach County, Fla., school officials were still reeling from the shock of a student fatally shooting his teacher when the experts came calling. They offered to counsel students, train teachers, put metal detectors in every classroom doorway.

One entrepreneur hawked his brand of security hardware at a school board meeting.

"Sometimes I think 'Where were you before this happened?" said Ben Marlin, superintendent of the 150,000-student district. "One side of me says I money and even fraud. shouldn't react negatively, but another side gets very

More than a year after 12 students and a teacher were killed in Littleton, Colo., a cottage industry has emerged from the fear of school shootings, which remain rare but uniquely horrifying events. Security companies and consultants offer schools workshops, conferences, equipment and inspections for hundreds or thousands of dollars. These businesses aren't reviewed or regulated by state or federal agencies, stirring worries about wasted tax

"There's been a preponderance and proliferation of individuals saying they're experts in school safety management and many of these people have never stepped foot in a school," said William Modzeleski, the U.S. Education Department's safe schools chief.

Modzeleski and others urge the nation's schools to be more vigilant than ever about checking references and claims of experience.

Companies are attracted by the flow of money federal grants for school safety, for example, have increased by $150 million since 1996. They often time their pitches soon after a tragedy, on or near anniversaries, and as students are heading back to

Most firms provide good services, educators said in recent interviews, and few if any have been prosecuted for fraud. But individual districts pointed to what they considered questionable practices.

For example, a $200-per-person school-safety seminar last fall advertised a speech by a school official from Jonesboro, Ark., without noting he didn't work in the district in March 1998 when two boys opened fire at a middle school, killing five people.
