BORGER — Roger Dale Mahan, 56, father of a Skellytown resident, died Saturday, Sept. 16, 2000. Services were to be at 10 a.m. today in Keeler Baptist Church with the Rev. Paul Anderson officiating. Burial will be in Westlawn Park Cemetery in the Garden of Love under the direction of Minton/Chatwell Funeral Directors. Mr. Mahan was born at Quanah and had been a longtime Borger resident. He was a heavy equipment operator and belonged to Bunavista Baptist Church.

He was a U.S. Army veteran. Survivors include four daughters, Stephanie Mahan of Fritch, Revelle Mahan of Skellytown and Shardon Thomas and Brandi Irlas, both of Borger; a son, Roger Alyn Mahan of Borger; three sisters, Ebbie Wells and Donnell Drake, both of Borger, and Linda Ashby of Fritch; and six grandchildren.

WILLIAM DALE NIX

CANADIAN — William Dale Nix, 85, died Friday, Sept. 15, 2000. Memorial services were to be at 2 p.m. today in Cox Chapel of Highland Park United Methodist Church in Dallas with the Rev. William B. Smith and the Right Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, retired Episcopal bishop of Northwest Texas, officiating. Burial will be in Edith Ford Memorial Cemetery at Canadian under the direction of Sparkman Hillcrest Funeral Directors of Dallas.

Mr. Nix was born at Amarillo and graduated from Canadian High School and Texas A&M University, receiving a bachelor of science degree in 1936.

For over 60 years, he owned-operated Nix Ranch and Nix Cattle Company in Canadian and had served as director of Canadian Production Credit Association, Federal Land Bank of Pampa, Texas Farm Credit Board and Federal Farm Credit Board, serving as chairman in 1981 and 1982. He moved to Dallas in 1978.

He was honored with the Texas Academy of Honor in Agricultural Credit in 1985 and was chairman of Texas A&M College of Agriculture Development Council in 1982-83.

He was a World War II veteran, serving as a lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army. Survivors include his wife, Mary Alice Quattlebaum Nix; a son, the Rev. William D. Nix Jr. of Amarillo; three grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

The family requests memorials be in lieu of flowers to Baylor Health Care System Foundation, 3600 Gaston Ave., Suite 100, Dallas, TX 75246; or to American Heart Association.

C. DALE THUT

TYLER — C. Dale Thut, 73, died Sunday, Sept. 17, 2000. Memorial services will be at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in Glenwood Church of Christ with Tommy King officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Lloyd James Funeral Home of Tyler.

Mr. Thut was born Feb. 24, 1927, at Lefors. He graduated from Pampa High School and earned a bachelor of art degree from Texas Tech University in 1950. He married Helen Ayers on Nov. 22, 1950.

He obtained his CPCU designation in 1977. He retired as resident vice president with Transamerica Insurance Corporation in 1990, after 30 years of service. He had been a Tyler resident since 1990.

He was an elder at King of Prussia Church of Christ in Pennsylvania and Northside Church of Christ in San Antonio. He also belonged to Glenwood Church of Christ and was active in Boy Scouts of America, AARP and Rotary Club, receiving the Paul Harris Fellowship Award.

He was a U.S. Navy veteran, serving during World War II.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Charlie and Cattie Thut; and a brother, Donald Thut.

Survivors include his wife, Helen, of Tyler; a daughter, Cathy Thut of Arlington; a son, Richard Thut of Bedford; and two grandchildren. The family requests memorials be to a favorite charity.

LOUISE ROPER WALLACE

WIMBERLEY — Louise Roper Wallace, 84, a former Mobeetie resident, died Friday, Sept. 15, 2000. Services were to be at 10:30 a.m. today in First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Wimberley Cemetery under the direction of Thomason Funeral Home.

Mrs. Wallace was born at Wellington and moved with her family to the Mobeetie area in 1917. They relocated to Wheeler in 1923 and, in 1933, she graduated from school there. She returned to Mobeetie and later attended Amarillo Junior College.

She married Earl Wallace in 1943. She retired from Fedway and Kline's Retailing.

A member of Temple Baptist Church, she belonged to Sunday school and Joy Club and, after moving to Wimberley, joined First Baptist Church, Mary Martha Sunday School Class, PEP and AARP.

Her husband, Earl, preceded her in death. Survivors include a daughter, Jean Morris; a stepson, Dickie Wallace; a grandchild; a step-grandchild; and a great-grandchild.

ARTIST

highest order, said Kay Crouch of the Pampa Fine Arts Association.

Weeks was born and raised on a remote West Texas ranch. She remembers a childhood of long summer days which she filled with make-believe and adventuring. An inquisitive, lively imagination resulted in the young artist.

The well-known artist studied with some of the finest artists, attending art instruction at Houston Museum of Fine Arts School, Louisiana Tech and Robert Woods School of Art in California.

She and her husband, Preston, make their home far from their West Texas roots. The couple makes their home in Bay City in the Gulf Coast area of Texas.

Weeks' love of life can be seen in her lively colors as well as her choice of subject matter. She still finds beauty everywhere just as she did as a child.

"I paint the happy, beautiful things," she said. "Almost anything can spark the creative urge—the curve of a child's cheek, a sidewalk cafe in Paris, flowers in my garden ... my grandchildren playing in the yard." Weeks has traveled extensively throughout the world, and many of the places she has visited and people she has seen have been in various paintings.

She and her husband have two daughters and a son who live near the couple.

For many years Weeks had her own art school and taught seminars. She closed her classes and now paints full time when the growing market for her work left little time for anything else.

The well-known artist's paintings and fine art reproductions are marketed across the United States and fourteen foreign countries.

Those interested in taking the class offered by Weeks should contact the Pampa Fine Arts Association office at 665-0343. Office hours are from 9 a.m.—12 noon, Monday through Friday. A minimum of ten students must be signed up for the classes to make, said Crouch. Deadline for registration and payment is $175 is due by Sept. 22.

APPOINTMENTS

Traffic Commission — Administered by the Police Division, this seven-member board meets in City Hall at 7 p.m. on the second Thursday of February, April, June, August, October and December. This commission advises city staff and the city commission on proper and adequate control of traffic and traffic safety on public streets and highways within the city. Doug Locke was reappointed; two vacancies remain.

Pampa Municipal Golf Course Advisory Board — This advisory board studies and makes recommendations to the city manager and city commission for the operation, use, improvements, rules and policies pertaining to Hidden Hills Golf Course. Board members also review the proposed annual budget with the golf course manager and make recommendations to the city manager and city commission. Administered by the Community Services Division, the seven-member board meets quarterly at the Pro Shop at Hidden Hills.

Board of Adjustments — Administered by the Engineering Department, the six members of this board meet at city hall when called by the chairperson. A quasi-judicial advisory board, any appeal of a Board of Adjustment decision must be made to the court system rather than to the city commission. Cleo Meaker was reappointed to the board. Two alternate positions and one board seat are vacant.

Planning & Zoning Commission — This commission, administered by the Engineering Department, plans for the future and advises the city commission regarding the orderly growth of the city. Commission members are responsible for the overall planning policy and incorporating it into the Comprehensive Plan. The commission reviews and advises the city commission on such matters as amendments to the subdivision and zoning ordinances; rezoning requests; street, alley and easement matters; and annexation proposals. Annie Swaney, Robert Curry and John Haesle were reappointed to the board. Charles Buzzard was appointed as a new member.

People in the news ...

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — William Shatner says his grief over the death of his third wife last year inspired him to write "Star Trek Preserver," the best-selling novel released in July.

In the book, Capt. James T. Kirk, the character he played on TV and in film, struggles to save his dying wife.

"When someone dies, for a while you want to make some meaning out of a life," Shatner tells the Sept. 23 issue of TV Guide. "You go on a spiritual journey. And hopefully, you don't stop."

Shatner's wife Nerine drowned in the family's swimming pool in August 1999. The coroner ruled that alcohol and the sedative Valium contributed to the accidental drowning. "The loss of someone you love is horrible enough. But to do it with the public, with the media at your heels, is almost unendurable," Shatner said.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Despite his notoriety as a television figure, Jack Hanna doesn't like to be referred to as a celebrity. The term zookeeper fits him fine.

"I'm still the same Jack Hanna that I was when I started," Hanna, 53, said Friday.

Though Hanna may no longer run Columbus Zoo and Aquarium on a day-to-day basis, his role as its ambassador and director emeritus has never been stronger.

Since Hanna's first appearance on national television 17 years ago as director of the then-little known zoo, he has become a regular on "Good Morning America," "The Late Show With David Letterman," and "Larry King Live" — usually accompanied by spider monkeys, baby cougars, hissing cockroaches and other critters.

His zoo connection is always mentioned in his TV appearances, and many of the animals he displays come from Columbus. The national exposure has helped attract more than 1.2 million visitors and $30 million in revenue last year for the zoo compared with 351,000 visitors and $1.4 million when he arrived in 1978.

"Animals in captivity are ambassadors to their cousins in the wild. When people see a living creature, they can relate much easier to the problems of endangerment and the need for conservation," he said.

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — World Wrestling Federation superstar Chyna says she's proud of her photo spread in the November issue of Playboy.

"A body like mine has been rejected for so many years," the muscular wrestler tells the Sept. 23 issue of TV Guide. "Not the ideal beauty. Ugly, masculine. But doing Playboy for me is the pinnacle. And I'm very proud." Chyna says the Playboy spread is not a "sexual thing."

"It was, 'Look at me. Here I am.' Now people love the body. It's about damn time."

Chyna is also featured in the WWF's first workout video, out this month. And her autobiography is due in January.

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Tim McGraw isn't worried about losing Entertainer of the Year honors to his wife — fellow country music sensation Faith Hill — at the Country Music Awards later this month.

Either way, the award goes on the mantle.

"We're not speaking until it's over," McGraw joked to the Sept. 23 issue of TV Guide.

In August, Hill received eight award nominations, while her husband snagged nods for male vocalist of the year and vocal event of the year for "Let's Make Love," a duet with his wife.

The Entertainer of the Year honor "goes to our house if either one of us wins. And next year, no one will remember who won it, so when friends come over, I'll say it's mine," McGraw said.

Handcuffed man dives in river, dies

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A man who was handcuffed and charged with alcohol intoxication tried to escape police custody by jumping into the Ohio River and drowned, authorities said.

Louis Wade Hermann, 24, was pulled from the water just after 12 a.m. Sunday, according to Sgt. Ronel Brown, the department's spokesman.

Hermann had been charged with alcohol intoxication and disorderly conduct after a concert by country music star Collin Raye. After Hermann was handcuffed, police said he ran and jumped into the river.

Police held back a detective who tried to save the man. Detective Bill Keeling, a police spokesman, said a rescue attempt by anyone lacking scuba equipment would have been deadly because of the darkness, the depth of the water and the current.

A witness who said he was also held back said Hermann was close enough to shore that someone could have rescued him.

CASA volunteers help negotiate better lives for children they serve

This article is one in a series of articles of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 2000 "Lead the Way!" fund-raising campaign.

Sally is a precious 3-year-old girl with brown ringlets for hair and big brown eyes. She is a bundle of energy and a ray of sunshine. She also has a new, permanent home, in part due to her CASA of the High Plains volunteer.

Sally came into the care of Children's Protective Services because her mother had abandoned her. Upon locating Sally's mother, services were set up by CPS to provide her with the things she needed to develop her parenting skills. Sally was also appointed a CASA volunteer who began to advocate for her best interest.

This CASA volunteer spent many hours talking to family members, visiting with the foster home, talking to counselors and services providers and visiting with Sally. It quickly became apparent that Sally's mother was not going to be able to care for Sally. The CASA volunteer then began advocating for a permanent placement for Sally so she could begin having stability in her life.

After months of court hearings and team staffings, the CASA volunteer requested that Sally's case be sent to a mediator to bring some type of resolution to the case. The CASA volunteer attended this mediation at which the mother agreed that she was not able to provide for her child and wanted her to be adopted. With this agreement, the mother released her child for adoption.

Within a few months, CASA representatives were sitting in the courtroom with Sally and her new family. It was hard to determine who was more excited, Sally or her three new brothers. Sally will now have a loving and stable home because her CASA volunteer was willing to speak up for what she needed. Sally may not remember her CASA volunteer when she is grown, but that CASA volunteer knows that she had a part in Sally's success.

This volunteer was able to help Sally because you help the United Way. Without the support of United Way, other Sally's will be lost in the court system without an advocate to speak for them. Please help your community by helping these children. Support the United Way.

Jimmy Stover, Cruz Ortega, Timothy Cotner and Martin Alvarado put receipts in the box for "Apples for the Students Plus!" program, a school-community partnership which awards educational equipment to schools collecting store register tapes.

Lamar participating in 'Apples for the Students Plus!'

Lamar Elementary School is currently participating in Homeland's "Apples for the Students Plus!" program. This school-community partnership awards educational equipment to schools that accumulate store register tapes.

During the past several years, "Apples for the Students Plus!" has awarded more than $250 million in needed classroom learning tools free to participating schools.

Apples Plus coordinator for Lamar, Patti Smith, said, "The list of awards is outstanding. Items we really use such as computers, audio/visual equipment, calculators and sporting goods are always greatly appreciated."

Lamar urges all parents and community members to support this invaluable program by sending their Homeland register tapes to school with their children or by dropping them off at the school office. Register tapes will be collected through March 24, 2001.

"Our goal is to save enough store receipts to receive computer programs through Apples for the Students Plus!," said Smith. "With the help of parents and community members, we're hoping to meet and possibly exceed our goals."

For more information about Apples for the Students Plus!, or to donate register tapes to Lamar Elementary, contact Misty Jimenez at 669-4880.

AgriPartner Report

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service AgriPartner Report for the week of Sept. 11 is as follows:

—Beet and fall armyworm moths continue to be caught in fairly high numbers in area pheromone traps. Check wheat for infestations of these worms. Seedling wheat is very susceptible to stand loss from these pests.

The economic threshold in seedling wheat is 4- to 5-larvae per square foot.

—A few headworm are being reported in late maturing sorghum. No reports of infestations exceeding the threshold of 1- to 2-worms per head have been reported. Continue to monitor for this pest especially in late sorghum.

High Plains Fall Classic WRCA Ranch Rodeo on offing

We are privileged in Pampa to be hosting an exciting new rodeo event on September 29th and 30th. The High Plains Fall Classic WRCA Ranch Rodeo is an opportunity for our local and surrounding communities to experience the ideals and work ethic of the working ranch cowboys and their desire to keep our Western heritage alive in such a fast changing world. It is fascinating to see highly skilled professional cowboys and their equally skilled and athletic horses working together in crews to perform each requirement of the competition.

The unique events of a Ranch Rodeo include Ranch Bronc Busting, Team Doctoring of Cattle, Wild Cow Milking, Team Penning and a Wild Horse Race. These events require experience, timing, balance, and instinct. Cowboys do not compete for cash but for working gear used in their jobs. Local businesses sponsor each event and provide prizes. Cowboys from Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico ranches will be competing in this year's Ranch Rodeo. Performances will be nightly at 7 p.m. and the cost will be $6 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under. There will also be a Junior Ranch Rodeo the afternoon of Saturday, September 30 beginning at 2:30 p.m.

In addition, the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association will be hosting a Chuck wagon Dinner at 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, September 30th near the entrance to Recreation Park and the Rodeo Arena. Seven Chuck wagons from the Panhandle area will be serving Pan Fried Steak, Beans, Potatoes and Gravy, Bread and Dessert. Tea will be served by the Rotary Club of Pampa. Prices for the dinner are $6 for adults and $4 for children 12 and under.

The Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce proudly welcomes all the ranches competing in this years WRCA (Working Ranch Cowboys Association) sanctioned High Plains Fall Classic Ranch Rodeo. We also welcome each of the Chuck wagons as well as all those attending the festivities. This annual event has the potential to become one of the premier events in our area for years to come. For additional information call Jane Jacobs of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association at 669-0434.

A "COUNTRY FAIR" EVENING ON THE ORIENT EXPRESS

Dear Members,

It is Country Fair time again! Please make plans to attend on Saturday, October 14th from 5 p.m. to 12 midnight at the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

The Country Fair will again be lots of fun and very exciting. We will provide a wonderful meal of Steak, Baked Potato, Salad, Bread and Dessert. In addition, we will have a Silent Auction of over three hundred items and an outstanding Live Auction with at least 20 fabulous items. There will be Bingo and from 9 p.m. to Midnight, a Dance to the music of the band "Insufficient Funds." All of the above for $15 in advance or $20 at the door. Tickets are available from many Chamber members and at the Chamber office at 200 N. Ballard

Also, don't miss a chance to win cash prizes during our drawing which will take place after the Live Auction. The cash prizes are as follows: 1 - $3, 000, 1 - $2,000, and 5 - $1,000 to be given away that evening. You do not have to be present to win, but you do have to purchase a $100 drawing ticket to be eligible. Keep in mind that many people pool their money with friends to buy tickets. You can purchase your drawing ticket from Chamber members who are selling them, from the Chamber office or at the Country Fair.

This is a fun, exciting and potentially profitable way to support the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce. We extend an invitation to Chamber members, and non-members throughout the area to attend a "Country Fair" on the Orient Express. What a great way to spend a Saturday evening in Pampa, Texas.

Sincerely,

Clay Rice

After years of decline, Caesareans on the rise

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
AP Medical Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Caesarean sections started dropping slowly in the early 1990s

after an outcry that American women undergo too many — but now they're on the rise again.

Most puzzling: Why C-sections are increasing in first-time mothers, not just in women who previously had one. And where pregnant women live determines how likely they are to wind up on the operating table — C-sections are more common in the South than out West.

Now, with Caesareans inching back up to 22 percent of U.S. births, the nation's leading obstetricians' group is issuing new guidelines to reduce unnecessary C-sections and reserve the surgery for mothers and babies who truly need it.

There are many suspects in the C-section rise — state-by-state variation particularly suggests doctors' habits sometimes can overshadow medical need.

"Maybe we've become too technical," says Dr. Jean Walker, an attending obstetrician at Chicago's Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, which is taking new steps to lower C-sections. "We're going back to natural things like walking more often and birthing balls and really encouraging natural descent of the fetus."

To do that, Rush just began a nursing change — back to more continuous, hands-on care during early labor, especially for first-time moms whose labor takes longer, a big reason for C-sections. After all, studies show women who have continual care from nurses or midwives get fewer C-sections than when busy nurses just pop by every so often to check how early labor is progressing.

Make no mistake: Caesareans can be life- or health-saving for many mothers and babies. Fetal ... avoiding unnecessary C-sections also is important. Women's risk of death, although still small, is three to seven times higher than during vaginal delivery, says the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. Not to mention increased pain, longer hospital stays and a higher risk of post-delivery infection.

distress, disorders that make labor risky for the mother, a baby simply too big or wrongly positioned all are important reasons for C-sections — and hospitals that specialize in high-risk pregnancies will perform more.

But avoiding unnecessary C-sections also is important. Women's risk of death, although still small, is three to seven times higher than during vaginal delivery, says the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists. Not to mention increased pain, longer hospital stays and a higher risk of post-delivery infection.

C-sections have risen for three years, climbing another 4 percent in 1999 to account for 22 percent of live births, the government reported this month.

That's lower than the nation's high of 25 percent in 1988 — but nowhere near the federal goal of a 15 percent C-section rate this year. And it reverses a steady decline in C-sections between 1989 and 1996.

Now look state-by-state: Fewer than 17.5 percent of births in Utah, Wisconsin, Colorado, Alaska or Vermont are C-sections.

But more than one in four births are C-sections in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and New Jersey.

Worse, the most dramatic variations in hospitals' C-section rates are among first-time moms with healthy babies in the right birth position, says the ACOG.

Those discrepancies suggest doctors' habits play a big role, says Dr. Roger Freeman of the University of California, Irvine, who chaired the new ACOG guidelines that outline practices and conditions linked to higher C-sections — and urge doctors to check for ways to improve.

Among the list:

— A previous C-section is the biggest risk factor for having another. If the surgical cut was in the lower abdomen — not the upper — ACOG says most healthy women can try vaginally delivering their next baby as long as a surgeon is standing by if emergency surgery is needed. Most low-risk mothers who try can deliver vaginally, says ACOG, encouraging women to carefully discuss this option with their doctors.

Yet the rate of vaginal births after C-section fell to 23.4 percent last year, down 17 percent since 1996.

— Slow labor is a big reason for C-sections in first-time moms. ACOG cautioned against surgery too early, and Chicago's Walker also stressed patience, saying here that nurses are key. "With younger nurses, I get more phone calls saying, 'Nothing's happening, she needs a C-section,'" while older nurses are "a little more attentive, more patient" with slow labor.

— ACOG says demanding a painkilling epidural too early, before the cervix is dilated 4-5 centimeters, increases your C-section risk. But this is controversial — Walker urges women to ask for a less potent "walking epidural" that she says doesn't increase the risk.

— For breech, or feet-first, babies, doctors should consider trying to turn the baby headfirst by "external version," pushing on the mother's abdomen before automatically operating, ACOG advised.

While ACOG targets doctors, consumer advocates advise pregnant women to ask about C-section rates when choosing a physician and hospital. Pick one with a lower rate, or who's open to a second opinion for non-emergency surgery, and "it's more likely you're going to avoid an unnecessary C-section," says Public Citizen's Dr. Sidney Wolfe.

New treatment targets inoperable lung cancer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — When doctors diagnosed Billy Stamm with lung cancer, there was more bad news to come. Not only was surgery out of the question, the odds weren't good that he would respond to conventional radiation therapy.

Stamm's frail lungs were so ravaged by years of emphysema, bronchitis and a two-pack-a-day cigarette habit, that radiation therapy to kill the tumor also would have injured healthy tissue.

But the Connersville service station worker wasn't without hope. One of his doctors told him about an experimental therapy being tested at the Indiana University School of Medicine. It used precisely aimed high doses of radiation to try to kill tumors while sparing healthy tissue.

Stamm's doctors said there was a chance the tumor in his right lung wouldn't spread if he chose no treatment. But the 57-year-old decided to give the new therapy a shot.

"I said 'I'm game for just about anything right about now,'" said Stamm, who was diagnosed in November. "It sounded like something worth giving a try. I didn't want to wait and do nothing."

In June, Stamm became the seventh patient with inoperable lung cancer to receive the new treatment — stereotactic body radiotherapy — as part of a clinical trial at the Indianapolis school.

The first tests of the new therapy are aimed only at determining the highest radiation level that can safely be given to the 35 or so patients expected to participate.

But the hope is that it will lead to a second clinical trial that will reveal it as a potent treatment for inoperable, early stage lung cancer, according to Dr. Mark Williams, the trial's principal investigator.

"We're hoping this can become another option for a patient group that has few options," said Williams, a clinical assistant professor at IU. For lung cancer patients whose disease is in the early stage, the survival prospects between those who undergo surgery to remove tumors and those who can't is stark.

Patients who undergo surgery have a cure rate between 50 to 70 percent. But for patients with inoperable tumors who get conventional radiation instead, the cure rate is only 20 to 30 percent.

Considering those numbers, a more effective radiation therapy would be an important development, said Dr. Robert D. Timmerman, an assistant professor of radiation oncology at the medical school.

Since the therapy was first used to treat a patient in the United States, at IU in 1997, it has extended the predicted lifespans of liver, colon and breast cancer patients whose cancer had spread, he said.

Timmerman, the trial's co-principal investigator, anticipates improved results in the clinical trials because its subjects all have lung cancer that hasn't spread to other organs.

The new therapy taps into several advanced technologies, including 3-D imaging, radiation beams that can be tailored to the shape of the tumor and a new way to hold patients virtually motionless to target the cancer.

A similar approach is used to effectively target brain tumors. But it wasn't easy to transfer that technology beyond the cranium's fixed tissues because tissue in the body's torso tends to shift, Timmerman said.

The new therapy solves that problem with a special body frame designed in Sweden to hold patients extremely still.

The patient lies on a Styrofoam body pillow that, when the air inside it is vacuumed out, creates a mold of the patient. The pillow is saved and used in subsequent treatments to place the patient in the same position.

A device Timmerman likens to an apple press is pressed against the patient's chest to restrict breathing as minute adjustments are made to the body frame before photon radiation is fired at the cancer.

Because positioning each patient for the treatments can take up to an hour, some need sedatives to remain still for so long, Timmerman said. But the long wait is worth it because the cancer can be precisely targeted, he said.

While in conventional radiation therapy, radiation can only be focused at areas with diameters of 1.2 to 1.5 inches — threatening healthy tissue — the new therapy can hit targets two-tenths of an inch in diameter.

That's possible with technology similar to that used to target missiles. During an MRI or CAT scan, coordinates are assigned throughout the patient's body to create a grid system that allows the tumor's location to be known precisely when the patient is in a specific position.

Once the tumor is in the crosshairs, it is blasted with radiation from seven directions. Another innovation permits the radiation beams to be tailored to the tumor's shape.

"If we have a tumor shaped like a banana, we can aim the beams into the shape of a banana," Timmerman said.

The same technology allows the highest radiation levels to be focused at the tumor's center, with the intensity falling off rapidly farther out.

The new therapy offers hospital-weary patients another benefit. While patients in conventional radiation therapy receive about 35 separate treatments over a six-week period, the new treatment requires just three treatments over about a 10-day period.

To gauge the safety of the therapy's intense radiation, the researchers are slowly increasing the radiation levels. Patients in the latest group received in a single treatment about six times the radiation of a conventional treatment.

If the therapy works, it will give oncologists a valuable new weapon because early detection of lung cancer is improving, said Dr. Norman H. Edelman, a scientific consultant for the American Lung Association.

"The concept is good and I'll be waiting anxiously to see what their results are," said Edelman, dean of the School of Medicine at State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Stamm, his wife, Millie, and son, Gene, 30, also are awaiting results. Since his last treatment in late June, Stamm said he is faring well.

"I'm feeling good, real good. No sickness or nothing. I think I even feel a little better, but we'll see," he said.

Health briefs

Backpacks can be a real pain for children

HOUSTON — If a backpack is not worn properly, it can cause serious back problems in children.

"Many students put too many books in their backpacks and wear them incorrectly," said Dr. Stephen Esses, a professor of orthopedic surgery at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "Improper positioning of the backpack and bad posture can place a great deal of pressure on the spine."

It's important "not" to sling the backpack over one shoulder. Instead, position it just above the small of the spine with the weight evenly divided between the right and left side. Esses said students, no matter how much they weigh, should not carry more than 30 or 40 pounds on their backs. Keep in mind, younger children are more susceptible to backpack-related injuries because they don't have the well-developed muscles or spinal control of teenagers and adults.

Retirement home decision should be 'team' effort

HOUSTON — The decision to put a parent in a retirement home should be made by the entire family.

"The best way to handle the situation is for everyone to work together as a team," said Carole Ashendorf, a counselor with the Huffington Center on Aging at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "The discussion should take place over three to four months, with the goal that mom or dad will move into a more appropriate environment within six months to a year."

Long before the retirement-home discussion takes place, children should begin to pick up on things their parents talk about; such as difficulties they are having keeping up with the house. This way you will validate their feelings, and make the whole process a more pleasant one.

Shingles, vaccine tested in elderly

HOUSTON — A new study aims to find out if a stronger dose of the chicken-pox vaccine will help prevent shingles.

"Shingles is a painful skin and nerve infection caused by the same virus that causes chicken pox," said Dr. Wendy Keitel, an associate professor of molecular virology and microbiology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston. "More than half of shingles cases occur in people over age 60."

Although most recover from chicken pox, the virus persists in groups of nerve cells near the spinal cord.

The virus can reactivate and travel down the nerves to the skin on one side of the body causing shingles. Shingles rashes usually heal within several weeks, but many patients can develop a debilitating complication called postherpetic neuralgia, which can cause pain for months or years.

Are fitness videos worth watching?

HOUSTON—Celebrity fitness videos might be hot sellers, but are these celebrities really experts in fitness?

"Many of these videos are just slick productions that don't teach people how to exercise appropriately and safely," said Dr. John Cianca, an assistant professor of physical medicine and rehabilitation at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Cianca believes you can get much more value for your dollar by spending time with a personal trainer. He or she can develop a home exercise program that will be more effective than watching celebrities strut their stuff on tape.

New device helps women who suffer from vaginal hernia

HOUSTON—A new type of pessary might help many women suffering from a vaginal hernia lead a more comfortable life.

"Women with vaginal hernias might experience severe aching, pressure and discomfort in the abdomen, which can be aggravated when they cough, strain or take part in daily activities," said Dr. Paul Fine, chief of urogynecology at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

The new pessary is made of plastic that can be left inside the vagina for up to 30 days. The old version was made of material that allowed vaginal secretions to get inside the device and, if left in too long, caused hygiene problems for many women. It is recommended that women visit their gynecologist so the pessary can be removed and checked for cracks.

If fitted properly, a woman will not even know the pessary is there.

Sisters Worry Joint Wedding Will Double Trouble for Guests

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I are both being married next year. Several people have suggested that we make it a double wedding. We are very close and neither one of us is opposed to the idea, but we are worried it will be too expensive for our guests.

First, do we send separate invitations? Second, would this be too much of a financial burden for our guests?

TAMPA BRIDE-TO-BE

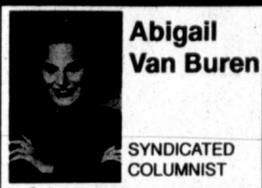

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE: Send only one invitation. Your and your fiancé's name should be on it, and your sister's and her fiancé's names as well.

A double wedding should not impose an extra financial burden on your guests. In fact, the cost might be less if you consider travel expenses for two separate weddings.

I wish all four of you every happiness on your special day.

DEAR ABBY: I have read many letters about fighting between ex-spouses. My husband's ex-wife approached me after he and I were married, and told me she felt it would be in the children's best interest for us to be friends.

What a great idea! Since that time, three years ago, she and I have talked, shared feelings, exchanged holiday gifts, been nice to each other in front of the kids, and shown them that it's OK to be friends with and to be nice to someone even though there have been bad times between parents.

Abigail Van Buren

This has reduced much stress that the kids were experiencing and allows them to tell us how much they love their mother without feeling guilty, embarrassed or nervous.

BEEN THERE, DONE THAT IN ALABAMA

DEAR BTDT: I commend your husband's former wife — and you — for your mature decision to set aside personal animosity for the benefit of the children. Many families could learn from your example.

DEAR ABBY: I foolishly left my car unlocked while parked in downtown Boise for the River Festival. Sitting on the front seat was my cell phone and a few CDs. Needless to say, when I returned a few hours later, they were gone.

I immediately called my insurance company to report the theft and was informed that my deductible was more than the value of the stolen items. I was in despair. Then a glimmer of inspiration hit — I dialed my cell phone number!

Unfortunately for the morally challenged juvenile who stole my property, his mother was standing next to him when his baggy pants started ringing! Let me tell you, after talking to that woman I would not want to be in that boy's shoes!

My phone and CDs were returned the next morning. She stayed to supervise while her son mowed my lawn and washed my cars.

I understand that for the next couple of months he will not be allowed out of the house without a family member. My greatest hope, however, is that the unfortunate incident helped a mother and son realize that a dangerous path loomed ahead — and that bigger problems in the future were avoided.

STILL CONNECTED IN BOISE
DEAR STILL CONNECTED: I'm pleased your story had a happy ending. It's risky to leave tempting articles in a parked car even when it is locked. Better to put them out of sight in the trunk.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Though you could be surprised by someone's words, keep asking questions. Your imagination responds to another's questions. Don't worry about a misunderstanding. Just keep talking. Never refuse to deal with a problem. Avoid a power play and stay in control. Tonight: Out and about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 Deal with a money change and think through a decision carefully. A boss gives you significant feedback, which needs to be listened to. Avoid a power play as a financial opportunity knocks on your door. Say yes. Tonight: Your treat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Don't let an associate push your buttons. If you find that you are getting into a power struggle, think through your options. Look within to see what is drawing you toward people who are controlling. Opportunity strikes because you always remain optimistic despite the circumstances. Make calls and inquire yourself. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Recognize what is happening with a partner. As he attempts to find solutions, you sit back and watch. You gain a lot of information by observing and not reacting. Realize that everyone has limits, yourself included. Work demands high productivity. You could be overwhelmed. Say so. Tonight: Take a deep breath.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Center on what is important. The unexpected occurs with a friend or partner. Work with the moment and let opportunities come in. Partners add to the quality of your day. Push comes to shove when dealing with a loved one who has difficulty understanding your choices. Tonight: Where your friends are.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Bosses demand responses. You come up with them quickly and efficiently. Family doesn't see eye to eye with you, and you hear this loud and clear. Move on a golden opportunity. Your career goes in a new direction because of your responsiveness and innovation. Tonight: Accept the limelight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Take an overview while others react. Don't push away with controlling behavior. Re-evaluate your importance, yet recognize that you also could be replaced. A child or loved one delights you. Let this person share ideas about the long term. Tonight: Take a drive with a loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 Defer to others. They seem to want to carry responsibility. Your ability to adjust and change direction takes you on a new path. Be willing to exchange ideas with a partner. A money challenge pushes you to the forefront. Making intelligent decisions takes research and time. Tonight: Togetherness works.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 The unexpected occurs. Reach out for a friend. You make waves because you can absorb information and you are able to act on it. Follow what seems to be intuition. You might be overwhelmed by what goes on. Step back as an associate pitches in. Tonight: Say yes to an invitation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Handle money and business matters, which are obviously intertwined. You make certain intuitive decisions that others admire. Emphasize work and performance. Your businesslike attitude helps others focus on what is important. Deal with a personal matter. Tonight: Off to the gym.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 You draw good news toward you because of your creativity and understanding. Scan new possibilities. Check out what comes to you as gossip. Where there is smoke, there is usually fire. Handle problems in your unusual, innovative manner. A friend disappoints you. Let him know how you feel. Tonight: Kick up your heels.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Another demonstrates caring in a way that you can hear. Rely on a friend and worry less about a difficult boss. Think about changing jobs, and put out feelers. Understand what is possible. Your efficiency counts. Honor security needs. Tonight: Happy at home.

VOLLEYBALL

PLAINVIEW — Pampa freshman Tandi Morton leads the Wayland Baptist University volleyball team in service percentage (.931) through eight matches this season.

Lubbock Monterey freshman Amy Smith and Seminole junior Jennifer Worth leads the team in kills with 61. Amarillo High sophomore Kari Gibson is the team leader in digs with 83.

Morton is attending WBU on a volleyball and track scholarship.

FOOTBALL

SAMNORWOOD — Samnorwood slipped by Lefors 44-43 in a six-man football game last Friday night.

Paul Wright had a hand in four touchdowns to help Samnorwood even its record at 1-1.

Lefors scored last, on a 28-yard run by Caleb Barnes, but the PAT failed, giving the Eagles the non-district win. Barnes was involved in six touchdowns for the Pirates.

Also scoring touchdowns for the Pirates were Andrew Johnson (78-yard interception return) and Eric Keiser (65-yard kickoff return). Joshua Jackson had a conversion kick.

Samnorwood finished with 356 yards in total offense, compared to 295 for Lefors. The Pirates were hurt by three fumbles.

Lefors, 1-1 for the season, hosts Hedley at 7:30 Friday night.

BRISCOE — Fort Elliott shut down Higgins 48-0 in six-man football action last Friday night.

Nathan Hefley led the Cougar offense with three touchdowns while Wes Hathaway had two scores. Kade Zybach and Richard Rowe each scored a TD.

Hefley finished with 150 yards rushing on five carries and C.J. Bryant added 51 yards on two tries.

Fort Elliott built a 28-0 lead at halftime.

BASEBALL

HOUSTON (AP) — Scott Elarton isn't thinking about winning 20 games. At least not yet.

"I'll think about 20 if I get to 19," Elarton said after winning his 17th game, 5-3 over the Pittsburgh Pirates on Sunday. "I've been pleasantly surprised by this season. But I'm not going to be disappointed if I don't (win 20)."

Elarton (17-6) went eight innings, allowing three runs on seven hits as he picked up his 13th win in his last 17 starts.

"He has pitched like that all year long so it's no surprise every time he does it," Houston manager Larry Dierker said.

"He's been one of our best bright spots this year. He has really blossomed into a great pitcher. When you win 17 games for a team that's been under .500 most of the year that's quite an accomplishment."

Now the question is can he win 20? Elarton is scheduled to get two starts in the last 14 games, but with two days off in that span, he might conceivably get three.

Elarton gave up a single to leadoff hitter Adrian Brown and a two-run homer to Abraham Nunez to start the game, but settled down.

Pittsburgh got its third run in the fourth inning when John Wehner scored from third on an infield grounder by Keith Osik.

"They wouldn't have gotten that third run across if we had blocked the plate a little better," Dierker said.

"I picked up the tempo a little bit," Elarton said. "And I started going with more fastballs in the later innings."

The Pirates were impressed by Elarton, who is 3-0 lifetime against them.

PAMPA — Many of them came from far away, some as far as 2,500 miles, to take part in Pampa's National Weight Pentathlon on Saturday at the Randy Matson Track & Field Complex.

Puerto Ricans Gilberto Gonzalez of San Juan and Luis Velez of Ponce were among 49 age-group male and female athletes entered in the pentathlon, which consists of five throwing events (shot put, discus, hammer, javelin and weighted throw).

Plaques and medals were presented to the senior athletes at an awards dinner Saturday night in the VFW building.

The competitors ranged in age from 40 to 87. Gonzalez at 87 was not only the oldest athlete competing, but his 2,876 points set a new world record in his age group (85-89).

"Next year if I'm still here, it'll be even easier to win. The older you get, the less people you have to compete against," laughed Gonzalez.

Gonzalez started competing in track and field when he was 17.

He became a standout in the decathlon, collecting over 1,200 medals in both Open and Masters meets.

"When I went to a track meet I wanted to enter every event, not just one or two. I guess that's why I've got so many medals now," he said. "When I was not so old, the sports writers once named me the outstanding athlete of the year in Puerto Rico."

Like Gonzalez, the 70-year-old Velez was a track and field champion as a young man, representing his country in the Summer Olympics.

Velez specializes in the hammer throw. In fact, he currently operates a throwing school for youngsters in San Juan.

"That's what I do best (the hammer), Velez said. "That's what I really concentrate on at these meets."

Velez finished fifth overall in his age group Saturday, but his 123-11 hammer throw set a new world record.

Both Velez and Gonzalez are military veterans. Velez is a retired army major and Gonzalez received the bronze star for valor during the Korean War. Gonzalez, and 85-year-old Betty Jarvis of Tahlequah, Okla. received the Margaret Palmer-White Memorial Award for being the oldest male and female competitors.

Palmer-White, the mother of Masters champion Wendell Palmer of Pampa, became an overnight celebrity six years ago when she threw the discus at the Sooner State Games in Oklahoma City. At 100 years old, she was the oldest person to ever compete in a Masters track and field meet.

Mrs. Palmer-White appeared on several television shows, The Tonight Show and the Donahue Show.

Mrs. Palmer-White died in 1997 at age 102.

Thirteen of the pentathlon competitors were women, including 82-year-old Katharine Gradick, who came all the way from Florida. She felt sure she wouldn't go home without an award.

"Since I'm in my 80s I figured I wouldn't have any competition. I was right," she laughed. "It was a lot of fun."

It was a day of firsts in National Football League

By The Associated Press

It was a day of firsts in the NFL.

After nearly five years, several heart-stopping seconds Sunday and a chaotic finish, the Cleveland Browns finally won a home game.

For the first time, both the New York Jets and New York Giants are unbeaten after three games.

The Jacksonville Jaguars had the first shutout in team history. Buffalo, Oakland, Baltimore and Detroit all lost for the first time this season. And Seattle and Green Bay were first-time winners.

Browns 23, Steelers 20

Phil Dawson kicked a 19-yard field goal with 2:45 left and Pittsburgh couldn't get off a last-second field-goal attempt.

The expansion Browns (2-1) went 0-8 in their new stadium last season and dropped their home opener against Jacksonville.

Pittsburgh had first-and-goal at the 9 with 35 seconds left, but after two running plays, rookie defensive end Courtney Brown sacked Kent Graham for the third time with eight seconds left.

The Steelers (0-2), who used their timeouts early, tried to line up for a game-tying field goal, but the clock ran out and the Browns and their fans celebrated Cleveland's first home since Dec. 17, 1995, the final game at Cleveland Stadium.

Tim Couch finished 23-of-31 for 316 yards and two TDs. Jerome Bettis rushed for 123 yards and one TD for Pittsburgh.

Jets 27, Bills 14

Vinny Testaverde lofted a 45-yard scoring pass to Marcus Coleman on the final play of the first half, and Kevin Williams returned a kickoff 97 yards for a touchdown.

The Jets, 3-0 for the first time since 1966, moved into first place in the AFC East, while the visiting Bills lost for the first time after opening the season with two victories at home.

Coleman, a starting cornerback, caught his first NFL pass, outleaping four defenders in the back of the end zone.

Giants 14, Bears 7

Kerry Collins was 24-of-33 for 249 yards with a 34-yard touchdown pass to Ron Dixon as New York went 3-0 for the first time since 1994, and Chicago dropped to 0-3.

Tiki Barber's 3-yard TD run late in the third quarter was the go-ahead score. Barber gained 86 yards on 17 carries, and Ron Dayne added 69 yards on 19 attempts.

Jaguars 13, Bengals 0

Jacksonville (2-1) got its first shutout in franchise history, beating Cincinnati (0-2) behind defensive tackle Gary Walker's five tackles and two sacks.

Mark Brunell was 20-of-32 for 176 yards, including a 21-yard TD pass to Keenan McCardell.

Broncos 33, Raiders 24

Joe Nedney, cut by Oakland late in the preseason, scored all nine of Denver's second-half points.

Nedney, signed by Denver to replace injured Jason Elam, kicked field goals of 24, 32, 22 and 21 yards.

Sebastian Janikowski, Oakland's first-round draft pick, kicked a 19-yard field goal, but missed a 49-yarder midway through the fourth quarter. The Broncos (2-1) have a five-game winning streak over the Raiders (2-1).

Buccaneers 31, Lions 10

Tampa Bay, undefeated after three games for just the second time since 1979, rushed for 120 yards and limited the Lions (2-1) to 17 yards rushing.

Shaun King threw a touchdown pass and rushed for a score. Warren Sapp had three of Tampa Bay's seven sacks of Detroit's Charlie Batch, who threw a 50-yard TD pass to Germane Crowell as time expired in the first half.

Seahawks 20, Saints 10

Ricky Watters gained 105 yards as Seattle (1-1) beat New Orleans (1-2).

Jon Kitna hit tight end Itula Miti with a 1-yard touchdown pass with about nine minutes left, and Kris Heppner added a 45-yard field goal.

New Orleans' Ricky Williams ran for 107 yards on 23 carries.

Packers 6, Eagles 3

Ryan Longwell's 38-yard field goal with three seconds left gave Green Bay coach Mike Sherman his first victory.

Longwell also made a 37-yarder with six minutes left in the third quarter. Visiting Philadelphia (1-2) scored on David Akers' 43-yarder with two minutes left in the first half.

Rams 41, 49ers 24

For the third straight game this year, and fifth straight dating to last season, the Super Bowl champs had to pull out a game.

Marshall Faulk rushed for 134 yards and three scores and Kurt Warner threw two touchdown passes and two more interceptions.

The Rams (3-0) won a team-record 13th straight home game, exceeded 30 points for an NFL-record ninth consecutive game and beat the 49ers (0-3) for the third straight time after 17 straight losses.

Warner was 23-for-34 for 394 yards.

Chiefs 42, Chargers 10

Elvis Grbac threw five touchdown passes, most by a Kansas City quarterback since Hall of Famer Len Dawson against Miami in 1967.

Grbac was 20-of-33 for 235 yards. Rookie Sylvester Morris had three TD catches among his six interceptions for 112 yards.

The Chiefs (1-2) had six sacks, five on starter Moses Moreno and one on Ryan Leaf. Mike Dumas had a 56-yard TD interception return for visiting San Diego (0-3).

Falcons 15, Panthers 10

Atlanta (2-1), which had just one takeaway in its first two games, had two interceptions, two fumble recoveries and a safety at Carolina (1-2).

Ashley Ambrose returned Steve Beuerlein's interception 37 yards to set up Morten Andersen's second field goal with 4:10 to play. Jamal Anderson had a 26-yard TD run and finished with 97 yards on 22 carries.

Vikings 21, Patriots 13

Daunte Culpepper threw for 177 yards and two touchdowns and ran 12 times for 59 yards as Minnesota improved to 3-0 for the third time in five years.

Culpepper threw touchdown passes of 1 yard to Johnny McWilliams and 39 to Matthew Hatchette. Robert Smith ran 4 yards for the first touchdown. New England fell to 0-3.

Dolphins 19, Ravens 6

Baltimore's Tony Banks, coming off a five-touchdown performance against Jacksonville, was sacked six times, fumbled twice and threw an interception on a rainy night in Miami.

Lamar Smith ran for 63 yards on 22 carries and scored twice for the Dolphins (2-1). Baltimore also is 2-1.

Stanford shocks Texas

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — DeRonnie Pitts punctuated an up-and-down, back-and-forth game with a flying leap of faith.

Pitts cartwheeled into the end zone after catching a 15-yard touchdown pass from backup quarterback Chris Lewis with 1:12 to play as Stanford beat No. 5 Texas 27-24 on Saturday night.

Stanford led 20-9 with 10 minutes left. Texas' Major Applewhite rallied the Longhorns with two touchdown drives. The Cardinal (2-1) then made a frantic four-play, 59-yard drive in just 43 seconds.

It ended when Pitts caught a short sideline pass, broke Joe Walker's tackle at the 10, leaped for the goal line, was flipped into the air by Roderick Babers and landed in the end zone.

"I knew I was flying over him as soon as I got off that one tackle," Pitts said. "Chris made a great throw, and we set up the play perfectly. (The leap) was pretty scary, but I saw (Virginia Tech QB) Michael Vick do it today, so I thought I'd give it a shot."

Texas (1-1) couldn't answer with Brandon Healy dropping a fourth-down pass from Applewhite with 33 seconds to play. Stanford fans stood and cheered for several minutes after the victory, the school's first over a top-10 team since Sept. 18, 1993, when the Cardinal beat No. 7 Colorado.

"It's an absolutely fantastic feeling to beat a team of this caliber," said coach Tyrone Willingham, who called the victory one of the biggest of his tenure. "It shows the resilience of our young men to bounce back and not let the past affect them."

With former Stanford golfer Tiger Woods cheering on the sideline, Lewis led a dramatic comeback in place of starter Randy Fasani, who injured his left knee when he was sacked by Maurice Gordon just seven minutes into the game.

After the Texas offense was stymied all evening by an inspired Stanford defense, Applewhite connected with B.J. Johnson on a 71-yard touchdown strike with 9:29 to play. Applewhite then hit Victor Ike over the middle for a 38-yard scoring play with 5:44 left to give Texas a 24-20 lead.

"The game definitely had a sense of the bizarre," Applewhite said. "We didn't play well until the fourth quarter. We had some confidence and momentum in the fourth quarter, and when we got the big play, we really started feeding off that."

"The game was going in so many different ways, up and down."

Fasani appeared to injure his left knee when he was sacked. Lewis immediately keyed a 77-yard touchdown drive for the Cardinal's first points, throwing a 37-yard TD pass Luke Powell on his second pass of the game and the fifth of his college career.

Fasani, his knee in a brace, stood on the sideline on crutches to cheer on Lewis, a freshman who holds the California high school record for career TD passes. Lewis' previous college experience consisted of three passes against Washington State two weeks ago.

Applewhite said. "We didn't play well until the fourth quarter. We had some confidence and momentum in the fourth quarter, and when we got the big play, we really started feeding off that."

"The game was going in so many different ways, up and down."

Fasani appeared to injure his left knee when he was sacked. Lewis immediately keyed a 77-yard touchdown drive for the Cardinal's first points, throwing a 37-yard TD pass Luke Powell on his second pass of the game and the fifth of his college career.

Fasani, his knee in a brace, stood on the sideline on crutches to cheer on Lewis, a freshman who holds the California high school record for career TD passes. Lewis' previous college experience consisted of three passes against Washington State two weeks ago.

Applewhite said. "We didn't play well until the fourth quarter. We had some confidence and momentum in the fourth quarter, and when we got the big play, we really started feeding off that."

Sophomore kicker

Tim Kettering (10), Pampa's sophomore kicker, waits on the sidelines for his opportunity Friday night in the Harvesters' 21-10 win over Amarillo High in Dick Bivins Stadium. Kettering is a perfect 11 of 11 in extra-point conversions and has a 23-yard field goal to his credit. He kicked three extra points against the Sandies. (Pampa News photo)

White Deer tops Wellington

WELLINGTON — White Deer is off to a 2-0 start after disposing of Wellington 28-6 in high school football action last Friday night.

Bucks' quarterback Matt Henderson threw two touchdown passes, one to Kirk Kelp for 9 yards and the other to Nick Ball for 46 yards. Aaron McKean added a touchdown on a 2-yard run.

Kelp scored the game's final TD on a 36-yard return off a fumble in the fourth quarter.

Henderson also kicked two extra points and passed to Nick Knocke for a 2-point conversion.

Wellington's only score came on a 4-yard run by Justin Hunter in the fourth quarter.

White Deer held a 15-0 lead at the end of the first half. The Bucks finished with 215 yards of total offense while the Sky Rockets had 155.

American swimmers dominate; gymnasts fall short at Olympics

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — American swimmers Lenny Krayzelburg and Megan Quann showed they can beat the world's best. The U.S. men's gymnastic team still can't.

Krayzelburg and Quann each won gold medals for the United States at the Olympic pool Monday.

The gymnasts, trying to medal at a non-boycotted games for the first time since 1932, didn't even come close. They finished fifth, while China cruised to the men's team gold.

The U.S. men won the team title at Los Angeles in 1984, but most Eastern bloc nations boycotted those games.

At the aquatic center, the Ukrainian-born Krayzelburg pulled away from Australian Matthew Welsh to win the 100-meter backstroke and collect his first gold medal. His Olympic record time of 53.72 seconds was just .12 off the world mark he set at the same pool last year.

"It's better than anything I've ever done in my life," Krayzelburg said.

Quann, competing in her first Olympics at age 17, won the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:07.05.

Australian teen sensation Ian Thorpe earned a silver medal to go with two golds he already has won, but he had to be about as glum as the U.S. gymnasts.

Dutchman Pieter van den Hoogenband outswam Thorpe in the 200-meter freestyle, tying the world record he set the day before with a time of 1:45.35.

The 17-year-old Thorpe had thrilled his nation by setting a world mark and winning the 400 freestyle Saturday. Minutes later, he anchored the Aussie 400 free relay squad that upset the United States and smashed another world record.

Thorpe couldn't win his third gold or reclaim the record Van den Hoogenband took from him on Sunday. After two days of having his face plastered across every front page and TV screen in Australia, Thorpe finished second in 1:45.83.

While Thorpe dropped to 2-1 in Olympic events, the U.S. teams in boxing, baseball, softball, women's basketball and women's volleyball all stayed unbeaten Monday with easy victories in the early phases of their tournaments.

The United States and Olympic host Australia shared the lead in the medal count with 13 each at the end of competition Monday.

The Americans had 6 gold medals, 5 silver and 2 bronze — the Aussies 3 gold, 5 silver and 5 bronze. France was close behind with 12 (4-6-2) and China was next with 10 (4-1-5).

— BOXING: Six fights, six wins for the United States.

Ricardo Rocky Juarez, a 125-pounder, won his first bout Monday and so did 165-pound boxer Jeff Lacy to keep the American unbeaten streak alive at the Sydney Games. Both fights were stopped in the third round under the mercy rule because the Americans were up 15 points.

— SOFTBALL: No no-hitter for the United States. Just another shutout. Crystl Bustos homered twice as the U.S. softball team beat Cuba 3-0 in the second game of the Olympic tournament. Lori Harrigan pitched a solo no-hitter in the Americans' first game, a 6-0 win over Canada.

— DRUGS: A weightlifter from the drug-tainted Romanian team competed on Monday over the objections of the IOC.

Olympic officials threw the Romanian team out of the Sydney Games on Sunday because two male lifters tested positive for drugs.

The squad got a reprieve. The International Weightlifting Federation decided to fine the Romanian Olympic Committee and let four "clean" lifters compete.

That gave Marioara Munteanu a chance to lift Monday. She finished seventh in the women's 116 1/2-pound class.

— CYCLING: For the first time in three Olympics, Erin Hartwell won't be making a trip to the medal podium.

Hartwell was part of a U.S. squad that finished 10th out of 12 in the prelims of the men's 4,000-meter team pursuit. Derek Bouchard-Hall, Mariano Friedick and Tommy Mulkey were the other riders. Britain, had the fastest qualifying time, an Olympic record of 4 minutes, 4.030 seconds.

Hartwell won a cycling bronze in Barcelona and a silver medal in Atlanta.

— BASKETBALL: Katie Smith drained three 3-pointers on the way to scoring 15 points as the U.S. women's basketball team stayed undefeated in the Olympic tournament with a 90-61 win over China.

The U.S. team started slow, as it did in its opening win over South Korea, but took the lead midway through the first half and never trailed Cuba after that.

— SAMARANCH: About 350 mourners turned out Monday for a Mass to honor Maria Teresa Samaranch, wife of IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch.

Mrs. Samaranch, 67, died shortly after the Sydney Games opened, while her husband was flying home to Spain to be at her side. She had reportedly been ill with cancer for several months.

Australian swimming icon Dawn Fraser, who sat with Samaranch at the opening ceremonies, was among those who attended the Mass at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in downtown Sydney.

— VOLLEYBALL: This one was easy for the U.S. women's volleyball team.

After upsetting China in the opening match of the Olympic tournament, the Americans beat overmatched Kenya 25-16, 25-6, 25-16 on Monday. Next up for the United States is Croatia, which also is unbeaten.

— BASEBALL: Jon Rauch struck out 13 and John Cotton had five RBIs as the United States routed South Africa 11-1. The game was called after seven innings because the Americans were winning by 10 runs.

Braves turn focus to Mets in crucial series

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

After finishing off Curt Schilling, Andruw Jones and the Atlanta Braves began focusing on the New York Mets.

Jones homered, tripled and singled Sunday, and Kevin Millwood outpitched Schilling as the Braves beat the Arizona Diamondbacks 7-1 to take a three-game lead over the Mets in NL East.

"We've just got to concentrate on this game," Jones said. "We just have to score some runs off Schilling. We know he's a tough pitcher."

On Monday night, it will be Mike Hampton vs. Greg Maddux as the Mets and Braves open a three-game series at Turner Field. New York and Atlanta will play each other six times in a span of 11 days.

The Mets lost 5-0 at Montreal and fell back in a bid to catch the Braves. But New York stayed five games ahead of Arizona in the wild card race.

"Seven of our games for the rest of the season are against the Expos and the Phillies, so we've got to get used to that," Mets manager Bobby Valentine said. "But six of our games are against the Braves, so we'd better get used to that, too."

In other NL games, St. Louis beat Chicago 4-2, Houston downed Pittsburgh 5-3, San Francisco topped San Diego 5-1, Los Angeles defeated Colorado 12-6, Cincinnati beat Milwaukee 8-4 and Philadelphia stopped Florida 6-5.

Millwood (10-11) gave up four hits in seven innings. He beat the Diamondbacks for the third time this season and is 4-0 against them lifetime.

Schilling (10-12) dropped his fifth straight decision. He's 4-6 in 11 starts since being traded from Philadelphia to Arizona. Schilling allowed two runs in seven innings. The Braves broke it open by scoring five times in the eighth against Arizona's bullpen.

"I don't know that I'm really into the personal battles here," he said. "We've put ourselves against the wall, and every game now is a must-win. For whatever reason, we're not winning ballgames."

Expos 5, Mets 0
Vladimir Guerrero homered twice and doubled, and that was plenty for Tony Armas Jr. to pitch Montreal over New York.

Guerrero hit his 38th and 39th home runs. Both came against Bobby J. Jones, who was relieved by Bobby M. Jones to begin the seventh.

Armas gave up three hits in seven-plus innings, stretching his scoreless streak to 14 innings.

Expos reliever Steve Kline got the last out. A day earlier, he threw his glove in the direction of first-base umpire Ian Lamplugh after being ejected — this time, Lamplugh was the plate umpire and there were no incidents.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 2
Right fielder Sammy Sosa dropped a bases-loaded fly ball in the eighth and St. Louis won its seventh in a row.

The Cardinals cut their magic number for winning the NL Central to two over Cincinnati. They'll get their chance to clinch their first division title since 1996 when open a three-game series Tuesday night at Busch Stadium.

Darryl Kile earned his 19th victory as the Cardinals finished off their first four-game sweep over the Cubs since 1963. Chicago has lost five straight.

Giants 5, Padres 1
San Francisco trimmed its magic number for winning the NL West to six as Jeff Kent homered and tripled at San Diego.

The Giants will try to wrap up the division when they start a seven-game homestand Monday at Pacific Bell Park. They play second-place Arizona four times later in the week.

Mark Gardner, who missed his previous scheduled start because of fatigue, won his fourth straight decision.

San Francisco won for the 15th in 18 games despite resting Barry Bonds, Bill Mueller, J.T. Snow and Rich Aurilia.

Astros 5, Pirates 3
Moises Alou hit his 30th homer, doubled and drove in four runs as Houston sent Pittsburgh to its ninth straight loss.

The Pirates' skid is its worst since a nine-game slump in 1985. The Astros completed a four-game sweep and finished 7-0 against Pittsburgh at Enron Field this season.

Scott Elarton gave up a two-run homer to Abraham Nunez in the first inning, but little else in earning his 17th victory. Reds 8, Brewers 4
Alex Ochoa hit a three-run homer and pitcher Pete Harnisch drove in two runs as Cincinnati won at home.

Reliever Denny Reyes threw the Reds' 91st wild pitch of the year in the ninth inning, tying the NL record set by Houston (1970) and Philadelphia (1989). The major league mark is 94 by Texas (1986).

Milwaukee's John Snyder fell to 0-8 in 15 starts since June 22.

Dodgers 12, Rockies 6
Luke Prokopec, whose promotion to Los Angeles kept him from pitching for Australia in the Olympics, earned his first major league victory.

Prokopec held Colorado to two runs and five hits in six innings at Dodger Stadium.

Prokopec was the No. 1 starter on Australia's Olympic team. Instead of going to Sydney, the 22-year-old righty was brought up from Double-A San Antonio on Sept. 1 after Carlos Perez was injured.

Phillies 6, Marlins 5
Randy Wolf pitched seven effective innings and Bobby Abreu homered as Philadelphia beat Florida at Veterans Stadium.

Six of the Phillies' starting position players spent time in the minors this season.

AP review: Most states don't check barred contractor list

By KATHERINE PFLEGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half the states hire contractors without regular reviews to determine whether the companies are barred from doing business with the federal government for fraud or other violations, an Associated Press review found.

The federal government maintains an Internet-accessible list of companies it will not hire. Fourteen states said their contracting offices do not check the list, 20 other states check only occasionally, and about half a dozen instituted checks as a result of the AP inquiry.

A review of state procurement records in all 50 states found several states that fail to consult the federal list have repeatedly hired contractors that have had run-ins with the government.

In Vermont, two dozen contractors forbidden from working for the federal government have done business with the state, including Earth Waste Systems of Pittsford, Vt., banned from federal contracts in 1998.

The company, which recycles metals and dismantles buildings, emerged from bankruptcy in 1999 and has a contract from the Vermont National Guard for demolition work.

Vermont maintains no central list of its own and believes that problems with barred contractors are not widespread enough to merit one, said Tom Pelham, Vermont's finance commissioner until he left in July.

"Vermont's a small state," Pelham said. "We do have a good competitive bidding process."

Steve Medlin, an accountant for Earth Waste, said he was unaware that his company had been on the federal list.

"If it did happen, then it was more than likely because of the financial difficulties we were going through," Medlin said.

The General Services Administration, the government's landlord and purchasing agent, is responsible for maintaining the list, and federal agencies are required to check it before awarding contracts and grants.

About 24,000 companies or individuals are barred from doing business with the government for infractions that range from violation of drug-free workplace laws to embezzlement and contract fraud. The bans can be indefinite or last just a few years.

Although the federal list is accessible on the Internet, some states said their already overworked bureaucracies cannot handle the extra chore.

In Kansas, some government agencies check the list only for Medicaid-related contractors, although almost 300 Kansas-based companies are excluded from federal contracts. During the past few years, state agencies have hired at least seven federally banned companies.

Dan Stanley, the state's secretary of administration, said Kansas probably should consult the federal list. "I think that's something we need to include in our reviews," he said. "It may raise some flags."

Some states say using the list causes complications. States may not trust the federal recommendations or may not have a large enough pool of contractors to exclude companies with past bad practices.

"Much of what comes to us from the federal government I wouldn't trust. They're incompetent," said Robert Carl Jr., Rhode Island Administration Department director.

In July, an AP analysis showed that hundreds of companies prosecuted or sued for defrauding the government remain eligible to receive federal business because agencies chose not to ban them. Many had received new federal business.

Joe Giddis, administrator of the Arkansas purchasing office, said his state makes its own judgments on contractor quality.

"Because they have run into some problems within another jurisdiction does not mean they are not going to be able to provide Arkansas with the services and commodities that we need," said Giddis, whose office oversees up to 10,000 bidders.

Critics point to unclear cases of banned contractors like South Carolina dentist Charles Hanna, who says he was banned from federal contracting for making $56 worth of Medicaid billing errors.

"All I see now is private pay patients," Hanna said. "The only people they punish is the people who never get care."

Bill Gambrell, South Carolina Medicaid Fraud Control Unit director, said Hanna pleaded guilty to four counts of Medicaid fraud in 1996 and paid more than $8,500 in fines and restitution.

More than a dozen states require vendors to affirm that they have not been prohibited from doing business with a government. When these pledges do not weed out contractors who will lie, Louisiana relies on another check — competing contractors who tattle on rivals.

"I don't know if anything is done to verify the accuracy of the application," said Glenn Ducote, Louisiana assistant attorney general. "The whole public bid system kind of depends on competitor bids. There are literally thousands."

Still, some contractors simply play the system. If they are banned from state government contracts, they look for federal business, and vice versa.

Jury to get case of drifter who confessed to killing spree

DEL RIO, Texas (AP) — The case of a 36-year-old drifter accused of capital murder in the Dec. 31 throat-slashing of a 13-year-old girl soon will be in the hands of a jury.

Both sides rested their cases last week in the trial of Tommy Lynn Sells, a former carnival worker and ex-convict who has allegedly confessed to killing Kaylene Harris and several other people since the 1980s.

Closing arguments are scheduled for Monday morning, with jury deliberations to follow. During three days of testimony, jurors heard written confessions from Sells, watched a videotaped confession and listened to gripping testimony from an 11-year-old girl who also was attacked by Sells but survived.

The girl, Krystal Surles, said she tried to remain still and silent on the top of a bunk bed as she watched Sells slit the throat of Kaylene, a family friend she had been visiting. She said Sells then cut her throat, and she waited for him to leave before seeking help.

In a written confession read in court, Sells admitted to sexually assaulting Kaylene before slashing her throat, a combination that could land him on death row. Sells pleaded guilty to attempted murder for the attack on Krystal but pleaded innocent to capital murder in Kaylene's death. For Sells to be convicted of capital murder, prosecutors must show that he committed a felony while killing.

Although Sells confessed to killing the girl, his attorney, Victor Garcia, worked to show that no physical evidence could prove Kaylene was raped and suggested that Sells was pressured into making the admission.

Superintendent Orr named to Education Research Board

AUSTIN — Dawson R. Orr of Pampa was recently appointed to the Texas Center for Educational Research Board of Trustees. He will serve through August 2003.

Orr, superintendent of Pampa ISD, is a member of the Texas Association of School Administrators and American Association of School Administrators and chair of the TASA Legislative Committee. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of Alabama and his doctorate at the University of Texas at Austin.

TCER is an independent, nonprofit educational research organization established to study major issues affecting all levels of Texas public education. The center's objectives are to design and produce original research and provide high-quality information resources for those who make or influence education policy in Texas. TCER's comprehensive research agenda includes teaching and learning, economics of education, education finance and school district governance.
