Time to Confer

The Pampa Chamber Commerce at the instigation of F. P. Reid, the pioneer road booster of the Panhandle, has called a meeting of representalives from the counties of this portion of the state for the purpose of working out a synchronized program of g o o read building throughout the Panhandle. At present practically every county has on a road building program but in several instances they are working at cross purposes, roads in one county being built to points that will not connect with good roads in their neighboring county.

If a unified program without conflict can be worked out it will redound to the benefit of all concerned. The meeting will be held in Pampa on the 27th of August at 2 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

Gene Wins In Baby Parade

Gene Tunney won the grand prize in the baby parade at Wildwood, N. J. the other day. Of course the retired champion wasn't there in person, but his romance with pretty "Polly" Lauder furnished the inspiration for the winning stunt. In the upper photo you see Frances Smith, of Livingston, Pa., as the bride-to-be; John Regenold, Bellefonte, Pa., as Gene; Eleanor Chestnut, of Philadelphia, as the winner of Gene's last match. Other popular members of the youngest generation who passed in review along the beach boardwalk were the two little life guards pictured below. They're Billy and Bert Blackburn, of Cleveland, O., the only twins in the carnival.

for their "sticking to" Union Labor by maintaining the old wage scale.

It is the desire of the Cooks, Waiters and Waitresses Local Union No. 410 to thank the three cafes who have maintained the wage scale under which we have been working. We feel that it is a fair living wage and that business in Pampa is good enough to justify that scale.

We are anxious that the public understand the nature of the condition which exists between the Local Union and a few cafe and restaurant owners.

THE COOKS, WAITERS AND WAITRESSES HAVE NOT ASKED FOR A RAISE IN THE WAGE SCALE!

WE HAVE ASKED ONLY THAT THE PRES-ENT SCALE BE CONTINUED.

It is our desire and intention, as of all Union workers, to work for the best interests of Pampa and this community and have always been willing to do our part toward making community enterprises a success.

Again we wish to express our thanks to GIBSON'S CAFE, B. & C. COFFEE SHOP and ADAMS COF-FEE SHOP for their friendliness towards Union Labor and particularly to the local Cooks, Waiters and Waitresses Union.

Giants Thankful That Robins Beat Out St. Louis

By HERBERT W. BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Thanks to Doug McWeeny and the Brooklyn Robins, the Giants still retain their hold on the National league's pace setting position.

While the Giants were bowing to Cincinnati yesterday, McWeeny pitched the Robins to a three-hit 6 to 1 victory over the runner-up St. Louis Cards and thus enabled the New Yorkers to lead the pennant campaign by two

The Giants' rush stopped abruptly in the face of Red Lucas' hurling at Cincinnati. Red held the leaders to five hits and the Reds eked out a 3 to 2 triumph by bunching four hits and a sacrifice off Freddy Fitzsimmons in the second inning

Waite Hoyt out pitched Sam Gray as the Yanks downed St. Louis Browns, 3 to 1. Gray was the victim of bunched hits in the second and third inning while Hoyt, pitching his 16th victory of the year, kept the Browns' safeties well scattered Behind good pitching by Quinn, the A's pounded four Cleveland moundsen for sixteen hits and an easy 12 to 4 triumph at Philadelphia.

The Chicago White Sox replaced the Indians in fourth place by taking over the Washngton Senators, 3 to 1, Grady Adkins allowing seven hits.

Washington fell into seventh pla through this defeat which was coupled with a 4 to 3 win for the Detroit Tigers over the Boston Red Sox.

Bud's Story Is Only Well Begun! Be Su re To See Tmorrow's and Frday's Papers For Further Installments. And Remember That Friday's Issue Will Reveal Bud's

Riding Herd and Getting Hitched

"Bud," son of Irish parents who have just noved to Texas from Tennessee, first sees the mishap. A letter from Jake Deboard, his father's friend who lives down in Hopkins county, offers Bud a job on his cattle ranch. Bud implores his father's permission to go.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER II. was soon able to testify. His father gave reluctant consent to his riding down to Jake Deboard's ranch the following Sunday to begin his work as a puncher. With that rare faculty for enjoying keenly anticipated pleasures, Bud spent but few happier weeks than that in which he assmebled his outfit for ranch work. Jake Deboard proved to be a leather-necked individual with a habit of handling masterfully a half plug of tobacco in one chew. Kindly, drawling he nevertheless had a way of getting their best out of both men and horses. Under him Bud learned responsibility. If a task were assigned him he same to understand that it was up to him to find a way to do it.

With the other ranch hands Bud soon became a favorite. His good-natured acceptance of the pranks played on any newcomer gave. him an auspicious start. The utter fearlessness with which he tackled either a bad horse or a tough job made them all his friends.

The work was exacting. At shipping time long, hard days and almost sleepless nights piled up monotonously. There were no corrals for "cutting" the cattle; this called for plenty of skill and endurance in horsemanship to separate the different groups and "hold" them so. Roping, tying, branding—Bud got his hand in at all of it.

The long hours with older men gave the youngster the benefit of their hard but generally clean and wholesome philosophy. He learned much vicariously of what life is like as it is actually lived. The long hours of "riding fence" gave him solitude and a chance to think out for himself some of the laws that govern men and things and events. At night the stars were brilliant and just overhead; the boy could not but feel himself close to themand to the Power that ruled them.

Two years of ranch work and Bud became restless. It may have been that homesickness tions. One day he drew his pay and driftedback to Collins county. In the county seat, McKinney, Bud met a young lady destined to play havor with whatever plans he may have Dark haired, blue-eyed, lithe of step-to Bud she was the most beautiful creature of a beautiful world. He learned that her name was Daisy Belle Adams. Scarcely taking time to pay his folks a brief visit, Bud hurrled over to her father's farm and asked for a job. Luck was with him: he went to work as a 'hand" on John Quincy Adams' place. At the time nothing mattered so much as being near the girl whose appearance had so intrigued

Followed three full and happy years. Who can adequately describe the love of a man for a woman or the love of a woman for a man? Suddenly it exists and all other facts in the life of each pale into insignificance. Enough to say that in these three years was forged a link that has lasted for thirty years and bids fair to last "until death do us part."

In the fall after Bud's third year with Mr. Adams he rented a farm and started out to raise his first crop. All through the winter he "batched" by himself with only an occasional opportunity to visit his financee. Their plan was to wait until after the first crop had been gathered before they should be married. But the loneliness after the long days of toil became unbearable; so in March Daisy Belle and her father dress with him to the county seat, McKinney, when marriage licemes were to be had.

Bud says that if he is kneck-kneed today it is for no other reason than the things that Methodist preacher did to him while performing the marriage ceremony. Be that as it may, two very happy young folks drove back to Bud's rented farm house that evening. That that happiness has endred on down 'til today. Bud takes no credit for. He says it is all due that sweet Christian girl who took pity on his loneliness

The next day Bud went back to his cultivator and spent his honeymoon in putting in that first crop And in the days that followed Daisy Belle and he learned that marriage is a Great Adventure not because it is the Perfect Ending but rather because it is the Imperfect Beginning of a tide that broadens and deepens and swells immeasurably as the years go by.
