LEGIONNAIRES ARE COMING TOMORROW

Big Panhandle Road Meeting to Convene in Pampa August 23

PROBLEMS TO BE CONSIDERED BY DELEGATES

Group Action Is Seen Essential to This Area

ENGINEER'S IDEA OPPOSED HERE

His Route to Miss Miami and Circle This City

A mass meeting of good road enthusiasts working for the good of the Panhandle and including the majority of the Panhandle counties is planned for August 23 in Pampa.

It is the purpose of the highway committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce to organize a Highway Association which will map out plans to better the system in this territory and to get before the state highway commission with plans that will be beneficial to the counties through which the highways pass.

W. A. French, state highway engineer of Amarillo, was here yesterday and made a trip over the present route of highway 33 with delegations from Pampa and Miami. The party drove north on Highway 33 to Miami, stopping along the way and pointing out to the engineer places where the road could be shortened and improved.

Could Serve Taxpayers From Miami the party drove toward Canadian and showed Mr. French where the route could be shortened about five miles and where it could serve most of the taxpayers.

Upon returning to Pampa Mr. French made the following statement: "I still believe the proposed routing along the south side of the Santa Fe tracks is the feasible one from an engineering standpoint. Of course I am governed by the highway commission, whose policy is to make the shortest route between control points, which on highway 33 are Amarillo, Pampa and Canadian."

The plan of the commission is to leave highway 33 just west of Pampa pass through the extreme south part of the city, and follow the south side of the Santa Fe track to Canadian, missing Miami by about five miles. This would eliminate state designation both highways 33 and Highway 33-A and would not serve the populated parts of the counties.

Can't Use Bonds Mr. French stated that the money voted to pave the roads in this precinct could not be used on designated highways without permission from the state highway department. When asked what the State would do if Gray and Roberts counties refused to vote bonds to pave the new, proposed highway, he said that the State would have to continue maintaining the present highways until such time as the department and counties could get together on the project.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is taking a vote of its officers and board of directors on their attitude toward a proposed state-wide bond issue. F. P. Reid, as one of the vice-presidents of the W. T. C. C., has mailed his vote, stating that he is against the move.

Those making the trip yesterday with Engineer French were George W. Briggs, F. P. Reid, A. H. Doucette, C. L. Thomas, and W. A. Taylor of Pampa and J. A. Mead, Frank Risor and Judge R. E. Ritchie of Miami.

THE WEATHER

West Texas: Tonight and Saturday, partly cloudy.

Flood at Cavern Kills 3 Plainview Persons Today

CARLSBAD, N. M., Aug. 10.—(P)—Three Plainview, Tex., persons were drowned and three injured today when a wall of flood water struck the car in which they were riding at Dark Canyon, one-half mile south of here. The dead are A. Chambers, 55, his daughter, Eunice, and Alma Stovall.

The bodies have not been recovered. Mrs. Chambers, another daughter, Elmira, and Miss Iris Bowley escaped from the flood, but were in a hospital here for bruises and shock.

A cloudburst in the Guadalupe mountains brought the flood down Dark Canyon. The stream was filled to a width of 500 feet.

The Santa Fe railroad bridge across the canyon was threatened.

Searching parties were looking for the three bodies at a power dam six miles south of Carlsbad.

Smith Attends Funeral of George Brennan Today

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(P)—The solemn ritual of the Catholic church—requiem high mass for the dead—sent its somber echoes through Our Lady of Mount Carmel church today as high and low alike joined in a parting tribute to George E. Brennan, dead Democratic leader in Illinois.

Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, staunch friend of the Illinois national committeeman, was among the mourners who bowed their heads in reverent silence while the last rites were said.

Private services at the home preceded the public mass at the church. There was a few moments wait at the Parish house while the body of Mr. Brennan was removed from home to the church. The governor took this opportunity to chat informally for a while with Democratic leaders of the city and state who had formed his reception committee.

Pressed for time inasmuch as he planned to return to New York at 1:40, Governor Smith did not join the funeral procession to the cemetery. The services at the church lasted until about 12:30 p. m., and the governor returned directly to the New York Central station where his private car was waiting.

Manager of Veterans' Bureau Is Coming

A visitor from Oklahoma City to the fifth division convention meeting here Saturday and Sunday will be M. G. Baker, assistant manager of the United States veterans' bureau. A letter was received here this morning stating that Mr. Baker would arrive Saturday morning.

It is through the office of which Mr. Baker is assistant manager that all hospitalization and loans are negotiated and he will be here in the interest of his office.

Many Prominent Officials of District and State Departments Coming to Pampa.

Dr. R. A. Webb, commander of Kerley-Crossman post 334, is an enthusiastic Legionnaire and has given impetus of much activity and interest in post matters. He is a former member of Legion posts in Oklahoma City, post 35, El Reno, Okla., and Skiatook, Okla.

He moved to Pampa in September of 1926 and has since been practicing medicine here. He was made post commander March 20, 1928, and much has been accomplished under his leadership.

Dr. Webb joined the army May 20, 1917, as first lieutenant in the medical corps, and was sent to Camp Riley. Later he was transferred to camp

Prominent American Legion Officials

Here are some faces that will be seen everywhere in connection with the Legion convention Saturday and Sunday. At the left is Tom E. Darby, chief de gare of the local voiture of 40 and 8, whose "wrecking crew" is one of the best in the country. In the middle is J. W. Carnes of Houston, grand chef de train, 40 and 8, who has held nearly every office in his post and voiture and who will assist in properly "wrecking" the goofs here in the promenade of Saturday evening. At the right is the man who bears much of the responsibility for the success of the big meeting—Dr. R. A. Webb, commander of the local Kerley-Crossman post.

Second Storm Is Feared as Florida Estimates Damage

ATLANTA, Aug. 10.—(P)—The storm which struck Florida early this week recurred last night northeastward, and today was moving with moderate intensity accompanied by heavy rains through South Georgia toward the Atlantic coast.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 10 (P)

Water is rising fast behind the dam of the Florida Power company at Inglis and reports reaching here say the structure is seriously endangered. J. C. Jamison, steam operator at the power plant, said "it is looking pretty bad." Officials of the company could not be reached. Jamison said reports that part of the dam had been dynamited to save it were untrue.

GOOFS TO HAVE INNING IN CITY

Public Invited to See Latest Styles in Promenade

A sure cure for sore eyes is the way 40 and 8 members characterize the "wreck" to begin at 8 o'clock tomorrow. "The poor 'Goofs' will be here in 'full dress.' The latest styles will appear on downtown streets. The promenade will include cowboys in dancing stunts, timid flappers with beads, and Bobby Jones himself, doing stunts with his golf clubs. Bring the babies, advise the voiture chiefs. There will be a nursery to take care of them. See the champion rider a la bicycle. Don't forget to help the blind—he might be a Goof. In case a bear gets after you, don't be afraid—a Goof will come to the rescue.

Mass Meeting to Be at 8 o'Clock

Tonight at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium a mass meeting of the citizens of Pampa and surrounding territory will commence at 8 o'clock and every backing is requested to attend. These three subjects will be discussed and plans formulated for holding the Pampa fair, influencing the highway commission on the road question regarding the re-routing of highway 33, and sending the Pampa Grays to the Amarillo baseball tournament. The auditorium should be packed as these questions are of interest to everyone in the territory. Manager George Briggs said this morning.

WOMAN AND SON ARE BURNED LAST MIDNIGHT

BROWNWOOD, Aug. 10.—Police today are investigating the deaths of Mrs. Lewis E. Brittain, 33, and her son by a former marriage, Dean Bradner, 10, fatally burned last midnight when their home here was destroyed by fire. The woman's husband, an oil well driller, was working in Lockhart when the tragedy occurred.

TEXAN IS ELECTROCUTED

NEW BRAUNFELS, Aug. 10.—(P)—Wayne Lackney, 25, employee of the United Gas Industries, was electrocuted at the Comal river power plant here today when he came in contact with a "live wire."

LOCAL VOITURE OF 40 AND 8 IS ONE OF BEST

Voiture 963, 40 and 8, Pampa, has the distinction of being the largest unit in the Panhandle and the third largest in the State of Texas, including all the large cities. The local voiture was organized and received its charter in March last year with fifteen members enrolled. Today the association has 56 members and fifteen more will be taken in tomorrow night at the promenade. When the voiture was organized, Artie C. Sailor, veteran member of the local American Legion post, was chosen Chef de gare. He served the first year of the organization's existence. The present chef de gare is Tom E. Darby, another member of the local post since its organization.

The local voiture has one of the best "wrecking crews" in the state and has been given the honor of being the official "wreckers" at the Inter-State American Legion convention in Texarkana next month. They will put on a "wreck" here tomorrow night when fifteen P. O.'s will be initiated. Among the candidates will be Walton D. Hood, state commander of the American Legion.

When the local voiture was organized the membership included: Artie C. Sailor, chef de gare, Frank Thomas, correspondent, Ed Vicars, Lester Sills, Jeff Lard, W. E. Coffey, Floyd McConnell, R. E. Zogg, Lee Mayo, T. E. Darby, Lec Furnace, Frank Lard, J. G. Wheeler, C. E. Carey, and L. C. Shirley.

Hoover Looks Fit on 54th Birthday

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 10.—(P)—Herbert Hoover came to the fifty-fourth milestone of life today on the eve of embarking upon the greatest adventure of his colorful career—the quest of the presidency.

The birthday anniversary found the Republican nominee fit and eager for the pre-election fight and he celebrated it by discussing policy and strategy with his chief political lieutenants, and receiving reports as to the progress in perfecting the nationwide organization which will be thrown into action soon in his behalf.

These lieutenants include Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee; Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the notification committee; Governor John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania; Former Governor Percival Baxter of Maine, and State Senator Frederick C. Walcott of Connecticut.

SMITH FOR PRESIDENT DRIVE IS PLANNED

AUSTIN, Aug. 10.—(P)—Efforts will be made to organize every voting precinct in the state for Governor Al Smith for president as a follow-up to the state-wide rally of Democratic "regulars" here Saturday.

Mrs. H. H. Sevier, national committee woman for Texas, said today a very active campaign will be organized and carried into all parts of the state. Speakers will take the stump and urge support of the national ticket.

40-8 "WRECK" FIRST OF BIG LOCAL EVENTS

Pampa Will Welcome Fifth Division Members

MAIN PROGRAM TO BE SUNDAY

Much Entertainment Is Provided for Guests of City

Men who fought and won, who proudly bore arms for Uncle Sam a decade ago, will gather in Pampa tomorrow for a two-day convention of the fifth division of the American Legion. The Ladies' Auxiliary will assemble for concurrent sessions.

In gala array for her first big convention, the New Pampa and its strong Legion organizations will welcome the visitors in a spirit of genuine cordiality and friendship.

Prominent leaders in each branch of the Legion will be present, and indications are that there will be a representative gathering from every part of the Panhandle.

The local organizations which are hosts to the convention are: Kerley-Crossman Post 334, R. A. Webb, commander. La Societe des 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux, Thomas E. Darby, Chef de gare. American Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. W. H. Lang, president.

Delegates to the Fifth-Division convention will begin arriving tonight and by tomorrow afternoon the Legionnaires will be much in evidence. Registration will begin at the Legion home on West Postter street at 10 o'clock Saturday. Beginning at 6 o'clock the Forty and Eight society will hold a "wreck" that is calculated to afford plenty of action for the candidates and amusement for the spectators.

For those not taking part in the "wreck" there will be informal dancing with bridge and "42" for those who wish to play, at the New Schneider hotel. This event will begin at 8:30 o'clock, with Mrs. W. H. Lang and Mrs. R. A. Webb as hostesses.

The theatres will present special programs, and there will be a dance at the Pla-Mor auditorium. Reveille will be sounded Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. The principal program of the convention will be held at the Rex theatre at 10:30 o'clock. At noon a barbecue lunch will be served at the Pla-Mor auditorium.

The Legionnaires will gather at the Pla-Mor again at 2:30 o'clock for a business session, and the Auxiliary will assemble at the New Schneider at the same time for a similar meeting.

Miss Gertrude Allen, who has been with the Central States Power and Light office for the past few months, will leave tomorrow for a two-week visit with relatives in Missouri. She has accepted a position as teacher of business science in the high school of Cherokee, Okla., and will take up her duties in September. Mrs. Pearl Irwin has returned to her home in Snyder, after a visit of several days in the home of Mrs. R. E. Williams. H. E. Baird of Miami was in the city this morning. He is cashier of the First State bank of Miami.

LEGION BODIES NOW HAVE LIVE PERSONNEL

Epidemiologist, Kan., with the rank of captain. At the close of the war he was commander of the ambulance corps with the 10th division, and was discharged December 13, 1919.

He is an enthusiastic member of the 40 and 8 and a well known figure in state work of both the Legion and the 40 and 8.

Cox Was Commander

Lewis O. Cox, one of the original members of the local post, has been a worker since its organization and has held the office of post commander. Under Commander Cox many things were accomplished, including the renovation of the Legion Home; Mr. Cox resigned as commander to enter the field as a candidate for county commissioner of precinct 2 and will go into the second primary August 25.

Lester Sills, past commander of Kerley-Crossman post 334, is also known over this territory for the banquets he arranges and serves. Whenever a "feed" or a banquet is to be held, the commander turns the details over to "Lester" and has no more worries. He will be in charge of the barbecue Sunday and plans to outdo himself.

Darby Heads 40-8

Tom E. Darby is chef de gare of local voiture, 95, 40 and 8, and is a capable leader of that body. He has worked a wrecking crew to such perfection that it is recognized as the best in the state and will do the work at the National convention at Texarkana. Before the organization of the local 40 and 8, Mr. Darby was an enthusiastic American Legion worker and still is, although much of his time is taken up by 40 and 8 duties.

Walton D. Hood, state commander of the American Legion, is without a doubt the most enthusiastic Legionnaire in Texas. He is a successful banker in San Antonio, but travels over the state in the interest of the American Legion most of his time.

He is an able speaker and will be the chief speaker at the convention session Sunday morning at the Rex theatre commencing at 10:30 o'clock. He will join the local voiture 40 and 8 Saturday.

Simpson Is Coming

Major E. A. Simpson of Amarillo, commander of the 5th division, will be among those present at the convention. Major Simpson is an enthusiastic Legionnaire and will preside at the local convention Saturday and Sunday.

H. D. Woods of Lubbock, commander of the 19th district of the 5th division, will also be present with a large delegation from his district.

P. L. Forbes of Dallas, field secretary of the national rehabilitation committee, writes that he will be here for the bi convention and that he is anxious to see Pampa.

Albert Johnson of Dallas, regional manager of the Veterans bureau, also writes that he will be among those present Saturday and Sunday.

Many Officers Coming

Officials of the 40 and 8 who will attend the 5th division convention and 40 and 8 wreck are:

L. W. Hoskins, grand chef de gare.

TWINKLES

It is regrettable that, in order to swallow Hoover, the "bolters" find it necessary to sugar-coat him. However, it must be admitted that Mr. Hoover is "different".

Hint: Respect for the flag takes a little thought and some native reverence for what it stands.

Well, well. We never expected to be able to write "partly cloudy, local showers" half a dozen days in a row in the Panhandle.

Both parties spurn "the" fee, but probably not many individual members the fees.

The Hoover needle case may be used to sew up votes. If they leave those things lying around loose in barber shops, they stand to lose a lot of votes.

William Allen White will stay in Europe while his money lasts. Many editors we know would meet themselves coming back on that arrangement.

Tunney said Dempsey's blows did him a good turn in re-locating a crooked chin, or something like that. After that crack, Jack ought to be mad enough to issue a challenge to all comers.

Welcome, Buddies

Pampa will be host to her first big convention Saturday and Sunday, and since this issue of The News will be placed in the hands of every visitor, a welcome to the boys of the American Legion is appropriate.

Pampa extends a welcome in the spirit that has characterized her attitude toward the many visitors and new peoples which have come within her borders in the last two years. Two years ago a town of 1,000, now a city of 10,000 with many thousands of other residents within a radius of a few miles, Pampa knows what it is to see new faces. She assumes that the stranger is the good fellow she has found most of the newcomers to typify.

The New Pampa leaves the latch string on the outside. The assets which oil and wheat wealth have brought about in and about the city. Visitors will see the magic of oil in its best form. To the east, south, and west lie the greatest and most active oil pools in the entire Panhandle. Yet Pampa is no ordinary "oil town". With the permanent improvements—brick buildings, fine churches built or building, schools without peers in this section, white way, paving spreading out rapidly, and bustling activity unequalled in the Panhandle at the present time. Roads leading in six directions from the city will be paved out of bonds already voted. There is absolutely no "crime problem", nor has there ever been. Civic progress has been equally unusual. City manager government is well established. The county seat recently was moved here and a contract for a courthouse will be let next week. Civic clubs include Rotary, Lions, Business Men's association, and numerous church organizations.

A wheat crop of more than a million bushels has been harvested in the immediate trade territory. Millions is being spent for oil drilling, gasoline plants, pipelines, and other oil field activity. The Santa Fe is building a standard gage railroad from Pampa to Cheyenne, Okla., giving a more direct route to Oklahoma City.

Prosperity, activity, progressiveness, good fellowship—that is the New Pampa. Pampa is proud of her Legion Post, her Auxiliary, and her Forty and Eight club. These rank among the largest and most active in the state. The local members will be on the job every minute to make the division meeting a success, backed by the entire citizenship.

Say the word, visitors, Pampa awaits your bidding.

Would Have King

It commonly is said that a democracy in its true form can exist only where mass meetings of every participant are possible. In other words, the smaller the democracy the more likely its success.

Experience has not proved the theory. Where a few meet, disagreement may rupture the whole governmental organism; where representatives of the people meet there is a chance that ruptures may be postponed until the breach can be closed. Moreover, representatives have an interest in their own positions, hence have a desire for permanency.

The small republics have their troubles. Being small, they crave power, or its symbol. Witness Albania, which emerged as a republic after anarchy that followed the short reign of Prince William of Wied. Albania may soon become a monarchy again. The parliament has dissolved itself to make place for a constituent assembly. Ahmed Bey Zogu may become king when the assembly meets August 25.

Ahmed Zogu has been president since 1925. He has been pulling strings, internally and with diplomats of neighboring Italy and Yugoslavia, to get sanction for his crowning. He would become king and there is evidence that the people would like a king to point to with pride. The anarchists, however, may make kingship unhealthy. It is often so in the Balkans.

CAPITOL News

By RODNEY DUTCHEE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—This is the forest fire season. Forest fire losses average $100,000 a day, according to government estimates. Use of airplane patrols to spot the fires before they get a good start has helped reduce the damage.

But the bugs are worse than fires. There are said to be 200,000 known species of tree-eating insects and it is estimated that they cause an annual loss of $100,000,000.

The government has a Federal Forest Protection Board to fight fires, bugs and other vermin. The chief of the Forest Service, W. B. Greeley, is chairman. The other members are the heads of the Weather Bureau, National Parks Service, Indian Bureau, General Land office, Bureau of Biological Survey, Division of Forest Insects in the Bureau of Entomology and the Office of Forest Pathology in the Bureau of Plant Industry.

Early reports from the forest areas of the west are encouraging insofar as fires are concerned. The worst damage has been where fire touched areas so dry that control was not gained until some seedling reforestation was killed. Favorable weather has helped the situation.

Lightning has caused numerous fires in Washington state, but with no large timber loss. Forest material is becoming dry in Oregon, but losses have been slight to date. Idaho has had a few small fires, with no more than $60,000 damage. Unusual dryness is reported from California, threatening danger which has not materialized, despite nearly 400 fires, mostly in brush.

North America uses about half the world's timber consumption. Railroads use about 130 million new wood ties every year—there are about 3,000 wood ties to the mile. Something like 5,000,000 trees are cut each year for telephone poles and we use about 500,000,000 fence posts annually. Millions of feet of pulp wood go into news print and more than half the population uses wood for fuel.

National Forests inadequate There are 81,000,000 acres of idle land in the country which should be put to work growing trees, according to the American Tree Association.

Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the association, warns that we cannot depend on the national forests to supply our future timber needs, despite some sort of a population impression to that effect.

"The timber grown in our national forests", he says, "can never supply more than a pitifully unimportant fraction of the wood that we need today and that we are going to need through the future. Much of our national forest land contains no tree growth and never can."

Pack has given demonstration forests to Syracuse University and the University of Washington has established a chair of forest soil research at Cornell and awards annual prizes for the best student papers on forestry. He has sent thousands of pounds of American tree seed to help reforest European battle area and has distributed more than 2,000,000 forestry primers in American schools.

Owners Must Act

"Here and there a few farsighted timber owners are laying plans to make their private lands permanently productive," Pack says. "But so far this has been the exception rather than the rule. More than a hundred million wood consumers in this country are still hoping that the timber industry will voluntarily see its way clear to practice of economics forestry and so perpetuate itself for all time.

"The answer to the situation is the growing of continuous crops of timber on all our available timber lands. Some progress is being made. The theory of sustained yield, which only a few years ago was looked upon in this country as little more than an academic discussion, is often considered today as a practical business policy that should be put to work more extensively. Under this system, only as much timber is removed from a unit of forest land as that land replaces by yearly growth."

Rancher, She Runs for Judge

GILMORE CITY, Iowa (AP)—Mrs. Bertha Beers Van Alstine, Gilmore City mayor, considers herself housekeeper for the community.

And to show that she could handle a broom in her municipality as well as in her home, Mrs. Van Alstine took part in bootlegging raids.

She long has been interested in politics and frequently discussed issues and campaigns with her husband, who was a state senator. She had no intention of taking more than an abstract interest in campaigns until she took the field last spring to defeat a local ticket she regarded as "wet". Mrs. Van Alstine won two to one.

The mayor hurries home from her office to work in a flower garden, a colorful and orderly plot behind her home. She does not let council meetings or conferences with department head interfere with her regular visits to her grandson.

"Her honor" has five children. Three of them were graduated from college last spring.

The municipal cobwebs that Mrs. Van Alstine is after with her broom are hang-outs where liquor can be obtained and where bootleggers frequent. She spends some time in lunch rooms, alleys and along side streets looking for what she calls evidences of untidiness in her town.

The mayor regrets that bridge is taking up time that she thinks women should give to civic and study clubs.

Yankees Break Losing Streak Heimack Wins

By HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Freddy Heimack, left-hander from Camden, N. J., has come to the rescue of the Yankees.

Purchased from St. Paul to bolster Huggins' tottering pitching staff, Heimack, who once wore liveries of the Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox, pitched the champions to a four-hit, 7 to 1, victory over the Red Sox yesterday in his first start on the comeback trail.
Heimack came to the big leagues with the Athletics in 1920. The only winning season he had in the big show was in 1924 when he scored 14 victories against 12 defeats with a fifth place club. In 1926 he again started the season with the A's but had traveled to Boston before the season was over. The following year found him at St. Paul. He turned in a brilliant record in the association.

Despite this victory the Yanks gained no ground on the Athletics who bowled over Washington, 8 to 3, behind Ehlers' three-hit pitching, Simmons' twelfth homer of the year came in the sixth with the bases loaded.
Only one game was played in the National league but that one saw St. Louis lose a little more of their advantage over New York. The Cardinals found the revived Pittsburgh Pirates a bit too tough for them and bowed to the 1927 champions, 5 to 4. The Giants although idle, moved up to within four games of McKechnie's league leaders.

It was the Corsairs' eighth straight victory and their 24th in their last 31 games.

DU PONT ON LEAVE
WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 10—(P)—Pierre E. du Pont, whose resignation as chairman of the board and member of the finance and executive committee of General Motors was considered yesterday, today issued a statement accepting the decision of the board. This was that his withdrawal from the official positions be made temporary and in the form of a leave of absence.

Rickard Refuses Sharkey's Demand for $50,000 Purse

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Tex Rickard's first move to clarify the heavy-weight situation, hopelessly muddled by Gene Tunney's retirement, has met with failure.

Tex attempted to put through a match yesterday between Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko. Negotiations fell through with a dull thud when Sharkey, through his board of managers, demanded a $50,000 guarantee for his end. Rickard, a bit wary since the financial failure of the Tunney-Heeney match, declined to talk in any financial terms but those having to do with a percentage of the "gate."

Sharkey and Risko then went to talk it over with the good signor, Umberto Pugazy and it was reported that Sharkey had agreed to meet Risko for the $50,000 he couldn't get out of Tex. However the catch, in this was that Risko and his manager were considering Pugazy's guarantee to them.

One of the most enthusiastic workers the 40 and 8 has in Texas is Frank L. Lawshe, chef de gare of voiture 377, Fort Worth. He is a master worker of the 40 and 8 and will be one of the first to arrive in Pampa for the local wreck Saturday night.

Australian Wins Single Sculls in Race With Yanks

SLOTEN, Holland, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Bob Pearce, Australian rower, won the single sculls Olympic championship today defeating Kenneth Myers of Philadelphia.

Italy won the first of the seven Olympic rowing championships today, defeating Switzerland by seven lengths in the four-oared shells with coxswain, while Germany took the second championship in the pair-oared shells without coxswain, defeating Great Britain.

The Italian victory aroused tremendous enthusiasm. The Blue-shirted crew gave the Fascist salute from their shell and then paddled to the judges' landing platform with their arms so extended in salute.

Wichita Falls in Two-Game Lead in Texas League

(By The Associated Press)

Squeezing eight runs out of nine hits, Wichita Falls yesterday took a two-game lead over other Texas league teams as Houston dropped still further by losing to Fort Worth.

In their ninth consecutive victory, the Spuds defeated Beaumont, which out-hit them by one blow, 8 to 2.

Riley's double in the eighth bowed the Buffs, 3 to 2. He pushed across the winning run and a fast double play later cut off a Houston threat.

While the crashing of his teammates bats resounded through the park Young Prazier pitched Dallas to a 6 to 2 win over San Antonio.

Sears' home run for Waco in the eighth, with one on, availed the Cubs nothing when Watwood for Shreveport doubled with Hayworth on first base. The Watwood Bam won for the Sports, 4 to 3.

Dog Racing Will Be Abandoned at Missouri City Track

HOUSTON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Hounds have done their last racing at the Missouri City Rodeo and Fair association in Fort Bend county.

Operators of the track decided last night, after a day of conferences between track attorneys, Assistant Attorney-General Galloway Calhoun and District Attorney R. A. Bassett to abandon racing. This announcement came just after Calhoun had arranged for hearings at Richmond today on two actions resulting from dog racing.

Gober's Athletes Win Over Magnolia

Stellar support behind the sensational pitching of Bill Hallmark, allowed Ed Gober's Athletes last night to win a ball game from the Magnolia nine, winners of the first half of the Industrial league, 4 to 2. The Magnolia stick welders failed to get a hit off Hallmark until the sixth inning, when one lone single was made.

Led by the big bats of Payne and Seitz, the Geberites plowed through to land nine safeties and score four runs. Gober and Cahill afforded the fielding sensations of the game and only darkness kept Hallmark from pitching a no-hit game.

The Magnolia runs came in the seventh on a walk, an error, and a single when it was almost impossible for the fielders to see the ball.

Batteries—Athletes, Hallmark and Lunsford; Magnolia, Hullock and Friedman.

ELECTION IS CONTESTED

UVALDE, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Arguments in the election contest in which Sid

Hardin of Mission seeks to upset the nomination of Congressman J. N. Garner of Uvalde, will probably be heard before the September term of court here. Hardin filed the contest yesterday. Cotton Reports Vary and Investigation Urged by Rankin TUPELO, Miss., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Representative John E. Rankin of Mississippi announced today he was writing the department of justice at Washington urging an investigation of two cotton crop reports which he said were issued by the crop reporting board Wednesday.

The reports, his statement said, showed a discrepancy of 10 per cent in the estimated condition. One of the reports, Rankin said, was marked "skeleton" and gave the estimated condition of 57.9 per cent of normal, while the other estimated the condition at 67.9. Both gave the estimated number of bales at 14,291,000, the statement declared, but Rankin said the "skeleton" report evidently went out first.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ROD FRAYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH, Lila makes life miserable for the bride until she meets a rich oil millionaire and marries him. Then she tells Bertie Lou to fetch the best.

"Try to keep up socially with wealthy friends, plunges the Bryers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seeks her chance to persuade him to accept a rich salary from Loree. Shortly after she tells Rod to get some jewelry in the safe during her husband's absence. They disappear and Rod wants to notify the police, but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, pointing out that suspicion against him might spoil his career.

Bertie Lou finds out that he has been seeing Lila secretly and is heartbroken. She goes home to her mother without seeing Rod. The separation, added to Lila's plotting, causes a coldness between them. Lila expects the other to make advances or explanation. Rod goes to the Loree without her and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to retaliate. Rod is stunned to learn that Lila deceived him about the stolen jewels when a contemplative admires her pearls at a dinner party.

She admits that she gave him an empty case in order to make him dependent on her generosity and to win his love. He repudiates her procreancy and disloyalty to her husband, and she awfully reminds him that his wife is at a house party with young Palmer.

He leaves her and drives manly out to the Palmer estate. Entering the house by an unlocked door he sees Marco emerging from a room in Lila's dressing gown and hears Bertie Lou's voice inside. Believing the worst, he goes away without realizing that they had just come upstairs from an early morning swim in the pool.

off with Lila.

No, it couldn't be that! Rod wouldn't do a thing of such low order! But something must have happened very suddenly—something that had caused Rod to forget, or not to care, that he had promised to let her know when he'd had enough of their hollow mockery of marriage.

But this was shabby! To let her come home and find herself deserted in this coldblooded manner! And he didn't have to do it. It wasn't fair! Bertie Lou's whipping pain began to give way to anger. She blamed Lila. Rod couldn't have been so heartless if he had not been influenced.

It was at that moment she chanced to see the withered gardener that she had kissed and left for Rod the night before. She snatched it up and fiercely tore it to bits, as though she could thereby destroy the love that had prompted her to put it to her lips.

SO! They thought they could treat her like an old shoe, did they? Cast her off like that heap of old things in the wastepaper basket! And she had come home dreaming of a chance to pour Rod's coffee and make his toast. They might be breakfasting together at this very moment. Even then, perhaps.

Bertie Lou tried to laugh, but the tears ran into her mouth when she opened it. It was rotten of them, acting as though she had tried to stand in their way. Rod sneaking off in the night, like a thief in his haste. It was contemptible. She wouldn't stand for it!

Then, for the first time since entering the apartment, she went into her own room. And there, on her dresser, propped against the back of a rose, she found a note.

It was cold as ice in its restraint. Rod told her merely that he was leaving and would send her, as soon as possible, the name of a lawyer through whom she might communicate with him.

It nearly broke Bertie Lou's heart. Perhaps it would have had she not been buoyed up by her anger. No matter if Lila was to blame Rod shouldn't have allowed himself to be such a cad.

Bertie Lou believed she could hate him for it someday—but not yet. Not quite. She was suffering too cruelly not to know that she loved him in spite of everything.

But her anger remained sufficiently strong to send her to Lila. If they had not gone away together, Lila and Rod, Bertie Lou still had a chance to let them know how despicable had been their conduct. She would tell Lila what she thought of a girl who would marry for money and then work day and night to entreat a former lover in a low intrigue.

LILA received her abed. She had sent word at first that she could not see her, but Bertie Lou had told the butler she would not leave until she saw his mistress. Lila inquired, and learned that Cyrus had not yet left for the office.

It would not do to have him encounter Bertie Lou. But Lila did not have her caller admitted without a great deal of fear. Bertie Lou could create a lot of trouble if she were so minded. Cyrus would not care to listen to her. . . . He had lost all respect for her, Lila knew.

But Bertie Lou could talk—to the Frasers, for instance. She believed that Bertie Lou still saw Molly now and then—and she might find a way of convincing Cyrus—if she really knew anything.

Lila could hardly believe that Rod had carried the story of her proposal to him to Bertie Lou. But why was Bertie Lou here, at this ungodly hour? Lila glanced at her clock—the time was five minutes of ten.

She threw back the silk covers on her bed and sat up against the lace-trimmed pillows. The room was in semi-darkness with the shades close drawn to keep out the daylight. One, near the bed, was half way up to admit air. Lila jumped out of bed and hastily pulled it down. She must, she guessed, look a sight. Rage always left its mark on her features, and she had raged through the night. Exhaustion had forced her to bed just before daybreak. But she had not slept.

She was barely back on her pillows, with a soft rose-scented flapper burning on a stand at the head of her French bed, when Bertie Lou was admitted.

THEY looked at each other as two duels might before the clash of blades began. Bertie Lou walked slowly over, as the maid who had shown her up, closed the door behind her, and came close to the bed.

Lila waved her hand toward a chair. "Good morning," she essayed pleasantly, but her voice was thick and jerky.

Bertie Lou did not take her eyes from Lila's face, or move toward the chair she indicated.

Her eyes were narrowed to slits and a scornful sneer twisted her lips out of all resemblance to their natural curves. Lila's eyes fell away, and she plucked nervously at the embroidered hem of a sheet. She tried to laugh, a wretched attempt.

"Goodness, what's the matter with you?" she cried, alarmed at her own lack of poise. "Has anything happened?"

"Why ask me?" Bertie Lou returned with a hard levelness that further disturbed Lila. It also armed her with irritation. She became snappish.

"Why shouldn't I ask you?" she retorted. "You insisted upon seeing me before I was up. . . . You ought to have a good reason."

"Is it reason enough that I've come to tell you what an abominable cheat you are?" Bertie Lou said, her voice held low, but vibrating with suppressed passion.

Lila sat bolt upright. "Wha . . . a . . . ?" she gasped.

"You heard me, and you know what I mean," Bertie Lou went on. Lila turned white. So Rod had told! He must have found out that she had cloaked Bertie Lou with faithlessness out of the fabric of suspicion—that she had an grounds for accusing his wife of a liaison with young Marco Palmer.

"But now that you've got him and it's all over I want to tell you that I wouldn't stoop to hold a man who could fall for you," Bertie Lou said, without waiting for Lila to speak.

The latter felt herself flung from one extreme to another. Now it was doubt. What could Bertie Lou mean? Not really that Rod and she had parted? Lila took courage on the barest chance that this could be Bertie Lou's meaning. She decided to remain silent, lest she divulge too much. Perhaps, after all, Rod had not told Bertie Lou about last night and the scene on the balcony.

"You can tell Rod that he needn't have run away like a whipped cur," Bertie Lou continued, growing warmer. "I wouldn't have put out a finger to stop him. I want you both to know that."

"Ever since you began crawling around after him I've given you every chance, because I couldn't love a man who wanted a girl like you, Lila, even if it was only after you'd used every way you knew to make him care for you."

Lila flushed and lost some of her caution. She was sure now that Bertie Lou did not know Rod had scorned her.

"You hadn't any right to interfere," she said brazenly. "You knew when you married Rod that I still loved him. I made no secret of that. And anyway, but a fool would have guessed I'd have him back. And how could you expect to hold the man I wanted?" she added with a sneer. "Rod was my man. You took him when he didn't care what happened. If he wanted to come back to me you hadn't any right to try to stop him. You shouldn't have caught a husband on the rebound as they say, my dear. It isn't safe."

"Well, you've got him," Bertie Lou replied, struggling hard to keep down her emotion. "And I wish you both the sort of luck you deserve!" She wheeled and hurried out of the room, slamming the door behind her.

LILA settled down on her pillows with a softly escaping sigh of relief issuing from her colorless lips. There was nothing to be feared from Bertie Lou, and her almost fanatical pride. "I'd like to see myself stand by and give up the man I loved, no matter what he thought about anyone else!" she thought, sneering at Bertie Lou.

And Rod hadn't gone to Bertie Lou with any tales, after all. Lila took hope in that. It gave her a chance, a slim one perhaps, but nevertheless a chance, to put herself right with him until . . . well, Lila told herself, people get used to shocking ideas. She might find a way to make herself irresistible.

She reached out and touched the bell to summon her maid. She must find Rod immediately, and go down on her knees, if necessary, to profess her shame and remorse. Lila laughed.

Legion Idea Is Credited to Teddy Roosevelt, Jr.

The American Legion organization was first conceived in the mind of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., through whose effort the Paris caucus was organized consisting of at least one enlisted man and one officer from each organization of the armed forces of the United States in France.

At this caucus plans were made for a subsequent caucus to be held in the territorial confines of the United States which led to the meeting now known as the St. Louis caucus, in which representation was by states. This meeting completed a tentative organization and provided for a national convention of the American Legion at Minn. capitol, Minn., representation in which was by Legion membership.

This convention ratified most of the work of the Paris and St. Louis caucuses and formulated the program and policies which, with some modifications, represent the work, aims and ideals of the Legion today.

These ideals are perhaps the best expressed by the preamble of the National constitution of the American Legion as follows:

"For God and country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

Local organizations of the Legion were and are known as posts. There are between 11,000 and 12,000 posts, located in practically every country in the world.

The department of Texas was organized in 1919, and today consists of more than 400 posts. Some idea of the relative importance of this department can be had from the fact that of ten of the National commanders of the organization, two have been from Texas. The department of Texas has been divided into five divisions, each under

Remember---

The Battle of Vin Blanc--
And the Battle of Vin Rouge
And the Advance into--

But never mind that advance. Anyhow, it was all part of that great engagement, the Battle of Patee. Or weren't you in the Battle of Patee, or the Battle of Liverpool; the Battle of Camp Travis--any of the famous Battles which were bloodless, and are more pleasant to remember than the grim times when death was all about.

Remember them. Spin yarns about them with your old buddies.

And we will remember the other battles, which were not bloodless; the fields of war where some of you fought, and some of you bled, and to whose sacrifice all of you offered yourselves freely, whether you ever got there or not.

We welcome you, veterans, for what you are today, and for what you did then. And we hope your memories will be pleasant and your visit here most pleasant.

Cotton Reports Vary and Investigation Urged by Rankin

TUPELO, Miss., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Representative John E. Rankin of Mississippi announced today he was wiring the department of justice at Washington urging an investigation of two cotton crop reports which he said were issued by the crop reporting board Wednesday.

The reports, his statements said, showed a discrepancy of 10 per cent in the estimated condition. One of the reports, Rankin said, was marked "skeleton" and gave the estimated condition of 57.9 per cent of normal, while the other estimated the condition at 67.9. Both gave the estimated number of bales at 14,291,000, the statement declared, but Rankin said the "skeleton" report evidently went out first.

LOVE FOR TWO

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1926 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BERTIE LOU WARD married BOB DRYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. Lila, who was miserable for the while until she meets a rich MR. LOVING and marries him. Then she tells Bertie Lou to forgive her the best.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends plunges the three, in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade Lila to accept a high salary from Loree. Shortly after she asks Rod to put some jewelry in the safe during her husband's absence. They disappear and Lila wants to identify the jewelry, but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, pointing out that suspicion against him might spoil his career.

Bertie Lou finds out that she has been seeing Lila secretly and her heartbreaks. She goes home to her mother without seeing Rod. The separation, added to Lila's plotting, causes a coldness between them. Each expects the other to make advances or explanations. Rod goes to the Loree without her and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to retaliate. Rod is stunned to learn that Lila deceived him about the stolen jewelry when a companion admits her pearls at a dinner party.

She admits that she gave him an empty case in order to make him dependent on her generosity and to win his love. He repudiates her treachery and disallows her to see him and she angrily reminds him that his wife is at a house party with young Jethro.

He leaves her and drives madly out to the Palmer estate. Entering the house by an unlocked door he sees Marco emerging from a room in his dressing gown and hears Bertie Lou's voice inside. Believing the worst, he goes away without learning that they had just come upstairs from an early morning swim in the pool.

off with Lila.

No, it couldn't be that! Rod wouldn't do a thing of such low order! But something must have happened very suddenly—something that had caused Rod to forget, or not to care, that he had promised to let her know when he'd had enough of their hollow mockery of marriage.

But this was shabby! To let her come home and find herself deserted in this coldblooded manner! And he didn't have to do it. It wasn't fair! Bertie Lou's whipping pain began to give way to anger. She blamed Lila. Rod couldn't have been so heartless if he had not been influenced.

It was at that moment she chanced to see the withered gardener that she had kissed and left for Rod the night before. She snatched it up and fiercely tore it to bits, as though she could thereby destroy the love that had prompted her to put it to her lips.

SO! They thought they could treat her like an old shoe, did they? Can't her off like that heap of old things in the wastepaper basket! And she had come home dreaming of a chance to pour Rod's coffee and make his toast. They might be breakfasting together at this very moment. Even then, perhaps.

Bertie Lou tried to laugh, but the tears ran into her mouth when she opened it. It was rotten of them, acting as though she had tried to stand in their way. Rod sneaking off in the night, like a thief in his haste. It was contemptible. She wouldn't stand for it!

Then, for the first time since entering the apartment, she went into her own room. And there, on her dresser, propped against the back of a chair, she found a note. It was cold as ice in its restraint. Rod told her merely that he was leaving and would send her, as soon as possible, the name of a lawyer through whom she might communicate with him.

It nearly broke Bertie Lou's heart. Perhaps it would have had she not been buoyed up by her anger. No matter if Lila was to blame Rod shouldn't have allowed himself to be such a cad.

Bertie Lou believed she could hate him for it someday—but not yet. Not quite. She was suffering too acutely not to know that she loved him in spite of everything.

But her anger remained sufficiently strong to send her to Lila. If they had not gone away together, Lila and Rod, Bertie Lou still had a chance to let them know how despicable had been their conduct. She would tell Lila what she thought of a girl who would marry for money and then work day and night to enmesh a former lover in a low intrigue.

LILA received her abed. She had sent word at first that she could not see her, but Bertie Lou had told the butler she would not leave until she saw his mistress. Lila inquired, and learned that Cyrus had not yet left for the office.

It would not do to have him encounter Bertie Lou. But Lila did not have her caller admitted without a great deal of fear. Bertie Lou could create a lot of trouble if she were so minded. Cyrus would not care to listen to her... he had lost all respect for her, Lila knew.

But Bertie Lou could talk—to the Frasers, for instance. She believed that Bertie Lou still saw Molly now and then—and she might draw a way of convincing Cyrus—if she really knew anything.

Lila could hardly believe that Rod had carried the story of her proposal to him to Bertie Lou. But why was Bertie Lou here, at this ungodly hour? Lila glanced at her clock—the time was five minutes of ten.

She threw back the silk covers on her bed and sat up against the lace-trimmed pillows. The room was in semi-darkness with the shades close drawn to keep out the daylight. One, near the bed, was half way up to admit air. Lila jumped out of bed and hastily pulled it down. She must, she guessed, look a sight. Rage always left its mark on her features, and she had raged through the night. Exhaustion had forced her to bed just before daybreak. But she had not slept.

She was barely back on her pillows, with a soft rose-shaded lamp burning on a stand at the head of her French bed, when Bertie Lou was admitted.

THEY looked at each other as two duellists might before the clash of blades began. Bertie Lou walked slowly over, as the maid who had shown her up, closed the door behind her, and came close to the bed.

Lila waved her hand toward a chair. "Good morning," she essayed pleasantly, but her voice was thick and jerky.

Bertie Lou did not take her eyes from Lila's face, or move toward the chair she indicated.

Her eyes were narrowed to slits and a scornful sneer twisted her lips out of all resemblance to their natural curves. Lila's eyes fell away, and she plucked nervously at the embroidered hem of a sheet. She tried to laugh, a wretched attempt.

"Goodness, what's the matter with you?" she cried, alarmed at her own lack of poise. "Has anything happened?"

"Why ask me?" Bertie Lou returned with a hard levelness that further disturbed Lila. It also armed her with irritation. She became snappish.

"Why shouldn't I ask you?" she retorted. "You insisted upon seeing me before I was up. You ought to have a good reason."

"Is it reason enough that I've come to tell you what an abominable cheat you are?" Bertie Lou said, her voice held low, but vibrating with suppressed passion.

Lila sat bolt upright. "Was... a...?" she gasped.

"You heard me, and you know what I mean," Bertie Lou went on. Lila turned white. So Rod had told! He must have found out that she had cloaked Bertie Lou with faithfulness out of the fabric of suspicion—that she had so grounds for accusing his wife of a liaison with young Marco Palmer.

"But now that you've got him and it's all over I want to tell you that I wouldn't stoop to hold a man who could fall for you," Bertie Lou said, without waiting for Lila to speak.

The latter felt herself stung from one extreme to another. Now it was doubt. What could Bertie Lou mean? Not really that Rod and she had parted? Lila took courage on the barest chance that this could be Bertie Lou's meaning. She decided to remain silent, lest she divulge too much. Perhaps, after all, Rod had not told Bertie Lou about last night and the scene on the balcony.

"You can tell Rod that he needn't have run away like a whipped cur," Bertie Lou continued, growing warmer. "I wouldn't have put out a finger to stop him. I want you both to know that."

"Ever since you began crawling around after him I've given you every chance, because I couldn't love a man who wanted a girl like you. Lila, even if it was only after you'd used every way you knew to make him care for you."

Lila flushed and lost some of her caution. She was sure now that Bertie Lou did not know Rod had scorned her.

"You hadn't any right to interfere," she said, brazenly. "You knew when you married Rod that I still loved him, made no secret of that. And anyone but a fool would have guessed I'd have him back. And how could you expect to hold the man I wanted?" she added with a sneer. "Rod was my man. You took him when he didn't care what happened. If he wanted to come back to me you hadn't any right to try to stop him. You shouldn't have caught a husband on the rebound as they say, my dear. It isn't safe."

"Well, you've got him," Bertie Lou replied, struggling hard to keep down her emotion. "And I wish you both the sort of luck you deserve!" She wheeled and hurried out of the room, slamming the door behind her.

LILA settled down on her pillows with a softly escaping sigh of relief issuing from her colorless lips. There was nothing to be feared from Bertie Lou, and her almost fanatical pride. "I'd like to see myself stand by and give up the man I loved, no matter what he thought about anyone else!" she thought, sneering at Bertie Lou.

And Rod hadn't gone to Bertie Lou with any tales, after all. Lila took hope in that. It gave her a chance, a slim one perhaps, but nevertheless a chance, to put herself right with him until... well, Lila told herself, people get used to shocking ideas. She might find a way to make herself irresistible.

She reached out and touched the bell to summon her maid. She must find Rod immediately, and go down on her knees, if necessary, to profess her shame and remorse. Lila laughed.

These ideals are perhaps the best expressed by the preamble of the National constitution of the American Legion as follows:

"For God and country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

Local organizations of the Legion were and are known as posts. There are between 11,000 and 12,000 posts, located in practically every country in the world.

The department of Texas was organized in 1919, and today consists of more than 400 posts. Some idea of the relative importance of this department can be had from the fact that of ten of the National commanders of the organization, two have been from Texas.

The department of Texas has been divided into five divisions, each under the supervision of a division commander.

The fifth division which will hold its convention here Saturday and Sunday consists of about 90 posts scattered over an area of West Texas equal in size to the state of Kansas. The present commander of the fifth division is Major E. A. Simpson of Amarillo.

Markets

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Wheat prices plunged wildly downward today as soon as the market opened, initial trades being as much as 5 5/8c a bushel under yesterday's closing. The break in values resulted chiefly from the fact the government estimate of 1928 domestic wheat production was larger than expected.

Grand Jury Called After Fatal Stabbing

WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The July grand jury was recalled today by Judge W. W. Cook of seventy-eighth district court to investigate the fatal stabbing of Oscar Daugherty, 42, truck farmer, last night at Electra.

Tom Shook, former Electra police chief, was arrested several hours after the stabbing. Sheriff W. G. Bralley found Shook at his home in Electra. He said Shook defied him for several hours before surrendering.

The stabbing, according to information to the investigators, occurred at a residence in Electra about 7 o'clock yesterday evening. Daugherty died without making a statement.

Remember---

The Battle of Vin Blanc---
And the Battle of Vin Rouge
And the Advance into---

But never mind that advance. Anyhow, it was all part of that great engagement, the Battle of Páree. Or weren't you in the Battle of Páree, or the Battle of Liverpool; the Battle of Camp Travis—any of the famous Battles which were bloodless, and are more pleasant to remember than the grim times when death was all about.

Remember them. Spin yarns about them with your old buddies.

And we will remember the other battles, which were not bloodless; the fields of war where some of you fought, and some of you bled, and to whose sacrifice all of you offered yourselves freely, whether you ever got there or not.

We welcome you, veterans, for what you are today, and for what you did then. And we hope your memories will be pleasant and your visit here most pleasant.

Pampa's Legion Post, Kerley-Crossman No. 334, One of Largest

HOME ERECTED BY MEMBERS

Mrs. V. E. Brunow Had Honor of Being Commander

Pampa's American Legion post is one of the largest and best known in the State of Texas today not only for its membership but its record of achievements and the interest of its members in the work.

The post has 307 members and is the fourth largest in the Fifth division including the 17th, 17th, and 18th districts. The division posts with a larger membership than the Pampa one are Abilene, Amarillo, and Legion.

The Kerley-Crossman post No. 334 was organized November 19, 1921, and received its charter July 25, 1922. At the time of organizing it had 38 members with Dr. W. Purviance as post commander and Frank Thomas as adjutant.

The post was named in honor of A. B. Crossman and George Kerley, local boys who gave their lives for their country. Their memory, with those of others who died for their country, still lives in the post.

Built Own Home

The post headquarters was erected by the original members, working nights and spare time, under the leadership of Frank Thomas, H. L. Case and Ed Reeser. It has been re-modeled since being erected, but the original members still consider it their building. Instead of one large room, the home now has been divided into two rooms the front a sitting and reception room, and the rear part recreational, with pool, domino, and checker tables.

Local post 334 has the honor of being the first post in Texas to have a lady commander. That honor was bestowed upon Mrs. V. E. von Brunow in 1925. Before that time she was historian of the local post.

Auxiliary Formed

In the last year one of the best Auxiliaries in the division has been organized and is playing no little part in the work of the post. It is the second largest in the state with more than 50 members, all active. Mrs. W. H. Lang is the president.

Volture 935, 40 and 8 order, is one of the most prominent in the state with the recognized first wrecking crew in the state association.

Dr. R. A. Weeb is post commander, being elected to that office March 20 upon the resignation of Lewis O. Cox. The post at present has a membership of 307 and ranks fourth in the state. Past commanders of Kerley-Crossman post include: Dr. W. Purviance, Ed Reeser, Mrs. V. E. von Brunow, Artie Sellar, Lester Sill, and O. Cox.

Drum Corps Good

An exceptionally good drum corps has been formed and will take part in the concerts at the national convention in Texarkana. The post also boasts of having twelve Springfield rifles hanging on the wall, that are the envy of all visiting posts.

On account of the great showing of the local delegation at the 18th district convention in Plainview this spring Pampa was shown the courtesy of being chosen as the meeting place of the 5th division convention Saturday and Sunday. Plans have been completed for the entertainment of the delegates.

Buildings Costing Half Million Are Now Under Way

Store buildings, churches, and school buildings representing a total cost of more than $410,000 are under construction in Pampa now and a $65,000 Christian church building will be started in the near future. New enterprises will move to Pampa to occupy some of the stores, while other space will be occupied by local businesses outgrowing their present locations.

The new Methodist church building, costing nearly $100,000, is practically completed and plans for the opening of this beautiful edifice are being made for August 26. The first pipe organ to be installed in a church in Pampa will be in the new Methodist church. Beautiful Sunday school rooms, dining room and kitchen, and pastor's study are included in the structure.

The other church building under construction is the $100,000 Baptist church started three weeks ago. It is of white stone and brick and when completed will be the largest church building in the city. A large Sunday school building will be near the main structure.

Included in the big stores under construction are the Curtis E. Clem building on North Cuyler street, 50 feet wide by 140 feet long. This building will be occupied by the F. W. Woolworth company and when completed will cost about $17,000.

The J. S. Wynne building adjoining the Clem building on the south and the same size will be occupied by the M. System Grocery company in one half. The other half has not been rented. The second floor will be made for offices.

The W. Bradford building on North Cuyler street, 62 1-2 feet wide and 100 feet long, is nearing completion and will cost about $25,000 when finished. It has not yet been rented.

The J. E. Murfee-L. N. McCullough building joining the Bradford building on the south will be occupied by the G. C. Malone Furniture company.

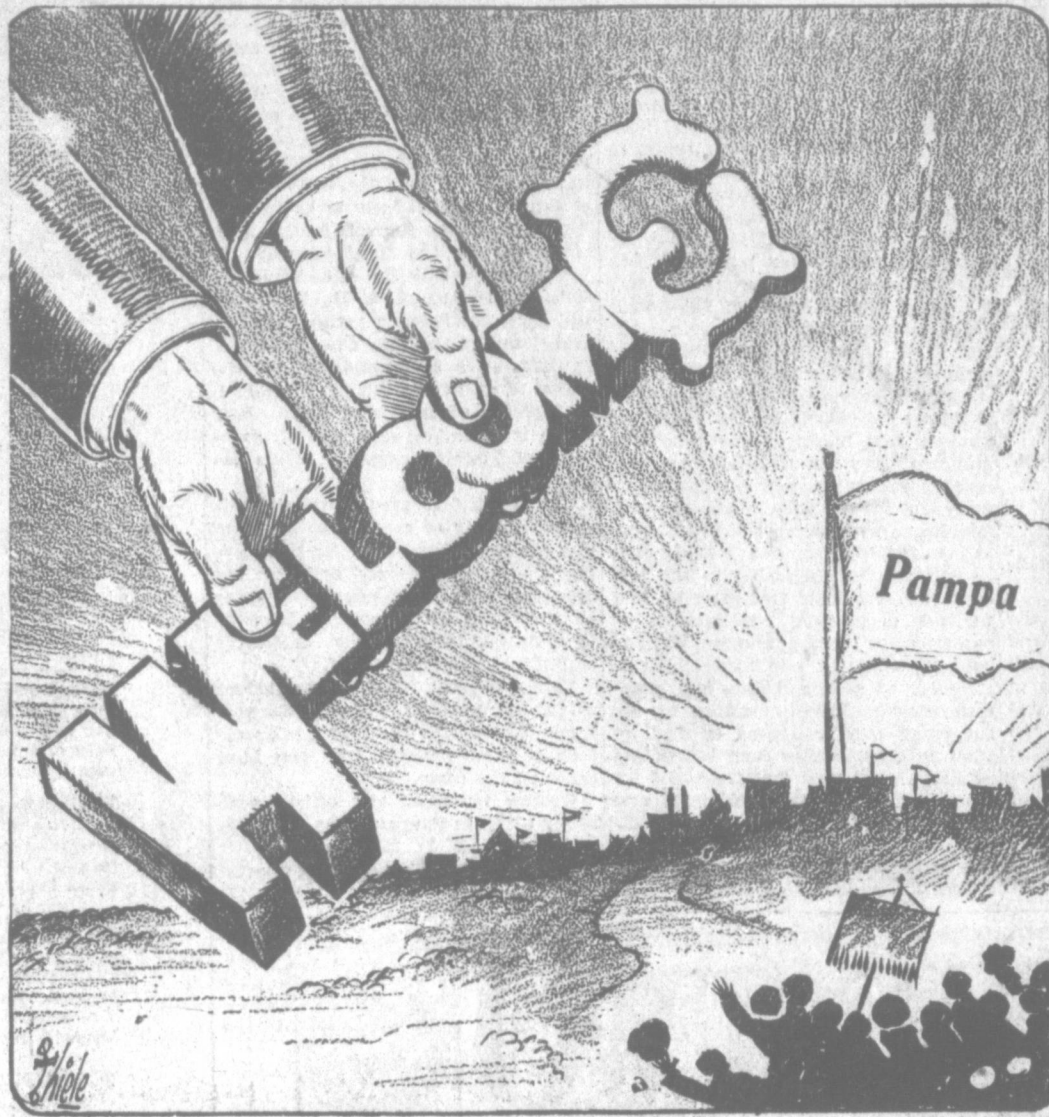

Two eight-room ward school buildings and a gymnasium-auditorium are under construction at a cost of $125,000 to take care of the ever increasing demand for more and better school facilities. These buildings will be occupied sometime in October.

Besides these large structures under construction there are more than 40 residences going up.

PLANNING ARMISTICE DAY

DALLAS, Aug. 10—(P)—Plans for a gala Armistice Day celebration here November 11 already are under way. Efforts will be made to have Dallas a concentration point for all of north Texas for activities in observance of the tenth anniversary of the signing of the armistice. The celebration will be staged November 12 because Armistice Day, November 11, falls on Sunday.

The program will include special exercises at Love Field, a morning parade on the downtown streets, a football game in the afternoon and fireworks at night. All military units of the city will take part in the parade and students of the Junior A. and M. college at Arlington and Terrel Military Academy also will march.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

Acts 15:1-11.

1. And certain men came down from Judea and taught the brethren saying, Except ye be circumcised after the custom of Moses, ye cannot be saved.

2. And when Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and questioning with them, the brethren appointed that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question.

3. They therefore, being brought on their way by the church passed through both Phoenicia and Samaria, declaring the conversion of the Gentiles; and they caused great joy unto all the brethren.

4. And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the church and the apostles and the elders and they rehearsed all things that God had done with them.

5. But there rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees who believed, saying: It is needful to circumcise them, and to charge them to keep the law of Moses.

6. And the apostles and the elders were gathered together to consider of this matter.

7. And when there had been much questioning, Peter rose up, and said unto them, Brethren, ye know that a good while ago God made choice among you that by my mouth the Gentiles should hear the word of the gospel, and believe.

8. And God, who knoweth the heart, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Spirit, even as He did unto us;

9. And He made no distinction between us and them, cleansing their hearts by faith.

10. Now therefore why make ye trial of God, that ye should put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear.

11. But we believe that we shall be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, in like manner as they.

Time:—The Council, A. D. 50. Place:—Jerusalem.

Golden Text:—If therefore the Son shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.—John 8:36.

Introduction

One of the most momentous controversies in the history of the church is considered in this lesson. It was the matter of the relation of the ritual of Moses to the Christian scheme. The Judaizers were the party, especially numerous at Jerusalem, who insisted that the Gentiles could not be saved without also becoming Jews. The first disciples had been Jews, then Christians; the Judaizers thought that this order should be maintained.

The brethren appointed Paul and Barnabas, and certain others of them, should go up to Jerusalem unto the apostle and elders about this question. The delegates were selected from the entire church in Antioch and by the entire membership; it was a representative commission, for its conclusions would affect every family in the church. It was inevitable that Paul and Barnabas, the leaders in the admission of the Gentile Christians, should lead the commission. Of those that went with them we know the name of Titus alone (Gal. 2:3), that noble young man who afterwards became one of Paul's best helpers and the recipient of an Epistle from him. He was taken along as a fine sample of Gentile Christians who had been circumcised. Of the apostles, we know that Peter, James, and John were in Jerusalem at this time, and they probably continued to reside there (Gal. 1:18, 19; 2:9). The elders were heads of families, and other persons of special influence and authority in the church. The Value of Talking Things Over—Differences of opinion speedily lead to great schisms unless the men on

Retired Military Men Are Settling in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 10—(P)—Because of its importance as a military center San Antonio expects, in time, to collect one of the biggest colonies of retired military men in the country.

Although the city has taken its place as one of the outstanding Army centers only in the last few years it has already collected a colony of almost 50 retired officers and their families and more are moving here, or remaining here upon retirement each year. Officers who have spent years in the tropics find the warm climate here as near an approach to the climates which they are accustomed as can be found in this country.

The latest military telephone directory shows that the city now furnished homes for at least one major, general two brigadiers, fifteen colonels, six lieutenant colonels, six majors, five captains, one lieutenant, and a number of warrant officers.

At least 20 rural committees in Floydada county will be entered in the contest for the grand champion community of the county. This contest is one of the new ideas of the 1928 directors and it is believed that more interest will be evidenced in it than any other phase of the fair. Prizes of $75, $50 and $35 are being offered to winners of the three first places in addition to a banner to be given the winner of the first place for three consecutive years. As many as 10,000 persons from

Past Ages Are Near with Magnolia Anti-Knock Gasoline

Ages before the first white man came to America a race of Indians, living in cities composed of many-storied buildings, dwelt in the Great Southwest. The clear, dry climate of New Mexico and Southern Colorado has preserved many examples of their architecture. Something of their art still lives in the work of Zuni, Navajo and Pueblo. Some of their cities, abandoned for centuries, shelter only the mountain lion, the fox and wolf. Their land is now a haven for people who want to relax in mountain air and sunshine where man and nature have contrived unique human contrasts against a background of natural grandeur.

The Magnolia Man will be glad to furnish you with a free map giving latest highway information. With its aid you may visit these prehistoric cities and gain enjoyment from your car. LOVE FOR TWO RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED BERTIE LOU WARD married ROD BAKER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. Lila makes her miserable for the bride until she meets a rich MR. LORRE and marries him. Then she asks Bertie Lou to forgive her.

Trying to keep up socially with wealthy friends plunges the Bakers in debt and Rod becomes depressed. Lila seizes her chance to persuade him to accept a higher salary from Lorre. Shortly after she asks Rod to put some jewelry in the safe during her husband's absence. They disappear and Rod wants to notify the police, but Lila insists that they keep the matter secret, pointing out that suspicion against him might spoil his career. Bertie Lou finds out that he has been seeing Lila secretly and is heartbroken.

She is called home to her sick mother and catches a train without seeing Rod. The separation, added to Lila's plotting, causes a coldness between them. Bertie Lou expects the other to make advances or explanations. Rod goes to the Lorres without her and Bertie Lou goes out with MARCO PALMER to retaliate. One evening Rod finds her waiting a suitcase for a week-end at the Palmer estate, and admits to himself that their love is dead and that he is infatuated with Lila. He is stunned to learn that Lila deceived him about the stolen jewels when a connoisseur admires her pearls at a dinner party.

Confronted, she admits that she gave him an empty case in order to make him dependent on her generosity and to win his love. He repudiates her treachery and disavows to her husband and she sneeringly reminds him that Bertie Lou is at a house party with young Palmer. He drives her and drives madly out to the Palmer estate.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XXXV FOR half a minute Rod failed to grasp the significance of what he heard, or rather the import of hearing Bertie Lou's voice at that time and in that room. He stood where he was, hesitating about breaking in upon her while the maid was present.

himself together. It was in his mind to face Bertie Lou and he even took a few steps toward her door. But he did not reach it before he turned and walked dazedly, staggeringly, away. What was there to say? He could not bear to see her, perhaps to fall down and beg her to deny what his eyes had seen. Rod dared no longer to trust even himself. No one was decent, no one was right. He might make a worm of himself. And Bertie Lou might let him do it, might lie. They might begin living a hell of married life that was without respect, without faith, utterly unhalloved.

FEAR drove Rod out of the house. Fear of the depths of degradation to which he might sink to save himself from accepting the horrible truth of Bertie Lou's unfaithfulness. The temptation to plead for a lie from her, a lie that would admit him to what he would always suspect was a fool's paradise, was too great to be risked. Why he suffered so terribly over what he had discovered Rod did not ask himself. Perhaps he thought, vaguely, that it was the pain one feels upon learning of the falseness of the world. Two women. One whom he had respected as a person who would keep a fair bargain had proved herself a cheat; and one he had loved and believed a really noble character had shown herself to be even worse.

Rod climbed into his taxicab and was driven back to the city in a mood as hopeless as any the human mind can encounter. Everything was gone. His position, his friendship with Cyrus Lorre—though he hardly realized this at the time. It was the devastating destruction of his faith in the two women who had meant all of love and honor to him that reduced him to a feeling of unspeakable disgust and loathing for them.

Strangely, it was Bertie Lou who drew his blackest thoughts. He could have killed her, if he'd had his hands on her throat then, he told himself. Her smooth white throat, her damnable kissable throat! The memory of it was torture to him.

THE driver turned. He thought he'd heard a groan. Well, it might have been. Queer fish, this fare of his. Reeling out of a house like a man who'd seen into hell, and now he sat back there, his head dropped in his hands and swaying to and fro to beat the devil. "I'll tell 'em, I'll be glad to drop him—and how," he told himself.

When they got there he stumbled out of the cab and handed the driver a bill which the latter stuffed into his pocket with a surprised grin after one glance at it. Rod did not ask for his change. He climbed the stairs to his floor like an old man. Bitter, disillusioned, sick. An epithet had attached itself to Bertie Lou in his mind and he repeated it over and over with maddening monotony. "Money-hungry cheater!" Money, money, money. Lila wanted it. Bertie Lou wanted it. Lila wanted love, too. Rod wondered, with a stab of pain through his dulling misery, if Bertie Lou wanted it too—if she loved this Marco Palmer.

But she didn't have to do it that way," Rod muttered aloud. "She could have had her freedom. She could have married young Palmer. . . . Oh, God, Bertie Lou." The cruellest thing that ever happened to Rod happened then. He knew that he loved Bertie Lou. He knew why Lila and her treachery to Cy, her trickery, and her profane offer of love had slipped out of his mind. Bertie Lou was all that mattered to him. She had been all that mattered to him, ever. He forgot the epithet in thinking of her as Marco's wife.

HOW clear the glass in retrospect. What is easier than looking backward? It is like solving other people's troubles; to see where you made yesterday's mistakes. Rod knew what had happened to him—knew that Lila had fascinated him. The old appeal, that had lured him to her before he learned to care for Bertie Lou, had never, perhaps, burned itself completely out. He had hated her, as she said, because she was selfish and scheming.

He faced it frankly, even admitting to himself that Lila's determined pursuit of him might have flattered him. No, that was not so; he honestly had not cold but fresh Marco had ordered the pool filled that night, though it had been emptied for what his parents believed would be the last time for the season just before they went abroad.

He found it easy now to understand why he hadn't wanted an explanation upon her return. He did not spare himself the painful remorse it cost him to admit that it was because of Lila that he hadn't wanted to take up their life where she had broken it off when she left. Lila, Lila again, with her subtle insinuations against Bertie Lou, her play on his natural resentment. Rod sank upon the davenport and buried his face in his hands as he had in the taxi, and the prayer that comes at least once to almost every human being's lips burst from his in an agony of repentance. "Oh God, if I only had it to do over again!"

How tenderly, how dearly, he would cherish Bertie Lou. For a moment he forgot that she had been false, beyond the breaking of her vows—that she had broken their pact, her promise to give him warning, to tell him when another man had entered her life. Rod groaned over it, when it did come back to him, as was inevitable. It was too late now to make amends to her, to pray for forgiveness. He could pray only that his mad obsession, his cursed infatuation for Lila, had not driven Bertie Lou beyond the gates of happiness. There must be a chance for her.

There was nothing left for him to do but make it as easy as possible for her. Clear out, that was it. And even as the thought came to him Bertie Lou was on her way home, wondering if he would still be there or out to breakfast when she got in. If only she could have breakfast with him . . . shut your eyes, Bertie Lou and think of something else!

She was dreadfully hungry. The tray was untouched in her room at the Palmers, she supposed. Unless Marco had ordered it removed when he discovered that she'd left. It was likely. He'd gone on to his own quarters to dress on their way back from the swimming pool. They'd gone for an early dip when the party finally broke up at dawn. Everyone else had gone to bed.

The waiter was cold but fresh. Marco had ordered the pool filled that night, though it had been emptied for what his parents believed would be the last time for the season just before they went abroad. Bertie Lou had enjoyed the few minutes they spent in it after a dive from the springboard. Marco had spoiled the appetite it gave her for breakfast, though, when he suddenly took her in his arms and tried to kiss her.

Connie Mack And The Game of Golf

Rice had about the Silent Man of Baseball, when the word came out that Connie Mack had taken up golf. "If Connie Mack won't talk to a topped mashie shot", suggested Mr. Rice, "nothing will make him talk!"

I do not recall any topped mashie shots, that day in the spring of 1915. But, I do remember that evening, at the Ansley Hotel, where I dined with Connie Mack, and he talked—freely. He told me all about the big question of the hour, in baseball, why he had torn up the great Athletic machine of 1910-14. . . . But that was in confidence. And, as Mr. Kipling says, it was another story. . . . I may add, at this conservative date, that I never had admired McGillicuddy so much before as when I sat there and listened to a plain, unvarnished story by a great man and a great sportman.

It must have been fifteen years ago that Cornelius McGillicuddy took up golf. Mr. McGillicuddy of course is much more familiarly known to the world at large, especially the world of sport, as Connie Mack, the tall manager of the Philadelphia Athletics; now a perennial threat—if only something would fall on the Yanks—but at the time of which I write just finishing a tremendous record for pennants and world championships. Connie Mack, then, had taken up golf, and he was known as the Silent Man of Baseball.

Well, he really was extremely reticent. I had the pleasure of playing golf all day with Mr. McGillicuddy in the early spring of 1915, and I found him a quiet gentleman, studiously inclined toward golf, as toward baseball; thoughtful, and eager to learn.

"Now, how did I manage that?" he would ask, as a sliced drive went whirling off toward the rough. And he would ponder the explanation, and next time he wouldn't slice. He played very well, it seemed to me, especially for a man who had taken the game up recently, in middle life. And I noticed, this particularly—he never offered an alibi or an excuse.

In golf, Connie Mack took the breaks as they came.

He always has done that, in baseball. I know of no better patent of sportsmanship, in any game, or in life.

And I remember a line Grantland

Whisky Gives Senator Curtis Dry Tendencies

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 10.—Senator Charles Curtis, Republican candidate for vice president, is a dry but—

"I always did tell Charlie that whiskey made him," insists Noah Eli Curtis, 81-year-old uncle of the Kansas senator.

"It was this way. Charlie, early in his career, had a law partner who liked to drink hard liquor. He would get drunk in the morning and Charlie would have to do all the work alone at the court house.

"Charlie got his big chance that way."

Uncle Noah, who lives part of the time with a son near Packtown and the rest at the Union Soldiers Home here, is a brother of O. A. Curtis, the nominee's father. He remembers keenly the early years of Curtis' life when "Charlie" came to live at his home.

"During the eight years he lived with us the main thing he did was to ride, and he was a good jockey too," says Uncle Noah. "He started riding racers when he was seven years old and he'd stick like a burr. He went to New Orleans once and was paid $500 for riding a winner. He came home and told us he was through with racing for good. Said he was going to make something of himself."

"I can remember lending Charlie a dollar for an apple basket so he could sell apples to pay for his schooling. He sold papers, too, and later on studied law with the biggest lawyer in Topeka, Heb Case."

"Charlie never would take a crooked case. He used to charge a rich man $500 and let the poor off for nothing. Once I asked him about it and he said he believed in letting the rich pay for the poor."

Uncle Noah has great faith in his nephew.

"I believe Charlie will carry Oklahoma, Georgia, Alabama and the north and northwest," he says. "And New York and the southern states alone won't beat him."

Lumber Industry Shows Decline in July Production

AUSTIN, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Seasonal curtailment is in evidence in the lumber industry in Texas, according to records compiled by Berward Nichols, assistant in charge of index numbers in the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas.

"Both production and shipments fell off," he explained. "Production declined seven and five-tenths per cent and shipments were smaller by fourteen and seven-tenths per cent. Average output of thirty Texas mills reporting to the Southern Pine Association totaled 2,040,000 feet in June, compared to a cut of 2,205,000 feet per mill in May. Shipments decreased from an average of 2,374,000 feet in May to 2,024,000 feet in June."

"Average stocks on June 30 increased but four-tenths per cent over those of a month earlier, or from 5,747,000 feet to 5,771,000 feet, while unfilled orders remained about unchanged at 1,307,000 feet. The exceptionally small increase in stocks, together with the fact that unfilled orders remained unchanged, has materially strengthened the statistical position of the industry."

"Mills in all parts of the Southwest show the same trend as those in Texas, but four-tenths per cent over those of sections of this area report declines in production and shipments during June and a gain of two per cent in unfilled orders."

"Prices for most grades of lumber remained about unchanged but markets generally are firm. Demand is hold-

Canadian Flash

Here is the sprint champion of the world. You're not to blame if you fail to recognize him, for Percy Williams, 19-year-old Canadian schoolboy, was practically unknown before he won the 100 and 200 meter finals in the Olympic Games at Amsterdam. He thus shut out Uncle Sam's sprinters for the first time in 20 years.

ing up, especially in localities where building and construction work is active. The trade is very much encouraged in the improvement of the lumber industry over the past few months."

LARGE FAMILIES

COSSIGNANO, Italy.—Of the 310 families in this village 111 muster more than seven children living and 20 have more than 10. This is all in accordance with traditions, since in the century following Napoleon's census the hamlet more than doubled in population, jumping from 1,040 to 2,115.

Parachute Students See Dummies Drop

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—In an effort to overcome the natural antipathy which anyone has to falling several thousand feet, even with a parachute, Brooks Field instructors have designed a course of instruction calculated to give confidence to embryo flyers when they are called upon to make their first practice jumps.

Seven students, who are to be initiated into the mysteries of parachute jumping are taken into the air at one time and allowed to see parachutes attached to dummies drop from the plane. This gives them confidence by assuring them that the parachutes do open very soon after leaving the plane.

The seven are then equipped with parachutes and taken into the air where all of them go overboard. The student is usually much more willing to make the jump if there are a number of people, as inexperienced as he, jumping at the same time.

League Paper to Criticize Press of Texas Schools

AUSTIN, Aug. 10.—Criticism of the "make-up" style and policies of newspapers edited by the high school students of Texas will be published in the Interscholastic Leaguer, paper issued monthly by the Interscholastic League bureau of the University of Texas, Roy Bedichek, chief of the bureau, has announced.

The papers of all schools enrolled in the Press Conference, a meeting of which is held annually at the University under the auspices of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism fraternity, and the Interscholastic League bureau, are now being graded and criticized by the members of the fraternity, according to DeWitt Reddick, faculty sponsor.

Plans are now being worked out by the fraternity for the next conference, which is to be held in the spring. Invitations are extended to the editors of all high school papers to enroll in the conference.

Radio Highways of Air Will Guide the Army Aviators

AN ANTONIO, Aug. 10—(AP)—Aviators soon will be able to journey to San Antonio on a straight course through the winds, rains, darkness and fog upon a radio highway.

Captain T. L. Clark has announced that one of the army's six radio beams, to be scattered over the country will be installed at the army's new flying school which is to be built near here.

The beam, which travels in straight lines like the beam of a searchlight instead of in broadening circles as does the usual radio wave, can be regulated to any distance from 100 to 2,000 miles. Three parallel beams will be broadcast. If the pilot is on his course he will hear the letter "T", should he swing to one side of his course he will receive the letter "A" and if he deviates on the other side he will hear the letter "N". By keeping in the T beam he can avoid drifting from his course.

TECH JUDGING TEAM TO BROADEN ACTIVITIES

LUBBOCK, Aug. 10—Texas Technological college will be represented by a stock judging team in the International Livestock exposition which will be held in Chicago next fall, according to an announcement made here today by Dean A. H. Leidigh, of the school of agriculture. Arrangements for sending the team into the competition will be the leading college teams of the United States and Canada were completed this week.

This is Tech's first time to enter the International contests. Teams from the college have entered the American Royal, The Kansas State, and the Southwestern livestock judging contests in the past, winning places in each. The Tech team won first in the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth last spring, their second year of competition.

The team will be coached by W. L. Stangel, head of the department of animal husbandry, a former member and later a coach of International winning teams from Texas A. & M., and Prof. E. C. Mowery, a former member of a Texas A. & M. International team.

NEW BUICKS POPULAR

Buick swings into its 25th year of operation with the introduction of the Silver Anniversary Buick, its new car for 1929. Tremendous advances in beauty, style and comfort, as well as a every item affecting performance, combine to make the Silver Anniversary Buick an automobile new and totally different from anything the public has known.

Taking as a nucleus Buick's famous six-cylinder valve-in-head engine, torque tube drive, sealed chassis, cantilever springs, double drop frame and mechanical four-wheel brakes, Buick engineers have refined and improved these units, and created them a motor car of radiant beauty and dashingly style, a car which is easy to operate and comfortable to ride in, and finally, one which is said to outperform, under all conditions, not only its own predecessors but any other car within hundreds of dollars of its price.

Outstanding departures from convention will be found in the new and daring treatment of body lines, the dazzling new colors in lustrous Duco.

and the lavish use of enduring chromium, which serves to differentiate the car sharply, even at first glance from other automobiles of today. Less apparent to the casual eye but no less vital, is the enlarged and improved power plant which provides an unbounded reservoir of energy for any and all needs.

Century Plant Blooms at T. U.

AUSTIN, Aug. 10—Not just once in a coon's age, nor even once in a blue moon, but once in a lifetime—that's the thought that is bound to occur to the person who stands on the campus of the University of Texas and watches the agave, commonly known as the century plant, slowly wither and lose its beauty.

Standing 27 feet tall, with a cluster of more than two dozen creamy-white blossoms which vaguely resemble cauliflower at the very top of a palm like stalk, the century plant excites the awe, admiring curiosity of every passer-by. Adding to the grotesqueness of the strange growth is a fringe of leaves which look like a species of reed-grass or cactus.

The century plant was given to the University in 1908 by Harry Ianda of New Braunfels, who procured it from Mexico. Contrary to the implication of the common name given the plant, the agave blooms only once in twenty-five years. This is the second one to bloom on the University campus, according to H. B. Beck, campus caretaker, the other having blossomed several years ago.

NO REPUBLICAN MONEY FOR ANTI-SMITH MEN

FORT WORTH, Aug. 7—(AP)—Leaders of the "constitutional Democrats" here today declared as "absurd" the charges made in the county convention Saturday that anti-Smith Democrats were receiving money from the Republican party.

They declared the faction is unqualified opposed to Governor Smith because of his wet tendencies and his repudiation of the constitution of the United States. His message to the Houston convention, they charged, was a repudiation of the constitution.

Many Women Are Employed in Texas

HOUSTON, Aug. 10—(AP)—Texas women are beginning to do the work. At any rate that is what Ernest L. Tutt, Houston manager of the U. S. Department of Commerce, says.

Only a few states surpass Texas in the number of women employed, figures in Mr. Tutt's office show. The largest number of the weaker sex are employed in husbandry. Records show 100,000 Texas women engaged in these professions, and only four states had greater numbers. These were: Mississippi, 132,639, Georgia 129,027, South Carolina 126,991, and Alabama 122,755.

In mineral extraction, Texas dropped to seventh place in the number of women employed only 77 following that profession.

That the Lone Star State still is primarily an agricultural state is indicated, Mr. Tutt said, by the small number of women working at the more harmful manufacturing and mechanical trades. Texas ranks twenty-fourth in this respect, with 20,712 women so employed.

On transportation jobs Texas stands sixth with 8,000 members of the slight-er sex following that line. A total of 21,485 were occupied with that trade, giving Texas tenth place.

In public service Texas ranks fifth, 1,104 being employed in that line of endeavor, while in professional service the state of six flags is in seventh place with 35,905. Fifth place also is occupied in the employment of women in domestic and personal service, the number so employed being 86,796. And 29,882 held clerical positions, putting Texas fourteenth in that classification.

Sunday School Lesson--

both sides meet and talk things over fully and frankly. "In this debate of the early church we have seen how high the controversy ran; there was no small dissension and disputing; every man thought he saw the truth and knew it, and sometimes the dust was so vast and thick that we could scarcely tell how the fight was going. In the fact there was full discussion of the question. Let us recognize the place of human thought and human independence in the consideration of Christian problems. We may all speak; no man is to be put down who speaks upon a question sincerely; every man who is not speaking intelligently or sincerely will put himself down. I know of nothing in the record which would justify us in supposing that men were hooted down on whatever side they were speaking."--Joseph Parker.

The First Church Council, vs. 6-11.
"And the apostles and the elders gathered together to consider of this matter." It was the first church council, one of the most important gatherings of the history of Christianity. Small in numbers, it far exceeded in the splendor of its membership any other Christian assembly ever held. Think of it! Paul was there, and Peter and John, and James, Barnabas was present and Titus. It would seem that Luke was in the meeting, Mark was certainly with his uncle Barnabas, and if women were admitted, there would be Mary the mother of Jesus and Mary the mother of John Mark and Mary Magdalene. Possibly Lazarus of Bethany was there, with Mary and Martha. Peter and John would not be the only apostles present. Perhaps Thomas was there, perhaps Philip, perhaps Andrew. It may be that by this time Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea had joined themselves openly to the company of the Nazarenes. How precious would be a photograph of that council and a phonographic record of its words!"

Salvation By Grace, v. 11.
"But we believe that we shall be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, in like manner as they." Why did not Peter say, "We believe that they, the Gentiles, will be saved through Christ's grace, even as we have been?" Because he had already said that in verse 9. Now he goes on to state the universality of Christian freedom, the liberty of grace, as if he should say: "We are making no exception in favor of the Gentiles, we are not admitting them into the church on easy terms while we get in on harder and stricter terms. Gentiles, Jews, Christians, there is one law for all, one salvation for all, the same terms of grace for all. What we claim for the Greeks and Romans we claim also for ourselves." It is just what Peter had asserted on the day of Pentecost: "Neither is there any other name under heaven wherein we must be saved." (Act 4:12).

A Troublesome Problem Solved, vs. 28-29.

"On the conclusion of Peter's strong address there was a thoughtful and impressive silence, which was broken by James. This was not, of course, James the apostle, the brother of John, for he was dead, the first martyr among the Twelve. Nor was it the son of Alphaeus, the other James in the apostolic band. Quite certainly it was James the Lord's brother (Gal. 1:19), to whom Peter had sent word on his release from prison by the angel (Acts 12:17). Christ's brothers had not believed in Him during His lifetime but were won to the Christian faith by His resurrection. This James became the bishop of the church in Jerusalem, and wrote the gospel of common sense, the sagacious Epistle which bears his name."

The decision of the Council was that the Gentiles should not be required to be circumcised, but that four requirements should be laid upon them as they entered the Christian church:

- 1. They should abstain from the use of meat which had been previously offered up in heathen sacrifices.
- 2. They were to abstain from the eating of blood, and, as a consequence, from the use of meat where the animal had been strangled and the blood thus retained, instead of the throat being cut and the blood drained away. Thus was an ancient hygienic measure embedded in the laws of Moses, most healthful in that hot climate and in the lack of clean surroundings in the raising of cattle. Strict Jews hold to this regulation to this day.

The Return Deputation

To make the settlement still more decisive, and to bring the Jerusalem and Antioch churches still closer together, and letter was sent to Antioch not by Paul and Barnabas and the rest of their deputation, but by a committee of two from the Jerusalem church. These were prominent men named Judas and Silas, the latter of whom we are to hear of again. They were to carry the letter and also give its contents by word of mouth. This they did, and as they were themselves prophets, they added many Christian teachings and exhortations, bringing new life and a fine inspiration to the Antioch church.

TARRANT STOCK WILL BE SENT TO FAIRS

FORT WORTH, Aug 10--(P)--Tarrant county cattle and hogs are being prepared for shipment to fairs in the northern circuit for exhibition within the next few weeks, it was announced by M. C. Counts, county agricultural agent.

V. O. Hildreth, owner of a large cattle farm near Aledo, will ship two show herds of shorthorn cattle to Illinois, Ohio and other Mid-West fairs before August 1. The first consignment of his 25 prize animals will leave next week, the second following within five or six days.

The county's second livestock exhibition will be Durco Jersey, Poland China and Hampshire hogs to be shown by George F. Lillard & Sons, consistent prize winners for the past few years; and will be shipped for exhibition also next week.

Lillard has groomed a larger pen of hogs than in any previous year, Counts said. He showed 80 animals last year and is expected to increase the number to 100 this year.

Breeders of Tarrant are expected to provide large herds for the Southern Circuit later in the summer and early in the fall, Counts reported.
