PRICE FIVE CENTS

ROBINSON IS CHOSEN

JURY IS STILL OUT IN TODD DAMAGE SUIT

Took Case Late Last Night on Special Issues

ENTIRE WEEK IS REQUIRED

84th District Court Is Adjourned and Panel Dismissed

Deliberations in the damage suit against the City of Pampa were suspended this afternoon when one of the jurors, charged with contempt of court by Judge Newton F. Willis on complaint of other members of the jury, was ordered confined in jail.

Jurors told Judge Willis in open court that one of their number was incapable of reasoning over the special issues. This juror, H. Phillips, was given until 7:15 o'clock to temperate from unexplained disability, and the jurors will re-convene at that time.

Asked at noon today if they had any statement, members of the jury in the Della Todd damage suit against the City of Pampa replied merely that they were hungry.

No indication has come from the jury room concerning their status in the case, which they took at the end of last night's session. Argument was started in mid-afternoon by Judge Ben Baldwin for the plaintiff. He was followed by William Smith and Chas. C. Cook for the defendant and W. M. Le-wright for the plaintiff. The latter three spoke in the fiery night session.

The suit was begun a week ago. Miss Todd is suing the city for $35,000 damages as the result of a car accident in which the city was charged with negligently failing to mark or fill up a ditch at the intersection of Barnes and Cuyler street.

Eighty-fourth district court adjourned at noon today.

The charge of the court to the jury follows:

"This case will be submitted to you upon special issues and questions which you will answer from the preponderance of the evidence, that is, from the greater degree and weight of the credible testimony before you, without reference to the effect that your answers may have upon the judgment that might be rendered in this case. It is not proper for the jury to discuss which side should win or what judgment should be rendered, but you are only to state the truth of the facts.

You are exclusive judges of the facts proven, the credibility of the witnesses, and the weight to be given to their testimony, but you are required to receive the law from the court as given you in this charge and to govern thereby.

Negligence Defined
"Negligence" as used herein means the failure to use or exercise ordinary care such as an ordinary prudent person would use under the same or similar circumstances.

You are instructed that the proximate cause of an injury as that term is herein used means an efficient cause or that which in natural and continuous sequence unbroken by any new or intervening cause produces the injury and without which it would not have occurred. In order to constitute proximate cause of an injury the act or omission complained of must be of such a nature that an ordinary prudent person might anticipate that some injury might result therefrom.

Question No. 1: Was the city of Pampa negligent in the above described manner?

Pampa Lions to See Charter Given at Miami Tonight

A large number of Pampa Lions will go to Miami tonight to attend the charter presentation to the club in the neighboring town.

The Miami club was formed largely through the efforts of George W. Briggs and Prof. R. B. Fisher, working in behalf of the local club. The Miami organization will begin its existence with a membership of about 27.

The local men will meet at the Chamber of Commerce at 6:30 and leave soon afterward by automobile. G. C. McBride of Borger, Lions district chairman, will present the charter.

Yesterday the local club heard two talks of unusual interest. Judge Newton P. Willis delivered an oration of original composition on the beauties of the Panhandle, and the Rev. James Todd, Jr., a Rotarian, told of his recent trip to the Rotary world convention at Minneapolis.

New Lions introduced and accepted after a thorough grueling are Roger McConnell and Clyde Stuckey.

Guests of the club were the Rev. James Todd, Jr., R. B. Thompson, E. Bass Clay, Judge Newton P. Willis, and Roy Harris of Pampa, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brabham of Lubbock and H. B. Kuhlman of Shamrock. Mr. Kuhlman is a member of the Shamrock Lions club.

Road Service Is Inaugurated Here

Tourists and local persons who contemplate taking a trip this summer can now get full road information and road maps at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. George Briggs, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said this morning.

The maps are furnished by the American Automobile association and are issued in series of state, sectional, and national, he said. A large rack was made and installed yesterday at the auditorium, and the maps are conveniently filed.

Local persons who expect to make trips can get information on the condition of the roads if they will notify the Chamber of Commerce three or four days before leaving, Briggs said.

Tourists are already taking advantage of this service, he said, and additional maps and information are being received daily.

Dry Planks and Prohibition Raids Are Simultaneous

NEW YORK, June 29—(P)—The Broadway theatre district was thrown into a furor early today when more than 100 federal prohibition agents raided fifteen of the most popular night clubs.

More than 75 arrests were made among owners and employees of the establishments and agents said they had seized a quantity of liquor.

The resorts were well filled with merry-makers as the agents, operating in squads of six and more, descended almost simultaneously upon them. Returns from the Democratic convention at Houston were being received at many of the clubs and the raids occurred almost at the same moment that Governor Alfred E. Smith was nominated.

Guests were ordered to leave by the agents who cautioned them to pay their checks before departure.

TENNESSEE BANK CLOSES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 29—(P)—The Liberty Savings bank and Trust company of Memphis closed its doors yesterday and was turned over to the state banking department. The action followed a slow run on the bank during the day that drained $200,000 from its vaults.

It had approximately $3,000,000 deposits and $2,700,000 in loans. Phil M. Canale, attorney of the bank, said "frozen" assets forced the closing.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Boston and small son visited Mrs. Boston's father in Clarendon Thursday.

Each of the men is resting easily today and, barring unexpected complications, will recover.

The burning well, in section 1 block 1, A. C. H. & B. survey, will be extinguished by Tex Thornton, famous well shooter. Workmen last night were making preparations for Thornton, who assumed charge today.

Smith Reiterates Belief in Changes on Dry Amendment

ALBANY, N. Y., June 29—(P)—Governor Alfred E. Smith sent an acceptance telegram to the Democratic national convention today in which he reiterated his belief that there should be fundamental changes in the present provision for national prohibition.

He said in the telegram, which was addressed to Senator Robinson, that common honesty compels admission that corruption of law enforcement officials, bootlegging and lawlessness are prevalent throughout the country.

"While I fully appreciate," he said after again stating his stand on prohibition, "that these changes can only be made by the people themselves through their elected legislative representatives, I feel it to be the duty of the chosen leader of the people to point the way, which in his opinion leads to a sane, sensible solution of a condition of which I am convinced is entirely unsatisfactory to the great mass of our people."

STATE EMPLOYE DIES

HARMONY HELD MOST VITAL IN PARTY RANKS

Senator Reed Pledges Support Democratic Nominee

PLATFORM ONLY, BIG OBSTACLE

Moody Declines to Take Minority Report to the Floor

BY BYRON PRICE

(Associated Press Staff Writer)
HOUSTON, June 29—(P)—The Democratic nominee for president is Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York.

The party standard was placed in his hands by the Democratic national convention late last night, a solitary ballot sweeping him far beyond the two thirds majority needed to nominate.

In contrast to the bitter animosities that surrounded Smith's unsuccessful bid for the presidential nomination four years ago in Madison Square Garden, impressive gestures of harmony and conciliation preceded and followed his selection last night as leader of his party. Just before the ballot was taken a party platform, contrary to the usual case, was adopted without a fight in open convention. After the nomination had become a fact, his most active rival for the honor, Senator Reed of Missouri, went to the convention hall and told the delegates that no one would be more loyal than he to the newly chosen party nominee.

Big Issue Fades

The prohibition issues, which had been intertwined with the Smith and anti-Smith tug of war from the beginning disappeared from the convention picture almost as if by magic just before the nomination was made. After many hours of debate in committee and subcommittee, a plank was found that satisfied the most prominent of Smith and anti-Smith leaders alike. Composed of but two sentences, it declares the Republicans have not endorsed the prohibition law, and pledges the Democratic nominee to make an honest effort for enforcement of that and all other statutes.

Five Opposing States

In the final tabulation of the vote by which the New Yorker was chosen, only five states appear as having failed to give the leader at least a part of their support, and one of them was Reed's own state of Missouri, which was blocked by convention rules when it sought to turn the bandwagon movement to Smith into a nomination by acclamation. The others were Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, and Texas—representing the remnants of what the anti-Smith leaders had once hoped to build into an irresistible bonedry and anti-Tamany phalanx against the nomination of the New York governor.

Many Votes Switched

The final totals of the official ballot, revised to show switches to Smith after his nomination became inevitable, tells impressively the margin of his victory.

Smith 849 2-3.
Senator George of Georgia, 52 1-2.
Senator Reed of Missouri, 52.
Representative Hull of Tennessee, 50 5-6.

Jesse Jones of Texas, 43.
Chief Justice Watts of South Carolina, 18.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, 8 1-2.
Evans, Woolen of Indiana, 7.
Governor Donahay of Ohio, 5.
Representative Ayres of Kansas, 3.
Former Senator Pomerene of Ohio, 3.

Former Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, 2.
Huston Thompson of Colorado, 2.
Governor Bilbo of Mississippi, 1.

Choice of Arkansan Almost as Powerful As for Gov. Smith

By BYRON PRICE

Associated Press Staff Writer

SAM HOUSTON HALL, Houston, June 29—(AP)—The Democracy presents to the nation: For president Alfred E. Smith of New York, for vice-president Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas.

The ticket was formally placed on the political roster of 1928 today when the party's national convention, at its concluding session, overwhelmingly named the Arkansan as running mate of the New Yorker to whom it had entrusted the party standard but a few hours earlier.

The nomination of Senator Robinson was like that of Smith, a smashing, first ballot triumph over a scattered field of rivals. For the past twenty-four hours there had been little doubt of his victory, and at the outset of today's proceedings he left his post as presiding officer of the convention and retired to his hotel while his nomination was being consummated.

SAM HOUSTON HALL, Houston, June 29—(P)—The twenty-fifth Democratic national convention adjourned sine die at 1:47 p. m., today after a session lasting four days.

Those who first proposed the Arkansas senator and Democratic senate floor leader to balance off the Smith ticket argued that he would strengthen the party in both South and West, and that argument went like wildfire. It was in the South that opposition to the nomination of Smith centered until the very end, and it is to the West that both Republicans and Democrats are looking for the answer to their questions about the farm relief issue.

A big voiced, forceful campaigner, Robinson glories in the combat of political stump speaking. He is an active figure in Senate debate, where he occupies the same position of titular leadership on the Democratic side that Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican vice-presidential nominee, has among Republican senators. Thus two men who have matched wits and strategy across the party aisle and have remained good personal friends throughout, are to try conclusions in another arena, with the presiding officer's chair in the Senate chamber at stake.

Robinson is a dry, and in his speech as permanent chairman of the convention he warned his party against listening to pleas for a modification plank in the platform. In the same speech he started a tremendous Smith demonstration by quoting Jefferson and the constitution in support of religious equality. He supported the McNary-Haugen bill in the last session of Congress, and voted to pass it over President Coolidge's veto.

So overwhelming was the landslide to Robinson in the voting today that when his column was added at the end of the first ballot it totaled more than 900 of the 1100 in the whole convention. Immediately his two nearest rivals, Senator Barkley of Kentucky with 77 votes and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming with 33, withdrew their names and asked that the votes given them be credited to Robinson. Other changes to the Arkansas Senator came in so rapidly that the tally clerks could not keep track of them, and in the end it amounted virtually to a nomination by acclamation.

Studebaker, it was announced, will acquire a substantial interest in the new company.

SELECTION OF AIRPORT SITES is presenting unusual problems in many cities, but the absolute certainty is that delay will only aggravate the matter.

Proximity to the business section is desirable, though not altogether essential. An aviator likes to be near his plane, but paved roads shorten distances remarkably from the standpoint of time.

While planes eventually will stop in much shorter distances than now, the passing of years will bring larger and larger planes, and more of them. Large, well located tracts have a steadily increasing value which the cities are going to have to pay.

The day seems not very close when privately owned fields will be remunerative. Planes are too scarce in proportion to automobiles, and their cruising ranges are larger in proportion.

But Amarillo is not alone in needing immediate aviation facilities. Every town in the Panhandle ought to set aside space for an airport just as they do, or ought to do, for city parks.

CAPITOL News

By RODNEY DUTCHER

HOUSTON—Down here in the land of the Jim Crow car one is apt to forget that those states where the vote is not denied him is likely to determine the result of this year's presidential election.

The Republicans, from year to year, have never lost sight of that fact, and have seen to it that the lowly black brethren always received certain nourishing crumbs from the groaning board of patronage.

The Democrats don't overlook the fact, either. But whereas the northern democracy is sometimes inclined to take the Republican attitude, as shown in Tammany's control of the Harlem black belt, the southern democracy would rather lose with only white votes than win with colored help.

The question is hardly ever discussed in the open, except occasionally by a negro political leader who seeks to remind the other politicians of the political importance of his race. There seems to be a sort of gentleman's agreement, the effect of which is that Democrats don't mention the somewhat scandalous method by which patronage and convention delegates are manipulated in the south by the party in power and the Republicans in turn refrain from making nasty remarks about the disenfranchisement of the negro wherever necessary below the Mason-Dixon line.

But when Perry Howard of Mississippi boasted that he represented a group which held the balance of power in about ten states, he wasn't talking much bigger than the facts permitted. The group of delegates of whom Howard is representative not only nearly always controls the Republican nomination but the racial group of which he is a member is also credited, and with the apparently good reason, with turning tides in November.

There are large blocks of negro votes in New York, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland and other states. Except in New York, they generally vote Republican, recalling the Civil War and, believing that the G. O. P. is a little more friendly toward them than the Democrats.

Politicians in some of the larger cities consider their negro votes their most important nest-eggs. Big Bill Thompson, for instance, in Chicago. The negroes in a given community nearly always vote as a group. One is advised, however, that if Lowden had been nominated this year, the Republicans would have lost the votes of some 12,000 Pullman porters who work for him and as many more votes as the porters could have influenced.

While the negroes are generally delivered by their political leaders and, as remarked, are overwhelmingly Republican, one or two factors are at work which may cause some sort of a split among them this year.

They have nothing against Smith or Tammany Hall, which is at least one Democratic machine that has played with them. On the other hand, they may prove fully appreciative of Hoover's order abolishing race segregation in the Census Bureau at Washington. One recalls Senator Cole Blease's absurd assurance some time back that both Hoover and Smith planned to put a negro in the cabinet if elected.

But most political observers have put more stress on what the whites in the border states are going to do, now that the racial issue has been raised more or less prominently by that anti-segregation order and the likelihood that Congress will have a negro Republican member from Chicago next session. Although some Republicans have expressed hope of breaking into Harlem and others have said that the Hoover candidacy would appeal to other northern negroes, it is answered that nobody is going to rob Smith of New York and that the other northern negroes always vote Republican anyway.

When they picked Houston for the convention they evidently didn't think of static, though that little phenomena mixes well with the other convention noises.

It is our prediction that Al is going to need more protection from his friends than from anything else.

Even old shoes of the great are valuable. If you expect to be a celebrity, don't wear the soles out too much.

Its immaterial, but we wonder if Cal's ten-gallon hat entirely obscures that Coolidge nose.

The ultimate in democracy will come when a man will arrest himself for law violations. Then we will need few laws. If and when.

BARBS (By N.E.A. Service Inc.)

An Italian eats 400 miles of spaghetti annually, according to statistics. We hope the people who promote the dance marathons and pie eating contests don't read that.

People who think the weather is warm should wait until the delegates who heard Heflin speak return from the Democratic convention.

Turkish beggars, scorning the small sum they receive, are demanding more money. Why don't they copy the American methods, rent offices and buy a sucker list?

If Al is nominated and the Democrats want a good campaign slogan, we are able to offer only: 'S'ip Slightly With Smith'.

A driver who neglects precautions at a railway crossing and is struck by a train is not entitled to recover, according to recent decisions. Not only not entitled but not likely.

TWINKLES

The good old A. P. rattled off tons of copy about what was happening at Houston, but you have only to pick up an Eastern paper to learn a lot that wasn't happening.

Pity the poor editor—if he turns on the fan it blows his papers away and if he doesn't the flies drive him hay wire. The only time we hope for a warm summer is in winter.

It's getting to where a gunman is apt to be a thousand miles away before his victim arrives at the morgue.

The "Demos" Not the Only Ones With a "Wet-Dry" Issue

OUT OUR WAY

by Williams

Where is it? "The question, "Where is it?" is still in evidence concerning the attempts of both strangers and local citizens to locate places in Sweetwater". Sweetwater Reporter.

Sweetwater has a problem similar in many ways to Pampa's. Her streets angle into railroads, across which the names change, bringing about endless confusion. One may live on a street in the north part of town and see a fire across the tracks on the same street, but in reality the fire call will be for a thoroughfare of a different name. It is so in Pampa, an example of which is that extreme West Foster does not go by that name, but by Rhem street, if we recall correctly.

Care should be used in selecting names. Pampa has Gray and Grace, both of which sound alike over the telephone. The chief purpose of naming a street is to enable people to find points upon it. It should be logical, therefore, to use a definite system of names and numbers. Naming of Pampa's streets according to a definite plan should be no more confusing than let the plan remain in abeyance with interest in the commission's decision.

Athletics Battered By Champions in Astounding Way

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
A dozen games ahead of the pursuing fleet, the Yankees destroyer steams along confidently and serenely toward another American league pennant.

Every rival club in the circuit bears the scars of battle with the defending champions but none has been more badly battered than Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, who in previous predictions figured to be the only club capable of giving Babe Ruth and company so much as a rim for their money.

With other opponents the Athletics have fared none so badly. Pitted against the champions it has been another story—a tale bitter to the ears of Connie Mack who sees his pet dream of leading another pennant winner before he retires apparently doomed to fall short of realization at least for another year.

For the fifteenth time this year the two clubs clashed at Shibe park Thursday and for the eleventh time the ultimate victory rested with the Yankees, and as usual, George Herinck Ruth was the particular sinner in the circuit for Mack's pitchers. The Babe took occasion to smack out his 25th and 30th home runs of the season as well as a mere single. Rube Walberg was the victim of a vicious eight-hit barrage that rattled the champions five runs in the first two innings. George Eberhart, who relieved him, struck out ten men but was touched for seven hits that enabled the Yankees to make the final score 10 to 7.

Sam Gray's effective pitching was the high spot of the St. Louis Browns' 3 to 3 victory over Detroit.

After losing two to the Boston Red Sox on Wednesday, Washington did a little better Thursday, breaking even in another twin bill. Sam Jones pitched the Senators to victory, 4 to 3, in the opener but the Red Sox pulled the nightcap a sluggish affair, 7 to 7.

Bill Cissell tripled in the ninth inning to score Alex Metzler with the run that enabled the Chicago White Sox to triumph over Cleveland, 4 to 2. The St. Louis Cardinals cling fast to their lead and a half-game lead in the National league race by taking the Pittsburgh Pirates into camp, 4 to 3, as Willie Sperdy hanging up his sixth successive victory.

Joe Genewich outpitched Ray Heiser and Claude Wiloughby as the New York Giants made it five in a row over the Phils, 2 to 1, in a bitter pitcher's battle in which each team made but four hits.

Emanuel Loses to Champion in Slow Non-Title Bout

NEW YORK, June 28.—(AP)—Armand Emanuel brooded young batter from the west coast, today smarted under his first defeat in two years but took consolation out of the fact that it was no less than a champion that gave it to him.

Making his second best appearance since Emanuel dropped the decision to Tommy Loughran, king of the light heavyweight, in a slow-tempered bout at Madison Square Garden last night.

Three drinks of water made the bout a somewhat affair. Originally Loughran had been scheduled to meet Emanuel in a defense of his title but the referee considered suffered an injury in training and was forced to call off the bout. Loughran then agreed to take on Emanuel, but stipulated that the San Francisco barrier must come in over the light heavyweight limit. The three classes of water consumed just before Emanuel watched in yesterday enabled him to scale a quarter of a pound over the close limit of 175 pounds.

This caution on Tommy's part plus a rather indifferent showing during the bout itself led some of the 5,000 customers to circle him throughout the bout and remain to see when the decision was announced.

Get Up Against Three Veterans in Minneapolis in MINNEAPOLIS, June 28.—(AP)—Three veteran champions and a representative of the west were paired in the semifinal round of the women's tennis national golf tournament on the Minnesota course today. Mrs. M. H. Burns, born of Kansas City, national titleholder and defending champion, was paired with Mrs. Marion Purdie of New Orleans, southern champion. The other brought together Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, holder of the north and south crown, and Patricia Stephenson of Minneapolis.

Wins National Open Title

With a ten-foot putt on the last green, Johnny Farrell, young New York professional, won the national open golf championship by a one-stroke margin over Bobby Jones in a play-off round for the title. Jones and Farrell tied with a 284 each in 72 holes and in the playoff Farrell turned in a 143 to 144 for Jones. The title has an estimated value of more than $50,000 a year to a professional. In addition to the national title, Farrell won a $1500 prize for being the best dressed golfer in the tournament.

Only Four Players Left in Tournament

LAKONDA CLUB, Des Moines, Iowa, June 29.—(AP)—Rising from the waves of a torrential rain that swept the course yesterday, four golfers out of some 200 who started were the only survivors to contest the semi-finals today for the trans-Mississippi golf championship.

Two of the favorites were brought together in the 36-hole match. They were Jimmie Manion, St. Louis, former titleholder, and Arthur Bartlett of Ottumwa, runner-up three years ago. The others were the national left hand golf champion, Rudy Jauran of Minneapolis and B. O. Winter of St. Louis.

Today Is Last of Texas League Half Season

(By The Associated Press)
The first half of the Texas league season ends Friday with Houston sitting solidly in first place and other clubs already making preparations to break into the championship picture during the second half.

If the fierce fights which marked nearly all this Thursday are indications of what may be expected, the conflict during the final lap of the pennant chase will be much harder than the first.

Wichita Falls vented its feeling by hammering two Houston hurlers for fourteen hits, including a homer by Roetz, and a 10 to 1 victory that saw the Spudders playing like champions and the Buffs like amateurs.

Beaumont, occupant of the cellar, trounced Fort Worth, runner-up to Houston, 5 to 4, in the first game of a doubleheader, and fought the Panthers to a 6 to 6 tie in the second that was halted after eight innings by darkness.

Shreveport defeated San Antonio, a first division team, 5 to 4, in the twelve inning game of a doubleheader, but lost the second, 3 to 5. The latter tilt was enlivened by a pop bottle shower started by fans after Riviere, coaching at third base, had been ordered from the game by the Umpire Barr.

Dallas and Waco also split a doubleheader with the Cubs taking the first, 9 to 8, in twelve innings, and the Steers copping the second, called after five innings on account of darkness, 5 to 1.

Texas League
Shreveport 5-3, San Antonio 4-5. (first game 11 innings.)
Fort Worth 4-6, Beaumont 5-6. (second game called in 8th. darkness.)
Dallas 8-5, Waco 9-1. (five innings, called about darkness.)
Wichita Falls 10, Houston 1.

160,000 ACRES OF COTTON

WHAT OF IT? ... Supposing Dunlop does require all the cotton from 160,000 acres. What does that mean to my pocketbook?

Just this. Dunlop has grown great because Dunlops save money. Over 26,000,000 Dunlops are now in use—each one saving money for its owner.

Last year, Dunlop required the cotton from 160,000 acres, and all of this cotton was spun into cable-twist cord at Dunlop's own cotton mills.

Dunlops are better tires—with greater safety, greater tread mileage, and greater carcass strength. Otherwise they couldn't have justified their slightly higher initial cost.

"DUNLOP CITY"

Throughout the world, the products Dunlop Properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

Yes.... the 26 million Dunlops now in use are your guarantee that Dunlop must build only the best.

Save money—equip with Dunlops!

Summer Is Baby's Season

WASHINGTON (AP)—Summer, once Baby's hardest period, has been converted by science into the most beneficial of the seasons.

This has been brought about through the long study by scientific investigation of the diseases and requirements of infancy and the gradual spread of the knowledge thus gained.

As a result of this work, many old ideas which made life difficult for the baby during the hot weather have been largely discarded and many new ideas have gained circulation which minimize these difficulties and give him an opportunity to thrive on the season's natural advantages of abundant sunlight and fresh air.

It has demonstrated, among other things, that almost all mothers can nurse their babies at least for a time. If proper effort is made, and physicians now rarely advise artificial feeding except for grave medical reasons. "Although breast-feeding is important for the baby in all seasons," Public Health Service officials have observed, "every mother should realize that it is doubly important in the summer. Many of the characteristics of the season—heat, flies, dust, etc.—tend to make artificial feeding a nightmare for the conscientious mother at that time."

During the hot season, the investigators have learned, it is usually wise to reduce the amount of food given to babies, and even older children who are taking a more or less mixed diet should be carefully guarded against overeating. At the same time, they advise, the infant and little child should be given plenty of cool boiled water to drink and not bundled in heavy clothing with the temperature rising.

Regular habits of feeding, bathing, sleeping and airing also are held to be important, with plenty of rest and sleep and the daily bath supplemented by an occasional refreshing sponge.

"In moderate climates," they say, "the baby can virtually live in the open air in summer. Summer brings a far richer supply of ultraviolet light than any other season, and this is vital to the healthy growth of the bones as well as other parts of the body."

Mrs. W. B. Buchanan returned yesterday from Electra, where she visited her sister.

W. T. Hayter arrived here this morning. He has recently returned from Megargel, where the Hayter family held a reunion.

Modes of the Moment

PARIS (AP)—The Cote d'Azur is having some surprises in the matter of bathing suits. Three rows of cord trim the left shoulder of a navy jersey costume by Chantal. The flowered cretonne skirt, open at both sides, has a cherry red sash fastened at the left with a large button. When slipped off before entering the water, it reveals slim tights.

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service

by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

THIS HAS HAPPENED VIRGINIA BREWSTER is in love with an artist, NATHANIEL DEAN, but she is tricked into promising to marry FREDERICK DEAN in one year if she fails to earn $100,000. That he alleges her father cheated him out of $100,000 had lost his fortune before his death and VIRGINIA is left destitute.

She pawns some of her jewelry and OLIVER CUTLER promises to invest the money for her. She seeks work without success. She discovers that she is being chaperoned and suspects that DEAN has bribed the agencies not to help her.

OLIVER gains her confidence and shows her attentions which NIEL resents, but that she does not like the familiarity with which his model, CHELL, treats him.

VIRGINIA is lucky enough to obtain a position which she likes. In the early autumn she is engaged when advised by CUTLER's wife with trying to alienate his affections.

She appeals to OLIVER to explain, and demands an accounting of her investments. Then he confesses that he has not made a penny for her, but that he will give her the money if she will go away with him. She denounces his knavery and leaves his office.

Her company offers to send her on a six-weeks' cruise as ship hostess, but before giving her answer she goes to see NIEL. His model greets her at the studio with such an air of proprietorship that VIRGINIA is angered.

Meanwhile, DEAN has written NIEL of Mrs. CUTLER's charges and when he asks for an explanation, VIRGINIA lets him think that her love for him is cooling.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLI

VIRGINIA could see Nathaniel's point of view easily enough, but it did not suit her purpose to admit that she could. Had it not been the source of her greatest fear? The fear that Frederick Dean would communicate with him as he had with Jeanie Cutter?

And didn't she realize that any lover, no matter how trustful, would be sunk in suspicion when he learned of his sweetheart's meetings with another man under the conditions that she had been meeting Oliver?

"I suppose it did look bad," she said haughtily; "but I think you might have found out why I did it before jumping to conclusions."

That hurt him, she could see, but she went on mercilessly. "You'd have tried to stop it if I'd told you; you know you would. I didn't want to quarrel with you."

"I can't see why you had to meet him after office hours to transact business," Nathaniel returned stubbornly.

"How could I meet him during office hours? You know I am not at liberty to leave my work whenever I like."

"Because Mr. Dean had written Mrs. Cutter. She took the stand that I was trying to lure Oliver away from her. We had to settle everything without delay."

"Then you're through with him?" he pressed eagerly.

Virginia hesitated. "Oh, I don't know," she said thoughtfully. "Perhaps we can manage by seeing each other at noon. That is if Jeanie doesn't object."

Nathaniel took note of the fact that she utterly disregarded his objections. He felt he counted very little with her. And while he might storm against her association with Oliver he found no words to tax her with her seeming indifference to himself. It was a deep wound, one that only her voluntary-offered affection could heal. Nathaniel could not beg for love, knowing that it was not within anyone's power to bestow it upon request.

A few months ago he would not have believed that Virginia could change so, but his mind was too sound to ignore facts. An ostrich might stick its head in the sand and blithely deny the facts.

Virginia had not kept her promise given shortly after her father's death to set their wedding date. He had thought they would be married within a month or two at the most. Then had come her surprising demand for the right to self-expression, to be followed by weeks of what he now believed was reluctance to become his wife.

And because he was, as Chipp said, a poor pipsqueak as far as money was concerned, Virginia had played along safe, waiting to make certain that love had fled before she finally quit him.

For a moment Nathaniel despaired.

But someone has said that the dividing line between love and hate is a very fine one. Nathaniel discovered, to his dismay, that the two seemed to have no division at all in his heart, because he knew himself to be not one whit less in love with this girl now than ever.

It was love that tortured. There was no longer any happiness in it, because it hurt his pride. But he could not help it.

In the weeks that followed, before the sailing date of the Agena, Virginia suffered the belief that she had accomplished her purpose. Nathaniel seemed not to care any more.

Well, that was what she had wanted . . . victory for Frederick Dean seemed assured. He emphasized it with a constant stream of reminders. Flowers, theater tickets, books, lovely things to wear, even jewels. Virginia accepted nothing.

She would have given up in despair but for one ray of hope that remained to her.

The name she had heard on Stacy Blaine's lips—the name of a man people called "Oddly"—nagged at an elusive memory until Virginia was driven nearly frantic to recall where she had first heard it, and why it impressed her.

It was one night when she lay awake, telling herself that success, if it came to her now, could only be bitter because Niel's revenge would be beyond recall, when the name of O. D. D. Leigh sprang suddenly into her mental vision from a written page.

Her father's diary!

Since his death she had not dared the heartbreak of reading it as he had once told her he wished her to do when he was no longer with her.

Parts of it he had read to her; other parts he had asked her to read to him. These pages generally concerned her mother. She could picture her father in a chair drawn up to the fire in the library drinking in the beauty of her mother's portrait that hung over the mantel, while Virginia read, and learned of a great love.

At other times he had asked her to read excerpts from his record of the years he had spent in wandering after his wife's death.

It all came back to Virginia vividly, once her memory was started afloat. Her father had known Leigh. Reckless, adventurous daredevil Leigh. "Oddly" he had called him.

Virginia sprang out of bed and turned on a light. In a moment she was back, her father's diary in her hands, hastily turning the pages.

"There it was! In India. . . . met a fine fellow . . . likes good fight . . . doesn't know what fear is . . . owe him my life . . . tiger hunting . . . sent me spinning out of the bear's path and put bullet into its brain as neatly as he takes his liquor . . . going to the West Indies to settle down . . . sugar raising . . . sounds a bit tame for old Oddly but he says there's a real scrap to be had with the sugar people . . . want to give him a leg up . . . bad luck with money."

A few pages farther on Virginia found more about Leigh. . . . had to use a lot of persuasion . . . could only get him to take $25,000 and that on condition that I'd be part owner of his sugar lands. He sails tomorrow . . . good luck, old man."

And after that, much later. . . . Leigh's bad luck hangs on, poor devil . . . had a letter from him . . . still bucking the trust . . . wants to know if he should sell out . . . not for my sake, old man . . . I'll see you through. Well, I wouldn't spoil your fight to get out a hundred times the amount I'm in it."

Virginia put down the book. "Good for you, Dad," she said softly. "We don't quit, do we?"

It seemed to her that her father had spoken to her through his diary. "Perhaps he knew I'd need a pat on the back some day," she said to herself.

She read through to the end. Now and then there was mention of Leigh. Nothing new. The big sugar people still after his Haiti plantations. Leigh still holding out. . . . "It doesn't matter whether he wins or loses, it's the fun he gets out of a fight that keeps him at it. . . . her father had written near the end.

"Haiti," Virginia whispered. "Haiti. That's one of the islands on the Agena's cruise! I wonder if 'Old Oddly' is still there!"

From that thought grew the idea of getting help from the man her father once had aided. "If he's able to, he will do it," she assured herself.

"Still holding out!" That line in the diary impressed her. There must be something to hold out for, she reasoned hopefully.

The morning after her perusal of the diary she telephoned to Mr. Gardiner to ask if there was any record of a business transaction between her father and a man named O. D. D. Leigh.

She surmised that "Oddly" Leigh would insist upon repaying the loan her father had made in gratitude when he sold the plantations. The diary had closed some few weeks previous to her father's death. Perhaps the sale had been made in that time.

Virginia did not believe so but she wanted to find out if possible. She remembered that Mr. Gardiner had spoken of the money her father had obtained on the estate at Glen Cove. He had not mentioned a sum of $25,000, as he might have done if it had come to the estate so recently.

Besides, if her father had received it, Virginia thought, it would have gone to Frederick Dean; and he had not acknowledged receiving any part of the money he claimed her father had cheated him of.

Mr. Gardiner replied by letter after looking into the matter and informed Virginia that there was no record of the Brewster estate containing the name of Leigh. Virginia breathed a sigh of thankfulness. She regretted, however, that Stacy was away on his ship. She wanted to ask for more information concerning "Oddly" Leigh, particularly regarding the bad news that Stacy had spoken of in connection with him.

She had no idea in which part of Haiti his plantations were located, or how to reach him by mail. Stacy had said that he was a well-known character, however, so she set herself to making inquiries at every likely source of information.

Among the few men on the Capella liners whom she knew there was one who gave her the information she wanted not long before the Agena sailed. Leigh owned a godly sized plantation just outside of Port au Prince, she learned. "You can drive out in one of those coaches, as they call their horse cabs. It's a great sight if you go on market day. An endless chain of natives in and out of the city. You'll find Mr. Leigh a great fellow, too."

Tiny Seaplane Is Used in Flight Around World

NEW YORK, June 29.—(P)—In an attempt to break the record for the fastest trip around the world, John Henry Mears, former title holder, and Captain C. B. D. Collyer took off from the battery in a seaplane at 5 o'clock this morning to overtake the White Star liner Olympic which sailed at midnight.

Mears said he hoped to circle the earth in 23 days. For part of the trip he will use a Fairchild folding-wing monoplane which was shipped on the Olympic and which will be piloted by Collyer.

The present record is 28 days, 14 hours, 36 minutes and 5 seconds made in 1925 by Edward Evans, Detroit sportsman, and Linton Wells, newspaper man. They bettered by 7 days Mears' former mark made in 1913.

Mears declared the object of his trip was not as much to demonstrate the speed and safety of travel when the airplane is coordinated with the steamship. By taking off in the seaplane they saved almost five hours over the Olympic which they hoped to overtake 100 miles at sea.

This schedule called for Mears and Collyer to take off in their plane at Cherbourg for Paris, then to Berlin to Moscow, then across Siberia stopping at Kourgan, Kraucujars, an Chipa, then to Mukden, China, to Tokyo where they will again take a steamship for the trip across the Pacific.

Prior to their departure the men were handed two tiny envelopes which contained two new shiny dimes with card reading, "with the compliments of John D. Rockefeller." A mascot, "Tall Wind," a white Seelingham dog, will be carried along on the trip. It had been planned to take the dog along on the seaplane but the dog was placed on the Olympic before she sailed. The seaplane was piloted by Captain Harry Rogers and made a perfect takeoff.

and repeal of the dry laws, leaked out at the Democratic national convention Friday as a sort of anti-climax to the now settled platform issue.

While newspapermen were barred from the room, Governor Moody made a bitter, stinging speech in the platform committee against adoption of the New York prohibition plank, attacking it as "an outright invitation for a movement to repeal constitutional and statutory prohibition." The plank was submitted by Senator Richard Wagner of New York and was said to have the personal "Okeh" of Governor Alfred Smith.

The Texas governor was accused indirectly of "trying to split the Democratic party" and finally lost the support of the other extreme dry leaders,

One Death and Heavy Damage in Rains, Tornadoes

NASHVILLE, Tenn. June 29—(AP)—

One man was killed, a house was destroyed by fire, highways were blocked by falling trees and wires and the Cumberland river rose 13 feet for an all-time June record as a result of a rain, wind and electrical storm here early today. A record 24 hours rainfall for June was made here with 4.39 inches.

Bridges were washed away, road and ditches damaged and low land inundated.

John S. Lewis, deputy sheriff, was killed when he stepped on a concrete porch across which high tension wires had fallen.

LEXINGTON, Ky. June 29—(AP)—

Damage in Lexington and vicinity from high water caused by heavy rains during the last 24 hours was estimated today at a half million dollars.

The flood, which made three-footers of downtown streets, filled basements of business and residential buildings and held up traffic.

Hundreds of downtown business houses were unable to give an accurate estimate of their loss because their basements were still filled with water, ceiling high.

Chief sufferers were the city's main hotels, the LaFayette and the Phoenix, whose damage will amount to $200,000.

Five and half inches of rain fell in 24 hours ending at 7 a. m., today. Thousands of dollars damage to crops, highways, telephone and interurban lines was the result of the rain storm in Fayette and surrounding counties.

Bridges were washed away, road and ditches damaged and low land inundated.

FIVE NATIONS SHARE IN AN EFFORT TO RESCUE NOBILE

Men of Courage Fight Arctic Perils to Give Lost Explorers Relief

Italy, Russia, Norway, Sweden and France are engaged in the effort to rescue Gen. Umberto Nobile from the Arctic ice fields and to locate the two groups of his crew which were separated from him when the dirigible Italia, returning from a flight over the North Pole, came down northeast of Spitzbergen on May 25.

Nobile and five of his crew were located on drifting ice near Foyin Island on June 8, when they got into radio communication with the Italia's supply ship, Citta di Milano, by radio from the gondola in which they were riding when it was torn away from the dirigible.

Dr. Finn Malmgren and two companions landed with them on May 25, but left to try to walk over the ice to North Cape, and have not been heard from since. Hope is entertained for their safety.

The other seven members of the crew drifted away with the bag of the dirigible, which is believed to have stranded on the ice pack somewhere between Spitzbergen and Franz Josef Land.

France supplied a seaplane, with a crew of three, which set out June 20 from Tromsø, Norway, with Capt. Roald Amundsen and a companion in quest of Nobile. This plane has not been heard from, and is being sought by the Svalbard, boat of the governor of Spitzbergen. France also has two warships in the region.

Russia has two icebreakers, with planes aboard, trying to break through to Nobile's rescue, and Italy has a third, the Braganza. Italy has two planes in the region, Sweden has four at King's Bay, Norway has two seaplanes on the Braganza.

The Nobile party was actually sighted on the ice on June 20 by Major Maddalena of Italy, who dropped supplies from his plane. Maddalena and Major Penzo, another Italian aviator, flew over the party again on June 22.

Al Smith Holds Record as Governor of New York

Life in Brief
 Dec. 30, 1873—Born in a tenement on New York's east side.
 1900—Married Catherine A. Dunn of New York.
 1903—Was elected to the New York assembly, serving there until 1915.
 1911—Became majority leader in the assembly.
 1913—Was elected speaker of the house of the assembly.
 1915—Served on the New York state constitutional convention.
 1915—Left the legislature to become sheriff of New York county.
 1917—Elected president of the New York City board of aldermen.
 1918—Elected governor of New York state.
 1920—Retired to private life after defeat for re-election.
 1922—Became governor again by a margin of over 300,000 votes.
 1924—Re-elected governor despite Republican landslide in presidential election.
 1924—Candidate for nomination for presidency; defeated by John W. Davis.
 1926—Re-elected governor, the first New York governor to win four times in that office.
 1928—Again became a candidate for his party's presidential nomination.

Alfred Emanuel Smith rose from an obscure youth on the sidewalks of New York's crowded lower East side to become governor of the Empire State four times and a candidate for nomination to the highest office in the nation.

In 1924 he was a contender for the democratic presidential nomination at Madison Square Garden in a memorable convention that finally named John W. Davis as standard bearer. In 1928 he was a "favorite son" at the San Francisco convention.

The governor, known to a legion of New Yorkers as Al, has led a charmed political life in a state that is normally charted as republican, especially in presidential election years. Only once in more than a quarter of a century of almost continuous public life has he been defeated for office. On that occasion, when Nathan L. Miller defeated him for governor—the year of the Harding Presidential landslide in 1920—he ran a million votes ahead of the democratic ticket.

Geniality is one of the outstanding Smith attributes and accounts for part of his immense personal following in his home city. But he has a rigid sense of public duty, with which his good nature is never permitted to interfere.

He has been called "The Happy Warrior." Fighting is something he has always had to do, commencing with his struggle to overcome poverty in his boyhood, when he helped to support his widowed mother. He repeatedly fought hostile legislatures in Albany and was successful in pushing through many important legislative measures.

He has had many fights with William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, and had a few tilts with the late William Jennings Bryan. His last important fight with Hearst, when he stubbornly declined to run on a ticket with publisher, marked the decline of the latter's influence with the state democratic party.

Smith's own attitude regarding fighting is shown in his speeches. In the 1926 gubernatorial campaign, when he defeated Ogden L. Mills, later under-secretary of the treasury, the republicans asserted that Mr. Mills would "get along with the legislature like a cooing dove." The governor said in reply:

"It is known to everybody in the state of New York from Montauk Point to Niagara Falls that I am no cooing dove and what is more I never will be anything I ever got in this world I had to fight for. I did not have it handed to me on a gold platter."

On another occasion, replying to criticism concerning his exercise of executive clemency, he said: "I was born on the lower end of the island and I come from the old fashioned kind of stock that never lets anybody put anything over on him."

Smith was born on Dec. 30, 1873, in the shadows of old Brooklyn bridge of Irish-American parentage. His father, who was in the trucking business, died when he was 15 years old, and he had to leave parochial school. He sold newspapers in Park Row, was an office boy in an oil factory, clerked in a fish market, joined a Tammany Hall social club and soon came under the eye of the late Tom Foley, an old time Tammany leader. He got his political start when he was named a clerk in the office of commissioned jurors. In 1902 he was elected to the lower house of the legislature and was re-elected again and again, becoming floor leader and then speaker of the House.

As speaker he was a leading figure in the constitutional convention presided over the Elihu Root and first began to be mentioned as a gubernatorial candidate. For a brief interval he left Albany, was elected sheriff of New York county and later president of the board of aldermen.

He was first elected governor in 1918 when he defeated the incumbent, Charles S. Whitman, by 12,000 votes. Two years later Nathan L. Miller defeated him for re-election. He became president of a trucking corporation and apparently was through with public life, although Gov. Miller named him a member of the Port of New York Authority.

He was practically drafted as a candidate for governor again and defeated Miller for re-election. In 1924 and 1926 he defeated Theodore Roosevelt and Ogden L. Mills respectively.

As governor he sponsored many welfare measures, such as widow's pensions and child labor laws. He also championed legislation favorable to organized labor. He holds honorary union cards as a pressman, bricklayer, stone mason and steam shovel operator. His most important work, as viewed by his friends, was the re-organization of the state government. After years of effort he was successful in abolishing more than 100 commissions and boards, and the vast work of the state is now done by a few departments and the governor's cabinet.

Smith has been a storm center on the prohibition question. He has frequently said he favored modification of the Volstead Act, but that he was opposed to the return of the saloon.

When the legislature decided to repeal the special state enforcement law known as the Mullan-Gage act he declined to veto it and was severely criticized in many sections of the country.

"I believe in enforcing the law," he said, "and I believe in personal liberty. I could have made a better-looking case by vetoing this repeal and talking about enforcement, but in my heart I believe the degree to which personal liberty is being interfered with in this matter is unwise, and I am going to take a position consistent with what I believe in my heart."

In a letter to Senator Fess of Ohio he said: "I have had enough common sense and experience in life to understand that the saloon is and ought to be a defunct institution in this country."

In 1926 he said: "It goes without saying that modification of the Volstead Act is an issue," and he advised the electorate to vote "yes" on a referendum, indicating that it favored modification. The referendum was carried by a great majority.

On another occasion he said: "I am not discussing the wisdom or unwisdom of prohibition. The question is whether all vestige of the rights of states guaranteed by the federal constitution is to be driven from our political theory of government. . . . The federal government has no right to impose upon the state any obligation to pass any statute affirmatively embodying any federal statute."

In 1900, when he was earning $75 a month, Alfred E. Smith was married to Catherine Dunn, a neighbor of his. They have five children; Emily, now Mrs. John A. Warner; Alfred E. Jr.; Catherine, who was married this June to Francis J. Quillinan; Arthur W. and Walter J.

Bad Weather in Arctic Delays All Rescue Operations

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 29.—(AP)—A strong north wind and a blanket of fog combined today to block efforts to rescue five survivors of the crew of the Italia and a Swedish airman drifting on an ice floe. The strong wind has brought the floe nearer land and today the castaways were about ten miles north of Cape Leigh Smith.

Searching expeditions for nine missing members of the Italia's crew were also held up. There was fear that these men would never be found alive and there was speculation as to events which preceded and followed the disaster. Withholding of the news of the death of Vincenzo Pomella for a month by General Noble and refusal of those in command of the base ship Citta di Milano to allow newspapermen to question the dirigible's commander have given rise to many rumors. Noble was also being criticized for coming to safety first leaving his five companions to endure the rigors of life on an ice floe.

Captain Riiser-Larsen, a Norwegian airman, today was under orders to join in the search for Roald Amundsen who has been missing since June 16 when he flew with five companions to join in the Noble rescue work. The ice breaker Braganza with captain Riiser-Larsen and Lieutenant Lutetow Holm aboard has been prevented from moving southward by the ice around North Cape.

Campaign For Trench Silos

GRAND FORKS, N. D. (AP)—In the interest of diversified farming the Greater North Dakota association, a booster organization, has inaugurated a trench silo campaign.

North Dakota, known primarily as a wheat state, added more than 400 trench silos during a similar campaign over the western half of the association expect to add 600 more during the present campaign in 18 eastern counties.

Wheat yields that have dwindled from 35 to 8 bushels to the acre in the last 15 years because of lack of crop rotation, have forced farmers to seek elsewhere for profit in farming. Trench silos by such weeds as the sow thistle have added impetus to the change.

Livestock has been demonstrated as the panacea, but winter feed such as corn has been proven impracticable because of the fact that no corn variety has been found that will ripen consistently in this northern climate. The trench silo, the North Dakota association believes, will solve the winter feed problem by utilizing green corn for winter feeding.

Such men as B. E. Groom, chairman of the association's agricultural committee, Charles F. Murphy, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, and Walter F. Kretschmer, farm manager with the National Life Insurance company, were tickled to address 20 farm plenaries during June in the interests of the trench silo campaign.

International Sunday School Lesson BY DR. J. E. NUNN

July 1, 1928
General Topic
The Early Life of Saul

Scripture Lesson:
Deut. 6:4-9; Phil. 3:4-6; Acts 22:3-27-27
Deut. 6:4. Hear, O Israel; Jehovah our God is one Jehovah:
5. And thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might.
6. And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be upon thy heart;
7. And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up.
8. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hand, and they shall be for frontlets between thine eyes.
9. And thou shalt write them upon the door-posts of thy house, and upon thy gates.
Phil. 3:4. Though I myself might have confidence even in the flesh; if any other man thinketh to have confidence in the flesh, I yet more:
5. Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews; as touching the law, a Pharisee;
6. As touching zeal, persecuting the church; as touching the righteousness which is in the law, found blameless.
Acts 22:3. I am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but brought up in this city, at the feet of Gamaliel, instructed according to the strict manner of the law of our fathers, being zealous for God, even as ye all are this day.
27. And the chief captain came and said unto him, tell me, art thou a Roman? And he said, yea.
28. And the chief captain answered, with a great sum obtained I this citizenship, and Paul said, But I am a Roman born.

Time: Saul (Paul) was born about A. D. 1.
Place: Saul was born in Tarsus, in Cilicia, the Roman province at the northeast corner of the Mediterranean Sea.
Golden Text: Remember also thy Creator in the days of thy youth—Ecc. 12:1.
Introduction
"In the days of Christ the pious Jew had no other knowledge, neither sought nor cared for any other, than that of the law of God."—Ederheim.
"Fastened to the side of Saul's father's house door was a bright metal box a few inches long, and every one who went out or in raised his hand to touch it, and kissed his finger, as he said a few verses of the Bible written upon parchment, and beginning with the familiar words, 'Hear, O Israel: Jehovah our God is one Jehovah.'" The child's first lesson was a verse from Deuteronomy, which his mother or father said to him in Greek, and he repeated over and over again until he had learned it; then he had another verse told him, to learn in the same slow way. Saul's first school lessons would be taken from Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy, called the Pentateuch, or five books. They were written on broad rolls, not unlike out yellow wall-papers, and were kept rolled upon two sticks, and were unrolled only a little bit at a time, at the part which was to be read.
"Family Religion" v. 7
"And thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children." Truth, especially religious truth, is no slight matter; receiving or rejecting it is a matter of spiritual life or death. Religious education is the most important interest of our civilization. Family religion is the basis of the church. If we do not make the Bible and the things of the Bible central in our home life and in our friendship and conversations, we need not attempt to make them central anywhere else.

The Bible in Saul's Life and Writings
"From a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures", 2 Tim. 3:15. "At the age of six or seven Saul would be sent to the elementary school. This was connected with the local synagogue, and since the manual of instruction was the Book of the Law, it was known as 'the House of the Book.' It was the Septuagint version of the Scriptures that the Jews of Tarsus employed. It was the child's lesson book, and his life-long familiarity with it is evidenced by his practice of quoting from it in after years. The teacher read out each sentence, and the pupils recited it in chorus until they had committed it to memory. It was an effective method. Our inestimable advantage of it was that every Jew's mind was stored with Holy Writ.
Saul's Home Training. Phil. 3:4-6
"Saul, or Paul, in his studies that were to fit him to become a teacher of others, had to commit to memory not only thousands of verses of Scripture, but much that wise men had said in explanation of them. Also there was something else he had to master. The Jews believed it was right and proper for every boy to work with his hands. They believed this partly because they knew it was good for boys to do some really hard work, and partly because boys who have learned a trade always have a chance to use it to make their living. So Saul was put to a trade that was much followed in Tarsus, tent making. But it was good that Saul became a tent-maker; for later when he was preaching Christ in many cities, he earned money to keep himself by working at his trade."
A Hebrew of Hebrews. v. 5
"Though I myself might have confidence even in the flesh; if any other man thinketh to have confidence in the flesh, I yet more". Writing from his first Roman imprisonment to the beloved church in Philippi which he had founded, Paul warned them to beware of those who would bind the young Christian church by the formalistic bonds of Judaism, including circumcision and other fleshly ordinances from which Christ had set men free. And Paul went on to say that he himself, who was giving the advice, knew well what these formal requirements were, for he had observed them all, and that with the utmost strictness.
"Circumcised the eighth day of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews." Paul was not a proselyte from heathenism, circumcised as an adult, or an Ishmaelite, circumcised at the age of thirteen, but had been admitted to the covenant of Israel eight days after birth, and was a member of the royal tribe of Benjamin. "As touching the law, a Pharisee. The Pharisees were very strict in their religious views, being extreme formalists and intensely bigoted.
"A Pharisee of the Pharisees"
"As touching zeal, persecuting the church." Paul was not only a Pharisee, but a bitter, violent, persecuting Pharisee, a Pharisee of the Pharisees. His zeal was conscientious, but he was shamed of it afterwards, for he was "kicking against the pricks", and on account of it he called himself "the least of the apostles" (I Cor. 15:9). "As touching the righteousness which is in the law, found blameless." Paul had observed all the Jewish legalities, he was blameless before the formal law; he knew himself to be far from blameless before the true law of God summarized by Christ as consisting of love to God and man.

Saul's Boyhood Surroundings
Acts 21:39

"Saul was a town boy. The spreading flower, the tinted cloud, the purple hill, the bird in flight, had no special word for him. Soldier's arm and disarming, the sign of force; trained athletes running, wrestling, boxing with mailed fists, the sign of skill; idols of wood and stone, the sign of darkness, early impressed him, and held sway to the end.
"The little river, the Cydnus, was navigable in the days of Saul, making Tartus the port of Cilicia, and attracting ships from all parts of the then-known world. The Cydnus was a mountain stream, bearing down the melted snows from the Taurus range. The great Alexander almost met his death by bathing in its icy waters, some three hundred years before Saul's time. The Cilician plain yielded fruits of many sorts.
Paul's Brief Life Story Acts 22:3
"I am a Jew." Though born in a Greek city, Tarsus, Saul was a Jew by descent. The name of his father is not known. Saul's mother was a pious woman who dedicated her baby boy to God, and who probably died when her son was a mere infant. The family belonged to the tribe of Benjamin, small but warlike, and Saul was named from that distinguished Benjaminite who became the first king of the Israelites. After the fashion of the day, he seems to have received also a Gentile name, Paulus (Paul), a Latin word meaning "little." Saul was about five years younger than Christ.

"At the Feet of Gamaliel."
"But brought up in this city, at the feet of Gamaliel." "This city" is Jerusalem, in which Paul was speaking. He was educated "at the feet of" Gamaliel, as Jewish teachers sat on raised platforms, their pupils literally at their feet. This teacher was "the famous Rabban Gamaliel, a son of Hillel, a doctor of the law held in re-Rabban Simeon, and a grandson of reputation among all the people." Gamaliel I, like his grandfather Hillel, held the somewhat anomalous position of a liberal Pharisee. W. F. Farrar.

Paul a Roman Citizen, Acts 22:27
"And the chief captain came and said unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? And he said, Yea." The chief captain (tribune), corresponding to our colonel, was in charge of a cohort or regiment of a thousand men. When the Jews mobbed Paul, he at once came to his rescue with soldiers and carried him off to the Roman military headquarters, Castle Anotonia, next to the temple, from the stairway of which Paul had just addressed the mob. When the mob responded so violently to Paul's claims the chief captain thought he must be a dangerous man, and ordered a confession to be extorted from him by scourging; but Paul protested, claiming to be a Roman citizen, whom it was unlawful to scourge. To make a false claim to Roman citizenship was an offense so severely punished that Paul was at once believed.
