HOW CITIES GROW from the standpoint of financing large structures was well told to Pampa Lions Thursday by Paul Parker of the Godfrey Investment company.

He detailed the investment story of cities such as Tulsa, which laid a good foundation and united to build upon it, and of Guthrie, with similar opportunities but lack of initiative. Tulsa, he declared probably has more office space to the population total than any other city in the United States.

He was quick to admit that Pampa's greatest single need at this time is a large office building to permit grouping here of the scattered Panhandle offices of operating oil companies. After a survey of this need by himself and executives of his firm, he said he was satisfied of the demand and confident of the stability of the city.

Looking beyond oil, he stressed the belief that the immense, undeveloped agricultural territory surrounding Pampa is the city's hope for steady and permanent growth. Few cities in the Southwest have such a big opportunity, as he sees it. The city needs capital. This must come partly from local people and partly from assisting sources. The presence of one large, successful structure inspires confidence and makes other possible.

Pampa's greatest need at this time is for her citizens to catch the spirit and vision of builders. There are Frank Kells in the making here, if they grow in vision and plan for a big future.

And there are smaller needs which direct the trend to or away from the city. One of these is the road problem. Extraordinary effort is demanded now to connect the oil fields to Pampa with good road beds. This is one of the outstanding present needs and is bigger than any man and any office. Pampa must wake up and solve this problem.

The vision of a helpful metropolis—not one grasping for assets but reaching out a sympathetic hand into this big territory, will build the future Pampa.

Citizenship of the Old Pampa was admirable, citizenship of the New Pampa was energetic and progressive, citizenship of the Future Pampa must be inspired by faith, the spirit of territorial service, and the sacrifice of temporary leisure for the sake of ultimate achievement. The third phase of Pampa life is here.

CAPITOL News

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—The surest thing about the coming campaign, in view of the nomination of Governor Smith, is that the religious issue will be uppermost in the public mind.

And the most uncertain thing about the campaign is the extent to which religious prejudice will figure in the result.

It must also be borne in mind that this question is likely never to be satisfactorily answered. If Smith should be elected, it would be proved that most voters paid no attention to his religion. If he should be buried in a greater landslide than any Democratic candidate heretofore it might indicate the opposite.

But if Smith is beaten by a comparatively small majority—somewhat less than those cast against Cox and Davis—no one can ever prove that the balloting was along religious lines. He may be beaten just because he is a Democrat running against a Republican or a wet running against a theoretical dry.

The question of the effect of Smith's religion on the voters is a fascinating one for study, but extremely speculative. The Democratic party is betting that the anti-Catholic vote won't be as large as some of its members fear it is going to be. Ordinarily no major political party would take such a chance; none ever has before. But Smith owes his nomination partly to the fact that no formidable opponent arose to fight him for it and partly because many party leaders long ago began to realize that to turn him down would cause many Catholic voters to quit the party in indignant disgust.

If Smith loses in November it seems likely that the size of the margin of votes against him will decide whether he is to be renominated in 1932 and whether it is smart politics to nominate any Catholic for the presidency under present conditions.

In fact, the important question, whether the northern Democracy will be permitted to dominate the party after this election, will depend largely on Smith's capacity for inspirational leadership—and the number of votes he gets.

The northern Democratic machines are wet and Catholic; western and southern Democrats are Protestant and dry. Whether these differences are to be submerged in a common cause big enough and broad enough to appeal to everyone concerned will depend on Smith and the kind of a campaign he makes.

Neither of the candidates will dwell on the religious issue, except under extreme provocation. But if it isn't aired on the stump or radio it will surely be discussed everywhere else.

Past experience and the anti-Smith campaign which has been in progress for some time show clearly that a desperate undercover campaign will be made to beat the Catholic candidate. The Republicans can't afford openly to encourage this, and won't, but they won't have to.

Politicians expect to see the country flooded, for instance, with copies of the fake "Knights of Columbus oath", which has sometimes been used in lesser political campaigns against Catholic candidates.

Rich, Studies As Poor Girl

Under the name of Mary Butler, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, wealthy Chicago society leader and wife of the president of the International Harvester Co., studied as an extra in a class of dramatics in Cincinnati for several weeks this summer. This picture of Mrs. McCormick is the first taken of her in 18 years.

One of Smith's assets in the face of such propaganda will be the fact that he wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance to deliver any of the presidential power to his church, coupled with his completely non-sectarian record as governor of New York. Any president who attempted to play favorites among the churches probably would arouse such a popular furor as to cause his impeachment.

TWINKLES

It is fitting enough that the Drys will make most of the fire fly in the coming campaigns.

Mother of Pampa Men Dies in Tulia

Mrs. W. N. Carruth of Pampa died at the home of her son, Ernest Carruth, in Tulia, June 28, after a short illness caused by a fall some time ago.

Before her marriage to M. J. Carruth she was Melissa J. Miller of Whitesboro, Texas, and was born December 1, 1856. She was married to W. N. Carruth August 15, 1874. To this union was born three girls and four boys, three of whom preceded her in death.

She was a devoted Christian, joining the church in 1885 and working in its interest until failing health prevented her carrying on her work.

Her father was a veteran of the civil war and her listeners never tired of hearing the many interesting stories she could tell of pioneer days and of the Indian raids on the frontier of Texas.

Besides her husband, she leaves to mourn her loss three sons, Ernest of Tulia, and W. J. and G. O. of Pampa, and one daughter, Mrs. B. E. Nounin of Amarillo, besides a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

SHINNY ON YOUR OWN SIDE, NICKY!

BUCHAREST (AP)—Fleld hockey known to the American boy as hiny, produced a pair of barked shins for Prince Nicholas of Rumania in a recent game against the national champions.

Wichita Falls, 5 to 2. Turgen also delivered a four-ply clout. Hearne pitched steady ball that held the Spiders to five safeties.

Tunney Defending His Opponent of Coming Battle

BY ALAN J. GOULD (Associated Press Sports Editor) BOSTON, July 6.—(AP)—It may be gathered that the situation has become a trifle serious when the heavyweight champion of the world personally takes up the cudgels for Tex Rickard in the best interest of the title affair in which Tom Heenev is to be the party of the second part.

Taking cognizance, as the boys say, of the widely circulated reports that developments might occur to halt or postpone the championship bout, Gene Tunney advises by telegraph he is "surprised" that anyone "would lend credence to pernicious rumor started by enemies of Rickard with purpose to belittle contest of the twenty-sixth and discredit Rickard."

"Can assure you," he concludes, "contest will be fought on July twenty-sixth regardless of what rumor creditors and detractors say."

There is no side-stepping or pulling of verbal punches here. The champion's spokesman, Steve Hannegan, takes an even stiffer wallop at "Rickard's enemies."

"Palpable plot" is the way Hannegan brands the rumors. Apathy and skepticism that have seemed to surround the big bout. He adds: "Regardless of what rumors say, you can rest assured that contest will take place and with no other opponent than Tom Heenev who has proved his right to match by his record of victories since his arrival in this country eighteen months ago. Story he is to be replaced by Sharkey ridiculous as Sharkey is by virtue of his defeat at the hands of Risiko eliminated."

This appears to make it unanimous. Rickard and Tunney both have made it clear there will be a fight at the Yankee stadium for the heavyweight title on the night of July 26. Top price $40 including the tax of 25 per cent. Since each has a somewhat strong personal interest in the affair their emphatic rebuttal ought to discourage the doubters and skeptics even if it does not drive them entirely to cover.

Whether or not any "plot" is involved is something else. There is a chance for the fistic sleuths here. It is not clear to observers, however, just how the plotters, if any, have managed to influence the indifference that is manifestly widespread. Tunney blames it on "detractors." Rickard on just plain "knockers."

Some of the outlying returns are interesting. Among them a pronouncement credited to James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State Athletic commission on the way back from the Democratic national convention. The New Orleans Times Picayune quotes Farley as follows: "This coming bout at the Yankee stadium between Tunney and Heenev

George Earnshaw Is Another of Jack Dunn Boys

BY HERBERT W. PARKER (Associated Press Sports Writer) Another one of Jack Dunn's boys has come through in the major league.

Baltimore Long has been noted as a fertile field for the reaping of baseball stars, especially pitchers. Dunn, manager of the Orioles from time immemorial, is the Wilbert Robinson of the minor leagues. He has a knack for developing moundsmen. It's a profitable accomplishment too for major league clubs separate Jack from his pitchers only by subjecting their pocketbooks to severe punishment.

Usually though the initial cost has been found to be well worth while. In 1925, Mack paid Baltimore more than $100,000 for Robert Moses Grove, who fires the fastest left-hand ball in captivity, and Connie probably never has regretted it.

In addition to Grove, the honor roll of Baltimore Orioles who have made the grade in the big-time includes such stars as Babe Ruth, one of the earlier alumni; Jack Bentley, who was a big help to John McGraw and the New York Giants a few years ago; Alphonse Thomas, now with the Chicago White Sox; Jack Ogen of the St. Louis Browns; and Eddie Rommel, another of the Athletics' staff.

Earnshaw has had a tough time getting started in the big leagues. His first victory did not come until he had made six false starts, but when he finally crashed through it was with a vengeance. The Red Sox got only three scattered singles off the big right-hander and despite the fact that Earnshaw granted six bases on balls he never was in danger. Five men went down on strikes. While George was doing his share his teammates were busy pounding Herb Bradley for five runs.

No other American league games were scheduled and rain washed out the two National league contests on the day's card.

Famous Oldtimer Now Dead, Recalled as Jeffries' Foe

MONTREAL, Que., July 6.—(AP)—Jack Munroe, prospector, miner and soldier but best known as the man who, unknown at that time, stood up to Jim Jeffries for four rounds when the latter was champion of the world, is dead.

His body was found in his cabin near Boyon, Ont., by two men who were attracted to the place by the barking of his dog. He evidently had been dead several days.

Munroe, one of the little band of survivors of the original "Princess Patricia" regiment, had led a colorful life. He was a native of Canada. When the South African war broke out he enlisted and served throughout the conflict, being decorated several times for bravery.

Coming home from the wars he took up mining and when the great silver rush started in 1906 he was mayor of the city of Cobalt.

In 1903 Jeffries was touring the country challenging any man to stay in the ring with him for four rounds. Munroe, described in old press notices as a natural fighter, accepted and stayed the limit. He was credited with a knockdown of the "Big Fellow" during the course of the bout. Jeffries knocked him out in two rounds in a later engagement.

Encouraged by his success with Jeffries, Munroe came to the United States and won a newspaper decision over Tom Sharkey at Philadelphia in 1904.

Humbert J. Fugazy yesterday was forced to postpone his junior lightweight championship battle between Tod Morgan, the Seattle title-holder, and Cannonball Eddie Martin, of New York, former king of the bantamweight. A storm late in the day led Humbert to re-set the 15-round battle for next Wednesday night at Ebbets field.

Dallas Steers Going Stronger in This Half

(By The Associated Press.)

Continuing the better brand of baseball they have played since the second half of the Texas league season began the Dallas Steers defeated Fort Worth, 3 to 2 Thursday, and climbed into a tie with Wichita Falls for second place in the loop standing.

Fast fielding and timely hitting led the Steers to victory. Burns pitched a good game, holding the Steers to five safeties, but was hampered by breaks. Pierce was touched for nine hits in 7-1/2 innings and was relieved by Frasier, who allowed another safe blow.

San Antonio gained on the runners-up by defeating Waco, 8 to 3, as a result of Riviere's steady hurling in early frames. Messenger's excellent relief work in the last two innings, and hitting in the pinches by the Bears. In addition to pitching good ball, Riviere drove in two runs with a double.

Getting revenge for the double beating administered them Wednesday, the Beaumont Exporters took a hard-fought game from Houston by the score of 2 to 1 when Hubbel bested Carleton in a duel. Hubbell allowed three hits and Carleton gave up six. Neither team scored during the first, in frames, but in the seventh Schleibner tripped and brought two runners home. Houston got its runs in the next inning.

Wearers Given Voice for Deciding Fashions For Cotton Fabrics

Women have been called upon by manufacturers of cotton fabrics to aid in creating new designs and in fashioning and coloring new weaves. A new style advisory board of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers includes Mrs. James Hooper, Jr. of Boston (left) and Miss Mary Walker of New York.

BOSTON (AP)—Women now are determining the styling and designing of fabrics produced in many of the fine goods cotton mills of the country. American manufacturers during the past few years have given more attention to style the originating of new creations and to making the most delicate of colors fast to the sun and washing. They have placed women at the head of style bureaus in mills and have appointed them directors of fabric styling plants and selling houses so that the industry may be given the feminine viewpoint. The latest development is the formation of a style advisory board by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, announced today.

Through this group the organization plans to give to its members and the general public information relative to style trends, new fabrics, colors and fashions developed in America as well as abroad.

The members of the board, all of them women, with a single exception, represent a group of leading mills of the country. They are: Miss Martha Doidson; Miss Mary Walker, New York; Miss Florence Layton; S. W. Long, Pawtucket, R. I.; Miss Mildred Harbeck, Boston and Mrs. James R. Hooper, Jr., Boston.

Style bureaus have been formed within organizations of many leading mills. Efforts are being made to show women in department stores how dress goods and fabrics for decorative purposes in the home will look when made up.

Style shows have been used to present to women an idea as to what American stylists and designers are creating.

Illinois Body Writes Again on Chicago's Crime

CHICAGO, July 6.—Beer, Bullets, "pineapples" and politics supplied the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice with material for the fifth and sixth chapters of "organized crime," the report of an investigation into Chicago's crime.

The fifth chapter made public today dealt with the city's "beer war," which has occupied considerable attention since early in 1922, when various gangs were lured from other activities by promises of enormous profits in bootlegging and beer running. Since then, the report states, the gangsters active in bootlegging have formed strong organizations. The "beer war" resulted in 215 gang murders in less than four years, besides the killing of 100 alleged gangsters and bootleggers by the police.

The report, after enumerating the outstanding features of Chicago's "beer war," declared the investigators did not believe prohibition could be blamed entirely for the condition. Since other cities have not experienced similar gang activities under prohibition, the basic cause must be loyal, the report suggested. The alliance of politics and gangdom was blamed principally for the "war."

"Pineapples," better known as bombs have been in use in many years has the sixth chapter declared, although only in recent years has the bomber widened the scope of his activity. Twenty years ago bombs were used by vice lords to discourage competition, the report says.

With the coming of prohibition, bombs were found to be useful for the same purpose. Black hand activities, inter-racial conflicts, labor controversies, and "rackets" also have been found the "pineapple" on ideal weapon of attack because of the secrecy with which it can be planted.

Political bombings, such as those perpetrated at the homes of Senator Charles S. Deneen and Judge A. Swanson just before the last primary election, bring to the public attention the extremes to which crime, vice, and liquor rings will go when they fear loss of power through political changes according to the report. These bombings, however, the report points out, resulted directly in aiding to swing the election to the political faction headed by the victims.

LIBRARY WORK POPULAR AT TEXAS UNIVERSITY

AUSTIN, July 6.—Choice of all positions for part time student employment, library work at the University of Texas is eagerly vied for by boys seeking to work their way thru school according to E. W. Winkler, librarian. There is always a long list of applicants for work as pages or assistants in the library, Mr. Winkler explained, but, due to the stringent eligibility requirements, few are chosen.

When Mr. Winkler goes to select a new boy to act as page in the library, he goes to the registrar's office and investigates grades first of all. There has not been a boy working for him who did not have an average of at least B, while many of the library assistants are singled out for election to honorary scholastic societies, for appointment as student assistants in various departments of the University and to receive scholarships and fellowships to other schools.

International Sunday School Lesson BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: Saul and Stephen.
Scripture Lesson: Acts 7:54-8:3; 22:19, 20.

Acts 7:54. Now when they heard these things they were cut to the heart, and they gnashed on him with their teeth.

55. Bpt he, being full of the Holy Spirit, looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God and Jesus standing on the right hand of God.

56. And said, Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God.

57. But they cried out with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and rushed upon him with one accord;

58. And they cast him out of the city, and stoned him: and the witness laid down their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul.

59. And they stoned Stephen, calling upon the Lord, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.

60. And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had said this, he fell asleep.

Acts 8:1. And Saul was consenting unto his death. And there arose on that day a great persecution against the church which was in Jerusalem; and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judaea and Samaria except the apostles.

2. And devout men buried Stephen, and made great lamentation over him.

3. But Saul laid waste the church, entering into every house, and dragging men and women committed them to prison.

Acts 22:19. And I said, Lord, they themselves know that I imprisoned and beat in every synagogue them that believed on thee:

20. And when the blood of Stephen thy witness was shed, I also was standing by, and consenting, and keeping the garments of them that slew him.

Time: The martyrdom of Stephen took place A. D. 36.

Place: Stephen was stoned somewhere outside the wall of Jerusalem.

Golden Text: Be thou faithful unto death, and will give thee the crown of life.—Rev. 2:10.

The first mention of the heroic Stephen in the New Testament is in connection with the selection of the first deacons. Many poor persons joined the early church in Jerusalem, and the poor widows especially needed care. Every day food was provided for them by their fortunate fellow Christians, and the twelve apostles took charge of the distribution. But this required much time and thought and the Grecian widows complained that they were neglected in favor of the Hebrew widows. Therefore the apostles called the church together, told them that all their own time and strength should be devoted to preaching the new religion, and bade them select for the charitable work of the church seven men of good report, full of the Spirit and of wisdom. This was done, and the seven chosen were called "deacons," from a Greek word meaning "to serve." Stephen was the first named in the list, "a man full of faith and of the Holy Spirit."

Stephen the Preacher. (Acts 6:9-10)
But Stephen was not one to rest content with the distribution of food, however necessary that was. He intended to use for Christ all the powers of mind and heart which Christ had given him. In the synagogues the teachings of Jesus became matters of fierce debate, and Stephen, as the leading Greek Christian, came forward continually in those assemblies as the defender and advocate of Christian truth. In all these discussions Stephen spoke eloquently, "full of grace and power," and substantiated his claims for Christianity by working great miracles before their eyes. In short, so able was his preaching that his hearers "were not able to withstand the wisdom and the Spirit by which he spake."

Stephen the Martyr. vs. 55, 56
"But he, being full of the Holy Spirit." God's holy Spirit, possessed by Stephen in full measure, not only gave him courage to face the Sanhedrin and mental power to address them, but clarified his spiritual vision so that he could see heaven, and the Father and the Son. "Looked up steadfastly into heaven." Stephen was not trembling with fear but was steady and calm. That was because his soul was fixed on things above. He had a mind far superior to the cruel mob. "And saw the glory of God." Stephen had just called God "the God of glory" (verse 2); now as he saw that glory—such a splendor as shone above the ark of the covenant, flamed from Sinai, and lighted the moving hosts of Israel in the fiery pillar. Paul was later to fall down before the same glory on the Damascus road. "And Jesus standing on the right hand of God." Jesus had prophesied that hereafter he should be seen "sitting at the right hand of Power" (Mark 16:62) and elsewhere in the New Testament he is described as sitting at the right hand of God, the fit position of the Son of God, reigning eternally with the Father.

The Stoning of Stephen. v. 58
"And they cast him out of the city." The law of Moses (Lev. 24:14) required that executions by stoning should take place outside the camp; and when the Israelites came to live in cities, this was held to mean outside the city walls. Thus Christ was crucified outside the walls of Jerusalem. "And stoned him." This, the characteristic Jewish mode of execution, was at least more merciful than the Roman crucifixion which Christ endured. "And the witness laid down their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul." Saul was probably delegated by the Sanhedrin to oversee the execution (see Acts 22:20), and was watching to make sure that the requirements of the Hebrew law were observed, his soul filled with satisfaction that a blasphemer was to meet a merited death, and the impious heresy of Christianity, as he hoped, thus permanently checked. How little did Saul foresee the future!

"And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." Thus (Luke 23:46) Christ cried "with a loud voice" just before torturers, "for they know not what they do" (Luke 23:34). Eusebius, the ecclesiastical historian, records a similar prayer as made by Jesus the apostle during his martyrdom. "And when he had said this he fell asleep."

"A peculiarly effective ending to this scene of storm and stress. The phrase is highly characteristic of the Christian idea of death (see Matt. 27:52; John 11:11; Acts 13:36; 1 Thess. 4:13-15).

Saul's Mistaken Zeal. Acts 8-1.

"And Saul was consenting unto his death." Not that the stoning required Saul's consent; but he countenanced the awful deed, gave it his approval and aid,—and his vote also, probably, as a member of the Sanhedrin. And there arose on that day a great persecution against the church which was in Jerusalem. This was the large body of Christians in Jerusalem, including the few disciples at Christ's death, perhaps only a few hundred in number, augmented by the three thousand won at Pentecost and by the many added by preaching and conversation and preaching.

"And they were all scattered abroad throughout the region of Judaea and Samaria, except the apostles." Christ had foretold this dispersion, Acts 1:8. "All" is not taken literally, for Saul (verse 3) still found many on whom to vent his rage; but all the leaders were scattered abroad, except the apostles, who boldly remained in Jerusalem to encourage those that for various reasons, such as sickness, age, or ties not to be abandoned, were com. led to stay in Jerusalem. Besides, the apostles must maintain headquarters for the Christian faith.

But Saul laid waste the church.

entering into every home, and dragging men and women committed them to prison." When Saul, many years later, after long missionary toils as a Christian apostle, was arrested because of the raging against him in Jerusalem of just such a furious mob as he himself must often have stirred up, he addressed the mob from the stairs of Castle Antonia, being guarded by Roman soldiers. At the opening of his address, as one of the most convincing arguments he could use, he related his own experience as a bitter enemy of Christians. He had persecuted "this Way," the people who had chosen

Christ's way of life. He had loaded the Christians with chains, women as well as men. He had not been satisfied to throw them into the dark and noisome dungeons, but had been counted with nothing less than their death. But even while raging the most fiercely against the Christians, he had been marvelously converted to the truth and had become one of them.

guide only when it is divinely directed.

"We never do evil so thoroughly and heartily as when led to it by an honest but perverted conscience." Edwards. A perverted conscience is like a sun dial over thrown and shattered. It is like the great steamer which was driven straight towards the rocks because a single nail, driven near the compass by a carpenter and not removed, had deflected its needle. A well-instructed conscience is the voice of God directing our lives; but let us see to it that our conscience is really the voice of God, that it is taught by the Word of God and kept sensitive by prayer.

A BEAUTIFUL CREATURE

She Wanted a Head of Lettuce

Very daintily she selected the one she desired—to be sure she barely touched it with her slender fingers—the fragile thing was lifted gracefully and with a demure and beautiful air she asked the store man who was near to please accept her money and let her depart quickly with the head of lettuce, as she was in such a hurry and could not take her turn as one of many in the long waiting line at the checking counter.

The cold-hearted (she thought) store man said, "No!" Every customer must be treated alike," and the store down the street, where business wasn't so good, sold the beautiful lady a head of lettuce. Of course, this charming woman did not understand such seeming unaccommodation and I'll admit the situation is awkward and our apology to the lady is that we must have standard rules of conduct for the store men even though sometimes it would seem best otherwise.

PLEASE FORGET THE IRRITATION ABOUT THE HEAD OF LETTUCE AND COME AND GET SOME OF THESE SATURDAY AND MONDAY BARGAINS.

'GIRL HICKMAN', 17, SHOWS NO GRIEF AFTER KILLING YEAR-OLD BABY

OAKLAND, Calif., July 3.—The girl Hickman is the title police here have bestowed on Miss Erna Janochek, 17-year-old high school girl who is being held on charges of first degree murder.

Erna, a rather pretty, intelligent young flapper, strangled to death a year-old baby, Diana Lilientrenz, for whose parents Erna worked as a maid and nurse. She told about it with flip unconcern.

"I strangled the baby because I felt her mother wasn't supporting me in managing her other child, and because I felt they were working me too hard."

At this point the girl interrupted her explanation to laugh.

"I have to laugh when the impulse comes over me," she said. "When things like this happen I have to laugh."

Which remarks help to explain why the police call her "the girl Hickman".

Some criminologists here see an amazing similarity between Erna and the young Los Angeles murderer.

Neither in looks nor psychological makeup does either one bear any outward sign of abnormality or degeneracy. Both were bright students in school, apparently desiring to do creative things—Erna's room contained scraps of poetry she had scribbled. Each surrendered abruptly to the impulse to kill, and displayed no remorse or grief afterward.

Dr. and Mrs. Guy Lilientrenz, for whom Erna worked, had gone to San Francisco, where the young doctor, a recent medical college graduate, is a hospital interne. While they were gone Erna calmly called up the police to tell them she had killed the baby.

"I'd rather face the police than Mrs. Lilientrenz," she explained.

She told how she brooded, alone in the house with baby Diana and little Francora, aged 3, over her supposed overwork. Suddenly came the impulse to kill. She did not harm Francora; she was fond of the child. Instead she seized the smaller child from the crib, wrapped a towel about its neck and killed it. Then she summoned the police.

At the police station she told of having had the impulse to kill other children who had been left in her care. Always before, she said, she had overcome it.

She insists however, that a desire to be revenged in Mrs. Lilientrenz was her sole motive in this crime.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Schneider, Jr. and son Paul, left Wednesday on a trip through South and Eastern Texas and Old Mexico.

Nursery School Is Now Under Way

CANYON, July 3.—The Panita Coleman Nursery school is now in operation just off the campus of the West Texas State Teachers college, with nine tiny tots in attendance. The parents of eight of those children are enrolled for college work, and in many cases the mothers would not be able to carry any course but for the assistance of the Nursery school. One is the small daughter of a faculty member.

The Panita Coleman Nursery school was founded by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Coleman as a memorial to their daughter, who was vitally interested in primary and kindergarten work. It is sponsored by the local branch of the American Association of University Women.

The children attending are: Helen Marie Keese of Hereford, age 3; Ouida Sorrows, Texico, age 4; Wayne Elizabeth Miller, age 4; Billie Jean Thornton, Amarillo, age 5; Hugh Wayne Lovelady, age 2 1-2; Homer Jackson, Dalhart, age 4; Peggy Louise Palmer, age 2 1-2; of Munday; Ben Myers, Berger, age 5; and Peggy Marie Glass of Wichita Falls, age 3 1-2. The instructor in charge is Mrs. W. E. Blanton, a kindergarten teacher of experience.

The college class in child welfare, conducted by Miss Falba Foote, head of the department of home economics, is using the nursery school as a laboratory for observation purposes.

Judge S. D. Stennis arrived here yesterday from a business trip to Austin and Mineral Wells.

CLIPPING BUREAU GIVES EMPLOYMENT FOR GIRLS

AUSTIN, July 5.—(P)—From country weeklies to metropolitan dailies, from farm journals to denominational religious papers, from free advertising mediums to current event magazines every publication issued in the state of Texas is grist for the mill of girls who work in the students clipping bureau at the University of Texas. Ten girls who have secured employment in this office in order to earn part of their expenses while in school go thru these Texas newspapers and magazines daily and clip from them items ordered by a large list of subscribers—subscribers who want clippings mentioning textbooks, building and loan advertisements, "dude" ranches, cotton mills, playgrounds, or telephones.

As part of the work of the bureau, a small pamphlet is issued twice each week, containing news of all bond issues and prospective bond issues in the state.

BLACKMER'S PROPERTY SEIZED

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(P)—A second hundred thousand dollars of the property of H. M. Blackmer, of Denver, missing Teapot Dome witness, was ordered seized today by Justice Jennings Bailey in the District of Columbia Court because of Blackmer's failure to appear as a witness at the trial of Harry F. Sinclair on last April 9.

It steers with the weight of a hand—for the worm and gear steering mechanism is fitted with ball bearings throughout. And it sweeps along at high speeds for hour after hour without the slightest sense of forcing or fatigue—always under the complete control of its big non-locking 4-wheel brakes. LOVE FOR TWO RUTH DEWEY GROVES 1928 By A Service Inc.

A CROSS town another father left the same way. Mr. Bryer wanted to have a frank, heart-to-heart talk with Rod, but he couldn't speak his son's language and he dreaded to be laughed at.

Bertie Lou submitted, her eyes closed, while they dabbed her cheeks in their skillful way with incense color. Then the strains of "Lohengrin" softly up to her and she veiled with her attendant toward the door.

Bertie Lou was little and sweet, but she was no clinging vine.

AS Bertie Lou surveyed the completed work of the florists she felt her throat tightening over a lump that choked her. Maybe you could break up your marriage if you didn't like it, but you'd never have the same chance for happiness again, she felt.

She could not fall to look beautiful. The white tulle was like the spirit of her youth. Soft, yet firmly crisp, supple and alive. Her hair, half red, half brown, framed her eager, sparkling countenance like a rich golden crown of heavy swirls.

OUTSIDE the door a bride's faltering footsteps paused, hesitated between flight and entry, paused again, and Bertie Lou walked in among them. "Mother says we must hurry," she said, as though she hadn't heard a word. They were slightly uncomfortable, not being sure about it. But extreme compassion and tenderness still lay ahead of them.
