Cabot makes $25,000 gift to help buy radar Will improve storm watch system

Local emergency management officials are $25,000 closer to purchasing a new weather radar for the Gray County area, thanks to a gift from Cabot Corporation.

Tuesday, Cabot Operations Manager Duane Smith presented a $25,000 check from the Cabot Foundation to Mayor Bob Neslage, City Manager Bob Eskridge and Emergency Management Coordinator Ken Hall. The donation, approved by the Cabot Community Relations Team, will go toward the purchase of a $70,000 weather

Hall, who chairs the Local Emergency Planning Committee (LEPC), said the radar is needed to provide emergency operation centers in Pampa, McLean and Lefors with up-to-date weather radar information. Pampa citizens can also view the radar through the community access channel on cable television during severe weather.

"The Cabot Corporation has been a longtime supporter of local emergency planning by their participation in the LEPC," Hall said. "I am very proud to be able to associate with representatives from Cabot. They have the welfare of the entire Gray County community in mind when they participate in projects like this. We are very humbled by their generosity and concern for our community."

Smith said the choice to help fund the radar was an easy one for Cabot officials to make. He pointed to a photograph of the tornado which struck Pampa in June 1995 hanging on a wall at the Cabot administrative offices, commenting that the photo was taken just yards away from where he was standing.

LEPC efforts to raise $70,000 for the radar will continue until the project goal is met, Hall said.

"We hope to have the weather radar installed and ready to use by next spring," he said.

Cold front 'no drought-buster'

The Pampa area may get some sprinkles, drizzle and snow flurries out of the cold today but it "certainly won't qualify as a drought-buster," said KGRO meteorologist Darrell Sehorn.

"We have joined other parts burned up," Sehorn said, of Texas that are suffering from the drought," Sehorn said this morning. Explaining there are a number of factors drought, the weatherman said one — being in a third month without appreciable moisture — fits the panhandle plains.

Coupling the "excessive heat with the lack of rainfall" has made a bad situation weather system moving in worse, he said. Earlier this week Pampa set a record high — 99 — for October.

"I've been here 31 years and I have never seen it this

Elsewhere in the state, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs said the financial toll of the drought has involved in declaring a risen to $820 million and could soon slow the economy.

According to wire reports, the commissioner told Brazos Valley farmers and ranchers on Wednesday that losses to producers will have a ripple effect in the rest of the Texas economy.

"It's the cumulative effect (of droughts in) 96, 98, 99, 2000, and there is tremendous concern about where agriculture will be next years, she said.

"It's very, very serious and I'm trying to remind folks in the cities that if Texas agriculture hurts they'll feel the pain, too," Combs said.

German teens to arrive tonight

By NANCY YOUNG Managing Editor

Pampa will be home to a group of German teenagers for about three weeks as part of a student exchange program that will have them paired with local teens and families.

The Germans will get to see American culture firsthand and local teens will have the opportunity to learn about Germany, its traditions and culture from the visiting students.

Eighteen exchange students will arrive this evening as part of the annual German/American Exchange program.

Nine girls and nine boys will spend 21 days in Pampa as part of the German American Partnership Program (GAPP).

Pampa High School has been involved in the program for five years, said Jamie Greene, Pampa High School German Club sponsor. She said it is a great opportunity for the students to learn about

A new effort by the Pampa Economic Development Corporation to land another prison in Gray County may be all for nought if statements made Wednesday by two state lawmakers prove true.

Just last month the PEDC decided to allocate some funds to send a representative to board meetings of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

That approach was decided upon in hopes Pampa would stand out in the minds of the board members when it came time to select

Gray County is advertising for bids for a new motor grader. The commissioners court approved the bid advertisement for the motor grader to be used in the Precinct 3 Road and Bridge depart-

Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright said at the meeting this week the heavy equipment is in his new budget, and he plans to make an equipment trade-in.

Commission members tabled action on an amendment of an oil and gas lease with O.J. Hubbard, Ir., until more information can be obtained regarding the request. County Attorney Todd Alvey said he had examined the documentation provided, but said it will be necessary to have someone who is very familiar with the area to study the request. "The only way I know to verify the request is to send someone out there who understands the area," said Alvey. Precinct 2 Commissioner Jim Greene was designated to contact oil industry representatives to study the matter.

County employees and their dependents may be getting flu shots through the county. Each department head is to be notified and asked to poll their employees concerning the interest of receiving the

Daniels - vacuum-cleaner salesman.

Daniels, who plays a hapless hunter in "Escabana in da Moonlight" opening later this month, says he's having fun writing his upcoming role in another movie to be filmed in Michigan.

"I've always wanted to play a vacuum-cleaner salesman, and now I get to write my own," said Daniels, who was in town Wednesday for "Michigan Salutes Jeff Daniels Day."

The actor, playwright and director is a native of Chelsea, where he opened the Purple Rose Theatre nine years ago.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sean "Puffy" Combs' former driver has filed a $3 million lawsuit claiming one of the rap mogul's employees forced him to drive through red lights after a nightclub shooting last December.

Wardel Fenderson, 40, says in court papers filed Wednesday that he picked up Combs, actress Jennifer Lopez, and Combs' bodyguard, Anthony "Wolf" Jones, outside a nightclub on Dec. 27. Three people had been shot in the club, allegedly by Jamal "Shyne" Barrow, 20, a rapper who had come to the club with Combs and Lopez. Barrow has been charged with attempted murder.

As they fled in Combs' sports utility vehicle, Jones grabbed the steering wheel and screamed at him "not to stop and to continue driving," despite police orders to pull over, according to court doc-

Prosecutors say someone threw a handgun out of a passenger-side window while the vehicle was speeding through 11 red lights. The vehicle eventually was stopped by police barricades and another gun was found on the floor.

Combs and Jones have been charged with bribery for allegedly offering Fenderson $50,000 and a diamond ring if Fenderson would claim the gun in the SUV was his.

Combs and Jones are scheduled to go on trial in January.

"My job is not to create, per se, but to unearth, to get these things out of the ground as fully complete as they can," King told interviewer Charles Gibson. "But to me, I never felt like I wrote a story. I felt like I found them all. I feel more like an archaeologist than a creator."

King, who was promoting his new book "On Writing," also tackled a number of other topics, including his recovery from a 1999 accident in which he was struck and seriously injured by a van driven by Bryan Smith.

Smith's body was found in the trailer he shared with his two dogs on Sept. 22, the day after King turned 53. The medical examiner's office says no cause of death or official date of death have been established. Smith, 43, had not been seen for several days before his body was found.

But King believes Smith died on King's birthday, adding: "Isn't that strange, huh?"

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It was a Gene Kelly routine 55 years ago that got Paula Abdul's wheels turning.

The former Los Angeles Lakers cheerleaderturned-singer-turned-choreographer is now a TV producer. Her new Planet Paula Productions has a deal with Fox Kids Network to develop a new live-action/animated children's series.

The show will follow the adventures of a garage band climbing its way toward success and contain musical numbers choreographed by Abdul.

The genesis of the idea came from the video to her song "Opposites Attract," in which she starred opposite an animated, singing cat, Abdul

"I was inspired by my experience working on that video 10 years ago," she said in Wednesday's edition of Variety. "But I was also definitely inspired originally by Gene Kelly dancing with the mouse in 'Anchors Aweigh.'

Abdul said she may provide a voice or even play a live-action part.

"What excited me about seeing 'Who Framed Roger Rabbit' was the ability to really believe that animated characters exist," she said. "It excited

January, even though state corrections officials have asked for more than $500 million for new pris-

"I don't think the tenor is there in either the House or the Senate to pass additional bonds," Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, chairman of the Senate Criminal Justice Committee said at an Austin conference on criminal justice Wednesday.

The Republican chairman of the House Corrections Committee, Rep. Pat Haggerty of El Paso, said no prisons will be built during the next legislative session. He said the increased numbers of new paroles that have been granted during the past year have reduced the need for new prison beds, the Austin-American Statesman reported

If the two are right, the state will be ending its eight-year stretch during which it has spent $1.7 billion to expand its prison capacity from about 50,000 to 150,000 and has seen its prison population become the largest in the nation.

Haggerty suggested taking some offenders, such as those with mental illnesses or drunken drivers, out of the general prison population and placing them in specialized prison programs with similar offenders.

Haggerty and Armbrister were part of a panel of lawmakers and criminal justice advocates at the conference that discussed legislative and judicial options to improve the corrections system. The panelists proposed offering more educational classes, job training and rehabilitation programs to convicted criminals.

One legislator said the state was wise to expand its prison capacity during the 1990s but must now look for new ways to deal with offenders.

"We've out-toughed the toughest that ever was," said Rep. Ray Allen, R-Grand Prairie. "We've got to find a way to think about long-term strategic solu-In its budget request for the fiscal year 2002, the Department spokesman Glen Castlebury said Wednesday that the number of convicted felons in Texas could increase by 15,000 over the next five years. He added that legislators have long planned to reassess their corrections strategies in 2001 and decide whether to change sentencing guidelines or expand alternatives to prison.

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas: Waco Tribune-Herald on peacekeeping not just a U.S.

At a great cost to American taxpayers, President Clinton has ordered more far-flung military interventions than any U.S. president since Franklin D. Roosevelt oversaw U.S. troops in World War II.

Many Americans believe that nation-building and peacekeeping chores do not belong to U.S. military forces trained to fight and win wars, not serve as police officers and social workers.

Yet, America also has a moral obligation, if not a national interest, to stop foreign acts of genocide, terrorism, widespread brutality and other human disasters when possible.

These large-scale international tragedies have increased since the end of the Cold War.

Indeed, Clinton has said American troops should have intervened in Africa when the Hutu and Tutsi tribes were doing their best to kill each other off.

Clinton has promised to intervene if another round of killing crops up in Africa, which has been happening on a smaller scale in Sierra Leone, Ethiopia-Eritrea and Congo.

American troops are stuck indefinitely in Bosnia and Kosovo trying to prevent ethnic cleansing. U.S. troops went to Kosovo to keep the Serbs from cleansing all the Albanians from Kosovo. Now the Albanians have nearly cleansed all the Serbs from Kosovo. It's a mess that America's volunteer military warriors are not trained to handle.

A better solution would be for an international peacekeeping force to tackle these international peacekeeping problems. Such a force, poorly equipped and poorly trained, already exists within the world's foremost international body, the United Nations.

A well-received U.N. report deserved attention by the largest gathering of world leaders in history at the recent Millennium Summit in New York.

The report recommended beefing up and modernizing the organization's peacekeeping forces. It called on U.N. peacekeepers to help prevent conflicts, target sanctions, control arms transfers, reduce dangers of nuclear proliferation, form brigade-size forces for rapid deployment, free peacekeepers from strict rules of neutrality and provide better training for U.N. peacekeeping troops

A solution to the problems associated with U.S. troops assigned to the United Nations as peacekeepers could be overcome by having Americans volunteer for the job. They could be transfers from the military or come in from civilian life. They would serve under U.N. commanders for the duration of their enlistment.

Clearly, the United States needs to support the United Nations and its peacekeeping efforts for the sake of its military troops; it is a moral obligation to people worldwide and in the

Voting: A fundamental constitutional right

It's that year again. No, I'm not talking about it being Leap Year. Nor am I referring to the just passed Olympics. Just in case you have missed it, or forgotten, it is the presidential election year — Year 2000.

Every four years we Americans experience this spectacle. In case you don't know, Vice President Al Gore and Texas Governor George W. Bush are vehemently campaigning to be the Chief Executive of these United States:

Both men are very ambitious and from political families. Gore's father was a longtime senator representing Tennessee for many, many years. Bush's father is a former U.S. president and his grandfather was a senator from Connecticut.

Politics doesn't seem to me to be as much fun as it used to be. Maybe it can be attributed to Watergate, or maybe it was Monicagate. I really don't know.

The state of culture in modern America

A presidential race is very much a referendum on what types of people Americans are. It is true, alas, that we get the kind of government that we deserve.

One of the questions to be answered is, have the American people lost their ability to discern between good and bad character? It is impossible to have good government if the people can no longer tell the difference between the good guys and the bad guys.

Given the state of what passes for culture

these days, not to mention eight years of the Clinton-Gore administration, I have a pessimistic view on this question. I think that many Americans genuinely cannot recognize the difference between good and evil, and that many others just don't give a hoot, provided that they can get something.

Historians, if there are any, will eventually view the Clinton-Gore administration as one of the most corrupt and incompetent in the 20th century. Certainly no previous administration, except perhaps those of Lincoln and Wilson, has shown such open contempt for the Constitution. None has had a foreign policy and a national-security policy that consist of nothing but blunders.

Fortunately, elections are not decided by the people who tell pollsters how they would vote if the election were today (and if they bothered to vote). They are decided by the people who actually show up at the polls.

Therefore, those who do not wish to endure four years under the reign of the gloomy and brooding Al Gore had better not only show up on election day but make sure every like-minded voter also shows up. Mr. Gore is one of those people who tends to view others who disagree with him as evil, a very typical trait of people with a leftist viewpoint, which Mr. Gore definitely has.

It's a bad mark against Americans that more of them have not been turned off by the incessant Marxist tone of Gore's demagoguery. He frames every disagreement as an attempt on George W. Bush's part to help the rich at the expense of the poor. Both the death tax and the progressive income tax are, by the way, planks in the Communist Manifesto. Both are designed not to get revenue for the government but to destroy the people of ability that communists so hate.

It was never part of the American tradition that the unsuccessful be elevated to sainthood and the successful be condemned as demons. Gore's rhetoric, as indeed that of most

American leftists, is hypocritical because he himself is far from being a poor man. The difference between Gore's and Bush's wealth is that Bush's was at least earned in the competitive private market. All of Gore's wealth has been earned through politics and political con-

Gore's rhetoric is further hypocritical because one of the causes of the working poor's financial problems is the greed of government, which in all its forms takes roughly 50 cents out of every dollar earned by the sweat of labor.

I'm not sure there is much hope for an electorate who cannot understand that if taxes are cut by, say, 10 percent across the board, then those who pay $100,000 in taxes will save more, in dollars, than those who pay $1,000 in taxes. That is not favoring the rich, who will still be paying $90,000 in taxes as opposed to $900.

I don't know if there is much hope for an electorate who believes that Al Gore is really going to crack down on Hollywood.

It is naive — trust me on this one thing — to believe that people who make big-bucks contributions don't know what they are buying. All of Mr. Gore's big-money pals in Hollywood and New York are on the far left of the Establishment.

Bush appointees to high court show independence

By KELLEY SHANNON Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - It was a shock to antiabortion activists: In its first ruling on the state's new parental notification law, the all-Republican are viewed as moderately conservative judges who appointed by Gov. George W. Bush, decided a teenage girl could have an abortion without telling her that Bush's approach to appointing judges "isn't quite what one might expect from a conservative quite what one might expect from champion." Texas Supreme Court, including three justices often side with big business.

Aside from that March ruling, in five other cases the court has voted against minor girls seeking to bypass the notification law or sent their cases back to lower courts. So while not definitive, the Texas high court's actions nonetheless suggest that judges appointed by Bush are not necessarily bound by his own views on abortion.

Bush, the Republican presidential nominee, said if he becomes president," Texas Lawyer wrote. in his debate Tuesday with Vice President Al Gore test" on abortion or any other issue when nominating U.S. Supreme Court justices.

Bush invited voters to look at his record in appointing judges to the Texas Supreme Court, the state's highest civil court. Justices are elected, but handles the state's highest-level criminal appeals.

"The voters will know I'll put competent judges on the bench, people who will strictly interpret the believe in - I believe in strict constructionists," Constitution and will not use the bench to write social policy," Bush said.

Wednesday he practices judicial restraint and believes his fellow justices do too.

"Generally, this is a conservative-minded body that doesn't believe in legislating from the bench,' said Gonzales, who was Bush's staff general coun- abortion because there is no provision for abortion sel, and his appointee for secretary of state before in the Constitution. asked me my position on any particular issue,"

Other Bush appointees to the Texas Supreme Court are James A. Baker, a Dallas appeals court judge; Greg Abbott, presiding judge of a state civil district court in Houston; and Deborah Hankinson, a Dallas lawyer Bush had previously appointed to an appeals court.

Baker, Gonzales and Hankinson voted with the majority in the March parental notification case, but only on interpreting it. The justices have said that among the factors they considered were whether notification would cause serious and lasting harm to the family structure; its effect on the girl's relationship with her parents; her emotional or physical needs; and possible emotional or phys-

Factory orders up 2 percent in August after record drop planes and electronics helped orders to American cent. factories bounce back in August after a record plunge. Economists said the report is further evidence the economy is growing at a slower but still Factory orders rose a surprising 2 percent in August to a seasonally adjusted $382.5 billion, the third increase in the past four months, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

"The pace of manufacturing activity is sure but slowing," said National Association Manufacturers' economist Gordon Richards.

August's increase came on top of a record 8.1 percent drop in factory orders in July, an even sharper drop than the government previously estimated.

The Federal Reserve has raised interest rates six times since June 1999 with the goal of slowing the economy enough to prevent inflation, but not raise rates so high they push the country into a recession. Economists have described this as trying to engineer a soft landing for the high-flying economy.

Wednesday's report along with a slew of other economic data suggest that "a soft landing flight approach is unfolding," said economist Ken Mayland of ClearView Economics.

On Tuesday, the Fed decided not to raise rates for a seventh time but still held open the door to further rate increases in the future should inflation flare up.

In financial markets, blue-chip stocks led Wall Street higher. The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 64.74 points at 10,784.48, after gaining as much as 120 points during the day.

The advance was led by a 6.6 percent increase in orders for transportation equipment, mostly due to stronger demand for airplanes and aircraft parts, the government said. In July, transportation orders fell by a record 32.6 percent.

Excluding the volatile transportation category, factory orders rose 1.3 percent in August, the fifth increase in the last eight months. The transportation sector swings widely from month to month because it includes costly items such as airplanes, ships and military equipment, including tanks.

Orders for electronic and electrical equipment, including household appliances and communications equipment, went up by 2.7 percent in August, mostly due to higher demand for electronic components. The month before, such orders fell by a sharp Durable goods, the big-ticket manufactured items expected to last at least three years, saw orders rise by 2.9 percent, following a 13.2 percent decline. For nondurables, such as fuel, orders rose 0.9 percent after a 0.7 percent drop in July. Chemicals posted the largest increase.

Industrial machinery orders, including those for computers and machine tools, rose 0.9 percent in August, the fifth increase in the past six months, though it was down from a big 5.1 percent increase

Orders for primary metals, which includes steel, were flat in August after a 2.5 percent decrease.

Lieberman and Cheney follow their leaders in debate

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Dick

Cheney and Joseph Lieberman square off in a campaign debate Thursday night to sell their White House tickets, their own leadership credentials - and perhaps deal with the echoes of scandal raised and dismissed by their bosses two nights earlier. After days of practice, the Republican and Democratic vice presidential nominees meet here at Centre College for their one, 90-minute debate of the campaign. Vice President Al Gore and Texas Gov. George W. Bush still have two presidential debates before them, on Oct. 11 in Winston-Salem, N.C., and Oct. 17 in St. Louis. An estimated 46.5 million people watched Tuesday's Bush-Gore debate, according to Nielsen Media Research. Fewer viewers are expected to tune in for Cheney-Lieberman since the understudies generally attract less attention then the men who want to be president.

Israel-Palestinian Paris talks end without agree-

PARIS (AP) — U.S.-sponsored talks between Israel and the Palestinians aimed at ending a week of bloodshed closed Thursday with no agreement finalized and much uncertainty about how the violence will be stopped. The two sides had been expected to fly to the Red Sea resort of Sharm el-Sheik in Egypt to sign a deal formally ending the fighting that has left 65 people dead and returning the two sides to peace talks. But with the preliminary signing ceremony in Paris having disintegrated, Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak left Paris for Israel early Thursday and was not planning to go to Egypt, his office said in Jerusalem. However, Egyptian officials said they had not been formally told the meeting was off.

crude oil prices at more than $30 a barrel and members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries doing little to push them lower, don't look to non-OPEC countries for help. Almost all oil producing countries both OPEC members, which produce 40 percent of the world's oil, and nonmembers — are pumping as much oil as they can, as quickly as possible, to take advantage of prices that have hit 10-year highs. Non-OPEC members have appeared eager to follow OPEC's lead, with Mexico, Norway, Russia and Oman cutting production along with the oil cartel last year, and now happily pumping at full capacity while prices remain high.

Filings contradict CIA's statements in case of Seattle couple

SEATTLE (AP) — Lawyers for two Cold War spies who claim the CIA reneged on a promise of lifetime financial support say their case has been bolstered by a document in which the agency admits it has an obligation to give some defectors cash for life. The spies are a former foreign diplomat and his wife, now living in the Seattle area, who agreed to cooperate with the CIA if the agency would help them defect to the United States. As part of the deal, the couple say, they were promised benefits including a permanent yearly stipend of up to $27,000. But in 1997, the agency cut off the money, leaving them impoverished and with increasing medical bills. The CIA has refused to comment on the case.

Thousands demonstrate against Milosevic

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Tens of thousands of protesters seeking to oust President Slobodan Milosevic streamed toward the capital Thursday to join a mass rally billed as the final push against the embattled strongman. Police offered little resistance to the largest convoys but appeared to stand firm to some of the smaller groups. A convoy of about 2,000 people was blocked near the town of Smederevska Palanka about 30 miles south of Belgrade. Independent radio B2-92 said police were blocking a main high-way just outside Nis, the third-largest city, from which dozens of buses and cars were trying to reach the capital. Some of the crowds appeared too big to stop. Protesters used a front-end loader to shove aside two sand trucks used by authorities to try to block a 12-mile line of cars and buses with about 15,000 people traveling from the opposition stronghold of Cacak. Riot police stood by without inter-

Pampa football began in 1909

The first recorded football game for Pampa was in 1909 with Miami defeating Pampa 20-13. The boys on the team had to make their own padded uniforms using quilts or anything else that would give protection. Football became important in 1919 and some old-timers (in 1986) remembered 1920 as the first time in several years that football was played at Pampa. The main competitors were Perryton and Miami.

ered that my wife of 35 years has been gambling heavily for several years. Nearly $8,000 has been withdrawn at the casinos from our account and hers in the last nine months.

I am a saver; she has been a spender for the duration of our marriage. We could live very well in our retirement if we are prudent now.

She says it's her life and she will do what she wants; it's her money and she'll spend it any way she wants. She does work, but are these fair statements? Will she ever quit gambling?

HOPEFUL IN KENTUCKY

DEAR HOPEFUL: Unless your wife is willing to admit that her gambling has become a problem she's unable to control, she will continue to gamble.

Most couples pool their finances and decide together how the money should be spent. Her argument that it is her life and she'll do anything she wants, etc. is defensive, selfish and irrational.

You can lead a horse (player) to water, but you can't make her drink. Unless she's willing to get help for her gambling addiction, your wife could literally spend you out of house and home. Consult a lawyer about separating your finances before she goes through all the money. Please don't wait.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Valerie Gibson of Cheyenne, Wyo. regarding the kindness of strangers reminded me of a similar act of kindness bestowed on my husband and me earlier this year. We are both in our late 60s.

My husband considers himself an excellent driver, but actually drives like someone watching a tennis match. He constantly gazes at landmarks, left and right, instead of keeping his eyes on the road.

We were traveling along I-75 from Atlanta to Biloxi, Miss., in our motor home when I noticed a piece of metal lying in the road. I thought. my husband had seen it too. By the time I yelled, it was too late. He ran over the piece of metal, and it embedded itself under the vehicle.

As we continued driving, we could hear the metal scraping the damage it had done. We stopped at a restaurant, and my husband surveyed the damage. The piece of metal had embedded itself in our septic tank, which was a relief to us, as we had feared it had penetrated

My husband worked furiously for about 10 minutes, but couldn't free the metal object, nor could he bend it to stop scraping the roadway. Just when we had given up, several people left the restaurant and noticed our dilemma. One young man left the group and came to our aid, but was unable to dislodge the metal either. He said he lived only a short distance away, and would go home to get a hacksaw.

Within 30 minutes, he was back s promised. He crawled under the vehicle and spent the better part of 15 minutes sawing away at the metal. He finally was able to saw off enough to stop the scraping. Although I offered, he would not accept a cent for his help. He said he hoped if his parents were ever in a similar predicament, someone would assist them.

Even more remarkable about this young man helping us is that he is white and we are black and

CANADIAN — The Harris Ratings has Canadian favored by six points against West Texas High in a District 6-2A contest Friday night in Stinnett.

Both teams have 2-2 records. The Wildcats opened the district season last weekend with a 35-7 win over Highland Park.

Canadian is ranked No. 41 and West Texas High No. 71 in Class 2A.

Ranked No. 1 in Class 2A is Celina, which has a 5-0 record.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Padres declined Tony Gwynn's $6 million option for next year, but they still want the eight-time NL batting champion back at a lower salary.

The 40-year-old Gwynn batted .323 this season, his 19th in the majors — all with the Padres. But a knee injury sidelined the 15-time All-Star for all but 36 games. It was the fifth time in 11 seasons that an injury shortened Gwynn's season.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) -Andy Pettitte stood on the mound, talking to himself and mentally blocking out a stadium full of screaming fans.

That mental intensity is partly why he has been so successful in the postseason, and he needed every bit of that focus Wednesday night as he pitched the struggling New York Yankees back into their playoff series against the Athletics.

Pettitte allowed five hits in 7 2-3 scoreless innings, surviving a goofy pratfall by second baseman Luis Sojo, and the Yankees defeated the Oakland A's 4-0 to tie their best-of-five AL division series at 1-1.

"He focuses and gets him self in this trance, I guess you can say, and he does a lot of talking to himself. He has meetings with himself on the mound very often," Yankees manager Joe Torre said. "Most of the time he's locked in, and he was tonight."

The playoff series moves to New York for Game 3 on Friday night, with Oakland's Tim Hudson (20-6) facing Orlando Hernandez (12-13).

Pettitte, who has had some of his best performances in the postseason, said he's always talked to himself during games' - mostly to remind himself about pitching mechanics.

"Obviously, I feel like I get a little more locked in in playoff games," he said. "You try to see the pitches. You try to see them before you make the pitch."

Pettitte's performance and a radically revamped New York lineup helped the two-time defending World Series champions snap an eight-game losing streak. The Yankees, derided by critics as over-the-hill champions, also ended a 10game road losing streak.

"We've been down. We've been on a terrible skid," Pettitte said. "I hope this will get us going. This is a big game for us, obviously. We've really been struggling."

Glenallen Hill, in the lineup as part of Torre's effort to shake up a moribund offense, broke up a scoreless game with an RBI single, and Sojo followed with a two-run double as the Yankees scored three in the sixth.

The hits by Hill and Sojo came with two outs and immediately after an intentional walk to struggling Paul O'Neill, who has not had an extra-base hit since Sept. 6. After the left-handed O'Neill walked, righties Hill and Sojo connected off right-hander Kevin Appier.

Hill was 1-for-12 in the postseason before that single.

"O'Neill's been there so many times in the past and come up with big hits for them," A's manager Art Howe said. "We knew he'd been struggling, but we didn't want to let him beat us. Glenallen did."

his playoff luck was about to change.

Bonds, the three-time MVP whose career has been defined by regular-season prowess and postseason futility, kicked off his latest playoff appearance with an RBI triple and a key single in the San Francisco Giants' 5-1 victory over the New York Mets in the opener of their NL series.

For Bonds, a 2-for-3 performance was an 'early answer to his critics. He hit .200 in four previous seasons in the playoffs, but he had the fourth multihit playoff game of his career.
