TEXAS AND DEMOCRACY.
In the midst of hard times, when victory was certain regardless of organized efforts to bring it about, some 28,000 Texans reached into their pockets and extracted $178,000, which they contributed to the democratic war effort.

It is in the midst of the democratic national campaign committee in Austin would be closed August 1. Its work finished, Director Roy Miller said that very few of the contributors to the fund had asked for political jobs. They have had their reward, he says, in the "splendid achievements of our great President."

Texas was very much in the picture in last year's triumphant march of democracy. It contributed the largest majority of any state, and was second only to New York in campaign contributions.

52 Texans In World's Fair Rodeo Events

Program Opens At Soldier's Field In Chicago August 25

CHICAGO — Renowned longer than a century for the prowess of its cowboys, the Lone Star again this year leads in entries to the greatest rodeo ever held in the history of western sports. Announcement was made that 52 champion cowboys of Texas are to be seen in action at the World's Fair Rodeo here, which marks the climax of a Century of Progress theme, at Soldier's Field beginning Aug. 25.

Champion calf-ropers are John Bowman of Trent, Allen Holder of Garden City, Dick Shelton, giant antic rodeo cowboy, Chester Byers and Roy Mathews of Fort Worth. Charlie Jones of Van Horn, Billy Klingman of Foyak, Jess Perkins of San Antonio, Pecos Meadows of Cristobal, Billy Wilkerson of Cheyenne, Billy Nix of Rankin and Elmer Jones of Midland.

Lone Star steer-riders include in addition to several of the foregoing, Carl West of Perrytown, Dick Griffiths and Bill Watts of Fort Worth, Red Yale of Alvord, Carl Dykes of Goldflake, Jimmie Olsen of Henryetta, Bill Tils of Fort Stockton, John Lindsey of Byers and Junior Caldwell of Seymour.

Preliminary Rounds In Singles Finished

Annual Net Scrap Starts

Bill Savage Victorious Over Bill Reagan 6-1, 6-4

The local city tennis tournament finished the single preliminary rounds Saturday morning with some excellent exhibitions. Bill Savage beat Earl Reagan 6-1, 6-4; Joe Davis defeated James Smith 6-1; 6-2; Bond Anderson won by default from Jimmy Jones. Joe Galbraith was fortunate in drawing a bye. C. W. Corley and Felton Smith were others benefited by a bye.

Featured Players In R-R Midsummer Screen Festival

Loretta Young, Guy Kibbee, Guy D'Orsay, Lyle Talbot, Harold Huber and Farina

The R & R Midsummer Screen Festival, a five-unit road show program assembled by Robb and Rowley Theatres as an ideal weather entertainment for the entire family is now being presented at Ritz Theatre, remaining through Monday.

McCamey May Enter League

Big Spring Idle Today As Odessa Plays Midland

McCamey has made a bid for entering the Eastern division of the West Texas league, it is understood, but not official announcement has yet been made. Odessa is scheduled to play Midland today for the lead. Big Spring will be idle. In the western half of the league, Barstow is leading, with Wink, Pecos and Fort Stockton trailing in the order named.

Loretta Young, top, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who have leading roles in "The Life of Jimmy Dolan," feature unit of the R & R Midsummer Screen Festival, playing at Ritz Theatre. Other units are "Noah's Ark," the Silly Symphony that rated four stars in Liberty for July 15th; Mickey Mouse as "The Mail Pilot"; "Krakatoa"; and Paramount News. A richly varied program.

R-R Midsummer Screen Festival, A Five-Unit Road Program, Opens For Two-Day Run At Ritz Theater

The R & R Midsummer Screen Festival, a five-unit road show program assembled by Robb and Rowley Theatres as an ideal weather entertainment for the entire family is now being presented at Ritz Theatre, remaining through Monday.

This program is clean, wholesome, genuinely amusing, and in spots breath-takingly amazing, according to Manager J. Y. Robb. The unit program includes two Walt Disney productions, Mickey Mouse in "Mail Pilot," and the Silly Symphony, "Noah's Ark." Both are brand new releases. Both are subjects of universal appeal. Besides these will be seen "Krakatoa"; "Heads Up," the feature unit; and News.

The popularity of Mickey Mouse transcends that of any human star. Mickey rates his "in the affectionate" of youngsters and old folks. He is the favorite of film stars. In his newest subject, Mickey is a mail pilot whose job is rendered more hazardous by an air pirate who pursues him in a bat-like plane. The action, of course is in the clouds, and is as thrilling as it is amusing.

In the Silly Symphony is pictured the inside story of the outside help of Old Man Noah had in building the Ark. Man has put domestic animals and the docile elephant to work, but Old Man Noah played no favorites. He puts them all to work in a most amusing and most efficient manner, to the detriment of the spectators. It is all in beautifully technicolor. "Noah's Ark" was rated Four Stars in Liberty Magazine, July 15th.

But the height of amazement is reached in "Krakatoa." In 1883, fifty years ago, "Krakatoa," a volcanic island in the Java Sea, blew itself completely off the face of the earth, leaving a hole 1000 feet in the ocean bed. Recently Krakatoa awakened with herculean force and shot geysers of steam, tongues of flame, tons of lava through the tremendous water pressure to a height of a quarter mile above the surface. Dutch scientists caught this terrific spectacle, this grandest of all fireworks display in history, with sound-recording cameras. This one not only sees but hears the cataclysmic fury of this gigantic undersea volcano. It is a sight never to be forgotten.

The feature unit brings Doug Fairbanks, Jr., Loretta Young, Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, Lyle Talbot, Fifi D'Orsay, Shirley Grey, Harold Huber, Farina and other kids—a notable all-star cast—in "Heads Up" ("The Life of Jimmy Dolan") a heart-warming action story of a public idol who was reported killed in an accident after he had unwittingly killed a man, and who chose to remain dead to save his life; then was betrayed to the fate he had escaped in the performance of a kindly deed.

The program is made complete by projection of the latest Current News.

CHAPTER 35
Mary's employer noted the sudden change in her. It was too obvious to ignore. Those who had seen her with Dick and now saw her with him no more, understood and pitied her. Those who knew little about her affairs, thought she was ill, and even ventured kindly advice about her working too hard.

Pfeiffer noted, too that Dick Baldwin stayed away from the office. Any transactions with his house were made through other mediums. He added two and two and made four—it was that simple.

It was really quite a tragic drama that unfolded itself there before his eyes. He knew nothing about the forces that set it in action. But the pathos of it gripped him strangely.

Twice each week there were great pans of fresh flowers in Mary's office. They became a familiar fixture. He never knew that Mary used them for an object of discipline to her rebellious soul. They became an emblem to her. At first, she had thought to return them, destroy them or send them to some hospital. Then, it occurred to her that they might serve a purpose.

For awhile, every time she looked at Frazier's flowers, scorn and rebellion gripped her. Later the silent, magic balm of their message soothed her. She almost began to hate Dick. The flowers became significant of what she had been spared later by having the real man she loved, revealed to her before it was too late.

She began to arrange the flowers and care for them with a faithful interest. She saw that they had fresh water twice each day so that often one bouquet was yet fresh when another arrived and she would have two bouquets in the room.

Not that she suffered less. The days were a constant torment and the nights no less than torture periods. She never stayed in the city for the evenings except when she worked late.

Her mother understood and sympathized, but had no philosophy to offer in so strange a problem.

"It's not worth your grief, Mary. I can see it's hurting you. Still, what can I say to Bonnie? I don't know as I want either of you to risk your happiness with Dick, if he can be that changeable. I never would have thought of it when that's a fact."

"Just because I love him is no reason he should love me, I suppose," Mary defended him bravely.

"No, still, it should be, naturally. I don't think so. I believe there are more people loving the wrong one than there are matched up right," thoughtfully.

"Oh, how! Just because there's a scandalous lot of divorces going on all the time."

don't think most of the people who get divorced love anyone but themselves. The motive is usually selfishness or greed to unrestrained passion. I think that most of the people who love the wrong person, suffer in silence and try to make the best of things. Even when their love is reciprocated, they hesitate usually to refrain from degrading their love with scandal, gossip and the unhappiness of others involved. People who love completely are never selfish—their love for another is protective."

Jennie Vaughn studied her elder daughter, amazed at her clear, calm philosophy. More than anything else, it convinced her of Mary's love for Dick. No person could so analyze love who had never known it. With the maternal instinct, she wished sadly that she might help Mary. But there was nothing she could do. Denying Bonnie to Dick would not give him back to Mary. Neither would she want him that way. Mary would adjust her life and find happiness, somehow. She could depend upon Mary.

But no one knew the struggle that Mary was having to make that adjustment. Life seemed so empty. What was the use? Sometimes she would stop abruptly at her work, arrested by some thought or memory that haunted her. She would stare blankly into space for minutes, or the tears would flood her eyes and she would have to escape to the rest room to dash cold water on her face and get herself in hand.

The nights were even worse. Through most of them her thoughts could have echoed: "While you're out having fun and I hear the clock striking one, I'm crying myself to sleep. Wondering who's kissing you I hear the clock striking two and I'm crying myself to sleep. I try to close my eyes and make believe we've never been apart. And in my dreams it seems you're calling me sweetheart."

Wondering where you can be I hear the clock striking three, and I'm crying myself to sleep. Mary had said very little to Bonnie. The younger sister had evaded and avoided Mary at first. But when she discovered that Mary was not going to accuse and denounce her, she affected a neutral air of cheerfulness during the little time they were together.

After Mary learned that Bonnie had been out with Dick on several occasions, she managed to say, calmly enough, "You and Dick hit it off pretty well, don't you?"

Bonnie looked at her with quick suspicion and bristling with defense. "We get along all right. Always did, didn't we?"

"So I noticed. Don't think I mind, Bonnie. I am glad if you can be happy together if you don't anything away from me. It was something I didn't have," enigmatically, Bonnie was puzzled. "Well, if I want to know it, he burns me up; and he's crazy about me, too."

Allowables Continued For Texas Fields

East Texas Situation Left Until After Code Submitted

AUSTIN—The Texas railroad commission held a hearing of operators in all oil fields of the state, save the great East Texas pool, with a view of considering new production allowables.

A hearing of East Texas producers was continued for "at least 30 days" on recommendations of Ernest O. Thompson, member of the commission, and James V. Allred, Texas attorney general, who are in Washington.

Thompson and Allred wired the commission that it was desirable to hold the East Texas hearing in abeyance pending promulgation of an oil code by the federal administrator, who is now preparing the document.

C. V. Terrell, who, with R. D. Parker, chief of the oil and gas division of the commission, enforcer of conservation statutes, held the hearing, announced that testimony of East Texas producers, for use in drawing a probable new allowance for that area, would be taken about August 17.

The hearing for other fields was merely routine, the commission accepting the records of testimony given in former hearings for each one of the fields having continuing production orders while the allowables of others would expire on August 1. It was considered likely the commission would issue orders renewing all field allowables as they now stand.

Sunday School Class Of Miss Hayden Given Picnic

Miss Helen Hayden entertained her Sunday school class with a picnic at the City Park Friday evening at six o'clock.

The members of the party played games and watched the children in the wading pool for a while before they ate. Sandwiches, fruit salad, iced tea, potato chips, and cake were the main items on the menu.

Those who attended the picnic were: Virginia Hilliard, Camille Koberg, Velma Jackson, Willie Belle Pottou, Mae Battie, and the hostess.

IRVIN MASTERS GONE

Irvin Masters, who has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Masters, left for Quantico Saturday, with his wife and daughter. His departure was hurried because his wife was not feeling well.

Before he left, the Masters family had a reunion with all children present. In addition to Irvin and his family, John Masters and his wife and two children, there were Mrs. Lee (Eula) Eubanks of Stanton and three children, and Mrs. E. E. (Alice) Shanks and two children of Pyote.

Watson Expresses Confidence That Big Spring People Will Cooperate To Carry Out Recovery Plan Purposes

By C. F. WATSON
Manager Big Spring Chamber of Commerce

The purpose of the Industrial Recovery Act as outlined by the president in his radio address Monday, July 24, has as its major purpose, and objective the relief of unemployment, improvement of standards of labor and to increase the consumption of agricultural and industrial products by increasing purchasing power.

Business and industry are being given the privilege and opportunity to adjust differences and irregularities in prices, methods of competition, opening and closing hours and general practices that have caused a loss by operation overhead. This opportunity is laying before the business man a temptation to first adjust competitive business practices, price cutting, etc., and forget the main purpose of the Recovery Act—placing additional men to work. Another temptation will be to raise prices. If this is carried to an extreme it will absorb the wages earned by the new group of laborers and thus defeat the program. It is the belief and hope of the president that the additional buying power created by the increased employment will more than absorb the cost of extra employees, that business will profit by increased buying power.

This volunteer blanket agreement as outlined by the president is being received by the business interests of Big Spring to date in a most enthusiastic manner. I have no fear of the outcome of this campaign when all our people are informed and thoroughly conversant with the purposes and desires of our president.

Warning
I am inclined to suggest this warning, however, that we do not lose sight of the main purpose for which the whole program is arranged, that we do not allow ourselves to become too interested in details of preparing codes of competition and opening and closing hours, but that we devote our first efforts in complying with the employment question.

It is my desire as manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce to render every possible assistance to every line of business in Big Spring and our trade territory in making preparations to comply with both the letter and spirit of the Industrial Recovery Act.

I have received a number of codes recommended by different organizations and they are almost identical in that they suggest fair wages, reasonable working hours and proper and ethical relations between competitors.

If your particular business or craft has not held a meeting to date you should see that a meeting is arranged to which every man in your line of business has been invited. At no time in the history of our country has our government called on its people to forget their differences and their petty methods of competition and greed and unite in the spirit of the

General Johnson Warns Against Unauthorized Use Of NRA Emblem

WASHINGTON—A warning against unauthorized display of the national recovery administrator's "Blue Eagle" insignia was issued by Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator.

In a formal statement, Johnson pointed out that the emblem is the property of the government and may be reproduced or displayed only when specific authority is given.

All business houses signing the agreement with President Roosevelt to increase wages and shorten working hours will be permitted to display the insignia and consumer stickers for home windows or automobiles, wind shields will be permitted for those buying from "NRA" stores.

Publication will be authorized to reproduce the emblem in advertising upon written statement by the advertiser that he is complying faithfully with the president's blanket agreement.

Prison Sentences And Fines Provided For Code Violation

Each Day Constitutes Separate Offense With Fine Under Recovery Act; Federal Trade Commission Penalties Also Applicable

WASHINGTON (AP)—Both fines and prison sentences are provided by the national recovery law for violators of codes of competition.

There is a fine of $500 for each violation of the terms of a code approved and promulgated by the president. No provision is made under this section for imprisonment, but each day that the offense continues is regarded as a separate violation.

Also, violation of any standard set by a code is considered a breach of the federal trade commission law, punishable like any violation of the anti-trust statutes.

When the president finds it necessary to impose licenses on any business because of activities contrary to the policy of the industrial law, persons who continue operating their business without obtaining a license are liable to be fined not more than $500, or imprisoned not more than six months, or both, each day again to be considered a separate offense.

Prohibitionists To Attack Ratification Of Repeal In Conventions Held By States

Plan Divulged After Decision By Supreme Court Of Maine; Leader Says He Expected U. S. Highest Court To Throw Out Ratification

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Prohibitionists revealed that they hoped to block repeal by contesting the legality of state conventions in which the repeal amendment was ratified by delegates elected at large.

The move contemplated by the days is based on a decision of the Supreme Court of Maine, which held that delegates to the state convention must be elected by districts.

The dry challenge was directed specifically at New York and New Jersey. Canon William Sheafe Chase outlined the reasoning under which delegates-at-large conventions approving repeal are to be challenged.

"I am reasonably confident," Chase told the United Press, "that the elections in all states where the law authorizing them was similar to that in New York and New Jersey will be declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court. Delegates-at-large were preponderant in the conventions as authorized in 100 out of 100 states."

"These elections will be declared void in my judgment on the same ground stated by the Supreme Court of Maine in reply to an inquiry from the senate of that state. The court said then: 'It is evident, therefore, that in every constitutional convention of which we have knowledge, delegates have been chosen, not at large, but from the various localities.'"

ing within the state. By this method, the requirement has been met that the members of the body selected to make modifications of the fundamental law should fairly represent the people whom they serve.

In view of the foregoing, we do not deem it permissible for the state under the terms of article five of the federal constitution, to organize a convention wherein the delegates entitled to participate are elected at large."

Chase said on the basis of that decision it would be contended that conventions in most of the states which have acted so far were not truly representative and they were "not deliberative bodies as was clearly contemplated by those who wrote the constitution."

"I am confident," the Supreme Court will uphold this view and that repeal of the 18th amendment will be defeated," Chase said.

Attorney Who Helped Rid Capitol Of Carpet Bagger Governor Dies

HOUSTON, (AP)—Judge Robert Hamilton Ward, 86, who laid the foundation for Texas' land laws and served as assistant attorney general of Texas, died at his home here Saturday.

He was author of the measure outlawing prize fighting in Texas and as a member of the Travis Hildes helped oust the carpetbag governor, E. J. Davis and install Governor Coke after the Civil War.
