AIRLINER

ways. Faced with the fact that they could not fly, and the airport area was surrounded by these types of roads, the airline company approached Britten.

The I-40 Trading Company property adjoined the airport property with no roads between them. The airline company asked Britten if they could lease part of his property to park the planes until they were approved to fly.

Britten agreed and the airplanes were towed with a very large diesel tractor to the I-40 Trading Company area.

Just when it appeared that things could not get worse, the airline company was besieged by lawsuits, and financial woes that forced them into bankruptcy, and the company was dissolved.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch, Britten was faced with the decision as to what to do with his new 'inheritance.' He decided to put the airliners on the internet and sell them. After a few hits and learning about some local ordinances, he realized that his problem was more than he had anticipated.

After a period of time, parts were sold and two of the aircraft were pretty well stripped, one to the point that the tail section dropped.

Britten is still uncertain about the future of the planes. He has considered maybe something along the lines of a tourist attraction. Some of the other ideas on the internet included a restaurant.

Britten said, "If you have any ideas or if you are interested in the purchase of one, or all of the planes give me a call or contact me on the internet. Britten also said the moving expenses were the responsibility of the purchaser.

Who knows, maybe someone would like to buy one and put it in their back yard for their kids to play on! Maybe even turn it into a restaurant and name it "The Airliner Diner."

Until that sometime comes, Vince Britten is left pondering what to do with his "INHERITANCE".

coverage, said Claudia Stravato, CEO of PPATP of Amarillo. "We urge uninsured families to make sure their children are receiving basic screening by checking with appropriate authorities to determine if they are qualified for either of the federal programs," Claudia Stravato, CEO of Planned Parenthood, she added. Basic birth control services for adolescents is covered under Medicaid.

Medicaid coverage usually begins on the first day in the month of application and may even pay for services provided up to three months before the application month. Once accepted, the child will be checked periodically to determine if the child still qualifies for Medicaid coverage.

People in the news ...

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sean "Puffy" Combs is being sued by a woman who says a Beverly Hills home she rented from the hip-hop mogul for $25,000 a month was "infested with insects, rodents and vermin."

In her lawsuit filed Thursday in U.S. District Court, Inge Bongo also alleges that a broken front door lock forced her to use a dog door to come and go.

Combs' spokeswoman Nathalie Moar called the lawsuit "completely frivolous," adding that Bongo owes Combs $50,000 in back rent and about $40,000 in damage she caused to the home.

"If anyone had a right to sue, it was Mr. Combs," Moar said.

Bongo said she moved into the home after signing a year lease in November 1999 but moved out last August.

The lawsuit seeks unspecified damages.

Bongo also said that while at the house she received death threats addressed to Combs and a message warning the rapper to stay away from girlfriend Jennifer Lopez, who was with him at a New York City nightclub when a shooting erupted there on Dec. 27, 1999.

Combs is on trial in New York on charges of gun possession and bribery as a result of that night.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer LeAnn Rimes is telling fans on her Web site that she is "deeply sorry" about her new album.

"This album was made without my creative input," Rimes wrote in a Web site post on Thursday about "I Need You," which was released by Curb Records on Jan. 30.

"It consists largely of unfinished material and songs that didn't make other albums. ... I want to make abundantly clear to you that this album is not a reflection of myself as an artist, but is solely the conception of Curb Records, and for that I am truly and deeply sorry."

Rimes, 18, has filed a lawsuit against Curb in an effort to get out of her contract. She said she signed with the label when she was 12 and didn't understand its terms.

Rimes is also suing her father, Wilbur Rimes, and former co-manager Lyle Walker, who together used to manage her career. She claims they have stolen more than $7 million from her. Wilbur Rimes has filed a countersuit against his daughter's company, LeAnn Rimes Entertainment Inc.

Songs on the "I Need You" CD include a duet with Elton John, "Written in the Stars."

Rimes became a star at 13 with the hit "Blue."

NEW YORK (AP) — Lounging in a hot tub is relaxing, but four days in the water would turn anyone into a prune.

That's how long it took to shoot a scene for the new horror flick "Valentine," in which a serial killer attacks a bikini-clad Denise Richards with a drill while she's sipping champagne in a hot tub.

"The first day I was excited," Richards told reporters recently. "I was like, 'Oh, I get to sit in a hot tub all day,' because we were in Vancouver and it was a little cold, but then I could not wait to finish it."

Richards ("Drop Dead Gorgeous") didn't want to do the scene nude, so she wears a black bikini.

"I would be a hypocrite if I said I'll never do nudity, but I've been offered things with it and I've turned them down. If I felt that it was pertinent to the part and all that jazz, then I would consider it."

"Valentine," which also stars Jessica Capshaw and Davidorean ("Angel"), opened in theaters Friday. It's the story of four San Francisco women who are stalked by a killer over Valentine's Day weekend.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gregory Hines says recreating Bill "Bojangles" Robinson's famous stair dance routine for the Showtime movie "Bojangles" was "fun and exhausting."

At the end of the movie, which airs Sunday (8 p.m. EST), Hines does the classic routine alongside footage of the real Robinson, who danced with Shirley Temple in such 1930s movies as "The Little Colonel."

"I discovered that he was left-footed and that he would start all of his steps on the left side. And I'm right-footed," Hines told the AP. "But I can say that the exhaustion was accompanied by so much satisfaction."

While he disliked having to put on Robinson's stereotypical facial expression — "his style, smiling and the eyes wide open, that was the toughest thing to do" — Hines said some aspects of the biographical role were easier to cope with.

Normally lithe, the 54-year-old actor-dancer ate ice cream and cookies and "pasta at 10 o'clock at night" to gain some weight and appear more like Robinson.

"That was fun," he said with a laugh.

Citizen Clinton making transition

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. (AP) — Less than two weeks into his "transition therapy" in suburbia, Bill Clinton finds himself out of touch with world events.

"It's amazing how oblivious you can get to what's going on," the former president said. "I'm not sure I'm up to speed."

In his first expansive comments to American reporters about life after the White House, Clinton said his semi-cloistered time in Chappaqua — sleeping late, walking the dog, skimming rather than studying the newspapers — has helped him recover from the strain of leading the country.

"I've got eight years of accumulated, real exhaustion," Clinton said Thursday, occasionally stopping to sign autographs and pose for snapshots with Chappaqua residents outside a restaurant. "Everybody I talked to said, 'You're going to go up there and you're not going to have any idea how tired you are.' For the first time ... I can get up when I want to get up."

Not that he's a slugged. He said he has been getting up about 8 a.m.

"I try to sleep," he said. "I'm really trying to get myself in good shape and with this great kind of therapy — transition therapy — working on the house, putting the books up and the pictures and making sure everything's in working order, that's been just great."

The rust may be coming off soon as Clinton seems ready to re-enter public life, maintain his influence and make some money for himself and others. He also tried to deflect criticism on a controversial issue: the cost of his new office space in the city.

At a news conference Friday, Clinton said a new philanthropic foundation will pay part of the rent on the 56th floor office he expects to rent in midtown Manhattan. The William J. Clinton Foundation notified the federal government in a letter Friday afternoon that it will pay $300,000 of the annual rent on the $600,000-plus office.

Clinton's decision to locate in such a pricey neighborhood had drawn fire from Republicans and watchdog groups, even prompting some talk of placing a cap on what former presidents may spend on office space after they leave the White House.

At the news conference, Clinton said a high rent is "part of being in New York, and I'm proud to be here, but I don't want the taxpayers to be taken for a ride on the lease."

Clinton met on Friday in New York City with Indian-American businessmen, high-tech CEOs and India government officials based in New York to plan fund-raising for victims of the Jan. 26 earthquake in India.

He will speak on Monday — for $100,000 — at a brokerage convention in Florida, and next Saturday at a synagogue. His longtime friend and fund-raiser Terry McAuliffe is expected to be elected this weekend as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

If Chappaqua is any guide, the public is ready to see him. The former president's occasional expeditions for lunch quickly draw crowds.

When he exited a restaurant Thursday, he mingled for nearly an hour, signing baseballs and shaking hands with children.

"I've got all these ideas about what I'm really interested in," Clinton told reporters. "Yeah, I'll write a book. But what I'm really interested in is what my kind of public service is going to be, here in America and around the world, over the next however many years I live. So I've got to think that through."

West Texas A&M Division of Agriculture to host 'Agricultural Water Management' course

CANYON — West Texas A&M University Division of Agriculture and Continuing Education Center will conduct a one-day course, "Agricultural Water Management," from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Friday, Feb. 16, in Virgil Henson Activities Center. The course will be taught by Dr. B.A. Stewart, distinguished professor of agriculture and director of WT's Dryland Agriculture Institute; Dr. Clay Robinson, assistant professor of soil science; and Drs. Greta Schuster and Bonnie Pendleton, assistant professors of integrated pest management.

Spiraling fuel costs are cutting into budgets throughout the High Plains. Homeowners, renters, businesses and consumers are feeling the pinch. But consider the plight of the farmer, whose virtual existence may be dependent upon groundwater and, more importantly, the power that must be generated to bring it to the surface.

Faculty in the Division of Agriculture at West Texas A&M University are well aware that optimum management of water resources in the face of inflated fuel costs is crucial, and they are doing something about it.

"With the price of natural gas skyrocketing, understanding water management is no longer just a good idea; it will be the essence of survival for many farmers on the High Plains of Texas," said Dr. Don Topliff, head of the Division of Agriculture. "Our faculty have been keenly aware of this issue and have developed this water management course to give farmers and the ag industry the tools they need to negotiate these tough issues."

"It is critically important to use our water efficiently," Stewart said. "As our water table declines, the irrigation portion of our agriculture is going to continue to decline. We've got to better manage what we've got left and utilize our rainfall. Rainfall is the only source of water for dryland farmer. If you are an irrigated farmer, rainfall is still your most important source of water."

The course will focus on the basic principles of water conservation and water-use efficiency. Specific subjects will include rainfall probabilities and distribution, the Potential Evapotranspiration Network, crop residue management, soil fertility, precision agriculture, crop-livestock systems and integrated pest management.

Cost of the course is $50. Farmers, county agents, resource conservationists, crop consultants and other professionals interested in maximizing the use of precipitation and limited irrigation resources are encouraged to enroll in the course.

Continuing education units will be awarded to participants attending the course (four for soil and water, two for soil fertility and two for integrated pest management), Stewart said, which is particularly valuable for crop advisers who need periodic re-certification in Texas.

For more information or to register, contact the Continuing Education Center at (806) 651-2037.

Fee hearing to be held at university

CANYON — Students and other interested persons are invited to a public hearing regarding proposed fee increases at West Texas A&M University. The hearing will begin at 1 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 8 in the Jack B. Kelley Student Center Commons.

The agenda will include proposals to raise Designated Tuition (formerly called Board-Authorized Tuition and General Student Use Fee) from $22.50 to $27.50 per semester credit hour and to raise the Student Medical Fee from $26.60 to $29.26 per semester.

According to Dr. Russell C. Long, WTAMU president, West Texas A&M will remain one of the most affordable senior universities in the state in spite of the increases.

"As of right now, the state ceiling on Designated Tuition is $40," Long said. "Even with the increase, we will remain well below the maximum and will continue to be one of the best, if not the best, educational values for the money in the state."

Designated Tuition funds may be used for a number of purposes, including the construction and renovation of buildings and grounds.

Opinion

Bush should push for all of his agenda

The new president must strike while the iron is hot.
As he takes over the presidency, George W. Bush is showing an admirable willingness to stand up to those who insist that, because he won in such a tight race, he should run away from the moderately conservative agenda he outlined during the election. Close election or a landslide, the winner gets to pursue the policies he prefers. The best way to gain the offensive and set the tone for an effective administration is for President Bush to pursue a handful of objectives that conform to his campaign promises. In this light, he should choose early goals that are achievable given the realities of a closely divided Congress and consensus that has been built around some issues. And, he needs to enunciate some broader principles that might not be readily achieved this year. This can set the stage for bolder initiatives later. Here are a few suggestions of the achievable variety:

Jump-start tax cuts. During the campaign, Bush promised $1.3 trillion in tax cuts over 10 years. He should be aggressive about pushing for that number as Democrats show willingness for tax relief. With the economy slowing and a possible recession starting, now is the time to get America moving again. Elements of a tax package should include repealing the estate tax, repealing the marriage penalty and expanding Roth IRAs.

Reform asset seizure laws. Asset forfeiture or seizure laws authorize law enforcement to seize property suspected of being involved in or the fruit of drug crimes without charges being filed, then placing the burden of proof on the property owner to prove the property is "innocent." They undermine respect for private property, due process and the rule of law.

New directions in foreign and military policy. Military experts are rightly worried about reductions in morale, recruiting, training, equipment and supplies, due largely to overcommitment to conflicts of marginal or no relationship to genuine national security. The military problem can be addressed with more money, but it won't be resolved until a clearer and more focused foreign policy is formulated.

Saving Social Security. The tanking stock market has jolted Americans who have 401(k) savings plans. Which means, this isn't the best time to push a proposal that would allow individuals to invest part of their Social Security dollars in the market. Nevertheless, that's the only realistic solution to save a system that will eventually start paying out more in benefits than it receives in "investments." Bush needs to make the case for reform, current downturn notwithstanding.

Spring housecleaning. The federal government is overgrown and overcostly. President Bush could appoint a commission similar to the Grace Commission of the 1980s, which identified waste, fraud and abuse during the Reagan administration, but with a broader mandate — nothing less than rethinking what government should do and how it should do it, even as most private companies have had to restructure to meet challenges of an information age in a global economy.

Reader feedback goes with job

Yipes! I've been beaten up lately by some of our readers. But, it goes with the territory.

One person brought up a good point I think should be explained regarding our Sunday newspaper.

As is the practice of a number of small daily newspapers in Texas, the Sunday edition of The Pampa News actually goes to press with its second section on Saturday morning followed shortly thereafter with the first section.

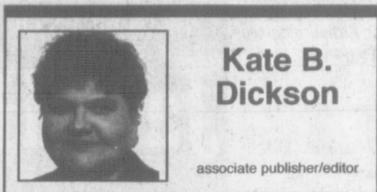

This usually is not a problem with regard to coverage of most things but sometimes it does make a difference. Such was the case with the presidential inauguration date falling on a Saturday.

I lamented that fact to co-workers at the time saying I wished the inauguration had fallen on Friday or Sunday so our coverage would be better of the important event. And, having lived in a state where a favorite son was elected president, I was fully aware of the extra-special pride many of our readers feel toward Bush.

Actually, I went so far as to laugh and say what probably will happen is that someone will think I left the inaugural event coverage out because I am a Democrat.

Sure enough, someone didn't have the facts, jumped to a conclusion and wrongly accused me of just that.

While I do write about my political beliefs in my personal column on the editorial page — I have a clear understanding of what is news and what is not news. What opinion I hold has no relevance to the news. If I hadn't figured that out way long many years ago, I wouldn't have lasted in this profession for more years than I like to count. Besides, I also take a great deal of pride in my ethics with regard to fairness.

Kate B. Dickson
associate publisher/editor

Another question posed by the writer concerned the play of the news ... where it goes in the paper. Her opinion was that much of the coverage of Bush has gone inside ... there again, because I am a Democrat.

Here is why most of the coverage regarding Bush has gone inside ... as well as coverage of Clinton and most other state and national news.

When publisher L.W. McCall and I came to town about three and a-half years ago we were given the directive to turn The Pampa News into a more "local" paper, thus the almost-all local front page is part of that.

As with most things, some people like that, others don't.

I certainly understand if different readers have differing viewpoints about what they want "their" paper to be ... and we appreciate the interest and input. Often these ideas translate into news or feature stories or force us to take a look at practices and policies. And all that is good.

What we often find is readers simply want more — more of everything — local news, state news, national news, photos and so on. But we only have a finite amount of space — space that is determined daily by the amount of advertising bought in a particular issue. It has to be that way. We operate on a budget just like you do at home.

Let's see. What else? Oh, yea. The lady I made nauseous.

A few weeks back I published a spoof of what was to be George Bush's inaugural speech. I wish I could take credit for the clever writing of it but it was an Internet offering from who knows where.

A lady who proudly said she "never" reads my column on Sunday said the spoof column just happened to catch her eye and she read it ... thus the source of her gastric distress! And, furthermore, she said in a telephone message, I should move to New York or Washington to be with the Clintons or just go back from whence I came — Arkansas.

I don't think so. I am getting somewhat attached to the panhandle.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Feb. 4, the 35th day of 2001. There are 330 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Feb. 4, 1801, John Marshall was sworn in as chief justice of the United States.

On this date:

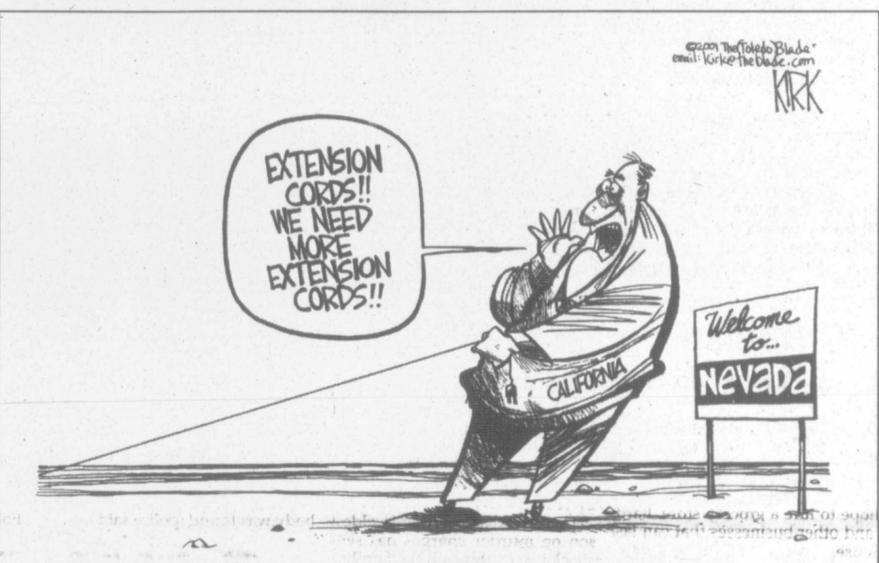

In 1783, Britain declared a formal cessation of hostilities with its former colonies, the United States of America.

In 1789, electors unanimously chose George Washington to be the first U.S. president.

In 1861, delegates from six Southern states met in Montgomery, Ala., to form the Confederate States of America.

In 1941, the United Service Organizations came into existence.

In 1945, President Franklin Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet leader Josef Stalin began a wartime conference at Yalta.

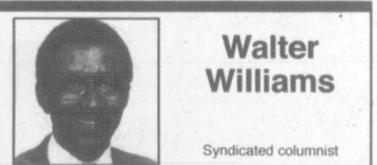

Defining government cruelty ...

George Bush's secretary of labor nominee, Linda Chavez, withdrew her nomination under charges of hiring a worker and not paying minimum wages plus applicable taxes. This was just character assassination by those who didn't want to see her confirmed because of her political views. Chavez simply provided Marta Mercado shelter and other assistance, and when Linda was out of town, Mercado might feed the dogs and water the yard.

This isn't the first time that such a charge landed a political appointee in hot water. Zoe Baird, President Clinton's first attorney general nominee, was accused of not paying her domestic servants the minimum wage and not paying their Social Security taxes. Chavez had employed housekeepers and nannies — and paid all applicable taxes. The charges leveled against Chavez raise issues of far greater importance than her confirmation.

Consider this. I'm willing to work for you for $8 an hour. The value you place upon what I can do for you is $8 an hour. Thus, you're willing to hire me and I'm willing to work for you. But not so quick. Suppose the government says you must pay Social Security taxes of $2 for each hour you hire me. That means it now costs you $10 an hour to hire me. Will you hire me? The value of what I can do for you is still worth $8 an hour, but I now cost you $10 an hour. You'd probably see this as a losing economic proposition and not hire me. That doesn't mean that you won't hire someone; it just won't be me, unless you're feeling charitable. You'll hire someone who can produce $10 worth of value each hour.

Walter Williams

Economists call this phenomenon the excess burden of taxation. Certain taxes can produce losses over and above what the government gets in revenue. They create net losses to society, known as "dead-weight" losses associated with exchanges foregone as a result of the taxes. In my example, I lose employment at $8 an hour that I could have had were it not for the $2 an hour Social Security tax.

Here's a compassion question. Who is more compassionate: the person who hires me, pays me $8 an hour and forgets about the Social Security tax, or the person who says, "Sorry, Williams, it's going to cost me $10 to hire you, and you don't have the skills necessary to be able to produce $10 an hour's worth of value, so forget it?"

You might argue that as compassionate as it might be, hiring me and not paying Social Security taxes is breaking the law. That means we're on the horns of a dilemma: whether to break the law and help a person or obey the law and hurt a person.

Social Security is a form of government-mandated wages and has unemployment effects. Instead of the government telling you that you had to pay $2 an hour in Social Security taxes, it could have told you that if you hire me I must be paid a minimum wage of $10 an hour. You wouldn't hire me for the same reason: the value of my hourly output is $8 but it'd cost you $10 to hire me. The government might have mandated that you pay me $2 an hour's worth of medical insurance benefits. Again, you wouldn't hire me since it costs you $10 to hire me while the value of my hourly output is only $8. Of course, Congress might have legislated that I have greater skills, but miracles should be left up to God.

So who's more compassionate: Those who obey laws or those who disobey? My answer is it all depends on what the law is.

Honest man feared in nation's capitol

How perverted the country has become is illustrated perfectly by the confirmation hearings of John Ashcroft, the president's choice for attorney general.

The criticism of Ashcroft? Well, he's a Christian; he doesn't approve of abortion; and he believes in the Constitution. Worse, he once said some kind words about the South and such Confederate heroes as Robert E. Lee.

Take the feminists (please — I can't stand them). They have embraced Bill Clinton, who has consistently abused his political positions to abuse women. These feminist harpies, by God, stood by their man even though he's guilty of abusing an intern and has been accused of rape.

But Ashcroft, a faithful, loving husband, is an anathema. Why? He doesn't approve of women killing their babies for the sake of convenience. Conclusion? Feminists are more concerned with the mass killing of babies than they are with the welfare of women.

Then steps up Sen. Ted Kennedy. This man is a drunk, a womanizer, a cheater in college and a man who abandoned a girl in the back seat of his car to drown. Had he not been a Kennedy, he would have faced manslaughter charges.

And this is a guy who questions Ashcroft's integrity on the unsubstantiated fear that Ashcroft would not enforce laws of which he personally disapproves? What a joke. Kennedy is the scowling, not Ashcroft. Kennedy is unqualified to be attorney general or even a county prosecutor.

Charley Reese
Syndicated columnist

And then there's Sen. Joe Biden, the Delaware bigmouth. Biden, you probably won't recall, not only plagiarized the speech of a British labor leader, he plagiarized the man's life. When Biden's lies were found out, he had to bow out of the presidential primary election in disgrace.

But, of course, he's worried about Ashcroft's integrity.

Looking at the crowd of critics brings to mind the cynical statement of a guy who said, "Once you learn to fake sincerity, you've got it made in politics."

Perhaps the treatment of Ashcroft is inevitable. After all, we've become the only country where it is impossible for a politician to disgrace himself so much that it would cost him his career. Lying, adultery, obstruction of justice, abandoning young women to drown and lying about it, stealing speeches, stealing another person's biography, taking money from any and all sorts of shady characters, seducing male pages, living with a male prostitute — none of that has proven to be an impediment to a successful political career.

Therefore, if it is now impossible to criticize people for their vices, then the only thing left is to criticize them for their virtues. Poor Ashcroft. Imagine being an honest, God-fearing, wife-loving, patriotic American who still believes in the rule of law and in living a moral life.

The truth is that no one in Washington is more feared and hated than an honest man. That's how corrupt the nation's capital has become. They are deathly afraid of any man or woman who can't be bought, intimidated or swayed by public-opinion polls.

The ideological left, of course, looks upon anyone who has a different opinion as an enemy of life. The ideological left has this odd notion that once its members decide on a position, the issue is permanently settled.

It's a toss-up which of the two presents the best example of moral degradation — Washington or television. No wonder they love each other.

First Lady returns to Crawford ranch for two-week stay

CRAWFORD, Texas (AP) — Laura Bush will be busy for the next couple of weeks.

But it won't be in Washington. The first lady will be directing work at the family's ranch, having returned to her home state Friday for the first time since her husband became the nation's leader.

Bush went first to El Paso, where she attended memorial services for Tom Lea, a Texas artist and family friend who died Monday. She arrived in Crawford later in the day.

"Her trip was especially made to honor Tom Lea," Mayor Carlos Ramirez said.

Bush will oversee renovations and decorate at the family ranch seven miles from here. She has planned no public appearances.

Still, this town of 700 was abuzz. A sign outside the Coffee Station said, "Welcome home, first lady Laura." Residents decided to leave up the red, white and blue star decorations affixed to downtown light poles before the election.

"We don't know what to expect, but hopefully we'll at least see the motorcade," said Kim Williams, whose family owns Abel Service Co., a heating and air conditioning business.

President Bush is expected to join his wife at the ranch after a Feb. 16 meeting in Mexico with President Vicente Fox. The Bushes plan to return to Washington, D.C., Feb. 18.

George W. Bush bought the 1,600-acre ranch in 1999. He had been looking for a permanent home since being elected to his first gubernatorial term in 1994, when the Bushes moved into the governor's mansion in Austin and sold their Dallas home.

Suddenly more people started making the trek to Crawford, a once-thriving agricultural community some 20 miles west of Waco. The number of visitors steadily increased over the Texas governor's presidential campaign, election and inauguration.

Sam Goolsby, who lives in nearby Speegleville, drove to Crawford on Friday to get directions to the ranch — which locals have dubbed "Bushland" — so he could take his out-of-town relatives.

"They're coming to see me, but I know they'll want to see the ranch since I'm so close," Goolsby said.

But those who travel down the winding two-lane road may be disappointed. The property is fenced, has one gated entrance down a dirt road and nothing indicating who lives there. Secret Service agents are stationed at the gate 24 hours a day.

Signs warn motorists not to park, stop or stand along the road about three miles near the ranch. Drivers face a fine of up to $500 if they don't move their cars.

Charles Mattlage, who owns 150 acres across the street from the Bush property, hopes to capitalize on the area's notoriety by leasing some space in his field to the media, from $200 a day.

Others in town also are hoping Bush's name will spur economic growth. The Coffee Station sells Bush T-shirts, and its cash register has a scrolling message: "Welcome to Crawford, the home of President George W. Bush."

Tourists account for about 10 percent of business at the Coffee Station, which opened in October as a gas station, convenience store and diner, said owner Kirk Baird.

Last month he and other business owners formed the Greater Crawford Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture.

"With more tourists coming in and some businesses talking about coming here, we felt we needed to direct what's going on," Baird said.

A new antique store is to open this summer, and there's talk of a bed-and-breakfast inn being built. A restaurant may open downtown if owners obtain a liquor license.

Chamber of commerce officials hope to lure a grocery store, hardware store, coin-operated laundry and other businesses that can last long after Bush leaves the White House.

Crawford has no hotels, fast-food restaurants or banks, and that may not change.

"There's only so much a little town can take," Williams said.

Clintons to pay for gifts they received last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trying to erase blots that marred their exit from the White House, Bill and Hillary Rodham Clinton say they will pay for nearly half the $190,000 in gifts they opted to keep just as they were moving out.

Clinton also says he won't let taxpayers be "taken for a ride" paying for his pricey post-presidential office in Manhattan.

Clinton's first days as a former president and his wife's debut as a senator from New York have been tainted by three controversies: their decision to tote thousands of dollars worth of china, rugs, flatware and other gifts out of the White House; Clinton's pardon of fugitive financier Marc Rich; and his decision to rent a taxpayer-financed, $600,000-a-year office overlooking Central Park.

On Friday, the Clintons spoke out on all three issues.

The William J. Clinton Foundation notified the government in a letter that it would pay half the annual rent for Clinton's Manhattan office. Standing outside in New York City, Clinton said high rent is "part of being in New York, and I'm proud to be here, but I don't want the taxpayers to be taken for a ride on the lease."

Secondly, Clinton took full responsibility for the pardon of Rich, a commodities trader who fled to Switzerland, evading 51 counts of tax evasion and fraud. A congressional committee begins hearings next week into the propriety of the pardon, although it is irreversible.

"On the merits, I don't think it was a wrong decision," the former president said. "I regret all the political flap."

And the Clintons sought to put to rest the controversy that swirled around their decision to take $190,000 in gifts, including two coffee tables and two chairs worth $7,375 that they got from New York songwriter Denise Rich, the former wife of the man Clinton pardoned and a big Democratic contributor.

"To eliminate even the slightest question, we are taking the step of paying for gifts given to us in 2000," Clinton said in a statement.

Disappearance, son's murder charges grip town

HELENVILLE, Wis. (AP) — More than two years have passed since three family members left their rural home on a fishing trip to northern Wisconsin, never to be seen again.

But the mystery of their disappearance lifted somewhat this week when authorities confirmed that skeletal remains found in a North Carolina forest in December 1999 were those of Allen Krnak, 55, who vanished with his wife Donna, 52, and their 21-year-old son Tom.

The arrest of the man's eldest son on murder charges has sent shock waves through the family's small town, a farming community of about 2,000 people, 40 miles west of Milwaukee. The Krnak's A-frame house remained deserted Friday with old, wet flyers stuffed in a mailbox and one window boarded up.

"I can't go anywhere on this farm without seeing that house and thinking about it. It's just been hell," said Marsha Van Valin, whose sheep farm surrounds the Krnaks' home.

Hunters found Allen Krnak's body in North Carolina, 600 miles away from where the family was last reported to have been seen by their son Andrew on July 2, 1998.

A ring, found in the dirt nearby, has since been identified as Donna Krnak's wedding ring. Searchers also recovered remains of a dog. The family's cocker spaniel, Hunter, disappeared with them.

"You wish it hadn't ended this way, but there was always the thought that this is the way it would end," said Donna Krnak's former boss, John Fairfield. "There is some relief that there is an end."

Andrew Krnak, 32, who has since changed his name to Derek Anderson, told police in the past that he had no knowledge of his family's disappearance.

He was arrested Thursday on first-degree murder charges at a Milwaukee halfway house where he has lived since serving a 17-month sentence for falsifying student loan documents. He attended college near where his father's body was found, police said.

He left home at the age of 18 and studied at a small community college in North Carolina and at Western Carolina University, where he earned a degree in psychology and made the dean's list in postgraduate studies in 1995.

Mary Gay, his aunt, said the family lost track of their eldest son when he left home in 1987. "In those 10 years, if you ever asked about Andy, they were very closed-mouthed," said Gay. "They didn't like to talk about him at all."

Following the family's disappearance, Anderson was arrested for drunken driving and driving without a license.

Relatives successfully pressured him to relinquish control of his parents' assets, and in July 1999, he was sentenced for lying on a federal student loan application.

That term began after he finished a 15-month sentence stemming from violation of probation for a 1988 conviction on illegal entry and theft.

Anderson remained in a Milwaukee jail Friday.

Sprawl opponents fear development wiping out farms

After watching Southern California areas such as the San Fernando Valley evolve from orange groves to tract housing, David Zollinger is trying to prevent the same thing from happening to the state's fertile San Joaquin Valley.

The Turlock, Calif., farmer sold the government an easement on his 74-acre farm in Delhi to permanently block development of his almond and peach groves. With $368,000 from the state and federal governments, he invested in new water pumps and sprinklers to irrigate the sandy soil.

"In essence, you're drawing a line in the sand," he said. "This area has become a target for urban sprawl, and I don't like that."

The federal government acknowledges it overestimated how much farm land was developed during the mid-1990s. But even after the numbers were corrected, sprawl opponents say the revised figures still represent a persistent threat to agriculture, wildlife habitat and scenery.

"The numbers might not be as eye-popping, but they are still very significant," said Deron Lovaas, a Washington, D.C.-based representative of the Sierra Club's campaign to fight sprawl.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture revealed this month that officials overestimated the amount of farm land developed from 1992 to 1997 by about 30 percent nationwide. The figures dropped from 16 million acres to 11.2 million acres during that period.

In California, the revised figure was 553,400 acres developed, out of a total of 6.2 million acres of crop land.

Because the mistake resulted from a problem with computer software, it won't mean policy changes at the USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service, which tabulates the figures with the Iowa State University statistical laboratory.

The federal agency strives to protect farm land through tactics ranging from buying easements to fighting erosion.

"The areas that we're concerned about, we're still concerned about," said Anita Brown, a California spokeswoman for the agency.

Her agency spent $10 million last year on easements to protect farm land.

In California, the most desirable farm land on the market is in the area between San Francisco and Sacramento, where commuters are squeezing out crop land.

"The very same places that grow our food — they have great climate, water — are also places where people want to live," said Kathryn Kelly, executive director of the Yolo Land Trust.

Her group has protected 3,512 acres since 1988 and is working on 8,000 acres more this year, she said.

But critics contend that government has no business subsidizing farm land, either through easements or zoning that discourages development, when an abundance of food leads to other federal programs subsidizing farmers growing the crops.

"There is no scarcity of farm land in the United States — there is a glut," said Jerry Taylor, director of natural resource studies at the libertarian Cato Institute. "If people want open spaces, they are perfectly able to join together to buy them."

Wheat Producers Board 15th biennial election set

The Texas Wheat Producers Board (TWPB), engaged in wheat research, market development and services designed to add to the value of the crop, will hold its 15th biennial mail election between March 30 and April 12, David Cleavinger, farmer-elected chairman of the organization, has announced.

The board was formed in 1971 in the Panhandle-North Texas Area and expanded statewide by a producer referendum in 1985. Six-year terms of five of the current 15 board members expiring at this time include: District I, Cagle Kendrick, Stratford; District II, Tommy Womack, Tulia; District III, Fred Dwyer, Wichita Falls; District IV, Jack Norman, Howe and Ken Davis, Grandview. All board members with expiring terms are eligible for re-election.

In 1971, the board was formed by producers as a self-help program to enhance the value of wheat in Texas. The 1.5-million acre crop produced 31.4 million bushels for a value of about $37 million. Texas peak harvested acres of 5.8 million in 1985 produced a 187-million bushel crop valued in excess of $800 million. Changes in government programs, particularly the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP), and the state-wide drought which Texas has experienced over the past three years have reduced the production to 66 million bushels for a value still in excess of $275 million.

Any farmer producing wheat in Texas is eligible to vote for a board member for the district in which he resides. Counties include: Dallam, Sherman, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hansford, Roberts, Moore, Hartley, Hutchinson, Gray, Carson, Potter, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Briscoe, Swisher, Castro, Farmer, Hale and Floyd.

Cleavinger points out that any person qualifying to vote in the election may place his name in nomination for a six-year membership on the TWPB by application to the organization, signed by himself and at least 10 other persons eligible to vote in his district in the election, at least 30 days (February 8-March 12) prior to the election final (April 12) date, in order to have his name placed on the ballot.

The election will be held by mail ballot, which will be provided to all eligible voters 14 days prior to the election, Cleavinger said. He also indicated that any producer qualified to vote who does not receive a ballot 14 days before the election date, may obtain one at Agricultural Extension Service offices as provided by the Texas Commodity Referendum Law.

In addition to the five members with expiring terms, other TWPB members are David Cleavinger, Wildorado; Gary Murphy, Dawson; Scott McGarragh, Perryton; C.L. Edwards, Panhandle; Bob Beakley, Ennis; Foy Gibson, Bend; David Moore, Dumas; W.R. Moore, Jr., Munday; Ben Scholz, Wylie; and Ralph Sides, Childress.

Applications for names to be placed on the ballot should be sent to the organization's headquarters office, 2201 Civic Circle, Suite #705, Amarillo, Texas 79109.

The Texas wheat industry has an impact on the state's economy of nearly $2 billion annually. Approximately 6 million acres of wheat are grown state-wide on an annual basis of which nearly 3 million are harvested. Texas leads the nation in producing dual purpose wheat, wheat used as grain for human consumption and forage for livestock. Because most Texas wheat producers grow wheat for grain and forage, the TWPB is supporting research and education to help address the problems of disease and insect, drought and late freezes.

Cattle inventory down

AUSTIN — The inventory of Texas cattle and calves totaled 13.70 million head on Jan. 1, 2001, down 1 percent from last year's inventory of 13.90 million head, and 3 percent below the 1999 inventory of 14.10 million head.

"Drought conditions during late spring to early fall forced continued liquidation of cattle herds," said Robin Roark, state statistician.

Texas continued to rank first in the nation in total number of cattle and calves with 14.1 percent of the total United States inventory.

Beef cow inventory, at 5.47 million head, was up 1 percent from last year's total of 5.43 million head. Milk cow inventory, at 345 thousand head, was down 1 percent from the 1999 total of 350,000 head.

Total inventory of all cows that have calved was 5.81 million head, increased 1 percent from last year's total of 5.78 million head.

Beef replacement heifers totaled 720,000 head on Jan. 1, down 5 percent from the 2000 total of 760,000 head. The milk replacement heifer inventory was up 11 percent at 100,000 head. Last year's total was 90,000 head.

Texas's inventory of steers 500 pounds and over totaled 2.43 million head, down 6 percent from the 2000 total of 2.58 million head. Total inventory of heifers, steers and bulls under 500 pounds was 2.64 million head, down 1 percent from the 2000 total of 2.68 million head.

The 2000 calf crop totaled 5.10 million head, down 1 percent from the 1999 crop of 5.15 million and down 4 percent from the preliminary estimate of 5.30 million.

The United States inventory of all cattle and calves totaled 97.3 million head on Jan. 1, 1 percent below last year's inventory of 98.2 million head, and 2 percent below Jan. 1, 1999.

All cows and heifers that have calved totaled 42.6 million head, slightly below the 42.8 million on Jan. 1, 2000 and 1 percent below the 42.9 million two years ago.

Beef cows totaled 33.4 million head, 1 percent less than a year ago, while milk cows were up slightly from a year ago at 9.20 million head.

Beef replacement heifers, at 5.59 million head, were up 2 percent from the previous year. Milk replacement heifer numbers were up 1 percent to 4.05 million head.

The 2000 calf crop was estimated at 38.6 million head, down slightly from both 1999 and 1998.

Pork producers consider state-level checkoff plan

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The apparent end of a national pork promotion program has some farmers considering a state-level checkoff to replace it.

Hog producers nationwide voted recently to end a mandatory payment, called a checkoff, of 45 cents per every $100 of a pig's value when it is sold. The money went to the quasi-governmental National Pork Board and paid for promotion, research and consumer information.

The National Pork Producers Council, or NPPC, partly funded through the program, and several other groups are suing in federal court, seeking to keep the checkoff program alive.

The Minnesota Pork Producers Association, or MPPA, is not joining in the lawsuit, but was addressing the impact of the national vote at its annual meeting in Minneapolis on Monday.

A state checkoff would come out of payments for hogs sold to Minnesota markets and would go to the association, but farmers who don't want to contribute could apply to get their money back, said David Preisler, association executive director.

The Nebraska Pork Producers Association already has voted to support a state checkoff, and South Dakota farmers are considering one, too.

A Minnesota checkoff would be voted on by the state's hog producers, who narrowly favored keeping the national checkoff in a 1,593-1,477 vote.

"The checkoff virtually did nothing to support my operation," said opponent Jim Joens, whose farrow-to-finish operation in Wilmont was wiped out in 1999 by pseudorabies, a swine virus. He now buys pigs from a Nebraska producer and then sells them, in addition to raising cattle and about 500 acres of crops.

Joens would rather use the $700 he paid into the checkoff program last year on things that "directly affect my farm and my bottom line."

The results of the national referendum — 15,951 to 14,396 to end the program — was a "huge statement for agriculture, that hey, even though you might be just a person, your vote does count," Joens said. "I don't think anybody realizes how big a deal this is. It's huge. It's going to set the precedent in this country for other commodities."

Another opponent is Paul Sobocinski, a producer who works part time with the Land Stewardship Project, a nonprofit group that promotes stewardship for farmland and sustainable agriculture.

"I think NPPC promotion efforts have failed family producers," he said. "What's most important ... is what is it doing for the producer's bottom line?"

Some producers, however, say they will lose the benefits the national checkoff provided.

Larry Liepold, who heads the MPPA's research committee, said farmers will notice a gap in promotion and research.

Minnesota received about $900,000 last year from the checkoff program. About $192,000 of that was budgeted for research, Liepold said.

"Research, education or promotion doesn't add a penny to the price of hogs," he said. "What they do ... is they give the producer more tools to work with. ... In the end, those things do add to the bottom line."

Preisler said the biggest impact hog producers will see is the loss of national pork promotions on both coasts. "That's where most people are. And we don't raise hogs there," he said.

State agency warns cane growers against illegal burns

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Farmers ignored environmental rules and released unhealthy amounts of smoke into the air during their annual sugar cane burns, according to a warning issued by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission.

The state investigated the fields after a massive November burn blanketed the Rio Grande Valley and northern Mexico with thick smoke.

Farmers are being unfairly blamed for illegal fires started by vandals, a spokesman for the growers said.

Growers set their fields on fire every winter to singe away extra leaves in preparation for harvest.

In a letter to Rio Grande Valley Sugar Growers, the state warned farmers to stick to the burning rules, and to avoid creating a "smoke nuisance."

THANK YOU!!!

There aren't enough words to express how grateful we are to our family and friends! This last year has been tough, but, we by God's grace and the support of all of you has been the key. Thank you for allowing Vance's memory to go on. There have been so many memorials given in his name, and there you see his legacy still lives on. May God greatly and richly bless you as you continue to bless others. Vance will be missed, but he sat the example and we are to follow it!!

Thank You Again God Bless You All, Family of Vance Bruce

LEGACY

*His life was his choice.
Every action generated an effect.
Haven't we all heard the words
"What you sow is what you reap?"
Vance chose actions that spread
Happiness and success to all.
He chose to throw around his family,
Friends, and even strangers
An energy that returned like kind—
Happiness joy, light, and good feelings
To be accepted, enjoyed, and returned.
We, something unaware of these gifts,*

*Yet such always given and received with freedom.
Vance learned to sow the seeds of life.
He chose to give those gifts bestowed unto him
By our gracious Redeemer,
And now He chosen Vance
May the effects of God's Choice
Be our choice also.
Let us give and receive;
For it is an unending circle.
Vance has left this circle of hope for us to manifest.
Let us learn to give by receiving
That was Vance's gift to us:*

This is his legacy.

IRS tax tips ...

One stop for tax help

Facing a lot of different tax questions this year? IRS experts have pulled together an overview of common tax issues in one convenient place — Publication 17, "Your Federal Income Tax," available at www.irs.gov, contains a vast array of helpful information in one guide.

From stock sales to student loans, people can get many of their questions answered in this 276-page publication. A sampling of the items covered in 38 chapters:

- Need help deciphering the mysteries of the Roth IRA? Try Chapter 18 for retirement accounts.

- Do you have a new child in the house? See Chapter 35 for the Child Tax Credit.

- Are you selling stock for the first time? Check Chapter 17 for capital gains. If the markets have been tough and it's time to unload a loser, capital losses are there, too.

Do you need to report the profit on your home sale? See Chapter 16 for some good news. Generally, you only need to report the sale of your home if your gain is more than $1-50,000 ($500,000 if married filing a joint return).

And the best part about Publication 17? It's free.

To get a copy, visit the IRS web site at www.irs.gov under the "Forms and Pubs" section. It can be accessed directly at ftp.fedworld.gov/pub/irs-pdf/pl7.pdf. Or it can be ordered by calling 1-800-829-3676.

Don't overlook home mortgage points

Did you buy or build a new home in 2000? Many new homeowners don't know they can deduct points paid on home mortgage loans. The IRS reminds homeowners this can really pay off because some home mortgage points are fully deductible in the year they are paid.

To fully deduct mortgage points in the year paid, the following requirements must be met:

1. Your main home secures your loan.
2. Paying points is an established business practice in your area.
3. The points paid were not more than the amount generally charged in that area.
4. You use the cash method of accounting. This means you report income in the year you receive it and deduct expenses in the year you pay them.
5. The points were not paid for items that usually are separately stated on the settlement sheet, such as appraisal fees, inspection fees, title fees, attorney, fees, and property taxes.

6. You used your loan to buy or build your main home.

7. The points were computed as a percentage of the principal amount of the mortgage.

8. The amount is clearly shown on your settlement statement.

9. The funds you provided at or before closing, plus any points the seller paid, were at least as much as the points charged. You cannot have borrowed the funds from your lender or mortgage broker.

More information on buying, owning or selling a home is available from the IRS. Call 1-800-829-1040 or look for more information on the IRS Web site at www.irs.gov. Publication 530, "Tax information for First-Time Home owners," and Publication 936, "Home Mortgage Interest Deduction," are available on the Web site.

Letters to the editor

Self-appointed executioner on loose in community

To the editor,
 Could this be your family?
 It's 5:45 a.m. Friday morning without the thought of my youngest daughter on my mind. Little rest or sleep has come my way since a gun shot rang out at 2 a.m. Thursday morning killing her dog in it's own back yard with my daughter in her bedroom only a mere 10-feet from where this cold-blooded heartless execution took place.

My daughter cannot close her eyes without hearing a gunshot, Rex's almost human like screams and rushing to him as he lays dying in her arms. I think the lord above that the bullet did not stray or ricochet the six inches it could have and hit my kids that early morning. It was very sad to bury Rex, but in the same tune, I was glad this was not one of my innocent, animal-loving children that this grave was dug for. Who was this self-appointed executioner and will they come back again senselessly pointing a gun in the yard and try to kill the other dogs remaining or will they miss and take a human life instead?

I wonder if this killing was a vendetta against my child's beloved dog. Rex was involved in an attack on a miniature horse last year. I could understand the execution of a vicious or rabid animal causing damage to another person's property but our beloved pet was in the safe confines of a fence as is required by law.

Being a mother, I do have a fear that my daughter's life could be in danger by someone's senseless, careless firing of a gun within the city limits. If the bullet that killed our beloved Rex had missed, it could have very well have traveled into the room where my daughter lay sleeping in her bed. I guess Rex did protect her to the end by taking that bullet.

Since when can we use firearms to destroy domestic animals for fun or sport within our city? Next time it could be your dog, or worse, your child in danger by some person with no regard for law or life in any form. If this is the case, anyone can shoot your dogs or other animals with no repercussions or regard for the laws of our city that are made to protect our lives and property.

Will this self-appointed executioner come forward? I think not. Only cowards use the cover of night and lateness of the hour to hide behind. When can our property, animals and children feel safe when there are guns being used right in our peaceful town? Our police force, which is over-worked and under-budgeted to the point that it cannot do this by themselves. We as citizens must stand up and support and assist our officers in such matter. This time it was our family pet, next time it could just as easily be your pet, or worse, your child, since this person remains anonymous to our inquiries and still has a firearm.

Americans must know world-view

To the editor,
 John Ashcroft should be sworn in as attorney general of the United States. (Hopefully by the time you read this, he has been.) I still have a point I would like to make. He is a very distinguished public servant with personal standards that are derived from his belief in Almighty God, the Creator and Sustainer of Life. Has it become a criminal act to acknowledge that you believe in the God who created everything?

If you do not agree with the standards that John Ashcroft affirms it does not diminish the truth. Some will disagree that this is even the issue with those who oppose his confirmation. I think it is the main issue. It does not disqualify him from serving as attorney general. It should make him all the more suited to fulfill the responsibilities of the office.

Wake up America! We are in a battle for the soul of our nation. When men or women of Christian convictions are considered unqualified to be attorney general or serve in public office because of their Christian convictions, it is time to rise up and stop this outrage. We have winked at the moral decadence of our past president and given him the highest approval rating of any recent president. How can we continue to approve moral depravity in our leaders and question the qualifications of one of the most respected Christian public servants, John Ashcroft?

This is not the last battle in this new administration. It is the continuing saga of two world-views in conflict. Do you believe that God created man or do you believe that we evolved by chance over billions of years? Your answer to that question is the basis for your world-view. Adhering to which of these two world-views results in a safer and morally productive society? Think about it. Then support those who hold your view regardless of their political affiliation.

Old times at Pebble — Gogel contending, Woods chasing

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The bad memories of Pebble Beach are almost out of Matt Gogel's system.

When he returned in June for the U.S. Open, he was reminded of the missed greens and blown opportunities that led to his 40 on the back nine, which opened the door for a spectacular comeback by Tiger Woods in the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

"I thought about it more than I thought I would," he said. Gogel is in position this weekend to bury those memories for good.

A year after he became a mere footnote in the growing legend of Woods, Gogel tied the course record at Poppy Hills with a career-best 62 Friday that gave him a 3-stroke lead in the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

"It would be an awesome feeling," Gogel said when asked about the possibility of winning the tournament. "But I've still got one more course to play in my rotation. Then we'll worry about Sunday on Sunday."

Right now, Woods is the least of his worries.

On a Poppy Hills course that's usually a pushover to players with far less ability, Woods struggled with all aspects of his game in a 1-over 73. It was the second time in his last five rounds that he was over par.

"At least I broke 80," he said.

He'll have to do better than that to keep Gogel and a slew of other players in his range. Woods was at 5-under 139, eight strokes back with 18 players in front of him.

Woods' sprained left knee wasn't the problem, it was the par 5s — five of them at Poppy Hills, which explains why it's the easiest of the three courses in the rotation. He bogeyed the first one and was fortunate to make par on the next one.

He has never played Poppy Hills particularly well, so it was no surprise that he let out a heavy sigh on his 13th hole and said, "It feels like Groundhog Day."

Indeed, it seemed like last year never ended. Gogel was back in the picture, a bogey-free round of 62 in which none of his 10 birdies was longer than 20 feet.

He was at 131 and had a 3-stroke lead over Masters champion Vijay Singh. A year ago, Singh was only 1 stroke back going into the final round and finished in a tie for second with Gogel, 2 strokes back.

Woods was 8 strokes behind after 36 holes, the same position he was in last year.

Maybe it's just a coincidence that comedian Bill Murray is back at Pebble Beach. He starred in the movie "Groundhog Day" about a TV meteorologist who repeated the same day over and over.

Gogel can only hope for a better outcome.

"It would be a heck of a story if it continues this way," he said. "But we're only halfway through. It's a long way until Sunday."

Gogel was in control last year, cruising through the Cliffs of Dooms until he played the final eight holes in 4 over, and Woods put together a comeback that ranks among his best, an eagle-birdie-par-birdie finish.

Gogel has seen the replay of Woods' holing that wedge shot from the fairway on No. 15 more times than he would like. He also has reflected on his own mistakes, which haunted him the rest of his rookie season.

After a nearly flawless round on another gorgeous day, the 29-year-old golfer from Kansas has given himself another chance.

"I was anxious to come back because I love this place," Gogel said. "It wasn't like I was coming back for unfinished business."

Singh, who wound up tied with Gogel, 2 strokes behind Woods last year, also played Poppy and had a 68 to get to 134.

The group at 135 included Kemper Open champion Tom Scherrer and Frank Lickliter, who was 1 stroke behind the late Payne Stewart after 54 holes two years ago and never got a chance when the final round was washed out.

That shouldn't be a problem this year, not with that stranger known as the sun gracing all three courses.

"This is the most sunshine we've seen in the last five years, all packed into two days," Lickliter said after his 66 at Poppy Hills.

Groom falls to Hedley

HEDLEY — Hedley took a pair of basketball victories from Groom in District 3-1A action Friday night.

In the boys game, Josh Collins had 22 points to lead Hedley to a 44-26 win.

Leading scorers for the Tigers were Russell Conrad 13 points and Garrett Britten 6.

It was Groom's first district loss after six wins.

Hedley won by a score of 55-43 in the girls game.

Rebecca Howard had 14 points and Lauren Hill 13 to lead Hedley.

The Tigerettes were leading by one point after three quarters, but Hedley outscored Groom 28-15 in the fourth period.

Leading Groom were Candace Bohr with 16 and Amanda Conrad 15.

The Tigerettes are 5-2 in district and 19-7 for the season. Hedley improved to 7-0 in district and 25-3 for the season.

The increase in medical-service fees is due in large part to the increasing cost of medical supplies, according to Dr. Don Albrecht, vice president for student services.

Albrecht, Long and Gary Barnes, vice president for business and finance, will present the proposed fee increases at the public hearing.

The Texas A&M University System Board of Regents will review the proposals at its March 22-23 meeting. If approved, the increases will be in effect for the fall 2001 semester and will cost a student enrolled in 15 semester credit hours an additional $77.66.

Infants welcome at PRMC

Judy Shook, RN, demonstrates the infant warmer located in the patient's room. Each LDRP room is equipped with a warmer and high tech equipment to monitor the mother's and baby's progress.

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

At first glance, the rooms appear to be in an elegant hotel. A much closer inspection reveals these tastefully and attractively decorated rooms are for delivering babies.

Located in the newly completed women's department of Pampa's Regional Medical Center, the Labor, Delivery, Recovery and Post Partum rooms, rival any birthing facilities in the Texas Panhandle.

Commonly referred to as LDRP rooms, these facilities have some of the most modern medical equipment in the area.

When a mother-to-be arrives at the local hospital and thinks the delivery of her baby is imminent, nurses in the women's department assess her condition. If the patient is to be admitted, she is sent to one of the five LDRP rooms. Delivery time varies with each patient's condition.

Each room has its own specialized equipment for the mother and infant to be delivered. Housed behind decorative cabinets in the room, the needed equipment is ready to be utilized when needed for the patients.

The LDRP rooms are just what their name indicates: the labor of the mother, delivery of the infant, recovery and post-partum care. The specialized beds allow the mother to be as comfortable as possible during the labor, but are also functional in that parts are detachable and the bed is changed within a few seconds for a delivery. It is complete with stirrups.

"Everything is in the room for a normal delivery," said Judy Shook, RN. Monitors for both mother and baby which are needed during labor are there for each individual patient. A computerized monitor with a keyboard to type in patient information is located in each room. Shook said the modern method saves hours of charting as well as making the patient information accessible for the patient care team at the hospital. "We can print out the information and have it ready for the patient's permanent medical record in a matter of minutes," she said.

A delivery room is easily accessible to the birthing unit in case it is needed. It is within a few feet of the unit in the event an emergency caesarean section is needed. Also close by is an ultra-sound machine to monitor the unborn infants.

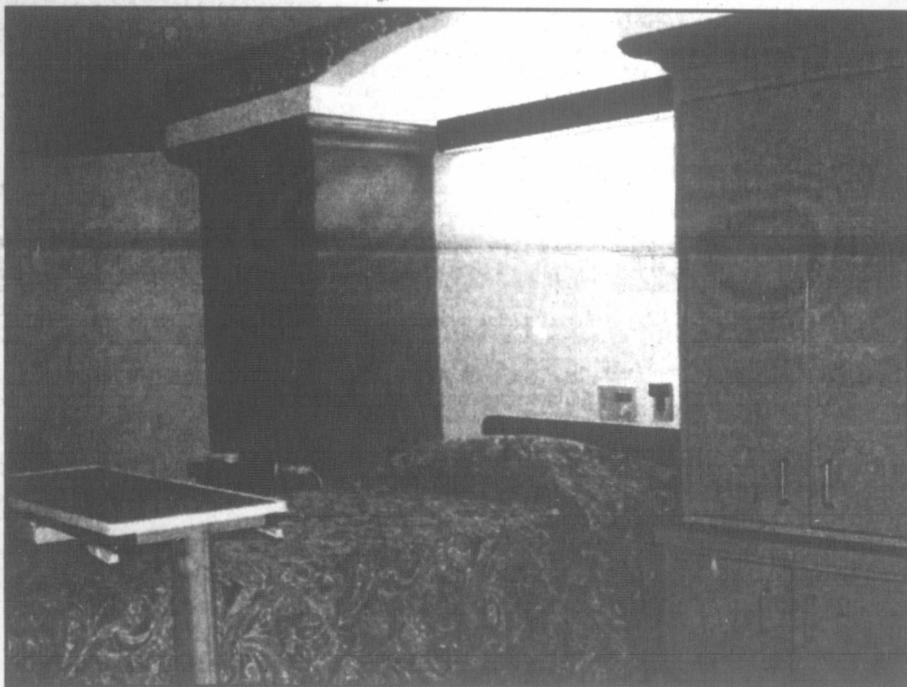

The local medical facility has approximately 30 births a month, and is growing.

One new facet the health care team is very proud of is the state-of-the-art security system installed in the recent renovation. A transmitter is attached to each new infant born immediately after birth at the local facility. Alarms will sound at all exit if someone without the correct code attempts to leave with a baby, said Shook. "We are very proud of this feature," she said. "We've never had an infant taken from here, and we don't want it to happen."

Dr. Ann E. Harral is the only local doctor engaged in obstetrics at the present time. A doctor from Dallas does come to Pampa to give her an occasional weekend off, and the local hospital is actively searching for another physician to deliver babies.

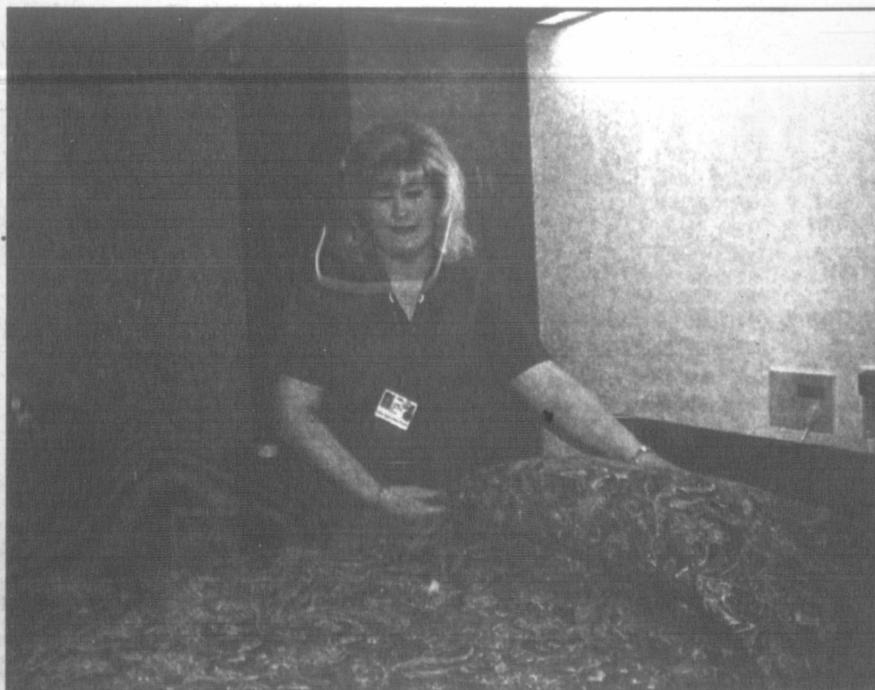

"I am so proud of our local nurses and the new facility," she said. "We have had so many compliments on the new department. Many of our moms who have delivered in Amarillo hospitals are so pleased with the new facilities and are returning to Pampa."

"Pampa is fortunate to have the state-of-the-art modern facility. We encourage people to come see it," she said.

Attractive cabinets in each LDRP room at the Pampa facility conceal much of the supplies and equipment used for patients during their hospital stay.

Attractive bedspreads give the patient rooms a home like atmosphere which is welcomed by the patients. The cold, stark hospital rooms of generations past are a contrast to the rooms which welcome patients today.

Museum curator wields artistic eye, cordless drill

By HELENA RODRIGUEZ
Abilene Reporter-News

ABILENE — Amber McClendon often comes home from work in her dusty pants with aching muscles from climbing ladders, changing light bulbs and lifting heavy artifacts all day.

Being the new curator of exhibitions and collections at the Grace Museum can be hard on one's back. For McClendon, though, who owns the toolbox in her house and likes to go around fixing things with the cordless power drill she got for Christmas, the work is a tonic.

"The job is challenging, but fun. You have to be creative, but I think of it as playing all day," said McClendon, 26, who began her job at The Grace in August.

McClendon interned at the Grace Museum for three years while attending Abilene Christian University. She was also an intern at the old Jail Art Center in Albany. While in college, McClendon was a nursing student for three years, but decided she wanted a job that would allow her to explore her creativity more. She switched her major to history and took every museum class available.

For a year, she was the development director of the American Red Cross. Then she heard about a job opening back at The Grace when former curator of exhibitions and collections Jana Hallmark Smith left.

Over the past five months since McClendon returned, she has gotten her feet not only wet but soaked. She's has put up two rounds of exhibits, including the current Benini show and the French art exhibit that ended last month.

McClendon knew well what to expect when she returned.

"When you read the want ads for a job like this, it says must be able to lift 50 pounds. You have to have stamina because you're lifting weights. It is physically demanding," she McClendon said. "You also have to be mentally aware and know what you are doing."

Besides hauling expensive art around, McClendon works with the rest of The Grace staff to make the art look just right on the walls. She said there is a long formula that she follows when hanging art to make sure each piece is hung identically and measurements are correct. The biggest part of setting up a show, however, is being able to tell a story.

"We have to be sure that what we are saying is understood and make sure it is also pleasing to the eyes," she said.

Nancy Reed, curator of education, who is also fairly new to The Grace, collaborates with McClendon on incoming exhibits.

"I can't do what I do without Amber. She has the mechanics on how an exhibit should be while I'm at the other end on how to interpret it," Reed said.

"In the fall, Amber and I went to look at Russian art. Her forte is identifying what people will want to look at while I look at how it will make sense to them. Amber has a good eye for that," Reed said.

Dirty Old Dad Is Being Taken to the Cleaners

DEAR ABBY: Dad has been a widower for five years. Shortly after my mother passed away, he began dating women (girls, really) about 45 years younger than he is. He has spent more than $20,000 on these girls — who quit calling after they get his money.

His house has been robbed three times, and it's a constant hassle to cancel his credit cards, call the banks, etc., in the middle of the night after he discovers that someone has been in his house while he slept.

All precautions have been taken, locks changed, a motion-activated alarm installed in the hallway, but he's the one to blame.

He knew the latest girl who robbed him for only three weeks. He invited her into the house. She led him to believe she was going to stay the night with him, got undressed, and then told him she needed to tell the person who gave her a ride that she was staying. She pretended she couldn't find her shirt, and when my father got out of bed to help her look for it, she grabbed his wallet and ran out of the house — topless. Her shirt was discovered later.

Abby, how can I stop Dad from making such stupid mistakes? I've tried explaining what these women really were interested in, but it happens over and over. Please help.

capacity was before your mother's death, but it's possible that his ability to care for himself has diminished to the point where intervention is necessary.

Schedule an appointment with a doctor who specializes in geriatric medicine and discuss mental and neurological evaluations for your father. Since it appears that he has lost the ability to protect himself from being taken advantage of, also consider consulting an attorney with expertise in elder law about options for protecting your father.

DEAR ABBY: My older sister (age 18 1/2) was treated to a lavish wedding and reception courtesy of our parents. As a favor to my mother, her cousin — a caterer — catered the wedding for free.

While my father was on his way home to change my infant brother's diapers (during the wedding madness, no one brought any), my sister and her new husband packed up all the finger sandwiches and most of the remaining food at the reception and left to spend their honeymoon in their new apartment.

When my father returned to the reception, he was outraged to discover that the food was gone, and embarrassed by my sister's behavior in front of her guests who were trying to enjoy themselves without any food.

Dad drove to my sister's apartment and demanded the food and an apology.

My sister says it was "her" wedding and, therefore, "her" food. She won't forgive my father for disturbing her on her honeymoon. My father is sore at my sister for being so thoughtless, thankless, greedy and selfish as to take the food in the first place. Who is right?

HUNGRY IN PHOENIX
DEAR HUNGRY: Your father. To pack up the food from the wedding guests had finished eating was a major breach of good manners. If the newlyweds felt they needed fortification for their honeymoon marathon, they could have phoned a restaurant and had something delivered. Your sister owes her father and her guests an apology.

through a decision that involves your long-term goals. Schedule a key meeting. Use that Cancerian charm. Tonight: Just don't be alone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Take a deep breath. Stop. Sometimes you push way too hard to get what you want. Lighten up about a difficult associate. Organize your work, with an eye to better relationships with those around you. Refuse to shoulder the burden at work. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

When others stray, it is important for you to remain focused and direct. Think before you leap. Review a situation carefully. You might be in the mood to let others dominate. That is OK, but recognize that you are deferring. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Take charge at work. Others might still be in a weekend mind-set. You see the ramifications of a money matter. Zero in and have a much-needed discussion. An associate remains difficult, no matter what happens. Carefully listen to another's feedback. Tonight: Work late.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Creativity soars. You might not be sure about what works. Sound out different ideas on others. You get interesting, dynamic feedback. Try to understand where another is coming from. You get better results if you are empathetic and sensitive to those in your immediate life. Tonight: Movie night!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Deal with others one-on-one. Listen carefully to someone. You maintain a high profile, knowing what your objective is. Learn to understand others' rationales. Ask for their logic. Think, and embrace their way of thinking. Agreements naturally develop. Tonight: Quality time with a loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Defer to others. Everyone demonstrates and reflects an agenda. You do to learn a lot about those you deal with. Be a thinker and an observer. Suggestions might come after you and others see the net results of a plan. You could also decide to embrace another's ideas. Tonight: Flex and gain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Listen to your instincts with work, but still follow a boss's guidelines. You find a situation difficult. Keep putting your best foot forward. Your efforts do not go unnoticed. Review a situation carefully, with an eye to the future. You might want much more from your day-to-day life. Tonight: Easy does it. Put up your feet.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

Have answers when others simply go blank. Communication could be stressed, or difficult at best. Stay on top of demands and calls. Your responsive nature separates you from many. Share a joke or two. Do what you can to lighten up another's mood. Tonight: Others need your playfulness.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Discussions prove to be animated and lively. You think you are right. Someone else might or might not agree, depending on his mood. Make time for a co-worker or friend during lunch. You might not be sure about which way to go with a personal matter. Tonight: Buy flowers on the way home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Texans would benefit from initiative and referendum

To the editor,
The 77th Legislature is now in session and apparently no bills have been filed that would help in solving the growing drug problem in Texas. It appears that the only way to get this done is for the media and the voters to band together and demand that Texas voters be accorded the right of initiative and referendum. Then we could truly have government by the people not only for the people.

To control this, every drug parolee must be required to go through treatment with professional counseling and medical treatment. And most addicts not incarcerated would welcome treatment. Costly? On the average, it costs over $20,000 a year to keep a person in prison. When that person goes back, another $20,000 and more. Treatment would cost about $10,000 one time. Few can kick the habit on just will-power.

Then secondly, if we are to make any progress in the "war on drugs," legislation must be passed mandating 10- or 20-year sentences for drug dealers, manufacturers or smugglers, without possibility of parole. Fill up the prisons? Sure. But with a drug rehab program we'd be keeping out some of those who are now going back three or more times, keeping the revolving door whirling.

Let your legislators know we need initiative and referendum passed this session.

U.N. Charter an eye-opener

To the editor,
When the United Nations Charter was approved by the U.S. Senate in 1945, only two senators voted against the treaty. When asked why — when the whole world was enraptured with the unread and misunderstood charter, they answered: "We read the Charter."

More Americans should read the U.N. Charter and following documents such as Agenda 21, the Bio-diversity Treaty and some of the multitude of agreements and treaties designed to destroy U.S. sovereignty and individual liberty.

For instance, one should read Chapter IX, Article 55. With noble sounding words of what the U.N. thinks people need forced upon them: "... the United Nations shall promote (a) higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development; (b) solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational cooperation; and (c) universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion."

That all sounds good and needed until one asks: "Who defines the terms and how does a blank check of "related problems" relate to socialist control of the U.N.? This is a blueprint for tyranny under the guise of "helping people."

The kicker against the U.S. Constitution follows in Article 56: "All members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in cooperation with the Organization for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55."

Is it any wonder how the U.S. got so many unconstitutional regulations and false "laws" when the presidents and Congress have used the "pledge" in place of their oath to protect and defend the U.S. Constitution?

Pyramid scheme targets women

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — An organization dubbed the Women's Charity Club is really a pricey pyramid scheme that targets women and school teachers, prosecutors said.

In less than a month, he said, prosecutors will file charges against the remaining women.

Members must be invited to join the group. They are required to chip in $5,000 to join, then pull three more women into the group. Successful participants are promised a reward of $40,000.
