STANDARD OIL STOCK IS IN SENSATIONAL DEMAND

MARKET PUT IN UPROAR AS BUYING OPENS

First Transaction Not Straight Until 1 o'clock

OVERNIGHT GAIN REACHES $4.25

Huge Stock Dividend of Yesterday Causes Mad Rush

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (P)—The New York curb market was thrown into such tumult by a rush to buy the common stock of the Standard Oil company today that the first transaction was not straightened out until after 1 o'clock, when a sale of 70,000 shares at $100.25, a share, an overnight gain of $4.25, was finally arranged.

The feverish demand for the issue resulted from the declaration yesterday of a 50 per cent stock and an extra cash dividend.

The stock mounted yesterday to $96, a gain of $3 for the day. It has recently sold on the curb as high as $103, which gave rise to reports that the Rockefeller and Stewart interests were contesting for control of the company in the market. The stock sold as high as $107 a share on the Chicago stock exchange today.

CAPT. HAWKS IS AT END OF LONG COUNTRY FLIGHT

CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., Feb. 5. (P) Captain Frank M. Hawks, transcontinental flier, was reported over Curtis field at 2:55 p. m., after his flight from Los Angeles.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (P)—Curtiss and Roosevelt flying fields were waiting at 1 o'clock this afternoon for Captain Frank M. Hawks who left Los Angeles late yesterday on an attempted non-stop transcontinental hop which he hoped would be a record breaker.

The last definite word from the aviator, who had planned to reach his goal before noon, came last evening from Tucson, Arizona.

He was sighted there at 9:08 p. m. Monday, Pacific Coast time, flying high. Weather forecasters said Hawks had probably run into bad weather after leaving El Paso, Texas, and that he would find flying conditions unfavorable until he reached Pittsburgh.

Captain Hawks had to reach the Long Island flying field before 3:35 p. m., if he was to beat the record of 18 hours, 58 minutes, established for the west-east flight last summer by Art Goebel, who carried a passenger. Hawks was accompanied by a mechanic, Oscar E. Grubb.

FOGGY WEATHER WITH SOME SLEET PREVAILS

Fog, sleet, and mist were Pampa's weather portion again today. Following a warmer night, the thermometer hovered around the freezing point today.

Streets were slippery, and beclouded windshields added to the difficulties of motoring.

Mrs. Jim Brabham and little daughter of Lubbock are spending a few days here in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Tom W. Brabham. They arrived Sunday evening.

CHURCH DRIVE IS GOING WELL IN CITY

Despite inclement weather, the Pampa church enrollment campaign, which made good progress yesterday, will be continued today and the remainder of the week as scheduled.

Pastors and committees from the churches are receiving good support in their efforts and the census takers received much information yesterday. Services are being held at the churches at 7:30 o'clock, and will be continued through Friday. Uniform themes for the messages are being used. The theme for this evening is "The Church's Responsibility."

New Ordinance Is Severe Plan to Protect Firemen

A stricter ordinance protecting the Pampa Volunteer Fire department in its work was passed by the city commission at a regular meeting last night. In the past motorists have almost had the right-of-way over fire trucks, but under the new ordinance a change will be seen.

A fine of not less than $1 and not more than $100 may be assessed for a violation of the new ordinance which states that no motorist can drive over a fire hose when it is being strung in use, or after being used; that on the approach of fire trucks motorists must draw to the curb and remain there until all fire trucks have proceeded more than 300 feet; that anyone found driving closer than 200 feet to a fire truck may be arrested.

"I have orders to enforce this new ordinance and I am going to see that it is obeyed," Chief J. I. Downs said this morning.

McLean May Get Full Time Manager of Chamber Work

McLEAN, Feb. 5. (Spl.)—The newly elected board of directors of the McLean Chamber of Commerce has been busy for the last week planning work for the new year. A finance committee composed of C. C. Bogan and F. H. Bourland is ascertaining the amount each member is willing to subscribe for the rest of the year so that a program can be mapped.

If the proper amount is subscribed it is planned to employ a full time secretary and carry on the work of the chamber in a systematic way.

Curg Williams and Jot Montgomery have been appointed as a hotel committee to confer with a hotel company with the idea of locating a hotel here.

Each member of the board has answered present at each meeting called by President E. J. Lander and enthusiasm is being shown in all enterprises.

"I could hardly believe that it was Pampa that I had come to," Mr. Henry said yesterday. "My parents had written me that the town had grown to a city but I could hardly believe that such a change could take place."

OFFICER KILLED IN PISTOL DUEL

SHOOTING ENDS ARGUMENT AT NEW OIL CITY

Woman Prisoner Is Topic of Bitter Quarrel

MAUD, OKLA., IS SCENE OF AFFAIR

Patrolman Dead and Night Chief May Yet Die

MAUD, Okla., Feb. 5. (P)—An argument over a woman prisoner, culminating in a revolver duel in the city hall of this boom oil town today, resulted in the death of Grady Maloy, patrolman, and the probable fatal injury of Melvin Corbin, night chief of police.

The woman, known only as "Anna," was arrested for drunkenness by Maloy during the night, and the argument arose over the advisability of releasing her after two men had put up bond for her. Corbin declared the woman was too intoxicated to be released, witnesses said, and Maloy insisted she should be turned out.

The jail is separated from the police station only by wooden bars and the subsequent shooting threw prisoners into an uproar. To add to the excitement, the woman set fire to her mattress during the argument. The fire was extinguished by the night jailer.

AUSTIN STATESMAN ATTACKS SMALL LAND BILLS—ATTORNEY ANSWERS PAPER

The Austin Statesman is making a fight on the Small Land bills, which particularly affect Gray county. The newspaper is arguing that the controversy is between the big oil companies and the independents, and that the Small bills would lose millions of dollars for the state.

While in Austin, Judge S. D. Stennis of Pampa prepared an answer to the Statesman's articles, and this was published in that newspaper Sunday. It is reprinted here for the information it contains.

In the first instance, let me say that I am attorney for C. W. Bradford and some other land owners in what is commonly known as the "river bed" suit in Gray and Wheeler counties and that I do not represent any of the oil companies. All of my clients are either:

(a) Original settlers who have complied with the law in force at the time and acquired their title more than ten years ago, or

(b) Owners of the land who acquired title by purchase more than ten years ago; in both cases the titles were acquired in good faith without contemplation of any potential value of the land for oil, more than ten years after it had been patented by the state.

In either event, the land had been surveyed more than one time by different state surveyors and the survey approved by the state official having that authority. Patents duly signed by the governor have been outstanding many years. The purchase price has been duly paid the state and, where school lands, the school fund has been paid the interest for many years. In addition,

LINDBERGH HOPS OFF TODAY AT 9:10 A. M.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 5. (P)—Pan-American Airways, Inc., reported at 1:45 o'clock the receipt of a message announcing Colonel Lindbergh's departure from Tla for San Marzano Bay at 10:40 o'clock central time, after a stop of 57 minutes.

BELIZE, British Honduras, Feb. 5. (P) Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, starting the second lap of his inaugural air mail flight to Panama, hopped off from Belize at 9:10 a. m., eastern standard time.

The famous airman celebrated his 27th birthday yesterday in business-like fashion by making the first lap from Miami, headed for Tela, Honduras, en route to Managua, Nicaragua, where he will spend the night.

During his stay here, Colonel Lindbergh, who is well known in Belize, where he stopped last year on his famous good-will flight to Central America, was feted cordially despite his desire to make his trip purely a business affair.

In the afternoon he made a short flight over Belize with Governor and Lady Bourdon and members of their suite. His chief object was to study the site of a future landing field from the air.

After an at-home last evening, B. Melhado, president of the Polo club welcomed the Pan-American Airways representatives and expressed the wish that negotiations between them and the government would have a successful termination.

SON OF PAMPA WOMAN HONORED IN ELRENO, OKLA

Paul G. Liebman of El Reno, Okla., son of Mrs. Katie Liebmann of this city, and owner of the local ice factory, has been named as El Reno's most useful citizen for 1928. He was notified of the honor at a recent meeting of the chamber of commerce.

Mr. Liebmann, who has substantial investments in El Reno, has further demonstrated his faith in his home town's future by making extensive building projects. Outstanding among his activities for the past year were his efforts to secure a new white way and the re-surfacing of the streets in the business district, a recently completed project.

During 1928 he was president of the El Reno Board of Education; vice president of the chamber of commerce; president of the Salvation Army advisory board; general chairman of the civic improvement program and of El Reno's first municipal Christmas tree, and president of the El Reno Horse club.

Mr. Liebmann owns, in addition to the Pampa Ice Manufacturing company, two plants at Borger, one in White Deer, one in Stinnett and another in Canadian.

Boulevards Not Favored by Citizens on Two Streets

Property owners on East Francis and East Kingsmill avenues met with the city commission last night and decided on the width of paving to be laid on those two thoroughfares. It was decided to dispense with the boulevard plan on both streets and use full width concrete.

West Kingsmill avenue will be paved with 5-inch vibrolithic concrete 50 feet wide from Ballard street to 100 feet east of Warren street. This will include four city blocks and the extra 100 feet in front of property owned by C. O. Busby and C. P. Beckler.

The width of paving on East Francis avenue will vary. From Ballard street to Gillespie street the concrete will be 60 feet wide. From Gillespie street to the alley between the street and Houston street the pavement will be 50 feet wide. A 20-foot strip of the same type concrete will be used to cross the draw between Gillespie street and Houston street. From that point to the west edge of the Channing addition 50-foot concrete will be used and in the Channing addition the street will be 40 feet wide to the city limits.

The land owners on the two streets were unanimous in their decisions.

"It's Like This—"

PUBLIC INTEREST is of should be keen with regard to the public school system. It is widely recognized that state education is not working too well; indeed, the problem in its rural phase is such as to arouse real concern.

The privilege of forming consolidated districts has been a boon, and yet the schools that have been "left out in the cold" under this system are worse off than before, in many instances. For the state school system to be as large as it is without a well-organized and powered Board of Education is queer. The Texas State Teachers association is sponsoring a bill to establish a board of this kind, to be composed of nine members, appointed by the governor upon their "ability to serve the interests of the people".

Members of the body would be paid $10 per day when attending board meetings, and would have traveling expenses. The state educational body would be organized along definite lines, after the fashion of the other state board and departments.

Such an arrangement would attract to the work some of the best minds of the state, and with the administrative work supervised by the superintendent should make marked improvement in school administration.

AUTOMOBILE SHOWS, whether the New York premier or among the many held in the smaller cities of the nation, never fail to arouse the interest of the public. Consequently we feel that the Automobile Dealers association of Pampa is to be commended for holding its second event this year. Last year's show was one of the most successful of local promotions.

Progress in the automobile industry is continual and the improvements made by the manufacturers from year to year in design and efficiency stimulate widespread interest. A display provides a spectacle that is both entertaining and instructive to the public and beneficial to the dealers.

With every manufacturer evidently endeavoring to give the buyer more for his money in beauty and road service than ever before, it is not to be wondered that the public is deeply interested in the efforts to place vehicles—which a few years ago were considered luxuries—into the hands of more and more families of moderate means. The automobile has become of vast importance in business life and everyday life, and the by-products of motoring, comfort, convenience and healthful outings, benefit all classes.

Pampa's show will fill the big Pla-Mor auditorium, not only with cars, but with people. Visitors will come from

Along Hoover's Trail SOUTH AMERICA

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—What does Latin America want to buy from the United States?

The answer is as readily obtained here in Washington at the Department of Commerce as in a tour through Central and South America.

For years the department has maintained a clearing house for this sort of information which is so valuable to the manufacturer. Working through our trade representatives over the world in furtherance of the integral part of our foreign policy concerning promotion of our foreign trade, it has helped immensely in development of our export market.

American firms have gone to South America and other parts of the world to push their products with advertising and promotion drives as intensive as they have waged at home—some of them have, that is, and that means the larger corporations. But there are thousands of smaller manufacturers whose size does not justify or permit establishment of world-wide sales organizations, although their products could frequently be sold in substantial quantities in this country or that.

It is these producers especially who are benefited by the ip system of the Department of Commerce which broadcasts weekly a list of the articles in which foreign merchants, agents and consumers are interested. The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce provides the bulletins to any manufacturer who requests them simultaneously over the country through its 70 or more district or cooperative office so that everyone will have an equal chance at the business.

More than 35,000 such requests have been received from abroad since the service was instituted. In most instances the inquiries have sought to act as agents or as both purchasers and agents.

Latin-American businessmen have made extensive use of it. In one week the bureau recently listed 30 manufactured articles concerning which it had inquiries from Argentina. These included advertising novelties—such as rulers and celluloid articles, rubber aprons, caps, gloves and balloons, bicycles, cardboard.

many miles as the result of the motorcade to be made by the dealers, headed by the Pampa band. Dealers from neighboring towns will find it advantageous to see the local displays, and even to urge their prospective customers to do so.

insecticides, leather articles, paints, petrolatum, plumbing ware, toys, whipletree machinery, electric wiring supplies, concrete mixers, cutlery, lumber, elevators, glassware, hardware, stoves, kitchen utensils, medicines, carpenters' tools and steel window and door casements.

Colombia has been asking about bah robes, canned fruit and vegetables, children's clothing, corsets, cut glass, automobile gloves, haberdashery, linen goods, photographic supplies, razors, sanitary ware, sporting goods, tropical suits, toilet articles, trunks and suitcases, umbrellas and parasols, underwear, watches and alarm clocks.

Uruguay has expressed interest in cochineal, electric and player pianos, radio sets and parts, copper distilling machinery for making alcohol and sugar refining machinery.

Brazil has inquired about patent leather, tools to be used in orchards, sport model airplanes, tin foil, agricultural machinery, asbestos, automobiles and motorcycles, canning factory machinery, farm lighting sets, shellac, hardware, lard making machinery, pipe, electric refrigerators, rosin, slaughter house equipment, caustic soda, spices, sulphur, tin plate and wire.

A Problem for All

Following suspension of a number of girls from classes in an Eastern university, the president of the institution is to make an investigation of charges that intoxicating liquor is readily procurable in the vicinity of the University campus. Upon reading news accounts of the incident, one derives the impression that the university head was wholly unaware that bootlegging was being carried on in the vicinity of his institution.

It is difficult to believe that the educator was unaware of the conditions which were revealed following the disorderly conduct of the girls in the classrooms. If he had not observed the situation the fact is not a compliment to his insight into current affairs.

However, there are thousands of people in the United States who seem to be as unconscious of the bootlegging situation as the educator. Despite the number of intoxicated people that are met from day to day and the number of arrests that are made many intelligent people continue to ignore the illegal liquor traffic. They admit that the bootlegging menace may be serious in some localities but apparently prefer not to take cognizance of the local situation.

It is reasonable to state that bootlegging is universal. The illegal traffic in intoxicants may not be as marked in some localities as in others, but the person with a penchant for strong drink can usually supply his want without great difficulty.

Pious people who take pleasure in discussing the fact that a "speakeasy" has been uncovered in the immediate vicinity of a school in some eastern city, and that intoxicating liquor is to be had at almost every street corner in another city, usually are deceiving themselves.

The bootlegging question is a universal problem. Educators and other who have assumed, in large measure, the responsibility for the morals of the country, especially the younger people, must realize that before much progress can be achieved.—Vernon Record.

Women's Study Club Hears Lecture on City Government

Members of the A. A. U. W. and College Study club yesterday learned many details of city government when F. M. Gwin, city manager, addressed them at their semi-monthly meeting in the Methodist church parlors. Tracing community government from the tribal form and through the intervening stages to the two or three systems used today, Mr. Gwin explained that the commission-manager form is generally considered the most successful and efficient means of carrying on the business of a municipality.

He gave a rather detailed account of the workings of the city government under the commission-manager plan, and told his audience what the duties of the city manager are and what he is expected to do. Mr. Gwin stressed the importance of electing men of insight and marked business ability, as well as high character, as commissioners. The city manager must handle problems of a varied nature, he said, and should therefore be a man of broad understanding.

Among the most important problems with which the city government has to deal, Mr. Gwin said, are those relating to public utilities. Many of these difficulties can be lessened or satisfactorily solved only when water, gas, electricity and ice plants are city owned and city operated, according to the opinion of the city manager. He gave interesting information as to the expenditures of the local government and told the club that Pampa has an exceptionally low cost of operating. This, he said, is $1.25 per capita for the year.

In a business session preceding the lecture, the Study club elected Mrs. Marlon Stewart secretary to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. J. T. Clark, who recently moved to Midland.

O. H. Foster of Amarillo, representative of the A. A. U. W. is here on business today.

Local citizens having books they will donate to the Pampa Public library are requested to take them to the library room in the First Methodist church.

CHURCHES

VALUE OF CHURCH ATTENDANCE

By Rev. James Todd Jr. "And He entered, as His custom was, into the synagogue on the Sabbath day." Yes, Jesus attended church. It was His custom. And if it was the custom of our Lord, The Son of God, the son of man, can men and women do otherwise? The consciousness of every thoughtful questioner is that church attendance is both important and essential.

It is important and essential because it involves a sense of worship and duty. It is true that men can worship God in the home as well as in the sanctuary but reason alone decrees that if we recognize a building erected and set apart as a place for worship of Him that there it is duty calls us to worship. Not for our own personal and individual good. Here we forget those cares and disappointments of life that come even into so sacred a place as home. In the sanctuary of God we come with our minds in one accord, and that that we gather for a single and common purpose—to worship at the throne of Eternal Grace, and it is here that we learn more of the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

It is a duty because it is not alone for our own personal and individual good, but for that of society at large. An influence is felt in the life of the community, and men are prompted to do what is the custom of the community in which they live and of which they are a part. Thus the value of church attendance is two-fold: to draw nearer to God oneself, and in drawing nearer oneself to draw others with him. Yes, Christ went to church, and He entered, as His custom was, into the synagogue on the Sabbath day. Are you better than He, that you need not go?

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Church enlistment week opened at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning, the pastor speaking on the theme, "God's Masterpiece." At the evening hour, the same theme used by other pastors of the city was employed, "The Claims of the Church."

On Monday night the story of the elder brothers as presented both in the Old and New Testaments was given under the theme, "Finding One's Brother."

Wellington Club Women Planning Federation House

WELLINGTON, Feb. 5. (Spl.)—Members of Wellington's City Federation of Women's clubs are working out plans to build a club house, and organized work is already under way, according to Mrs. J. B. Stevenson, president.

Trustees of the building fund will be elected next Friday at a meeting of the executive council of the city federation and representatives from each of the clubs allied with the federation. Complete plans for the building program will be laid at that meeting.

A site for the building has been offered by Mrs. Lee O'Neil. Mrs. Stevenson has stated that no construction work will be done until at least $1,000 has been raised. The domestic science club has already contributed $100 to the fund and other organizations are expected to assume their quotas as soon as meetings can be held.

SLAYER OF BRENNAN FINALLY RECAPTURED

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 5. (AP)—The slayer of Bill Brennan, once a contender for the heavyweight boxing championship, was in jail today after being a fugitive from Sing Sing prison for two years.

Joseph Piolo was arrested here last night as a suspicious character. Police said his identity as the escaped convict was established through records.

What is it that makes a large institution possible? Heavy co-operation and support of the local trade and all the out of state money possible. Order your baby chicks from Duddy's Hatchery and watch us grow. dl 11

The tragic end of Forbidden Love

Was it an accident... or a jealous wife's revenge?

WITH a sigh of relief, Asherton sank back into the cab. At last he had eluded his wife. Now he and Marie Norton could enjoy their forbidden rendezvous.

Ahead of him the glare of headlights from Marie's roadster cut into the blackness. Silently, his cab followed. Soon they would be together at the deserted roadhouse. The very thought of it warmed his veins like wine.

Suddenly the glare of the road brightened as another car shot around the bend behind him. The shriek of its siren tore the night apart with its frenzy. "Some drunken fool," Asherton thought as the big sedan careened madly ahead of the cab.

Then his blood froze with horror. The big sedan was heading straight for the roadster. In another instant they had crashed!

Harvesters Will Meet Borger in Game Tonight

Coach Odus Mitchell and his Harvesters will meet the Borger Bulldogs in the Borger kennel tonight at 8 o'clock in a return basket ball engagement. The local boys will take the floor as favorites in the encounter.

Early in the season, the Bulldogs met a revamped Pampa team and were defeated 19 to 18. At the All-Panhandle tournament here last week the Harvesters showed the Borgerites some of their mid-season class to win 37 to 19 for the right to enter the final round.

Coach Mitchell and his assistant, A. M. Fox, started the season with a comparatively green team. With the exception of games in Miami and Amarillo, the local quintet had never played on a floor. As a result, the boys practically had to learn basket ball over again and they made a great job of learning.

James and Kahl developed into sensational forwards with James making a place on the all-star team at the tournament. Stalls at center has met few who can best him at that position, while Walstad and Salsbury have developed into sensational guards. Walstad made the all-star team and Salsbury was a strong contender.

Clarendon Junior college will play here Friday night, and the Amarillo Sandies will furnish the opposition on Monday night. Both of these games will be severe tests for the local high school boys.

Horseshoe Champ Among Eliminated

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 5. (AP)—Blair Nunnemaker, Cleveland horseshoe player, pacemaker today in the mid-winter slipper slinging tournament which will produce a new national champion or all barnyard golfer. His pitching average so far is .748.

C. C. Davis, of Columbus, Ohio, the title holder, fell by the wayside yesterday, emerging victorious in but one contest out of three starts.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Jackie Dugan of Louisville, outpointed Paul Allen, Chicago, ten rounds.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

WHERE'S YOUR HORSE? Ray Miller, county prosecutor in Cleveland, tells a story on his brother, Don. It might be recalled that Don was a halfback at Notre Dame where three other brothers, including the prosecutor, distinguished themselves also.

Don and three other fellows in the Notre Dams backfield happened to be rather widely known throughout the state of Indiana at the time and Don found himself somewhat of a hero when he went to Indianapolis for a holiday visit.

He was invited to some kind of a function at which Governor Jackson was the honored guest and a friend presented Don to the governor. "Governor," he said, "this is Don Miller. He is one of the 'Four Horsemen.'"

"Well, well," the governor greeted him affably. "I certainly am glad to meet you. I enjoyed the picture immensely. It was a great picture."

THE WOIM TOINS Theatrical producers in New York have been howling for years about all the free publicity that was showered on the enterprises of the prize fight promoters.

Their complaint was that they were forced to buy much more display space in the papers than the boxing and baseball people and that the routine publicity they got was not always favorable.

They couldn't understand why the raps on an inferior sport show were so mild compared with the criticism of the dramatic writers who could and did write shows right off Broadway.

But they can't complain about the reception of the New York newspapers have given to the plans of Jack Dempsey and the garden people to put on the prize fight in Miami between Sharkey and Stribling.

AIN'T FAIR TO OUR JACK New York writers have been tearing the living hide off the fight and the raps, though syndicate writers, have appeared in the metropolitan press of other sections of the country. For once, the situation has been

Stribling Will Avoid Airplanes Till After Fight

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5. (AP)—Young Stribling does not expect to fly today, nor tomorrow, nor any other day until he has kept his February 27 fight engagement with Jack Sharkey in Flamingo arena.

Promoter Jack Dempsey is determined that flying shall have no place on the conditioning program of the Macon boxer-aviator. He is so determined that he has filed injunction proceedings to keep Stribling out of plane several years ago, and has hoped the air.

Young Stribling purchased an air-aid about the country in it for his various matches. Stribling today was prepared for his usual two and one-half miles of road work, while his opponent expected to put in a hard round of posing for camera men.

California Wants Winter Olympics NEW YORK, Feb. 5. (AP)—California intends to settle all disputes as to where the winter sports of the 1932 Olympic games will be held by conducting them herself.

Col. William M. Garland, president of the California Tenth Olympiad association, has advised the American Olympic association there are facilities for holding winter sports in the northern part of the state and the association believes they belong to the state where the main Olympic games will be held as long as the conditions meet with international authorities.

His announcement was made to forestall applications by other parts of the country understood to be seeking the winter games.

S. M. U. Wins Over Texas with Foul Goal Near Gun

DALLAS, Feb. 5. (AP)—Texas university's heretofore slim chance to win the Southwest conference basketball championship was thinner today.

Southern Methodist university, stalling so ably that the Orange was put off its stride, nosed out Texas 33 to 32 here last night in a game so rough that six zealous, three from each side, went out for personal fouls.

Even considering the stalling, though the Longhorns might have won had Looney, center, not fouled Brooks 15 seconds before the gun. The Mustang sank his free try and the game was ended before the ball got back in the play.

Texas now would have to win every game remaining on its schedule, including two with Arkansas, to wrest the title from the Razorbacks, four-time champs.

Mehlhorn's Third Golf Title Taken at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 5. (AP)—Trilled by a score of more of golf's outstanding luminaries, "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn trooped out of Hot Springs last night with the major portion of the $5,000 prize money in the annual South-Central open tournament tucked away in his pocket.

The victory yesterday after an 18-hole playoff with Bobby Cruickshank and Hofton Smith, was Mehlhorn's third major win in a few weeks.

Mehlhorn had little trouble in distancing his two rivals, finishing two under par 72 to lead Smith by two strokes and wee Bobby by six, after the three had tied at 290 strokes at the end of the 72-hole play.

Mehlhorn's remarkable winter record includes a world's record in the El Paso open and a 277 for the Texas open at San Antonio.

The Pensacola open was the immediate objective today of the traveling golfers.

McKee Does His Training Secretly for Coming Match

Red McKee is still in Amarillo training for his big match with Oscar Dotson, local blacksmith, in the Pla-Mor auditorium Thursday night. The McKee-Dotson grudge wrestling match will be staged following a boxing card which will feature Frankie Farrell, local flash and Kid Murdock, Childress panther.

Farrell and Murdock went six whirlwind rounds to a draw here two weeks ago and have asked for a return bout of ten rounds so that a winner can be decided. Both boys will enter the ring at 135 pounds.

As a semifinal Calvin Jones, local negro, will take on another negro fighter from California.

The wrestling bout to follow the boxing exhibitions is a straight grudge fight. McKee, ugly, big and as Dotson says, "full of wind" has been throwing challenges all over the Panhandle and at last the local blacksmith decided to accept and show McKee a new brand of wrestling.

Leo Chase, another local product, plans to challenge the winner of the McKee-Dotson bout. A preliminary wrestling match will be staged.

Lawyer to Fight Longhran Tonight LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5. (AP)—Armand Emanuel, youthful San Francisco lawyer-boxer, and one of the many aspirants to the throne vacated by Gene Tunney, tonight will fight Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight king who also is pursuing the heavyweight crown.

The meeting with Loughran will be the second for Emanuel whose fist hopes were given a jolt several months ago by Mickey Walker. Emanuel lost a decision to the champion in New York last June when he substituted for Jimmy Slattery. He made a favorable impression however, and since his debacle with Walker in San Francisco has won all his starts.

Chief officer Harry Manning says: "Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

WHEN I climbed aboard the 'America' after those cold, strenuous hours getting the men off the freighter 'Florida,' there was nothing I wanted so much as a Lucky—'By George,' it tasted wonderful! A Lucky is always refreshing. My tense nerves relaxed, my aching throat was soothed and the whole thrilling adventure just seemed a part of the day's work. As time goes by, and I look back to that memorable night, I'll always remember the wonderful taste of that welcome Lucky. As I went around to visit the men we'd rescued, I found many of them enjoying Luckies, too. We really couldn't wait to get back to our ship and 'Luckies.' As an actual fact in returning to the 'America' I noticed one of our men* rowing with one hand and lighting a Lucky with the other. There's no flavor to equal toasted tobaccos, and I always prefer Lucky Strikes. There's wisdom in the saying: 'Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.' It helps a man to keep physically fit and we who follow the sea must always be prepared for any emergency."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

Ft. Worth Resident Declares Sargon 'Just Wonderful'

Thousands of Texas people are now taking the Sargon Treatment with the most astonishing and gratifying results and scores of men and women are daily telling what it has done for them.

H. M. MAXFIELD

Among the latest to give enthusiastic praise is H. M. Maxfield, of 304 East 15th St., Fort Worth, who says: "I wouldn't take any amount of money for the good Sargon did me. About three years ago I became terribly run-down, nervous and anaemic. My liver was out of order and I nearly always was constipated and bilious. Nothing I ate agreed with me. I tried dieting, but that didn't help. Gas pains would shoot through my stomach and up into my chest, I would taste my food and frequently was so weak and sick I could hardly stay on my feet.

"I was so nervous I couldn't sleep and would stay awake half the night. My breath was bad, my tongue was coated and I lost weight and strength. I didn't have any energy, I was very susceptible to colds, and they were very stubborn and would hang on for weeks.

"I got some Sargon and right from the first dose I began to feel better. I never saw anything like it. My appetite is good and I eat what I want without a sign of distress. I sleep like a tired boy an din the morning I am brimful of new strength and energy and haven't had a cold since I started taking it.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills are the most wonderful laxative I ever took. They ended my constipation without upsetting my system or making me sick in the least."

Sargon may be obtained in Pampa from Patheco Drug Co. and in McLean from Erwin Drug Co.—ADV.

THIS HAS HAPPENED ASHTORETH AND HOLLES HART are newlyweds. Honey-mooning in Paris. Ashtoreth is really beautiful, and Hollis is exceptionally rich. She calls her "ORCHID" because she reminds him of that lovely flower. But Ashtoreth sees some clouds to have clouded them. Before their marriage Ashtoreth had been a stenographer in Hollis's employ. She is years younger than he, and he idolizes her youth and beauty. For the time she is an old sweetheart, MONTY ENGLISH, who has come to France to sell radios for his firm. Monty is young and Monty is handsome. But he is discreetly poor, and Ashtoreth couldn't see him at all. He treats her rather coldly, but it is apparent that he is still in love with her. Hollis devotes himself to tennis and the collection of antiques. Both pursuits bore Ashtoreth to tears. When he is out at the courts or browsing about in old shops, he makes tender love to his little bride. And that is the reason why Ashtoreth might be a better word. She has discovered that she has two front teeth that come out on little swivels, and that spells the end of romance. She invites Monty to have dinner with them and contrives to get him on several occasions. Though Monty tries to discourage it. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLV THEY were going home again. Sailing from Havre on the Victory. In a week they would be in Boston. Mogg was packing. Five wardrobe trunks. Four shoe boxes. And steamer trunks for the linen. Household furnishings were being crated. Brocades and credenzas, and an old refectory table that Hollis had picked up in Venice. And toilet things that were said to have been used by Marie Antoinette. Hollis wrapped the toilet set himself, sending out for an armful of tissue. There was a tea set also, to which he gave his personal attention. The cups were diminutive china swans, with beautiful necks. And they rested on saucers of solid gold. They had belonged to the Empress Josephine. Hollis explained to Ashtoreth that Josephine's emblem was a swan, and Napoleon's a bee. He had found a piece of crimson brocade embroidered with golden bees, and believed it to be a fragment from the Emperor's caupied bed at Versailles. Hollis was greatly excited about his treasures. Almost effeminate, Ashtoreth thought. She hated to see him handling small things with the care a woman would have given them. The concierge came to help, and brought two assistants with him. Then Hollis handed Ashtoreth's frocks to Mogg, and helped her slip them on the hangers. He handled great piles of frothy lingerie, and made order out of chaos. Then he ordered more packing boxes, and began the packing of his dearest finds. The concierge and his helpers might pack books and pictures. But tea sets and toilet sets, and the vases from Limoges; crystal that were Pompadour's, and the snuff box that was du Barry's—Hollis handled these with reverent hands. ASHTORETH, standing in the doorway, watched him. "It's positively womanish," she thought, "the way he loves those things." And she thought of the way Monty would act in a room that was cluttered with lingerie and tea sets and Marie Antoinette's toilet articles. "Like a bull in a china shop," she reflected, and smiled to herself. "Well, that's the way a man ought to act." "Bored?" asked Hollis, glancing up from his self-appointed work of swathing a cup in 10 sheets of tissue. "And mine are varying. Oh, by the way, Ash, I'm going home. Had a cable this morning. They want me to try to get reservations on the Victory. I've a friend working on the thing now for me. The passenger list is pretty big, and I'm not sure what luck I'm going to have." "Why, Monty English!" she cried. "And you weren't going to say goodbye, or telephone me, or anything?" "Oh, yes, I was," he declared. "I was going to telephone your husband this afternoon." "My husband?" "Yes, I meant to ask you both to have dinner with me tonight at Tour d'Argent." Ashtoreth laughed happily. "Well, it really doesn't make any difference whether you're telling the truth or not. Because—listen, Monty—we're sailing tomorrow on the Victory ourselves! Won't that be glorious!" She laughed excitedly. "That's the very best news I've heard for a long time."

"Oh, it's not that," he insisted. "But, gosh, Ash, I can't accept things that your husband pays for. What do you think I am?" "What difference does it make to Hollis?" she demanded. "He doesn't care how much money I spend." Monty handled the case appreciatively. "Nothing doing," he pronounced. "I'll take the tie, and thanks very much, Missus Hart." She shoved the thing across the table. "All right. Let it stay there then. Maybe the waiter would like it." "Now, Ash," he remonstrated. "Be reasonable." He raised his glass. "To our vast and varying fortunes!" he proposed. "Yours are vast. And mine are varying. Oh, by the way, Ash, I'm going home. Had a cable this morning. They want me to try to get reservations on the Victory. I've a friend working on the thing now for me. The passenger list is pretty big, and I'm not sure what luck I'm going to have." "Why, Monty English!" she cried. "And you weren't going to say goodbye, or telephone me, or anything?" "Oh, yes, I was," he declared. "I was going to telephone your husband this afternoon." "My husband?" "Yes, I meant to ask you both to have dinner with me tonight at Tour d'Argent." Ashtoreth laughed happily. "Well, it really doesn't make any difference whether you're telling the truth or not. Because—listen, Monty—we're sailing tomorrow on the Victory ourselves! Won't that be glorious!" She laughed excitedly. "That's the very best news I've heard for a long time."

He shrugged his shoulders. "Women detest friendship," he told her. "There's a French cynic—M. de Croisset—we were reading some of his epigrams at school the other day. He says 'Women despise friendship. Temperature too low; it gives them a cold on the chest.'" "Oh, Monty, you're impossible!" "All right. Let's not talk about it. Finish your chicken. Will you have some more wine?" SHE pushed her plate away petulantly. "No, you've ruined my appetite. And I thought we were going to have such a pleasant little goodbye luncheon!" "Listen, Ashtoreth," Monty covered her hand with his. "You're not playing the game, little girl. You bargained with life for millions, and you're sick of the bargain. The stakes were high, and you won. Life hates a quitter, Ash. And you've got to stick by your bargain." "I don't know what you're talking about!" she exclaimed. "Maybe I didn't say it very well," he acknowledged. "I'm not much on speeches, but you do know what I mean, Ash." "That you want me to leave you alone!" she flashed. He smiled diffidently. "That's putting it rather crudely," he objected. "But since you ask me, that's about the size of it." "And I thought," she moaned, "that you were my friend." Monty looked at her sternly. "People who have been lovers can never be friends," he told her. "There's no such thing as friendship between a beautiful woman and a hungry man. I don't particularly want to be your friend, Ashtoreth. I'd rather be out of the picture altogether." "Then you don't value friendship?" she demanded angrily. "Oh, yes," he insisted. "It's a wonderful thing between men. I suppose it is also a wonderful thing between women. And I've no doubt there have been rare instances where there have been perfect friendships between men and women. Deep, abiding, loving friendships. But they're rare, Ashtoreth. . . I don't say a man can't be friendly with a girl. Fond of her and all that sort of thing. But when it comes to one of these close, intimate affairs—they're dangerous, I tell you. You're too beautiful, Ashtoreth. And I'm too desirous."

"Foolish! I'm not beautiful!" "All right then. But I am desirous. I'm not old, or hardbilled enough to look at you, and be anything else." They were quiet for a little while, playing with their glasses. "My God!" Monty broke the silence violently. "Why did you do it, Ash!" (To Be Continued)

Hollis disappears and Ashtoreth turns sullenly to Monty. In the next chapter.

Another Record Set in Production of Nation's Fields

TOLSA, Okla., Feb. 5. (P)—The estimated total daily average production of light and heavy oil in the United States for the week ending Feb. 2 reach set a new high record when a grand total of 2,878,233 barrels were reported, 11,179 barrels more than during the week ending Jan. 26, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

Light oil production during the past week increased 15,849 barrels. However, a decrease in the total heavy oil production lowered the total production 4,670 barrels.

Virtually every field in the United States reported an increase in the daily light oil production during the week. Oklahoma fields increased approximately 4,980 barrels; West Texas 2,159; Mid-Continent 4,453; Rocky Mountain 1,096 and California 10,000 barrels.

Eastern fields remain constant with 112,000 barrels daily production for the two weeks.

In heavy oil production, Gulf Coast field increased 5,860 barrels; Southwest Texas 1,800. All other fields decreased during the week.

Gulf Has Giant Pumping Producer

The Gulf Production company has developed what is believed to be the biggest pumper in Gray county. The company's No. A-6 J. B. Bowers, in the northwest corner of the west half of section 89, block B-2 is making 900 barrels of 41.2 gravity oil through 4-inch tubing on the pump.

The test came in Jan. 7 for 1,200 barrels on the swab and increased to 1,600 barrels, but when taken off the swab production practically ceased. The hole is bottomed at 3,055 feet.

This important well is offsetting the Texas and Gibson Oil companies' producers.

AUSTIN—

grounds and by its public maps and field notes, represented that it had a right to sell these lands (including the now claimed river bed) and did sell it and receive its full price for the land thus pointed out (including the now claimed river bed.)

Forgetting whatever debt the whole state may owe to these hardy pioneers who settled the Panhandle country of Texas and thus added much to the taxable wealth of the state, let us look at the matter from the standpoint of what is justly due them. Here is the setting: They were, generally speaking, unlettered men, knew nothing of surveying, field notes, technical "navigable streams," etc., but they saw the corners made by the licensed state surveyors on the grounds, saw the maps made by these surveyors and used these same marked corners and maps in entering into their contracts to acquire the lands; they had an abiding faith in the school official acts of their state and thought they could rely upon these official acts and did rely upon them with childlike confidence.

They paid their money with full reliance upon these official acts that took place under their very eyes (some of my clients were there when the surveys were made) and had some one suggested to them there that the state of Texas would take their money, issued a deed or patent to them but that, in the event thereafter became of great value, this same state of Texas, at the request of some "land grabber" would file a suit to get the land back and let the "land grabber" have it, these sturdy pioneers would have regarded it as an insult to the state and would have acted accordingly. Such was their faith in Texas—to many of them an adopted state. Had these men known of the "navigable stream" act, they would also have known that within less than a half day after the biggest rain ever known in the Panhandle, there was no water in this "navigable stream." They would have known that they had seen with their own eyes the actual banks of this "navigable stream." It was beyond their power to imagine that someone would come forth with the "gradient" rule for establishing imaginary or mathematical banks of a river so as to include land as within the banks upon which the first court house of Gray county was afterwards built and stood until the county seat was removed less than a year ago and within a stone's throw of which no water ever in flood time ever ran.

The state made its contract with these settlers under the foregoing condition. The settler has fully and completely and fairly complied with all of the terms of the contract imposed upon him; no concealment was indulged in by the settler—the information as to the extent of the land embraced in the agreement and the boundaries thereof were furnished by the state and it is but fair to presume that each party was equally anxious to make the contract. In this particular case there is no question of excess acreage involved and no question of vacancy involved.

I know it is a very popular appeal to send forth that you are getting money for the school children, that you are saving great amounts for the state, but you will readily agree with me that Texas cannot, for any purpose (for educating its youth less than any other) afford to raise money by repudiating its contracts, fairly made and entered into and fully performed by the other party. We cannot afford to "taint" the fund with which our children are educated. No person worthy to represent the great state vate use by thus repudiating his private use by thus repudiating his private contracts even though the money were used for the laudable and commendable purpose of educating his children. It follows, as the night follows the day, that by deriving the money for a public purpose and using it in a general way, we do not escape the same test. Let it never be said that Texas so enriches its school fund.

Texas ought not to be, and, in fact, is not interested in which of the oil companies develop the land for oil. It may safely be said that Texas is not going to spend the money necessary for development work and, therefore, will not get the share of the oil that goes to the producer; nor is the man to whom the land was patented going to spend the money in doing development work and get that share. Nor is the "land grabber" going to spend that money and get that share. Some developer who will spend the money for exploration purposes will get that share and whoever it is, will be entitled to it by reason of making this expenditure. So, as far as Texas is concerned, it makes no difference who it is and the effort to inject the big oil companies into this proposition is not proper.

I venture the suggestion that, whoever eventually gets the "river bed," there will be no change in what oil company actually gets the producers share of the oil. But, whether I am right or wrong about this, it is immaterial as a public question.

What is the real controversy then? Why all this interest in the question? Let's boil it down and get the essence. Turn back the cover and view the naked underlying facts. Here is the situation: Does the settler, who made a fair contract and performed his part of it to the letter, get the land owner's part of the oil or does the state by repudiating that contract fairly made and entered into take back the land it pointed out to the purchaser, get one-half of the land owner's part of the oil and pass on the "land grabber" the other one-half of the land owner's part?

In transactions between individuals, neither our courts nor public opinion permit a man to point out certain land to a proposed purchaser, sell it to him collect the money and keep it and then repudiate the sale. Can our great state afford to do such acts as are not permitted to our citizens? Ought not Texas in its dealings to voluntarily set even a higher standard in conducting business than it requires for its citizens?

At the hands of legislators, ought not the contract made, entered into and performed at a hardship by the settlers, be sustained, if possible, rather than repudiated and turned over in part to adventurers?

The same rule is applicable, whether it be much or little, so a survey of the result is unimportant—unless expenditure of money.

What I have said refers particularly to the "river bed," but the principle is just the same whether the land be located in one part of our state or another. The same principle naturally governs in all parts of our state.

I do not wish to be understood as criticizing the attorney general's office. There is precedent for their action. The present situation is the occasion for calling attention to the real need for enactment of the Small land bills. They are needed and useful acts.

In conclusion, I wish to say that in introducing these bills Senator Small's constituents feel that he is but giving fair consideration to a public question called to his attention by them—the and owners in Gray and Wheeler counties.

Respectfully,
S. D. STENNIS,
Pampa, Texas.
