QUESTION MARK IN SEVENTH DAY OF FLIGHT

MOTORS WORK WELL AS PLUG TROUBLE ENDS

Plane Stays Close to Starting Point for Landing

TERMINATION NOT YET SEEN

All Records Smashed But Army Men Cling to Task

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 7. (AP)—Through a blue sky flaked with clouds, the Question mark sped at 9:28 o'clock this morning, passing its 146th hour aloft. The three motors propelling the huge army endurance craft to new records, hummed an even song as the seventh day of the flight was two hours old.

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 7. (AP)—With no precedent to guide her now in a flight seemingly without end, the monoplane, Question Mark, today approached her seventh day sustained flight with the finish not yet in sight.

Every endurance and distance flight record known to man and bird perched on the wide wings of the tri-motored Pkcker as she droned onward to answer the question put to her by the army air corps—how long can an airplane stay in the air?

Motor trouble which developed Saturday night apparently had been eliminated and the plane stayed high and close to this airport so as not to be robbed of official credit for record-breaking endurance flying in case of a forced landing.

The motor trouble, caused by fouled plugs, was eliminated by Capt. Ira Baker, chief pilot, when he threw open wide the throttle of the big liner, and brought the lagging cylinders back into action.

The other completion, the No. 5 Mason of the Phillips Petroleum company, was in the old Noodle Creek pool, two miles south. It is 330 feet from the east line and 992 feet from the north line of the west 80 of the northwest quarter, section 18, block 19, T. & J. survey, Jones county. Pay here was struck at 2,515-21 feet.

FALSE ISSUES RAISED ASSERT STATEMENTS

Opposing Camps Busy in Getting Pledges for Favorites

FERGUSON IS TAKING HAND

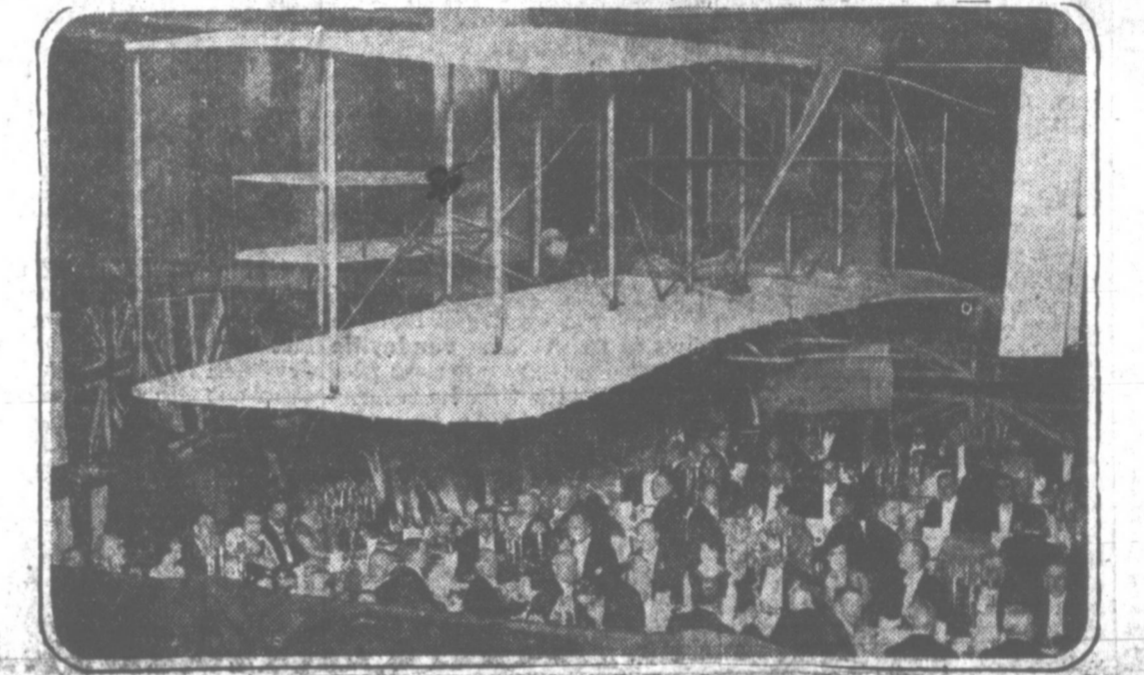

W. S. Barron Most Likely Candidate, Many Believe

By L. B. DILBECK, Associated Press Staff Writer. AUSTIN, Jan. 17. (AP)—The race for speakership of the house of representatives of the 41st legislature, convening Tuesday, was intensified today. W. S. Barron of Bryan, issued a statement striking at statements last night from opposing camps and insisting that special interests and former Gov. James E. Ferguson are taking a hand in the race. "To try to raise dead issues that the people have settled long ago and to resurrect the old cries of 'special interests' is futile," Barron's statement said. "The injection of false issues is the ruse of a dying cause to attract attention to itself when all other hope is gone."

Grady Woodruff of Decatur withdrew from the race late yesterday, in favor of W. R. Montgomery of Edinburg, charging that special interests represented by lobbyists, and Ferguson, are trying to select the speaker. Montgomery, in a statement, said that "political influences that have been repudiated by the people are attempting to interfere in the election of a speaker."

Ferguson expressed opinion that Barron would win, but would not say whether he is actively supporting him. Both the Barron and Montgomery camps continued today to claim pledged majorities, and the speaker's race seemed to be the prime issue among session activities. "I have conducted my campaign on (See SPEAKER, Page 6)

British Celebrate Aviation's Birthday

Under the wings of the Wright brothers' original airplane, now in a London museum, members of the Royal Aeronautical Society of Great Britain met to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the first flight. This picture shows the Wright biplane, loaned to the museum by Orville Wright after his dispute with the Smithsonian Institution, suspended above the diners. A man is lying on the plane as Wright did when he first flew.

DEMPSEY IS UNSTRUNG

Dempsey, rugged ring warrior, became a nervous, unstrung boy as he realized that the man who had lifted him to a high place was dead. "I've lost the best pal I ever had," he declared.

It was Dempsey and Field who sat with Mrs. Rickard by the bedside of her husband as Rickard passed. When Dempsey left the room and sought the reception hall, he struggled to control his emotions. His face covered by a two-day growth of beard, Dempsey choked as he said, "I must come to everyone, but it's mighty hard to see Tex go. We can only carry on as he would have done."

Cries stricken, and on the verge of prostration, Mrs. Rickard was forced to go to bed where she remained all morning, but she was able to attend brief funeral services in the afternoon.

Parents are seeking information as to their whereabouts.

Miss Lillian Donnell and Miss Mary Lee Lowell of Canyon visited friends in Pampa during the week-end.

BROKEN RAIL IS BLAMED IN WRECK TODAY

Kingsville Man Found Beneath His Engine

TWO OTHERS ARE SLIGHTLY HURT

Passenger Train Was Late Because of Collision

CORPUS CHRISTI, Jan. 7. (AP)—The engineer was killed and the fireman and a baggage man were slightly injured when passenger train No. 14 on the Gulf Coast division of the Missouri Pacific lines struck a broken rail at Ricardo, one mile south of Kingsville, Texas, today.

A. J. Perrinot of Kingsville was the engineer. The train was running an hour and 16 minutes late because of delay after a collision with an automobile at Hallingen. The engine and five coaches overturned, and Perrinot's body was taken from underneath the engine at 6 a. m.

C. H. Cogdill of Kingsville and baggage man, Ezell, of Houston, were the only other persons reported injured.

"It's Like This"

TALK IT UP—We mean that proposed city hall. If it is a good thing—and we believe it is Pampa's outstanding need of the kind—"we the people" ought to initiate and carry forward the movement to vote the necessary bonds.

As we have noted before, warrants could be issued for the building, but it is the better plan to let the people decide. At any rate, the warrants would carry a higher interest rate and would have to be refunded into bonds later.

As with other projects, the insistence of the public is a vital factor. The public officials naturally expect this, not wishing to take full responsibility for every public improvement launched.

EMPTYING THE JAIL through provision of a three-week term of district court in January is a good plan. This feature has been written into the bill jointly prepared by Judges Ewing and Willis.

Two ten-week terms had been suggested, but, noting how many men were held in jail awaiting trial, the judges changed the schedule in order that speedier trials may be held for the jail inmates.

Speeding up of court procedure is a universal need, and the local instance is no exception.

OVER OPTIMISTIC we may be—we have been accused of it before, and the opposite too. Readers of our New Year's summaries and forecasts have been generally in approval, but in a few instances we have been taken severely to task as being utterly wrong.

But it has been our observation that over-optimism has been vindicated in almost every instance in the Panhandle. This growing section may falter for a moment, but ultimately it comes back stronger than ever. Strong leadership plus natural assets build our cities. Pampa is developing the first and no doubt has the second. So don't cramp your optimism, folks, but keep working.

Taxation

The December number of the New Mexico Bulletin published by the Taxpayers' association of New Mexico contains several articles on the problems of taxation by former U. S. Senator H. O. Bursum; former State Senator T. E. Mitchell, and Mr. H. J. Hagerman, president of the Taxpayers' association. Tables showing comparative tax rates for several years and one showing the bonded indebtedness for the state, counties, municipalities, and school districts are also included in the issue.

Senators Bursum and Mitchell deal especially with the taxation of livestock. Both urge a reduction in the general property tax rate thru economy. In Senator Bursum's article will be found suggestions as to other sources of revenue. In a discussion of "Evasions and Confiscations" Mr. Hagerman points out specifically how discriminations exist in various classes of property. Among livestock growers, taxation of ten creates a difference and places land owners at a disadvantage as compared with those who lease state lands and those who can secure permits in the national forests. In order to relieve the burden of taxation on livestock and reduce the bad effects of discrimination, Mr. Hagerman urges the spending of less money. Other vital suggestions are as follows:

- 1. Collect delinquent taxes.
2. Get all property on the tax rolls without favoring some taxpayers over others of the same class.
3. Find new sources of revenue.
4. Boost valuations on various classes of property besides grazing lands and livestock.
5. Repeat or amend the exemption laws.

With over six million dollars of uncollected taxes, it is self-evident that our taxing machinery is lacking in a most important particular. Discriminations are the result, "whether these delinquencies are the fault of the state because taxes are too high or of the delinquent tax collectors when they are inefficient or of the taxpayer because he is evading his just tribute to the government."

Failure to get all the property on the tax rolls as well as failure to fairly equalize assessments must be remedied by proper measures. Instances of gross discrimination among property owners in the same community can easily be cited. Enough is known of actual conditions to convince any taxpayer of the need of a competent systematic reappraisal of property for purposes of taxation. Too often discriminations can be traced to political "pull" or to personal considerations. Property of fraternal and church organizations is often used for purely commercial purposes in competition with other property and is permitted to escape taxation. When such property is producing income, it should be assessed as similar property is assessed.

As to new sources of revenue, a cigarette tax is suggested with a possible revenue of between $100,000 and $200,000 a year. An income tax law might be enacted to produce between $200,000 and $300,000 a year, though there is the question of obtaining a competent administration of such a law.

To boost values will require the most careful administration. Railroads, mines, lands and livestock are already assessed at high figures and paying all that can be fairly expected. Certain types of city property are undoubtedly under-assessed and there, as has been stated, outrageous discriminations among individuals. Increased assessments can and must, therefore, be brought about by more adequate and competent administration.

Householders exemptions and soldiers' exemptions are privileges which can be and are greatly abused. At the present time about twenty millions of dollars of value are not taxed because of these exemptions. The soldier exemptions alone are costing the state over three hundred thousand dollars a year.

To find and less and to make the people's dollar go farther thru economical administration will do most to attract outside capital and will save the capital already in the state from confiscation. — Roswell Dispatch.

TWINKLES

Constance Talmadge and a Chicago merchant were besieged at the New York pier by reporters asking about their alleged matrimonial plans. One of the pair blushed. Problem for primary grades: Which one blushed?

With Congress and the Legislature in session, Uncle Sam is going to be more or less on the operating table. Most people seem to be hoping for the best and expecting the worst.

It is barely possible that Richard Byrd will get back in time to finish his vaudeville tour and run for our next president. By the time he returns his ideas ought to be sufficiently vague on most any timely subject.

A girl stunt flyer hangs from the wing of an airplane by a silk stocking. Bet she gives spectators a run for their money.

Lots is being done to beautify the American city, but they must find some way to shorten the outskirts, which are certainly not in keeping with our time.

A commentator says the only safe place now-a-days is the grave. And the theologians say no one will stay put there. Safety, however, is little desired in this age of thrills.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY ALLENE SUMNER
WASHINGTON, D. C.—The vice president of the United States has been dubbed "the official diner out."

Some vice presidents have resented the title and its implication that they simply ate their way through a four-year term.

Some vice presidents have denied that it was their job to dig clams out of the half shell while the president preferred to sit by his own hearth fire and read a new book.

Vice President Dawes, for instance, explained very carefully from time to time that his position was something more than a social subbing for the tired business man in the White House.

But Senator Charles Curtis from Kansas, next vice president, frankly admits that he will toss away the formidable reports, which have kept him at his Senate office desk till nearly midnight night after night during his reign as floor leader in the Senate, for the golden fish knives and polished ball room floors of official society.

"There's no use dodging the plain unvarnished truth, whether one likes it or doesn't, that the vice presidential job is largely a social one," Senator Curtis told me as he tilted back in his big swivel chair at his Senate office desk and surveyed his roomful of cartoon and autographed pictures of the men he has known in Washington for the past 40 years.

"The public has the idea that being vice president means socially pinch-hitting for the president when he himself can't attend. It's worse than that—it means being the social glad-hander of the administration. It's never a case of being called to attend at the last minute because the president can't go. It's a straight, clear-cut job of doing the social stuff rather than forcing it upon the president."

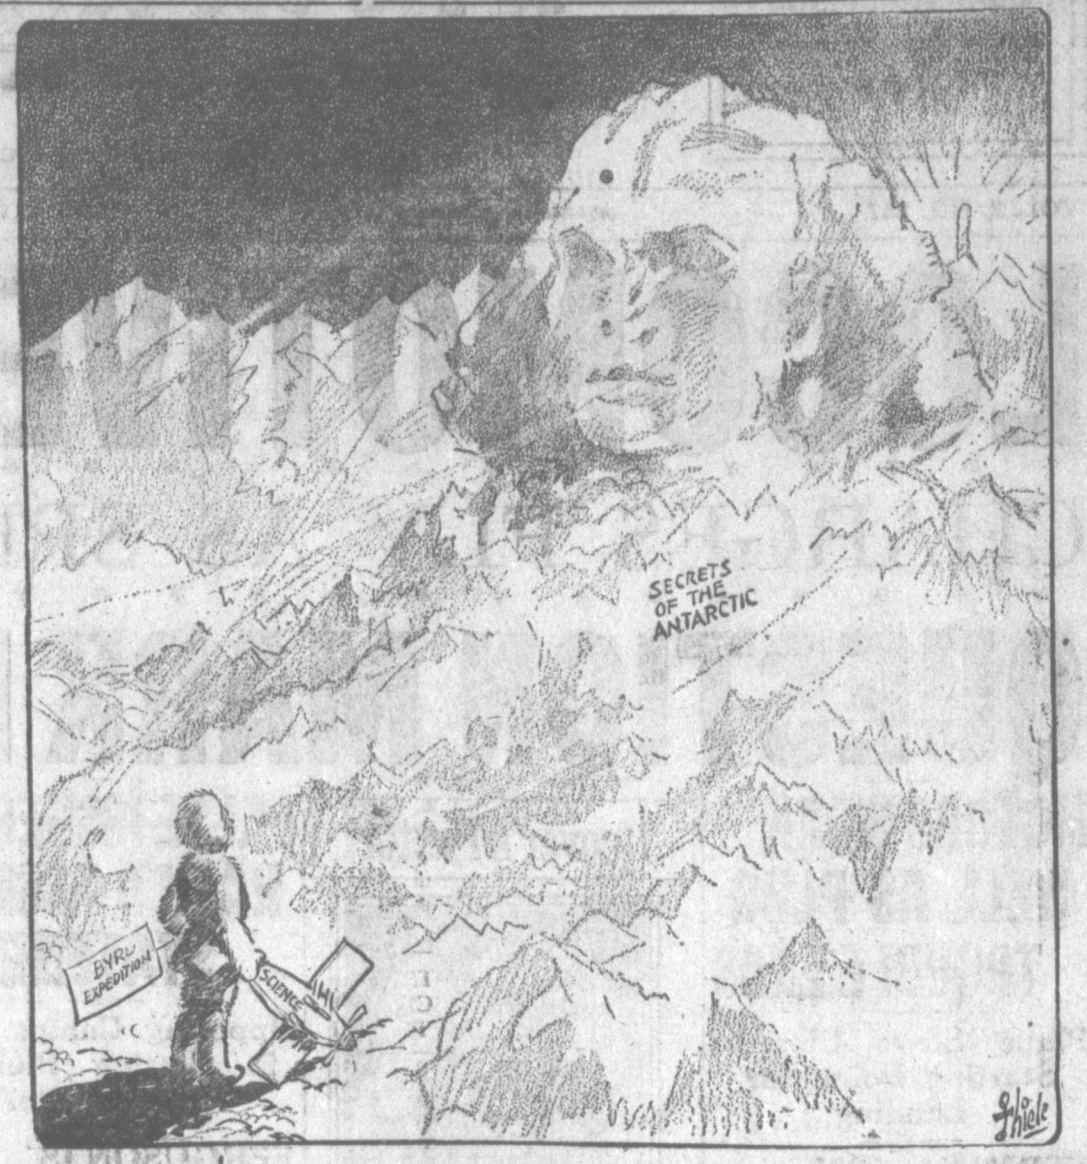

The present senator from Kansas and the vice president-to-be is wary in expressing his opinion on the official social racket awaiting him "You can look at me and listen to me and read my biography to judge how much I'm going to like it," he said. "But I have no criticism to make of the system. I accepted this job. I knew what it meant. I will do my duties faithfully. If my job requires being social man of the administration, I'm that—that's all. It's not for me to say whether I hanker for the job or approve of the system or not."

The messages to Mars go unanswered, which seems to advance the theory there are no women on the planet.

If we can lend enough money to Germany, it is just possible Germany can pay enough to England and France so that England and France can pay us their war debts. Fair enough.
