The skunk was sighted by a field superintendent for Curtis Well Service, on Tuesday. Burns said he reported the skunk was acting peculiar so he shot it.

Pampa Animal Control was notified, and the staff picked up the animal. Burns said there is no danger of humans having to take the rabies vaccine from this week's incident, but cautioned residents to be aware of the danger.

Wild animals, such as skunks, who come into town can transmit the disease to domestic animals. Parents are encouraged to caution their children about contact with stray animals.

Burns is urging animal owners to have their animals immunized against rabies as skunks have been seen in town. She emphasized concern among parents and educators. Realizing the long term negative effects of teens engaging in sexual activity, Pampa Independent School District began a program three years ago to make the teens aware of the consequences and encourage abstinence.

Worth the Wait, a nonprotit organization was created to address the problems associated with early teen sexual activity in the Texas Panhandle and to delay the onset of teen sexual activity, thus reducing the incidence of teen pregnancy.

Teen pregnancy is probably the most visible consequence of premarital sex, but Sexually Transmitted Diseases can be lifeimplemented at Pampa High School and Pampa Middle School during the fall of the 1998-1999 school year.

Based on Survey results, Ladd said a stronger emphasis was placed on getting the program to middle

Census shows remote, rural Midwest towns face 'death spiral'

The class of 2001 in the tiny town of Morland, Kan., is small enough to fit at a card table. When the four seniors graduate this spring, it will mark a beginning for them.

Morland High School - with 19 students - will hand out its diplomas in May, then close its doors days later, one more casualty of declining population in the more remote, rural towns of the nation's heartland.

"Some people are angry, some people are sad," says 27-year-old Principal Shelly Swayne, who grew up in a nearby northwestern Kansas town that lost its high school decades ago. "It's hard for us to see beyond our own boundaries. We see this as a single phenomenon happening to us. But it's a lot bigger than we are."

The 2000 census confirmed long-held suspicions: Many small towns in isolated stretches of the elderly in communities struggling to keep their names on the map.

The latest census numbers show dozens of counties in South Dakota, North Dakota, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Illinois lost people in the 1990s. The decline came even as these states gained population; one of the biggest surges came from the influx of Hispanics, lured by work in meatpacking and poultry plants and other hard-tofill jobs.

Cities grew and suburbia expanded into oncerural areas as farmland was plowed over to make way for 'housing subdivisions. In Indiana, Hamilton County, next to Indianapolis, grew 68 percent over the last decade.

Deep in the reaches of the Midwest and Great Plains, the century-long slide in population continues, as it does in other parts of rural America. In the last decade, according to the census:

- About half of South Dakota's 315 towns had no growth or fewer people. — All but six of North Dakota's 53 counties lost residents.

- A dozen rural Kansas counties lost 10 percent or more of their population.

The number of residents 17 and younger declined in 63 of 99 Iowa counties.

"It ends up being sort of a death spiral," says John Bailey, director of the rural policy program at the Center for Rural Affairs in Nebraska. "As communities get smaller, their schools, churches and business fade away. There's nothing to draw people to live there. These towns are on the ropes now. In another generation, they could disappear."

Many young people already "take the first bus out of town," Bailey says. "Unless they go to work for their parents in a farm or ranch, there's no economic opportunity for them. They either go to college and never return or go to one of the big population centers.

Take Robbie Ellis.

One of Morland High's last graduates, she will study accounting this fall at college in Colby, Kan., 56 miles from home. After that, she is uncertain.

"I want to drift around until I find the best job," he 18-year-old says. "It might or might not b

This kind of brain drain has long-range implica-tions, says Paul Lasley, professor of sociology at Iowa State University.

'Not only do you lose well-educated young people who are going to become parents, but you lose the next generation putting down roots," he says. "What we really are seeing is a leadership void in a lot of those communities. Who's going to be the future leaders?"

It is a question Joseph Kingsley might be asking himself

Kingsley has been town council president in Laconia, Ind., for 26 of his 69 years. Over the decades, he has seen the closing of his high school, grocery stores, restaurants and the pool hall.

The census recently reported his southern Indiana town had dwindled from a population of 75 in 1990 to 29 in 2000.

Midwest and Great Plains are withering away. Schools are closing, farmers are giving up and young people are moving out, leaving behind the more. Half the residents here are old women — 75 to 80 years old."

Kingsley has been working to get approval for a new sewer system, hoping it will attract business. He says, "Évery time you go somewhere for money, they say you ain't got enough people. That's the excuse they use."

Kingsley left Laconia for just two years - to serve in Korea.

"I stayed here so long," he says, "I guess I never got a chance to get away.

David Hansen did. The 63-year-old retired United Methodist minister who grew up on a farm returned 20 years ago to grow grain and raise cattle and sheep on 320 acres of sandy, loamy soil in central Nebraska.

As a minister and a farmer, he has witnessed the fading fortunes of small-town America.

For 14 years, he was a traveling pastor to three small congregations in Blaine County, and they all shrank by a third. As a farmer, he has become a lonelier figure on the land. He knows of a dozen area farmers who have quit in the past two decades.

"It's not a good feeling to lose neighbors," he says. "I guess you have to accept the change. There's some sense you cannot go back and recreate the past."

At Morland High, Shelly Swayne and her students are looking ahead. Most of the students will transfer to a school 12 miles away.

Swayne says if circumstances were different, she might have remained at Morland most of her career. She enjoys walking to work, feeling secure at home, striking up a conversation with anyone she meets at the corner grocery.

"I want to stay here," she says. "But there's no reason for me to stay."

"I'll polish the resume and find a job somewhere else," she adds. "It's going to have to be a bigger school. I don't really have a choice."

"I'll go away," she says. "But I'll probably end up coming back.

bright red nose popped onto the television scene, Bozo the Clown is headed for his last laughs.

WGN-TV General Manager John Vitanovec announced Friday that the final telecast of "The Bozo Super Sunday Show" would be Aug. 26.

The show began in 1961 as "Bozo's Circus," one of more than 180 locally produced Bozo shows around the country under license from the character's owner, Larry Harmon Pictures Corp.

Today, it is the only locally produced Bozo show left in the United States.

"It's been a great run," Harmon said in a press release. "No children's television show has enjoyed this kind of longevity.'

Vitanovec said competition from specialty cable kids networks like Nickelodeon and the Disney Channel was one reason for the show's demise. His announcement ends what was once one of graders who were surveyed do not believe it is all right for teens to have sex if they are in love.

A shift in this attitude occurs during the seventh grade; therefore, sixth grade is a critical time for students to receive the abstinence message in order to reinforce their beliefs," said Ladd.

Ladd said almost all sixth graders plan to delay sex until at least adulthood, with about 90 percent planning to wait until marriage.

"Approximately 38 percent have participated in hugging and kissing, but only a couple of students report touching under clothing," she said.

The most common person to have talked with the students about waiting is their mom. "Mom has talked to half of the boys and 85 percent of the girls. Dad has only talked to 41 percent of boys and 41 percent of girls," she said.

Sexual activity begins in middle school for some teens, and Pampa Middle School is no different, she said. "A total of 8.6 percent of seventh graders and 19.5 percent of eighth graders reported being sexually active.

"Students were asked how far they would go before marriage. There is a slight increase in the percentage of students reporting that they would go "all the way" in comparison to the number who have already willingly engaged in sex," she said.

According to the survey, 82 percent of seventh graders and 69 percent of eighth graders intend to remain abstinent until marriage. "Thus, most students intend to remain abstinent; however, the decline from seventh to eighth grade is larger than in most other districts and is cause for concern," she said.

Attitudes toward abstinence than expected, according to survey results.

This measure is often a strong predictor of intentions to abstain from sex. From these results, it appears that there is a lot of opportunity for WTW to influence attitudes," said Ladd.

She said most students who do not plan to remain abstinent plan to wait only until they are in love or until they are over 18. "The unfortunate aspect of this finding is that we often observe a pattern of serial monogamy, where the young person engages in sex only when in love," she said. Because most young people are "in love" several times a year, they are at significant risk for an STD because of multiple partners."

Students were asked, "If you have had sex and plan to continue, what is the biggest reason?" The most common response was "I love my partner." Ladd said this finding also reflects serial monogamy.

The most common reasons for remaining abstinent for seventh graders were, "I don't want to get AIDS or another STD", 20 percent of students; "It doesn't seem like a very smart thing to do", 17 percent of survey respondents; "It is against my religious beliefs", 13 percent; and fear of pregnancy, 12 percent of respondents.

Time will tell if McKnight's reformed

Something's messed up with my e-mail so, Plan A — to find something funny off the Internet to use for a column — had to be abandoned and I'm forced to pen one from my own head.

Sometimes that job's easy. Sometimes it's not. So I guess I'll just ramble a bit on what I have been thinking about this week besides how Bush is pushing the big business agenda and trying to dilute, if not kill, campaign finance reform. OK

Bobby Knight.

Funny how athletic honchos jumped through a bunch of hoops like they were just considering Knight as the new basketball coach at Texas Tech. It didn't take a rocket scientist to figure out it was a done deal from the gitgo.

When a large group of faculty members (alumni, too) complained that someone with Knight's record of out-of-control behavior shouldn't be the new coach it mattered not. It mattered about as much as if you are I were doing the hollering.

Knight's no spring chicken and, frankly, my bet is he's set in his ways. The pressure to been? behave himself will be great and I'm not so sure he can keep himself from erupting.

If you recall, the final straw at Indiana was when a student yelled, "Hey, Knight!" and the it up General flipped out and grabbed the young man.

Friday morning, on CNN I think, there was a piece about Knight going to Texas Tech. In it shirts.

were those now familiar scenes of chair throwing, berating and head-butting a player and the practice video where he grabbed a player's neck. And, of course, that little poem he did about when he passed he wanted to be buried upside down so his critics could kiss his ...

There's no picture of when he threw a potted plant or flower vase in the direction of a lady who worked in the IU athletic department. If memory serves me right, the object broke into the locker room but I'm not going to go there. Too gross.

And how many more fits of rage have there

Nobody really knows and apparently Texas Tech officials don't care. They have that beautiful, new arena and need to sell tickets to fill

Knight will sell tickets. Matter of fact, T-shirt shops in Lubbock are already seeing green because so many are buying Bobby Knight

There's no doubt Knight has been a master of the roundball ... but in recent years his team's success has been limited - something that no doubt didn't do anything to bring out Knight's kinder, gentler nature if he has one.

Knight's had more player problems in the last few years. By that, I mean unhappy players - players who've quit or transferred and those who'll speak out about the coach. Like it or not, today's hip-hop generation college basketball players are not the players of old. What may have worked during a time when players didn't question coaches and just sucked it up doesn't work now.

I will hand him this. And I can't say the same about the coach of my beloved Razorbacks. Knight's players go to class or Those are just some of the antics on video. they don't play and his team's graduation rates were higher than that of the IU student body as a whole.

In case you are wondering. Nolan Richardson has been at Arkansas for at least pieces. Then there's that toilet paper thing in 13, maybe more years. And he recently got a nice contract extension. The total number of Richardson's basketball Razorbacks who have graduated since he's been there is this -0, zip, nada. Embarrassing.

But I digress

It would really be nice if Knight can get a grip on his temper, relate to today's players, keep up his graduation success, fill the arena and build warm fuzzy feelings for Texas Tech students and supporters.

As the well-worn, but true phrase says --Time will tell.

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas: Houston Chronicle on Mexico City march:

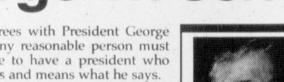

Even in a capital city noted for its protests and demonstrations, it was an impressive sight. In a major lobbying effort, more than 100,000 people thronged into Mexico City's sprawling central plaza, El Zocalo, Sunday to greet the leadership of southernmost Chiapas state's Maya Indian rebels.

The Zapatista National Liberation Army, which has roots in Indian peasant organizations, church activists and a Leninist guerrilla group from northern Mexico, has made congressional passage of sweeping indigenous-rights legislation a condition for ending the 7-year-old armed rebellion in Chiapas. The legislation would include autonomy, bilingual education and other concessions for the country's 10 million Indians.

The march on the Zocalo and later meetings with congressional representatives were the culmination of a nearly two-week, highly publicized caravan across southern and central Mexico designed to give the Zapatistas an international platform.

Taking verbal potshots at the government in the nation's town square is, of course, a long way from guerrilla warfare in the jungles of Chiapas. The assembly was a healthy sign for Mexico's democratic evolution and renewed prospects for peace.

Mexico's new president, Vicente Fox, has made achieving peace. in Chiapas a priority, sending the Indian rights bill to Congress within hours of his Dec. 1 inauguration. In a radio address before gathering in the square, Fox welcomed the Zapatistas to Mexico City and "to the political arena, to the discussion of ideas."

He is, as people who knew him predicted, following up on his campaign promises precisely. His budget speech was concise and intelligent. Had he not been interrupted 80 times by applause, the speech would have run his

However, while Fox and other Zapatista sympathizers might see Mexico's need to help those who are being left behind, politically and economically, many in the indigenous movement clearly see themselves being taken where they don't want to go.

Many feel the North American Free Trade Agreement has destroyed Mexico's rural economy. Many Zapatista supporters at home and abroad view the movement as a symbol of resistance to globalization.

Mexico's overall problems are still formidable. The economic challenge for Mexico, points out Mark Falcoff in a research paper for the American Enterprise Institute, "is both qualitative and quantitative. It must continue to grow, but it must reconfigure its patterns of economic distribution, which are among the most inegalitarian in the Third World.

No wonder the apparent depth of disagreement with the Zapatistas.

The political question for Fox, then, is how to build confidence with a group so diametrically opposed to his policies aimed at relieving their complaints

Public notice bills threaten tradition

Texas has for decades worked to inform its citizens by requiring that public notices be printed in local newspapers.

Several bills now before the Legislature threaten that tradition of publishing important notices while allowing exclusive publication on the Internet, at the option of state and local governments.

There is nothing wrong with using the Internet to expand public notice. That's already happening without much prompting by the state. However, for the foreseeable future, newspapers remain vital to the process of public notice.

The bills are S.B. 872 by Jon Lindsay (R-Houston) and S.B. 853 by Sen. Chris Harris (R-Arlington). Lindsay's bill would allow for Internet posting of public bid notices. Harris' bill is more sweeping and would allow publirequired by state law.

In both bills, electronic publication could be urban areas. instead of, not in addition to, publication in newspapers.

Let's say up front that newspaper publishers likely would lose revenue because of the change. However, for most daily newspapers, legal advertising represents a small percentage of revenue, usually much less than 5 percent. The percentage for weekly newspapers is high- available across the state to rely on it for pro-

The real losers if this legislation passes would be the public

In this debate, it is essential for all to understand the underlying purpose of such advertising; it is not just functional, aimed only at public officials and contractors who do business with the government. It is for everyone.

how newspapers still may serve in this area.

Habit is an important part of what newspapers offer. The state of Texas has invested millions over the years in training citizens to look for public notices in their local newspaper. We should not toss this aside without a great amount of planning and thought.

Further, a majority of Texas newspapers already have their own Internet presence. The Texas Press Association reports that more than The fact is, not enough Texans have Internet half of the state's 650 newspapers have Internet access or use what they do have - at least not editions. Some in the Texas Legislature may relish the notion of taking a small amount of revenue away from their local newspaper.

Others may sincerely believe the state should make more and better use of Internet technology. It is hard to argue with that notion. Letters to the editor

Transmitter would bring Public Radio

To the editor.

During the past weeks, there have been several news articles telling about the possibility of bringing public radio into the nine-county region of the eastern part of the Texas Panhandle.

My voice has often been heard (by many who may be tired of hearing it) to encourage people to support this effort.

Public Radio, which is noncommercial listener-supported radio, has been around for nearly 50 years. But it's not been here.' Public radio as a national effort came into being in 1967 when the Corporation for Public Broadcasting was created by Congress to assist local and regional stations that were member-based in developing their programming and community service.

Today, there are two major "networks" that most public radio stations participate in: National Public Radio (NPR) which produces such programs as the two in-depth international news tional news programs "Morning Edition" and "All Considered," and Things Public Radio International (PRI) which produces many music and entertainment programs like "RiverWalk," a jazz program from San Antonio with the Jim Cullum Band, which has been featured with the Lone Star Ballet in Amarillo. "RiverWalk" happens to be hosted by a storytelling colleague, David Holt (no relation that I know of to our attorney here in Pampa, although the storyteller David Holt did grow up in Texas.)

The nearest public radio station to us is High Plains Public Radio, based in Garden City, Kan. They launched their first broadcast in the late 1970s with their first 100,000-watt clear from the international monetary channel tower. They use pro-

finally have a service that most of the country takes for granted. This service will give us a variety of programming not currently available through commercial stations. Public radio is not in competition with commercial stations and welcomes developing a partnership with stations already on the air.

Some questions have been asked about what public radio sounds like. My best suggestion is that each person listen while driving to/from Amarillo on Hwy 60 (91.3 near Panhandle; 94.9 in Amarillo), or go to the Lovett Memorial Library and check out a "High Plains Public Radio Sampler" on either audio cassette or CD format.

For anyone wishing to look up public radio on-line, click on www.hppr.org (for High Plains Public Radio), or call them at 1-800-678-7444. Also, there is a new yellow flyer prepared just for the Pampa area available at several businesses, the library and the Chamber of Commerce. Pick it up, read it through, give some thought to how you might want to get involved. Public radio is people-driven, paid for by mem-berships, not by advertising dollars.

U.N. should not be able to tax Americans To the editor,

It is amazing how taxpayers can get upset about a small raise in taxes at the local level and ignore the really frightening proposals by the United Nations for horrendous taxes that would hurt everyone on Earth.

Some of the U.N. proposals would steal $1 trillion per year transactions. The U.N. wants to tax airline travel along with a foster tyranny on mankind as never seen before. The U.N. military forces already have bad reputations and the bloated

This money would go to Rails," a music variety program, "High Plains Morning" which includes such features as Growing on the High Plains, and Western Swing and Other Things that can include both live performances as well as recordings, and interviews with musicians from Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Colorado — the service area for High Plains Public Radio.

High Plains Public Radio has been working - with the encouragement of many of us in the Texas Panhandle - to build a major transmitting and keep taxpayer sovereignty, tower in our area. Two years ago, they were able to set up service in Amarillo (94.9 FM) and Panhandle-Claude (91.3 FM) through what is known as a satellite down-link and a translator. This brings in the programming from Garden City to a limited area. From Pampa, it can usually be found about 6 miles west of White Deer on Hwy 60.

Now there is a real possibility to have a complete 100,000watt clear channel transmitter from an 800-foot tower just north of the Canadian River. This is a major difference to what Amarillo has available. With this tower, the service area includes not only Pampa but White Deer, Skellytown, Borger, Fritch, Stinnett, Morse, Gruver, Spearman, Perryton, Booker, Darrouzett, Lipscomb, Canadian, Mobeetie, Lefors, and Miami ... covering a 9county area.

Eventually, boosters can be added to include all communities in these counties which may not get ideal reception with the 100,000-watt transmitter now set to be built. Also eventually, we will be able to produce programs locally, once this project is completed. This is something that Amarillo will not be able to do, since their public radio service is limited to receiving the programs from a satellite down-link.

The construction of this 800foot tower is a very expensive project. The ultimate benefit to the Texas Panhandle - especially in light of the new census figures - will be that we will

U.N. bureaucracy is a scandal. The United Nations threat to national sovereignty is well documented. To hassle over taxes of nickels and dimes at the local level may demonstrate taxpayer frustration, but 'you ain't seen nothing yet" until the U.N. socialists get their hands in both pockets and tax us to the bone!

To restore U.S. sovereignty the U.N. needs to be relegated to the trash heap of history. Good riddance! Why not have a good reason for being upset? This is worthy of down-toearth frustration needing an honest outlet!

replacement for Dr. Jim Calvi, who will resign as head of the Department of History and Political Science effective Aug. 31. Dr. Wade Shaffer, associate professor of history and a WTAMU faculty member since 1994, will assume the role Sept. 1.

"Ever since Dr. Calvi announced his intentions to return to the classroom, Dr. Shaffer's name has emerged as a possible candidate for the position," Dr. Ted Guffy, dean of the College of Education and Social Sciences, said. "He's been actively involved in the department, has served on Faculty Senate and has the respect and support of his peers. I have every confidence that Dr. Shaffer will do an outstanding job, and I look forward to working with him in this new capacity.

Shaffer received bachelor's and master's

Household finances: Not so good

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK AP) - The financial report card of American households is not good as they deal with the first substantial economic slowdown in nearly a decade. Already deep in debt, many may be forced to borrow even more.

As 2000 ended, outstanding household debt actually exceeded disposable income by $100 billion, putting the debt-to-income percentage at 101.2, compared with just 87 percent in 1990.

The situation poses problems for families and the economy, especially if jobs are lost. Existing strains also may be worsened if the value of collateral assets, such as homes and stocks, suffer in the slowdown.

As debts rose during the best of financial times, economists justified the borrowing as safe because of the concurrent rise in the value of assets. But some of those assets may themselves have been inflated.

The figures are from a review and analysis of Federal Reserve data by the Financial Markets Center, a think tank based in Philomont, Va. It shows that as the expansion faltered, debts grew in the domestic retailers may even eliminate intereconomy.

In all, as the economy slowed to a 1.1 percent annual growth rate in the economy averts the worst of the the fourth quarter, household debt possibilities is likely to be found in rose 8.2 percent, business obliga-tions by 8.4 percent and state and The income rise and investment debt fell 9.6 percent thanks to budget surpluses.

The rise of debt without a spurt in economic activity, said economist Jane D'Arista, the report's author, 'suggests borrowers used some of the additional debt to consolidate and service outstanding obligations." Such behavior underscores the fragile situation facing the Federal Reserve in guiding the economy through the slowdown with careful cuts in lending rates that, among other things, would make debt repayments easier. At the same time, it has indicated that the possibility of inflation atop the already tenuous economic situation still exists, and that overly deep interest rate cuts might reignite demand and lead to price increases.

Meanwhile, three half-percentage point interest rate cuts in less than three months have lessened the strain on many household budgets. Home mortgage rates have fallen, allowing many families to refinance and cut monthly payments by $100 or more. Credit card issuers are likely to lower rates. And some est charges.

"We know saving for college education is important," said Watson, "but it's something people often put off saving for, thinking there's plenty of time. Be smart. Start the planning process. Putting together an investment plan is the first step to success. There are lots of income sources to help fund college education. What's more, with some investments, you can keep control of these earmarked funds that are specifically reserved for the student's education," Watson concluded.

COUNCIL

An exciting opportunity is on the horizon for a Pampa-area resident who: 1) Would like to volunteer his/her services for the betterment of their community; and 2) can travel to Amarillo once a month to attend scheduled meetings after 5 p.m. Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, or RSVP, a national organization with an office in Amarillo, has an opening for an Advisory Council position to represent the Pampa community. Pampa has been represented since 1992, and a lot of positive things have been done, including increased volunteer participation and the addition of more volunteer stations (locations where the volunteers work). Gray Co. is but one of 11 counties served by RSVP's Amarillo office, and representation from our own area is important. The Advisory Council term would be for two years, starting at the end of March, and is not limited to someone who is 55-years-old or older. Interested in senior volunteerism? Interested in improving Pampa's social services? For more information or to receive an application, call Amarillo RSVP Director Nova Neuhaus

Knight takes over at Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) -Bob Knight is returning to college basketball, ending his sixmonth exile to coach a Texas Tech team that hopes he can build a winner — and control his famous temper.

As the former Indiana University coach took the microphone Friday to make the announcement, the energy level among the 7,500 students and fans surrounding him neared the level five years ago when the Red Raiders made it to the Sweet 16 of the NCAA tournament.

"It's the greatest thing that could happen to the program, ever," said sophomore Albert Lusky.

"I think that's kind of a funny pattern over 22 years," he said, as the crowd cheered. Knight said his first Red Raiders basketball practice would be at 7 a.m. Saturday.

Knight, 60, was Texas Tech's After missing his first college only serious candidate to season since 1963, Knight replace James Dickey, even signed a 5-year deal worth though about 100 of the university's 900 faculty members Athletic director Gerald signed a petition advising against the move. Tech officials met with him early this Knight's annual compensation month in Florida, four days salary, $150,000 in deferred There are no behavior-relat ed clauses in Knight's new employment contract, other than the standard requirements of all Tech employees, Myers said. Tech policy states that "cause for termination includes failure to perform duties, actions that are detrimental to the university, and any violation of university, Big 12 or NCAA rules." Tech is counting on Knight to improve a program stuck in reverse, partly due to NCAA sanctions that cost nine scholarships over the last four years.

High Plains Public Radio is ready to bring public radio service to our area. Soon a wealth of commercial-free programming will be available ... programming that includes in-depth news and information, quality classical, jazz and folk music, and a variety of other stimulating and entertaining programs including all the best programs from National Public Radio and Public Radio International.

Public radio will also promote the community by focusing on regional issues of interest, as well as creating a no-cost means of promoting Panhandle Cultural and Educational Events throughout the broadcast area. income and a minimum of $500,000 in guaranteed outside income, including speaking engagements and shoe and radio deals.

Myers said Knight offered to 'work for nothing" the first year, but will receive $12,000 to qualify for university benefits. The other $238,000 of his base annual salary for 2000 will be deferred until after Knight leaves Texas Tech, Myers told the newspaper, increasing the total of deferred money over five years to $988,000.

Myers said unlike other Texas Tech coaches, Knight will receive no incentive-based bonuses because he felt "those things are things you're expected to do.'

The announcement was not as enthusiastically received in Indiana, where some still bemoan Knight's departure.

The coach's well-known temper, outbursts and chair-throwing contributed to his firing in September from Indiana where he had coached th Hoosiers to three nationa titles.

The fiery coach had aske fans to stay for the news con ference and encouraged then to react to questions.

At one point, when a reporte asked for a follow-up question Knight declined. When th reporter insisted, Knight aske the audience, "How many o you want to hear a follow-up from this guy?"

The crowd booed loudly. Later, the same reporte returned to the floor micro phone and was allowed to as his question — had Knigh undergone anger managemer

Knight was brash, defiant and unapologetic for the events that led to his firing, including grabbing one of his players by the neck during practice.

"I'm not sure what the pattern of unacceptable behavior was," he said, "except that I

Knight's programs have followed NCAA rules and had high graduation rates. He has amassed a 763-289 career record in six years at Army and 29 at Indiana and has taken teams to three national championships, 11 Big Ten championships and an Olympic gold medal in 1984.

Arizona advances

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Trying to step up the tempo wasn't working, so Arizona used the same defensive strategy Mississippi relies on.

The second-seeded Wildcats clamped down on hefty center Rahim Lockhart and outrebounded the Rebels 45-32 on the way to a 66-56 victory Friday night in the Midwest semifinals.

"It was obviously two teams playing extremely tough on the defensive end of the court," Arizona coach Lute Olson said. "We were able to put the ball in the basket in the second half, where the first half they had us pushed way out of our operational zone."

Early on, the Wildcats (26-7) were rushing their shots.

"In the second half, we just came out composed and started moving the ball a lot better and getting better shots," said guard Jason Gardner, who finished with 10 points.

In the meantime, 7-foot-1 center Loren Woods led the effort to hold off the 6-8, 255-pound Lockhart.

Public Radio may be coming to the Pampa area. Several committee members along with High Plains Public Radio are trying to raise funds for this project. Approximate total cost for this project is $711, 901. While $150,000 needs to be raised by March 30, 2001, additional funds can be raised throughout 2001.

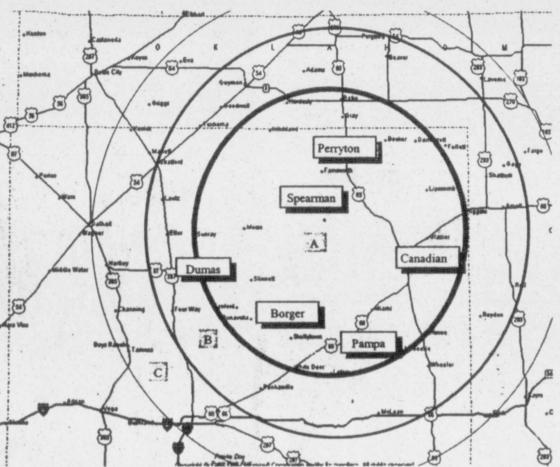

In Sept, 2000, HPPR received a grant of nearly $437,000 from the national Public Telecommunications Facilities Program to help fund the Texas Panhandle Project. Work is underway with the FCC to secure a construction permit to build the station at 89.5 FM. However, before construction can begin approximately $275,000 in regional

De-grubbing your yard is possible

Many problems exist in a house built during the Roaring 20s. Forget about the plumbing that was rusted shut or the painting that never ends. Those horrendous chores, slowly completed, are second-string problems compared to what is lurking in my lawn.

The lawn de-construction began in earnest recently. Warm, placid days forced digging action. Years of blow-in dirt mounded the ground too far above the curb. The obsession for a flat yard fueled a shovel attack.

My hands, weakened from a winter's inactivity, felt like jelly around the spade handle. My knees creaked, forcing the shovel through the thick sod. This would be a long and laborious project. Hopefully, my "summer bones" will arrive shortly.

Peeling the sod away from the curb outlined the venture. The earth, still wet, detached from the concrete border with relative ease. Cutting through four-inches of old grass file. Metal ground against metal

Wielding the bad end of the shovel allows the digger time brought me closer to the final mental plan for my project. A major lawn problem developed over the winter. Nasty, pasty, comma-shaped, bigheaded grub worms peppered my tired lawn. These insidious pests were chewing grass faster before they begin feeding. Start than I could dig it out. White grubs destroy lawns with their voracious appetites. June bugs and Japanese beetles are the major culprits. In the summer, they lay eggs on the grass blades. After hatching, the larvae burrow underground to feed on our precious lawns.

Several products, organic and chemical, kill these disgusting pests. Milky Spore, Bacillus popilliae-Dutky bacterium, kills grubs as they feed. The grub dies, disintegrates and millions

After completing the de-construction (and hopefully, the reconstruction) of the Moneypit's lawn, I shall add a powdery film of bacteria. There will be no grubs in my new flat yard.

Older runners say benefits outweigh challenges

The next morning, describing her stiff joints and hobbling gait, Connelly was emphatic about her plans for next year's marathon.

"No! I'm not ever running another marathon," she said, although she will continue to run, and might participate in shorter races. "I feel like a train wreck.'

Salameh felt good the next morning despite some soreness in his legs.

"I'll run again next year," he said. "It's in my blood."

Kerrey Ford and Dustin Brown

Ford-Brown

Kerrey Ford and Dustin Brown, both of Pampa, plan to wed June 9 at Cotton Wood Springs in Pampa.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Ben and Pat Ford of Pampa. She graduated from Pampa High School in 1996 and from Amarillo college, receiving an associates degree in surgical technology. She is currently employed at Pampa Regional Medical Center.

The prospective groom is the son of Jim and Linda Bruton and Milton Brown, all of Pampa. He graduated from Pampa High School in 1996 and attended Frank Phillips College and Clarendon College. He is currently employed at National Oilwell.

GOP senators said they would try to write a bill this spring that couples an immediate $60 billion cut with a 10-year, $983 billion reduction in income tax rates, the heart of Bush's tax proposal.

The president told reporters Friday that he favors quicker tax relief but still wants his entire package to pass.

'We should accelerate tax relief and keep the size of the tax relief package at the same level," Bush said. "I'm confident we can do both.

Even so, the president seemed to indicate that he could live with the Senate GOP's proposal for a tax cut this year on top of his $1.6 trillion, though he referred to it as parties," Daschle said. $40 billion instead of $60 billion.

> "If anybody has a better plan to help the American economy, ... I'd like to see it," said Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., after GOP senators huddled privately on their tax plans.

Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said Friday that he supports $60 billion in immediate tax relief, but not if it is linked to the GOP's income tax rate reduction. Democrats prefer cutting taxes over the next decade by about half what Bush wants, and say the Republicans' acrossthe-board rate cut is too tilted toward the wealthy.

"Why not take what we already agree on, in the name of expeditious response to the economic concerns raised by leaders in both

Domenici said no decisions would be made on the form of this year's tax reductions until the Senate Finance Committee writes the bill in coming weeks.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., said it would not involve a one-time rebate in which every taxpayer would get the same-sized reduction. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, predicted it would be achieved by having the Internal Revenue Service reduce the amount of money withheld from paychecks.

'This is still about cutting taxes for people who pay taxes," Lott told reporters. "We've got to base it on rate cuts rather than a specific amount."

Domenici said the Senate could work on a second package later in the year containing the remainder of proposed tax cuts, including relief from the marriage penalty and an easing of the estate tax. Senate GOP leaders still face the problem of rounding up enough votes to pass their tax cuts, which until now they had said would be done with a single, huge bill. With the Senate divided 50-50 between

24 - Sunday, March 25, 2001 - THE PAMPA NEWS SMU's Bridwell Library builds a collection that ranks with the best

By SELWYN CRAWFORD The Dallas Morning News

DALLAS - The Bridwell Library at Southern Methodist University turns 50 this year, but compared with the treasured artifacts for which it is known, it's a mere infant.

"There is an aura about it of a mission fulfilled," said Dr. Decherd Turner, Bridwell's first director, from 1950 to 1980. "It's kind of funny in that as people get older, they decline. As institutions get older, they get bet-whom the seminary is named. Although it is a theological library, Bridwell covers a broad spectrum of the humanities and is heralded for a huge collection of rare books that date to the very origins of printing in the 15th century. The library has more than 800 books from that period, the largest such collection in the Southwest.

Current director Dr. Valerie R. more than just a book depository or a quiet place to study.

We try to be more than a great library but a cultural center for the campus, the community and the country," Ms. Hotchkiss said. "I call it a gem in the crown of Dallas."

Recently, Ms. Hotchkiss and Mr. Turner joined a host of former and current Bridwell staff members and supporters in a formal celebration of its 50th anniversary. As part of that public event, officials have set up a 94-artifact 31-leaf fragment of the Gutenberg Bible, the first book printed with moveable type, and the so-called Dante and the Doves Press Bible.

Also on display are a copy of Henri Mattisse's Jazz; a copy of James Joyce's Ulysses; part of a Marcus; and a 17th-century Chinese Torah scroll written on parchment.

Bridwell's treasure trove attracts more than just Perkins and SMU students to its cozy confines. Longtime friends Jean Lacy and Jody Furnish of Dallas paid a visit recently and hailed the library as fabulous."

"It's just wonderful," said Ms. Lacy, a well-known African-American artist. "It's one of the best collections I've seen anywhere."

Mrs. Furnish, whose husband, Victor, retired in January after 41 years as a Perkins professor, agreed.

"It's a marvelous library," she said. "My husband always support-ed this library, and we just think the world of it."

Ms. Hotchkiss said that despite its size and in library terms relative youth, Bridwell is no bibliophile's

There's no reason Bridwell shouldn't be mentioned in the same breath ... as the greatest rare-book libraries in the United States," Ms. Hotchkiss said. "It's not yet, but I think that in the next 50 years, it will

So do others. Dr. William P. Stoneman is the Florence Fearrington Librarian at Harvard University's Houghton Library, which is regarded as among the nation's best rare-book libraries. He said that Bridwell's staff, through its collections and programs, has sup-ported the teaching and research "of the whole scholarly world."

"The range of the collections and the depth of many of them support international scholarship," he said. "The collections of fine printing and of Reformation history and theolocial collections at Bridwell, said the level of success that the library attained during its first 50 years is

What's special to me is that all of these things are here together in one place," he said, referring to the incunables. "And together, they make the studying of great books

Fellow special collections curator Ellen Herron has worked for Bridwell for less than a year. She said that the cultural depth of the items there impresses her almost daily.

"This is a phenomenal collection," she said. "I was pleasantly surprised when I first went in the rare book vault. I think Bridwell is on its way to being one of the best rare-book

She won't get much argument from Ms. Hotchkiss, who said that she wants to see Bridwell continue its upward spiral during the next
