"It's Like This—"

AL SMITH failed to offend in his radio address. It had been feared that he would attempt to dictate to the Democratic party in a manner that would arouse resentment, but instead he omitted mention of his personal ambitions or plans and uttered pleas with which all can agree—wiping out of the huge campaign deficit and providing for an active party organization on a permanent basis.

This can be accomplished only by the nationwide cooperation he suggests. No superman, Raskob or any other, can bring the party out of its not very presentable condition.

TALL MEN have abnormal advantages in such sports as basketball, and there is a move on to bar participants towering more than 6 feet in height. But there are few sports in which this objection is raised.

People are very much alike, and the physical differences are often offset by mental dissimilarities. Thus, a hulk of a boxer or football player may be too dumb to be dangerous, and the smaller man may be wiry and fast.

This condition obtains in other phases of life. Nearly every person has enough endowments to make them as successful as the average of their fellows—if they will develop those talents by thoughtful work.

AIRMINDEDNESS grows by cultivation, so it is assumed that the newspaper men and Chamber of Commerce secretaries who took the aviation course in Fort Worth recently went back to their homes feeling very kindly toward that mode of transportation.

It is noticeable that some of the smaller towns are building the best airports. In other words, air-mindedness is contagious and knows no barriers of size or location.

STUDENT ART clubs are being formed in several neighboring cities. When such clubs are formed because of the interest of the students in their work, much productive good arises. The public indirectly benefits through the performances made possible, but the biggest result is the enjoyment and enrichment of those participating.

Pampa can do no better for her children than to make it possible for them to find and develop their artistic talents—music, dramatics, drawing, and the like. We do not live by material things alone. Let us put some of our funds into development of our children's talents.

WEST TEXAS, proud of her oil riches, new railroads, bigger cities, and greater population, is going to be heard from in unmistakable terms in the future. Domination by other sections of the state is passing. Already is heard the cry of favoritism toward this area in certain committee appointments.

At the same time, the oil and land suits have aroused such a feeling of resentment that West Texas is united and aggressive. The revival of agitation to divide the state might have been expected. We heard yesterday the suggestion to form a new state to be called "West Texas". While we do not believe division will ever be accomplished, that name would meet with our approval.

Living at Home

This paper yesterday carried the sort of news items we always like to see in print—the kind of item that means something, and shows that the world is a pretty good place after all, and that industry and thrift still have their reward.

It told how the Van Delselm family of Voss, in Coleman county, had made diversified farming pay large dividends. The record of this family's year's work is given by Miss Gertrude Brent, Coleman county demonstration agent. The figures are worth repeating.

So here goes: The Van Delselm sold 412 frying chickens for $176.75; fifty hens for $48.50; eggs to the value of $527.65; 755 pounds of butterfat for $324.65; turkey eggs, $11.90. That, our correspondent tells us, comes to $2,089.45. In addition, there are 550 pullets retained for 1929, valued at $275.

That means work, and plenty of it. You can't have the good things of life without working for them and sticking everlastingly to the job. Poultry and cows are a great trial, at times, and a body can't have much time for gadding around to sociables and suchlike; but they pay good dividends—as the Van Delselms have proved.

And oh, yes; the Van Delselms have quantities of canned peaches, plums, chow-chow, pickles, mincemeat, chickens and vegetables from the family garden.

That's living at home and boarding at the same place. That is balanced agriculture, which you hear so much about. We imagine the Van Delselms aren't worrying a great deal about farm relief. They could build a fence around their place and live at home without outside assistance or interference.

What a grand old Texas it would be if we had a few hundred thousand Van Delselms!—Abilene News.

Along Hoover's Trail in SOUTH AMERICA

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—There is romance on the pampas of the Argentine, but it is the romance of the plow and of waving fields of grain rather than of the dashing gaucho whose type has been resurrected by Valentino and Douglas Fairbanks.

The picturesque, romantic, native cowboy died off long ago and offers even less material for the novel and the movie than our own cowboys of today. The vaquero, as the pampas' cow man is known, rides a trick saddle and swings a mean lasso, but he is only a peon on horseback.

The people of the pampas are divided into two classes: the few wealthy estancia owners and the peons who do all the work. By peons, one does not mean victims of the peonage system as the term is generally understood in the United States—a condition of semi-slavery. In South America the peon is merely the unskilled farm laborer.

Life seldom holds much for the peon. He lives meanly, without the comforts, good treatment or pay of a farmhand in the United States. Generally he lives with others in long sheds, often sheds of adobe though, sometimes of brick, with four or five other peons in the same room. His wages average 60 pesos a month, which is about $24, and he spends extravagantly on pay day.

But the peon appears satisfied with the bare necessities of life. His condition is commonly better than that of the tenant farmer on the pampas.

The large ranches, some of which are tremendous in size and operated like so many feudal estates, often rent out land on a percentage basis and thousands of Italian immigrants, especially those from Piedmont, have become tenant farmers. They live very poorly through the year on credit; sometimes a tenant farmer is found subsisting only on mate, an unpalatable tea raised and brewed in this country, and galleta, a kind of hard tack. Boiled white corn is also a common fare. He has few if any comforts. In an exceptionally good year he may be able to kill a couple of bullocks and a few pigs for a long spell of sausages.

Everyone in a tenant farmer's family works hard. Here a boy of 18 is likely to appear to be a man of 30. Boys of 12 are to be seen pushing plows and tenant farmers spend much time and labor in a continual fight against pests.

But although some immigrants are willing to adopt this kind of life, most of them stay at Buenos Aires, where a few, by hard work, brains and luck, become millionaires.

Pampas means plains. This region is comparable to our own grain belt and its development is following along the same lines. It produces wheat, corn and cattle. Physically, it is a broad, vast area of treeless, grass-covered plain with enough water and rainfall to permit grain growing, up to the point where the western and southern fringes resolve first into fields fit only for sheep grazing and then mere desert.

In the north is the wooded Chaco region, its forests as yet untapped through lack of railroads. With millions of acres of highly productive lands, the pampas have become the most highly developed section of South America.

They still have great possibilities for further development, although Europe's demand for grain has long since begun a development similar to that of our own grain states in the last 50 years.

TWINKLES

Hoover has been back home long enough to tell the Marines how to capture Sandino, but we haven't heard of his doing it.

Tennis balls will be red this spring. Let 'em put on the colors of John Bull himself, if it will help our "English" any.

King Tut, famous movie dog, has had his face lifted. We do that free for society dogs, if they get within range.

We understand a runaway team just up and quit when a taxi whipped by it. Even Old Dobbin knows when his display is ridiculous.

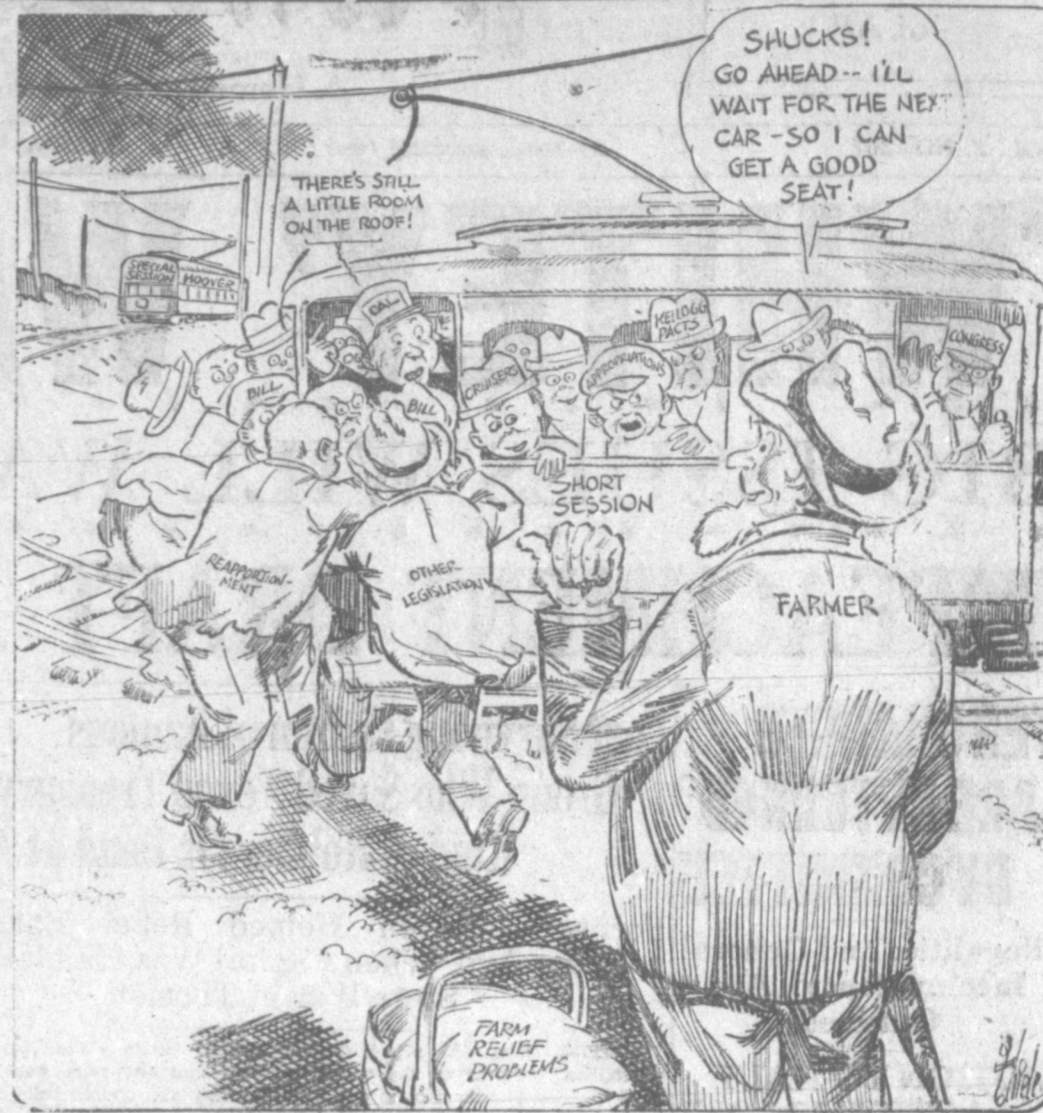

Note on college life: A doctor has advised students of Bates college to stop kissing as a precaution against the flu.

A preacher won the Lions club talking contest. We bet he gets plenty of practice between sermons, too.

Our legislators are not geniuses—not many of them at least, but they are expected to pass on 250 measures. How many laws do you think you could assimilate in two months?

Brain operations were reported to the other day to cure two boys of criminal tendencies. The early spring poetry crop is expected to be undiminished, however.

OIL NEWS and NOTES

Property Custodian Joins Rockefeller in Ouster Move

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (AP)—Aid for John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in his fight to oust Robert W. Stewart as chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, has come from Howard E. Sutherland, alien property custodian.

Mr. Sutherland, by virtue of his office holds the voting power of between 12,000 and 13,000 shares of Standard of Indiana stock, the property of Germans seized during the war, and he has announced he has assigned the voting proxies to Mr. Rockefeller.

Mineral Assets of Kansas Appear of Vast Interest

LAWRENCE, Kan., Jan. 18. (AP)—Eight in the list of states in all mineral production of petroleum, Kansas is facing further development in oil and gas, according to Dr. R. C. Moore, state geologist, and head of the department of geology at the University of Kansas.

In a survey of minerals progress, made by Dr. Moore and Prof. K. K. Lahdes, assistant state geologist, Doctor Moore points out that five years ago no oil or gas was known in the vast section of Kansas west of the prime meridian, but with in the past five years oil has been discovered in eight western Kansas counties, and gas—discovery of which often precedes discovery of oil—has been found in five other western counties of Kansas.

Discovery of gas or oil in more of the western counties is freely predicted by Dr. Moore, who adds that undoubtedly there will be further development of these resources in the regions already known to be producers.

"The most active areas in oil and gas prospecting at present are the Summer - Sodgwick-Harvey-McPherson belt," says Dr. Moore. "Prospecting is also going forward all along the southern border of the state, as far west as Stephens county, and in a tier of counties in the north central portion including Rush, Ellis, Rooks and Phillips counties. Northwestern Kansas and northeastern Colorado also are getting a break."

Total production of oil in Kansas in 1927, Mr. Moore reports, was 41,968,773 barrels, putting Kansas fourth in the list of oil producing states.

In its total mineral production Kansas is exceeded only by Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, California, Texas, West Virginia, Ohio and Illinois, standing ahead of such well-known mining states as Colorado, Montana, Utah and Arizona. In fact, mineral production of Kansas is eight times that of Alaska.

The five-year average of all mineral production, Dr. Moore computes at $125,104,000. This exceeds by several thousand dollars the five-year average of wheat production, $12,905,000, and is nearly a half a million greater than the annual value of all livestock products, (average $124,580,000).

The greatest salt deposit in the United States, and perhaps in the world, extends into southwestern Kansas. Beds as thick as 300 feet are known to be beneath the surface of Clark and Comanche counties, and with diminishing thickness, extending to Colorado, and eastward as far as Sumner county and northwest as far as Rooks, Osborne and Mitchell counties.

Rockefeller Is Joined by Father in Ouster Fight

NEW YORK, Jan. 18. (AP)—The New York Times says today that John D. Rockefeller, has brought his powerful influence to the aid of his son in the fight to oust Col. Robert W. Stewart from the chairmanship of the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Aroused by the attitude of Colonel Stewart, which he considers an affront, the paper says, the elder Rockefeller has entered the fight so determinedly that his associates may assume active charge of the battle being waged between John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the chairman of the Indiana company.

JURY IS CRITICIZED FOR GIVING ACQUITTAL

WICHITA FALLS, Jan. 18. (AP)—A jury which acquitted Ed Pryor, former Electrica constable, of charges alleging conspiracy to rob here last night was reprimanded by Judge P. A. Maril, who declared the verdict would "prove a serious checkmate" to law enforcement in Wichita county.

Pryor was charged with having offered protection to Henry Shumate if the latter would burglarize an Electrica warehouse. Shumate's testimony for the state was attacked on the grounds he was an incompetent witness. Pryor's counsel charged the indictment was a "political frame-up."

CHILDRESS COUNTY LAND WILL BE TERRACED

CHILDRESS, Jan. 18. (Special)—More than 20,000 acres of Childress county land will be terraced within the next few weeks, according to Bill Pinson, county agent. Eighteen men have asked that their land be terraced.

The biggest tract to be terraced is that of Ed Abington, who has about 500 acres that need this treatment. Work is expected to begin as soon as the necessary tools are provided by the commissioners' court.

A letter which was addressed to the wrong place was delivered 26 years after mailing.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General topic—Christ the Saviour. Scripture lesson—Luke 15:3-7; Rom. 5:6-10.

Luke 15:3. And he spake into them this parable, saying:

4. What man of you, having a hundred sheep, and having lost one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness, and go after that which is lost, until he find it?

5. And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his shoulders, rejoicing.

6. And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and his neighbors, saying unto them, Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep which was lost.

7. I say unto you, that even so there shall be joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine righteous persons, who need no repentance.

Rom. 5:6. For while we were yet weak, in due season Christ died for the ungodly.

7. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die; for peradventure for the good man some one would even dare to die.

8. But God commendeth his own love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us.

9. Much more then, being now justified by his blood, shall we be saved from the wrath of God through him.

10. For if, while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, much more, being reconciled, shall we be saved by his Son's Saviour.

Time—Jesus spoke the parable of lost sheep in A. D. 30, in the last three months of his life. Paul wrote the Epistle to the Romans in A. D. 57, in the course of his third missionary journey.

Place—The parable was spoken in Persea. Romans was written in Corinth.

Golden text—And thou shalt call his name JESUS; for it is he that shall save his people from their sins.—Matt. 1:21.

Introduction

The sequence of our topics is appropriate: after considering God the heavenly Father in the first lesson of this quarter, and sin in the second lesson, it is natural that we should turn to the Christ in whom the Father fully reveals himself as such, and who is sin's Saviour.

Last week's lesson on sin would have been too depressing if we had studied only the origin of sin and its terrible results; the lesson committee did well to give us relief from the sad picture, a glorious glimpse of the work of Jesus Christ in providing a remedy for sin. This salvation we are now to consider more fully, and we shall find it to be the most inspiring, as it is certainly by far the most important, of all these lessons on the Great Christian Teachings.

"A Saviour Is Born"

The essential fact of the angel's proclamation is, not that the Christ had at length come to Israel, but that a Saviour had been born. Before his birth Joseph and Mary had both been instructed that his name was to be Jesus, meaning Saviour. The Jews and associated many things with the advent of the Messiah—Isalah, indeed, described it in terms of salvation. "The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God."—52:10—but when He came those who recognized Him thought instinctively, salvation! So Simon here (cp. Luke 3:6). No matter by what other names we call our Lord, "Saviour" added gives that name a fuller, more satisfying meaning.

Two Kinds of Helpers

"There are two kinds of benefactors: the one is largely concerned with general principles, or with helpfulness and betterment on a big scale, touching the whole world, perhaps; say, some famous social reformer or multimillionaire philanthropist; the other carries a bouquet of flowers to a sick child! There is the Christian who preaches to crowded audiences or to an infinite host by radio; and the other who spends an evening trying to persuade his neighbor to accept Christ. Jesus may be said to represent both these types. The sweep of His salvation is universal and timeless; but also the one lost sheep, the one man, the one soul, the one little child, the one poor, blind beggar, is certain of his particular loving, saving attention! His salvation is specific as well as general. I rejoice in the fact that He is saving the lost world on the cross; but, too, I am happy in knowing that He is saving me there.

The Christ of Prophecy

Our Saviour is not rightly seen at all unless He is seen against the background of prophecy. His life on earth cannot be comprehended except as part of the Plan of Salvation. In our last lesson we found a foregleam of Christ in the story of the first man. All down through the history of the Chosen People this gleam is growing brighter. It shines with increasing splendor in the writings of Isaiah and the latter prophets. The Jewish expectation of the Messiah waxed ever more insistent till the days of John the Baptist, the Herald of the Christ. Peter said at Pentecost that Christ fulfilled prophecy. "But those things, which God before had showed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath so fulfilled." Acts 3:18.

The Christ of Bethlehem

At length, in the fulness of times, the Son of God was incarnated in the Babe of Bethlehem, forever consecrating childhood and humanity. The marvelous record is: "There is born to you this day in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." The line of prophecy was continued in Anna and in Simeon, Luke 2:25-38, the latter speaking of Christ's salvation as "prepared before the face of all peoples," and as not only the glory of Israel but "a light for revelation to the Gentiles," thus anticipating, even in those days of Jewish exclusiveness, the progress of Christianity over all the world.

Christ of the Future

This is one of the noblest passages in all Paul's writings, in all literature. It portrays the pre-existence of Christ "in the form of God," His incarnation "unto death," and finally His supreme exaltation, God having given Him "the name which is above every name." "that in the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven and things on earth and things under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is the Lord, to the glory of God the Father." This is a picture of the triumph of missions, the ultimate glory of the church.

Why the Saviour Came

"And he spake unto them this parable." One of the most gracious and blessed chapters of the entire Bible gives Christ's threefold answer to the scribes and Pharisees when they criticized our Lord for associating with publicans—the hated tax collectors—and sinners. Christ's reply was in three closely related parables, those of all these was, in brief, this: the Messiah has come to earth to seek and save the lost.

The Saviour of the Lost

"And go after that which is lost, until he find it? The loving care and pity of the God Shepherd, Christ's picture of God, is in the strongest possible contrast to the cold indifference of the of the gods of heathen mythology. Their attitude is well expressed in the Arab saying that God has divided pity into a hundred parts and kept ninety-nine for himself—the exact antithesis of this parable. "Until he find it" is a wonderfully comforting hint of the divine persistence in the pursuit of sinners.

The Certain Salvation

"For if while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son." God has now become reconciled to us, and no longer holds us as enemies, since his Son has died for us. "Much more, being reconciled, shall we be saved by his life." Paul does not mean that the sinner needs to be saved twice, once by Christ's death and again by Christ's life; but after he has been saved from the past he needs to be kept in the present, and what Christ's death accomplished once for all is an earnest of the blessed things his life with the redeemed sinner will do in and for him, through ages of ages.

"Leave the keeping with him, and fall into line with the inspired logic: "If, when I was an enemy, I was reconciled by his blood, how much more, now that I am a friend, shall I be kept saved by his life?"—Rev. Archibald G. Brown.

The Seeking Saviour

"Lord, thou hast here thy ninety and nine: Are they not enough for thee?" But the Shepherd made answer, "This of mine. Has wandered away from me. And, although the road be rough and steep, I go to the desert to find my sheep."—Elizabeth C. Clephane.

God made his religion a refuge, but men often make it a subterfuge. Editor, Pampa Daily News:

Ernest C. Twiford of Casper, manager of the Salt Creek Transportation company, who died January 7, was a brother of H. G. Twiford of Pampa, who attended the funeral.

He was a Kiwanian, and the Casper club set aside all business matters then devoted their regular luncheon hour to the memory of their beloved member. The following memorial was read by Rev. G. E. PeLee, chairman of the memorial committee:

"In the summer life, in young manhood, a beloved member of the Casper Kiwanis club closed his eyes in death, a separation of the mortal and immortal, his spirit passing to an eternity with God.

"One week ago today Ernest C. Twiford was seated here at our weekly luncheon. Tuesday of this week he passed away after an illness of only a few days. His accustomed place for the time is vacant.

"Chief pleasures come from our close association with the living; our chief sorrows naturally result from our contact with the dead. Our obligations to the living are definite, positive, and cannot honestly be evaded; and yet, they are not more important, nor significant, than our respect for the dead. "As the membership of Kiwanis hon-

GRANDVIEW ITEMS

Almost every family in this community has had one or more members sick in the last week. Mrs. Jack Stevens is in a hospital at Pampa, and it is reported that Mr. Jim McCrackin's baby is seriously ill. Most of the sickness is influenza.

Luther Ledbetter has returned from Shamrock, where he was called by the serious illness of his sister. He reports that she is improving.

Mrs. Roy Ritter and Mrs. Joe Looper visited their parents at Fisher, Okla., a few days of last week.

Several of the school children have been ill and out of school during the last two weeks. Most of them have had flu.

The Grandview school has received its interscholastic league bulletin, and the students have started practice on some of the work. A great effort will be made to win the championship of the rural schools in Gray county. C. E. McCauley says Grandview wishes to hold try-outs with other schools in a number of events, and invites any school that is interested to write him at Groom.

Sunday school was held Sunday, the first time since Christmas, with only a small crowd present. Others are cordially invited to attend each Sunday at 3:30 o'clock.

Some wheat in this community was blown out a few days ago by the heavy winds. Plows, listers and grain drillers were used by farmers in an effort to keep the land from blowing out.

Scientists have found that it takes the universe 300,000,000 years to make a complete turn.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

All the regular services will be held Sunday.
Sunday school begins at 10 a. m.

The message for the 11 o'clock worship hour will be "Whom to Know Aright is Life Everlasting."

At 7:30 p. m., there will be a song service and sermon on the subject, "Observing the Signs."

A cordial invitation is extended to all visitors who seek a place to worship.

REV. A. A. HYDE

ored and respected Ernest C. Twiford for his good deeds performed, so the members have gathered today to show respect in his passing.

"In this tribute to our late member, we record the close association with him, his full service performed, and come to record our chief sorrow at his untimely passing from this life to the new. In the shadow of this great mystery—death—we are reminded that his guiding rule in life was that sturdy uprightness of character, charity for his fellow man, honesty of purpose, and freedom of love for all things good; that in his passing we have naught to fear. He who had the greatest tenderness in action and word, discharging the duties of life so well, is now but a sweet memory. That soul of song and music is stilled here upon earth. His soul has departed in its flight to that realm of perfect harmony, where each note is a lingering love song. Voices blending, we sing his praises and bestow the tribute of our love and affection.

"In memory of our beloved member is presented this testimony of his clean life and his full fellowship, sources of inspiration to us. We have been filled with a warmth of close companionship; have been actuated to finer motives through his ideals. He passes, but his achievements are before us; his work performed has fulfilled the motto of Kiwanis—'We Build.'" CASPER KIWANIS CLUB.

THIS HAS HAPPENED AS SHORETH ASHE and HOLLY... ARE SITTING together in the beautiful garden of a little house on the mountains.

"No need of being frightened," he told her. "None on this plantation was hurt last time, and we're going to be safe enough now."

THE SUBJECT. Distracting her attention from the storm, to a recital of her father's philosophical lectures.

"No," she said. "Not exactly. B-but I was just as much as pro-posing it."

THE SUN had gone behind a bank of threatening clouds. Great gray clouds that came scurrying in over the ocean.

"Oh, please!" she begged. "I don't feel half so wicked as I did before that wild wind began to scream."

"I don't want it," he said. "I couldn't kiss you, if I had a drink. Rum smells worse than anything in the world. Didn't you know that?"

"I know that," she confessed. "And every time I think I might die, or get killed, two dreadful lines keep going over and over in my mind. Do you remember that poem of Kipling's about a wicked man named Tomlinson? Tomlinson died, and his soul went wandering through the spheres."

THERE was a hurricane shelter heven in the side of the mountain. It lay at the foot of the terraced gardens, a few steps from where they stood.

"I know it's morbid, and silly," she admitted. "But one's so brave about doing things with other people. Then, when you remember you'll have to pay for them all by yourself—it's—a different story."

"I don't tell you this," she explained, "daddy's letter would be quite meaningless. He wanted me, you see, to be another sort of woman."

"If I didn't tell you this," she explained, "daddy's letter would be quite meaningless. He wanted me, you see, to be another sort of woman."

ASHTORETH paused. "If I didn't tell you this," she explained, "daddy's letter would be quite meaningless. He wanted me, you see, to be another sort of woman."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18. (AP)—J. P. Morgan, head of the powerful banking house of J. P. Morgan and company, and Owen D. Young, former agent general for reparations payments and chairman of the General Electric company, have been named to attend the conference on German reparations in Paris. Thomas Nelson Perkins, Boston lawyer and former citizen member of the reparations commission, was chosen as an alternate.

The selections, expected for several days, were made by the reparations commission, and Sir Esme Howard British ambassador, called at the state department yesterday to officially advise Secretary Kellogg of the appointments. Both Mr. Morgan and Mr. Young are expected to accept. Mr. Young has been prominently mentioned as probable chairman of the conference which is expected to meet in Paris in February.

The United States delegations will go in an unofficial capacity as the administration has made it plain it considers the reparations problem a European one.

Kansas Governor to Dry Up State

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 18. (AP)—Stringent efforts to dry up Kansas, where state prohibition has been in effect for nearly a half century, have been inaugurated under the leadership of the new chief executive, Gov. Clyde M. Reed, and the state capital already has felt the crusade.

Raiding squads of federal and state prohibition officers launched into action here Wednesday and 10 arrests were made. Announcement followed that raiding would continue until the town was dried up.

Given assurance that the legislature was ready to take up his proposal for a special fund of $40,000 to be expended under his direction for dry work, the executive has turned to the state law enforcement machinery to put his ideas into effect.

Miss Edith Simmons of White Deer visited friends here Wednesday and Thursday.
