CARSON COUNTY, having employed an Amarillo firm to audit all books of the county, plans to publish a full report as prepared by the accountants, according to the commissioners.

This is a commendable attitude on the part of the commissioners, whose duty it is to look after such details. In democratic government, financial affairs bring the people into the relationship of stockholders, and the public officials are the executives of the governmental company.

Perhaps the time will come when counties may have an official comparable to that of city manager, who may effect the same kind of economies in county administration that the cities enjoy.

As a simple, direct method of giving the voters an opportunity to know about their affairs, there is no substitute for this procedure. The time has been, in many cases, where the public has demanded the method. There is the further guidance of the statutes in the regard. Why, for example, does one not see the delinquent tax list published as the law requires? Why are not more tax suits filed?

It is rather inconsistent to prosecute citizens for breaking the letter of the law when the officials themselves do carry out the letter of the statutes. This general prevalence of disregard for law should come under the eye of authorities who would exercise corrective jurisdiction every county in the state. There are examples of this carelessness in public administration.

ARTHUR BERRY is, or has been, a "bad boy". He ran a post office, and when arrested was as much puzzled by his act as were the officers. Fifteen years old, he was a vicious lad, but had a knack for taking things just for satisfaction of temporary session. He did not try to make use of his loot after he obtained it.

A federal judge gave him a year in a boys' training school. Then an assistant district attorney, a woman—Miss Irving Nungesser—saw the lad twining uncomfortably and appearing in pain. Her intuition told her the boy was not embarrassed merely, but sick. A doctor's examination revealed an abscess on the brain. The judge ordered it removed and suspended the sentence.

Miss Nungesser believes removal of the abscess will correct the criminal traits in the youngster. She may be right. We have heard many experienced educators say that bad teeth caused more incorrigibility than downright meanness. We have no sympathy for coddling methods in criminology, yet it is true that physical or mental trouble is at the basis of more crime than the world realizes. Give an offender freedom from aggravating physical suffering and you lay the foundation for normal living. The wise parent and teacher would do well to take a "bad boy" to the physician before leading him to the bell rope.

BY ALLENE SUMNER WASHINGTON—Just why the Senate galleries are always full with generally a standing line, and just why several dozen behemoths could squeeze themselves into the House gallery any day and time of the session and have plenty of room to spread out their elbows, is beyond me.

For, in my opinion, the House has everything that the Senate lacks in the way of color and excitement and picturesque personality.

For one thing, the House is not 100 per cent masculine. There are the four congresswomen, Mrs. Norton on the left or Democratic side, and Mesdames Kahn, Rogers and Langley on the Republican side, and they are by no means wasted on the desert air so far as their colleagues are concerned. Congressmen interviewed on the subject of congresswomen seem universally enthusiastic, nor does one detect a gallant pose.

The congresswomen have not followed Lady Astor's example and taken to red gowns for congressional attire. Each is almost invariably in...

The difference between a legislator and the newspaperman is, however, that the solons go fishing in season, or even leave the country to get away from those with axes and grind.

Really now, how many of us remember the platforms of our state officials ran on? Well, perhaps they don't remember.

Need for the old gray mare may not be much more than a sentimental one, but not so for the cow, the sow, and the hen.

The Association Against Prohibition has set aside $100,000 for research. One would have thought liars could have been hired more cheaply.

We may have a bad winter but we haven't heard of Santa's leaving any sleds in Pampa, and Santa ought to know.

It looks as if New York police were about the only officers who broke into social life New Years with their "watch parties". And some of them had to use axes.

Finis Garrett of Tennessee, minority floor leader, has a worn and haggard look these days as he drapes his long, lank figure over his chair, bows his head over his twirling thumbs, and makes no pretense of looking happy. He tried to slip into Tennessee Senator McKellar's seat, lost, and must go home after 12 years in Congress.

La Guardia and Loren Black of New York are openly known as "pests". La Guardia keeps a vile looking black stogy, unlit, in his mouth, during sessions. They say he knows parliamentary law better than the House parliamentarian and can tie things into knots anytime he likes.

He and Black play ball together on prohibition. The other day, within five minutes, they ran the gamut from women spies hired by prohibition agents to the charms of Texas Guinan. The House lapped it up. They like their entertainment.

Blanton of Texas seems to be the House's hottest "boomer". How he can boom. Geo. Huddleston of Alabama, who kicks off his slippers and puts on his shoes before he comes from his office to the House, is a swell fire-eater, too. The gallery likes him.

The "7" lived up to its name, for 1,999,111 questions have been asked us about it, already.

By the way, in this mark making business, where does the navy come in? Heard: One of our brave and fearless legislators say recently that it looked like a no session, as far as he was concerned. Since he didn't feel that way toward our pet dogs, we sort of agreed with him.

That Talking marathon in New York would have made more money if the promoter had postponed it until after Congress adjourned.

Premier Poincare wants to retire. He might take a few pointers from Jack Dempsey.

Scientists reveal that the chirp of the cricket is not a love call. Some of these days they'll be finding out something like that about mammy songs.

Sunday baseball is allowed now in Boston. All the town needs is a couple of big league ball teams to play it.

Part of the old Knickerbocker barroom in New York has been presented to the museum of the University of Florida. Bathrooms are rare things now, you know.

The forecast for 1929 seems to be that you'll have a world of prosperity if you work hard, save and attain success.

A man was shot in Cleveland the other day in an argument over whether or not cake was food. The question isn't settled yet, however.

Babies catch everything, it is said, but did you ever hear of one getting sleeping sickness?

Athletics Drop Veterans to Take on New Material

By PAUL A. WEADON, Associated Press Staff Writer
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9. (AP)—Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics has added outfield material after weeding out a lot of mediocre material, but the strength of the 1929 Athletics must remain somewhat of a puzzle to baseball fans until he looks over his team in spring training.

The Athletics' most pressing need was an outfielder, or two to replace Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, veterans who retired last fall, and Walter French, utility fly-chaser, who also went on the voluntary retired list. After a month's dickering with Cleveland, Manager Mack obtained the veteran Homer Summa giving the Athletics four outfielders—Al Simmons, Bing Miller, Mule Haas, and Summa.

Another new player signed is John O'Rourke, Seattle youth who will be third string catcher.
The significant announcement made by Manager Mack recently was that Ossie Orwall, slugging left handed pitcher, no longer would be used in the box. Orwall probably will play first base or substitute in the outfield. His place on the pitching staff has been taken by Carrol Yerkes. Jimmy Fox probably will replace Sammy Hale on third base, leaving Orwall and Dykes to fight it out for first. Either can be used in the outfield.

Jack Boley at short-stop and Max Bishop, second baseman, are fixtures at the middle defense, with Hale and Joe Hassler as infield reserves.

The pitching staff virtually is unchanged. Mack expects great things from Earnshaw, who was not in good playing condition when purchased by the Athletics from Baltimore last June.

The Batterymen will leave February 22 for Fort Myers, Fla., where the team will train for the fifth consecutive year.

The Athletics' roster follows:
Pitchers—Quinn, Rommel, Earnshaw, Ehmeke, Shores, Walberg, Grove, and Yerkes.

Catchers—Cochrane, Perkins, and O'Rourke.

Infielders—Fox, Orwall, Bishop, Boley, Dykes, and Hassler.

Outfielders—Simmons, Haas, Miller, and Summa.

"Garden" Loss Is Heavy as Bouts Fail to Appeal

NEW YORK, Jan. 9. (AP)—Madison Square Garden suffered a net loss of nearly $235,000 for the six months ending November 30, published financial reports reveal. Actual loss was $233,121 compared with a net profit of $381,008 for the same period of 1927.

For the quarter ending November 30, the Garden showed a net profit of $75,327 compared to a net profit of $319,912 for the same period in 1927.

The losses can be attributed to the failure of the Tunney-Hesney and Mandell-McLarin bouts to arouse the popular interest that the Dempsey-Tunney and Dempsey-Sharkey bouts did in 1927.

REIGH COUNT OUT TO REGAIN YANKEE PRESTIGE LONG LOST

Mrs. John D. Hertz

By VERNON SANDERS (Written For the Associated Press)
LOUISVILLE (AP)—Reigh Count's trip to England marks the first invasion of an American thoroughbred to enter the classics on the flat in a quarter of a century.

While Billy Barton, an American bred steeplechaser, was sent last fall to train for the Grand National, in which he finished second, no other American-bred horse has entered the major races abroad since the Belmonts, Whitneys and other famous turfmen took their tables overseas in 1912 and 1913.

In the Belmont contingent were several famous racers, including Tracery, Fair Play and the great sprinter Priscillian, but none were good enough for an Ascot Gold Cup, for which Reigh Count will compete. No American-bred has won an English classic since Cap Bells took the Epsom Oaks in 1901 in the colors of Foxhall Keene. W. C. Whitney won the Epsom Derby with Valoyovski the same year, but the latter was a foreign horse leased by the American sportsman for the occasion.

In 1912 Sam Mildreth sent several of his best racers abroad, but they raced chiefly in France. These stalwarts included Restigouche, Fitzherbert and Novelty, but none succeeded in winning any of the coveted classics.

Many American turfmen have been successful in late years in winning the historic stakes of both England and France, but with foreign-bred horses. The late W. H. Vanderbilt for years led the winning owners of France. A. Reigh Count was accompanied by

Dempsey May Return to Ring for Single Bout

NEW YORK, Jan. 9. (AP)—Jack Dempsey is expected to announce definitely tomorrow he has decided to carry out Tex Rickard's wish that he return to the ring this year in an attempt to regain the heavyweight championship of the world.

At first perhaps inclined to give up all thought of a comeback, as a result of the shock of losing the man he most admired, Dempsey now thinks he could do nothing more appropriate than carry on as the promoter would have wished.

Unless there is a shake-up in the program, this means Dempsey's next, and probably last fight will take place at the Yankee stadium some time in September.

His opponent will be selected, if Rickard's well-laid plans go through, from an elimination process. Young Stribling and Jack Sharkey, will fight the first test match at Miami Beach February 27 in a bout which will find Dempsey in a promoter's role for the first time. Paulino Uzcudun and Tom Heenev, unless the latter decides not to compete, will meet in a second elimination contest in May, the winner to box the victor of the Sharkey-Stribling match to decide Dempsey's opponent.

HENRY L. FARRELL

One of the major league managers works for a very rich and important man in what the Wall Street fellows call "trails" and "motors". The manager of the ball club had a rather disastrous road trip late in the season and there were the usual attending reports that he would be removed.

The boss called him in when the club returned home.
"You're the manager of this ball club and you're going to be the manager next season as far as I'm concerned," he said. "We can forget those newspaper stories. I want to tell you some thing else."

YEP, AN INSIDE TIP!
"I happen to know that there is going to be a little automobile deal that will have an effect on the market and I am going to write you in on it. It won't be a fortune, but it will be some thing. I'll put up the money for you and give you the profit when the deal is made."

The manager was called into the big man's office shortly before Christmas and was told that the deal had gone through as promised and that he had some money coming as his share, and the manager was handed a check for 800 bucks.

The business manager of the club got in on the tip for a profit of $200 and the traffic manager got himself $800 also.

LET HIM FORGET IT

There hasn't been a word mentioned in this column about an event that happened in the recent Georgia Tech-California football game. And if the composers of yards and yards of copy admonishing the young man to forget it would quit composing all the admonitions to forget it the young man might be able to do it.

LOUGHRAN MOVES TO CHICAGO

Tommy Loughran has packed up his duds and removed from his native Philadelphia to establish a new home in Chicago.

In moving to new territory Loughran said it was purely a business proposition, and in so doing he gives a good example to other fighters who stay at home moaning about the bad breaks.

Loughran, who holds the light-heavy weight championship, was denied permission by the New York Boxing Commission to enter the competition for the heavyweight championship. He was told that he would have to surrender the 175-pound title, which is worth at least $50,000 a year, before he would be allowed to fight out of his class.

The Pennsylvania Boxing Commission refused to go to the front for him, and when the Illinois commission ruled that he would be accepted in their territory as a contender for the heavyweight championship, he moved to Chicago.

He has signed a contract with Chicago promoters to engage in three contests against any three heavyweights they are able to sign for him, and the promoters deposited $75,000 advance money as a forfeit.

Loughran is perhaps the smartest

Harvesters Will Go to Panhandle Tonight to Play on New Gymnasium Floor There Against Speedy Rivals

The Pampa Harvesters basketball quintet will invade Panhandle tonight to play the Panthers at a scheduled game on their new gymnasium floor. Panhandle has just completed a new gymnasium unrivaled by none except the local gymnasium-auditorium.

Coach Odus Mitchell is expecting a tough battle, as the Panthers have been running wild this season. As their last victim they took Berger into camp and trimmed them decisively. The local boys won over Berger by a one-point margin but that was early in the season before they hit their stride.

Since that time the Harvesters have defeated Perryton, one of the fastest teams in the loop. They held the fast Canyon Eagles to close scores in a doubleheader, in Canyon, before the Christmas vacation.

Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock the Harvesters will meet the Canyon Eagles. They will meet the same team at 7:30 o'clock the same night. These two games should be the best of the season. The two teams have long been rivals and play their best when on the court.

Wheeler will provide the opposition for the local basketekers Saturday night.

Orchid by ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED ASHTORETH ASHE, traveling alone to the West Indies, shares her cabin with MONA DE MUSSET, a mysterious Frenchwoman. Mona, during a hysterical denunciation of JACK SMYTHE, has a hemorrhage of the lungs and tells Ashtoreth that she has not long to live.

"The more you talk," Ashtoreth told him acidly, "the more I hate you." wondered if Mona's lips would ever be like that again. She motioned to the stewardess to go, and drew a chair to Mona's berth. Everything was very still. It must, she reflected, be nearly dawn. She reached for Mona's hand, and when she found it was cold, began to rub it gently.

warmly between his great brown palms. "The doctor tells me," he began without preamble, "that Mademoiselle de Musset is dying. He tells me, also, that you are rooming together. I have talked with the purser about that, and he assures me that he knew absolutely nothing about Mademoiselle when he assigned you the same cabin. I regret the matter very much, and extend my sincere apologies." The captain paused.

CAPITOL News

WASHINGTON (AP)—Before investing money in foreign countries, big corporations usually consult a woman—Dr. Helen Strong.

She is geographer of the United States department of commerce and has finger tip knowledge of any geographic change which might affect export trade. A circular service, originated by her, is a trade barometer for business.

Spread out in Dr. Strong's office is a map of South America which she prepared just prior to President-elect Hoover's trip in order to accurately answer the many questions which came pouring to her desk.

She has completed a map of the new China with all its provinces. During the past year she has prepared more than 100 new maps for various bureau publications. These require extensive research.

The circular reports are supplied to map publishers as well as business men and provide up-to-date information which enables American maps to attain a high standard.

"I was interested in travel and geography even when I was a little girl," says Dr. Strong. "I would lie on the floor and study an old Atlas and imagine things about the various countries portrayed. I was the first woman to get a degree of doctor of geography from the University of Chicago. Study with Dr. J. Paul Good, the man who plans and makes maps, and travel all over the world prepared me for my present position."

"I get all sorts of queries from big corporations. One of my most recent requests which came from a New York firm was for the beginning and end of seasons all over the world! A large order, but I filled it after a little research."

President Coolidge appointed Dr. Strong as the first woman member of the United States Geographic board. She was recommended by Herbert Hoover. She was also the first woman appointed to the board of surveys and maps of the federal government.

WASHINGTON—Just what part did the beard of Von Tirpitz play in the World war?

Everybody remembers it. That huge, black, shovel-shaped, piratical-looking chin adornment rarely missed a week in the war-time rotogravure sections. Almost everybody had a notion there was some sort of a sinister connection between it and the business of torpedoing merchant ships without warning. "Now the truth is out—officially."

It is related in a war-time cablegram from Ambassador "Jimmie" Gerard at Berlin, just published, which attracted the special notice of President Wilson and which mentioned specifically the beard of Von Tirpitz. So far as this writer knows, that's the only time anybody's beard achieved such international prominence.

A Popular Beard
What Gerard was reporting was that Foreign Minister Von Jagow complained to him in 1915 just after the Lusitania sinking that the great general staff and the navy folks, headed by Von Tirpitz, were running over the foreign office regardless. They controlled the foreign office to a large extent, Von Jagow said.

"In fact all measures are agreed on by a sort of junta," Gerard continued, adding a list of junta members with Von Tirpitz and Von Falkenhayn near the head and Emperor Wilhelm at the bottom. Von Tirpitz was "a popular character (largely on account of his aggressiveness and his beard)," Gerard said, with great influence, while Von Falkenhayn, general staff head and a courtier, had the emperor's ear. "The chancellor bores the emperor to death," the ambassador added.

A comment by President Wilson at the time on this message, July 29, 1915, characterized the "detailed revelation of the whole German state of mind" it gave as "little less than amazing."

Gerard said he was satisfied Germany's war methods, including the sinking of the Lusitania, had the "full approval" of the German people. He commented also on the "very effective press bureau" of the marine industry under Von Tirpitz. Now, as the By-stander recalls it, the chief work before the war of that bewhiskered leader was the organization of a popular navy league designed to make Germany ship-minded and therefore placent toward heavily increased naval building programs. Up to 1915, at least, he was apparently entirely successful.

Influence on Navies
England's naval prestige rests on the ship-mindedness of an insular population. Japan recognized the essential value of this popular attitude when she started the naval building program treading so closely on the heels of the huge American 1916 naval expansion movement as to bring about the Washington naval limitation treaty of 1921-22.

The single post-Jutland, 16-inch gun, Japanese battleship now afloat, the Mutsu, was built largely by popular subscription. It was slated for scrapping under the American limitation program, but Admiral Kato and his colleagues dared not risk popular displeasure. They saved the Mutsu by accepting the American West Virginia and Colorado and the British Nelson and Rodney.

Those five ships represent substantially a quarter of a million in post-war construction.

Hoover Is Urged to Call Special Term of Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. (AP)—Additional pressure for an extra session of the 71st congress to enact farm relief and tariff revision legislation faced President-elect Hoover as he set out today on more conferences with party leaders.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who had first place on an engagement list of sufficient length to keep Mr. Hoover busy from 9:30 a. m., until early evening, was armed with arguments to buttress the views already presented by Senator Borah of Idaho and some prominent house members in favor of the convening of the new congress in the early spring.

In addition a committee of four had been selected by 30 of the 32 members of the Pennsylvania delegation in the house to present a formal resolution urging a special session. The resolution was adopted yesterday.

Helping the Homemaker

By SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Sliced bananas, cereal cream, creamed dried beef on toast, extra toast, marmalade, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Baked beans, scalloped spinach and ham, tomato jelly salad, jelly roll, milk, tea.

DINNER—Broiled halibut steaks, potato croquettes, creamed green peppers, pineapple salad, pear and rice pudding, milk, coffee.

Well seasoned spinach is arranged in alternating layers with chopped cooked ham in a baking dish. The top is sprinkled with grated cheese and buttered crumbs and the whole is baked until the top is delicately browned. This is an excellent dish to serve with baked beans.

PEAR AND RICE PUDDING

One pint canned pears, 4 tablespoons rice, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1-2 lemon, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Wash the rice well through several waters and let stand in cold water to cover for one hour. Drain. Heat milk in top of double boiler, add rice, sugar, grated rind and juice of lemon, butter and salt. Cook over boiling water until rice is tender. Stir in yolks of eggs and cook, stirring constantly about one minute longer. Press into a shallow mold. When cold and firm remove from mold onto a large plate. Strain syrup from pears. If syrup is not heavy add 1-4 cup sugar to 1 cup of juice and boil rapidly until reduced to 1-2 cup. Add pears and vanilla and let stand until fruit is thoroughly heated. Arrange pears on top of rice mold and pour over syrup. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and fold in sugar. Spread over top and sides of mold and put into a moderate oven for eight minutes to puff and brown the meringue. Let cool and serve.

A NEW YORKER AT LARGE

By G. D. SEYMOUR

NEW YORK—Down in Houston street just off the Bowery is an Italian marionette show which runs the year around. Like so many transplanted patches of Old World life, it is a sight of which New Yorkers beyond the borders of the lower East Side are unaware—but it thrives year after year, on the patronage of Italians in the district, both youngsters and grown-ups.

The Neapolitan puppeteer who runs it uses the same characters night after night and makes them tell a continuous story. He concocts the plot of their evening's adventures a few hours before the performance and writes the dialog in Italian. Two boys help him operate the marionettes, each animated by a single string.

Sarg Popularizes Puppets

For many years imported puppet shows brought from Italy were the only ones to be seen in the United States—and were few and crude housed in foreign settlements where native Americans seldom discovered them. Now here are some 16 marionette troupes in the United States which are operated for American audiences. Four of them came into New York at the holiday season this year.

Tony Sarg is the dean of the American puppeteers, yet his marionettes shows are only eight years old. He became interested in contriving puppets to amuse his friends, after he became an illustrator, and he is principally responsible for the waxing interest in marionette theatres. His was one of the troupes on display in New York this season; another was that of Sue Hastings, former pupil of Sarg, which was sponsored by the Theatre Guild, and a third was Bufano's marionettes, which capered at the Provincetown theatre in Greenwich Village.

The Sarg and Hastings puppets are manipulated by strings, and the star of the Sarg ensemble is an oriental dancer which requires 34 strings for her intricate pantomimes. Bufano uses a different method. His marionettes are mounted on sticks, and he lies on his back beneath the stage to operate them.

Named for Virgin Mary

None of the puppeteers can understand why marionettes were not Americanized years ago. Punch and Judy shows, one form of puppeteers, enjoyed some popularity here, but never as much as the modern marionette shows are eliciting. The marionette has borne its name since the middle ages, when priests devised the figures to portray religious characters which they themselves hesitated to delineate because it was regarded as wicked to act. The word means "little Mary," and was first bestowed on images of the Virgin carried in Italian religious processions.

The American contribution to puppeteering has been to make the puppets more realistic. Few European marionettes have more than two or three strings, or more than half a dozen stock gestures. American marionettes commonly have a dozen to 18 strings, and can be made to seem to play musical instruments, discharge firearms, dance difficult steps or play cards by the addition of half a dozen additional strings.

Dilley's Bakery Installs Much New Equipment

New equipment and enlarged quarters have been obtained by W. D. Rogers, manager of Dilley's bakery on South Cuyler street. The entire bakery department has been remodeled and enlarged to give the shop greater production and a bigger variety of pastries.

Included in the new equipment is a Century cake and icing mixer. There are only three of its kind in Texas. A special Peel oven is being installed for baking cakes.

Mr. Rogers says that during the Christmas week the company disposed of more than two tons of fruit cake in Pampa and Borger. The cake was made in Borger and shipped here, as the local plant had not been completed then.

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR FACES HOSTILE GROUP

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 9. (AP)—Ground beneath the juggernaut wheels of a coalition of Republicans and insurgent Democrats, adherents of Gov. Henry S. Johnston, Democrat, today were impotent in the twelfth Oklahoma legislature which is committed to an investigation of the governor's and other officials.

Both House and Senate were organized by opponents of the governor's administration. The governor's antagonists, frankly were prepared to revive the inquisition which last winter elicited charges of official misconduct in an abortive impeachment session.

Bitter Legal Fight in Keyes' Trial

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9. (AP)—Cautious maneuvering for selection of a jury in the bribery-conspiracy trial of former District Attorney Asa Keyes, which the prosecution says will reveal a sensational spectacle of official corruption, today presaged one of the bitterest legal battles in the history of Southern California.

While an array of 10 lawyers engaged in a cross-fire of challenges to prospective jurors, Superior Judge Edwin E. Butler has glimpsed with little success to speed up the trial of the six defendants, Keyes, Dave and Ben Getoff, Ed and Jack Rosenberg, alleged "pay-off men" and Charles Riemer, former investigator for Keyes. Keyes is charged with accepting bribes to prevent prosecution of the principals in the crash of the Julian Petroleum corporation.

R. H. Muir, Jr., of Clarendon visited friends here yesterday.

Fifteen Huskies Are Rushed to Byrd

VANCOUVER, B. C. Jan. 9. (AP)—Fifteen Husky dogs today were on their way from the Northwest to the Antarctic to join Commander Richard E. Byrd's expedition. They were aboard the liner Niagara.

The dogs must reach Dunedin, N. Z., before February 7, in time to be forwarded by steamship to the expedition's base on the great ice barrier.

They are being sent by E. J. Farr, agent for the White Pass and Yukon railway, in response to a request from Commander Byrd.

QUITS COLLEGE JOB

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 2. (AP)—Earle Neale, University of Virginia football and baseball coach, since 1923, was released from his contract so that he might become head coach of the St. Louis National league baseball club. The contract would not have expired until 1930.
