SENATE FOR LAND DEAL PROBE

COLORADO GRANTED CUSTODY OF WHITEY WALKER OPPOSITION TO SUSPENSION OF JOHNSTON NOW EXPECTED

IMPEACHMENT ATTEMPT MAY BE POSTPONED

Republican Will Go to Aid of Democratic Governor

SENATE LIKELY TO PROBE FIRST

Committee Wants All Its Facts Available at Trial

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 21. (P)—Indication that there would be opposition to the immediate suspension of Gov. Henry S. Johnston when house impeachment charges reach the state senate, was seen today in the announcement of Senator W. T. Clark, republican of Bedford, that he would introduce a resolution asking that the governor not be suspended. The governor is a democrat.

The senate today was prepared to receive the charges voted by the house of representatives, but was confronted with the possibility that in impeachment trial if the senate decides to hold one, might be deferred, pending the completion of an investigation of state departments, undertaken by a house committee.

A statement of the investigating committee that it desired a delay in the trial until it concluded its work "so that the trial, if any, on charges preferred against the governor can be upon all charges or disclosures, resulting from the investigation of the chief executive and his office," was made public yesterday.

Governor Johnston, meanwhile, has issued a statement which implied opposition to him of three house leaders to personal malice.

BODY OF RIP IS IN CONTROVERSY AS FUNERAL TIME NEARS

EASTLAND, Jan. 21. (P)—Even in death, Old Rip, Eastland's famous sonolent horned toad, promises to cut a much more important figure in the world than the remainder of his brethren.

Proposals to send the body of the famous sleeper, who died Saturday, to Washington, to court and to university were being considered by the animal's owner, Will M. Wood, along with a suggestion that it remain here where it achieved its fame.

Some thought the body of the toad, alleged to have gone without food or water for 31 years in the cornerstone of the old courthouse here, should go to Washington to take a place in the Smithsonian Institution. Others thought that Texas Christian university where the athletes are known as "Horned Frogs" would be a more fitting resting place for Rip's bones. A third proposal would mount the animal in the new courthouse here, which stands on the site occupied by Rip's former tomb. The building already bears sculpture depicting the toad.

It may be, however, that the remains will have to go to court until lawyers can conclude litigation over Rip's vaudeville contracts. Dick Penny, a Dallas theatre man, has a suit pending for $6,200 on a contract to exhibit the toad which he alleges was broken.

George Briggs of Pampa is one of the mourners as a result of Rip's passing. Mr. Briggs was manager of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce when the toad was found, and was in charge of his exploitation before moving here.

DISTRICT COURT MEASURE HELD UP FOR STUDY

AUSTIN, Jan. 21. (P)—Speeding up its law enactment machinery, the House today passed several bills.

A bill creating a criminal district attorney in counties which constitute three or more separate judicial districts within themselves introduced by Representative Harman of Waco, also passed. Though general in its nature, the measure applies at the present time only to McLennan county.

The fourth bill prescribes the time for holding district court in the 32nd judicial districts, comprising Nolan, Scurry, Mitchell, Howard and Borden counties.

The small senate bill providing that the 84th judicial district shall continue in force was ordered held up until tomorrow in order that the House might familiarize itself with the measure. The bill passed the Senate last week. Counties involved are located in the Panhandle.

Murder and Robbery Are Bases of Coming Prosecution

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 21. (P)—The extradition requisition of the state of Colorado for Whitey Walker, under arrest at Buffalo, and wanted for murder in connection with a bank hold-up, was granted today by Governor Roosevelt.

A similar requisition was made by Oklahoma, but the governor honored the Colorado request because of the more serious charge against Walker in that state, and because the alleged crime in Colorado occurred at an earlier date than a hold-up charged against him in Oklahoma.

Walker, also known as William Jennings Walker and Walter Anbank, is held with a companion, Fred Nave, sought by Oklahoma, authorities for murder and bank robbery.

Walker's presence in this state became known to police through his purchase of an airplane which authorities said he intended to use in bank depredations in Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana.

Colorado was represented by High D. Harper, chief of police of Colorado Springs, and Oklahoma by Sheriff Fred Bowles, of Ada, Okla.

Both officers today submitted applications for custody of Walker. On granting of Walker's custody to Chief Harper, Sheriff Bowles announced he would remain in Albany to seek extradition of Nave to Oklahoma.

Religious Census Of Pampa Will Be Taken by Churches

Pampa ministers met this morning at the study of the Rev. D. H. Truhitte to plan a religious census and a concerted evangelistic campaign.

They will meet at the same place tomorrow to perfect plans. The week of February 3 was set for the census and beginning of the revivals.

All churches will set aside that week and will cooperate in taking the census and preparing to enlarge their membership. The pastors present today were Rev. D. H. Truhitte, Rev. A. A. Hyde, Rev. James Todd, Jr., and Rev. C. O. Merritt. Rev. Tom W. Brabham, who is out of the city, is expected to be here for tomorrow's session.

Roy O. West Is Approved As Secretary of Interior

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (P)—Roy O. West of Chicago was confirmed today by the senate as secretary of interior.

Confirmation followed three days of Senate discussion in executive session. Opposition to the nominee was voiced by Republican Independents who complained particularly of Mr. West's former holding of stock in the Samuel Insull Utility interests.

The attack on West was led by Chairman Nye, of the lands committee, which recommended his confirmation by a vote of 9 to 4, along with Senator Norris of Nebraska.

Sensors Deneen and Glenn, Republicans, of Illinois, defended the cabinet officer, joined by several Democrats.

The vote for West was 54 to 27.

BULLETINS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (P)—Retracting his disapproval of the proposed additional $25,000,000 for prohibition enforcement, Secretary Mellon today advised Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, of his opinion that acceptance of the money at this time would violate fundamental principles of good government.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (P)—The supreme court today consented to pass on the validity of "pocket" vetoes by the president. Although the question reached the court in a case brought by the Okanagan, Colville and other Indians in Washington state, it is considered to be of importance also in determining the status of Muscle Shoals legislation which President Coolidge failed to sign after congress adjourned its last session.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (P)—The supreme court today held that Texas was prohibited from taxing gasoline bought in the state for use on military reservations. The Texas tax of 1 cent a gallon on all gasoline sold in the state was attacked by the Grayburg Oil company of San Antonio, on the ground the state could not tax the gasoline the company sold to the government at Fort Sam Houston.

Miss Cooke Will Assist in Office of Superintendent

Miss Gertrude Cooke began her duties as assistant county superintendent of schools this morning. Miss Cooke will remain in the superintendent's office in the courthouse while John B. Hessey, county superintendent, is making his rounds. According to the statutes, the superintendent must visit schools in his county four days each week.

"In the future if persons from schools in other parts of the county come to Pampa after school supplies or vouchers, they will receive them from Miss Cooke," Mr. Hessey said this morning. "In the past if I happened to be visiting schools, visitors would have to make additional trips."

Russell Street Paving Completed

Paving of Russell street was completed by the Stuckey Construction company Saturday afternoon. The single block has been ready for concrete for a month, but bad weather delayed actual paving. With the completion of the last block on Russell street, the new courthouse site is surrounded by paved streets.

Forms are being laid in readiness for paving the alleys between Cuyler and Russell streets. Curb and gutter has been completed on East Tyng street and vibrolithic will be laid immediately if weather conditions continue favorable.

According to Mr. Stuckey, concrete cannot be poured if the thermometer is under 35 degrees above zero.

After Friday the penalty will be a quarter of the license fee.

RESOLUTION IS APPROVED THRU VOTE OF 18-7

ROBISON RAPPED AS DICTATORIAL

Representative Declares He Formed Public Policy

AUSTIN, Jan. 21. (P)—The senate today passed a concurrent resolution providing for a legislative investigation of the land office and the governor's and attorney general's departments and the board of regents of the university insofar as their dealings with the land office are concerned.

The investigation was proposed anew in the house by Representative A. P. C. Petch of Fredericksburg, who today introduced a simple resolution in which he pointed out alleged acts of administration which he claimed ought to be inquired into.

The concurrent resolution he sponsored last week failed to win the approval of the committee on public lands and buildings. Today's resolution was ordered printed in the house journal.

Petch's resolution charges that J. T. Robison, land commissioner "has not only recommended but virtually dictated the policies of the state concerning public lands."

The vote on the senate resolution as amended, was 17 to 8. The amendment to include the governor's and attorney general's departments in the inquiry was presented by Senator Julien Hyer of Fort Worth and that to include the board of regents was offered by Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman.

An amendment offered by Senator J. W. Stevenson of Victoria which would have eliminated all "personalities" but would have provided primarily for an investigation of the sale of lands to determine whether land laws should be passed was defeated by a decisive margin.

However, Senator Joe Moore of Greenville, who with Senator Wirtz of Seguin was the author of the original resolution said that the heart of it was "the study of the land laws of Texas and to see what needs revision."

The house resolution sets out that "acts of the commission are strongly indicative of a policy calculated to serve interests of private corporations and individuals rather than those interested in public lands for the benefit of school children," and declares that "acts of the land commissioner at least reflect seriously on his efficiency as an officer of the state, and interfere with an efficient operation of his department."

Second Lesson in Scout Training Will Be Tonight

AUSTIN, Jan. 21. (P)—The grind of getting a deluge of bills through regular channels to the calendars of the House and Senate will start today.

Tonight there will be a joint and combination meeting of the House and Senate to hear proponents of highway financing measures, including the proposed constitutional amendment under which a state wide bond issue of $225,000,000 would be authorized for highway construction.

Interest in highway financing legislation is equalled only by proposed plans to centralize the penitentiary system and conserve the water supply of Texas streams. These three important subjects are enough to keep the legislature hard at work during the regular term to say nothing of the hundreds of more or less local measures which must be given attention.

With R. S. Sterling, of Houston, chairman of the state highway committee, father of the bond issue idea.

TREE PLANTING time is here. Considerable interest has been aroused through ordering of trees from the Lubbock nursery.

But trees must have water—this is the one great requirement on the plains. Tree culture in this section has been painful, especially since so many locusts were planted a few years ago for the borers to eat up.

But those studying the problem are recommending trees which the borers do not attack. The Chinese elm is one of these.

Pampa should make it possible for the citizens, regardless of location or wealth, to have gardens, flowers, and trees. This means a lower water rate.

Pampa's water problem may be solved, but we doubt it. Cheap water for industries usually means a reservoir to obviate the necessity of pumping.

Cheaper, softer water is one of Pampa's present needs.

CARTOONISTS are contrasting the differences in the outlooks of Coolidge and Hoover—one leaving the White House and its responsibilities, the other facing some of the most vexatious problems of the century.

Coolidge, often described as "the slight little man glorified by his office", has been a drab figure but never-the-less a dependable one. His conservatism became so closely associated with prosperity that accumulating charges of graft in high places and necessity for farm relief gained few votes for the opposition party in the last election.

Hoover, with infinitely greater possibilities, faces difficult tasks. Hailed as a genius in big business, he is expected to touch some magic button to bring prosperity to the farm, employment to the unemployed, lasting peace and at the same time adequate preparedness.

That the government should assume this function is pretty well conceded, at least for po-

Along Hoover's Trail SOUTH AMERICA

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON — While a Congress wrestles with an American farm relief problem in Washington, the Argentine rests serenely confident that our problem will solve itself in a few years and that she will then come into her own.

Argentina expects to be the "future bread basket and future butcher shop of the world." Just now she feels that she is facing four or five years of hard sledding, though her farm problem certainly is not as acute as ours, but that the continued industrialization of the United States is steadily strengthening the Argentine position in the meantime.

In five years, the common belief here appears to be, the United States will have changed from an exporting agricultural country to an importing country; a new important customer for the Argentines. Already some farm products are being exported to us and it is the Argentine expectation that we will in time become this country's greatest customer.

The Argentine argues that the population of the United States is increasing steadily and that we are becoming more and more an industrial nation. The rural population decreases while urban population increases and, anyway, nearly all cultivable land in the United States is now being cultivated.

Already our meat production is balancing with our consumption and prices have advanced considerably. We are on the way to large meat importations, according to the Argentine viewpoint, which holds that the turning point on grain ought to be due within five years.

Argentine grain now competes with that from the United States and Canada and the wheat price is fixed at Liverpool, but the people of political expediency, but in practice the trend is definitely toward state socialism. Hoover seems to be trained for such a task, but his record favors private initiative in most problems. His recent suggestion of saving up public improvements for a rainy day in business and employment is an example of his method.

It is probable that he will inaugurate a number of projects that will tide him over one or two administrations. The Boulder Dam project, if it frees itself of litigation and is well begun, is a case in point. Yet the problem will come back home to future administrations. It takes promises to get one into office, and, as Mr. Hoover finds, one is often called upon for fulfillment, and that is no trifle.

this country hope rather wistfully for the day when the world prices will be set in Buenos Aires.

The vision of the Argentines may seem rather rosy to the American cognizant of the serious farm overproduction in the United States in recent years, but it is presented here without comment for what it may be worth.

This republic has had various disputes with us as a result of our tariff and sanitary embargo policies and the British appear to have used these incidents against us in Buenos Aires. At the moment there is no important dispute of an agricultural nature between the United States and Argentina, although agitation for certain tariffs on products exported from here is likely to result in increased duties which would further annoy the country. It is well to remember, however, that the Argentine tariff on canned goods and manufactured articles from the United States is very high.

The fundamental farm problem in the Argentine appears to be found in the fact that 80 per cent of the cultivable land is still owned by large hacendados. The condition of peons and tenant farmers on these estates is often little better than serfdom.

The strongest charge against the Oklahoma governor seems to be general incompetency. If all such officials were ousted, the people would have to hold an election every thirty days to fill the gaps. But it is only in such high offices that the principle of democracy really operates unmercifully.

Cleveland Will Have Most Altered Team in League

By KENNETH E. SANDERS, Associated Press Staff Writer. CLEVELAND, Jan. 21. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians will enter the 1929 campaign non-committal on their prospects but hoping for the best from one of the most thoroughly overhauled line-ups in the American league.

"We hope we have a better club than last year," was the only comment forthcoming from Billy Evans, general manager of the tribe.

Outside of the moundsmen, only the veteran, Charley Jameson, in left field, Carl Lind at second base, and Luke Sewell behind the bat, will be found in their customary positions as the tribe now stacks up.

The eternal hunt for a successor to Tris Speaker has resulted in the purchase of Dick Porter from Baltimore and Earl Averill from San Francisco, both slugging outfielders who cost $45,000 each.

Other changes include the release of Gerkin, Langford, and others, the way is paved for Porter and Averill to patrol the outfield with Jameson.

Olle Tucker of New Orleans, Charley Dorman from Tyler, Texas, and John Gill from Decatur, Miss. help. Lind will be back at second, but an otherwise revamped infield will find Sewell shifted from short to third.

The catching department will remain the same—Luke Sewell, Myatt, and Autry.

Hudlin, Miller, Miljus, Grant, Shaute, and Underhill are holdover hurlers available to Manager Roger Peckinpaugh.

Arkansas Porkers Will Rest While Lesser Fives Play. DALLAS Jan. 21. (AP)—Well on their way to another Southwest conference championship, Arkansas university's Razorbacks this week have only to "sit tight" and watch other conference members battle for the honor of second or third place—or against the ignominy of a cellar berth. The Porkers, having shown a characteristic lack of regard for records in winning six games this season, the last a 71-23 victory over Baylor, are resting until Feb. 9.

At Austin, the University of Texas Longhorns, favored to finish second, also will get a layoff, but they have to go back to work next Monday against Rice.

The Longhorns drubbed Southern Methodist in Austin Saturday by a 29-19 score. Texas Christian university, last rung occupant, are to open the week's play tonight against Rice at Houston.

Rice, having split two with the Texas Aggies, probably will come out on top, although the Horned Frogs will be battling for their first conference victory.

The Frogs Friday will meet the Aggie cagers at Fort Worth, the Farmer's first game with a North Texas team.

After that game, the Aggies will move over to Dallas for one game with Southern Methodist, a game which, critics think, might have considerable bearing on the third place team this season.

Saturday, the Rice Owls and Baylor Bears are to match waxes at Waco in a game that is not expected to affect the race materially.

Much New Material Will Provide A. & M. With Opportunity to Take High Position in Track Events

COLLEGE STATION, Jan. 21.—A squad of more than 50 men, including 11 letter men, gives Track Coach Frank Anderson a promising group of candidates on which to pin championship hopes in the Southwest conference this year.

With letter men back in every event except the distance runs and the hurdles and with strong candidates to replace last year's runners in these events, Coach Anderson has what he believes to be the most promising lot of track material seen at A. & M. in several years.

Last year he was faced with the necessity of using the same men in several different events but this year believes he will have capable men in every event without having to double up.

Many Good Sprinters. The Aggies appear strongest in the running events, having letter men in the sprints and quarter and half-mile runs and with nearly every member of the relay teams which won so much renown last season back again this year.

Hershel Burgess, Hale Center, and Bob Graham, Jasper, are the letter men back in the sprints with J. D. Roensch, Smithville, fleet freshman numeral man last year, should prove formidable in any meet.

Capt. Dan O'Neil, Greenville, one of the fastest quarter-milers in the conference last year and probably the outstanding man of last year's Aggie team, and R. S. Hodges of Taft, another fleet letter man from last year, give Coach Anderson a good start in the quarter-mile.

Besides these men are M. H. Badger, a squadman from Austin; C. A. Tracy, Houston, and Maurice Sessions, Austwell, two freshman numeral men last year. While running for San Marcos academy several years ago, Sessions and Tracy were teammates with Hodges and these three men were members of the mile relay team which set the present world record for academy teams.

Several Half-Milers. Two letter men are back for the half-mile, Ed Thompson, Cameron, and J. B. Michael, Fort Worth, both letter men in track and cross-country.

There are also several promising men from last year's varsity and freshman squads from whom to choose additional half-milers. In the mile and two-mile, however, the Aggie coach does not have a single letter man, although every member of this year's championship cross-country team will be available.

Dick Winders, Houston, Southwest conference cross-country champion; G. H. Moore, Dallas, captain of the champion Aggie hurriers last fall; C. Y. Shoemaker, Jacksonville, captain-elect of the Aggie cross-country team next year; L. H. Brown, San Antonio, also a member of the cross-country team; M. G. Perkins, Mount Pleasant; A. H. Grantham, McGregor; T. B. and W. B. Powers, Beaumont, are the outstanding candidates for the distance runs.

For the hurdles Anderson has no letter men but in L. G. Dick, San Antonio; Don B. Slocumb, Cameron, and H. D. Phillips, McKinney, are three of the most promising candidates in the conference. Dick, a squadman, ran close to Kennedy, hurdling ace of the conference last year.

Slocumb and Phillips were very promising freshman hurdlers last year, Slocumb nearly equaling the conference record in the high hurdles in practice competitions.

Ashley Great Vaulter. The return of Howard Ashley, San Antonio boy, one of the outstanding pole vaulters in the Southwest two years ago, has brought greater strength to the Aggies in the field events.

Besides this letter man, the Aggies have Harry Stiteler, Smithville; A. D. White, Gustine, and V. S. Anderson, Dallas, all promising freshmen vaulters last season.

Tommie Mills, Groesbeck, and R. R. Farmer, West Columbia, are the letter men back in the jumps. Farmer is both a broad and high jumper and Mills' specialty is the broad jump.

W. B. Holsobake, Farmersville, and N. D. Thomas, El Campo, freshmen last year, are expected to strengthen the team in the broad jump. Holsobake is also a high jumper and W. K. Lester, Cuero, and W. C. Helse, La Grange, are showing much promise as high jumpers.

Weight Men Good. Farmer will also aid the Aggies in the weights, as he was outstanding last year with the discus. Z. W. Bartlett, Marlin, big captain of the Aggie football team last fall, was also a letter man in the weights last year.

Throwing both the shot and the discus, H. B. Deley, big Houston boy, who manned a tackle on the Aggie football team last fall and a freshman numeral man in track last year; W. H. Markie, Fort Neches, a varsity squadman last year, and S. R. McClukey, Waxahachie, also a freshman numeral man last year, are three other promising candidates with the weights.

J. R. Johnson, Pharr, a letter man last year; R. J. Blount, Gainesville, champion intramural javelin thrower last year; and J. G. Floyd, Rosewood, a freshman numeral man last spring, are listed for the javelin event for the Aggies.

THIS IS SERMON DAY

There was a little item in the Cleveland papers the other day quoting Mat Hinkle, the boxing promoter.

Hinkle said he had found that boxing shows with good fighters didn't interest the customers to the amount of three dollars a ticket and that he was going to try cheap shows.

He would get cheap fighters, he said, and charge a buck and two bucks admission and see what he would see.

He announced the card for the first cheap show and in one of the undignified places among the preliminary bouts appeared the name of Carl Tremaine.

It seems hardly more than yesterday when Carl Tremaine was a name that appeared frequently in the public prints as a principal in important fights for important money.

HAD DOUGH ONCE. He was one of the best bantamweights in the country and one of the most active. He fought often, fought good men, drew good money and big pay and now, as a preliminary boy in a cheap show, he probably will draw down about $300.

He fought often too, they say. He was a smart young business man in that business and he set out to make his pile while the making was good. He burnt himself out, but he made his pile and was financially prepared to retire when the time came to retire.

NONE NOW. He didn't keep his money, however. Bad business investments took it away from him and he finally was reduced to the operation of a little one-arm eating joint.

There isn't much money for a little fellow in that business. Certainly not enough to provide the means of living in the way his more affluent days had accustomed him.

So he went back to fighting. And as a preliminary boy in a cheap two-buck show.

ANOTHER LESSON. Johnny Dundee, much better known and much more prosperous in his day, is also back in the preliminary class.

Dundee for years was one of the highest priced attractions in the ring. He was the uncrowned featherweight champion for years and he finally acquired the official title. He was during the same period one of the best fighters in the lightweight class.

He, too, fought often for big purses and he must have earned close to a million dollars in the course of an extended career.

He had so much money at one time he went in for the horses. He didn't become exactly a sucker for the book-makers. Worse. He bought a stable that of his own and horses eat whether and pass better than the Studhorse.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS By Laufer

Kid Chocolate, shiny black little Cuban fighter, is one of the outstanding candidates for the world's featherweight championship. The Kid has been fighting less than a year in the United States, but in that time he became one of the best drawing cards in New York and one of the most improved fighters. When he returns to the ring after a vacation in Havana he probably will be matched with Al Singer, a New York East Side youngster, and the winner will be given a match for the championship.

Chocolate started as a bantamweight, but he filled out so rapidly it is doubtful that he will be able to make that weight again.

they are winning or not. He bought an estate in the ultra-aristocratic Orange district of Jersey and he put things on the floor like $10,000 orientals and he had all the slots filled in a four-car garage.

And his dough went. He's fighting preliminaries now and the boxing commission won't let him fight unless they pick his opponent.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—Mickey Cochrane addressed a Bible class in New Haven. . . . And said that the A's didn't win the pennant last year. . . . Because they had an inferiority complex against the Yanks. . . . And that Connie Mack wouldn't have a ball player around him. . . . Unless the ball player was of the highest character. . . . Judge Wally Steffen, Carnegie Tech football coach, said the Harperster boy could run, kick and pass better than the Studhorse.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—A return match between George Godfrey, giant negro heavyweight, and Paulino Uzcudun, the Basque woodchopper, will be staged at Havana on February 18 if present negotiations by the Madison Square Garden corporation are successful.

Mehlhorn Breaks El Paso Record But Gets Little

EL PASO, Jan. 21. (AP)—"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn held a new world's golfing record today, but the cash he received for the performance, which won the El Paso open tournament was hardly more than a pittance in the professional golf world.

The New York pro collected but $500 for the best 72 holes of tournament golf ever played. He clipped 17 strokes from par to win the tournament here yesterday with the score of 271. Par for four trips around the 18-hole layout is 288.

Bobby Cruickshank of Progress, N. Y., himself burned up the course to win second money of $400 with 277.

Tony Manero of New York and Al Espinosa collected $250 each with 278's. Other money winners were Harry Cooper, Buffalo, 280, $150; Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, 282, $100; Paul Runyon, Little Rock, 284, and Willard Hutchison, Pasadena, 286. Each collected $75.

The El Paso open is designed to break the long trek of winter golfers who quit the golden California fairways in mid-January to head for Dixie's big-money tournaments.

The next port of call for the pros is at San Antonio, Texas, where $6,500 awaits winners in the Texas open, January 24 to 27.

Nurmi Already in Controversy as Invasion Opens

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Paavo Nurmi's second American tour has just begun, but already disputes have broken out among sponsors of rival track and field meets.

Irate over what he termed Nurmi's "sudden decision" to run in the Knights of Columbus games in Boston next Saturday night, Jack Harris, member of the committee handling the Masonic benefit meet here the same night, has protested to the Amateur Athletic Union, asserting there is no doubt that the "Phantom Finn" was "influenced by a man or men with power in official track circles."

Harris said that his committee had been virtually assured that Nurmi would run in the Masonic meet and that arrangements were made to obtain the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. banked track so that the Finn could run in spiked shoes, either in a one-hour race or in the 3,000 meters run for the Hugh H. Hirschon trophy. Nurmi gained a leg on the Hirschon trophy during his 1925 invasion.

Pyle Will Open Training Quarters for Marathon Men

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—C. C. Pyle announces he has completed arrangements to use the Park Inn baths building at Rockaway Park, Long Island, as headquarters and training camp for contestants in the second international transcontinental foot race, which starts from New York, March 31.

The training camp is to be opened on or about March 11, Pyle said. The promoter expects to have at least 250 starters.

Owen Young Says Business Morals Are Generally Good

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric company, believes morals shape "big business" and dishonesty is scarce enough to be news.

The recently appointed unofficial American member of the committee of experts named to consider German reparations, spoke from the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church last night on "What Is Right With Business."

"Our big business is no longer feared by the people," he said, drawing a parallel between the development of big business in the motor car. "Exploiters no longer own the big concerns. Bankers no longer own them. Their shares are spread from one end of the country to the other. Broadly speaking the vast organizations are in skilled hands and the roads are reasonably safe."

Thousands Under Arrest as Chicago Crooks Are Jailed

CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (AP)—Three thousand persons were arrested between Saturday nightfall and today's dawn in one of the most sudden, widespread and successful police drives in the history of Chicago.

Raids were conducted against every known habitat of the gangster, gunman, and goober. Where doors were locked, doors were smashed open. The theatre district swarmed with plainclothes men, seeking the "dress suit" crooks, and police patrols were booked for hours ahead, so swift were the arrests.

The drive was Police Chief William Russell's answer to a week of crime marked by 102 robberies in which four persons were shot dead and several others seriously wounded.

Two-thirds of the city's force of 6,000 policemen were kept on double duty over Sunday to insure the success of the drive.

Squad leaders got their orders from Deputy Commissioner John Stege in these words:

"Every joint in this town is to be visited. Never mind injunctions. If you're barred, grab an axe and chop your way in. Grab every crook with a record that you see. Don't bother seizing booze. Leave the working man and the respectable people alone. Raid the night clubs, the theatres, the hotels, the beer flats. I want every crook in Chicago in a cell by Monday morning."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

ASHTORETH ASHE, adventurous far from home, has a thrilling adventure in the West Indies. There she meets, by accident, her employer, the rich and famous HOLLIS HART. She witnesses the boat on which she is traveling, and goes with him to his house in the mountains. Her clothes have gone ahead on the cruise ship, but Hollis fits her out as best he can. And they spend a dangerously glamorous week together.

His wonderful days have passed. And the ship is due back again. Ashtoresh and Hollis prepare for their last day together. Suddenly, almost without warning, a horrible hurricane rushes in from the sea.

The servants seek refuge in the hurricane shelter, a great chamber in the mountain side. Hollis takes Ashtoresh to the house, where they spend the night, quite alone.

Ashtoresh does her best to vamp her host. She even dons pajamas, and wanders with him through the garden, and lets him hold and kiss her. He calls her Orchid, as his own secret, tender name—and she reminds him, he says, of the flower.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXII

THE storm had raged all day, and now it was night.

Midnight . . . and the wind, worn out with its fury, skulked like a fiftal wraith, lifting the poor, dead things it had killed, and tossing them about like chaff.

The butterfly bushes lay on their purple heads. And the petals of the red hibiscus spilled like blond on the grassy slopes. Great boughs stretched across the lawn. And, beneath the wreckage, the whole garden was crushed and broken.

Lime trees had been uprooted and thrown aside; and the vanilla and cocoa. And a giant palm, splitting coconuts from its broken fronds, lay across the garden wall.

A few pale stars came out and peered sadly down. Hollis and Ashtoresh looked upon the horror that had visited their small paradise.

Servants, with flaming torches, wandered here and there. A child, in the hut where the women lived, cried and sobbed. And an old man moaned.

And only Ashtoresh was happy. For Hollis had told her that he loved her. He had, moreover, asked her to marry him. . . . And that, of the two, was the more important declaration.

It had been wonderful, in the cozy intimacy of the little house. Hollis had found a pair of black pajamas, with gold frogs, and a Chinese dragon writhing up the back could not imagine. For they had been bought in Pekin, for the wife of an old friend. It was months since he had seen them; Parkins must have mistaken them for something more utilitarian. (Parkins, Ashtoresh gathered, was Hollis' valet.)

Hollis begged Ashtoresh to accept them. "Mrs. Lee would look like a meal bag in them," he declared. "Please, Orchid—they're longuing things, really. Not to sleep in at all."

So she had put them on. And taken a candle from her bedroom to light the way, to the drawing room, to show him how beautiful they were on a girl who did not at all resemble a meal bag.

Ho, had blown out the lamps when he saw her coming with the darkness all around her, and her face lighted, like a holy statue's, in the flickering light of the candle. And then, somehow, her candle had been also extinguished. And he was waiting for her, with his arms open. . . . And the great, soft darkness had enfolded them both.

And, as he held her, his desire went singing through her. He lifted her forehead to his lips, and the wild wine of his love flowed like a torrent from her swimming head.

"You'll marry me, Orchid?" he had begged.

And she called her beautiful things. "A high white altar." And a "pale-white love." And a "flame-white secret forever." Lovely, mystic names, like a poet making love.

It rather embarrassed her. As it had when he talked about her "darling untouchedness." She wondered if he had known about the way Jack Smythe had kissed her only a week before, he would still call her by white and precious names. And, of course, there wasn't just Jack Smythe either. There was Monty. And one or two others, besides.

By and by he lighted the lamps again. And when the storm had abated, he opened a shutter and they stood at the window together, with his arm about her shoulders. He sent her, then, to dress, and said they would go out for a little. And that Lisa would come to prepare a hot meal, for they had eaten very little that day.

THEY decided that the boat, which they had expected in the morning, would be merely delayed. But when it came Hollis was to sail for home with her. And they would be married in Boston.

"Will we cable your mother?" he had asked.

"Oh, I'd rather tell her myself," she said. . . . She had her own personal reasons for that. It might be a little difficult, handling Maizie. Hollis was so fond of Monty. She would want to be sure, too, that it was all quite proper and respectable. Maizie had such a plebeian suspicion of millionaires.

Ashtoresh thought she was too excited that night to sleep. Hollis had sent her to bed very shortly after they had eaten. Later she had smelled cigarettes and knew he was smoking in the garden, beneath her window. She considered stealing softly down, to surprise him again in the Chinese pajamas. She took her hair down, to brush and plait it, and thought of slipping a big braid over each shoulder, and going to him that way. Ashtoresh's hair reached to below her waist, and was, without doubt, her crowning glory. Hollis, she knew, would love it. She sat on the side of the bed to comb it, and to think upon her great good fortune. And, as she combed, her arm grew tired and heavy, so that she rested her head against the pillow. In a moment she was sound asleep.

While she slept, Hollis smoked innumerable cigarettes, and wondered if it was decent for a man of his age to marry a young girl. And if such marriages were ever happy. And if Ashtoresh might not be better off with a younger man. Wretchedly he pondered. And, when he closed his eyes, he could imagine the feel of her in his arms, with her body throbbing, and her dark hair like a soft cloud across his face, and in his eyes.

THE sun had risen, and he saw a boat riding the waves. The cruise ship, back again.

The servants were up with the sun, and they helped him prepare to leave, packing his bags, and bearing messages to the town.

At seven Hortense called Ashtoresh. The boat was sailing at 10. Monty's Hart was waiting in the dining-room, for her to join him at breakfast.

She bathed in the big cement tank in the bath house beneath the mango. Hortense, whose dusky antecostresses were ladies' maids to the first white women on the island, dried her with hot towels, and scented her with Hollis' shaving talcum. And combed her long hair, and slipped her only dress over her head, and told her she was beautiful as the morning.

She went then to Hollis, and greeted him timidly. For Hortense had told her of the return of the boat, and it seemed as if the flying hours were crashing about her head. He kissed her reverently, as though last night had been a dream, and only today was real. Very much as though she had been a child, touching her eyes and her forehead with his lips.

"The boat," he told her, "sails at 10. I have sent my bags ahead, and transacted, by messenger, all my business on the island. So that we can leave when you are ready."

"I'm ready this minute," she assured him. "I only want to say goodby to Hortense and Lisa and Cher, and the rest. And pick some orchids, and walk through the garden. And look at the mountains and the sea and everything, so that I can never forget a blessed shadow of sunbeam, so long as I live. I want to photograph it on my mind, forever and ever, and lock the memory in my heart, so that I can never lose it until I die."

"O DETTE and Adele are picking orchids for you now," he told her, "and scarlet lilies, to fill your stateroom. Hortense is begging that you will take her home for your maid. And Lisa and the twins want to go, also."

Ashtoresh laughed.

"Poor Hortense," she said, "she'd have to sleep in the bathtub. If we could get a maid for absolutely nothing, we haven't even a corner in that flat to squeeze her in."

"But I meant for your own personal maid," he explained. "After we are married. She is so devoted to you, I wondered if perhaps you'd like to take her along."

"My own personal maid!" Ashtoresh stared at her lover. "To dress me, you mean? And comb my hair, and give me baths?"

"Surely, my dear. You will want a-maid, of course. Perhaps, though, you would rather have a more experienced woman. I suppose Hortense doesn't know about such things as manures and facials, and all the little tricks of the trade."

"But Holly!" Ashtoresh was amazed. "It's been lots of fun, down here—having so much attention. But, my goodness, I wouldn't want a maid at home. Why, I'd feel like one of those doll-women, or a silly little dog in a satin basket. It would be just too foolish for anything—a working girl like me!"

Hollis smiled.

"It was only a suggestion," he said. "Hortense was so anxious to get to the States. You see, I rented all the servants with the house. The planter who owns the place is spending his holiday in Barbados. And I'm only now discovering how little native servants cost. It's no wonder they want to go to America. How much do you suppose Hortense is paid, my dear?"

"Oh, I don't know. Girls for general housework at home get $15 and $18, I think," Ashtoresh told him. "But I don't know a thing about wages for servants that are especially trained. I suppose though there's no comparison between the States and the tropics."

"I should say there isn't!" he exclaimed. "Well, Hortense gets the magnificent sum of 50 cents a week. And Lisa, my dear, who is rated the best cook on the island, gets a dollar! We could staff the whole place with them, if you'd like. Of course there might be some trouble getting them in on the quota, but I guess that could be arranged, if you'd like the notion."

ASHTORETH was dumfounded.

"But it's probably not practical," he added. "The details of passage, and all. It would be quite a nuisance. And then, of course, they would be all sorts of trouble getting them adjusted."

Ashtoresh was rather overawed. The servant problem was far removed from the domestic life to which she was accustomed. She remembered the days when Maizie had gone out "accommodating." Blacking stoves and scrubbing floors! Ashtoresh wanted to cry whenever she thought of it. And now she was to have servants of her own! The very notion frightened and thrilled her.

"How many servants have you, Holly?" she asked.

"Met Oh, I've nobody but Parkins," he told her. "I live at the club, mostly. We'll open the town house after we are married. If you'd like. It's on Beacon street, on the river side. I suppose it's a bit dingy now. We might have it redecorated, while we are away. I'll ask Aunt Meg to get hold of a housekeeper. And then you needn't be annoyed with hiring servants. Aunt Meg will see that the place is running smoothly before we get back."

"Oh, Holly! Holly! It's like a story!"

Ashtoresh threw her arms about his neck. "I feel like a princess in a fairy tale. Don't—don't—let me wake up, dearest!"

"Life is going to be so lovely, dream," he promised.

"I know it is," she cried. "But, oh, Holly, I've the dreadful feeling that something is going to happen!"

In the next installment Ashtoresh and Holly go home. And on the boat they plan their honeymoon.

AUSTIN— (Continued From Page 1) and other members of the commission meeting, added interest is given to tonight's hearing. It is expected the commissioners will be invited to give the committee suggestions in needed legislation. Bills which would make the highway commission elective with the state divided into five districts and a commissioner elected from each, are also ready. Governor Moody has gone on record against an elective commission and in favor of retaining the present three-member appointive system. Gov. Moody's committee of 31 members appointed from each senatorial district, also recommended to the legislature that the appointive commission be continued, in its report on highway legislation. Investigation Uncertain Final disposition of the move, started early to investigate the administration of affairs in the general land office, is expected early this week. The concurrent resolution call for the investigation is on the table, subject to call in the Senate. The House committee on public lands, and buildings voted against sending the resolution to the floor with the recommendation that it pass, but A. P. C. Petch, who introduced it, said he may bring it out on a minority report. It seems to be settled now that none of the appropriation bills for paying the expenses of the government during the next biennium will be considered by the House before a special session, scheduled for next May. The Senate wants to go ahead with the money bills, but the House has gone on record against their consideration during the regular term. TO PATRONS OF EAST WARD SCHOOL: The co-operation of all patrons is requested in the matter of children arriving at school on time. Haskell Test Is Closely Watched as It Goes Deeper DALLAS, Jan. 21. (AP)—Interest is being shown in a test well being drilled by the Kouri-Shaheen interests on the Reynolds ranch, southeast of Haskell. The hole is a mile and a half north of the Superior Oil company's No. 1 and 2 Reynolds, both wells being producers at 1,750 feet. A good showing of oil was reported in the well, which is 1,805 feet deep. John W. Choate, independent oil operator of Coleman, has announced that he and an associate, Silas M. Newton, New York, are negotiating for the Grayburg Oil company of San Antonio, whose properties are said to be worth $8,000,000. Choate indicated the deal would be closed soon. The bringing in of three new oil wells in the Laredo district the past week increased the production of that area 200 barrels a day. A like number of gas wells boosted the gas flow to 61,500,000 cubic feet daily. The oil wells are the Ranado Oil corporation's No. 27 and 28, both located on the palacioso tract, survey 291, Jim Hog county, and the Texas company's No. 2 Hall, on block 10, survey 250, of Duval county in the Schoolfield-O'Byrne field.
