'It's Like This'

CALENDAR CHANGES, proposed for over a century, and lately advocated vigorously by George Eastman, the kodak man, may be debated soon at an international conference called by the president of the United States.

In December Congress, through a joint resolution, requested the president to call such a conference. Previously, the United States Chamber of Commerce had approved at least one proposed form of calendar and passed the subject to the League of Nations, which took similar action.

The congressional resolution presents briefly some of the factors involved:

The present calendar has three fundamental defects, summarized as follows: 1. Inequality in the length of divisions of the year. The month contains from 28 to 31 days, and the number of days in the quarters vary accordingly.

The first half year contains two or three days less than the second. 2. Want of fixity in the calendar. The dates of periodical events can never be rigidly fixed. Saturday, and the 15th and 30th days of the month are important as regards falling due of notes and payment of wages and rents, and also collection of bills and wages.

3. Nonfixity of Easter. This day varies between March 22 and April 25, and correspondingly displaces other festivals.

The calendar may be simplified by taking advantage of the following possibilities:

1. All months have the same number of work days, Saturdays, and Sundays, and are directly comparable.

2. Each month has the same number of whole weeks. Fractions of weeks at month-ends are eliminated.

3. The shifting of day names to dates in every succeeding year and month is avoided. The fixing of permanent dates for public meetings, court sessions, educational schedules, and so forth, would be facilitated.

4. Periods of earnings and spending would be co-ordinated; family and business budgeting would be simplified.

5. All months would be comparable without any adjustments being necessary for unequal number of days or weeks. Split-week payrolls would be avoided. A great amount of clerical work would be eliminated and expense saved in the preparation of accounting and statistical reports in business, government, scientific, health, and home affairs.

6. As there would be thirteen monthly settlements during the year, there would be a faster turnover of money; the same business could be handled with less money.

Holidays would always occur on the same week day.

8. The simplification of the calendar would permit the ecclesiastical authorities to avoid the shifting of Easter dates by agreeing upon a definite date.

The first convenient year for putting the new calendar into effect is 1933, when January 1 falls on Sunday.

The advantage of the plan are obvious. When the new jurisdiction of the 31st district court was devised the court terms could not be set by date, but had to be set by day name, such as first Monday after the ninth Sunday of a given year.

Strenuous objections are being made upon religious grounds, particularly by the Jews, Seven Day Adventists, and other observers of the weekly cycle. Biblical authority places Sunday on each seventh day, of course, but the proposed calendar would arbitrarily break this cycle once each year. This is because thirteen months of 28 days each would provide only 364 days. The extra, or year day, would be left out of the calendar calculation, and outlawed insofar as commercial transactions were involved. Omission of a day would destroy the Sunday to Sunday cycle, and create what opponents of the new plan call the "floating Sabbath". Two days would be killed each Leap year.

Use of the extra day plan of disregarding every day of the thirteen divisions of 28 days each would be of little consequence except in religious matters. Religion, of course, is no trifle, and while many denominations would be willing to omit a day and call the day following the excess time what properly is now called by successive calculation, the Jews, Adventists, and similar groups are unwilling to do so. They might retain the present calendar for purposes of worship, but this would put them at a disadvantage.

The principle of the Biblical week, with rest on every seventh day, is not concerned with the movements of the solar system. The Genesis account concerns the first seven days, and the complications do not arise until one tries to work out an even year. Religious feeling and traditions favor the old calendar; movement of the solar system and convenience in the mathematics of counting time favor the proposed plan.

Wilson, whose health was broken late in his second term, opened a law office here afterward with Bainbridge Colby, but was never able to do much with it before his death.

McKinley and Harding died in office. Grover Cleveland was the first president to be voted back into the White House after being once voted out. Between his two terms, beginning in 1885 and 1893, he practiced law in New York City and prepared as best he could for the next contest. He lived until 1908 at Princeton, N. J., after his final retirement, delivering lectures at the university and writing many articles on national affairs.

Benjamin Harrison also wrote, practiced law and lectured on constitutional law after March 4, 1893. He wrote a book called "This Country of Ours", and served as an American member of both the peace conference after the Spanish-American War and of the International Board of Arbitration.

Chester A. Arthur died in little less than a year after retiring from the presidency. Garfield, who has preceded him, was assassinated.

Rutherford B. Hayes, who like Grant and Garfield had been a Civil War general, devoted his post-presidential career to education and philanthropy. He was a strong advocate of prison reforms and manual training.

Ulysses S. Grant, who was regarded for a time as a third-term candidate, had all sorts of trouble after he left the White House. He made a world tour during which he was honored and acclaimed everywhere. But then he entered business, which he knew little about, and suffered severe financial loss. He wrote memoirs in an effort to recoup and Congress voted him a general's pay for life.

Andrew Johnson was nearly booted out before he finished the rest of Abraham Lincoln's term. He stayed in politics and in 1875 was elected to the Senate, where he died after a few months in his seat during which he made violent attacks on his old enemies.

In one way or another, most of the earlier presidents stayed in public life after leaving the White House. Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio has suggested that ex-presidents be made "senators-at-large", representing the 48 states.

What his post-White House career amounts to depends on the individual president. Roosevelt always went in for the spectacular, in or out of office, and besides his hunting-exploration tours in Africa and South America became a presidential candidate again, organized a new short-lived but important political party, tried to raise a division for the World War and wrote trenchant magazine articles.

Taft, the only ex-president living except Coolidge, taught law at Yale for several years before a Republican administration was able to make him chief justice in 1921.

Well, women run the P.T.A. and the men compose the school boards, so it's a 50-50 proposition.

Isn't it just too awful, from the pupils' standpoint, that they are not getting a holiday on account of the big convention devoted to their welfare?

A fortunate thing about this convention is that politics is so dead in this state that there is nothing to talk about except the business in hand. Dan Moody just about killed interest in politics when he slew the only remaining bone of contention—the Wirtz anti-Bolter bill.

If there was any doubt as to whether nautiness could be read into the Missouri U. questionnaire, it was soon dispelled when the college comic magazine editors got hold of it. Those fellows put lots of professionally spurious authors out of business.

Stocks may come and go, but as long as Gray county gets a new well every other day there will be little kick as to the Federal Reserve part in speculation.

If Mexico insists on fighting all the time, why not arrange concessions and grandstand seats for our officers in training and our embryo Chicago gunmen? There ought to be some practical, constructive use for any activity spread out over so long a period.

YOUR MEDICINE

If there is a passage in the Bible that you do not like—that you skip or hasten over, in your reading; on which you do not like to dwell; to which you do not want your attention called; about which you would rather hear nothing—rest assured it is the very medicine your condition demands, and, however bitter it may be, it will help you. Turn back now to it. Do not try to explain it away, to get around, over, or under it. Meet it squarely. It will cut like a two-edged sword, but it cuts to heal. It will convict and condemn you, but that it may save you. Let it sink into your heart. Humble yourself, and smite your breast, saying: "God be merciful to me, a sinner." "In that way you will get the good of God's word, and in no other; for as long as you refuse any of it, the rest will not help you."
That is our reason for our efforts not to "shun" do declare the whole counsel of God.

Subjects for Sunday: "Bethel—The House of God," and "Proving the Good and Well." "Pleasing and Perfect."

Our evening services are all changed from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. Young Peoples' meeting, 7 p. m. Prayer meeting, Wednesday, 8 p. m. Ladies' Bible class, Thursday, 3 p. m.

AKERS ATTENDS OPENING OF WELLINGTON THEATRE

C. B. Akers, manager of the Rex theatre, yesterday attended the opening of a new Griffith Brothers Amusement company's theatre in Wellington. The Griffith brothers, and managers from this territory attended the opening, which was attended by large crowds throughout the day.

Cecil Callaghan, formerly manager of the Rex theatre at Panhandle, is manager of the new theatre. It was built for Griffith brothers and will seat 800 patrons.

Evening Program Is High Point in First Day of P.-T. A. Convention—Entertainment Features Enjoyable

The first day of the three-day convention of the eighth district Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations was brought to a brilliant close last night at the First Methodist church.

Mrs. C. E. Hutchins of Pampa, presiding, called upon City Manager F. M. Gwin, the Rev. Tom W. Brabham, Supt. R. C. Campbell, and Olin E. Hinkle, managing editor of the Pampa Daily News, for short welcoming addresses. An eloquent response was made by Mrs. J. M. Crain of Claude, district president, in behalf of her organization and the district the state officers present. She introduced the visiting officers.

Entertainment by local talent was an enjoyable feature of the evening. The high school orchestra played a prelude under the direction of Thomas Fannell, Ralph Butterfield, popular local tenor, sang solos, accompanied by Mrs. Tom W. Brabham. Other vocal numbers were rendered by the boys' quartet of Central high.

The two leading talks of the evening were by Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith of Austin, state president, and Prof. Rush M. Caldwell of Dallas, president of the Texas State Teachers' association.

"America is still looking to the public school to correct much that is wrong in our national life," declared Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith of Austin, president of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers association, in her address last night.

"The founders of our nation put their faith in a public school system as the means of insuring a sound national life," she asserted. "And the parents of today, even though only about 25,000,000 of our children are in school, are still looking to our public schools as they daily draw our children from every type of home, every walk of life, of every faith—as Americans we are still looking to our schools to right the wrongs in our national life stream, as products of our system of education."

Short of Ideal
"But somehow our public school system, as efficient as it is and as renowned as it has become, has not touched this ideal. You teachers in our school system are meeting in such a convention as this in an effort to make your schools adequate to this demand; in an effort to define to yourselves what is this education that it is your duty to give the children of America as they daily come to you for instruction."

"Our state educational institutions have provided splendid training for teachers, ministers, lawyers, doctors, nurses, and stenographers, but these institutions of learning have provided no training for parents to whom is intrusted the beginning of life—that period of long, helpless infancy, that yet unthoughtful potentiality of those plastic pre-school years. Yet the mistakes made in the beginning of life—out of school, complicate and hamper work of the teachers in the first grades, intermediate grades, high school, and college and these same mistakes are paid for dearly in our national life in delinquency, crime, dementia-praecox, court costs, and care."

Need Parental Education
"What can be done about it? Can the public school system be held responsible for conditions that surround a child's life out of school? We feel that a remedy is seen in this widespread movement for parental education that has now found expression in an active organization that has for its chief concern the beginning of life" out of school. It is an organization that asks for every child the right to be born of parents whom it can honor and respect. It asks for every child right to have a father and a mother who understand and are prepared to so tend its infancy, its childhood and adolescent years, that he can enter youth and maturity with a healthy body, sound mind, and an awakened soul."

"So marked has been the success of this Parent-Teacher association in the United States and Hawaii that it has now become an international organization—known as the International Federation of Home and School. Among the nations represented in its membership are the United States, India, Canada, Belgium, and nations of South America."

Dallas Man Talks
"Mastery of the Tools and Technique of Learning" was the subject of another interesting talk at the evening program by Rush M. Caldwell of Dallas, president of the State Teachers' association.

He said, in part:
"Within one generation in the South and West we have reached an industrial stage in which science and invention have revolutionized our ways of living and producing wealth. We have made this advance from an agricultural stage in which the three R's, the Bible, and Victorian literature—Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, and our own Longfellow, Whit-tier, and our Mark Twain—formed our cultural background."

"Now we live in a machine age and live and work in crowds. Not only are we producing most of our wealth by machinery, but also we are getting our amusements and recreation more and more through the machine—the moving picture, the radio, the Vitaphone, the Victrola, the automobile, and the typing machine.

Learning Is Unchanged
"As a result of these material changes, many people seem to believe that human nature and the process of learning can be changed just as easily. This is one of the greatest illusions of the present day. As much as we have changed, our physical environment, the fundamental requirements for spiritual development and the process of learning things have changed but little.

"We have greatly increased the facilities for learning and improved the methods of teaching, but to develop mental powers and to get knowledge in a way to use it still requires much thought and long practice.

"Do not misunderstand me. I am not decrying the use of the machine in itself. It has lightened the burdens of the mass of the people and raised the material standard of living. I am speaking of the proper social and spiritual adjustment to a machine age, understanding the place of the machine and its limitations as well as its advantages.

Through science and invention we have greatly increased the knowledge of the world in which we live and multiplied the means of disseminating it. Everywhere we have the public school, the daily paper, the magazine, the picture show, the radio, and quick means of communication. However, everyone must learn in the same old way. We cannot transmit knowledge and experience by heredity, nor can we pour it on the children in the public schools by easy methods or give it to them by simply announcing it to them over the radio.

"All these new avenues of learning are helpful, but when it comes to difficult mental processes or learning the technique of doing something—the necessary steps in an art or a profession—then it takes daily study and practice until mastery is attained. And of course, business, professions, and the arts are all important kinds of work—will always require this. Today the three R's are still the most important tool subjects to be used in all the other things we may learn in the school.

Reading, which means understanding and not merely calling words, is said by experts to be the best index to a child's real progress in the school. "Arithmetic indicates the sense of numbers and proportion and is the relief of measurements and proportions underlying all progress from the most primitive."

"Writing means not only putting words on paper, but also the power to transfer ideas, thoughts, and feelings to paper in a legible form or to the printed page.

"I am in sympathy with any new way of acquiring knowledge, but observation and experience show us that we cannot depart from certain fundamental things in the technique of learning, such as repetition, daily association, continuous mental effort, and regular practice.

"Let us observe, for instance, how people learn to walk, to talk, to play games, to play the piano or the violin, to dance, to run an automobile, to operate a flying machine. Just recall how much thought and practice and hard work were required for you to learn your own business or profession."

"The lesson we can learn from this is needed in the public school today.

"Parents and teachers need to cooperate more closely in studying the problems of education. They need to discuss among themselves more frequently all those things that affect the welfare of childhood and youth. And they should work together in getting the right kind of school legislation passed by the state legislature."

No Reservations Canceled in History Meeting of Friday

CANYON, April 4. (Special)—Everything indicates that weather conditions will be perfect for the meeting of the Panhandle-Plains Historical society which is to take place here Friday.

The meeting could not be held March 31 as scheduled because of the heavy rain which covered the region and made it impossible for more than 100 people who expected to come by automobiles from a distance to reach Canyon. No reservations have been cancelled because of the changed program and date and several have been added. 180 have paid for tickets to the banquet.

The program has been in charge of Miss Hattie M. Anderson, Mr. L. F. Sheffy, J. Everetts Haley and Mrs. T. V. Reeves. The afternoon session will be devoted to business and papers. The evening session will be given over to the annual banquet, with Judge J. D. Hamlin of Parwell, Texas, as toastmaster. Names of those who are to appear on the toast program include Mr. Jake Burkett of Plainview; R. B. Smith of Crosbyton; Judge L. Gough of Amarillo; Avery Turner of Amarillo; Miss Capitola Gerlach of Canadian; Edw. Hamney and W. G. Baxter of Dimmitt; Harold Bugbes of Glendon; Professor L. F. Sheffy, and J. Everts Haley of Canyon and Horace Russell of Amarillo.

This is the eighth annual meeting of the Panhandle-Plains Historical society which is the oldest regional historical organization in Texas. Its first president was Judge Thos. F. Turner of Amarillo and the present president is T. D. Hobart of Pampa, who is also president of the Southwestern Cattle Raisers association.

Plainview Bull Is Grand Champion of Dairy Show

PLAINVIEW, April 4. (AP)—Majesty, Oxford Clarion, exhibited by J. E. Rigler, Plainview, has been judged grand champion Jersey bull of the Texas Panhandle-Plains dairy show here, and Gamboges King Sybil, owned by R. C. Nicholl, Tulla, the grand champion Jersey cow.

Other champions were: county herds, Swisher, first, Hale, second, Floyd, third, and Dawson, fourth; get of sire, O. L. Stansell, Floydada, first and third Joe Vaughn, Tulla, second; produce of dam, O. L. Stansell, Floydada, first, R. C. Nicholl, Tulla, second, Joe Vaughn, Tulla, third.

Judging of Holsteins and Guernseys proceeded today. The annual sale of breeders will be held tomorrow.

Attendance yesterday was 15,000, a new record.

TEXAS OIL NOTES
DALLAS, April 4. (AP)—A 6,400-foot west extension of Moore's field in Fort Bend county has resulted in the completion of the Gulf Production company's No. 18 Moore, which came in for 700 barrels of oil daily from a depth of 3,900 feet.

Two new producers, the Grisham-Hunter corporation's No. 1 G. R. Davis and the Midland Oil company-Grisham-Hunter corporation's No. 1 W. Y. & R. A. Davis, have been completed in the Davis pool in Western Shackelford county. The first well gave the area a half mile northeast extension.

The Snelbald and White company have brought in their J. E. Smith No. 2 well in the Gordon gas field from a depth of 3,297 feet. The well was making 24,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

College Players Attain Greatness in Minor Leagues

NEW YORK, April 4. (P)—Fans at college baseball games may see several men of middle age watching the young athletes perform. They are scouts.

Every major league baseball club has from one to half a dozen scouts who ride the "rattlers" all summer long, looking at baseball players on semi-pro teams and in the minor leagues. Before the summer baseball start the scouts attend college games.

"Not that we expect to get any big roundup of players from the colleges, said one of the old scouts, "but looking at the collegians will get us in shape for the long grind when the weather gets hot."

"You hear people talk about college ball players in the major leagues and they name a long list, 40 or 50 or more. They are not college players. Rather they were minor league players. They went to college but after a trial by the majors they were sent out, or maybe they went first to a minor league club and then came up.

"I haven't counted 'em, but I'll bet there are not more than a dozen players in the two big leagues who went to major clubs from college and have been in the majors ever since."

The old scout was not far wrong. Cy Williams of the Phillies joined the Chicago Cubs in 1912, fresh from Notre Dame, and has been around ever since. George Sisler went to the St. Louis Browns from Michigan in 1915, and two years later Joe Dugan left Holy Cross for the Athletics. Frankie Frisch left off at Fordham and took up with the New York Giants in 1919 and Bill Falk joined the Chicago White Sox from the University of Texas in 1921. Tom Zachary went to the Athletics from Guilford college in 1918, pitching only two games; however, he bobbed up with the Washington Senators the next year. Epps Rixey was graduated from the University of Virginia to the Phillies in 1912. Bob Reeves went from Georgia Tech to Washington in 1926.

Three players have been with only one major league outfit after leaving college, Pete Donahue, Texas Christian university and Cincinnati; Luke Sewell, University of Alabama and Cleveland; and Ted Lyons, Baylor university and the Chicago White Sox.

Dempsey Eyeing Throne Again?

It's whispered along the fistic rialto that the Old Man Mauler may come back. And as if bearing out these rumors despite previous denials, former Champion William Harrison Dempsey here is pictured as he went into serious training in a New York gymnasium. Dempsey is seen as a likely opponent for Paulino Uzcudum, Basque woodsmen who has forged to the front in the heavyweight division.

Ruth's Thunder Is Stolen—He Fails to Get Homer

FORT WORTH, April 4. (P)—The famous Ruth-Gehrig home run combination has been broken up, but only for a day. The Babe came here with the Yankees' regulars yesterday and celebrated by missing his first homer of the year by a few inches while Lou led the Yanks' second team against the University of Texas at Austin. They are together again today to repel the threat of Arndt Jorgens, the young catcher who stole their thunder by clouting the ball over the fence. Ruth tried to do the same trick but his drive fell into the right fielder's hands just short of the bleachers.

Craves a Fight

Here's George Cook, Australian heavyweight, who arrived recently to fight in this country. He was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Julie, and hopes to get in enough fights within the next few months to earn a nice bankroll.

Oldtime Cattle Days Will Be Re-enacted Soon

DALHART, April 4. (P)—Old times in the West will be recalled about April 20, when Elvens and Wagner, cattlemen of Amarillo, will drive 4,000 cattle from near Toyah to their ranch near Dalhart.

The greater part of the distance will be through the southwestern part of Texas and the southeastern part of New Mexico, entering New Mexico just east of Carlsbad, as there are practically no fences to obstruct the drive. Drivers estimate it will take at least fifteen men to make the drive. A string of about 100 horses will be required. Oldtime cattle drivers say this probably will be the longest and largest drive which will ever occur.

Three Squads to Enter Track and Field Meet Here

Preparations have been completed for the annual interscholastic track and field, and literary events here tomorrow and Saturday. Pampa, McLean, and Alameda will participate in the track and field events Saturday. The same three schools and several of the rural schools will take part in the literary events. Volley ball, ground ball, and tennis matches will be started tomorrow.

Coach Odus Mitchell has his team of athletes picked for the different events Saturday and is confident that the team which won from the Amarillo Golden Sandstorm two weeks ago can carry off the meet. The following Saturday the Harvesters will travel to Amarillo to take part in an invitation track and field meet. April 19 and 20 the team will participate in the district meet at Canyon. The winners of that meet will earn the right to represent Pampa in the State meet at Austin.

Walstad and Stalls entered the state contests last year.

Herrick Mourned By Every Notable of French Nation

PARIS, April 4. (P)—The people of France today poured out unbounded tribute to the memory of Myron T. Herrick, beloved ambassador who so greatly endeared himself to the hearts of all Frenchmen in the world war.

Gathered around his bier, draped with the stars and stripes in the American embassy, the French cabinet, the army, the diploma corps and many Americans now in Paris paid their last farewell to the late American ambassador.

No more notable gathering ever paid respects to the memory of a foreigner in the French capital. With the exceptions of Marshal Joffre and Lyautey too aged to expose themselves to fatigue, all the leaders of the French army were present, including such noted figures as Petain, Franchet D'Esperey, Gouraud, Duball and Lasson. Members of the government were there in full, headed by Premier Poincare and foreign Minister Briand.

The ceremony at the embassy was one of simplicity.

Dallas Firemen Blamed For Big Fire Loss

DALLAS, April 4. (P)—With three firemen, including an assistant chief already suspended, investigation continued today into the efficiency of the Dallas fire department in fighting the fire that destroyed the Rogers Lumber company here Tuesday night.

Fire Chief Gambrell declared 30 or 40 per cent of the lumber yard might have been saved had additional equipment arrived in time.

Those suspended were Assistant Chief D. D. Barnes, John Fillingham and V. Ludwig.

Firemen to Hold Regular Practices

Members of the Pampa Volunteer Fire department will hold their regular monthly meeting the first Thursday night in each month starting May 2.

Called meeting will be held the third Thursday night. Practice nights have also been changed to the second and fourth Thursday nights of each month. Meeting nights have been on Tuesdays in the past.

Now that warmer weather can be expected, a series of important practices will be conducted, according to Chief Ben R. White. Study of the location of fire plugs, easiest way to reach destinations, and other important subjects will be a part of the practice sessions.

Many Attend Show

George W. Briggs, C. L. Thomas, S. Hicks, and Roy McMillen attended the Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy show at Plainview yesterday. They praised the show and the treatment accorded them. Other men interested in dairying plan to attend the show before its closing.

W. A. and L. R. Taylor and H. H. Isham are at the show today.

Notice Water Well Contractors

Sealed proposals will be received by the City Commission of the City of Pampa, Texas, until 7 p. m., April 8, 1929, for the drilling and equipping of one water well in and for the City of Pampa. Some requirements are as follows: The well shall be drilled to penetrate the water bearing sand found at an approximate depth of 335 to 420 feet and shall be completed not less than 20 inches in diameter its entire depth and shall be gravel treated outside the casing and shall have a guaranteed capacity of (1,000) one thousand gallons of good and wholesome water per minute and shall not pump more than one-twentieth of 1 per cent of sand per minute when completed.

Proposals must be addressed to the City Manager of the City of Pampa and must be accompanied with a certified check in the amount of $1,000 made payable to the City of Pampa. Specifications and forms of proposals may be obtained at the office of the City Manager, Pampa, Texas.

The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Band Petition Is Being Circulated

That there is a public need for a municipal band in Pampa for the purpose of furnishing entertainment and concerts, for the enjoyment of the citizenship, for drawing of crowds to the city, for the encouragement of music among boys and girls of the city, and on various occasions to play at conventions here and abroad and on trips made by local organizations—reads a petition being circulated by members of the local American Legion Post.

The petitions also state that it is within the power of the city to assess a tax of one mill on the dollar valuation of taxable property for that purpose. Signers are enthusiastic about the proposition.

Money received would be used to obtain a bandmaster and to purchase uniforms, instruments and music, and also to erect a band stand which would be located at the city hall.

Talks Today

Prof. S. H. Condron, dean of men at West Texas State Teachers college, Canyon, this morning delivered an address on "The Wise Use of Leisure" in speaking to a P.-T. A. audience.

SCHULENBURG, April 4. (P)—Carnation Badger Aero Lane Star, the Carnation Milk company's flying bull, was trying to regain his "land legs" today.

Gov. Dan Moody took part in the presentation of the animal to the dairy industry of Texas and the Fayette county agricultural committee.

JIMENEZ, Chihuahua, April 4. (P)—Hard on the heels of the retreating rebels, the loyal federal troops under Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan marched into Jimenez today over streets littered with the bodies of men and animals.

Bombing and counter bombing had started the day's hostilities when the federal plane, on its first two trips flew over the troop train and dropped four 50 pound bombs while two rebel ships hurled eight bombs on government positions.

The plane was on its fifth trip over the rebel camp and was flying at an altitude of between 3,000 or 4,000 feet. It was seen to break into pieces and explode as rebel shells hit the gasoline tank and the two bombs it was carrying one mile south of the federal trenches.

"Your Credit Is Good"

Legislative Needs Are Outlined by Senator Small

Senator C. C. Small of Wellington, summarized some of the legislative needs of the Panhandle in speaking at the regular luncheon meeting of the Lions club in the Schneider hotel today. The senator spoke of bills that will be presented at the special session of the legislature.

"In brief, some of the needs of this Panhandle of ours that will be brought up soon are: the highway bill, the regulation of motor vehicles, the gasoline tax and the utilities bill," Senator Small said.

Also important in the list is the motor license bill, the speaker declared. He told of how if passed the bill would provide for the lowering of car licenses and that the first $50,000 collected in each county would be used to build lateral roads. The bill would be beneficial to the smaller counties of the state.

"When a bill is presented to the legislature, the representative must think quick and act the same. He has no idea what the sentiment of the people from his district would be. I would appreciate it very much if, when a matter of importance comes to your attention, you would let me know your view on the matter as was done with the recent land bill. I am to serve and he who is informed of the desires of his electors can serve better," Senator Small said in closing his address.

Judge C. C. Small, father of the senator was a guest at the club luncheon and was called upon to speak.

Entertainment was given by the high school girls quartet and Miss Audrey Noel with Mrs. T. A. Fannell as accompanist. The quartet is composed of Audrey Noel, Dorothy Doucette Beula Lane, and Yvonne Thomas.

Guests at the luncheon included Senator C. C. Small, Judge C. C. Small, Sr., R. G. Hughes, Judge Clifford Braly, Harry E. Howe, Ernest Hamlett, Tom Clayton, Mel B. Davis and D. W. Brown of Dallas.

FINDS HERIN'S BIRD CITY

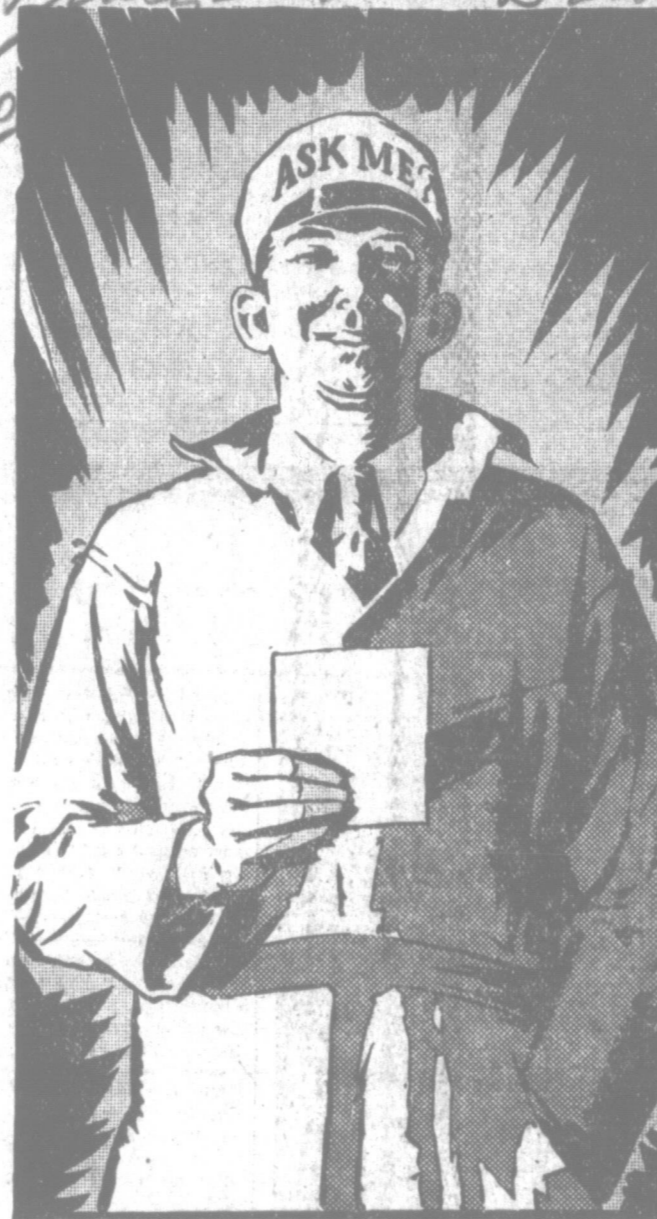

MEXICO CITY, April 4. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh made a flight over Mexico City today while his fiancée, Miss Anne Morrow, remained at the embassy residence.

The colonel flew over the embassy residence and swooped low while Anne, from the courtyard, watched him. Contrary to reports in the United States, Anne Morrow does not intend to fly to Brownsville, Texas. The reports are thought to have their origin in inquiries made by secretaries for the passage of her sister, Constance Morrow, from Mexico City to Brownsville, by air.
