It's Like This

PAMPA WANTS industries, just as does any place which has ambition to become a large substantial city. The following communication from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is so much in keeping with our local aspirations that we deem it of enough importance to be reproduced here, in part:

Without prejudice to the very important place that industrial expansion may properly occupy in the program of a chamber of commerce, it may be stated that much trouble and lost motion might be avoided if those communities that are industrially ambitious could be induced to make a study of the national industrial picture before launching a campaign for local industrial development.

In most cases, of course, that is too much to expect. The local merchant is not particularly interested in making research into the national industrial situation. Why should he be? He has a more intimate research problem—namely, the turnover and cost-accounting of his own establishment. What he wants is more business. He believes he will get it if the town can secure more factories—or some more factories, as the case may be. Any old factories. The bigger the better, of course; but by all means let's do something to get some smoke stacks and dinner pails. These are the never-failing emblems of prosperity. Just where they are to come from, or where they are to market their product—these are not his concern. He can't be bothered with such details. That's what he has a chamber of commerce for. It is a chamber of commerce problem, indeed.

Grave situations occasionally arise in a chamber of commerce because of the inability of the secretary or of the chamber to satisfy this popular demand for industries. How shall a sound balance be preserved in all this clamor for more industries? Perhaps it may be found in this principle: that the duty of the chamber of commerce is not alone to those citizens who demand factories—not even primarily to them. Its first duty is to the whole community, and in contemplating the location of a new industry the whole community can best be served by considering first the interest of the industry itself. The primary question should not be, How will this industry benefit the grocers and department store owners of this town? but, What factors exist in this town that will insure the permanence and success of the industry?

Such a concept might lead to a consideration of the whole industrial question, and to a lessening of ill-timed industrial efforts that are harmful both to the organization and the community. A careful study of the national industrial set-up might reveal, for instance, that our industries as a whole are operating at considerably less than capacity—which would make for less ebullient optimism, but more care in selecting the industries that are to be gone after. On the other hand, such a study would probably reveal that a large per cent of industries are at present improperly located, economically speaking. The chamber of commerce that succeeds in moving an industry from an improper to a proper location will not only have accomplished a good work locally, but will have rendered a service to the economic structure of the whole country.

This attitude is a well taken one. We wish industries, but not lame ones. A perusal of eastern newspapers reveals several instances in which industries are being abandoned, or heavily subsidized in order to keep their employes at work even part of the time. Furthermore, unless we wish to import cheap Mexican labor, we cannot expect some industries to locate here. Our standard of living is well above the scale of the average industrial center, and our present oil industries do not present the low wage angle as it is known elsewhere. But we wish industries, and should go after them in a systematic, scientific way, insofar as available funds will allow.

Development Takes Time Dimmitt, county seat of Castro county, has developed more since the Fort Worth & Denver South Plains Railway came to that town than it has in the past fifteen years. Good buildings are going up there and more will follow. There has been much agricultural development in Castro county in the past fifteen years. That county has been transformed from a range country to an agricultural country. There is basis for greater expansion in the town of Dimmitt.

Similarly development is being made at Petersburg, Hale county, in the center of a rich agricultural section, highly developed.

Olton, an inland county seat, in Lamb county has progressed despite its lack of rail facilities. Progress there has been due to the wide-awake attitude of its residents. Silverton, in Briscoe county, is another new railroad town. It has developed almost miraculously since the railroad came.

There is room for many good towns in the South Plains section. To those who have pioneered in this section progress has seemed slow. It now appears that the cumulative results of the years of work will bring about within the next few years progress that will increase each year in almost arithmetical progression.

Development takes time. Often we become impatient and want visible results of our every effort immediately. It just doesn't happen that way.

President of Eighth District P. T. A. Will Be Here Sunday to Confer With Steering Committee on Convention Plans

Mrs. J. M. Crane, president of the Eighth district Parent-Teacher associations, will be in Pampa Sunday to confer with local P. T. A. officials on plans for the annual district convention to be held here April 3, 4 and 5. Mrs. C. E. Hutchins, chairman of the convention steering committee has announced, Mrs. Crane will be accompanied by Mrs. T. J. Page, district publicity chairman. Both women live in Claude. Mrs. Hutchins has called a meeting of the entire steering committee, including chairmen and members of the several sub-committees, for 1:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the meeting to be held at Central high school. Mrs. Crane and the local committee at this meeting will make detailed plans for the convention program, arranging dates and hours for the various business meetings and the social courtesies to be tendered by local organizations.

With the time for the district meeting just one month away, it is urgent that such plans be completed at once. Mrs. Hutchins therefore asks that every member of her committee and its sub-committees be present at the meeting. The serious illness of Mrs. Crane's son has made it impossible for her to visit Pampa or confer with local officers at an earlier date. His continued illness necessitates the visit on Sunday, when his father can be with him, and explains the Sunday afternoon conference.

If details for the spring convention are completed Sunday afternoon, the meeting called for Monday will not be held, Mrs. Hutchins said.

East Ward P. T. A. Has Business Meeting and Program

The East Ward Parent-Teacher association, at a meeting yesterday afternoon, selected the first Thursday in each month as a regular meeting day and voted to observe every meeting day as parents' visiting day, rather than hold only one each year. Plans were made for a pie supper to be held at the school building on the evening of March 12, to raise funds for the district P. T. A. convention. Members of the association voted to purchase a medicine cabinet for East Ward school.

NOTICE REPORTERS

Club reporters and others having announcements to be placed in the week's social calendar are requested to call the society editor before 6 o'clock Saturday evening, at which time the Sunday calendar will be closed.

Founders' day was commemorated in a talk by Mrs. V. E. Fatheree of the High School P. T. A. She gave a brief history of the Parent-Teacher association and told an inspiring story of the work of the first leaders. Mrs. Fatheree, who is county chairman of tree-planting under the Seventh district federation of Women's clubs, also talked on Arbor tree and its proper observance.

Mrs. C. E. Hutchins told of plans for the district convention of P. T. A. and solicited the support of this newly formed association. Readings by Dorothy Jo Moore and Glynn Twiford, together with a song by Grace Coffin, Effie Lee Reed, and Mary Louise Adams, completed the program for the afternoon.

The addition of 13 new names to the roll at yesterday's meeting brought the East Ward association's membership to 40.

FOCH SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

PARIS, March 1. (P)—Slight improvement in the condition of Marshal Foch was noted by his physicians in a bulletin issued today. The bulletin said "the Marshal's temperature is 98.7, and his pulse 84. There is a diminution in the pulmonary symptoms."

Public Wedding to Follow Benefit Program, Says Rumor

The latest fact to be disclosed concerning the library benefit program that will be given in the Central auditorium a week from tonight is that a wedding will follow the presentation of the Old Family Album and the specialty numbers. A real wedding, according to rumor, and the first one to take place in the gymnasium-auditorium.

The identity of the young people who will plight their vows thus publicly has not been revealed by the A. A. U. W. committee in charge of the program. The members gave their consent to have the ceremony follow the performance, but will not reveal the names of either the bride or the bridegroom.

While it is quite possible several eral romances now flourish in their first blossoming in the popular auditorium, no one, thus far, has had the courage to be married there. Such courage should be rewarded, according to the opinion of several local merchants. A chest of gifts from these business men will be given the bridal couple.

The most startling thing about this wedding is the choice of a minister. None other than Almee Simple McPherson of Angeless Temple fame is to officiate in the ceremony. She has definitely accepted the invitation to be here, so the bridegroom told the arrangements committee in charge of the wedding are being arranged by the young people, who are inviting all who attend the program to remain for the ceremony.

The prominent West Coast minister is not the only celebrity who will appear in the auditorium that evening. Madame Golly Korchief, herself, will sing, and report has it that Governor Dan and his entire family will attend the wedding. The flying colonel has not wired acceptance of the invitation to himself and his fiancée, but it is expected that the matter will reach his attention immediately after his return from Mexico City.

TROTSKY VERY ILL

Track and Field Men Getting in Readiness for Practice—Busiest Season of School History Forecast

Approach of spring, with seasonal track and field events taking major places on the athletics calendar of Central high, has turned interest of the Harvesters to preparations for the most active campaign in their history. Fifteen men already are working out with Coach Odus Mitchell and his assistant, A. M. Fox, in the weights. The boys of muscular mould, who will be depended upon in the shot-put, discus throw, and javelin throw, include John Willis, Ralph Klingler, Troy Stalls, Henry Ayres, Jones Setz and Bob Kahl, with others likely to participate.

Stalls is one of the most promising exponents of shot-put and discus heaving, but he lacks training and form. His great natural ability, plus instruction, should enable him to win Gray county points with ease, but he will have strong competition for first place. The track men will be working out in a few days. Equipment for the high jump, pole vault, and hurdles must be assembled. The county meet will be held March 22 and 23, which leaves no great amount of time for preparation. Cold weather of late has been a handicap.

Coach Mitchell is in his element in track work, having participated in high jump, hurdles, broad jump, pole vault, shot-put and relay while a student.

He expects to arrange a dual or triangular meet with Miami, or Miami and Panhandle, also will enter a squad in a meet to be held at Borger.

Miami Signs for Five More Big Heavyweight Tilts

MIAMI, Fla., March 1. (P)—The turnstiles will click for at least five more winters underneath the palm trees, by the terms of a new agreement between the Miami city commission and the Madison Square Garden corporation, calling for an annual heavyweight feature bout to be staged here over the period including 1930-34. Negotiations, carried on by William F. Carey for the Garden corporation with the Miami city commission, were completed yesterday.

The agreement means further fulfillment of the dreams of Tex Rickard, who not only laid the ground work for the Sharkey-Stribling battle, but revealed before his death definite plans to establish a permanent winter fight headquarters in this section. Jack Dempsey's name was not mentioned in the announcement of the agreement, but it is believed the former champion will be induced to support the forthcoming annual Southern fistie features.

Miami Beach, scene of the Sharkey-Stribling fight, offered no counter bid for future bouts, as a consequence of local objections to either retaining the Flamingo park arena or building another in that city next winter.

Will Let Fill-in Bridge Contract

County commissioners are in called session today to let a contract for the fill-in to connect the bridge built in the middle of the Red river east of LeFors. The bridge is 1,000 feet long, but lacks 400 feet of reaching from bank to bank of the so-called navigable stream.

At a recent meeting of the commissioners it was decided to fill-in to meet the bridge rather than to extend the structure. Several contractors have entered bids for the work.

The next regular meeting of the commission will be held March 11.

HEENEY WILL RETURN TO RING TONIGHT

BOSTON, March 1. (P)—Tom Heeneey of New Zealand returns to the ring here tonight after a lay off since his defeat by Gene Tunney in last July's title bout. He will face Jim Maloney, the Boston heavyweight whom he knocked out in the first round of a fight 18 months ago.

SOCIETY

Friendship Class Meets for Work and Social Hour

Members of the Friendship class of the Methodist Sunday school combined pleasure and profit as they met yesterday afternoon in their classroom to sew for an Easter bazaar. The gathering was social, with only a brief business session. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Arthur Mahan, Mrs. R. R. Jones, and Mrs. Kidwell.

The following other members of the class were present: Mrs. Fred Cary, Mrs. George Eades, Mrs. W. S. Swain, Mrs. J. E. Gilbert, Mrs. Ben Ward, Mrs. Lacky, Mrs. E. F. Caughey, Mrs. L. P. St. Patrick's Day is Noted in Club Party Appointments

Mrs. J. H. Lutz, who was hostess to members of the Lone Star Bridge club and other friends yesterday afternoon, followed the St. Patrick's day scheme of decoration with charming effect in appointments for her party. The shamrock was the motif developed in bridge accessories, to be repeated in a dainty two-course luncheon.

Mrs. H. L. Grove, Mrs. E. A. Webb, Mrs. W. E. Murphy, and Mrs. Lloyd Bennett were included as special guests in the invitation list. The following club members were present: Mrs. C. M. Carlock, Mrs. J. W. Vasey, Mrs. J. L. Nance, Mrs. L. M. Williams, Mrs. Robert Gilchrist, Mrs. Colbert Wilkerson, Mrs. Henry L. Lemons, and Mrs. Frank Seal.

High scores were made by Mrs. Grove and Mrs. Carlock. Each received a pretty favor, and Mrs. Seal was consoled for low club score.

Methodist W. M. S. Will Elect Circle Chairmen Wednesday

Permanent chairmen for the four circles of the Methodist Women's Missionary society will be elected at the circle meetings next Wednesday afternoon, according to a decision reached at the regular monthly business meeting of the whole society this week.

Temporary officers, appointed by the president, Mrs. W. Purviance, have served since the formation of the circles a few weeks ago. They are: Mrs. R. C. Campbell, chairman of Circle No. 1; Mrs. J. M. Dodson, chairman of Circle No. 2; Mrs. H. L. Barnhart, chairman of Circle No. 3, and Mrs. George C. Walstad, chairman of Circle No. 4. At the general meeting this week, Mrs. Earl Stuckey was elected general superintendent of children's work.

Markets

CHICAGO, March 1. (P)—Larger deliveries here on March wheat contracts than expected had an early bearish effect today on wheat values. Opening at 1-8c decline to a shade advance, wheat later underwent a general sag. Corn and oats were also easier, with corn starting unchanged to 3-8c up, and subsequently receding somewhat. Provisions tended to advance.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: The Christian Church
Scripture Lesson: Mark 4:26-32; Eph
1:22; 4:4-6, 11-16.

Mark 4: 26. And He said, So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed upon the earth;

27. And should sleep and rise night and day, and the seed should spring up and grow, he knoweth not how.

28. The earth beareth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear.

29. But when the fruit is ripe, straightway he putteth forth the sickle, because the harvest is come.

30. And He said, How shall we liken the kingdom of God? or in what parable shall we set it forth?

31. It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown upon the earth, though it be less than all seeds that are upon the earth.

32. Yet when it is sown, groweth up, and becometh greater than all the herbs, and putteth out great branches; so that the birds of the heaven can lodge under the shadow thereof.

Eph. 1:22. And He put all things in subjection under his feet, and gave him to be head over all things to the church

23. Which is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all.

Eph. 4:4. There is one body, and one Spirit, even as also we were called in one hope of your calling;

5. One Lord, one faith, one baptism,

6. One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.

11. And He gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers;

12. For the perfecting of the saints, unto the work of ministering, unto the building up of the body of Christ;

13. Till we all attain unto the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a fullgrown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ;

14. That we may be no longer children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, in craftiness, after the wiles of error;

15. But speaking truth in love, may grow up in all things into Him, who is the head, even Christ;

16. From whom all the body fitly framed and knit together through that which every joint supplieth, according to the working in due measure of each several part, maketh the increase of the body unto the building up of itself in love.

Time and Place: Christ spoke the parables of the seed growing secretly and the mustard seed by the Sea of Galilee in the autumn of A. D. 28, the second year of his ministry. The parable of the seed growing secretly appears only in Mark. Paul wrote his letter to the Ephesians during his first imprisonment in Rome, A. D. 61 or 62.

Golden Text: So we, who are many,

are one body in Christ.—Rom. 12:5.

INTRODUCTION

Peter's confession of Jesus as the Christ, the Son of God, is the rock upon which Christ builds His church. "Not merely on Peter, but Peter confessing the deity of Christ; and not confessing it as a conclusion of his own reason, but upon Peter confessing his acceptance of the truth which God has revealed to his soul. Upon such a man, and such men, the church was founded; and of such men the church of all ages has been composed. To such as confess this knowledge of Christ He gives the power of opening to others His kingdom, and of revealing to them what is permitted and what is forbidden in that kingdom."—Prof. Charles E. Erdman.

The deity of Jesus is a truth which cannot be demonstrated to a man whose heart is not right toward God. If a man is willful or vain or insincere or immoral, if he is habitual breaking the law of God at any point,—he cannot see the deity of Jesus, nor will he be able to believe with his heart that "the Son of God has really come."—Rev. Charles E. Jefferson, D. D.

THE CHURCH

We give the word church at least four different meanings: The great invisible spiritual kingdom of Christ; the collective body of Christ's nominal disciples; the organized sect, or denomination, to which we belong; and the local individual church of which we are members. In all these senses in the church the dispenser of salvation to the word, of spiritual instruction, guidance, and encouragement to the Christian, as well as a field of action where he may serve his Master. The Protestant Christian does not hold, with the Roman Catholic, "No salvation outside the church;" but he does believe that most people will find it exceedingly difficult to work out their salvation apart from the church; and that, anyhow, it is a very valuable adjunct in the perfecting of Christian character.

The Church's Growth

Our Lord's two brief parables of the seed growing secretly and the mustard seed represent the church, "the kingdom of God," as growing (1) in unnoticed ways, "without observation," and (2) from little beginnings which nevertheless become mighty in their results.

"And He said, So is the kingdom of God." This "kingdom" is the organized work of Christ in the world, the visible manifestation of the Holy Spirit, the church universal. "As if a man should cast seed upon the earth." Commentators differ here, some understanding the sower to be Christ and some believing that Christ's disciples are meant, preachers, teachers, evangelists, parents, all who sow the seeds of the word in human hearts. These may be some thought of both, but probably Christ's intention was to represent himself as the sower here as in other parables.

These well known verses, selected for the special lesson of the primary and junior classes, describe the early church in Jerusalem, which may well serve as a model for the churches of today. That church was splendidly evangelistic, receiving three thousand new members in a single day as the result of a single sermon. What modern church can do as well? Moreover, it was a persevering church, continuing steadily in church attendance, observance of the Lord's Supper, and the holding of prayer meetings and conference meetings. In addition, this early church was generous; no one kept his possession to himself, but opened them freely to all the needy. No wonder it was a happy church, fond of singing God's praises. And no wonder it was a popular church, "having favor with all the people" and adding daily to its membership. If any church today wants to be large and strong and truly successful, this is the way to do it—and the only permanent way.

The apostle images the different races and peoples as separate buildings, now resting on the broad foundation of the apostles and prophets, and united in one vast temple of which Christ is the chief corner stone.

"The engineers of the Palestine Exploration Fund by sinking shafts and opening galleries along the walls of the temple, came upon the original foundations. They are 70 feet below the surface, and rest upon the rocky slopes of Moriah. At the lowest angle of this temple area they discovered the 'corner stone. It was 4 feet thick and 14 broad, and its fine finish was almost unimpaired. It is not improbable that the prophet, Isaiah, had this very stone in mind when he uttered the Messianic prediction, 'Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone.'"

The Church the Bride of Christ

Paul gives us here one more beautiful picture of the relation between Christ and His church, this time as analogous to the relation between a husband and his wife. The husband is the head of the wife and so to be obeyed, as Christ is to be obeyed in all things by the church. Husbands also are to love their wives, even as Christ loved the church and gave himself up to death for it. Wives are to be pure, and there is a reference to the bride's ceremonial bath before marriage, compared to the waters of baptism; so is the church, the bride of Christ, to be pure and beautiful for his sake.

"The Church's one foundation is Jesus Christ her Lord; Is Jesus Christ her Lord; She is His new creation By water and the word; From heaven He came and sought her To be His holy bride; With His own blood He bought her, And for her life He died."—S. J. STONE.

CHURCHES

Words of Jesus: "Give Caesar what belongs to Caesar, give God what belongs to God."—Matt. 22: 21 (Moffat translation.)

CHURCH OF CHRIST, C. C. Merritt, Minister.

GOD WILL NOT FAIL
God is not finally thwarted in His purposes. He sees the end from the beginning. He knows what He will do, and is in no nervous haste. He can brook delay; one day, a thousand years—it does not disconcert Him. Slowly but majestically, like the stars in their courses, move His purposes on to their fruition. He swears by them as He swears by Himself: "As I live, and as all the earth shall be filled with the glory of Jehovah." (Num. 14:21).
He can afford to seem to fail for a time, even a long time if need be; but firmer than the heavens stands His word, and He will yet do all His pleasure. Why so anxious and so fretful? Is it because we fear His cause will go down and everything will end in wreck and chaos? It is necessary. Let us do what God has appointed us in His way.

If the gospel does not convert a man, we cannot convert him. If the truth does not save a church, no personal power of ours can truly preserve it. Our responsibility ends with the simple task he has intrusted to us. When it is lovingly done by the help of God, we may leave the burden of the universe to the shoulders that are better able to bear it. Sometimes we take too much on ourselves.

BIBLE IN MODERN EDUCATION
By C. C. Merritt, Minister, Church of Christ.

Some one has said that "there are two sides to every question." I recognize the fact that there is much to be said pro and con on the question of the teaching of the Bible in our schools. I shall not here enumerate the problems and difficulties of such a course, but will let it suffice to say that with the majority of people the greater portion of these problems are mere excuses. The things given in this article have to do more with higher education than that of other branches.

Recently a young man, seeking admittance into a certain university, when detailing the work he had done elsewhere, enumerated five years' work he had done in the Bible. "We do not count that," replied his examiner. "But I have done as hard work on that as I possibly could have done on any other branch," protested the young man. "We can give you no credit on that," was the answer. The young man knew that beforehand; but to get the full expression from that educational representative, he let the point come up.

The absurdity of the situation became apparent when we consider that the Bible is, and what, on the other hand, it is that really is counted as "work" by those who do not recognize the Bible as being of any account in the curriculum. Barring the inspiration of the Bible and considering it simply as a common book, even then there is a liberal education in it. Morals, ethics, philosophy, poetry, literature, history; the human interest that, because it constituted the chief excellence of the heathen classics, give them, in sum, the name of "humanity"; finally, in its English form, the purity and beauty of its language—where, even as an uninspired book, does the Bible find its equal along its chosen line? In what other book is there so much that is worth while? But, to those who believe, the Bible means immeasurably more. Not only literature and human learning is it to them, but a revelation of God and of man and of the unseen world; in it they learn, not language and philosophy so much as eternal principles of righteousness, faith, hope, love, that will enable them to cope with the problems of life as nothing else can. That is education, indeed, to know God and Christ, to be made fit for this life and for another, an eternal life to come. And this is comprised wholly and alone in the book that counts for nothing in the world's curriculum.

But what have they in our schools that counts so solidly? Here I will not myself speak, but quote from a gentleman of undisputed scholarship and of international note—Richard G. Moulton, M. A., Ph. D., the pioneer and apostle of the literary study of the Bible, who in his book on this subject, in the preface, calls attention to the strange inconsistency between our educational aims and standards. He says:

"It has come by now to be generally recognized that the classics of Greece and Rome stand to us in position of an ancestral literature—the inspiration of our great masters, the bond of common associations between our poets and their readers.

But does not such a position belong usually to the literature of the Bible? If our intellect and imagination have been formed by the Greeks have we not in similar fashion drawn our moral and emotional training from Hebrew thought? Whence then the neglect of the Bible in our higher schools and colleges? It is one of the curiosities of our civilization that we are content to go for our liberal education to literatures which, morally, are at an opposite pole, from ourselves—literatures in which the most exalted tone is often an apotheosis of the sensuous, which degrade divinity, not only to the human level, but to the lowest level of humanity. Our hardest social problem being temperance, we study in Greek the glorification of intoxication; while in mature life we are occupied in tracing law to the remotest corner of the universe, we go at school for literary impulse to the poetry that dramatizes the burden of hopeless fate.

Our highest politics aim at conserving the art of peace; our first poetic lessons are in an Iliad that can not be appreciated without a bloodthirsty joy in killing. We seek to form a character in which delicacy and reserve shall be supreme, and at the same time are training our taste in literature which, if published as English books, would be seized by the police. I recall these paradoxes, not to make objection, but to suggest the reasonableness of the claim that the one side of our liberal education should have another side to balance it.

Prudish fears may be unwise, but there is no need to put an embargo upon decency. It is surely good that our youth, during the formative period, should have displayed to them in a literary dress as brilliant as that of Greek literature—in lyrics which Pindar can not surpass, in rhetoric as forcible as that of Demosthenes, or contemplative prose not inferior to Plato's—a people dominated by a utter passion for righteousness; a people whom ideas of purity, of infinite good, of universal order, of faith in the irresistible downfall of all moral evil, moved to a poetic passion as fervid and speech as musical as when Sappho sang of love or Aeschylus thundered his deep notes of destiny.

When it is added that the familiarity of the English Bible renders all this possible without the demand upon the timetable that would be involved in the learning of other language, it seems clear that our school and college curricula will not have shaken off their mediæval narrowness and Renaissance paganism until classical and biblical literature stand side by side as sources of our highest culture.

And, may we not, in the facts here disclosed, find an answer to the cause of our heavy crime wave?

MANY MEXICANS FAY FOR AMERICAN DEATHS

MEXICO CITY, March 1. (AP)—Sixteen Mexicans have paid with their lives for the alleged murder of W. M. Underwood and G. C. Aesthorpe, American mining officials, in the state of Guanajuato.

Two others, held as prisoners, today faced summary action by court martial and probable execution for their part in the slayings. Troops were in pursuit of the remainder of the band.

The military commander of the state of Guanajuato reported to the chief of the presidential staff here that federal troops yesterday encountered the bandit group which kidnaped and killed the two Americans and in a two-hour battle killed 10 of them, capturing two others. Six others were killed in a previous battle.

One federal soldier was killed in yesterday's encounter.

HARDY TRIAL MARCH 18

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 1. (AP)—The State senate has fixed March 18 as the date for the beginning of the impeachment trial of Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy of Los Angeles, on charges of committing misdemeanors in office in connection with his activities in behalf of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist.
