

MA FERGUSON RUNNING UP LEAD

Blanscet and Andrews Are Out in Front in Drive for County Sheriff

Sweetwater is promoting the southern portion of a project that should be of much interest locally.

The Villa Acuna Chamber of Commerce is enthusiastic, and recently sent Raymond Rivers as far north as Sweetwater in the interest of the proposed highway.

This annual dissatisfaction with the Amarillo baseball tournament is getting monotonous.

There is, of course, the present lack of a suitable playing field and grandstand.

More about the Pampa-Villa Acuna highway the route would be Matador, Dickens, Spur, Rotan, Ruby, Sweetwater, Bronte, San Angelo, Sonora, El Dorado, Del Rio, Villa Acuna, Mexico, and thence to Puenta or Allenda to Sattillo, capital of Coahuila.

Who has some snapshots of Pampa street scenes of the period from 1915 to 1925? The News and the Board of City Development often have calls for pictures of that period for purposes of comparison with the present Pampa.

Life is very much a gamble, after all. There were several times as many candidates running as there are offices.

But this is democracy's way—theoretically at least—picking the best from the list of those who offer themselves in public service.

Speaking of trading at home, we might take a few lessons from the followers of Gandhi.

PIPES ALSO BIDDING FOR RUN-OFF POSITION—WHITE WILL BE COUNTY ATTORNEY

Cary and Stennis Lead For County Judge—Miss Davis, Miss Miller Are Given Approval

More than 2,800 voters who went to the polls of the first Democratic primary Saturday found themselves in agreement in some cases, but so nearly tied in others that the official canvass alone may decide the principals in the August primary.

Incomplete returns from five voting precincts and complete figures from six showed C. E. Cary with 973 votes and Judge S. D. Stennis with 890 slated for the run-off for county judge, with Don L. Wakeman the third man with 398.

Sherman White's nomination for county attorney was indicated in his total of 1455 votes to 746 for Fred Cary.

The hotly contested race for sheriff finds Lon L. Blanscet in the forefront with 987 votes. John Andrews with 553 votes and C. E. Pipes with 530 are in a tight race for the run-off with Blanscet.

C. W. Barnes is leading for tax collector, with 631 votes, and Larry Rider is second with 524.

Miss Mabel Davis was returned to the nomination with 1774 votes to 714 for John I. Bradley. Miss Davis now is the incumbent.

A. H. Doucette, incumbent county surveyor, holds a small lead over W. T. Fox, 1063 to 985.

Commissioner Lewis O. Cox has a lead of about one hundred votes over Judge John B. Ayres for reelection.

—BY FRED'S STUDIO Miss Louise Miller, deputy district clerk, yesterday was nominated to the clerkship in the Democratic primary.

CLAREMORE IS RAIDED BY TRIO ON SATURDAY

CLAREMORE, OKLA., July 26.—(AP)—Three men raided the Foyll state bank, near here, shortly before noon today and escaped with $1,100 after locking W. B. Holland, cashier inside the bank. Holland was alone when his two companions stood guard, one of the robbers forced Holland, the cashier said, to place the money in a sack leaving Holland inside the bank, the trio locked the bank's front door and fled in an automobile.

Bootlegger Says He Slew Detroit Radio Announcer

DETROIT, July 26.—(AP)—While a cross section of Detroit citizenry 10,000 strong, followed Jerry Buckley to his grave today. A bootlegger who cannot read English swore that he was the man who accused the slain radio operator of racketeering and that he did it unwittingly.

Two affidavits signed by the admitted liquor seller—Frank Chock—were before the public tonight. One, obtained by Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox after Buckley was shot to death early Wednesday, accused the dead man of having induced him to set up a liquor business and of having then "shaken him down" for $4,000.

McCormick Wins Nomination—Once Was Texas Ranger

PANHANDLE, July 26 (Special)—Famous as the man who killed Bud Bailey while chief of police of Wichita Falls, J. W. McCormick, former Ranger, was declared nominated as sheriff of Carson county late last night. He was leading Lonnie Skages 776 to 524 with only the White Deer box missing. W. L. McConnell was leading Judge Hood in the race for district attorney, 923 to 821, with reports from White Deer, reported to be his stronghold, to be heard from. Odis Dean of White Deer had conceded the election of Frank Elston of Panhandle as county judge.

Art. Gatton has returned from Amarillo, where he has been in consultation with an optometrist.

PRODUCTION OF COUNTY IS MUCH LOWER

Decline Is Because Of Agreement To Curtail

HUMBLE HOLDS MUCH POWER

Area West of City Continues To Be Active

A sensational drop of 5,356 barrels of oil in the daily production of Gray county during the last week was attributed to the agreement not to complete any more big wells in this area until flush production abated, which was reached by operators when the Humble Oil and Refining company of Houston rescinded its order not to purchase any more crude oil in the Panhandle.

UNKNOWN MAN FOUND BURNED AND SLUGGED

FORT WORTH, July 26.—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man, about 30, was found tonight on a road near here. The head showing signs of having been beaten with a blunt instrument and the body burned almost beyond recognition.

CITY BUILDING IS HIGH IN RANK IN TEXAS

DALLAS, July 26.—(AP)—Figures reported today showed Dallas lead the state for the week in building permits with a total of $447,195, bringing its yearly total to $6,682,934. Other cities' totals displayed a decided slump. Figures for Houston, still highest for the state for the year, with a total of more than $100,000,000, were not available.

MUST FIGHT HOPPERS

Brookings, S. D., July 26.—(AP)—Warning that farmers must take immediate measures to save their crops from the grasshopper outbreak in South Dakota was issued today by H. C. Severin, experiment station entomologist at South Dakota state college.

ROSS STERLING IS SECOND FOR GOVERNOR AND SMALL NOT FAR BEHIND IN THIRD

DALLAS, July 26. (Texas Election Bureau)—With returns tabulated from 253 counties, six complete, Former Governor Miriam A. Ferguson was leading in the Democratic gubernatorial race late tonight, with Ross Sterling of Houston in second position and Senator Clint C. Small of Wellington coming in third.

Takes Lead

Lon L. Blanscet yesterday was given a commanding lead in the race for the Democratic nomination for sheriff, and will go into the second primary with another opponent whose identity is not yet certain.

ROSS STERLING IS SECOND FOR GOVERNOR AND SMALL NOT FAR BEHIND IN THIRD

DALLAS, July 26. (Texas Election Bureau)—With returns tabulated from 253 counties, six complete, Former Governor Miriam A. Again Konjola Gives Proofs Of Its Worth

Wichita Lady Glad to Praise Medicine That Relieved Neuritis And Stomach Disorders

"Konjola well deserves to be known as the master medicine," said Mrs. Eitel Russell, 1920 South Mead street, Wichita. "My appetite was very poor, and nearly every meal was followed by severe indigestion pains. Gas formed, crowding around my heart, nearly shutting off my breath. I was constipated, and then there was the misery I suffered from neuritis. These pains struck me like electric shocks, passing from one part of my body to another, and I became very nervous.

"Only a very short treatment of this wonderful medicine, Konjola, relieved me of stomach trouble and neuritis, and corrected constipation. I can now eat anything I care to without suffering afterward. Every trace of neuritis has disappeared and my nerves have become much stronger. I have been greatly benefited in every way, and I am glad to endorse this splendid medicine."

Konjola loses no time in getting to work; many are amazed at the quick results, but it is best to take a full treatment of from six to eight bottles for best results.

Konjola is sold in Pampa, Texas, at the City drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.

Moody Watches Election Returns

AUSTIN, July 26—(AP)—Governor Dan Moody tonight was evincing a strong interest in the returns from the primary election although he was not a candidate for state office for the first time in six years. Governor Moody stood for a considerable length of time behind the telegraph operator in a local newspaper office while the returns were coming in from the Texas election bureau.

The governor, while engrossed in the incoming returns and running a practiced eye over the reports of the balloting, was keeping a pencil sharpened for the telegraph operator who was rapidly wearing off the points. Mr. Moody had no comment to make on the results of the election.

Oklahoma Has First Statewide Primary Poll

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 26 (AP)—Candidate for the most part tonight rested their ears and submitted their pleas for nomination to a jury of voters, which will return a verdict at Oklahoma's first statewide primary election Tuesday.

There will be a few minute efforts on the part of some of the campaigners Monday, but most of them will be in their home cities ready to go to the polls early Tuesday.

As the oratory died away tonight and as the candidates returned finally their platforms and their promises, the spotlight swung toward the vote.

Democrats predicted the heaviest vote in years with John E. Luttrell secretary of state election board estimating the Democratic power at 140,000.

Republicans at the state house were unanimous in their predictions that the vote this year from members of that party will be the lightest cast in years. E. G. Hughes, Republican corporation commission estimated that only 45,000 Republican votes would be counted in Tuesday's primary.

Teamster Killed In Auto Accident

BONNER SPRINGS, Kans., July 26—(AP)—Joseph Morgan, 75, teamster and farmer, was killed, and his sister, Mrs. M. F. Morgan, 61, of Anadarko, Okla., suffered cuts and bruises late today when a motor car in which they were riding turned over and crashed into a telephone pole. The driver, George Kennedy, 25, Bonner Springs, was not injured dangerously.

The accident occurred when Kennedy lost control after swerving to the left side of the highway to pass another car, the survivors said.

Roadhouse Keeper Kills Two Burglars

CHICAGO, July 26—(AP)—Two unidentified men were shot to death tonight when they tried to hold up a roadhouse in Lansing, Ill., a suburb.

Tony Sodo, proprietor of the place, heard the two in his dining room taking money and jewelry from the eight patrons who were there. He took a shotgun, went out the back door and around to the front, where he lay in ambush. When the two bandits left the front door, he opened fire, killing both instantly.

SIGNS TELL UNTRUTH

KENOSHA, Wis., July 26—(AP)—The sign in the window of Frank Butera's automobile said: "Don't shoot—there's no liquor in this car."

But Butera was speeding so the police stopped him. Later they noticed that one can place little dependence in signs, as they found the car loaded with 258 gallons of alcohol.

New Residences Boost Total of Building in City

Residential construction started during the last week included 10 separate projects for which building permits totaling $24,900 were issued by F. E. Townsend, city building inspector. This amount raised the total for the year to $700,225.

The biggest item in the building program was a $5,000 house being built by Lynn Boyd in the North addition, north Somerville. J. L. Noel is building a $4,000 residence in the Broadmore addition. Both will be brick veneer structures. Permit for building a $4,000 residence in the Magnolia camp was issued to the Magnolia Petroleum company.

The Pampa Brick company is remodeling its building at 315 West Foster which was recently damaged by fire, at a cost of $3,500. W. D. Martin is constructing a residence in the Alexander addition at a cost of $2,500.

J. M. Dodson is building a residence in the Channing addition at a cost of $2,000. The M. G. C. Drilling company began construction of a residence in the Finley Banks addition at a cost of $1,600. J. L. Stroup is building a garage and servants quarters in the Stroup addition at a cost of $1,500. A. B. Zahn was issued a permit to build a residence costing $500.

Building Notes

J. L. Noel is erecting a nice new brick service station at the corner of Alcock and N. Banks.

J. L. Stroope is remodeling the garage to his fine new home in the north part of the city.

Shelby Duval is adding a grease rack service at the new Gulf Station on S. Cuyler.

Mrs. H. W. Huddleston is building two rooms to her house on the South side.

The oak floors have been laid and the cement walks are being poured this week on the C. B. Barnard house on N. Somerville St.

N. G. Cooper has nearly completed his house on W. Foster. The painter has just finished decorating the two front rooms in three tone colors.

C. H. Irvin of the Pampa flying club is daily expecting the arrival of Inspector Delaney of the Department of Commerce. Irvin is planning to take the transport pilot's test when the official visits the local airport. Irvin now has about 200 hours of flying.

D. B. Purinton, member of the club, soloed this week, and all members chalked up hours in dual flying. J. A. Clift has 70 hours.

Contrary to the predictions of some pessimists, the flying club members are getting alone fine, and each member is getting all the flying he wants. The embryo aviators fly according to a schedule to which they rigidly conform, and the American Eagle is kept in the air most of the time. Flying is confined to this vicinity.

Boyd Kenndy flew Frank Shaw's American Eagle to Taylor, Wednesday, and has not yet returned.

Dr. J. C. McKean flew to Amarillo and returned Tuesday. He made a flight to the same city Thursday, returning the same day.

The Home The Town Built

An Original Gulf Coast Lumberman Poems
This is the home the town built,
This is the home so clean and neat
That adds so much to the looks of the street;
That makes the strangers wish that they
Could take it along when they go away.
And the neighbors are glad that everyone had
A hand in the home the town built.

This is the youth with pep and vim;
Clean, honest labor looks good to him;
He is the one who owns the place
As you can see by his satisfied face;
The property stands in his own home—
To "own a home" is plenty of fame—
And he takes part in the village his.

To hold up the value of what is his,
For this is the home the town built.
This is the maid so fitted with love,
Who makes the home like the Heaven above;
Her "work" is "play" the whole day long,
She fills the house with happy song.
For the house is new and clean you see,
And just as convenient as can be—
For this is the home the town built.

But what is this army that stands outside
And watches the house with looks of pride?
Why, they are the ones who helped to build
This HOME! No wonder with joy they're filled!
They, too, deserve their "place in the sun,"
For it is a wonderful work they have done—
Constructing the home the town built.

First, the Architect drew the plan;
Then the lot was got from a Real Estate man;
The Lawyer found that the title was right;
And the Banker showed the money in sight.
The Laborer dug the cellar so deep;
And the Mason made the foundation to keep
The base from the Brickmason's solid wall
And the chimney above, so straight and tall.

The Carpenter bought from the Lumber Yard
All manner of wood, both soft and hard,
To make the partitions, the shelves and the doors,
The shady porch and the wide, smooth floors.

The Roofer shingled, (perhaps he thinned)
And the Glazier guarded 'gainst too much wind.
The Plumber saw that the water was right;
The Gas and Electric men handled the light;

The Lather and Plasterer covered the wall
And the Painter finished the last of all;
And then—deny it if you can,
They call in the Insurance Man.

But these are just the ones who build;
The house is empty and must be filled;
So the rest of the town then takes a part
To prove that each has a will and a heart.

To make the house a HOME indeed
And here is the rest of this jingled screed.
The Furniture man gives a table and bed,
A chair and a carpet on which to tread.

The Drygoods man provides the sheets
The towels and napkins for the east.
The Crockery man sets up a cup
And a plate and dish from which to sup.
The Cutlery man then gives the tools,
(Knife, fork and spoon) by fashion's rules.
The Hardware dealer would think it strange
If he could not provide the range,
Together with many a pot and pan
That a woman needs to feed a wan.

These are the men, if the house is small,
Who help to build, but they are not all.
If the maiden wants a Piano to play,
An Alarm Clock to waken her early each day,
A Vacuum Cleaner, a Picture Frame,
A Front Door Plate to hold her name,
And the thing you find wherever you go,
Must be forgotten, a Radio,
Then others step into the rank and file
To make her house a Home Worth While;

For this is the home the Town built.
The Grocer, the Baker, the seller of meat,
The Merchants who handle all good things to eat;
The Ice and the Milk and the Eggs and the Food,
The Coal and the Clothes and the Gas and the Wood;

Lawn and Garden of Mrs. Sawyer On North Gray Provides Loveliness

By Archer Fallgins

Since last spring the lawn and garden of Mrs. A. B. Sawyer at 321 North Gray street has provided loveliness, odor, and color for passers-by. The blossoms which have gone to seed, scattered to the four winds and have been cut in that garden would cover a block, more or less. The Sawyer yard is prominent on Gray street for its wealth of flowers. It has been the talk of the town for four months.

The Sawyer lawn does not end with the sidewalk but there is, a wide extension between the concrete and the curb. The elm trees set in the middle of this space seem unusually symmetrical, rich in foliage and large for young trees. The garden is to the south of the residence, although there are many clumps and beds of flowers to the rear. A fruit orchard at the back of the house is highly productive.

Mrs. Sawyer is famed for the roses in her garden. There are roses of many colors, but each one represents the best breeding and culture of its type. Mrs. Sawyer has a penchant for obtaining aristocratic cuttings and bulbs and she will plant nothing in her garden that is not rated as aristocrats among flowers or shrubs. For this reason, her dahlias exude royalty. When these bloom later on in the summer, undoubtedly they will be gorgeous, truly gorgeous—and that is the first time we have used that adjective this year.

The garden is profuse with Shasta daisies, sinias, roses in bloom, cosmos, phlox, sweet william, gladiolus, and other flowers. In a narrow bed around the house are phlox, Canterbury bells, gladiolus, sweet william, and violets. There is the necessary honeysuckle vine clambering to the roof. The perpetual green of cedars contrasts favorably with the excessively green lawn of clover and grass.

There is also a hedge, fencing in

IS THIS THE SAME WOMAN

Yes, the above picture is of the same woman. On the left she is pictured after having spent the morning in an old fashioned home with its hot uncomfortable atmosphere and is awaiting the coming of the "head of the house" for his noon meal, and is wondering what his disposition will be when he enters the surroundings where she spends most of her hours. On the right the same little housewife is pictured as she greets her husband at the door of the newly modernized home and is telling him how proud she is and how comfortable and cool the new home is on that warm July day. She does not fear an outburst from him when he enters.

We have been showing interior and exterior views of homes before and after modernization. There is no greater change in the appearance of an old home modernized than there is in the wife who has had the surroundings of her home changed.

We are interested in what Pampa women regard as an ideal kitchen, and invite them to write descriptive letters to us giving their ideas. One of these letters will be published in the Pampa Daily News Sunday, and each Sunday thereafter one will appear as long as we receive such letters. Later other parts of the home will be discussed in the same manner. We intend to embrace the best ideas submitted and erect "a perfect home" built according to the ideas of Pampa women.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

JUDITH GRANT, beautiful artist's model, shares her Greenwich Village apartment with CHUMMY MORLEY, beautiful girl whose mind has been a blank ever since ALAN STEYNE, her lover, disappeared seven years ago. Steyne returns and she fails to recognize him. Meanwhile, he and Judith fall in love, and he tells Judith that he never loved Chummy and never knew Chummy lover him. Then, abruptly, Chummy's memory returns feeling obligated because of her years of suffering. Steyne asks her to marry him. Judith, meanwhile, has aroused the infatuation of BRUCE GIDEON, rich financier, who offers to star her in a musical show. She agrees, and prepares to take dancing lessons of GUARVENIUS, the great dancing teacher, who is impressed with her talent. Alan, meanwhile, tells Chummy that Judith ought not to have to work for a living.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVI

Chummy smiled tenderly at Alan's vehemence in declaiming Judy should not work.

"Still, it will be splendid, Alan, if Judy makes a great name as a dancer. Of course, she's wonderful."

"I can't see that it's much good to be gaped at by big, vulgar crowds," he answered testily.

She gazed at him in surprise, and he pulled himself together.

"Look here, Clarrisa," he went on in some embarrassment, "you're just as bad. Look how you pinch and scrape and live like a beggar, and never let me do anything for you at all. If you come out with me, you always eat the cheapest things, and insist on sitting in the cheapest seats at theaters. I don't think either you or Judy ought to rooms. I wish you'd realize that I'm well off. I've more than $5,000 a year, and the little place in Maine."

Chummy's lovely cheeks glowed.

"Oh, Alan, I'm pining to see the dear place in Maine! I think you're right. It would be lovely if Judy would give up the idea of dancing and come and live with us when we are married."

"It would be a splendid idea," he said; "but it wouldn't solve the problem now. What we want to go on living in those dreadful do in to prevent Judy from killing herself at the present moment."

"I know that," Chummy answered, her golden-brown eyes meeting his in a look of quietly rapturous delight. "I'll do what I can, Alan. I'll try to make her come home to lunch, and make a point of being there myself, or I'll go out with her somewhere. I'll simply force her to allow me to help her, so that she needn't work so dreadfully hard."

"Money is no object, you know," he said earnestly.

Chummy shook her head.

"I believe I'm a bad liar, Alan. I'm afraid she'll know that it's your money; but I'll have a serious talk with her and manage it somehow. Once I get on a bit with my work, it'll be easy enough. Poor little Judy—she has to have lots of dancing shoes, and stockings, and things like that. And her whole soul's in it. She spends all she can possibly scrape together to go and watch other dancers."

"That's where we could help, Clarrisa," suggested Alan.

"That 'we' that he was obliged to use gave him a fresh pang each time. How he rebelled against it! How he loathed the whole deception, and, above all, the tacit avowal that he daily made to this beautiful and noble-natured girl that he cared for her and wanted her to be his wife!

He never had a man been in such an intolerable position. He was tied hand and foot, and, as an honorable man, he could not cut himself loose. He could gain freedom only by inflicting bitter sorrow and cruel humiliation on this girl who had waited for years for him to come back.

"Yes," she assented eagerly. "You might get some seats now and then, when there's some really good dancing on."

"The Russian ballet will be here next week," he agreed. "I saw them when I was in Paris. We could go often—as often as Judy would like—and in the best seats," he added, with his boyish laugh.

It was bitter comfort to be able to do anything for Judy, even to buy theater tickets.

He had not seen her since his return from Maine. He both longed for a sight of her and dreaded it. He hardly liked to admit to himself that she was always present in his thoughts.

Chummy went home after dinner. Full of an affectionate purpose, she was eager to provide a tasty supper for Judy when she returned, as she would, about nine o'clock, from a late dancing lesson. Guarvenius had very erratic hours, and Judy had to fit herself in like a jig-saw puzzle.

On the way back they bought some tasty morsels, such as a slice or two of galette and the Italian sausage that Judy adored. They also bought cakes and fruit and a small bottle of good red wine. At least, Alan determined, with a kind of grin materialism at which he laughed himself, Judy should have a good supper that night.

As if a supper—or any meal, for the matter of that, or any bodily comfort—could make any difference to that little girl's eager spirit!

He left Chummy at her door and walked back to Gramercy Park. The girl tentatively asked him up, but he made the excuse of having a couple of cases of books to unpack. She did not press him. She seemed to be all taken up with her supper getting. No doubt, also, she recognized that they saw a great deal of each other every day; and in the nature of every woman is the gulle which, however much she may long for him, sends the man of her heart away from her at times.

Steyne walked slowly home, dejected and sorely oppressed. He summoned all his will power to think of Clarrisa Morley as his wife, and to vow to make her a good and loyal husband; but he knew, even as he summoned it, that it was not equal to the task.

He reached his rooms, high up in a building looking down on the park. He occupied the attic, where he had been constructing the kind of town dwelling that appealed to him. It consisted of one very large studio and three or four smaller rooms, a miniature kitchen, a bathroom, and a level bit of tiled roof big enough to stretch his legs on, with a fascinating view.

It was far from finished yet. The studio was packed with easels and painting gear. A carpenter had put up shelves halfway across one of the end walls; and here Steyne proposed to busy himself tonight, unpacking some books that he had collected on his travels, and others that his benefactor had bequeathed to him.

He had his own bedroom and the kitchen comparatively in order, and an old woman came in to clean every day.

He had just changed his coat for an old one and was on the point of attacking one of the cases of books with a hammer and chisel, when there was a ring at his outer door. He went to open it and found Bastien Dumont outside.

"Is it too late, Steyne?" the young artist asked rather timidly. "I mean, are you busy?"

Steyne grabbed him by the arm. "Come in, Dumont! I'm only too glad to see you. I call this friendly. I've been hoping you'd look me up some day. Fact is, you fellows seem to fight shy of me now."

"Oh, no!" exclaimed the other, his lean, picturesque face alight with pleasure at the warmth of Alan's welcome. "You mustn't say that, Steyne. One knows that you're busy."

"Look here, clear all those papers on that chair and sit down, will you?" Alan went on. "I'm in an unholly mess. I'll get you a drink. What shall it be—whisky and soda?"

"No—vermouth, if you please," laughed Dumont. "I see a bottle over there."

Steyne poured out two glasses, and handed his guest one.

"I'd like to have it out with you, Dumont," he said, offering a cigarette. "There is something, you know. How many times have I asked you to dine with me? You've never been able to, my dear chap!"

He smiled his charming smile, which the young artist, with his susceptible nature, could not resist. Dumont smiled back, and his splendid dark eyes glowed with a sudden purpose.

"Oh, I suppose it's your money," he said frankly.

"Nonsense!" The bit of money I have couldn't surely come between me and my old friends. That would be too small, Dumont. And the girls are much the same. They're frightened if I offer them a chocolate. I've tried to believe it's because I've been away so long."

"I expect it is," Dumont said vigorously.

He could not have explained the feeling himself; but it was quite true that he had experienced it.

"But I'm not going to heap reproaches on you now you have come!" Alan went on gayly. "I'm only too glad to see you. Are you sure you're comfortable there? What do you think of my place? I hope it will be rather decent when it's finished."

Dumont admired everything. There was in him not a spark of jealousy of Steyne's worldly possession. They made a tour of the place, and came back and settled themselves in chairs. Then Dumont burst out suddenly.

"Steyne, I really came to consult you—to ask you if you couldn't do anything. I must tell you that I'm worried to death about Judith Grant."

Steyne shifted his position, and put his tumbler down on the floor beside him.

"Yes, Dumont—why?" he asked.

"Is it this dancing business? I haven't seen her since I came back; but Clarrisa has been telling me about it. She says the girl is working much too hard."

"It isn't the dancing!" Bastien said fiercely. "It's this odious man—this Bruce Gideon who's got hold of her!"

"Got hold of her!" The words left Steyne's lips like a pistol shot. Deeply moved, he turned a fierce, white face to the other man. "In God's name, Dumont, what do you mean?"

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA POPULOUS

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—It must be that people who pay any attention to Washington at all visualize it as a cluster of white buildings in which the president worries, Congress spouts and various bureau-crats sit at desks to transact business of a mysterious nature which means very little to anyone. As for the people here, the average citizen doubtless remembers something about Mr. Hoover, Mrs. Gann, Senator Borah, Bishop Cannon, Walter Johnson, Congressman DePriest, Alice Longworth, the British ambassador and Joe Grundy.

As a matter of fact, there are about 800,000 persons living in the District of Columbia and its surrounding suburbs, which means that this is a community of considerable size as well as the nation's capital. As regards the white population Washington might be called a city of the middle class, for there are no factory workers here and no element of foreign-born.

At any rate, all these people live here very much like other people and no more than two or three per cent at the most are intimately concerned with those political and social activities which are the prime interest of the Washington folks who break into the newspapers. The people of Washington work, play golf, cook, go shopping in big stores, kill each other, love each other, inhabit apartments large or tiny, dance, go to church, drink, have babies, buy groceries, get sick, motor and worry. They can't vote, but hardly anyone cares.

Continual proximity to the workings of weighty national affairs seems only to intensify their interest in local happenings. A good murder case here sends newspapers circulation zooming as nothing else could do short of a presidential death or the cave-in of the Capitol dome. Blase as it is to international relations and domestic problems, the populace seems rather a credulous one. Clairvoyants and fortune-tellers do a surprising amount of business. Miss Elzina Howells has just been found guilty of swindling two nurses of $5,000. She said she got tip on the stock market "from the stars" and they let her invest their money.

All sorts of little things of local interest happens. . . . Nine colored boys, aged 11 to 17, have been arrested for the theft of 60 automobiles in three months. They called themselves the "Cat o' Nine Tails Gang." . . . The Senate or House District of Columbia Committee is always investigating some local matter or other—most lately mortgage frauds. . . . Mr. Paul Browning is accused of a unique murder attempt; his wife says he forced poison down her throat and she may die. . . . Mrs. Emily Birch tried to run away from home with the family car and two children and when her husband tried to stop her the car crushed him against the garage wall. . . . Fire departments of all nearby towns have been invited to the eighth annual firemen's parade.

The present local tax rate of $1.70 per $100 will remain in effect for another year. . . . The Girl's Club of the Neighborhood House has been holding rehearsals for some of Aesop's Fables. . . . A prominent speakeasy proprietor was rebuked by a cop when his truck full of empty beer kegs blocked an alley and is now on bail charged with trying to give the cop a $10 bill.

Experiments at Michigan State college show that pigeons are susceptible as carriers of Bang's disease.

A TIFFANY PRODUCTION

I THANK YOU!

While I was unopposed in the Democratic primary of yesterday and had no opponent to defeat I wish to thank the good people of Gray county for the large vote cast for me.

I have served you with the best of my ability and the fact that no one entered the race against me assures me that the people appreciate my efforts to serve you well.

The office of County Superintendent is supposed to be kept above the level of petty politics and I have not permitted things of a political nature to attract my attention unless I considered that it would affect our school system.

Please consider this invitation to call on me at any and all times for discussion of anything for the betterment of our schools.

Your servant,

JOHN B. HESSEY

GRAY COUNTY VOTERS! I SURELY THANK YOU!

It gives me a real pleasure to express my thanks for the votes you gave me in the primary yesterday and your support and influence preceding the election.

I assure you that this expression of confidence will be long remembered and that I shall conduct the office of district clerk in a manner reflecting this confidence.

Again I thank you and assure you of my sincere appreciation.

LOUISE MILLER

I Received a Nice

Plurality

IN THE RACE FOR SHERIFF

My heart is filled with gratitude for those who worked so earnestly in my behalf during the Democratic primary yesterday and the days preceding the primary election. I cannot express myself sufficiently to tell you just how much I do appreciate your support. It was a great victory and it is you, my friends, that I owe this nice plurality to. I know you will stand by me in the run-off and if you continue your good work in my behalf we will again raise the banner of victory in August.

To all who did not support me yesterday I wish to say that I hold no ill will; you simply exercised your right of suffrage as is guaranteed to every American citizen. If your favorite candidate for sheriff was defeated I ask that you consider my candidacy for Sheriff of Gray county, assuring you that I will appreciate your support.

I now make the only promise I have ever made—that if elected to serve you I will put forth every effort to make you a sheriff that you will always be proud of. Remember this—I will not conceive the idea that the office belongs to me but will forever keep in mind that I am only representing all the people of Gray county and will do my best to do a good job.
