

TORCH MURDER SUSPECT IS HELD

Political pranks include that of a local candidate who placed some of his cards in the pocket of a rival, who did not discover the error until some of his intended clients asked him why he was so generous toward his opponent. But that is certainly a mild prank compared with some we have heard about in other years.

It is better to slip candidate cards into a rival's pocket than to place words he did not say in his mouth. "Why he told so-and-so that begins many a political falsehood. Gray county's politicians seem remarkably broad minded and fair.

There is no denying that your sins (and some that are pinned on you) will find you out if you run for office. That is one reason why The Pampa did not run for a public job "at the urgent petition of his friends." He has nearly every other qualification, popular and unpopular. He was born in a Missouri log cabin, which ought to make him eligible at least to the presidency, and he is one of the last of the log-cabin tribe. He is an oldtimer in these parts, having been a Panhandle resident about as long as he can remember. He has seen the barren prairie broken by the plow and turned to waving grain; he has seen the herds of cattle driven off the breaks to make way for derricks and flowing gold; he has seen the cowboy pass and heard the cry of the football rooting sections replace the puncher's weird lament; he has heard conversation change from cows to airplanes, from square dance calling to Motorcycles. On the face of this record, he ought to be eligible to election to something.

The Pampa is of a sympathetic nature, believe it or not, and he cannot but feel sorry for the defeated candidate. He wishes all could win, but such is not democracy. The majority rules, and there must be many defeated candidates in order that the best, theoretically speaking, may be selected. There is something pathetic in the disappointment of those who never dreamed of losing. Running for office entails a heavy waste.

Right now there are many defeated candidates who are debating whom they will support. Each one has a little or big machine or following, and can deliver a part of his following thru a declaration. Some of them will make their decisions known at once, while others will think it over for a few days and listen for any dissonant notes or other developments. He who speaks too soon often regrets it, although it is effective to his while the metal is molten. The Texas political metal is going to be molten for some time, it has been so heated.

Roads will play a big part in the second primary over the state, despite the fact that the legislature must vote to submit and the people must approve an amendment before the governor can do anything about trying to put over a state-wide bond issue for paving. Sterling's plan will be under fire, of course. On the other hand, it will be remembered that federal aid was denied Texas for nearly a year during a Ferguson administration, and the conduct of the highway department then smelled to high heaven. Ferguson and Sterling would do well to avoid the road propositions, but they won't.

It is more than a Sterling-Ferguson issue. The future of the Democratic party in Texas is involved. There are thousands who said "never again" when "Ma" and "Pa" were in power the last time. If Mrs. Ferguson should become the nominee, the Republican party would again beckon. The "regular" followers of the party organization will vote for either; the question is, which of the two, Sterling and Mrs. Ferguson, deserve most at the hands of the party. This issue will be largely discussed in the next few days. Party solidarity and regularity will depend largely upon the correct answer. The odds favor Sterling.

LOVE TO SUPPORT STERLING NEGRO KILLER FACING DEATH

WASHINGTON GIVEN DEATH LAST NIGHT

Jury Is Out Only 10 Minutes At Miami

CONDEMNED MAN IN JAIL HERE

Sentenced To Die On September 5, at Prison

By ARCHER FULLINGIM

The bright fire of intelligence was totally lacking in the dull and inanimate eyes of a negro, Jesse Lee Washington, last night in the district courtroom at Miami, as he eyed in the manner of an animal the face of Judge W. R. Ewing who was pronouncing in solemn and slightly sad tones, "and on the fifth day of September, 1930, you will be strapped in the electric chair in the state penitentiary at Huntsville, and a current of electricity of sufficient intensity to cause death will be directed through your body until you are dead."

It was the first death penalty ever pronounced in the 31st judicial district, although during the March term of court here, a jury sentenced to death as the punishment for Moneus Twitty, who was found guilty of criminally attacking his four-year-old niece. Just before the judge pronounced sentence, he had warned the spectators which crowded the small courtroom that he would tolerate no demonstrations. Texas Rangers had locked the doors and windows. The only audible sound in the court was a rattle of the chain around the negro's neck when he shifted from one foot to the other. He chewed gum slowly and mechanically.

"Jesse Lee, you have committed the most horrible crime that the Panhandle has ever known," Judge Ewing said before he pronounced sentence. "The conscience revolts and staggers at it. May God have mercy on your soul!" Asked if he had anything to say before he was sentenced, the negro eyed the lips of his worn-out shoes for 15 seconds and it appeared that he had not been listening to the judge. Then he looked up, swallowed, ran his tongue over dry lips and mumbled in the whining tone, peculiar to some negroes, "I don't believe I have."

Meanwhile, the faces of Henry Vaughan, whose 24-year-old wife Washington confessed he beat to death with an iron pipe on an isolated farm near Shamrock July 11, and of the father, Hal Vaughan, who at first wanted the negro lynched, were undergoing marked changes. The elder Vaughan paused in the business of industriously smoking a pipe when the phrase, "until you are dead," was slowly read.

A look of intense sympathy for the black brute flitted swiftly across the man's face and then he resumed smoking his pipe. Earlier in the evening, the father and son had expressed a desire to see the negro electrocuted. "We will be satisfied if we can see him die in

SCOUTS OF THIS COUNCIL TO HAVE TEN-DAY CAMP IN CETA CANYON FROM AUGUST 18-28

Hundred and Twenty-Five Boys Will Attend Annual Training Course; Barcus Will Be Director

Registered Boy Scouts of the Adobe Walls council will go into camp in Ceta canyon August 18 for ten days of instruction and fun. Plans were completed here last night at a meeting of the council presided over by the Rev. T. W. Brabham, president.

The camp site is southwest of Canyon in what is known as the Baptist encampment grounds. There is cold water coursing down the sides of the canyon and good swimming and boating in store. Trees and shrubbery abound for the Scout tests.

Mrs. M. T. Pope of Panhandle will be in camp the entire ten days as registered nurse in charge of the boys' health. The Rev. M. T. Pope, minister of the First Christian church of Panhandle, will have charge of the inspirational program each evening. Scouts must go to camp under direction of their scoutmasters. Only registered Scouts may attend. Boys of Pampa who are not scouts may join the Methodist, Baptist, or Christian church troop at next Friday's meetings. The cost of going to camp for the 10 days will be $7 per boy. Any boy who wants to become a Scout or who, already a Scout, has no way to get the necessary $7 is asked to call Rev. Brabham at 624.

On Friday evening, August 8, there will be a mass meeting of Pampa Boy Scouts in the basement of the Methodist church, where physical tests will be given and camp plans announced. Scott Barcus, boys' work specialist and former scout executive will be camp director. He will be assisted by the following faculty: First aid—Dr. Warner, Claude, and Mrs. Pope. Nature study—Walter Hardin, Leather work—Clarence Coffin. Handicraft—Cecil Cox, Berger. Archery—George Henshaw, Phillips. Swimming and lifesaving, Frank Lowther, Pampa. Scout Executive Hill of Amarillo will be in camp several days for general work. Devotional services—Rev. A. A. Hyde, Pampa. Local transportation—Roger McConnell, W. H. Curry, Bonnie Rose, of Pampa. It is expected that between forty and fifty Pampa boys will attend the camp. Scout Executive C. A. Clark is assisting each town in the council in plans for sending the boys to camp. Mr. Clark was here last night. The 125 or more boys who will encamp in Ceta canyon will be well fed, well directed, and will return better trained in Scoutcraft and good citizenship, it is pointed out.

DROWNS IN TRINITY ENNIS, Texas, July 29. (AP)—Jack Dinkins, 21, was drowned today when the boat in which he was riding capsized in the Trinity river.

Mrs. Roy Sewell, Mrs. Bonnie Rose, and the latter's little daughter, Bonnie Lee, spent Sunday in Miami.

"Miss Pampa" Is Winner of Fourth Place In Revue

"Miss Pampa" in the pulchritudinous person of Miss Maxine White awarded fourth place in the Plains Beauty contest at Lubbock last night. Miss Berger, represented by Miss Thelma Arnold, won first place and the right to be Miss Plains at the Galveston pageant of pulchritude and beauty which begins August 2. Other places were awarded as follows: Miss Lubbock, second; Miss Abernathy, third, and Miss Levelland, fifth. Twelve girls representing as many plains cities competed.

Judges said in their opinion that Miss Pampa was really the prettiest girl in the contest. She was the smallest entry among the winners and it was this fact which decided them not to give her first place.

DALLAS MAN ONE OF FIRST TO GIVE AID

"Fergusonism" To Be One of Main Issues

MOODY DRAWS "MA'S" ATTACK

Bitter Campaign To Be Begun At Once

HOUSTON, July 29. (AP)—Alvin Moody of Houston, campaign manager for Senator Thomas R. Love in Mr. Love's unsuccessful primary campaign for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, issued a statement today saying he and his "friends and associates" would support R. S. Sterling in the runoff with Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

AUTIN, July 29. (AP)—Almost before the smoke of Saturday's primary had died away, the factions in the Texas Democratic party were hard at it again today, boosting the rival candidacies of Miriam A. Ferguson and Ross S. Sterling for the democratic nomination for governor.

The fight was reminiscent of other years, with the Ferguson's on one side and Governor Dan Moody on the other firing the opening salvos in what promises to be one of the bitterest campaigns the state has seen. Moody, first to the guns, declared he would support the candidate who was in the runoff "against Fergusonism." Later, he changed this, when it was certain Ross Sterling would be the runoff candidate, to say that he would offer his services in any way possible to the chairman of his state highway commission.

The issue, as defined by Governor Moody, was honest government against corruption in government. Accepting the governor's challenge Mrs. Ferguson replied last night that she was glad to lump the issues of the campaign under the general heading "Fergusonism against Moodyism."

Mrs. Ferguson and Sterling had already started the preliminaries incident to the August 23 runoff when the democrats will make a choice between the two.

The latest totals: Ferguson 219,238. Sterling 156,655. Small 122,665. Love 73,360. Young 67,991. Mayfield 51,893. Miller 48,669. Moody 4,999. Putnam 2,589. Loven 2,506. Walker 1,942.

The election bureau's computation had accounted for 740,329 votes in 246 of the 253 counties, 123 complete.

U. S. Senator Morris Shepard was renominated without the necessity of a runoff and without making a single speech. He received 443,953 votes to 147,627 for Henry and 33,572 for Mitchner.

Former Governor Pat M. Neff lacked 8,508 votes of a majority over his three opponents for railroad commissioner. He had 308,910 votes, Hatcher 145,223, Johnson 91,382, and Patton 80,813. There were to be four other runoff races, for lieutenant governor, attorney general, treasurer, and commissioner of agriculture. Senator Edgar E. Witt of Waco still was leading for lieutenant governor with 151,806 votes, with Sterling P. Strong of Dallas close behind with 143,693. John E. Davis & Mesquite with 178,089 was leading Charles Lockhart of Austin with 137,551 for state treasurer. Ball had 102,514, Christian 80,232 and Clark 79,885. J. E. McDonald of Waxahachie

Melons to Make Mouths Water

Watermelon growers of Hope, Ark., where the largest melons in the world are grown, are ready for their fifth Watermelon Festival, August 7. More than 500 carloads of melons are shipped out of that territory every year, and these average well over 100 pounds in weight. The champion melon of them all is shown above, being cut by Iva Hipp. It weighed over 152 pounds.

ANALYSIS OF OIL TERRITORY AS AFFECTED BY PIPELINE LAW WILL BE MADE BY COMMITTEE

As a result of yesterday's meeting here of 150 representatives of more than 30 oil concerns, including many independents, a committee of nine men is to make a study and analysis of the local oil territory as it is affected by the need for production curtailment and the new pipeline law.

This committee is composed of J. H. Clark, Amarillo, Midwest Exploration company; Henry Snyder, Tulsa, Dixie Oil company; A. C. Smith, Wichita Falls, Texas company; Clyde Shields, Berger, Prairie Pipeline company; W. E. Hubbard, Amarillo, Humble Oil & Refining company; George A. Dye, Tulsa, vice president of Wilcox Oil & Gas company; William O'Brien, Amarillo, banker and producer; S. D. McIlroy, Amarillo, producer; and J. M. Baldrige, Amarillo, Shamrock Oil & Gas company.

According to H. M. Stalcup of Tulsa who presided at the meeting, a plan will be designed to fairly and impartially distribute the available pipeline outlet to all production, large and small, and at the same time contain a restrictive measure designed to curtail and needless drilling of additional wells so long as present conditions of over production prevail within the industry.

"A state-wide committee has been studying and analyzing the over-production situation in the state and has attempted to estimate the present demand for oil. At the meeting in Austin, Wednesday, an effort will be made to effect a reduction of 126,000 barrels a day in oil production from all Texas fields which would bring such output down to 70,000 barrels a day, the present estimated demand," said Mr. Stalcup.

"This local committee is part of a concerted action over the state to provide a fair and equitable distribution," said Mr. Stalcup.

The state committee consists of six members, two representing the Mid-continent Oil & Gas association; two representing the Independent Petroleum association; and two representatives of the pipeline purchasing agencies of the state.

Explaining the law passed by the last session of the legislature, Mr. Stalcup said that the law was designed to equitably distribute the output of oil from a given pool to all operators in that pool. The law became effective June 20. However, like many other laws, it provided for something to be done and was not concerned with any method for

EVIDENCE IS POINTING TO ELDERLY MAN

Trio In Amarillo To Be Arrested At Once

WARRANTS ARE SENT BY WIRE

Fort Worth Citizen Burned to Death Saturday

FORT WORTH, July 29. (AP)—A suspect in the killing and burning of Roy Hawthorne Saturday in county jail here with a murder charge due to be filed against him this afternoon; and three others believed implicated in the slaying were being watched today in Amarillo. Their arrest was awaiting receipt of telegraphed warrants from Sheriff Wright here.

The warrants were issued in justice court, on filing of charges of the murder of Hawthorne Stanley, a man designated as "one Williams," and another called "one Smith," their first names unknown, were filed on as vagrants and warrants issued for them.

The suspects in county jail 59 years old, was arrested Monday afternoon. In his house officers said they found a towel with stains of what appeared to be blood on it. They also found discolorations on a broken beer bottle, the bottle being of the same kind and color as pieces of glass found in Hawthorne's shoes.

AMARILLO, July 29. (AP)—Fort Worth officers here seeking to serve a warrant on Hubert Stanley, charged with murder in connection with the slaying of Roy Hawthorne, were unable to locate him today. Hawthorne's body was found Saturday near Fort Worth and there were indications of an effort to burn it.

Bowman Boasts He Will Escape When He's Rested

Boasting that he would escape "after I've rested up a little," Johnnie Bowman, who has a mania for breaking jails, was incarcerated in the modern steel prison in the courthouse yesterday afternoon. Bowman is under life sentence in connection with the fatal shooting of Bill Watkins here July 4, 1928.

Johnnie, who claims to be the champion jail-break artist of the United States came back to Pampa, accompanied by Deputies Jeff Guthrie and Frank Jordan, telling how he broke out of jails in Kansas, Illinois, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Iowa. "Why I would get in jail to purpose, just to show them I could get out. There's not a jail made that I can't break out of and when they take me to the penitentiary, you'll hear how I got out!"

Nebraska bootleg led to Johnnie's undoing. On the night he was arrested, he drank a pint and telephoned to Pampa for money. Officers were notified and he was arrested. "I would have broken out of the jail at Imperial, Neb." Johnnie explained, "but I needed a rest. The feed in the Gray county jail is the best in the west. Then, the view is fine—couldn't want a better view. The sunsets are gorgeous. You see I happened to think of all this and decided not to break jail at Imperial. But as soon as I get my rest, it's the boys, don't take any lumber shillings."

Johnnie declared he has had an enjoyable "vacation." "I broke out of the jail at Amarillo, as you probably read in the papers, with a key made out of a spoon," he recalled. "I picked the lock on a jail at Joplin. I made keys for jails at Grand Island, Neb., Dubuque and a town in Oklahoma."

When there is a vacancy in the Huntsville penitentiary, Johnnie will be given the place, since by escaping he forfeited his right to appeal the case.

M. D. Bentley of McLean was a visitor here yesterday.

GLENN CURTISS' RECORD

The death of Glenn Curtiss removes from the scene one more of aviation's great pioneers—and, at the same time, emphasizes the extreme youth of this spectacular game which he helped bring to maturity.

Curtiss was not an old man, in any sense of the word. Yet Curtiss was connected with aviation from its earliest infancy. To the Wright brothers, of course, goes the credit for making the first airplane flight; but Curtiss was one of the leaders in developing the crude planes of the early days into the rangy, efficient machines of today.

It is barely two decades since Curtiss amazed the nation by flying an airplane all the way from Albany to New York City. In that day, that was nearly as sensational a stunt as a trans-Atlantic flight is today. And yet, so rapid has been aviation's progress that Curtiss himself lived to see cross-country mail and passenger lines in daily operation, and but for his untimely death he would undoubtedly have witnessed even more striking developments.

A good share of the credit for all of this development must go to Curtiss himself. His Albany-to-New York flight was only one of a series of actions that made aviation's wings secure. Curtiss flew extensively in a day when every flight was a genuine risk. He experimented, studied and worked to give the makeshift planes of those early days safety and endurance. The present state of aviation is, in part at least, a tribute to his labors.

All of this, of course, does not detract in the slightest from the achievements of the Wright brothers. They are pre-eminent in the history of aviation, and no one can share their distinction. But Curtiss played an extremely important part. A country that has made the airplane a nitegral part of its organization owes him a vast debt. His departure is a distinct loss.—NEA

CAN'T STOP CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Congress may adjourn definitely and unmistakably, but there's no stopping the Congressional Record.

The editions of the Record made a sizeable pile for the period since either house has been in regular session, containing hundreds of thousands of words in "speeches" which never were spoken. Most of this tripe is campaign material. Once it is printed in the Record as an "extension of remarks" the congressman can buy thousands of copies of his outburst at a nominal sum and mail them without paying postage to as many voters as he wants to reach.

In each case the member begins "Mr. Speaker," just as if he were addressing the House instead of merely his stenographer. Reading into the stuff will give anyone an idea of the type of material that will be fed to the voters this year.

Plenty of Republicans are found defending the new tariff act, undertaking to explain just how its results will be very beneficial. Such leaders as Congressman Tilson and Will Wood review the records of Congress and the Hoover administration, both quite favorably. Tilson also inserted a speech which he actually delivered at the sequicentennial founding of Jonesboro, Tenn.

Congressman Clay Stone Briggs of Texas gets right Senate as a Republican of North Carolina, undertakes to sell the protective tariff to his folks.

Congressman Clay Stone Briggs of Texas gets right down to brass tacks and boasts of his success in obtaining federal highway aid in his district. Congressman William A. Ayres of Kansas makes a lengthy plea for the farmer and Congressman Robert A. Crosser calls attention to the need of doing something about unemployment.

The Hon. Clarence Cannon of Missouri bemoans the fact that war veterans have such a tough time getting legislative relief. Democratic Leader Jack Garner discusses "Hoover prosperity" at length and Will Wood is found again on the defensive, explaining that the economic depression is world-wide and not just confined to the United States. Maurice H. Thacher of Kentucky announces that "it may not be inappropriate for a member of the House to make in this way some mention of his labors" and proceeds to do so in a very large way indeed, with no unfair reflections on Mr. Thacher. Fred Zihlman of Maryland argues for old-age pensions and Arthur H. Greenwood of Indiana holds forth on the "breakdown of the administration's farm relief program."

Charles J. Esterly of Pennsylvania remembers one of the most important industries back home and speaks up for more tariff protection on full-fashioned hosiery. Senator Park Trammell of Florida does a chore for Senator William J. Harris of Georgia by sticking in four pages on the Georgia senator's record. William Ramseyer of Iowa devotes more than 18 large pages to a study of the effect of the new tariff. Louis C. Cramton of Michigan exhorts because less than 10 per cent of the House members signed a 2.75 per cent beer petition.

JUDITH GRANT, beautiful artist's model, shares her Greenwich Village apartment with CHUMMY MORLEY, beautiful girl whose mind has been a blank ever since ALAN STEYNE, her lover, disappeared seven years ago. Steyne returns and she fails to recognize him. Meanwhile, he and Judith fall in love, and he tells Judith that he never loved Chummy and never knew Chummy loved him. Then abruptly, Chummy's memory returns and she recognizes Steyne; and feeling bound by a tie of honor, Steyne— with Judith's approval—asks Chummy to marry him. Judith, meanwhile, has aroused the infatuation of BRUCE GIDEON, a rich financier, who offers to star her in a musical show. She agrees and begins studying to become a dancer. BASTIEN DUMONT, a young artist who loves her, tells Steyne she is "getting in Gideon's clutches" and Steyne tries to warn her against him; but Judith feels insulted and tells Steyne to mind his own business.

CHAPTER XVIII

A week later Bruce Gideon came to Garvenius' house and found that Judith had just finished her lesson for the day.

"I came to find you, Judy," he said, after greeting the maestra. "The Big Russian ballet opens tonight, and I have a box. I thought you would like to come."

"How gorgeous! How kind you are!" she replied impulsively.

"That's settled, then." He followed her out into the street. His big car was waiting there. "Where are you going?" he asked her.

"To Mr. Stornaway's."

Stornaway had suddenly asked for her services again. She liked sitting for him better than for any one else, except Max Dickbread, of whom she was really very fond, for all his rudeness and his exacting ways.

"Let me drive you," Gideon said. For the first time she hesitated.

"You must be tired and hot and you will catch cold," added the soft voice.

"Thank you very much. You are very kind."

And Judy got into the car. She reached home about half-past six, and found Chummy waiting for her in some excitement.

"Oh, Judy, how late you are! Do hurry up and dress. Alan has seats for the first night of the Russian ballet—boxes! He's taking us dinner to dinner first—a real nice dinner at the Malaya!"

"Sorry, darling; I'm booked."

Chummy's face fell.

"Oh, Judy, it can't be anything so important as the Russian ballet."

"It is the Russian ballet, pet. I'm going with Mr. Gideon."

"Oh, how unfortunate! Alan will be disappointed. Are you dining anywhere?"

"No, Mr. Gideon is calling for me here at eight o'clock."

"Then come to dinner at least, Judy."

Judy could hardly refuse. She dressed quickly, and when Alan came to fetch them she was ready. She had managed to buy herself a new dress of rich red gold, with a hint of bronze in it. It matched her hair and subdued the paint on her face—such a wonderfully eager little face!

The dinner at the Malaya was rather a silent affair. Chummy had explained to Steyne that Judy had already accepted an invitation from Bruce Gideon. Alan made no comment.

There was a slight restraint upon them. Judy and Alan had not met since the day when he had ventured his ill-timed warning. Chummy was frankly disappointed, and already looked upon the evening as a failure, because it had been planned to give Judy pleasure.

Neither of the girls wanted to eat. Steyne was hungry, having been for a tramp in the country after several days of unsuccessful effort at the art school. His appetite was almost the only topic of conversation. Judy joked about it, and Chummy gently encouraged him to eat. Over the coffee they grew more gay, and Judy forgave.

She started up at a quarter to eight.

"My, I shall be late! I must get back!"

Steyne rose, too, and bent and whispered something to Chummy.

"Yes, that's a splendid idea!" she exclaimed. "Why didn't we think of it before! I'll stay here for a minute or two, Alan, and then I'll walk over to the theater. It's only a few steps. It's not worth while my coming all the way back."

Steyne assented and paid the bill. Then he followed Judy out of the restaurant.

"I'll drive you back, if I may," he said. "I'm going back to see if Clara Jenks is at home and would like to see the show. It's a pity to waste our third seat."

"Oh, she'll love it!" Judy cried. "I do hope she's there!"

In the cab they hardly spoke. Judy felt a little frozen by Alan's attitude. His voice was the essence of polite friendliness. She concluded that she had offended him beyond pardon the other day. Indeed, she had been very rude and flippant; but, then, he shouldn't have interfered with her.

He asked her how she was getting on, and she said, "Very well." She asked him what he was painting, and he told her he had again come to the conclusion that he couldn't paint at all. He was thinking of giving it up and going in for farming.

Judy said she was looking forward to the fancy-dress ball at the Lemon Grove, 10 days from that very day. It was to be a real artist's and models' ball like the famous Julian's ball in Paris. What was he going to wear?

He didn't know. What was she going to wear?

Oh, she wasn't sure, but a Columbine was the cheapest, she thought. She had quite decided that Chummy ought to go as Diana. That was what everybody who knew her likened her to. Chummy thought the costume too scanty, but Judy was trying to persuade her.

She saw Alan frown slightly, and she rejoiced bitterly, thinking she had shocked him. The more she could shock him the better for everybody.

Gideon's big car was at the door, waiting for the party. The outer door was still open, and he was standing just inside, smoking a cigar. There was no help for it. Judy had to introduce the two men, with a brief explanation. Then she turned to Alan.

"If you like, I'll run up and find out about Clara. I could tell her to get dressed as quick as she can, and I could help her, too."

Before he could demur she was gone.

Gideon turned to Alan with a smile, and offered him a cigar, which the young man declined on the plea that he was going over to the theater as soon as Miss Jenks came down.

"You may as well dismiss your taxi, then," suggested Gideon.

"We'll all go together."

Again Steyne declined with cool politeness. Miss Jenks might not be ready immediately, and he knew Miss Grant did not want to lose a moment of the ballet.

"You're engaged to Miss Morley, aren't you?" was Gideon's next question. He adopted a slightly roving air, with which mingled a smothered hostility that must have been instinctive. "You were away when I met Miss Morley again the other day. She didn't remember the previous occasion at all. She has made a remarkable recovery. You must think yourself very lucky, Mr. Steyne. What a lovely creature she is!"

"I did not know you had met Miss Morley before, Mr. Gideon."

Alan replied with great formality.

"Oh, yes—at your little cafe. I was there with Stornaway one night and he introduced me. Miss Morley was not very complimentary to me. She said I was ugly, and called me 'Punch.'"

He laughed, not entirely without malice. It pleased him to reveal Clarissa to her betrothed husband in such an impolite light. He disliked this young man, and resented his reappearance. The Morley girl was Judy's best friend and house companion, and he knew what bad influence they might not have on her? By "bad" influence Gideon meant, of course, an influence detrimental to his own plans.

Steyne looked at him with obvious frigidity.

"I trust you forgive Miss Morley for her rudeness, Mr. Gideon," he said. "Perhaps you did not know at the time that she was not responsible for what she said."

"Of course, I thought nothing of it," replied the rich man, chuckling. "I was vastly amused. It's only too true. I know I'm no Apollo. I admired Miss Morley immensely, and was fascinated by her romantic story. You must allow me to say how glad I am that it is to have a happy ending."

"Thank you very much," replied the young man, with an inward groan.

Just then Judy ran down to say that Clara was overcome with joy and would be down directly. The chauffeur opened the door of Gideon's car. Judy gave Alan a smile and disappeared into the luxurious interior. For a moment he saw her bright hair and vivid lips against dark cushions. Gideon followed her with a slightly effusive farewell.

As Alan stood and watched the car slide away, a deadly hatred of Bruce Gideon and a conviction of the man's evil purpose were born in his heart.

In the vestibule of the opera house, after the performance, Steyne saw Judy again. She looked half wild with excitement; her eyes had the amethyst sparkle in them that meant extreme elation. Alan had seen her look like that before, when she had sat in a box at the musical with him, and they had seemed to be the only people in the world.

He knew that she would not be responsible for what she did in that mood. The wonderful dancing had gone to her head. She was living, for the time, in another world. He registered a vow that she should not leave the opera house alone with Bruce Gideon.

In the crowd he became separated a little from Chummy and Clara Jenks. He looked back and told Clarissa, by a series of signs, that he saw Judy and was going to fetch her, so that they might all go to the Cafe Turc together. Chummy nodded assent.

When he did find Judy, she was alone. She seemed to be waiting.

Most of the crowd had passed on. "Come along, will you, to the cafe?" he asked her. He did not know how harsh and dictatorial his voice was. The look of her filled him with despair. "Clara and Chummy are at the door."

"Oh, thank you," she said, "but I am waiting for Mr. Gideon."

"Where is he?"

"Talking to his sister, Madame de Toros."

"Why are you not talking to her, too?"

"I don't know her."

Steyne's look burned into her brain. Her pride became a sort of fury.

"And I won't come to the cafe, thanks!"

"Yes, you will," said Alan. "Clarissa wants you to come along."

"Another time, then, thanks."

Judy's voice was contemptuous. "I am waiting for Mr. Gideon."

"Judy, you'll come with us, please!" He looked round and saw the rich man's bulky form coming toward them. Gideon was smiling.

The gross lines of his face and the pin points of his cruel little eyes made the young man feel sick.

"You'll come with us, Judy," he said again in a hoarse whisper, and his mouth set itself into a line of inflexible determination.

Talks To Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON FEALE

Next to playing house, there is nothing that the five or six-year-old enjoys more than playing store.

It should be encouraged, as it is peculiarly adapted to helping the child understand and organize his impressions of many aspects of the world in which he lives.

So educational is this type of play that it is often deliberately used in progressive schools.

Recently I saw a demonstration school in which the 5-year-olds had set up a large wooden packing case for a grocery store. Crude shelves and counters had been arranged of smaller boxes and the shelves were stocked with sample packages and empty receptacles of the things commonly used at home.

There was paper and string and a cashier's desk made by one small box upturned on another larger one. The children had market baskets and took turns being store keeper or shoppers. They had paper money and seemed to have a very good idea of the meaning of pennies and nickels and dimes.

Anyone who has a backyard can let children work out a similar play scheme for the cost simply of the effort required in wheeling an empty packing case from some neighborhood store and saving the containers in which the family groceries come.

The only danger in investigating such play at home lies in the fact that the adults of the family will be unable to resist the temptation to make the game even more educational than it already is.

If you can school yourself to leave the children to their own devices, you will find that playing grocery store is an absorbing and satisfactory occupation.

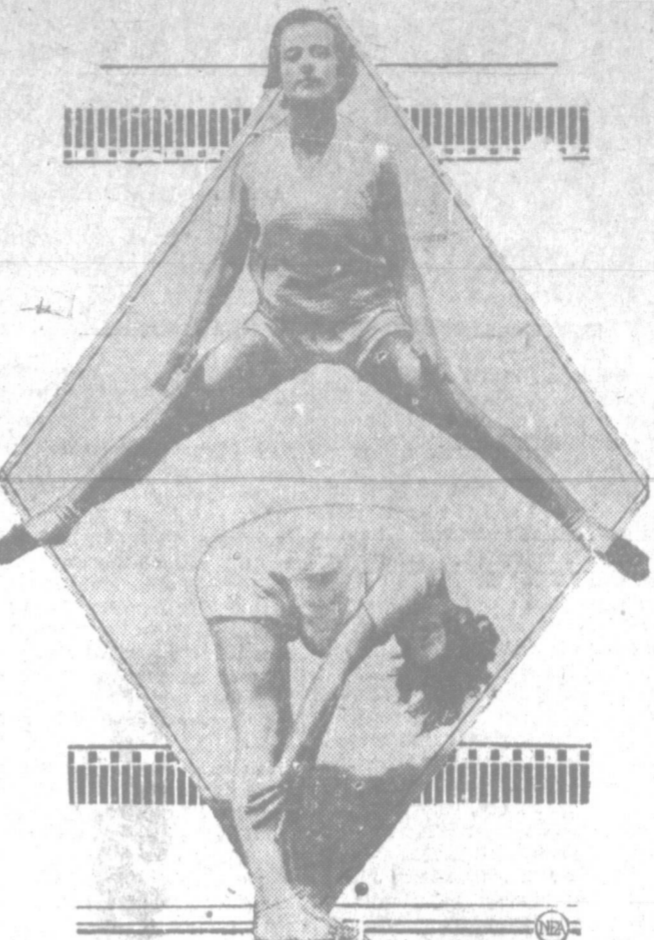

Celebration of the 84th birthday anniversary of one brother and the 82nd anniversary of another Sunday brought to a climax a re-union at which were gathered the three oldest living members of the Saunders family and descendants of four branches of the family.

C. W. Saunders, 84, pioneer citizen of Gray county, who, with Mrs. Saunders, recently moved to Amarillo, and N. W. Saunders, 82 of Leigh, were the celebrants in whose honor the affair of Sunday was held. Present with them was their half brother, H. P. Saunders of Roswell, N. M., who is 72 years old.

Sons, daughters and grand-children of each of the three men, together with their families and the descendants of a half-sister of the re-union, which extended through last week, which were entertained at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hughey and the country home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Saunders.

The picnic Sunday was held at the E. E. Reynolds ranch, 30 miles north of the city. A swimming party and picnic for the younger members of the family was given by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Saunders, Saturday evening, at the Mel Davis ranch near LeFors.

Seven of the ten children of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Saunders were present. The entire family is living, and of the group four daughters and three sons were present, as well as a nephew of Mrs. Saunders, who was reared as a member of the family. The fourth generation of this line was represented by the small children of Mrs. Leonard Goldston of Clarendon, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Saunders.

C. W. Saunders, a Confederate veteran, was one of the organizers of Gray county, having moved to this section of the state nearly 30 years ago. He and Mrs. Saunders were well known among the pioneers of the Panhandle, as were their sons and daughters. Theirs was the largest group at the re-union, comprising one branch of the family.

It included the following: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Saunders and son, Maurfice of Pampa; Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Hughey and daughter, Miss Fern of Pampa; C. W. Saunders, Jr., of Halfway, Ore.; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Saunders of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Crudington and son, Jonathan of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. B. Hudgins and daughter, Miss Orene of Clarendon; Mrs. Mabel Hudgins and sons, Charlie and Ward of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Goldstein and children of Clarendon; Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Ferguson and family of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Hudgins of Amarillo, and Irwin Jackson of Pampa.

Three sons of J. N. Saunders of Pampa and elsewhere. Among these were present as were their families. They were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Saunders and children of Was-kom, La.; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Saunders and children of Fort Worth; and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Saunders and daughter of Marshall.

H. P. Saunders of Roswell had with him the following members of his branch of the family: Mrs. Crosby and children of El Paso, Mrs. H. P. Saunders Jr. and children of Roswell, and Misses Gertrude and Lucille Saunders of Roswell.

The fourth line of the family was represented by a daughter and a son of a deceased sister of the Saunders brothers. They were Mrs. Fannie Paenick of Albuquerque, N. M., and Mr. and Mrs. Will Ed Harris of Ward of Amarillo; Mr. and Mrs. Carrizo, N. M. In addition to the large group of the family assembled for the re-union, there were present at the birthday celebration a number of the friends of the various members of these were the following: Mr. and Mrs. George Walstad and daughter Louise; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dodson, Wm. M. Craven, John V. Andrews, and Ruth Reynolds, all of Pampa; Mr. and Mrs. George Ferguson of Amarillo, Mrs. Cousins and children of Amarillo and Mrs. Ralph Randal of Panhandle.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Starr and sons, George and Max, of Ponca City, Okla., are here visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Hickman and family. Mr. Starr is Mrs. Hickman's brother.

J. G. Teeters of Shamrock was a business visitor here yesterday.

PAMPA'S GUNS WIN OVER DENVER CIGARMEN, 5 TO 3

NINE TO PLAY ENGLEWOOD IN NEXT GAME

When the Empire Oilers of Ponca City eked out a 9 to 3 victory Saturday afternoon over the Pampa Guns in the Denver tournament no one was particularly surprised because the Pampa teams have a habit of losing their first game in tournaments, and yesterday afternoon when the Guns walloped Denver's M. & O. Cigarmen, 5 to 3, they held true to form, fulfilling expectations and surprising nobody.

The Cigarmen were eliminated in the tilt, having been defeated 12 to 3 Saturday afternoon by Sioux Falls, D. Canaries. Tomorrow afternoon, the Guns meet the Englewood, Colo. Merchants in their third game in the tournament. The Merchants yesterday lost to Karl-Keen of Sioux City, Ia. As the losing team will be eliminated from further play, it will be a "crucial" game for the Guns—just as every other game the Guns play will be "crucial."

The undated teams are Piggy Wiggy-MacMarr of Denver, Karl-Keen, Empire Oilers, Sioux Falls Canaries and Stockyards, Sioux City.

At the last half of the ninth, Saturday, the Guns supposedly had the game clinched, as the score was 8 to 5 but the Ponca City team sent over a tidal wave of base hits to win the most thrilling encounter of the tournament.

The Guns allowed "Had" Haddock to work the entire game and saw him pounded for eighteen hits, including a full quota of extra base blows. He pitched fairly well in the pinches until the fatal last inning. Ponca City counted one in the second and two in the third and in the three innings. Pampa scored also had eight men left on the sacks in the second and after scoreless fourth and fifth innings, the Guns stepped out to take the lead in the sixth. Wethered's home run accounted for two runs and Haddock's triple yielded another to give Pampa a 4-3 lead. Robinson, the Empire hurler, blew up entirely in the seventh, and Pampa spanked him for four runs before he gave way to Perry. This gave the Texans an 8 to 3 lead.

Then the Oilers started hitting everything thrown at them, but the remarkable fielding of the Guns stopped almost everything.

The Oilers hit Haddock 18 times, while the Guns got 16 hits. Roberts made 2 errors and Haddock, one. Roberts and Haddock each slugged out a three-base hit, and Gibson, Cox, and Horton each got a two-base hit.

The Oilers made one run in the second, two in the third, one in the seventh, two in the eighth and three in the ninth.

Prairie Oilers Defeat Ramblers

The Prairie Oilers defeated the Gulf Ramblers 7 to 5 in a game Sunday at the Oilers' diamond. It was a fast contest, the game being played in one hour and thirty minutes. Two double plays by the Oilers was a feature of the game. Lineup of the Oilers: O. Michael, second base; J. Scott, third base; Dillman, first base; Barfield, center field; L. Scott, first base; M. Michael right field; Drake, shortstop; McKinley, pitcher; A. Michael, catcher.

Lineup of the Ramblers: Eubanks third base; Bowden, shortstop; Hickey, second base; Mund, catcher; Bullock, pitcher; Seiber, first base; James left field; Boyd, center field; Simmons right field. Batteries, Oilers, McKinley and A. Michael Ramblers, Bullock and Mund.

Strikeouts: by McKinley 8; Bullock 5.

Put-outs: By McKinley 12.

Twelve Die When Steamer Sinks

ERIE, Pa., July 29.—(AP)—Six members of the crew of the steamer Whelan were picked up and brought to port here today, but twelve others drowned when the vessel sank early today.

The Amasa Stone, which rescued the six, was bound from Buffalo to Erie. Captain McNeill of the vessel said his lookout heard men crying for help in the water at about 2.30 this morning. They were picked up and told him they had been afloat for at least two hours.

None of them could say what had happened to the Whelan, which was loaded with limestone and was on its way from Kelley's Island to Tonawanda, N. Y.

It was believed the craft suddenly tipped over, trapping the men before they had a chance to be rescued.

The Erie coast guard crew, with three boats under command of Capt. McCune, left at six o'clock this morning for the scene of the disaster to search for fore of the crew.

Endurance Ships Going Strongly

ST. LOUIS, July 29.—(AP)—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien started the ninth day of their endurance flight at 7.11 a.m., today when they had been up 192 hours. From now on until they land they must remain over Lambert St. Louis field, always within sight of an official observer. Their barograph was for only eight days and to make the flight official they now must be constantly under observation.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, July 29.—(AP)—The big "Red" endurance plane challenging the 554 hour mark of the Hunter brothers, reached its 207th hour in the air at 10 a.m. (E. S. T.) today. The regular refueling contact was made without mishap.

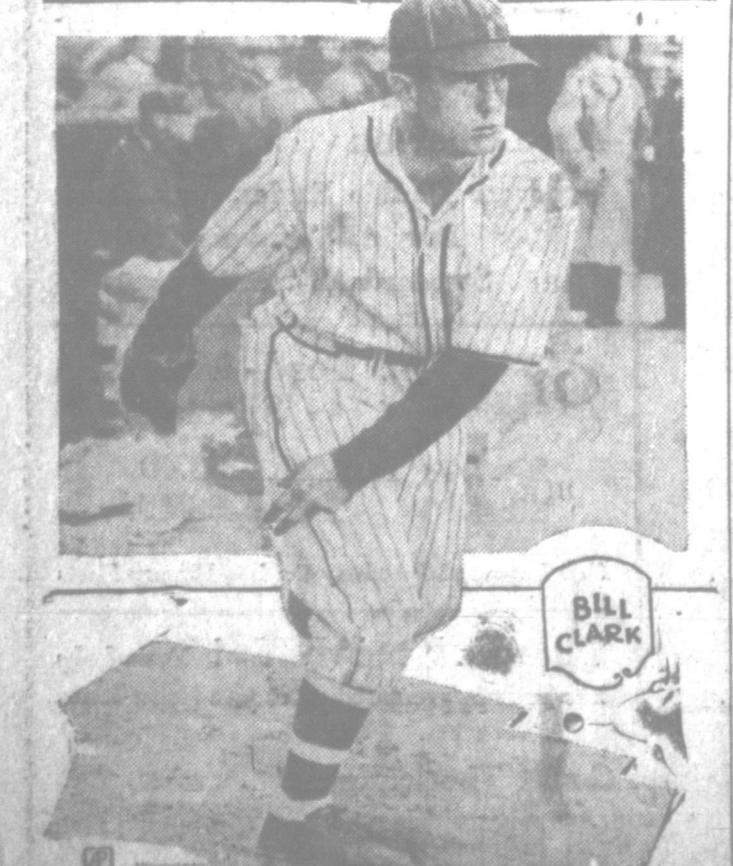

Clarence Hedrick was painfully injured yesterday when a stack of pipe he had finished loading on his truck southeast of Pampa tumbled to the ground. He was struck on the neck by one of the lengths. He was brought to Pampa hospital in a G. C. Malone ambulance. He was able to leave the hospital this afternoon.

"Scrubs" Team Claims Victory

Calling themselves "scrubs" of the Phillips production department, a hastily gathered aggregation of energetic men, decisively trounced the Phillips "66" team 3-0 Sunday afternoon.

The "66" team comprises members of the gasoline department and they consider themselves the cream of the company's crop, a "scrub" reported, "it was up to the production men to show them their cream was a bit sour."

One-Hit Game Aids Clark in Decision

William Watson Clark, Brooklyn hurler, recently turned in the best pitched game of the season, by setting down the Pittsburgh Pirates with one hit.

THURSTON IS GREAT AID TO BROOKLIN NOW

By ORLO ROBERTSON, Associated Press Sports Writer.

second trial, Hollis Thurston, age 31, has strengthened the National League pennant hopes of manager Wilbert Robinson and his Brooklyn Robins.

With Dazzy Vance pitching only mediocre ball and the Robins badly in need of a good right hander, Thurston apparently has relieved "Uncle Robby" of one less worry as the Robins continue to show the way in the hectic senior circuit race. After waiting until June 29 to start his first game, the former White Sox hurler suddenly rounded into sensational form.

Thurston lost that first game to the Cubs but Manager Robinson, master of pitchers, had faith in his big right hand, who went back to the Pacific coast after spending the years from 1923 to 1926 with the White Sox and Washington. July 22 Hollis started against the Cards and held them to three hits and no runs.

Yesterday he opened his third game of the season against the Braves and turned in an even more brilliant exhibition, yielding only two hits and no runs. Just 29 men faced the Brooklyn hurler, Maranville, who walked, being thrown out in a double play. Needless to say the Robins won and the score was 2 to 0.

Just as impressive but in another style was the performance of Bill Terry in the Giants 5 to 4 victory over the Phillies. The big first baseman's activities included two home runs, a pair of singles and a sacrifice fly, which drove in the winning run in the ninth. His hitting gave Jim Chaplin, an Eastern league product, the edge in a pitching duel with Earl Collier. The defeat was the Phillies eighth straight while the game marked Terry's fifteenth contest in which he has hit safely, collecting 28 hits in 60 times at bat.

Although the Robins won, the Cubs gained a half game on their rivals by taking a double header from the Cincinnati Reds. The score of the first game was 3 to 2 and the night cap 5 to 3. The twin Lloyd Harris was a business visitor in Amarillo Monday.

E. A. Ryan of Amarillo was a business visitor here yesterday.

Victories broke the Red's jinx, which has done much to keep the Cubs of the league leadership. Charlie Root outpitched Bennie Frey in the opener while Guy Bush was the hurling star of the closing game.

The Athletics and Yankees renewed their American league argument at Philadelphia with the champions taking a 6 to 5 decision after 12 innings. To Gordon Cochrane goes the credit for driving in the winning run with a single but it was Jimmie Fox with his twenty-ninth home run in the ninth that made it possible for Cochrane to have his chance. The A's loaded the bases in the eleventh with none out but Charles Ruffing went to the rescue of Roy Sherid and retired the side without a score. He was not so fortunate, however, in the twelfth. When Earnshaw's triple and two intentional passes packed the bases for Cochrane who came thru with the deciding hit.

Ted Lyons defeated a temperature of 107 degrees and the Browns to give the White Sox a 6 to 5 victory. The Sox were a run behind going into the ninth but Cissell, Tate and Lyons put together a single and two doubles to win the game.

Cleveland also came from behind in the ninth to defeat Detroit 7 to 6. Elton Hogsett, Tiger hurler, broke the deadlock in the first half of the inning with a home run but the Indians came back with two runs. Porter sending J. Sewell and Jablonowski against the plate with the needed runs with a double.

Spudders IN LEAD BY HALF GAME MARGIN

By GAYLE TALBOT, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer.

Like a fish getting back into its favored element after disagreeable experience on land, the night-prowling Waco Cubs came back under the arcs last night to square their series with the Fort Worth Cats and reduce the Spudders' advantage to half a game. The Praetmen, a second division outfit in the sunlight, have established a record of victories by floodlight that might never be equalled in the Texas league.

Another of their typical ninth-inning rallies skinned the Cats last night, 8 to 7. Piet drove in the tying run with a triple and old George Bischoff put the finishing touches on his ex-mates a few minutes later, when, with the bases full, he blazed a double against the boards. The Cub backdrop previously had connected for two singles and a home run. For a man supposed to have outlived his baseball usefulness, Bischoff is proving a lively corpe.

Russell Brancheau, but recently returned to the active list, did another swell job of relief hurling to make the Waco victory possible. After the Cats had disposed of Stein in the seventh, he went in to hold the visitors scoreless the last two innings and get credit for his third win within a week.

Home runs by Gene Moore and Willingham, each with a man on base, proved decisive in the Dallas Steers' 8 to 6 triumph over San Antonio. The win broke a three-game reverse streak for the Herd. Moore's four-bagger was one of the longest hits ever made in the spacious Alamo Coliseum, clearing the scoreboard in center field. Walt Tauscher went the route for the Steers and was effective in the pinches.

Branch Rickey, president of five parent St. Louis Cards, and some 9,000 assorted Houston fans saw Tony Kauffman, former big league pitcher, make a successful come back on the mound as the Buffs made it two straight from Shreveport, 4 to 1. Kauffman, who lost his effectiveness four of five years ago and has been outfielding ever since, held the Sports to four hits and blanked them for six frames, after which George Payne took over the task and finished up.

The Spudders were idle, having played a doubleheader at Beaumont Sunday.

A mere glimpse of it through the open window—and you recognize it. The Monitor Top of the General Electric Refrigerator—modern in design as this electrical age itself—as distinguished in its appearance as it is in its economical performance.

It is the economical operation of the Monitor Top and its splendid record of dependable service that account for the wide popularity of the General Electric Refrigerator today. You will find the General Electric Refrigerator not only in the homes of the wealthy—you will find it in the homes of those who have to watch their budgets, and who weigh their expenses carefully.

The hermetically sealed mechanism of the Monitor Top is so extraordinarily efficient, so utterly reliable, so economical in operation, that it costs but a few cents a day to run!

Now at low as $505 at the factory... Come in and let us tell you about our easy terms.

LE4's FRESH MEATS

DIRECT TO THE CONSUMER

I have fed a choice lot of young Hereford cattle on grain and cake that I am selling to the local markets. My meat is killed and cooled at the Ward Packing Plant and goes direct to the local markets fresh and tender with all the flavor of good beef. This saves myself and eliminates the middleman... the big packing houses, railroads, etc.

The next time you buy meats ask for some of this superior quality, young home-killed beef. I have sold this beef to the following markets.

Miss Betty Haiduk Of White Deer Weds W. S. Brake

Miss Betty Haiduk of White Deer and Mr. W. S. Brake of Pampa were married at White Deer Saturday evening in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Joseph Wonderly in the presence of a small group of friends.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Haiduk of near White Deer. She attended White Deer high school. The groom is a son of Mrs. E. F. Brake of Pampa and is employed in the production department of the Humble Oil company.

Attendants were Miss Clara Urbanczyk for the bride and Mr. Geo. Dillon for the groom. The witnesses included Miss Mary Haiduk, sister of the bride, and Mr. Sammie Kotara.

After the ceremony the couple left for Colorado on a honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will make their home in Pampa.

Eastern Star Members and Families Attend Picnic Monday Night

A picnic given last evening for members of the Order of the Eastern Star and their families was an enjoyable event. A party of nine families drove to an attractive site, two miles east of LeFors, where a delicious basket supper was served. Games afforded entertainment to the children.

The following attended: Mrs. W. P. Vincent, Mrs. M. Downs of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Downs, Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Gaylor, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. de Cordova and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Rose and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bewell, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Beck and family, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Sunkel and family.

Women Attending Short Course In College Station

Gray county women who are attending the short course at the Texas A. & M. college, July 28 to August 1, are Mrs. L. E. Brock, Alameda, Mrs. S. L. Montgomery, McLean, and Mrs. E. Jones, Grandview. These women were selected by their respective clubs and their expenses were paid by them.

As a reward for submitting the best work of the year to Miss Isora Clark, home demonstration agent of Foster county, who was judge, the following members of the girls' clubs won trips to College Station: Joeline Kiser, Alameda, Jeanne Ward, Eldridge, Fay and Opal Davis, Grandview, Beatrice Johnson, Phillips camp.

Grandview and Alameda clubs paid the expenses of their members who are attending the short courses; Pampa business houses contributed a part of the expenses of the trip; Pampa Hardware $5; J. O. Penny company, $10; and C. O. Dodd produce company, $1.

Miss Myrtle Miller, home demonstration agent of Gray county, who is attending the short course, will go to Greenville at the conclusion of the course, returning to her work here, August 1.

Glen Bosarth of Oklahoma City, a guest for the last three weeks in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Hunkapillar, left this morning for his home. He is Mrs. Hunkapillar's nephew.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dood and son Beverly, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Stewart and daughter Joe Jeanne were visitors in LeFors Sunday.

Azar Class Elects Mrs. R. L. Champion Third Vice-President

Mrs. R. L. Champion yesterday was elected third vice-president of the Azar class of the First Baptist church, succeeding Mrs. R. Earl O'Keefe, resigned. The election was held at a meeting of the executive board, composed of the officers and the teacher of the class, at the home of Mrs. Van McIntosh.

A social half-hour followed the business session, and a beverage was served. The following were present: Mrs. C. E. Lancaster, teacher; Mrs. Champion, Mrs. P. A. Potter, Mrs. H. L. Grove, Mrs. Bonnie Rose, Mrs. B. E. Lantz, and Mrs. Clyde Garner.

Hollywood Sights

BY ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—More or less consequential items from the daily glist.

The return of Adolphe Menjou from France to re-enter Hollywood's talkies gives Ivan Lebedeff a rival for honors as Pickerville's most immaculate man. Both represent the epitome in sartorial swank, and both are, off screen and on, the last word in clothing taste.

The latest story about Lebedeff (I don't vouch for it) is that he fell into the ocean and emerged with his sleek black hair still combed and the crease in his trousers keen as ever!

Menjou, by the way, soon starts work on a new talkie.

SHOULD MENTION ORANGES

"Living in the Sunlight, Loving in the Moonlight" is a new talking song—already adopted by certain California chambers of commerce.

Of interest to barbers: William Powell is to appear sans mustache in his next movie, and Clara Bow has changed her mind—fashionable, no not, she's going to keep her bob.

Cecil DeMille has gone hog-wild again in his pursuit of the spectacular. This time it's to be a masquerade ball on board a zeppelin.

Still it's difficult to imagine much hilarity among guests who ought to know some "life of the party" is going to be ut and shoot tacks into the gas-bag with his slingshot.

TIDDLEDY-WINKS NEXT

New diversions in Hollywood night life: parchesi. Some of the big ones are taking up the game wildly.

Nino Martini, young Italian tenor, speaks little English, but Harry Green, who is not Irish, is eloquent with gestures. Thus did Green spend several minutes inviting Martini to dine and attend the prize-fights with him. To all of which Nino smiled genially, and at the end responded, "Sure, hello!"

One movie company, at least, considers America's hinterlands "educated to good English." The casting director has instructions to hire acting talent, for the usual run of talkies, only when it speaks good English, rather than Americanese.

The microphones are going down to the sea in ships. "The Sea Bat" and "The Sea Beast," talkie version of the John Barrymore silent movie, are completed.

News of Noelette and Community

On Monday evening of last week a most enjoyable outing in the form of a picnic and swimming party at the lake on the Mel Davis ranch was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Donnelly and daughters, Colleen Zahn Grace; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Donnelly and son, Billie Paul; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Donnelly of Bowers City; Mr. and Mrs. George Moore; Mr. and Mrs. George Hooker and baby, Miss Donna Hooker, George Hooker, Jr., and Kenneth Hooker.

Mr. and Mrs. Lomnie Estes and children have returned from a short visit to Lamesa.

Mrs. Henry Shelton has returned from Corsicana where she visited relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Curry entertained with a six o'clock dinner on Friday evening at their home on the Texas company lease, honoring Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Van Pelt of Pampa.

On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Doughty, accompanied by Mrs. G. G. Groves and daughter, Ona Lee, motored to Moore county for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis High and children will leave Thursday for a two-week vacation to be spent in points in Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Kansas.

Mrs. Dolly Cornwall has returned home from the Berger hospital which she entered last week after suffering a relapse following a major operation. She is now improving nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Batchler have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hughes of Shamrock, W. B. Stansell of Erick, Okla., who is the father of Mrs. Batchler. Mr. Stansell will also visit his son, J. R. Stansell, while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter St. Clair, who resides on the Roger McConnell farm, have an infant son, who was born last Friday. The child weighed nine pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Tunnell have returned from a vacation trip to Oklahoma and Louisiana points. They were accompanied home by Grady Tunnell, nephew of Mr. Tunnell.

Yodeling Cowboy Heard at Sadler's

Roy Faulkner, the "Yodeling Cowboy," was the feature of the program of Harley Sadler's company, which opened here last night at their tent theatre located on the lot across from the First Methodist church.

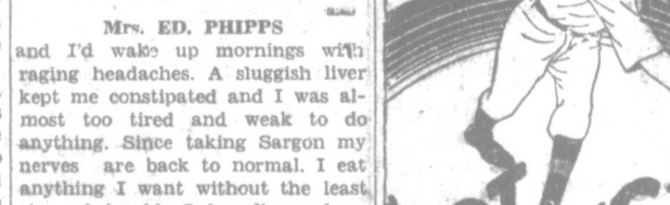

Faulkner was formerly a station KFKB artist, and is a new member of the Harley Sadler company. His guitar playing and singing were applauded by the appreciative audience. That he is a star in his line was the opinion of those who heard him.

"Skidding" was the title of the play given last night. Tonight's play will be "The Hoodlum," advertised as a better play than the "Braf."

Tickets may be secured from Morris Drug store.

Says Nerves Were 'On Edge' All Time

"For over a year my nerves were on edge all the time. The lightest foods nearly always disagreed with me. I never had a good night's sleep

Mrs. ED. PHIPPS and I'd wake up mornings with raging headaches. A sluggish liver kept me constipated and I was almost too tired and weak to do anything. Since taking Sargon my nerves are back to normal. I eat anything I want without the least stomach trouble, I sleep fine and am full of new energy. ## By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON. — "Uncle Joe" Cannon, after a lapse of many years, has moved down from an obscure place in the office building that houses the branch of congress over which he presided so long, to the most conspicuous spot in the structure.

"Uncle Joe" may be seen in the lobby of the house office building—against a column in that vast marble enclosure. No one who enters there can help but pause and admire the fine likeness of that beloved old "car" of the house in days gone by.

Albert Jaegers made this marble portrait of "Uncle Joe" when members of the house moved in the office building for the first time. "Uncle Joe's" interest in having the huge structure started and his zeal in pushing it to completion prompted the house to order his bust put there.

The bust was unveiled in a little niche at the head of the stairway on the third floor leading to the caucus room. There it has remained since virtually unnoticed.

Efforts to illuminate the stairway that the bust might be seen to a better advantage proved in vain. It was finally decided to remove it to the light-flooded lobby.

Removal of "Uncle Joe" from the third floor to the lobby had much the same effect as if a new bust had been unveiled there. Congressmen and visitors who, time and again, had passed the niche on the stairway without recognizing the bust began to bombard the property custodian's office with queries.

Carved from marble, several shades darker than the whiteness of the lobby, and mounted on a dark oaken pedestal "Uncle Joe" presents a striking picture there with his back to a massive column.

His appearance "downstairs" has also caused a revival of "Cannon-olia" among those who knew him in the days that he was speaker of the house. There were probably more stories told by and about "Uncle Joe" while he was in Washington than any other public official. The best of these are being heard again.

Then pausing for effect, he added slowly: "I'll play you a game of dominoes and bet two-bits I lick you."

At another time "Uncle Joe" took a prominent member of the house for "a ride" at poker. The next morning the congressman who lost was met on the hill by a colleague.

"Uncle Joe" is looking for you," he said. "Have you seen him?" "Have I seen him," was the reply. "—yes—last night with three kings against his three aces."

Mrs. Paul Link of El Paso, formerly of Pampa, is visiting relatives and friends in the city and transacting business.

Looked of the time "Uncle Joe" was at one of the clubs in Washington, when a group of "freshman" congressmen started a discussion on bolshevism. Words of wisdom were falling fast from the lips of the novices.

Finally, one turned to Cannon, who up to this time, had taken no part in the conversation, and asked for an expression.

Putting on his most serious look, the former speaker turned to his inquisitor: "Young man, I'll tell you what I'll do."

There is the one, for example, of the clubs in Washington, when a group of "freshman" congressmen started a discussion on bolshevism. Words of wisdom were falling fast from the lips of the novices.

the electric chair," the elder Vaughan said. It was suggested by a Ranger to whom they were talking that they ask permission of the governor to witness the execution. "Sure, the governor will let you see him buried," the Ranger said.

Crowd Held Back The law gives Washington two days to file a motion for a new trial, but he waived this right, and there was nothing left for the judge but to pronounce sentence. When the court had finished reading the sentence, the spectators were commanded to remain in their seats and make no sounds until they heard the purr in the street of the Rangers' automobile which brought the negro back to the Pampa jail.

The jury was out 10 minutes. The verdict followed 35 minutes of arguments, 10 of which were used by Judge E. F. Ritchey of Miami, who was appointed to defend the negro. "There is no question about the negro's guilt. His plea of guilty settled that," Judge Ritchey said. The attorney told the jury to cast aside the purported confession of the negro if they believed it was not voluntarily made. In closing, he admonished the jury to forget that the defendant was a negro. Clayton Heare, who assisted C. G. Englewood in prosecuting, shouted that there was no need for argument, no need for words. "You ought to walk out of here like men and give him death, and don't be long about it. That negro ought to walk out of this courtroom a free man, or sentenced to death," he declared.

The most sensational part of the testimony was the confession of the negro which was made in the county attorney's office at Childress in the presence of County Attorney L. E. Cibbie, District Attorney Mahan and Sheriff Claude McKinney, all of Collingsworth county, Sheriff Ed Smith of Hollis, Okla., and the county attorney of Childress county.

Confession Is Read The negro confessed that he was 21 years old and that he had lived on a farm near the Vaughans since Sept. 1929. He said he had known Mrs. Vaughan by sight for a year. On the morning of the crime he rode horseback to the Vaughan farm which is a mile off the main road. He went into the house and seized her. They "scuffled out of the house," he said. "She picked up a stick and hit me with it. There is still a bruise on my shoulder. She kept telling me to stop that Henry was coming. She scratched me on the nose and face. I then picked up a piece of pipe lying by the cistern and struck her over the head with it. She fell down but got up and ran to the windmill near which I caught her. I struck her over the head again with the pipe."

The negro in his confession declared that he criminally attacked her near the windmill. "I killed her," he declared, "so she couldn't tell anybody it was me who did it." He confessed to Sheriff McKinney that he meant to kill the three-year old daughter of the woman, but she, obeying pleas of her mother to "get Henry", fled to the cotton field where the latter was working. The negro said that after he killed Mrs. Vaughan, he glanced over the cotton field and saw George Vaughan, 12-year-old brother of Henry coming to the house. "I would have killed him, too, if I thought I could have caught him."

Body Is Discovered George in the witness chair, said that he went to the house about 10 o'clock after some water. He said Mrs. Vaughan was feebly waving one hand when he found her lying face down. "I went into the house and got a shot gun and ran around the house looking for the person who did it," he said, "but when I could not find him, jumped into the car and went after Henry."

When Hal Vaughan, Henry's father arrived at the place, he tracked the horse Washington was riding from the Vaughan residence to the negro's house. Mr. Vaughan said he grew up with Comanche Indians and is an expert at tracking. The horse Washington in his left hooves, and his tracks were easy to follow, Mr. Vaughan said. Sheriff McKinney on the stand displayed to the jury the shirt, torn to shreds by the frantic woman, which the negro said he found in the negro's house. It was spotted with blood. M. K. Willingham, who saw the negro before the crime was committed, identified the shirt. The State introduced every bit of evidence to prove that Washington was the right negro. There was no doubt in the minds of Judge Ritchey and the spectators that the officers had arrested the right man. The confession was signed by Washington.

Sheriff McKinney Speaks Sheriff McKinney said he arrested the negro about 12 o'clock and took him to Hollis, Okla. There he turned him over to his good friend, Sheriff Ed Smith, who that night took the black to Childress where the confession was made. On Saturday midnight, Sheriff Smith took the negro back to Hollis, kept him there a day then took him to Granite, Okla., where he was kept until Sheriff McKinney brought him alone to the Pampa jail.

Dr. J. W. Gooch of a Shamrock hospital said that the woman's head had been beaten to a pulp. Henry Vaughan testified that he and his wife had been married five years. He said she weighed 98 pounds. Most of the jurors were farmers and ranchers. W. L. Brown was foreman. Half of them had lived in Roberts county where no negroes have ever lived.

Miami's citizenry refused to take the trial seriously. A swimming pool nearby was crowded all day. The people on the streets did not appear to be interested in the case. The courtroom and courthouse lobbies were crowded with people from Wheeler and Collingsworth counties. Roberts county claims the highest type of citizenship in Texas. Perhaps the indifference of the Roberts county citizens to the case cooled the ardour and passion of the visitors. Although the Rangers searched and double searched all day, there was never a hint of a mob action. Hal Vaughan claimed he was searched 57 times. "Every time I turn around they search me," he said. "Everywhere one looked one saw an officer with a gun. Machine guns never left the hands of the Rangers who kept the negro surrounded all day."

Willis Infant Dies on Monday

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. El Willis died in a Mariow, Okla., hospital yesterday morning, one hour after he suffered injuries in a head-on collision between two automobiles on a highway near that city. The child's skull was badly crushed. He was one month old. Mrs. Willis suffered painful bruises. Mr. and Mrs. Willis were enroute to visit Mrs. Willis' parents at Duncan, Okla.

Funeral services were held this morning at 10 o'clock at Wichita Falls. T. S. Dysart, Amarillo, sales manager for the McGarity Motor company, was a business visitor here Monday.

Temple Houston Had Horror of Being Mistaken for Kansan. Says J. S. Wynne In Relating Anecdote

Choose your own moral but the point of an incident told by J. S. Wynne, concerning Temple Houston, youngest and most famous son of Sam Houston, seems to be, "It's better to freeze stiff than to be taken for a Kansan."

Mr. Wynne recalled the happening while discussing "The Raven," a life story of Sam Houston by Marquis James, which the author said he was inspired to write when he, as a boy at Woodward, Okla., used to see Temple Houston, an eloquent Panhandle lawyer, riding across the Prairie, wearing high-heeled boots, his long hair flowing in the wind, to attend court. The book is the Pulitzer prize biography for 1930.

It was mid-winter at Panhandle in 1894 and court had just ended. Mr. Houston was just preparing to recover from a spree. That morning, Mr. Wynne had to go to Mobeetie on business. Mobeetie was the home of Temple Houston, and Mr. Wynne decided he'd take the eloquent barrister with him. They rode the construction train to Miami.

There they hired a curtainless rig, the only available buggy in the town and started for Mobeetie. Mr. Wynne said he thought it was the coldest day he had ever experienced. In addition, one of the ponies was poor and shaky. It looked as if somebody was going to freeze but the outfit was all the livelier stable man had to offer. Besides all that, Mr. Houston was wearing a huge hat and the wind was blowing furiously and he had to hold it on. My it was cold!

About halfway to Mobeetie, Houston, with a dramatic gesture, removed his hat, held it in his hand and soliloquized in this fashion: "shall I keep it or throw it away, that is the question. If I keep it, I'll likely freeze. If I throw it away I'll have to buy me a cap, and if I wear a cap people will accuse me of being from Kansas!" That seemed to settle it, for he placed the hat back on his head. Mr. Wynne found the incident sufficiently amusing and he laughed so much that he stayed warm the rest of the journey.

Mr. Houston was a frequent guest in the Wynne home. "He was the most eloquent man I ever heard in my life," Mrs. Wynne said. "Words flowed from him without effort. He never hunted for the right word—it came to him without any effort on the part of the man. His voice was different, too. He was as eloquent in the living room, kitchen as in the courtroom."

When Mrs. Wynne read Edna Ferber's latest novel, "Cimarron," not so long ago, she noticed a strong similarity between an address which the hero of the book makes at the trial of a woman, and a speech made by Temple Houston in Oklahoma years ago. "I recognized the speech as soon as I came across it in the book," Mrs. Wynne said. "So just to make certain I hunted up a scrap book in which I have kept Houston's address and compared the two speeches. Just about six words were changed."

Legion Band to Lead Parades at Austin Meeting

Plans are being made by members of the Pampa Legion band for their trip to Austin, where as the official band of the eighteenth district, they will lead the parades at the American Legion state convention, September 1-2-3.

Thirty members of the band are expected to make the trip. Leaders of the Wellington and Clarendon bands, and Alex Bradford, McCamery, who was drum major in the Small rally parade held in Pampa, are expected to accompany the band to Austin, according to C. L. Stine, business manager.

The band meets for rehearsal each Monday and Friday night at the new location of the Legion hut. Attendance at rehearsals is being stressed by officers of the band, who state that those members who expect to make the trip to Austin, must be present at every rehearsal.

New equipment has been ordered, including fifteen march books. Music books to the value of $30, a set of bells and a set of cymbals, have been received by the organization. One member of the band has just purchased a Holton BB bass horn, costing $450. New music numbers being ordered include, "Goin' Home," "Eyes of Texas," "Comic Tattler," and "Legionnaire March." Among numbers practised last night were: "National Emblem," a march, "Panorama," an overture, and "Khaki Bill," a march. Another project of the band is their plan to string lights in front of the Legion hut and give concerts there during the summer.

Additions Made To Baptist Church

"I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life" was the text of a searching sermon by Congressman-Evangelist Upshaw at the high school gymnasium Monday night, followed by two additions to the Central Baptist church, one by letter and one for baptism. The crowd was large, quite a number driving in for many miles from other towns. A very entertaining feature of the program was the singing of the Macedonia negro church choir. They will sing again tonight.

The meeting for school boys and girls was well attended, this morning and much interest was manifested. One united with the church by letter and one by confession of faith.

British Ship Reports Progress Over Atlantic

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 29. (AP)—Hugging the west coast of Scotland in order to avoid adverse winds, the British dirigible R-100 at noon today was making progress toward the Hebrides on her journey from Cardington to Montreal.

The airship held a northeasterly course and was reported last off Over Sax Island, Argyllshire, Scotland. The position indicated that the ship, which left her mooring mask at 3:45 a. m., Greenwich time, was making every effort to shape a favorable western course out to sea.

LONDON, July 29. (AP)—A message received from the dirigible R-

100 at 4:00 p. m., Greenwich time (11 a. m. E. S. T.) read as follows: "Everything OK fine weather. Rather cold." The position of the air ship was given as 54.40 North latitude and 11.30 west longitude. From this position it was apparent the airship was swinging in a southwesterly direction and was taking a much more direct route than at first planned when her itinerary called for her skirting Cape Farewell on the southern tip of Greenland.

Riley Strickland, Amarillo attorney, was in Pampa Monday. House guests this week of Mrs. W. H. Peters are her daughter, Mrs. Bill Braymer of Hamlin and her sister, Mrs. W. J. Baile of Stamford.

Bernard Johnson, Rising Star, was in Pampa yesterday.

N. W. Saunders, Waskom, was a visitor in Pampa Monday.

Every Little Cell In Your System Says Thanks For Nourishment

You've seen "flowers in the rain, lift up their heads again". Well! that's how it is with hungry little cells when you answer their cry for food. At first the call is a whisper; you're just a little restless, or languid and tired. This happens at mid-meal hours; around 10-2 & 4 o'clock. Go then. Don't wait. Drink a bite to eat and see how much better you'll feel.

A little nourishment at such a time tides you over 'til another meal; puts an edge on your brain and body; picks you up and puts you "on your toes." Try it... at regular hours... for just one week. No kidding! It works. Not a thing in it can harm you. It's one good habit to get. It won't get you.
