Vault at State Bank at Chester is Burned Open at Night—$1,000 Taken

CHESTER, Dec. 30. (P)—Thurs during last night burned the back of the vault in the Chester State bank and escaped with an amount of money not immediately determined.

G. C. Enloe, cashier, said he had not finished checking records but he estimated the loss would be around $1,000.

Sheriff F. G. Ogden, of Woodville, who was investigating, believed there were two robbers. John Wallace, clerk in a nearby store, said that when he came to work he saw two men leave from the direction of the bank and enter a large automobile parked behind the railway depot. They went away in the direction of Houston, Wallace said.

The bandits apparently leisurely opened the safe. The back was carefully burned away with an acetylene torch. Cashier Enloe said, and after the safe was opened it was baited so thoroughly that Enloe had not been able to reach all his records.

Word of the robbery was spread to surrounding towns, and roads were being watched for two men in a large automobile.

Enloe said he would make no effort to ascertain the exact loss until the arrival of an insurance company official.

DUNDEE, Dec. 30. (P)—Robbers who forced their way into the First State bank at Dundee, Archer county Monday night escaped with $200 notes and an undetermined amount of lost taken from the safety deposit boxes. The vault was torn open but the thieves apparently made no effort to open the safe, where the bank funds were kept.

Entrance to the building was gained by prying open the front door of the building.

Four Legislators Are Coming to City Soon

OIL PROBLEM STUDY TO BE MADE IN AREA

Warwick, Bryant and Johnson Answer Invitation

Assurance that at least four Panhandle state legislators will be here Friday to study conditions in the oil industry has been received by George W. Briggs, manager of the B. C. D. Others are expected to be heard from in the next two days.

The representatives who stated they would accept the B. C. D.'s invitation are Sam Bryant of Memphis, A. C. Johnson of Dalhart and Clyde Warwick of Canyon. Sen. Clint C. Small of Wellington wrote Mr. Briggs that he would be able to be here unless something unforeseen compelled him to be elsewhere.

The primary purpose in bringing the legislators to the Gray county oil fields is to acquaint them with conditions and problems surrounding the production of oil and gas. The representatives and senators believe that by obtaining first-hand information in the fields, by interviewing producers, refiners, operators, they will be more capable of dealing with proposed laws affecting the oil industry when they are introduced into the legislature. It is believed that a number of tax measures on petroleum products will be proposed.

J. M. McDonald has prepared statistics regarding the production of oil and gas, and these will be submitted to the visitors.

The B. C. D. will be host to the legislators at a banquet, and will accompany them on a tour thru the oil fields.

Hope to Hasten Federal Building

By sending two local citizens to Washington to urge immediate construction of the new post office and federal building in Pampa, the Pampa B. C. D. and Postmaster W. A. Crawford hope to duplicate the success of other towns in this section which have obtained buildings in a similar manner. Memphis citizens went to Washington and began negotiations which resulted in plans to build immediately.

J. S. Wynne and E. G. Barrett, long-time residents of Pampa are considering laying Pampa's case before Texas representatives and senators whose support Mr. Wynne and Mr. Barrett expects to enlist in Senator McKellar of Tennessee.

The first step toward erection of the new building will be the purchase of a lot and the drafting of plans. If Mr. Barrett and Mr. Wynne decide to make the trip they urge that those two details be begun immediately.

They will take with them a sheet of statistics and reasons stating why Pampa needs the post office as soon as it can be built.

Last spring congress appropriated a lump sum for the construction of federal buildings throughout the nation. Pampa's share was set at $110,000 but this amount has not been appropriated for the specific purpose of erecting the post office.

Max Schmeling Must Take Ring With Sharkey
NEW YORK, Dec. 30. (P)—The New York state athletic commission today announced that Joe Jacob, new champion of Max Schmeling, one week ago, was to be the commission's ultimatum that Schmeling defend his heavyweight boxing title against Jack Sharkey here in June.

The commission's edict forestalled any hopes of Young Stripling meeting Sharkey, probably in Miami this winter, and then figure in the championship picture with the German heavyweight next year, it was won.

Jacobs was accepted as spokesman for Schmeling after he showed a five-year industrial contract with the German, who won the heavyweight title on four last summer. Jacobs told the commission he would get in touch with Schmeling by transatlantic telephone and give his answer next Tuesday.

Fire Destroys House Here

Interior Is Swept When Blaze Starts Around Gas Stove

Fire gutted the three-room residence of German Ingle in the Tally addition about 8:30 o'clock this morning, inflicting damages estimated at about $900. The roof was saved but the interior of the three-room house was swept by the flames.

The house was located about four blocks west of Ward's packing house, beyond which no water can be obtained for fighting fires. The fire department was compelled to use chemicals in extinguishing the blaze. Firemen took out both trucks and the "Lizee."

It was Fire Chief Alex Schneider's opinion that the fire started from a defective gas hose. Mr. Ingle reported that he arose about 7:30 o'clock, lighted the gas cook stove and went back to bed. A little while later the house was full of flames. It is believed that the rubber hose leading from the jet to the stove emitted some gas through holes.

Shortly after the fire, a defect developed in the switch box at the fire station, and the siren was sounded several times while it was being repaired.

Touching Case of Charity Need Cited by Worker

The peculiarly personal nature of charity work almost demands that one adhere to the old proverb, "Don't let your right hand know what your left hand is doing," but Mrs. W. H. Davis, manager of the Welfare Board, without announcing any names, tells of a case which she feels merits publication.

It has to do with a 12-year-old boy in a poverty-stricken family and a long-time and prominent citizen of Gray county. Mrs. Davis' attention was called to the boy last week-end. Both of his ears were abscessed. A doctor said that it would be necessary to remove his tonsils before the pain would be relieved. But there was no money to pay for the operation or for the hospital bill. The boy was ill in the garage where he, his father and five brothers and sisters live. There was only one bed.

Mrs. Davis told the citizen about the case. She made no appeal for funds; never even thought about it. But he instructed her to take the boy to the hospital and have the operation performed. This morning his wife told Mrs. Davis that she would care for the boy in her own home until he recovered from the operation.

—AND A SMILE
NEW YORK (P)—For real physical exercise, if you like it, passing the pipe organ is recommended by Dr. James E. Rogers, specialist in health education for the department of the interior. Baseball, he told college health supervisors, is nineteenth century or staid sport; a vigorous exercise, his big muscles, fat more in the same time with 100 per cent mental satisfaction.

One Argument That Hubby Lost

Eighty W. Hartman, Seattle, Wash., attorney, was successful in winning a divorce for his client, but he failed when he tried to convince his wife that she should remain on the ground. Mrs. Hartman won the argument and she is shown above after a flight during her course of instruction for a pilot's license which she hopes to win.

LAW TO STOP GIVING OF WORTHLESS CHECKS NEEDED

Of all the legislation likely to be considered at the coming legislative session, the subject most interesting to local merchants is that of a vitally needed "hot check" law, according to Carson Loftus, head of the Pampa Business Men's association.

More complaints are made to the association on this ground than any other, and there now is neither an efficient collection method nor an adequate state law governing the subject. The "bouncing" check is not only a great annoyance to merchants, but a substantial item of loss as well.

"It's not what it used to be," was the remark of a prominent Pampa merchant this morning. "We used to sell our merchandise and either get the cash or get a check that was the same as cash, but now when a fellow hands us a check we don't know whether to let him have the merchandise or not."

"Often fellows bring their checks in and we cash them, and the next morning a bank messenger tote them back to us with a little note 'insufficient funds'."

No, it's not what it used to be. We used to know that a man's signature meant cash, but now it often means that we merchants are the goats."

Prince Too Tired To Attend Dance

KING'S LYNN, Eng., Dec. 30. (P) Sickness and soreness arising from his strenuous day horseback Saturday were supposed today to account for the unexplained absence last night of the Prince of Wales from the annual ball of the West Norfolk hunt which he promised to attend.

More than 300 guests awaited arrival of the British heir, but at the last moment learned with disappointment that he was unable to be present, although no reason was assigned. His brother, the Duke of Gloucester, motored from Sandringham to take his place.

The prince resumed his hunting last week after a long abstinence and seems not yet to have overcome the tendency to muscle soreness which the unwonted cross-country riding produced.

He was four hours in the saddle following the hounds and when he dismounted, bespattered with mud, he walked without his usual springing step. He laughed and chatted in a lively manner with his friends, however, and had obviously enjoyed the day's sport.

It was assumed that he felt too stiff last night to enjoy the dance and preferred an easy chair.

NEW YEAR'S WISHES GIVEN

By The Associated Press
The wish for prosperity taxes precedent among leaders of American thought and activity and the aspirations of specialists dovetail into the program.

The question: "What is your greatest hope for 1931?"
The answers:
Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war — That we Americans may be able to find some way to adjust ourselves to the industrial civilization of which we are a part, which would prevent the tragedy of recurring depressions.

Captain Frank Hawks, speed flier — I'd like to see all air transport and mail schedules speeded up to at least 150 miles an hour cruising speed.

Will H. Hays, president of the motion picture producers and distributors — That the motion picture screen in 1931, through its mission of entertainment and education to the millions, may speed renewed confidence in the great future of our country and the prosperity which must reward genuine achievement.

Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion — That solutions will be found for the economic and political problems confronting the world from the shores of the Adriatic through the Balkans to Germany, France and England.

Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago — Two projects I hope will materialize in 1931. In the realm of international affairs I hope the year will bring more successful disarmament conference than has yet been held; and I hope the present depression will result in a satisfactory system of unemployment insurance.

H. L. Mencken, editor and critic — That it will see a definite break in the policy-ecclesiastical tyranny that has oppressed and disgraced the United States since the war, and that the American people will demand once more the strict observance of the bill of rights.

Ben B. Lindsey, former Denver juvenile court judge — I hope for the success of the campaign to abolish the divorce courts and substitute for them a commission of experts, two from the medical and one from the legal profession, to hear all domestic discords and, after an effort of reconciliation has failed, to grant an honest divorce by mutual consent.

Dr. S. Parks Cadman, preacher — My hope for the year is not founded upon unaided humanity. Man occupies a friendly universe. Hence the stream tendence toward intellectual enlightenment. So far as man is concerned the unseen forces of the cosmos dismiss the ape and predict the angel.

Huey P. Long, senator-elect from Louisiana — That a way may be found to separate Wall street from main street. Then, I believe, we will have a ready solution for economic depression.

Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce — That American business men will continue their efforts to eliminate waste in marketing at home and extend our markets abroad.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor — That which I most ardently desire is organization of wage earners into unions competent to keep progress for workers in line with social progress.

Alexander Legge, chairman of the Federal Farm board — That prices of farm products will increase. I believe this can be hastened by the farmers themselves if more of them will organize to act collectively in marketing and in adjusting the quantity and quality of their production more nearly to normal potential coflamer requirement.

YOUTH MAY HAVE SLAIN 2 SOONER GIRLS

Relatives Tell How Girl Had Fear of Death

NEWRIEK, Okla., Dec. 26. (P) Blood on his shoes caused arrest today of Clint Lopez, 20, a Mexican, for investigation in connection with the highway slaying of Jessie and Zetta Griffith, of Blackwell, Sunday.

Lopez and two other hitchhikers were arrested near Outhrie and brought to the Kay county jail here for investigation.

Officers said two of the men answered the description of men reported to have been seen in the school teachers' car near the place where it was abandoned, about 20 miles south of Tonkawa.

BLACKWELL, Okla., Dec. 30. (P) The story of a frightened young school teacher in a college town, fearful for weeks before she was slain with her older sister on an Oklahoma highway early Sunday, entered the Griffith murder case today.

Norman, Okla., acquaintances told the story of Jessie Griffith's dread to Oklahoma City police today while officers here followed analysis leads in an effort to apprehend the killer of Jessie, 26, and her older sister, Zetta, 35, college instructor.

Bodies of both girls, bullet-pierced, were found near U. S. Highway No. 77 south of Tonkawa, Okla., a few hours after they had driven away from the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Griffith, here, where they spent Christmas. The bodies apparently had been tossed from their car which later was abandoned 20 miles away.

Jessie Griffith had been criminally attacked.

Girl Was Afraid
While Charles Becker, Oklahoma City police chief, was examining letters and personal effects of the younger sister obtained at Norman, where she was public schools music supervisor, County Attorney Bryan Potter sought "a Missouri convict" in Kansas City, Wichita, Kans., and Chicago.

Potter's assertion that the slayer was a pervert, probably intoxicated, was not shared by the friends of Jessie Griffith at Norman, however.

They said she refused to go to Blackwell during Thanksgiving for fear "something might happen."

Instead she induced a University of Oklahoma friend to accompany her to Warner, Okla., where Zetta was employed as home economics department head at the Oklahoma State School of Agriculture.

She told intimate acquaintances, (See SUSPECT, Page 6)

Officer Shot From Ambush

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Dec. 30. (P) — John Brown, veteran peace officer, was found shot to death here last night, one hand clutching a pistol which he did not have a chance to use against an assailant who surprised him in a garage at the rear of his home.

Brown, a former constable, apparently had stepped from his motor car to meet three shots in quick succession. The body was discovered by Allen Bartman, 18, who lived above the garage.

The officer had been connected with law enforcement activities in northwest Missouri more than 20 years.

House to House Survey Shows News and Post Dominant Here

The Pampa News and Post have passed this month the largest circulation revenue figure in the history of the two papers, showing more convincingly than ever, the dominant preference among readers of the News and Post.

A careful check of the homes in Pampa this month by Lewis Sanders of the circulation department has shown that the News and Post are preferred more than two to one over all other daily papers delivered in Pampa. A substantial increase in the News and Post circulation in the oil fields, Miami, White Deer, LeFors and the entire Pampa trade territory is further evidence that the public is glad to pay for Pampa's leading dailies.

Thirty-eight carrier boys and seven men are employed to care for the distribution of the News and Post in Pampa and the trade territory. They operate regular oil field motor truck routes for the News and Post. In addition to carrier delivery, hundreds of both the News and Post are sent twice each day through the mails.

The increased circulation revenue for December is most remarkable in the face of reduced rates for both papers. It made necessary the distribution of many more papers than ever before to reach the new high mark.

Pampa Man Is Commended For His Interest in Trees

Most people believe that cedars were meant for rough places and amid the rocks and mountains where they chiefly abound. But it is not so. T. D. Hobart, pioneer resident, has about his residence in West Pampa and at his ranches, some very nice cedars and other trees which he planted and tended with great care.

TREES AT PAMPA

Pampa is not in the tree country. The geographies will tell you that—even the geographies after the West Texas chamber of commerce gets through revising them. Yet it is perfectly possible to grow timber at Pampa, for T. D. Hobart has the timber to show for it, and he planted every stick of it himself.

It is true that Mr. Hobart began his planting 20 years ago, but now he gets new growth to replace his annual takings for his own use. Instead of buying fence posts, Mr. Hobart grows them. In a land where petroleum products and coal are the customary fuel, Mr. Hobart has cordwood for no greater cost than the labor of cutting it.

Taking advantage of his experience with trees, this West Texan has beautified the grounds about his house. More than that, perhaps, and in all probability without intending it Mr. Hobart has set up a monument that will outlive him for generations.

If West Texas can do this with profit, how much the more does East Texas owe it to its own best interests to restore forest lands to forestry. This country still cuts and burns more timber than it grows. It still wastes two-thirds of every tree that it brings to the ground. It still has practically everything to learn about tree "farms," where timber is taken out continuously, without depletion or wanton destruction.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30. (NEA).—The organized dries, who gathered here in important national meetings are trying to find a leader behind whom they can all rally in the bitter struggle for the preservation of prohibition.

Apparently agreed as to the impossibility of producing such a leader from among professional dries, they now seek a business man or lawyer of great prestige to assume unified command of the cause. With such a man, most of them believe, they can raise millions of dollars, recruit the business men of the country and put on a terrific dry campaign which will result in an utter rout of the wets in the elections of 1932.

Little of this leaked out from the secret sessions, but it represented common agreement. The dry leaders admitted among themselves that there was jealousy and bickering among them, but they were unanimous in asserting that dissension must be ended, that the present prohibition laws must be retained without modification and that the dry movement must gather under a single directing head to repulse the groundgaining wets.

The Committee of Sixteen or "National Board" of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment will decide whether the new unified dry command should consist of one man or a small general staff which would have dictatorial powers. It may also formulate a statement of policy to be subscribed to by each of the 38 organizations in the conference.

The fact was more than ever obvious that the dry movement had produced no man who could seize and exercise leadership as Wayne B. Wheeler did. Wheeler has had no successor, nor even any imitator. The reason Mrs. Ella Booie of the W. C. T. U. was selected to head the board of strategy was, not that Mrs. Booie had more obvious qualities for leadership than many others, but because she was a logical compromise for the various factions.

Vastions dry leaders desired that post, just as they would like to have the supreme command which is likely to be created, but there is too much diversified opposition to each individual.

Elevation of an Anti-Saloon league man was impossible because so many organizations resent any attempt of the league to assert its dominance. Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals is widely disliked among other dries, especially since his proposal for a national prohibition referendum, which was unapprisingly voted down.

Many of the smaller dry organizations are jealous of the larger ones. Even the league is split, divided into an organization captained by General Superintendent F. Scott McBride and another headed by Ernest H. Cherrington.

Hence, with reluctance and no great enthusiasm, the dry leaders seemed to agree among themselves that it would be wise to go outside the organized movement for a commander-in-chief. There were some who said that Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt would have been an ideal leader had she not tied herself up with grape concentrates. Mabel, incidentally, appeared before the dries and convinced them by violent assertion of her personal sincerity and dryness.

The dries say they still disapprove of grape concentrates for wine-making, but won't fight them unless they become a menace to prohibition, in which case the dries would seek a five-line addition to Section 29 of the Volstead Act which would destroy the new industry.

Mabel preserved her personal status with the dries because she has always been their fair-haired child and many felt that to repudiate her now would be both unpleasant and unwise.

Frankston Has Expensive Blaze

FRANKSTON, Dec. 30. (AP)—Fire early today destroyed the two-story brick building owned by the J. M. Calkins estate, which housed several business establishments and professional offices. The loss was estimated at $46,700.

The building was damaged to the extent of $23,000, and other losses were Dr. J. L. Boyette, $1,500; Jim Glosom grocery store, $1,500; A. H. Stoten grocery, $600; Gulf Public Service company, $300; Price and Son shoe shop, $200; Dr. G. H. McSwain, $10,000, and Dr. F. L. Dorsner, $600.

BOY DIES OF BROKEN NECK

PORT WORTH, Dec. 30. (AP)—Funeral will be held this afternoon for Edwin L. Lindsay Jr., 14, whose neck was snapped when while playing around in Texas Christian University stadium late yesterday. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lindsay.

Companions of the boy saw him running along a ramp at the stadium, stumble and fall to his face on the concrete floor. He was dead by the time he was taken to a hospital. Physicians said he suffered a broken neck.

Just An Idea Says River Fish

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 30. (AP)—Flag-pole and tree-trimming record holders stood aside today as back numbers should while a man who said he swam the Mississippi—down, not across—monopolized the spotlight.

Fred Newton, 27, of Oklahoma, arrived here yesterday clad in an aqualung after a journey of 2,300 miles from Minneapolis that started last July. The swim was made in short stages with two companions alongside in a boat. They camped along the shore each night.

Newton said the aquatic enterprise was "just an idea."

Prosperity Was Around Corner

CHICAGO, Dec. 30. (AP)—"Cheer up," William A. Fowley's friends used to tell him as he poured over figures representing other folk's money as a clerk at the city hall, "prosperity is just around the corner."

Oh, well, anything can happen, invariably would be his reply. But he labored for more than 20 years before retiring from his position and nothing much happened until yesterday when word was received that an aunt had left him property worth $631,480.

Double Funeral For Aged Couple Held In Loraine

LORAIN, Dec. 30. (AP)—A double funeral service was held here today for J. P. Hutchins, 86, and his wife, 78, united for 61 years in marriage. The two were separated for only 10 hours in death, both victims of pneumonia. Mrs. Hutchins died at 3:15 Sunday afternoon and her husband at 1:40 Monday morning. He was conscious at the time of his wife's passing.

The couple were married in Red River county Dec. 15, 1869. They had been West Texans for 34 years, coming here six weeks ago to observe their sixty-first wedding anniversary in the home of their son, George A. Hutchins.

reading reported having read at least one biography, five of them naming four biographies.

In biography, Anthony's "Queen Elizabeth" and Hackett's "Henry VIII" were each mentioned seven times. Others mentioned frequently were Strachey's "Elizabeth and Essex," Isadora Duncan's "Autobiography," Mauris's "Disraeli" and "Byron," and Carlisle's "Mata Hari."

Read Few Serious Books
In other types of reading matter, books of an "exposed" nature such as history and essays, totalled about 15 per cent; poetry, five per cent; drama four per cent, and mystery and detective novels, two per cent. Only five women named a mystery novel, the total named being 10, while 18 named a total of 27 volumes of poetry and 10 named 21 plays.

Asked what college course influenced them to such an extent that they still read in those fields, the group gave English literature first place with 34 mentions. American and Latin literature were each mentioned once.

The preferences of the group as to class of reading matter follows rather closely the above outline of courses influencing their reading. American and English fiction was by far the favorite with the 42 answering this question clearly, this class of reading receiving 21 votes for first place. Biography and travel follow with nine votes for first place; then come poetry, drama, criticism and essays; translated fiction; art, music and limited editions; history and politics; reprints of the classics; and detective and adventure stories.

A digest and average of these votes, however, gives somewhat different results than if first choices alone are considered: From this standpoint, American and English fiction still remains the undisputed leader, with biography and travel second. Others follow in order: translated fiction; poetry, drama, criticism and essays; history and politics; reprints of classic; science, including psychology; detective and adventure stories; art, music and limited editions; philosophy and social sciences.

The replies of these women reveal that most of them use circulating and public libraries as sources for their reading, while some buy books and a very few borrow books from friends.

"We buy the better, lasting books always, as well as some others, and use a circulating library for some of the mystery stories or lighter novels," stated one. This is generally the procedure of those expressing themselves on this subject.

Saturday Evening Post Read
Only one out of the 53 stated that she read no magazines. The others mention a total of 75 different magazines. Of these, 25 read the Saturday Evening Post, which takes the lead. Good Housekeeping comes next, with 21 mentions. Others mentioned more than once follow

The William C. Gorgas bridge, four and a half miles long, has been dedicated at a memorial to the Alabamian who built the Panama canal.

In order: Harper's and The Atlantic Monthly, 17 each; Time, 13; The New Yorker and Reader's Digest, 10 each; Literary Digest and The National Geographic, nine each; Ladies Home Journal, seven; Scribner's and Cosmopolitan, six each; Harper's Bazaar, Woman's Home Companion, Vanity Fair, and Vogue, five each; House Beautiful and The Saturday Review of Literature, four each; Golden Book, Fortune, House and Garden; Forum, Nation, American, Current History, Survey, and the New Republic, three each; Judge, Better Homes and Gardens, Collier's, Delicater, Parents, and Historical Outlook, two each.

All except seven gave reasons why they did not read as much as they wished. Twenty-five mentioned work as preventing more reading. Other causes were: Cost of books, home duties, other modes of recreation, illness of mind, hurrying and social life, difficulty of getting books. Other causes listed ranged from study to emul, among them being athletics, bridge, gardening, "children and a kennel of dogs," and philanthropy.

One woman in the group stated that she helps her lawyer husband, who runs a large farm and raises dogs for sale, leading a very active social life at the same time. Nevertheless, she states, she gets two books per week from a circulating library, buying as many books as she can afford, especially biography and books on the Civil war period.

Miss Dietrich Thrills America In First Movie

A new personality, destined to enthral the hearts of moving picture fans everywhere, has flashed across America in "Morocco," the new Gary Cooper starring picture, now at the La Nora theatre.

She is Marlene Dietrich, famous in Germany and other countries of the continent, recently come to the United States under contract to Paramount, playing her first American moving picture role in "Morocco." "Discovered" in Berlin by Director Josef von Sternberg, while the director of "Morocco" was working with Emil Jennings in Germany, Miss Dietrich was persuaded to forsake a brilliant stage and screen career abroad.

Miss Dietrich has a complete command of English. Von Sternberg saw her in George Kaiser's revue, "Swet Krawatten," a reigning success at the Berliner theatre. He engaged her for the leading feminine role in "The Blue Angel," in which he was directing Jennings. She sailed from Germany on the Bremen, April 2, this year, arrived in New York on April 7.

Born in Berlin, the daughter of Captain Von Losch of the cavalry, much of her professional career was spent at the German capital, working with Max Reinhardt. It was music, rather than the stage, that first attracted her and after studying at the College of Music, she went to Weimar to continue her musical studies. Then she decided that the theatre was her medium, and enrolled in the dramatic school of the Deutsches theatre in Berlin, headed by Reinhardt.

Six weeks of study and she obtained her first engagement, a role in a Shakespearean production, "Taming of the Shrew." Then she played a role in the German production of "Broadway" at the Berlin Komodienhaus. Her first revue work was done in "Es liegt in der Luft." Two years ago she had her first film experience with "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame." Following this she appeared in the motion picture, "Die Frau, Nach der Man Sieh Seht." This picture, under the title of "Three Loves," ran for six weeks at the 55th Street theatre, New York City.

New Attack On Proration Work

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 30. (AP)—A report of "private watchers" for the Champlin Refining company of Enid, purporting to show that a six weeks' daily check of 100 wells in the Oklahoma City oil field reveals "continuous violation of proration orders," will be filed with the State Corporation commission.

H. G. McKeever, attorney for the Champlin company, promised the commission today he would submit the combined reports of 12 "watchers" for comparison with the reports of Otto Bradford, field umpire.

"It will show that these companies, who claim to be defenders of proration, have continuously violated proration and that wells have been overproduced from 1 to 74 per cent," McKeever charged.

Commissioner Fred Cepshaw told McKeever, at the conclusion of the hearing yesterday on applications for extension of state-wide proration to April 1, that if the irregularities charged were substantiated citations against the violators would be issued.

Pampa Man Is Commended For His Interest in Trees

Most people believe that cedars were meant for rough places and amid the rocks and mountains where they chiefly abound. But it is not so.

T. D. Hobart, pioneer resident, has about his residence in West Pampa and at his ranches, some very nice cedars and other trees which he planted and tended with great care. Concerning these trees, the Dallas News recently said:

TREES AT PAMPA

Pampa is not in the tree country. The geographies will tell you that—even the geographies after the West Texas chamber of commerce gets through revising them. Yet it is perfectly possible to grow timber at Pampa, for T. D. Hobart has the timber to show for it, and he planted every stick of it himself.

It is true that Mr. Hobart began his planting 20 years ago, but now he gets new growth to replace his annual takings for his own use. Instead of buying fence posts, Mr. Hobart grows them. In a land where petroleum products and coal are the customary fuel, Mr. Hobart has cordwood for no greater cost than the labor of cutting it.

Taking advantage of his experience with trees, this West Texan has beautified the grounds about his house. More than that, perhaps, and in all probability without intending it Mr. Hobart has set up a monument that will outlive him for generations. Whoever plants a tree is a benefactor, and the good that he does lives after him.

If West Texas can do this with profit, how much the more does East Texas owe it to its own best interests to restore forest lands to forestry. This country still cuts and burns more timber than it grows. It still wastes two-thirds of every tree that it brings to the ground. It still has practically everything to learn about tree "farms," where timber is taken out continually, without depletion or wanton destruction.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30. (NEA).—The organized drys, who gathered here in important national meetings are trying to find a leader behind whom they can all rally in the bitter struggle for the preservation of prohibition.

Apparently agreed as to the impossibility of producing such a leader from among professional drys, they now seek a business man or lawyer of great prestige to assume unified command of the cause. With such a man, most of them believe, they can raise millions of dollars, recruit the business men of the country and put on a terrific dry campaign which will result in an utter rout of the wets in the elections of 1932.

Little of this leaked out from the secret sessions, but it represented common agreement. The dry leaders admitted among themselves that there was jealousy and hickering among them, but they were unanimous in asserting that dissension must be ended, that the present prohibition laws must be retained without modification and that the dry movement must gather under a single directing head to repulse the groundgaining wets.

The Committee of Sixteen or "National Board" of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment will decide whether the new unified-dry command should consist of one man or a small general staff which would have dictatorial powers. It may also formulate a statement of policy to be subscribed to by each of the 33 organizations in the conference.

The fact was more than ever obvious that the dry movement had produced no man who could seize and exercise leadership as Wayne B. Wheeler did. Wheeler has had no successor, nor even any imitator. The reason Mrs. Ella Booie of the W. C. T. U. was selected to head the board of strategy was, not that Mrs. Booie had more obvious qualities for leadership than many others, but because she was a logical compromise for the various factions.

Various dry leaders desired that post, just as they would like to have the supreme command which is likely to be created, but there is too much diversified opposition to each individual.

Elevation of an Anti-Saloon league man was impossible because so many organizations resent any attempt of the league to assert its dominance. Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals is widely disliked among other drys, especially since his proposal for a national prohibition referendum, which was unopposedly voted down.

Many of the smaller dry organizations are jealous of the larger ones. Even the league is split, divided into an organization captained by General Superintendent F. Scott McBeide and another headed by Ernest H. Cherrington.

Hence, with reluctance and no great enthusiasm, the dry leaders seemed to agree among themselves that it would be wise to go outside the organized movement for a commander-in-chief. There were some who said that Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt would have been an ideal leader had she not tied herself up with grape concentrates. Mabel, incidentally, appeared before the drys and convinced them by violent assertion of her personal sincerity and dryness.

The drys say they still disapprove of grape concentrates for wine-making, but won't fight them unless they become a menace to prohibition, in which case the drys would seek a five-line addition to Section 29 of the Volstead Act which would destroy the new industry.

Mabel preserved her personal status with the drys because she has always been their fair-haired child and many felt that to repudiate her now would be both unpleasant and unwise.

SCHAAF SETS SAIL

This Game of GOLF

They brought out the sand-wedge right out on the carpet at a recent meeting of the United States Golf Association's executive committee, and so far as I ever learned, that was all they did about it.

Anyway, the sand-wedge continues to be a golf club in the United States. There is a clause, or perhaps a flock of clauses, in the rules under the section entitled "implements" which may be taken as forbidding mechanical contrivances (such as springs—an infernally explosive) in the head, to aid in the projection of the ball.

Over in Great Britain, too, the shaft must connect with one end of the head. It must not grow out of the center, with a mallet-effect.

One reason for this British custom is the naturally conservative attitude and policy of the Royal and Ancient Golf club, ruling body of golf.

Another reason, it is said, was the little Schenectady putter with which Walter J. Travis in 1904 putted his way to the first British amateur championship, ever won by anybody except a native son.

Over here, we all said that Travis was the first American. As a matter of fact, he was born an Australian.

However, Jess Sweetser and more lately Bobby Jones have attended to that little discrepancy. They have allowed the steel shaft in Britain this last year. We legalized it in 1924. I was just crawling out of bed in a room at the Oakland Hills Country club, the first day of the national open championship of 1924, when I heard the starter chanting:

LEGISLATURE LIKELY WILL PROBE GAMES

AUSTIN, Dec. 30. (P)—The subject of regulating high school athletics awaited action of the Texas legislature today, as a result of an indictment of present conditions by a special committee of the state board of education.

In its report, which was adopted by the board, the committee recommended that the legislature be asked to define "holidays" and outline the scope of activities of all special forms of inter-school activities, to the end that "subjects taught in the schools be of primary importance."

Members of the committee were J. N. O'Donoghue, B. F. Tinsler, Jr., and Mrs. M. D. Smith. They based their report on a questionnaire sent to all schools in Texas covering the 1929-30 season. There were 321 answers received and they were carefully indexed. The general finding was worded:

"With many high schools, entirely too many inter-school contests are indulged in, and these contests cover too large a scope of territory and take too much of the time from school, and less of money of the participating towns."

The 321 schools reported participation in 4,684 games of basketball and 2,821 games of baseball. Time lost ranged from a fourth of a day to three days per game. Some schools have practiced during school hours. Several schools draw on other regular school funds for support of their teams.

All these practices were condemned.

What's it like? Well, I wouldn't want to describe it. Some of the teams were playing less in the season, and were certainly less than the usual number. It is played with an unimpaired line and we use spinners almost entirely.

Hornsby Signs For Two Years

CHICAGO, Dec. 30. (P)—Rogers Hornsby will lead the Cubs in the 1931 and 1932 baseball years.

The fact that the Rajah will manage the club next season is not news, but it was not definitely known until last night that he had signed a contract for two years.

Hornsby put his name on the papers more than a month ago, Veckel would not say how much money Hornsby's contract called for, but it was understood to be in the neighborhood of $40,000 per season.

Hornsby succeeded Joe McCarthy when the latter's five-year career as pilot of the team was abruptly ended by owner William Wrigley Jr.

Gotham Students Storm Show and Land In Jail

NEW YORK, Dec. 30. (P)—Approximately 200 students of City college stormed the Rivoli theatre at 145th street early today and 47 of them landed in jail.

Climaxing the annual class smoker, the collegians thronged into the lobby of the Rivoli and rushed the document into the auditorium they swarmed, battling among themselves and patrons for seats and throwing the audience into turmoil.

Answering a riot call, police blocked the doorways and ordered the lights turned on. While most of the students fled at the first sign of intervention, enough were captured to fill two patrol wagons, backed up to the main entrance.

Meanwhile, reports spread that a duplication of the Paramount robbery had occurred and a great crowd gathered in front of the theatre. This was quelled by the departure of attendant patrons.

All of yesterday's session was given over to hearing representatives of Little Rock, Mobile, Montgomery and Knoxville.

The directors hoped to decide today whether two of them will be in the league or whether the circuit will be reduced. Eight clubs have formed it since it was started 20 years ago.

FANS INVITED TO SEE TEAM IN PRACTICES

Football fans of Pampa are invited to watch the workouts of the all-stars who will represent this city in the Amarillo-Pampa charity game on Butler field New Year's day.

Practices are held at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. daily. Players on the ground this morning included, besides Coach Odus Mitchell, the following: Roy Lammiman, Georgia Tech; Ross, Wisconsin; Bob, Wisconsin; Boyd, Wisconsin; Phillips, Texas; Randolph, Indiana; and Baxter, T. C. U.

Manager Vic Sausley and half a dozen assistants were to arrive at noon to complete the roster, which will have a few exceptions. Many of the well known S. M. U. players will be reeled off by the Pampa aggregation.

Local ticket sales are in charge of Sam Fenberg at the Diamond shop. Keen disappointment in Amarillo has been expressed because the Chicago professionals were signed by Pampa instead of the "city of roses." Pinky Alsbrook is directing the Amarillo squad, which includes such notables as Joe Hunt, Bus Walker, Buck Carr, Fred Nicklaus, Bill Hopkins, Tommy Mills, Bob Clark, Siki Sikes, Ralph Dorsey, and Red Moore.

The Pampa squad is to be greatly strengthened by the addition of such stars as Edman Hulse and Choc Sanders of S. M. U.

Final Round At Tennis Tournery

NEW YORK, Dec. 30. (P)—The national indoor tennis championship entered the quarter final round today with six of the 10 seeded players still in the running.

Heading the list is William Jacobs of the University of Pittsburgh, defending champion, and seeded No. 1 player. The other seeded survivors are Richard Dowling, Jamaica High school, New York; Mark Hecht, Dewitt Clinton H. S., New York; Bernard Friedman, West Philadelphia H. S.; Kendall H. Cram, Nashville; Robert O. Bacon, Jr., New prep school, Cambridge, Mass.; Billie out the bracket are two unseeded players, Rance Donovan, southern prep, and Ray Palmer, Morehead academy.

Murder At Bridge

By ANNE ARISTON, author of "THE BLACK PIGEON" and "MURDER ON THE BRIDGE".

BEGIN HERE TODAY
PENNY CRAIN, society girl, now the district attorney's secretary because of her father's failure, telephone to "BONNIE" DUNDEE, special investigator, that JEANITA SELIM, Broadway dancer brought to Hamilton by LOIS DUNLAP to organize the Little Theatre, has been murdered at a bridge given in her own home.

At the house, where CAPTAIN STRAWN is in charge, Dundee sees the dead woman behind ever her dressing table, shot through the heart. Among the guests is DEXTER SPREAGUE, typically Broadway and alien to the group, while RALPH HAMMOND, once Penny's property, but annexed by Nita, is missing.

Dundee learns that as they were playing the first men to arrive, immediately sprang up, being summoned, and left. Miss went into the dining room, followed by Lois Dunlap. KAREN MARSHALL, the judge's young bride, found the body when she ran in at the end of the hand to tell Nita the score, and her scream brought the whole party to the bedroom. No one was seen in the room or in the foyer outside the room. Dundee takes Penny to the study of the afternoon.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER V
"Just a minute before, you begin Miss Crain," Dundee requested. "I'd like to make notes of your story," and he drew from a coat pocket a shorthand book, hastily flicked from Penny's own desk.

"Yes," he answered the girl's frank stare of amazement. "I can write shorthand—of a sort, and pretty fast at that, though no other human being, I am afraid, could read it but myself. . . . As for you folks, he addressed the uneasy, silent group of men and women in dead Nita's living room. "I shall ask you not to interrupt Miss Crain, for you are very sure that her memory is at fault."

Penelope Crain was about to begin for the second time, when again Dundee interrupted. "Another half second, please."

"On the first sheet of the new shorthand book Dundee scribbled: "Suggest you try to locate Ralph Hammond immediately. Very much in love with Mrs. Selim. Invited nearest the door leading out upon the porch. "I've marked the end of the line here," Dr. Price went on, pointing to a faint pencil mark made upon the frame of the window—the pale-green strip of woodwork nearer the chaise longue, which was set between the two windows.

"I told you she was shot from the window!" Strawn reminded Dundee triumphantly. "You see, Doc, it's my theory that the murderer climbed up to the sill of this window, which was open as it is now, crouched in it and shot her while she sat there powdering her face."

Dundee did not trouble to remind Strawn of his previously expressed objections to this theory, for Dr. Price was pointing out: "Not necessarily, Captain, not necessarily. I merely say that this pencil mark indicates the end of the line showing the path of the bullet. Certainly she was not shot through the frame of the window, but she might have been shot by anyone standing just in front of it, or anywhere along the line, up to, say, within 10 feet of the woman."

"Now, if that's all, Captain, I'll be getting this corpse into the morgue for an autopsy. And I'll send you both a copy of my findings."

"Just a minute, Dr. Price," Dundee detained him. "How old would you say Mrs. Selim was?"

"We'll, between 30 and 34 years old," he answered finally. "Of course you understand that that estimate is unofficial."

Dundee stared down at the up-turned face of the dead woman with startled incredulity. Between 30 and 34 years old! That tiny, lovely—but she was not quite so lovely in death, in spite of the serenity it had brought to those once-vivacious features. Peering more closely, he could see—without those luminous, wide eyes to center his attention—numerous fine lines in the waxen face, the slackness of a little pouch of soft flesh beneath the round chin, an occasional white hair upon the shoulder-length dark curls.

"Dundee sighed. How easy it was for a beautiful woman to deceive men with a pair of wide, velvety black eyes! But he'd bet the women had not been quite so thoroughly taken in by her cuddly childishness, her odd mixture of demureness and youthful impudence!

Back in the living room, whose occupants stopped whispering and grew taut with suspense, Dundee seated himself at a little red-lacquered table, his notebook spread, while Strawn settled himself heavily in the nearest overstuffed armchair.

"Now, Miss Crain, I am quite ready, if you will forgive me for having kept you waiting."

In a very quiet voice—slightly husky, as always—Penny, from her seat on a nearby sofa, along with Lois Dunlap and Janet Raymond, began her story:

"I think I lacked two or three minutes of one o'clock when you drove away, Nita, Lois and I went immediately into the lounge of Breakaway Inn, where we found Janet Raymond, Carolyn Drake and Flora Miles waiting for us. Nita pon left us to see about the arrangement of the table, and while she was away the rest of the girls arrived."

"Except—" a woman's voice broke in. "I was going to say all eight of us were ready for lunch except Polly Beale. She hadn't come," Penny went on, her husky voice a little sharp with annoyance. "When Nita came to ask us into the private dining room, one of the Inn's employees came and told her there was a call for her, and showed her to the private booth in the lounge. In a minute Nita returned to us, and told us that Polly wasn't coming to the luncheon, but would join us later for bridge here."

"Why don't you tell him how Polly Nita acted?" Janet Raymond prompted, a strong suggestion of malice in her voice.

Penny flushed, but she accepted the prompting. "I think any of us might have been a little annoyed," she said steadily, as if striving to be utterly truthful. "Nita told us—she turned to Dundee, whose pencil was lying—that Polly had made no excuse at all; in fact, she quoted Polly exactly: 'Sorry, Nita, I can't make it for lunch. I'll show up at your place at 2:30 for bridge.'"

"Nita couldn't bear the least hint of being slighted," Janet Raymond explained, with a malicious gleam in her pale blue eyes. "If it hadn't been for Lois and Hugo—Judge Marshall, I mean—Nita Selim would never have been included in any of our affairs—and she knew it! The Dunlaps can do anything they please, because they're—"

"Please, Janet!" Lois Dunlap cut in, in her usually placid voice becoming quite sharp. "You must know by this time that I make friends wherever I please, and that I liked —yes, I was extremely fond of poor little Nita. In fact, I am forced to believe that, of all the women she met in this town, I was her only real friend."

There was a flush of anger on her lovely plain face as her eyes challenged first one and then another of the "Forsyte girls." One of two looked a little ashamed, but there was not a single voice to contradict Lois Dunlap's flat assertion.

GRAINS ARE FIRM
CHICAGO, Dec. 30. (U. S. D. A.)—Led by corn, all grains averaged higher early today after a wavering start. Word that the largest industrial consumer of corn would materially increase plant facilities to take care of prospective demand for corn sugar was the chief stimulating factor.

Opening at 1-8 cent decline to 1 cent advance, corn subsequently scored gains all around. Wheat started 1-5-1-4c off to 3-8 up and later held steady.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC BUILDING SALE
Sealed proposals will be received by the City Commission of the City of Pampa, Texas, up to 2:30 p. m., Tuesday, January 6th, for the sale of the old city hall and fire station building.

NEW YORK NURSE

MISS EDNA WANNENBERG says no one can take course of Sargon without being greatly benefited.

"For three or four years I suffered from sluggish liver and constipation. My skin was sallow. I had no ambition or desire to work. I was nervous and dizzy, had severe headaches and could not sleep. It is nothing short of remarkable that Sargon and Sargon Soft Mucous Pills relieved me of these troubles. I am now simply bubbling over with new energy and vitality. I do not believe it possible for anyone suffering as I was to take a course of Sargon without being greatly benefited."
