Proposed Drivers' License Law Would Test Ability of Motorists

The News has received a copy of the uniform operators' and chauffeurs' license law to be introduced in the 42nd legislature. Seventeen other states use such a plan, hence it is of considerable interest.

Under the act's provisions, only those more than 14 years of age and physically and mentally competent would be allowed to drive. Minors under 14, habitual drunkards or narcotic users, insane or feeble-minded persons, physical incompetents, and those suspended for one cause or another would not be permitted to drive.

License could be revoked for: 1. A homicide resulting from the operation of a motor vehicle; 2, driving while intoxicated or drugged; 3, perjury in registration of vehicle or obtaining license; 4, forfeiture of bail three times on reckless driving charges in 12 months; 5, failure to stop and disclose identity after accident; and 6, conviction or any felony infraction of vehicular laws.

Maximum fines of $550 or six months in jail, or both would be provided for evasion of the license law. Administration would be through the state highway department and its agents. Enforcement would be by city, precinct, county, and state constabulary and courts, as in case of other laws.

Proponents of the law point out that in none of the states using the plan has it been repealed. Nor have efforts toward repeal been made. The law is credited with reduction in accident tolls, with as much as 34 per cent effectiveness.

Chief objection to the law is that it tends further toward narrowing of individual liberties. Doubt that uniform enforcement would be made is another point against the act. Law enforcement officers have often pointed out, however, that the lack of some law governing traffic has been a handicap in handling cases involving driving while intoxicated. The plan is sure to have many backers and some energetic enemies.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. (NEA.)—The president's emergency committee on employment has been doing a large amount of work. Fourteen persons facing such a tremendous problem without the power to legislate, administer or distribute money could hardly be expected to make a huge dent in the volume of unemployment.

The country is now practically organized to deal with unemployment, according to Colonel Arthur Woods, the chairman. That is, the governors and mayors in states, counties and cities where there is real need for relief have faced the situation and done such things as they believed were adequate.

Six field agents of public experience are moving around the country now. Their reports, suggestions and requests for information are received at a committee clearing house here which is in charge of Dr. James C. Lawrence, dean of the University of Minnesota, and Dr. Lewis Meriam of the Brookings Institute.

Woods sits in his office and keeps in touch with the rest of the country by telephone. Lately he has been getting reports on specific subjects from as many as 400 mayors at a time. One of them, for instance, appeared to indicate that there might easily have been 150,000 more men employed on public works in the country during November than there were a year previously.

His initial job was to get the governors and mayors interested and he thinks that has been done effectively. More lately, he says, the committee's trade mark has been "a tangle of red tape and a pair of shears."

He found that between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 worth of federal building work, with sites picked and money appropriated, was being held up or slowed up for no essential reason. He undertook to find the bottle necks where these projects were stagnating.

and there is but one such board. So legislation is being introduced to create 12 such boards in various sections so construction won't be delayed simply because sites haven't been viewed. Other legislation will hasten completion of architectural specifications by permitting outside architects to make them. Leaders in congress, the attorney general, treasury officials, and the federal supervising architect, have co-operated to cut the red tape.

Much of the committee's work has been done without ballyhoo, beneath the surface. Private conferences have been held with many officials who returned to their states and cities with committee suggestions and have been able to reap credit by their subsequent efforts.

The general policy of the modest efficient Colonel Woods, it has been observed, is based on the theory that more can be accomplished if public officials holding political posts are kept in the forefront while the committee remains in the background.

Blizzard of Twelve Hours in Severe

HALIFAX, N. S., Dec. 16. (AP)—The maritime provinces and Newfoundland were under a blanket of snow today, laid down by a 12-hour blizzard which caused distress to shipping and interrupted communication and traffic.

Four seamen were lost off Newfoundland and several fishermen were missing from North Spitz.

A heavy northeast gale which accompanied the snow drove the schooner Arawans aground on her way from St. John to Digby. The vessel was later floated and put in at Centerville.

Narcotics Worth Million Seized

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. (AP)—Three quantities of narcotics, valued at the treasury the largest seizure ever made in this country, have been taken on the steamer Alecta in New York harbor.

Customs agents reported it totaled 1,600 pounds, and said the market value ran above $1,000,000.

Importers of the contraband were not captured. The narcotics were shipped from Turkey, included in cases of furs that originated in Constantinople.

TO CONSULT HURLEY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. (AP)—Congressional representatives from Texas have been advised by Secretary of War Hurley that a hearing on the Red River bridge controversy at Denison will be held probably in January. Senators Sheppard and Connally, Rep. Sam Rayburn and J. R. Harby of Denison, vice president of the Red River Bridge company, conferred with the secretary yesterday.

The office of the Malone Furniture company is being partitioned and enclosed.

What does Pampa need to cut down a growing fire loss ratio? We think Pampa needs an efficient building code—not an excuse, but a real building code that will prevent conflagrations. A growing city will always increase its conflagration hazards unless curbed by a real building code. Every fire your neighbor has costs you money. Think it over.

Licenses could be suspended for: 1. Any cause warranting revocation; 2, negligence contributory to an accident resulting in death, personal injury or property damage; 3, physical or mental infirmities rendering licensee an unsafe driver; 4, habitual reckless or negligent driving.

Maximum fines of $500 or six months in jail, or both would be provided for evasion of the license law. Administration would be through the state highway department and its agents. Enforcement would be by city, precinct, county, and state constabulary and courts, as in case of other laws. Motorists would pay 75 cents for the licenses and chauffeur's licenses would cost $3.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16. (NEA.)—The president's emergency committee on employment has been doing a large amount of work. Fourteen persons facing such a tremendous problem without the power to legislate, administer or distribute money could hardly be expected to make a huge dent in the volume of unemployment. But the members of this committee have been actively engaged in its work for relief and much of that work has been effective.

The country is now practically organized to deal with unemployment, according to Colonel Arthur Woods, the chairman. That is, the governors and mayors in states, counties and cities where there is real need for relief have faced the situation and done such things as they believed were adequate. The committee here finds that there are many states where relief is not badly needed. The darkest spots have been found in the manufacturing states ranging from Minnesota east through New York and down into the border states the drought region in the Mississippi and Ohio valleys and lumber and mining regions of the west.

Six field agents of public experience are moving around the country now. Their reports, suggestions and requests for information are received at a committee clearing house here which is in charge of Dr. James C. Lawrence, dean of the University of Minnesota, and Dr. Lewis Meriam of the Brookings Institute. Among the half dozen regional workers are William Phillips, former undersecretary of state, assigned to New England; Fred C. Croxton, author of the "Ohio plan" in the Great Lakes region, and Joseph H. Wilfitt, head of the University of Pennsylvania commerce school, in Pennsylvania.

Woods sits in his office and keeps in touch with the rest of the country by telephone. Lately he has been getting reports on specific subjects from as many as 400 mayors at a time. One of them, for instance, appeared to indicate that there might easily have been 150,000 more men employed on public works in the country during November than there were a year previously.

He undertook to find the bottle necks where these projects were stagnating. Some of the snags must be untangled by legislation. For instance, the law says that postoffice sites, scattered over the country, must be viewed by a "site-seeing" board and there is but one such board. So legislation is being introduced to create 12 such boards in various sections so construction won't be delayed simply because sites haven't been viewed. ### Man Is Sought Parents' Slayer

LEE, Ind., Dec. 16. (AP)—A man, 28, was sought by police for the slaying of his father and the burning of their family home four miles from here yesterday.

Police believed that unbalanced Lee Brown shot and killed his father, 65, wounded his mother, 53, and then set the home on fire.

Police, 24, a farm hand, shot twice during the slaying, said he believed Lee was trapped by the flames. A thorough search of the area gave up the bodies of a 10-year-old boy and a 12-year-old girl. Police said the slayer probably killed them in a critical moment.

Lee was attacked by young men and returned to the home after lunch yesterday. A fire on him and a bullet in the left arm. As he fled, he was struck in the abdomen. Police reached his home, however, before he could be taken to a hospital.

Police believed Paul Brown shot his father with a bullet in the heart. Mrs. Brown, 53, a neighbor for Mrs. Brown had been believed she was trapping the slayer.

Home Runs? Well, Well!

Considerable heat was engendered and there were lively vocal utterances by all parties when the big league people discussed the matter of the pesky lively ball that is causing all these cheap home runs.

As a matter of fact, the fans of the country seem to be divided about even Stephen on the question. A recent national poll on the subject, by NEA Service, revealed an astonishing disinterest in the subject, considering the space the argument has been consuming for several years in the newspapers of the country.

Net Interest

Only 1000 votes were cast in the poll. Of these, 530 fans expressed the view that the home run still retained its ancient thrill. On the other side of the argument, 527 fans declared the lively ball was cheapening the home run and spoiling the game. It was a sort of dead heat.

Results of the balloting on home runs in the cities where the response was worth noting are shown here. Those voting "Yes" favored home runs. The "No" votes registered disapproval of the cheap homer.

Greenleaf Must Stop Randolph

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (AP)—If anyone is to stop the triumphant parade of Erwin Randolph through the field in the world's championship pocket billiards tournament, apparently it will have to be Ralph Greenleaf, defending title-holder.

Randolph, who hails from Chicago, nosed out the New York "dark horse," Onofrio Lauri, 125 to 124 in 23 innings last night and thereby earned his fifth successive tournament victory. He has yet to meet Arthur Woods, another New Yorker, and Greenleaf.

Randolph's five triumphs give him undisputed possession of the lead with Greenleaf as runner-up with four victories and one defeat. Lauri is third with four and two; Woods fourth with three and three; Frank Taborski of Schenectady, N. Y., fifth with two and three; Donnie Allen of Kansas City sixth with two and four; Pasquale Natalia, Chicago, seventh with one and four; and Thomas Boatman, Portland, Ore., eighth with one and five.

Randolph plays Woods tonight with Natalia meeting Allen and Boatman playing Taborski this afternoon.

WEAKER AREA HAS TEAM OF LITTLE MEN

There you have a brief view of the two competing teams scheduled to play Saturday in Texas Christian University stadium at Fort Worth for the state schoolboy title. These are the survivors of a field of 80 Class A teams that took up the torch in September. They had to be good to get where they are.

A Weaker Domain

Tyler represents what history proves has been a weaker domain. Only one state champion has been produced by East and South Texas. In 1921, before Waco and other cities teams had entered the state league, Bryan had defeated Oak Cliff of Dallas, 35 to 15, to win the title. The previous year, the first in which the league functioned, Houston Heights defeated Cleburne to a scoreless tie in the finals. Since then the only school from that section to do anything to speak of was Fort Arthur. In 1928 the yellow-jackets defeated the finale only to be trumped by Abilene, 35 to 0. Last year the same jackets came back to hold Breckenridge to a scoreless draw in the snow at Waco and became co-champions. From 1921 through 1928, the title went to Waco four times, Abilene twice and Oak Cliff once.

Capone's Guard May Be Deported

CHICAGO, Dec. 16. (AP)—The government has stepped into the fight to rid Chicago of its gangster element.

Tony "Mops" Volpe, bodyguard for Alphonse Capone and ranked by the Chicago Crime Commission as second only to Capone as a "public enemy," was the first subject of attack. His deportation to Italy as an undesirable alien was sought.

Arrested last night by immigration authorities on a warrant issued by Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, Volpe was taken to the detective bureau and held in $10,000 bonds, despite his protest of American citizenship. Almost simultaneously a report became current that the activities of a score of alien gangsters were under surveillance of immigration authorities.

An old charge—Volpe's conviction in 1926 in connection with a $1,000,000 counterfeit war savings plot—was made the basis for the warrant. Volpe, who came to America when he was 15 years old, was naturalized a few years later, but the government charged he had made false statements in his application for citizenship. The papers were subsequently revoked. He served a short term for his alleged part in the war savings stamp case.

Officials were widely successful in returning to prison George "Red" Barker, alleged labor racketeer, and James "Fur" Sammons for alleged offenses which occurred years ago. Agents of the immigration bureau predicted that within another month Volpe would be aboard a steamer bound for Italy.

Suggests Pig As Boys' Present

CANYON, Dec. 16. (AP)—W. H. Upchurch, county agricultural agent of Randall county suggests that people give some farm boys of the county memberships in a pig club as a Christmas present.

It is the purpose of the county agent to encourage pig clubs in this locality during the next year, in order that there may be an outlet for the feed which the farmers are producing.

The county agent has called attention to the prizes which will be given by the Tri-State fair next fall for hogs owned by pig club boys. The pig club idea is to encourage a diversification program in Randall county.

Heart Hungry

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN AUTHOR OF "RASH ROMANCE" © 1930 BY NEA SERVICE INC

BEGIN HERE TODAY CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her seamstress mother, MARGARET ROGERS; to join her wealthy father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage.

BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl, MITCHELL asks EVELYN PARSONS, a beautiful widow, to introduce his daughter to other young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections. She soon becomes jealous of the girl and schemes to get rid of her by encouraging a romance between Celia and TOD JORDAN, a fascinating but of dubious character.

Mitchell has forbidden his daughter to see Jordan. Shields comes to New York to work for a photographic service and meets Celia. She tells him she cares for Jordan but later realizes it is Shields whom she loves.

Mrs. Parsons goes to Mitchell and tells him the girl has been meeting Shields surreptitiously. Father and daughter quarrel and Celia leaves for Baltimore. Her mother is not there and all clues to Mrs. Rogers' whereabouts fall. Mitchell arrives. He and Celia become reconciled and return to New York after he has promised to locate Mrs. Parsons. Meanwhile, Mrs. Parsons invites Shields to dinner and tells him Celia is to marry Jordan. When they meet next, Celia is broken-hearted at Shields' conduct and the interview ends with the understanding that everything is over between them. No word comes from Mrs. Rogers. Celia is alone and miserable when the maid announces a young man has come to see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER LIV For a moment the strange numbness which was both fear and tremulous hope held Celia motionless. Then reason reassured itself. It could not be Barney Shields who was waiting for her. Barney had meant what he said. Celia turned and walked slowly to the living room. Tod Jordan was leaning negligently against a table. He swung around, smiling, as she entered the doorway. "Didn't forget your promise, did you?" he greeted her. She had not given Jordan a thought since he and Lisa had left her the day before. Instead of answering Celia said, "Hello, Tod. It's nice of you to come."

He approached and took both her hands. "So that's all the welcome I get. Just 'hello'?" He studied her face intently. "Look here, sweetheart, hasn't that headache gone yet?" "Oh, yes. It's all right."

"Maybe you think so but I don't. You're looking white as a sheet. Has anything happened? Tell me, Celia. What is it?" Jordan's dark eyes were compelling, his voice sympathetic. Skillfully, he dramatized the moment. "The matter," Celia persisted. And then, though she had endured harshness and disappointment, kindness proved much for her. Celia suddenly clung to Tod Jordan, burying her face against his breast. "Oh, yes. Everything," she sobbed. "Everything's wrong. Oh, Tod, I'm so unhappy I don't know what to do!" She felt Jordan's arms go around her, holding her close. "Don't, darling!" he begged.

Oh, of all the outrages! The girl assured me it would be sent on the early delivery! Listen—call up the store at once and say that Mrs. Parsons demands an explanation. Wait! Get the number and I'll talk to them myself."

"Do you think perhaps first I should inquire?" "Rose did you hear me? Are you trying to be impertinent? Go to the telephone and do as I tell you."

"Yes, Mrs. Parsons!" Rose dispatched the task immediately. A moment later Evelyn Parsons was hotly engaged in conversation with a weary complaint. Evelyn stood while the maid clerk in the department store, executive and the clerk cheerfully transferred the call.

McCliffed and pleased with this show of her importance, Mrs. Parsons finally put down the telephone. "Has Miss Celia gone out?" she asked indifferently. "I believe so," Rose answered. "Mr. Jordan called and I saw her putting on her hat."

"Dear Evelyn: This is to let you know that I am going away because I feel it will be better for all of us. Please do not try to find me and do not let father try. He will not succeed anyhow. Some day a long while from now I hope I can come back. Tell father I am sorry it had to happen this way but he is not to worry about me. I will be all right. Tell him I wish I could think him for all the wonderful things he has done for me. I want to thank you too, Evelyn. And I hope you will be very happy. Good-by—Celia."

There were two blurred spots on the note which might have been caused by tears. Evelyn Parsons did not notice them. She stared at the sheet of paper and then hastily read it through again. The hand holding the letter dropped and Evelyn's shoulders straightened. A malicious smile played about her lips. She turned and made a hasty exit.

search of the dressing table and clothes closet. Celia's pretty frocks hung in a row on the wardrobe. Evelyn assumed to have been taken. There was a clock on the bedside table. Its hands pointed to 11:15. Evelyn noticed the clock and her expression changed. She caught up the telephone, gave a number, and at once burst into incoherent, agonized phrases. "Oh," she cried. "It's Evelyn! You must come at once. Oh, I am so frightened! I can't tell you what's happened until you get here. What? Yes, Yes! Oh, do hurry!" (To Be Continued)
