

R. BRUNOW ROBBED OF $3,650

Pendleton Denies He Robbed First National Bank In Pampa

NICE CITY IS AGE'S REMARK ABOUT PAMPA

SUSPECT CLAIMS HE WAS 500 MILES AWAY AT TIME

HALF HIS LIFE IN PEN

SENTENCE IN ODESSA WAS EIGHTH OF 15 YEARS

BY ARCHER FULLINGIM

Acc Pendleton was sitting on the cot in a solitary cell in the county jail. He had arrived a few minutes before from Odessa, accompanied by Deputy Frank Jordan and Jeff Guthrie. He was eating supper.

Introductions were exchanged. Then the suave, courteous voice of "The Ace" carefully accented each syllable:

"Well, I see you have a nice little city—first time I ever was here, you know."

"Then you deny that you helped rob the First National bank of Pampa of $3,650 back on March 31, 1927?"

500 Miles Away

"Deny it? It is to laugh. Why man I wasn't within 500 miles of Pampa on that day, and I can prove it! Listen boy, don't you know that flat footed, bay-windowed cops have the thickest and the dumbest skulls of the human species? Show me a man that believes what a cop says!"

"Why sir, I was under the care of a physician over 500 miles away from Pampa the day your bank was robbed."

"Yes, but I, B. Haggard identified you."

"Do tell, but of course you know that those bright and brave customs who were in the bank that day have identified a dozen men who are supposed to have looted it. I tell you I never was in Pampa before today. After the bank was robbed some of those flat-footed numb-skulls I was telling you about caught me with Whitey Walker and decided I was the guilty party. That was what the newspapers call a 'travesty on justice.'"

Has Blue Eyes

You almost decide to believe Mr. Pendleton without ever hearing the state's case. His large, dark blue eyes stare innocently at you. You can't remember when you saw eyes that were so blue. Rounded pupils, long lashes. Then you note the classic features. The finely-moulded blue-veined brow. The high-narrowed hair. Topped by a luxuriant iron-gray hair. "My hair has been gray ever since I had typhoid fever when I was about 20," he explained. You then thought that many an artist, musician, painter, poet—anyone like to have a nose like that. Look at the chiseled, sensitive nostrils. That mouth is not debauched. The whole face is classic.

UVALDE POLICE CHIEF KILLED IN SCUFFLE

(UVALDE, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP)—John Connor, 48, Uvalde chief of police, was shot to death here tonight in a scuffle with two men in an alley. County Attorney Dorwin Smith said he was preparing murder charges for filing against Bert and Lester Hunter, brothers, operators of a confectionery.

MAN IS HELD UNDER BOND IN ROBBERY CASE

Bond for Robert Johnson, charged with holding up and robbing three men at LeFors last Monday night with a pistol, was set at $1,000 by C. E. Cary, justice of peace, at a hearing Friday night.

On January 1, 1931, and not before, Lon L. Bannet, sheriff-elect of Gray county, will officially announce his deputies, he declared yesterday.

HENSLEY IS AUDITOR

AUSTIN, Dec. 20. (AP)—S. M. N. Harris, state superintendent of public instruction, today announced the appointment of Lee Hensley as auditor to succeed T. P. Walker, who will become chief clerk in the attorney general's office under James V. Allred.

MANY LEASES TO BE CONNECTED

BROTHERS LOST FOR 23 YEARS MEET HERE

Friday Pampa had one of those continuously recurring stories which one hears about every so often, concerning the reunion of relatives long lost from each other. It goes like this:

A half-dozen times in the last month C. G. Brady, local automobile repair man, saw his own brother, James, on the streets of Pampa and did not know him. However, when Jim passed by the place where G. G. works, the latter would remark to fellow employees, "that man limps kinda like a brother of mine."

"I was beginning to think so. You are my husband's brother." A few minutes later G. G. came into the shop. It was the first time the brothers had heard of or seen each other in almost 24 years. Jim has been living in Pampa several months while G. G. has been living here six months, and neither knew the other was here. They are beginning to think Pampa is a big town after all. They give Mrs. G. G. credit for the reunion. Jim said he never had the slightest idea who she was, but declared after seeing his brother that he would have known him if he had met him anywhere.

"I reckon I would have recognized you if I had been thinking about you," G. G. commented. The last time the two brothers saw each other was at Wynnewood, Oklahoma in 1907. Jim left home and later G. G. followed suit. They became separated and have been unable to locate each other since that time.

REGIONAL MEDICAL OFFICER OF LEGION SENDS OUT REPORT

The local post of the American Legion has received a letter from H. H. Foster, regional medical officer, U. S. Veterans bureau, Oklahoma City, stating that with a view to correcting a situation whereby authorization for examinations by the bureau in connection with claims for disability allowance with the bureau are being sent out to designated examiners at the rate of about 65 per day, and that this ratio has been maintained over a period of the last few weeks.

THEATER TALKS ON INDUSTRIES MADE

Daily talks at local theatres on the importance of trading in Pampa and especially of patronizing local manufacturing plants are being made under the supervision of the publicity division of the employment committee of the chamber of commerce.

CASE IS CONTINUED

The case of J. T. Bowers versus Maryland Casualty company has been continued until the next term of the 114th district court.

PRODUCERS TO COMPLY WITH NEW RULINGS

OPERATORS ARE PAYING COST OF REACHING PIPE LINES

EQUITABLE PLAN IS SEEN

THIRTY PER CENT WILL BE SOLD BY ALL INVOLVED

At the close of last week, owners of approximately 175 unconnected leases in the Panhandle were making arrangements to dispose of 30 per cent of their production to pipeline companies, complying with instructions issued Wednesday by H. J. Corcoran, proration umpire for the Panhandle area. Operators are required to pay costs of reaching the pipelines.

Although the allowable production for the Panhandle was set at 40,000 barrels and that of Gray county at about 27,000 barrels, the majority of operators in this section believe that the new proration plan, if it is followed to the letter, will prove to be equitable. Under the new order, they will at least have an opportunity to sell some of their oil (30 per cent) whereas previously they had no outlet at all.

Warning Issued

Drilling of unnecessary wells was discouraged by H. J. Corcoran, umpire, Friday night. He warned all operators that they could not hope to secure connections by bringing in wells which were not direct offsets.

Gray-Cockrell-McElroy Oil company's No. 5 Castleberry, section 12, block 3, 990 feet from the east and 330 feet from the south of the southeast quarter, rig on ground.

Empire Gas and Fuel company's No. 1 Roscoe, section 111, block 3, center of the west half of the southeast quarter, well.

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1 Eddington, section 34, block B-2, 330 feet from the north and 370 feet from the east of the northeast quarter, moving in rig.

Brady et al's No. 1 Talley, section 114, block 3, 990 feet from the east and 330 feet from the south of the southeast quarter, dry and abandoned.

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 1 Latham, section 153, block 3, total depth, 3,153 feet; pay, 3,141-3,153 feet; initial production, 1,800 barrels daily.

North American's No. 1 Duncan, section 135, block 3, total depth, 2,727 feet; pay, 2,597-2,712 feet; initial production 34 million cubic feet of gas.

Status of wells drilling in Gray county below 2,000 feet, according to the last available report.

She's Sunny "Miss Italy"

Blondes, Pfd., is showing a steady gain on the Italian beauty market. For in a land most famous for its brunettes, fair Mafalda Mariottino, pictured above, has been proclaimed "Miss Italy of 1930." She won a nation-wide beauty contest in competition with hundreds of other girls and is the daughter of a prominent Italian lawyer.

CARPENTERS VOTE TO CUT HOUR WAGE AS STIMULANT TO BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Reduction in the wage scale for carpenters from $1.12 1-2 to $1 an hour and readjustment of working conditions have been voted by the Pampa local, it was announced yesterday.

H. C. Price, recording secretary, issued a statement carrying the decision of the union.

"At a special called meeting of Carpenters local union No. 1141, the following resolution was adopted to take effect Monday morning, Dec. 22, 1930:

"Owing to unemployment and the desire for relief and the opinion of the contractors and the public, we recommend that we reduce our scale from $1.12 1-2 to $1 per hour in the city, additions, and the oil field, and confine the 8-hour day to the city limits and additions, and leave Saturday afternoon optional with the contractors.

"And furthermore, cut the initiation fee from $50 to $25 for thirty days.

BRABHAM WILL ENJOY LONG TRIP

The Rev. Tom W. Brabham, minister of the First Methodist church, will leave probably tomorrow on a three-week vacation trip. He will make a trip through the South, motoring to Key West, where he will take a boat for Cuba. He will be accompanied by A. M. Vining of Rusk, Texas, his father-in-law.

PARK MAGNET FOR WORKERS

The city park is a magnet to the city's unemployed. Every sunny day there are between 50 and 150 men who go to the park and ask for jobs. On cold days, the number is decreased considerably, there usually being seven or eight applicants. The men who appear asking for work on the cold days are classified as men who prove that they really want work.

MARRIED MEN GIVEN PREFERENCE OVER SINGLE ONES

Preference is shown to those men who have dependants and who have been residents of Pampa for some time, over the unmarried drifters who have swarmed into Pampa from all over the nation.

At present, the work is grading and terracing and approximately 20 teams and 80 men have been used during the past week. The same rule that applies to the jobbers also applies to the men who offer their teams and their own services, that teamsters having dependants and who have been residents of Pampa for some time, are preferred.

To C. L. Stone, engineer in charge of the work, goes the credit for passing up the work around as possible and putting into practice a theory that many have had for the relief of unemployment. The plan is designed to give as many men as possible employment, on a fair basis.

Many of the men who apply for jobs are oil field workers, some of them who formerly earned $12 a day and more. One of these men was at the park recently and asked for a job, saying he would work if he was only paid $2 per day, a great deal less than the wages paid to the park laborers.

TURKEY SHOOTING TO BE HELD THREE DAYS

Beginning this afternoon at 2 o'clock and continuing at 2 o'clock Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday afternoons, the Pampa volture of the 40 and 8 will have a turkey shoot on the grounds northeast of the east ward school.

Turkeys will be given as prizes to the best marksmen. The Pampa volture has 50 turkeys on hand, 10 barrels of clay pigeons and 10 cases of shells.

WELL DRESSED BANDIT PAIR INVADE HOME

DIAMOND RING, $150 IN CASH TAKEN BY ROBBERS

SCUFFLES WITH THIEVES

Two young men, both timidly brandishing pistols, executed a melodramatic holdup in Dr. V. E. Von Brunow's apartment above the L. T. Hill department store about 1:30 o'clock last night when they robbed him of a $3,500 diamond ring and $150 in cash.

Dr. and Mrs. Brunow were eating dinner when someone knocked at the hall door of the apartment. The pioneer physician of Pampa opened the door a few inches and one of the two men asked for a whiskey prescription. Dr. Brunow replied that he had none. The man then inserted his foot and leg into the opening and forced the door open. He awkwardly displayed a gun at his breast.

"Stick 'em up!"

"Well, you might as well stick 'em up," the robber shouted. "I'm going to take all you got!"

Dr. Brunow then fled through the kitchen, dining room and two other rooms, intending to reach a bedroom in the southwest corner of the apartment where two pistols were lying on a dresser and barricade himself in it. The doctor and the robber reached the door almost at the same time, the doctor having traveled a more direct route. Fearing his assailant might see the guns, the doctor did not turn on the light in the room.

Meanwhile, the more youthful robber had ordered Mrs. Brunow to hold up her hands. Hearing the scuffle in the bedroom, the robber went toward it, taking the woman with him. She was scuffling with the younger man, imploring the doctor's assailant not to shoot her husband.

Take Diamond Ring

Dr. Brunow then stepped out of the bedroom and allowed the robbers to rifle his pockets and take the diamond ring off his finger, although he never did hold up his hands. The older of the two men repeatedly threatened to shoot the physician.

Before leaving the robbers attempted to make the doctor promise that he would not raise an outcry or notify anyone for five minutes.

"We'll bind and gag both of you if you don't promise," the leader warned. Again they threatened to shoot. Mrs. Brunow promised for herself and the doctor. The two bandits then insisted on shaking hands with their victims. This proposal was made by the younger of the two in an almost tearful and repentant voice, it was said.

The robbers then fled down the 50-foot hall, a long flight of stairs and into the street before Dr. Brunow could clear obstructions, secure his gun and take a shot at the two men. It was his intention to rush for his gun, and either take a shot at them as they ran down the hall or shoot them down on the street from a window at the head of the stairs. Mrs. Brunow notified the sheriff's department a few minutes after the departure of the robbers.

One of the robbers was described as being about 30 years old. The younger robe was about 20 years old. Both were thought to be out door men, though not common laborers. The younger man had very blue eyes and fair skin. The other was also a blond. The younger wore a leather jacket. Both Mr. and Mrs. Brunow said they would recognize the robbers if they ever saw them again. Each of the two was about five feet and eight inches tall, and was slender.

They started to take a ring Mrs. Brunow was wearing but when she protested that it was her wedding ring they desisted. They also did not take an emerald ring Dr. Brunow was wearing when he told them, "you don't want that." Both the Brunows and officers were confident that the robbers were amateurs. "They had not the manner of professionals and they didn't handle their guns as if they were used to them," Dr. Brunow said.

Was a Single Man

Was a single man in the apartment located on the same floor during the robbery.

Both county and city officers were combing the city and countryside for the five minutes after the holdup. Officers of the Pampa police were notified to be on the lookout for them.

JURY IN SHEPARD CASE RETIRES BUT GIVES NO VERDICT

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Dec. 20. (AP)—The jury in the case of Major Charles A. Shepard, accused of the poison murder of his wife, retired for the night at 10.03.

The jurors retired to deliberate at 2:58 p.m. after being charged by Judge Richard J. Hopkins.

They were instructed that three verdicts could be returned—acquittal; conviction of first degree murder without recommendations, which means death; and conviction "without capital punishment."

District Attorney Sardinus M. Brewster in making the prosecution's final plea declared that Shepard had "put away" his wife with bicarbonate of mercury because she stood in the way of his love for Miss Grace Brandon, blond stenographer of San Antonio who was a government witness in the trial.

Brewster did not directly demand the death penalty. Harry S. Clark of Denver, chief of defense counsel, told the jury Shepard had been "crucified" by the government in what he termed a trumped up case of circumstantial evidence. He asked the jurors not to "ruin away a man's life, but to send Shepard free to finish his days in restoring the wrecks of the war."

THREE FOUND GASED IN ROOMING HOUSE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20. (AP)—Three men were found dead today in a gas-filled room on the third floor of a rooming house in the Kensington section of the city.

The door to the room was forced open after the men had failed to appear for a week. All three were sitting upright in chairs.

Police said they found evidence the men had been drinking and believed one accidentally had knocked open a gas jet.

Two of the men were identified as Albert Smith and James Creron.

JEFF LOVE OIL WELL BEGANS FLOW AGAIN

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP)—The Jeff Love oil well of Evans and Gant about 40 miles west of Kerrville began flowing again at 8 p.m. today before the drill had pierced the bottom of the hole.

The flow was about 80 barrels in 40 minutes, according to C. A. Kelsey, who went from the well to Kerrville to report to Evans in person. Walter Gant, one of the owners, estimated that breaking up of 30 feet more of the hole will necessitate bailing before the bottom of the hole is reached. Kelsey said that after the 40-minute flow, the well was making heads every two minutes, and he believed the flow would

Senator Shortridge, Republican, California, inquired as to the relevancy of this to the nomination. Cutting replied it seemed "entirely relevant" when the "money put up to elect a democratic senator came in a large measure from the power interests."

Glenn called attention to reports that the Democratic national committee had declined to aid Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Norris' democratic opponent, because Norris had supported Smith.

This brought Senator Tydings, of Maryland, chairman of the Democratic senatorial committee, to the floor with the statement that he sent Hitchcock a check for $1,000 but it was returned with the explanation the nominee "always believed in limited campaign funds."

Glenn denied a charge by Norris that he approved of the literature sent out by Lucas.

CHRISTMAS A QUIET DAY FOR FAMOUS CHICAGOANS

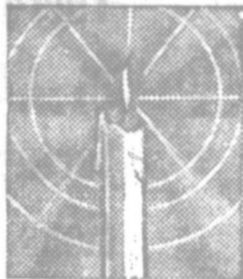

CHICAGO, Dec. 20 (AP)—Christmas for famous Chicagoans, or famous folk here during the holidays, will be quiet and homey.

Mayor William Hale Thompson, just back from a hunting trip, will spend a quiet Christmas at home, maybe a few friends in for bridge in the evening.

None knows if Al Capone will be here for the holidays but plans for a family Christmas — tree, dinner and all — have been made at his south side home.

Samuel Insull, Mrs. Insull and their son and his wife will have a home Christmas at the electric magnate's town house. Possibly a trip to the opera will end the day.

Mary Garden, the prima donna, possibly may have a few guests in for dinner at her Lake Shore drive apartment.

Years from now, when it's time to say "Merry Christmas," your gift of a Royal Portable Typewriter will still be the family's most convenient means of writing. The finest of portables—only $60.

Markets

CATTLE PRICE UP

MARKING CITY, Dec. 20. (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Livestock trade around the 11-market circuit this week was featured by a reaction on fed steers and long yearlings. Better grades of fed steers moved to an unusually good advantage showing a general upturn of 25-50. Country demand for replacement stock continued slow with a weak to lower week prevailing throughout the week. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 151,500.

Under the influence of a fairly broad shipping demand the lighter weights of hogs under 200 pounds are closing strong to 10 higher with a week ago while medium and heavy hogs are on a weak to 15 lower basis. St. Louis had a late top of $3.55. Offerings were around 498,000. Fat lambs are generally 25 higher for the week and secured killing classes of sheep are unevenly steady to 25 higher. On the close Chicago had a top of $3.35 on fat lambs. The supply numbered around 304,000.

COTTON IS FIRM LATE

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 20. (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The cotton market today after opening somewhat irregular and declining 1 to 5 points in early trading, turned firmer later, principally on covering by satisfied shorts for over the week end. There was also some trade buying by 200 to 250 bales in the bullish view of the spinning statistics issued by the census bureau at the start. The bureau made the total spinning to December 13, 13,269,622 bales or only 234,782 bales for the last period as against 22,895 for the corresponding period last year.

There developed rather a scarcity of contracts and prices bulged 3 to 25 points from the early lows. There was a slight reaction on some months at the end of the realizing and the close was barely steady. The general market showing net gains for the day of 6 to 13 points. Liverpool came in 1 to 4 penny points worse than due and private cables stated that there had been weak and liquidation but the tone was steady on trade calling. The opening here was irregular or unchanged to 5 points up. The market soon eased off on realizing. March dropping to 9.91 and May to 10.17 down 4 points from the opening, and 1 to 5 points under the close of yesterday.

The market later rallied on weak bid covering and trade buying helped probably by a bullish construction of the spinning total. January traded up to 9.79 up 22 points while March advanced to 10.05 and May to 10.32 or 14 to 15 points up from the lows. While January and March closed at the highs, May closed at 10.28 and 4 points under the best.

Best receipts 81,135, for season 6,740,454, last season 6,829,919. Exports 5,208, for season 3,845,858, last season 3,889,897. Port stock 4,270, 635, last year, 2,708,460. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 145,888, last year 122,154. Spot sales at southern markets 455,889, last year 122,154.

NEW GRAIN UPSETS

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN Associated Press Market Editor—CHICAGO, Dec. 20. (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Surprise aspects of the government crop report pointing to large domestic wheat and rye acreage led to record breaking new upsels in grain today. July delivery of wheat and most deliveries of wheat were upheld by government sponsored agencies. Excess of all grain at domestic primary centers were considerably larger than a year ago.

Wheat closed unsettled at yesterday's finish to 1 1/2 cents lower. Corn closed 3/4 to 1 cent down, oats 3/4 to 1 cent off, and provisions from a 2 cent setback to a rise of 22.

Lowest prices in wheat came at the outset, and carried July down to 6 1/2 cents, an overnight drop of 1 1/2 cents a bushel, outdoing yesterday's bottom record which itself was the lowest since 1901. Most traders acted chiefly on official disclosure that only a small decrease in United States winter acreage had been effected, and that rye acreage showed an increase instead of a substantial decrease.

Active selling generated by the influence of wheat weakness and by favorable weather accelerated the downward swing of corn. On the extreme breaks in prices, buying enlarged, but rallies failed to hold well. May corn fell to 1 1/2 cents, last 22 cents a bushel before the high point attained in August during the drought. Oats followed other cereals.

Scantiness of lard offerings tended to lift the provision market. Closing indifferents: wheat, Mar. (cents) 75 1/2 to 76 1/2; May 81 1/2 to 82 1/2; 65, 67 1/2 to 68; Corn: Dec. (cids) 74 1/2; March 69 1/2; 50 1/2 to 51; May 70 1/2 to 71; 73 1/2 to 74; July 71 1/2, 74 1/2.

THREE FOUND GASSED IN ROOMING HOUSE

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 20. (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—Three men were found dead today in a gas-filled room on the third floor of a rooming house in the Kensington section of the city.

The door to the room was forced open after the men had failed to appear for a week. All three were sitting upright in chairs.

Police said they found evidence the men had been drinking and believed one accidentally had knocked over a gas jet.

Two of the men were identified as Albert Smith and James Cronin.

Every policeman in the city and the fire department were summoned to the jail.

JEFF LOVE OIL WELL BEGANS FLOW AGAIN

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 20. (U. S. Dept. Agr.)—The Jeff Love oil well of Evans and Gant about 40 miles west of Kerrville began flowing again at 9 p.m. today before the drill had pierced the bottom of the hole, Louise L. Evans one of the owners, said.

The flow was about 60 barrels in 40 minutes, according to O. A. Kelsey, who went from the well to Kerrville to report to Evans in person. Walter Gant, one of the owners estimated that breaking up of 30 feet more of the hole will necessitate bailing. Before the bottom of the hole is reached, Kelsey said that after the 40-minute flow, the well was making heads every two minutes, and he believed the flow would

FRIGIDAIRE in her Christmas stocking. A brand-new gift idea for men who don't hold back at Christmas time. Frigidaire has created a beautiful sterling silver medallion, or "Medal of Honor," that we're putting on all Christmas gift Frigidaires at no extra cost. This medallion is engraved with the name of the fortunate one who gets the Frigidaire, or with both her name and yours. We'll engrave one of these medallions for you and tuck it away in a handsome silver case. When you wrap it up with all the Christmas trimmings and slip it into the slim chiffon stocking that she's hung beside the fireplace. The result will be a surprise that is a surprise. And there will be no question but that you'll rate as the Prince of Thoughtful Givers. Because there's no Christmas Gift in the world like a Frigidaire. It's a gift that is lasting—a gift that she'll use every day in the year—a gift that shows how much you love her. Incidentally, Frigidaire prices this Christmas are lower than they've ever been before. And we'll agree to special Christmas terms. KELLEY APARTMENT ELEGANT

RESIDENCE STRUCTURE IS ERECTED AT COST OF MORE THAN $20,000 IN PAMPA

Declared to be the best equipped apartments in Pampa are those in the new residential improvement completed for W. A. "Tex" Kelley on East Browning at a cost of more than $20,000.

Landscaping will make the twin buildings unusually attractive. A grass plot has been provided between the structures. Furniture of unusual cost and attractiveness, roll-away beds, good ventilation, ample electrical outlets, and neat arrangements are distinctive living accommodations.

The apartments are composed of combination living and bedrooms, kitchen and dining rooms, and bath rooms. Living rooms have wicker sets and davenport beds. Sound-deadening walls between apartments will add to the enjoyment of the occupants, and this feature alone has aroused much favorable comment.

Popularity of the apartments was indicated in the fact that each was rented before completion of the buildings. Units rent for from $55 to $60 per month with the owner paying the utility bills. The rooms are completely furnished, even to dishes, but no linens are provided. Exteriors, the Kelly apartments are pleasing in their dark brown brick with a tint of red. Garage and storage space add to the convenience given renters.

Associated in construction of the apartments were Harvey C. Allen, architect and builder, and O. V. Ross, contractor.

Fridges were placed in each apartment by Southwestern Public Service company, Malone Furniture company provided the furniture and floor coverings. Building materials were from the Panhandle Lumber company, Fox Paint and Wallpaper company, E. L. King, Barland weatherstrip dealer, Pampa Electric company and Davis Plumbing company also had a part in completing the structures.

Mrs. L. V. Hollar left the Pampa hospital Friday night.

CLUB WOMEN HAVE CANNED MANY QUARTS

Members of the Gray county women's home demonstration club canned 14,369 quarts of food in 4-H pantry demonstration work during the last year. The total value of the food canned was $7,180.45, basing the value of the food between 35 cents and $1 per quart.

There were 117 women who did work in the 4-H pantry demonstrations but only 80 of these made their reports and it is from these reports that the above totals were compiled.

The quarts of food canned were: fruit, 3390 1-2 quarts @ 50c, $1,695.25; vegetables, 5,107 1-2 quarts @ 35c, $1,787.25; cereals, 537 1-2 @ various prices, $198.43; preserves, jellies, and jams, 2,337 @ 80c, $1,869.60; fruit juices, 522 @ 40c, $208.80; pickles and relishes, 1,552 @ 50c, $776; canned meats, 933, including boneless chicken and turkey, prices varying from 35c to $1, $324.75.

Next year it is hoped to double the amount of work done and food canned in the 4-H pantry work.

Women who made canning reports this year were: Mrs. Reep Landers, Mrs. Mike Perry, Mrs. R. Phillips, Mrs. Evan Sitter, Mrs. Roy

EXPLAINS HIS MOTIVE ABOUT LATE REVOLT

GUATEMALA PRESIDENT GIVES ASSOCIATED PRESS STATEMENT

General Manuel Orellana, newly selected provisional president of Guatemala in a message to the Associated Press today said his government had been instituted purely to uphold a constitutional regime in his country.

He announced his intention to maintain liberty and constitutional rights and return to normal government as soon as possible.

BY GENERAL MANUEL ORELLANA Provisional President of Guatemala PRESIDENTIAL PALACE, GUATEMALA CITY, December 20. (AP)—I am pleased indeed to avail myself of the opportunity which the Associated Press has given me to explain the motives behind the military movement that brought about the resignation of President Baudilio Palma Dec. 16 and my subsequent induction to the executive mansion of Guatemala.

The movement was the direct consequence of a usurpation of the presidency of the republic by Dr. Baudilio Palma December 12. Dr. Palma is a relative and dear friend of the constitutional President General Lazaro Chacon, now ill in bed. He was the second designate to the presidency, which is our term for the second vice presidency. The first designate or first vice president was General Mauro De Leon, who held at the same time the war portfolio under Chacon.

When President Chacon took ill suddenly, Palma, taking advantage of his kinship to the president, started a vast intrigue aimed at placing the country under the control of the conservative party. He persuaded the ministers to name him president, although the constitution provides that in the absence of the president, the first designate should fill his place. He then, using coercion, obtained the necessary legislation from congress to assume the reins of government.

But the constitution of Guatemala provides that only in the case of death of the president of the council of ministers may call upon the first designate to assume charge, and should the first designate be unavailable, then the second designate is called upon. Palma, however, tried to evade the spirit of the constitution by saying that article 89 justified him in assuming charge. Article 89, however, provides that when the president is ill or absent, he himself will, with the sanction of congress, appoint his substitute.

Palma did not consult General Chacon. Neither did he have Chacon's sanction or the unfettered expression of congress to assume the presidency. As a matter of fact, Palma's act was the equivalent of a coup d'etat and he became the de facto president.

The three liberal parties represented in congress registered their protest against this usurpation and sent a delegation to the first designate who had been virtually arrested in his own house under Palma's orders. Palma summoned the delegation and told its members that he was de facto president. The

CHRISTMAS NOTES

HONOLULU IMPORTS CALIFORNIA TREES

HONOLULU, (AP)—Every year the city of Honolulu imports its Christmas trees from California.

Hawaii has snow-capped mountains, but there are no suitable evergreen trees, so the proper Yuletide touch is brought 2,400 miles to the mid-Pacific.

DRESS LIKE HALLOWEEN FOR CHRISTMAS PARTIES

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Observance of Christmas day by many persons of Scandinavian lineage in Minnesota assumes an aspect of Halloween.

The practice is to dress in clownish costumes and wear grotesque faces, and then arrayed to visit neighbors. It is called the "ale book," which in Norwegian means "Christmas Lol."

MISSOURI GETS TREES FROM NEAR AND AFAR

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Although evergreen forests of the Ozarks are close at hand, St. Louis gets many Christmas trees from the state of Washington.

Half a dozen carloads from the Pacific Northwest reached here early in December. Shipments this year are on a par with movements in other years, railroad officials report. Additional cars from the Ozark country were expected.

NEW ENGLAND LIKES BOBSLED RIDES

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP)—In Vermont and other Northern New England states Christmas is entirely in keeping with the child's conception of Santa Claus with a sleigh and reindeer.

On snow covered streets, the rattle of sleigh bells mingles with the clanking of automobile chains.

During the holiday season many an automobile is idle while its owner, with other young people, some from smart colleges, bundles into an old-fashioned bobsled.

HERE'S A TYPICAL VILLAGE CHRISTMAS

WATAGA, Ill. (AP)—Christmas eve William Shepherd and his wife will attend the community celebration at a small church near their farm just outside Wataga.

There will be songs, recitations and games by the children of the neighborhood, after which a Santa Claus will distribute gifts to the youngsters.

On Christmas Shepherd and his brothers and sisters and their families will gather at the home of his widowed mother for a goose dinner. The gathering is a yearly event.

MOVIE STARS SHOP LIKE EVERYONE ELSE

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Yuletide is open season on star-gazing on Hollywood boulevard, where modernistic Christmas trees and proclaim the transformation of the town's main street into "Santa Claus lane."

Shoppers seldom are surprised to find themselves side by side in the delegation then attempted to return to congress, but the presidential police prevented them from attaining their aim.

The army, which is sworn to obey the constitution and to see that it is obeyed, had no other alternative but to force Palma to live up to the spirit and letter of the constitution. The army, therefore, proceeded to establish a new provisional government and I was honored with the chief post, in a temporary character.

Christmas Music To Be Broadcast

In response to hundreds of requests sent in to "Peggy and Pat" by radio listeners, special Christmas music will be featured by the Conoco orchestra and male quartet on the fourth of the Conoco listeners' Hour series. The program will be broadcast in this region by station WFAA, Dallas, from 6:30 to 7 Monday evening.

Betsy Ayres, popular radio soprano and featured artist at the Roxy theater in New York City, will be guest star of the program. Miss Ayres will also sing numbers requested by the radio audience.

Other highlights of the program include a double piano number by the orchestra's two pianists, and a string quartet selection. As usual, "Peggy and Pat" will supervise the program and select the musical numbers from the requests submitted by listeners.

This program is the fourth of a series of 26 weekly broadcasts sponsored by the Continental Oil company.

ARCTIC POST CELEBRATES IN WEEK'S FROLIC OF ESKIMOS

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Dec. 20. (AP)—Perhaps the world's most unique Christmas celebration is held in this most northerly settlement of North America.

More than 300 Eskimos, guests of half a dozen white residents here, will arrive on dog sleds for the fete.

It lasts a week—through the "midnight week" of the three-months' Arctic night.

There are football games—with goals three or four miles apart—feats of reindeer and whale meat, canned goods from the states topped by frozen fish from the Arctic—and a Christmas tree made of two-by-fours and colored paper.

Few of these Eskimos have ever seen a real tree, for the nearest ones grow 400 miles away. Next to a little community at Spitzbergen, this is called the world's most northermost settlement.

The week's program here is followed haphazardly. It makes little difference when the celebrants sing, eat, pray or play—and candles burn at all times.

The sun set Nov. 17, its reflection disappeared Nov. 24 and its light will not creep over the frozen wastes again in this region until Jan. 22.

Most important of all mail deliveries, of course, is the Christmas mail, brought overland by a dog team that leaves Kotzebue in November—as late as possible, yet early enough so Christmas delivery won't be late.

Hosts at this celebration are the missionary, trader, school teacher, radio operator and a few women and children, and their guests' feasts and running and kicking games of football alike last three or four hours at a stretch.

Labels rush with screen celebrities, who like other people worry over shipping lists and frequently are forced to make—even as you and you—a last-minute rush in search of that gift for Uncle John or Aunt Sally.

TRIALS AND HARDSHIPS OF EARLY PIONEERS RECREATED IN MOVIE 'THE BIG TRAIL'

While the proclamation of President Hoover, asking for a general and fitting observance of the centenary of the conquest of the Oregon trail, recalls how some 350,000 men, women and children crossed the mountains and helped so much to win the West, Raoul Walsh's "The Big Trail," the epochal movie produced by Fox Film corporation, re-creates and echoes the trials and hardships of those hardy pioneers. "The Big Trail," a re-enactment of the march of the pioneers westward over the many trails, stands as a tribute to the bravest folk in American history, the men, women and children who went over the Oregon, the Santa Fe and the Overland, and others and who nobly contributed flesh, blood and courage to the winning of the west.

During April, 1830, Jedediah Smith, David Jackson and William Sublette, St. Louis fur partners, cracked their bull whips, tied "advances" and led out a train of ten wagons, two dearborns and eighty-one men on muleback—the first wheels ever to turn on the Northern route. They reached the foot of the Rockies, but Jed Smith, who had crossed the Sierras in midwinter before any other white man, said the wagons could have gone right on to the coast. Six years later, Dr. Marcus Whitman and the Rev. Henry N. Paulding, with their young wives, provided it by journeying through to Fort Walla Walla where the British Union Jack then flew. In 1843 Whitman returned and led out a train of wagons—the advance guard of the emigration that won the Oregon-Washington country to the United States.

In 1872 Francis Parkman, an invalid New England youth, as a preface to his book, wrote these prophetic words:

"I remember that, as we rode by the foot of Pike's Peak, my companion remarked that a time would come when these plains would be a grazing country, the buffaloes give place to domestic cattle and farmhouses be scattered along the water courses."

Were Parkman living today he would see with his own eyes his prophecy come true: travel in the air from Westport Landing to the Pacific between sunup and sunset; calveades of motor tourists and auto busses on the Lincoln Highway, and he would also see re-enacted by humans the scenes of a century ago and less than that by a company of thousands of screen players, enduring just as many hardships and without the incentive of finding gold or new homes at the end of the journey.

TYLER LIONS STATE HIGH SCHOOL CHAMPIONSHIP PENNANT 25 TOUSANDS COME BACK IN FINAL

TYLER TO OUTPLAY SANDIES BEFORE 17,000 IN STADIUM

BY GALE TALBOT, JR., Associated Press Sports Writer
FORT WORTH, Tex., Dec. 20 (AP)—Out from the piney woods of East Texas came a fighting band of Tyler Lions to quell Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm, 25 to 13 and win the 1930 high school football championship of the largest state. An estimated crowd of 17,000 witnessed the schoolboy classic, almost filling Texas Christian University's stadium.

Roundly underrated all season, the plucky, well balanced machine of Coach George Foltz proved itself a worthy champion by coming back to score three touchdowns in the second half after the powerful Amarillo eleven had led, 13 to 6, at the intermission. There was no doubt which was the more alert, more effective unit for the day. The sandstorm blew itself out in scoring its two touchdowns in the second period and thereafter was no match for the scrapping boys from Smith County.

At the half Amarillo appeared a certain winner, having piled up six first downs to Tyler's three and credited with 183 yards gained from scrimmage as against the Lions. Bufkin and Fowler, twin stars of the Sandies backfield, had ripped the Tyler Lions apart in the second quarter. But what a difference in the second half. Not only did the blue-jerseyed Lions pile down the field for three touchdowns and 12 first downs, but they stopped the Amarillo running game almost dead and forced the Sandies to turn to the air. Then, when their adversaries from the far Panhandle tried to equalize, the Lions intercepted pass after pass and turned them into ammunition for their own guns.

Harry Johnson, Tyler quarterback and bright particular star of the new champions, failed to display any of his vaunted prowess for the first 30 minutes of play but he finally emerged all over the Sandies during his team's triumphant second half. His accurate passes to Morris and C. Gregory paved the way for two touchdowns, he ripped off numerous substantial runs around the wings and his punts shook off every Amarillo assault on the Tyler goal. His longest run was for 26 yards in his own 13-yard line late in the game and on the next play he got off a punt that sailed over the Amarillo safety's head and across the Sandy goal. The two plays resulted indirectly in Tyler's fourth and decisive touchdown as a moment later, C. Glass, Lion center, intercepted a pass from Fowler and romped 25 yards unimpeded for a score.

Amarillo, for some reason or other, failed to display the fire and punch that characterized its victory over Comstock in the semi-finals last week. Perhaps the Sandies backs, Bufkin and Fowler, were upset by a faulty passing game from center early in the game. And again, perhaps they were up against a Tyler line and secondary defense that simply refused to give way before their off-tackle smashes. Whatever the cause, the Amarillo offense that functioned so beautifully a week ago could not progress in any spectacular way today. Tyler was the better team, front, back and through the middle.

The initial period almost was completed, after monotonous sawing from one end of the field to the other, before Tyler got the break that led to the first touchdown. Fowler, attempting to kick down the field, was slow getting it away and it was partially blocked. "Mule" Hill, Tyler fullback, recovered on the Sandies' 13-yard line. Johnson lost nine yards on an attempted run, but on the next play, whipped a pass to Morris, who went over the Amarillo goal line standing up.

Coming back strong at the outset of the second period, the Sandies fought Tyler back into its end of the field and finally got a telling break when Morris fumbled a pass from Johnson and Fowler recovered on the 13-yard mark. On the first play Fowler piled around end behind a wave of interference for a touchdown.

An intercepted pass led to another Amarillo score before the period ended. Scanlan stopped a toss on Tyler's 34 yard stripe. A pass, Fowler to Bufkin carried to the 16, and a play later Fowler, who was up in the air, caught the ball and fought his way across Tyler's goal. When Allen kicked the extra point, Amarillo led 13 to 6.

ALABAMA'S CRIMSON TIDE WORKS OUT AT SAN ANTONIO FIELD

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP) Alabama's Crimson Tide worked out here this afternoon before continuing on the journey to Pasadena, for the game with the undefeated Cougars of Washington State in the tournament of roses New Year's day football game. The south's entry in the post-season classic embarked on its special train and journeyed on at 3 o'clock.

Coach Wallace Wade explained the workout was to lumber the squad up after its long train ride. He refused to predict victory or defeat but said: "The Cougars are a little bit better than we are, but we are going to do our best to win." Wade added he considers the 1930 Alabama outfit one of the best he has produced.

The squad of 35 men opened the workout with kicking and pass work. Then they went through a noisy signal drill, dividing into three elevens. "Noisy" is the word for the offensive play of the Tide. The entire team participates in the signal calling and men thunder a military 1-2-3-4 as it charges down the field.

next play was intercepted by Scanlan for Amarillo on Tyler's 34-yard line. Fowler flipped a pass to Bufkin for 18 yards, Bufkin ripped five off tackle, and Fowler romped through the center 11 yards for a touchdown. Allen kicked the point and Amarillo led, 13 to 6. Amarillo kicked off to Tyler's 26-yard line, but Scanlan intercepted another pass on Tyler's 46-yard line as the half ended.

Third Period
R. Gregory, Tyler end, took the kickoff, broke through the center of the charging Sandies, and ran 54 yards to Amarillo's 25-yard line before he stumbled and fell. He was touchdown bound until he stumbled. Johnson passed to Morris 16 yards for first down on the nine-yard line, then pegged another to Morris for a touchdown, Fowler missing a tackle on the five-yard line. D. Wilcox kicked for extra point and the score stood Amarillo 13, Tyler 12.

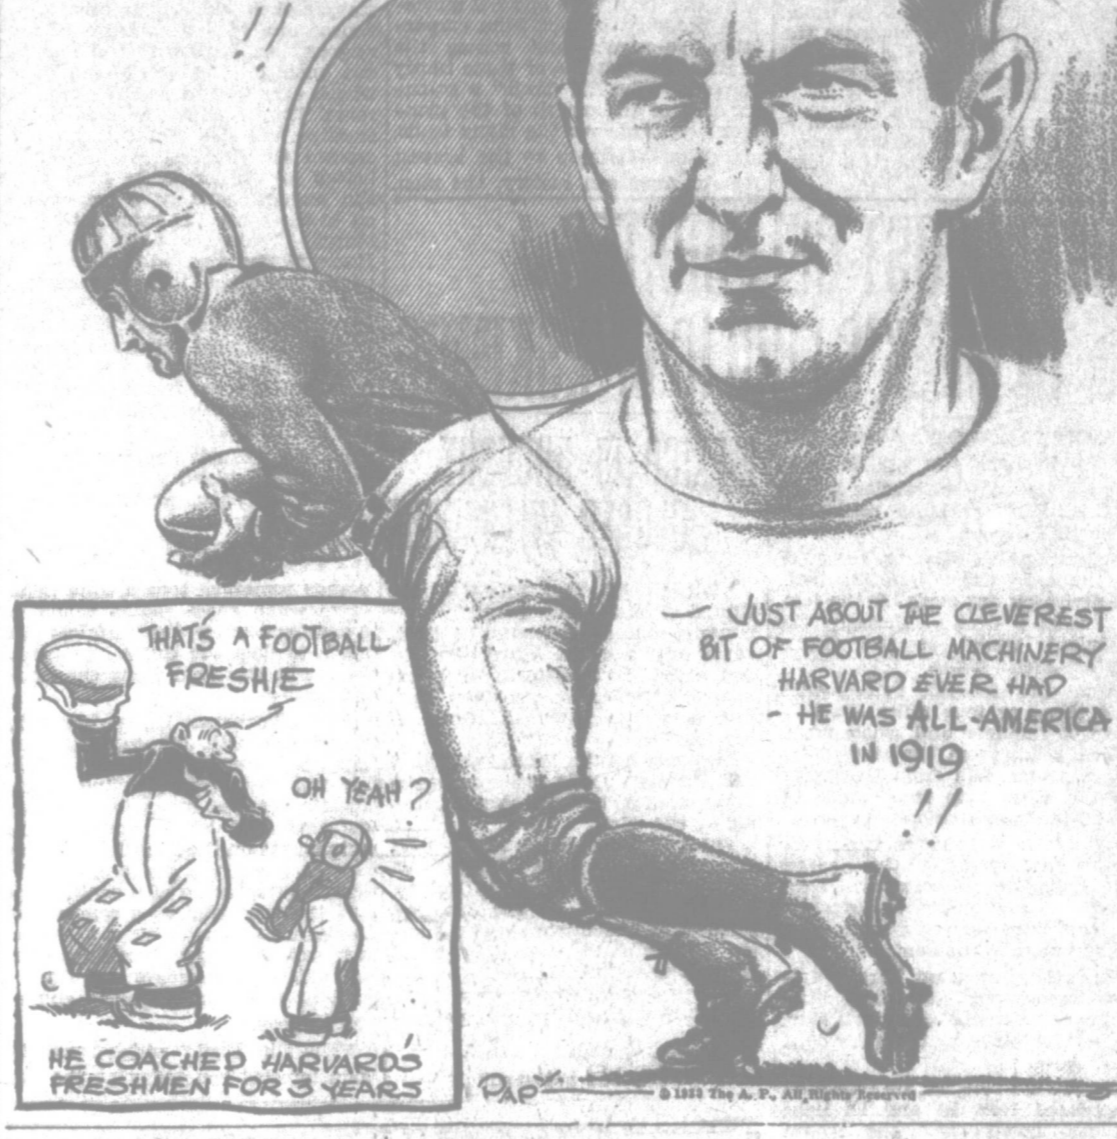

Amarillo received the kickoff on its own 41-yard line, and, falling at first down in three tries, kicked to Johnson on Tyler's 15 yard mark. Johnson kicked out on his own 32-yard line. Bufkin passed to Conaley 21 yards and first down on Tyler's nine-yard line. Scanlan rapped tackle for six, but Bufkin failed to gain in two tries and on the fourth down a pass was wild, the ball going over to Tyler on its own three-yard line. Morris, Tyler halfback got loose off tackle and ran the ball out 32 yards to his own 36 yard line before he was overtaken by Bufkin. Hill hit Johnson for 11 yards, Johnson made five in two tries, then Johnson whipped a pass to C. Gregory for 35 yards to Amarillo's 13-yard line. A pass, Johnson to Morris, gained eight and Hill plunged first down on the one-yard line. Hill went through center for a touchdown and Tyler led, 19 to 13, kicking off.

Fourth Period
Tyler kicked off to Amarillo's 34-yard line. Scanlan gained only seven yards in three tries and Fowler kicked to Tyler's 26-yard mark. Johnson passed to C. Gregory, 14 yards, but the Lions failed to gain from there and Johnson kicked to Fowler on Amarillo's 21-yard line. Fowler got loose around end for 18 yards and first down on his own 40-yard line. Fowler tossed a pass to Floyd for 20 yards, Floyd making a remarkable catch. Another pass went to Conaley, who fumbled Tyler recovering on its own 35-yard line. Johnson skirted end for 14 yards and first down at midfield as the third period ended.

Falling to gain at the start of the final period, Tyler kicked to Fowler, who returned the ball 20 yards to his own 44-yard line. Bufkin, Amarillo captain, took a pass from Fowler and ran to Tyler's 37-yard line. Bufkin hit tackle for four, two passes were wild and Fowler kicked out on Tyler's nine-yard line. Johnson hit two on an end run, then kicked a long rolling punt to Amarillo's 32-yard line. Fowler's pass was intercepted by Johnson, who ran it 15 yards to Amarillo's 16-yard line. A pass Johnson to Brumley gained eight yards, Johnson picked up another and Hill plunged first down on the forty-yard line. Tyler backs gained only a yard in three charges at the line and on fourth down Johnson passed across the goal line the oval was brought out to Amarillo's 20. Fowler made nine yards off tackle, then passed to Conaley for first down on his 45-yard line. Bufkin slipped off tackle for 10 yards and first down. Tyler held here and Fowler punted to Tyler's 13-yard line.

The Weather, Etc.
The New York Boxing Commission has demanded that Max Schmeling answer the challenge of a certain Boston sailor named Jack Sharkey. These two men, garbed in boxing tows, once gave Gus Public one of the most terrific lacerations dear old Gus ever suffered. Does the New York Boxing Commission want some more of the same for Gus? It may snow a great deal this winter.

THE STRIBLING CHORUS

In all its dignity and power, the National Boxing Association deems Max Schmeling null and void in view of his failure to defend his title six months after winning it. The N. B. A. casts call's eyes toward a certain Georgian named Young Stribling, most of whose fights have been entirely unsatisfactory. Excessive rains at this time of year are quite unusual.

WALKER

From the wilderness comes the cry of Dapper Jack Kearns, screaming for an embargo on behalf of his gladiator, the dog-boy, Mickey Walker. Mr. Kearns has numerous inducements, being ready to offer as a guarantee a couple of banks in North Dakota, he doesn't remember the names of, an 80-acre squirrel farm atop Pikes Peak, a couple of shares in the C. H. C. & C. river, several slightly used umbrellas and an old pair of dice. Isn't that wind biting?

THE MASTER

Perennially the cry comes for some more of Dempsey. It is hard to forget the left hand that laid them low, and the right that increased in volume like a forest fire, comes the rumor that the original American 100 per cent Dempsey may return to meet Max, his German carbon copy. Did somebody say "counterfeit"? It may be cloudy here, but do not forget that somewhere the sun is always shining.

CHANGE TAX PAYMENTS

SWEETWATER, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP) Voters of Sweetwater today approved a change in the city charter providing for payment of taxes every three months instead of annually as at present. The vote was negligible but convincing, the count being 125 to 14.

WILL BUILD SCHOOL

ASPERMONT, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP) Voters of the Old Glory school district today approved a $25,000 bond issue for constructing an eight-room one-story school building with an auditorium. The structure will be located on the east side of the town and is expected to be completed by next fall.

ERNEST MARTIN LEADS GOLF PROFESSIONALS IN PASADENA TOURNEY

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 20. (AP)—Ernest Martin, Los Angeles professional, went into the lead in the second day's play of the $4,000 Pasadena open golf tournament today with a par 71, which with his 72 of yesterday gave him a 36-hole score of 143.

Martin enclosed a string of tournament favorites including Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour, Craig Wood, Harry Cooper and Al Espinosa who were from one to four strokes back of the leader.

Tony Manero, Herman Barron, Ray Mangrum of Dallas and Al Espinosa were in a tie for second place at 144. Manero had a 73-71. Espinosa lagged at a 71-73, Barron 74-70 and Mangrum 72-72.

MINOR LEAGUE VOTES TO ACCEPT PLAN OF MAJORS ABOUT DRAFT

CHICAGO, Dec. 20. (AP)—The battle of the minor leagues, thrown together as a stone wall in their fight against the major leagues over the draft question, broke at a startling point today. The break came in the American Association story when a majority of that eight-club league voted to surrender to the demand of the majors by accepting the draft plan. It was the first break in the fight, which had threatened to disrupt all business relations between the big and small brothers of baseball.

President Hickey of the American Association, long one of the leading opposing leagues to the universal baseball draft, said five clubs in the league had voted to accept the major league proposal on the subject. Two had rejected it while another club still was to be heard from. The question of final acceptance or rejection was carried on by a mail vote.

ASPERMONT, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP) A proposed $500,000 road bond issue which would have provided for the hardening of four state designated highways traversing Stone-wall county, was defeated today by a vote of 500 against and 342 for the measure. Road improvement advocates have expressed disappointment at the Aspermont returns 165 for and 113 against the issue. Three small towns, unrepresented tonight, will not change the results of the election.

OLD-TIMERS OF THE PAMPAS

(By Archer Fullington)
 Proof that Scotchmen enjoy Scotch jokes better than anyone else is John Fraser himself. You tell one and he'll tell a better one. You might keep it up for 15 or 30 minutes but he could keep it up for an hour . . . except that if you didn't seem like an hour. Mrs. Fraser says it's usually a wise man that capitalizes upon a race which arouses a smile; that it's so much better to admit that one was born in Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma, than to deny it. H. B. Lovett is of the same opinion. Said he the other day, "never ask a man where he was born; if he was born in Texas he will tell you; if he wasn't then why embarrass the poor man by asking?"

To this Mr. Fraser retorted, "a man cannot help being born in a given place, but he can help it if he's not living in Texas!" Mr. Fraser has not been here as long as Jess Wynne, Mr. Lovett, Mrs. Walstead, but he has been living in Gray county 40 years, and that's a good long time to live in any place.

Born in Scotland
 Like many another old-timer of the pampas, Mr. Fraser was not born in the United States. In the '70s, '80s and '90s, the adventuresome and brave flocked to the Panhandle from all parts of the world. For instance, Dr. V. E. von Brunow came from Germany, the late Henry Thant and Alex Schneider and Perry LaFors from Switzerland, Mrs. Marian Walstead from Norway, Mrs. J. S. Wynne from Wales, Mr. Fraser was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and came to the United States at the age of 20 with an uncle, William Stroup who now lives at Tucumcari, N. M.

He landed in New York and came direct to Marlin in Falls county, Texas. On Jan. 4, 1891 he filed on a section in the south part of Gray county, three miles west of the Carson county line and on the Doherty county line. There he established his residence and there he has lived ever since. Of the nine children born to Mr. and Mrs. Fraser in Gray county, seven are living. They are Mrs. Willis Emery and Mrs. M. N. Parker of Boydston, John Fraser, Jr., of Groom; Mrs. J. T. Ely of Wellington; W. T. "Bill" Fraser of Pampa. Two children, Walter K. Fraser and Miss Winnie Fraser live at home. Mr. Fraser was born July 4, 1864. He tells you that everybody celebrates his birthday, including himself.

He Punched Cattle
 For a short time after Mr. Fraser left Marlin, he lived at Waco. Like most all of the old-timers of this territory, Mr. Fraser punched cattle for a time after he came to the Panhandle. He helped build one of the first fences in the Panhandle. This was for "Colonel Goodnight, who had most of this immediate vicinity leased in the early '80s, including the land on which Pampa is now located. When Mr. Fraser first saw what is now Pampa all that was visible was a few cow trails that intersected each other. Colonel Goodnight's cattle grazed placidly over the present city limits. He knew the colonel well and was one of his intimate associates.

Mr. Fraser is the oldest postmaster of Gray county, and perhaps in the Panhandle, in point of service. He established a postoffice at Boydston when the stages were bringing the mail. He still operates the postoffice, and the government for sentimental reasons won't abandon it, although the mail bags are rather silent and inconspicuous. The postoffice at Boydston is one of the oldest in the Panhandle.

Mr. Fraser's interests are extensive. He still takes an active interest in farming, and in addition operates two elevators at Boydston and one at Groom. His property is lying over a wide slice of the Panhandle. He has always taken an active interest in affairs of the county. For years, he has been the acknowledged leader of citizens living in the southwest section of the county. He has never held a public office in the county, but when he speaks it is the voice of his community.

Philosophy of Thrift
 Yesterday while attending the hearing on the road bond issue, Mr. Fraser expressed some ideas about the current depression. Said he, "They tell you to spend more. How can a man spend when his salary has been cut and he has been laid off. I know men on charity now who used to make from ten to fifteen dollars per day. What's wrong? Why, when the man was making good money, he should have saved some of it for a rainy day. America will always have business depressions and panics as long as the people spend everything they make. You can't cure a depression but you can prevent one, and the only way to eliminate hard times is to save when there are good times. You Okla.

mark my word; our citizens have got to learn to save part of what they make—they are learning that lesson now. It is good for them. This propaganda that one should spend everything he makes is vicious and destructive. As long as most Americans do spend all of their wages, there will be hard times every so often.

DIRECTOR ON TRIP
 "Pop" Fraser, general director of the high school orchestra and band, is off on a trip for the holidays. "Pop" said that the family would go to Dallas and McKinney, and he was going to bring back plenty of music for the band. Miss Margaret Oshes and Miss Angela Strand accompanied the Frasers on the trip.

THANK FRIENDS HERE
 We wish to take this method of extending our thanks to all of our sympathetic friends for their much appreciated kindness during our misfortune in the loss of our home. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cobb and Children.

TREE CUTTERS CAUGHT
IDAHO FALLS, Ida., Dec. 20.—Some poor families who weren't going to have Christmas trees are looking forward now to receiving them from forest rangers. Three truck loads of trees were confiscated after they had been cut down in national forests without federal permission.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Vandegriff are the parents of a seven-pound boy born Friday at the Pampa hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Austin are the parents of a daughter born Friday morning at St. Anthony's hospital in Amarillo.

An application for a marriage license was filed Friday by R. E. Koerner and Mildred Stewart, both of Pampa.

Legionnaire Clifford Taylor, of the Courthouse cafe, is making up a Christmas gift box to be sent to the Pampa ex-service men in the U. S. Veterans hospital at Muskogee, Okla.

RESCUE BOATS COMB WATERS OFF LASO ISLE

MANY DROWN WHEN 2 VESSELS CRASH IN DENSE FOG

BY AXEL GERFAK
COPENHAGEN, Dec. 20. (AP)—Rescue vessels that had combed the fog hidden Categat for 24 hours tonight, virtually abandoned the search for possible additional survivors of one of the worst marine disasters in the history of the Danish coast. The sinking of the Finnish liner Oberon off Laso Island.

Commanders of the vessels expressed belief any further search would be unsuccessful. At least 40 persons, and possibly more, are believed to have been drowned when the Oberon went down, or to have perished later in a sea of flaming oil that escaped from the vessel's hold. The Oberon was rammed and sunk late last night in a dense fog by her sister ship, the Arcturus, of the same line.

By a strange coincidence, the two vessels were commanded by brothers, Captains Erik and Ossi Hjelt. The Arcturus, after the tragedy, picked up Captain Erik Hjelt as he swam in the icy waters with the body of his drowned four-year-old daughter in his arms.

Captain Erik Hjelt's wife also was

SUPREME COURT GETS READY FOR NEW YEAR

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP)—Getting ready for the New Year, the supreme court today disposed of a large number of applications for writs of error, virtually disposed of its rehearing docket and ordered a complete revision of rules.

Such a large number of cases were passed on that the clerk's staff was unable to complete the proceedings today. It was the largest day's work since the court convened after the summer vacation.

One of the new rules specified that attorneys must stay within the record in arguing a case, under penalty of having the appeal dismissed.

One of the important cases taken by the court today was the mandamus proceedings brought by John W. Crawford, Dallas osteopath to deny the right of the board of medical examiners to deny him an examination for a physician's license. The court granted Crawford's petition for leave to file motion for mandamus.

MANVILLE DIVORCED BY FORMER SECRETARY

RENO, Nev., Dec. 20. (AP)—Thomas F. Manville, Jr., a millionaire, whose divorce from Lois Abilene McCoin Manville, former stenographer to the late Thomas F. Manville, president of the Johns-Manville company.

Mrs. Manville, second wife of the younger Manville, won her divorce on grounds of desertion.

Papers covering a property settlement were sealed but it was said Mrs. Manville will get an income of $1,600 a month.

Manville married his father's stenographer September 30, 1925, in New York. Complaint charged desertion on Nov. 15, 1926. Manville previously had been divorced by Florence Huber, Folles girl.

Mrs. Manville came here three months ago and has been lavish in entertaining.

History Movie Books Available

Copies of "Texas History Movies," published by the Southwest Press, Dallas, and as a feature in the Pampa Daily News, have been received at the office of R. B. Fisher, superintendent of schools. The booklets will be distributed to the teachers and students in the school.

Illustrations are by Jack Patton and text by John Rosenfield, Jr., and they show the history of Texas from 1500 when the Tonies, a tribe of Indians that lived near what is now Fort Worth, battled the Tawakanas, a tribe that lived near what is now Dallas, to April 28, 1836, when President Burnet arrived at San Jacinto field, following the capture of Santa Anna.

drowned. Among those still missing and for whom hope had about been abandoned were J. W. H. T. Douglas, famous cricket player, and his father, J. H. Douglas. Of the 12 British passengers own to have been on the vessel only two are believed to have survived.

Survivors of the disaster who arrived in Copenhagen said when the crash came the fog was so dense they could not see two yards. The Arcturus rammed the Oberon amidships on the starboard side. There was a terrific shock and in less than a minute the doomed vessel's quarterdeck was flooded. There was no time to launch boats and passengers and members of the crew flung themselves into the water, trusting that they might be picked up.

Some of them, it is believed however, never reached the deck, for within three minutes one of the boilers of the Oberon burst and the ship sank almost immediately. In some way escaping oil became ignited and the light of the weird yellow flames glared through the fog. Those on the Arcturus heard the cries of victims as they struggled in the sea of burning oil.

The Arcturus call for help brought the Swedish steamer Tolken, bound for Copenhagen, full speed through the fog. As it neared the scene of the disaster the commander slowed down to avoid striking swimming survivors or boats. Once the Tolken sighted the body of a woman, dressed in a red coat and pajamas and wearing a life preserver. The vessel stopped and a boat was put out, but the body was not found.

In the meantime boats from the Arcturus managed to pick up a number of survivors. Some of these later died from cold and exposure. It was said.

Despite a badly damaged boat the Arcturus stood by in the calm sea until other vessels arrived to take up the search. Then she limped toward Copenhagen.

The Swedish steamer Loke this morning found two of the Oberon's lifeboats. They were empty and it was believed they had broken loose from the davits when the ship sank. A fishing vessel near the scene found a third lifeboat. In it were a mitten and a watch, evidence that it had been used by survivors. What became of them could only be conjectured.

FILE APPEAL ON DECISION OF DRY LAW

ASKS SUPREME COURT TO DECLARE 18TH BILL VALID

BY JOHN T. SUTER
WASHINGTON, Dec. 20. (AP)—The government's challenge of the recent decision of Judge Clark in New Jersey, holding the prohibition amendment invalid, was filed today in the supreme court.

Taking direct issue with the district judge, the government, through Solicitor General Thatcher, will ask the supreme court to hold that the 18th amendment was legally ratified and that the national prohibition act and other laws enacted under the prohibition amendment are valid.

Attorney General Mitchell expects to obtain from counsel for the two men under indictment, W. H. Sprague and W. J. Howey, a waiver so the appeal may be presented to the court when it ends its present recess January 5. The government now plans to ask the court on that day to advance the case for early oral argument.

The department of justice will expect its appeal to get before the court for consideration not later than January 12. It is confident the appeal, taken directly from Judge Clark, instead of to the circuit court of appeals, is in proper form for consideration by the highest court on its merits.

The supreme court one week after the appeal is submitted will announce whether the case will be heard on its merits.

Efforts will be made to have the appeal argued during the week of January 19. If these fail it will be late in February before it can be heard.

CALHOUN SELECTED FOR COURT OF APPEALS

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP)—George Calhoun, who for 27 years has heard important civil suits involving the state of Texas as a judge of the 53rd district court, has been selected for commissioner of the state court of criminal appeals by Governor Dan Moody it was learned today.

Whether the appointment has been definitely made could not be definitely learned as Governor Moody declined to comment and Judge Calhoun was not in Austin today.

DODSON LIKES NEWS CONTEST —GIVES VIEWS

Pampa's most useful citizen in 1930 was a woman—Mrs. Phoebe A. Worley, J. M. Dodson, president of the Pampa National bank, said in a statement given yesterday to The Post.

Mr. Dodson's statement follows: "I wish to commend The News-Post for conducting a poll of this kind. It should cause us to scrutinize the actions of our neighbors in the last year in an unselfish manner. It leads us to analyze ourselves; also the characters of our citizens. It will cause all of us to consider the measure of our usefulness to our community."

"In regard to the most useful citizen in Pampa, I think that while many local men have proved themselves to be useful citizens, the enterprising started by Mrs. Phoebe A. Worley this year and the confidence she has shown in Pampa merits her to be chosen as the most useful citizen."

"Pampa's men have accomplished much by cooperating with the railroad. The Denver road was obtained by a number of our local citizens working together, though more credit is due to two or three men than to any one of the others. But it would be hard to give one man credit for bringing the railroad to Pampa."

"If by giving the town favorable publicity one becomes the most useful citizen, one should not overlook the football boys. Certain officials have rendered outstanding service, but it seems to me that Mrs. Worley stands in a class by herself. By financing the construction of several buildings, all fine and large, she has imparted to citizens her confidence in Pampa. Many unemployed men have found work because she put her dollars to work. The so-called business depression failed to check Mrs. Worley's determination to give Pampa a five-story office building, a new hospital. She has also invested money in other building projects. Therefore, I nominate Mrs. Worley as Pampa's most useful citizen in 1930."

MAKE UP JOB FUND LOCKHART, TEX.

LOCKHART, Tex., Dec. 20. (AP)—Trainmen employed on the Southern Pacific Lines running into Lockhart have signified their willingness to the proposal made by officials of the company to withhold one per cent of their salaries for a stated period, to be applied to a fund for use in payment of salaries of idle employees who have been laid off because of slack business. Officials said a similar plan was being proposed over the entire Southern Pacific system.

NICE CITY—

case will probably be called for trial in the second week in January. Pendleton and the deputies arrived in Pampa at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. They spent Friday night in Lubbock. He made no move that suggested that he might try to escape during the trip. He was so docile and his manner was so sincere and inoffensive that the deputies did not even handcuff or chain him as they had planned.

W. E. Archer, long-time resident of Pampa, also visited Pendleton in his cell yesterday afternoon. Mr. Archer declared the prisoner was one of the men who came to his farm residence three miles west of Pampa on the afternoon the First National bank was robbed of $32,000 March 31, 1927, and stayed until dark when they escaped. Mr. Archer and members of his family were locked in a cell and guarded by the men, all of whom were heavily armed.

Last week at Odessa, Pendleton drew his eighth prison sentence. He is 33 years old and has spent 16 of them in penitentiaries in Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. He was acquitted of murder in connection with the robbery of the Okemah, Okla., bank in 1927. His prison terms were given on burglary and robbery charges. Pendleton will go to trial here the second week in January on the three-year-old indictment, charging him with robbery of the First National bank.

FIND MAN HANGED

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Dec. 20. (AP)—The body of an unidentified man about 30 years old was found hanging to a tree about four miles southwest of here tonight. Death was due to strangulation. A belt was drawn tightly about his neck which was not broken. Two boys discovered the body. County authorities brought the body here. There were no marks of identification.

MEXICO CITY, DEC. 20

(AP)—Valentine Campa, secretary general of the confederation unitaria de Mexico (United Confederation of Mexico) and five other alleged Communist leaders were arrested today. Police closed the headquarters of the confederation and confiscated a quantity of propaganda.

Entire Nation Is Now Under the Magic Spell of This Christmas Season

RICH AND POOR ARE PREPARING FOR HOLIDAYS

MYSTERIOUS ACTIVITY TAKING PLACE AT WHITE HOUSE

(By The Associated Press)

The Hoovers, the Koochlers and the plain old Joneses are preparing their annual Christmas welcome for ruddy old St. Nicholas. Tinsel, holly, and gay family gatherings will greet him alike in desert hut, mountain cabin, farm home and Park avenue mansion. For his visit time everyday problems.

Despite business depression and unemployment, the nation will drop its work and observe the holiday this year with the customary spirit and joy.

White lack of money may, in some of the activities, indicate that charitable organizations, clubs and societies will assist the poor perhaps more than ever before.

At the White House there is much mysterious activity. For the first time since the Roosevelt administration youngsters are there to bring the real Christmas spirit.

The three little grandchildren of President and Mrs. Hoover—Peggy Ann, aged 4, Herbert Jr., 3, and Joan, 3 months—will have a tree of their own in the nursery arranged for them on the third floor.

There they will hang up their stockings and the President probably will act as Santa Claus. Another tree will be in the first floor reception room where its stately aspects can be seen by passersby.

Work for Wednesday

Children of the President's secretary and of cabinet members will be entertained at White House parties Christmas eve and night.

On farms in the corn belt, New England and the great western hills and mountain states, sleigh bells still will ring.

In these sections the popularity of the sleigh ride has not entirely disappeared and in the holiday season many a modern automobile is left in the garage while its owner bundles into an old-fashioned hayrack piled on runners.

Work for Wednesday

Along New York's two famous streets—Broadway and Park avenue—Christmas spirit is not such a simple matter.

Park avenue at Christmas is a lane of costly bangles, where presently pile up to their richest peak in price.

Along Broadway Christmas means extra work, and in these days of theatrical unemployment that is welcome. There are extra performances and benefits to entertain holiday crowds.

HOLIDAY PROGRAM IS HELD AT SCHOOL HERE

A large group of parents attended the special holiday program which was given Friday afternoon by pupils of the Sam Houston school.

The program was as follows:

Luther's Cradle Hymn, pantomime, low first, Mrs. C. W. Stowell, teacher.

Game of letters, "Merry Christmas," low second, Mrs. Tom Morris, teacher.

Tap dance, high first, Bonnie Lee Rose, Mrs. Earl Smith, teacher.

"Talking to Santa," high second, Marie Jarvis, Mrs. Gordon, teacher.

Exercises, "Santa Claus," by Helen Durbin and Marquis Stratton, low first, Mrs. John I. Bradley, teacher.

"Christmas Lights," piano, and voice, Virginia Nell Cummings, low third, Miss Jewel Montague, teacher.

"O Christmas," a dialogue, Mae Jo Willis and Pauline Oden, low third, Miss Montague, teacher.

"Rock of Ages," piano solo, Catherine Culbertson, high third, Mrs. J. B. Hesse, teacher.

Reading, "A Suggestion for Santa Claus," Billie Lee Kretz, high third, Mrs. Hesse, teacher.

Christmas bell drill, "Through the Telephone," Flora Lee Denebenn, low fourth, Miss Naomi Owen, teacher.

Christmas song, high fourth, Miss Sara Meyer, teacher.

Song, "Christmas Box from Aunt Jane," Dr. W. Purviance has reported to police the theft of a medicine box from his car that was parked on West Kingsmill near the tool house of the new Combs-Worley building.

To Become Bride On Christmas Day

MISS MILDRED STEWART

WOODROW WILSON TEACHER AND R. E. KOINER TO MARRY

Of interest to both academic and social circles of Pampa and Clarendon is the approaching marriage of Miss Mildred Stewart, teacher in Woodrow Wilson school, and Mr. Robert E. Koiner.

The ceremony will be read Christmas morning at 10 o'clock in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stewart of Clarendon, with the Rev. B. N. Shepherd, pastor of the First Baptist church of Clarendon, officiating. The bride will be trooked in royal blue chiffon, floor length, with silver accessories.

Due to the short Christmas vacation in the public schools here, the couple probably will not make a trip, but will return to Pampa by the close of Christmas week.

Is Former C. I. A. Student

Miss Stewart, a former student of Texas State College for Women (C. I. A.), is serving her third year as teacher in Woodrow Wilson school. Mr. Koiner is a former student of Baylor university, Waco, and of the University of Texas, where he was associated with Phi Delta Chi fraternity. He now is pharmacist at Pampa Drug No. 1.

The bride-escort was honored here Wednesday afternoon with an attractive miscellaneous shower and Christmas bridge party given by Mrs. Ralph Dunbar, assisted by Miss Clarice Fuller and Mrs. Floyd McConnell.

CHRISTMAS LUNCHEON GIVEN FOR SOCIETY

Among the most attractive Christmas parties of the week-end was that given for the Aiaz society of the Holy Souls Catholic church in the home of Mrs. Frank Keim. Father Wonderly was a special guest for the occasion.

After a delicious covered dish luncheon, presents were distributed to the guests from a lighted tree. Christmas music was furnished by choir members accompanied by Mrs. A. M. Felsman.

A regular business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Keim, who is president of the organization.

Those who attended the entertainment were Mrs. R. M. Delaney, Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Mrs. Harry B. Carlson, Mrs. Ed Carigan, Mrs. W. H. Davis, Mrs. H. J. Douaher, Mrs. B. Emerson, Mrs. A. M. Felsman, Mrs. J. W. Garner, Mrs. F. J. Gill, Mrs. C. T. Hubert, Mrs. Mary E. Beard, Mrs. V. D. Keim, Mrs. R. J. Kiser, Mrs. R. McKertan, Mrs. A. D. McNamara, Mrs. H. F. Martin, Mrs. C. E. Oswald and mother, Mrs. Tyler, Mrs. John O'Day, Mrs. Frank Appleman, Mrs. J. G. Tyler, Mrs. Hamilton Wadell, Mrs. J. P. West and Mrs. R. E. Baha.

STUDENTS LEAVE FOR 75 TEXAS COUNTIES

CANYON, Dec. 20. — The Christmas exodus of students from Canyon is taking them to homes in 75 different counties in Texas: with Randall, Potter, Deaf Smith and Swisher counties leading in numbers.

Most of the 57 students from New Mexico will go home for the holidays, but those from Massachusetts, Arkansas, California, Arizona, Kansas and Oklahoma will mostly find the distances too long for the short vacation, as they must return for classes on Dec. 30.

Women of Mooseheart Legion Are to Meet

Women of the Mooseheart Legion will meet Christmas eve at the I. O. O. F. hall, at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Harry Stafford, who has been seriously ill for some time is improving rapidly. She is in the Worley hospital.

ANNUAL PARTY IS GIVEN FOR GROUP FRIDAY

GIFTS FOR NEEDY ARE BROUGHT BY CHILD STUDY CLUB

Toys, fruit and candy for the needy were brought by members of the annual Christmas party of the Child Study club, held at the home of Mrs. S. A. Hurst, Friday evening.

Mrs. Lee Harrah presided over a short business session before the social hour.

Mrs. Harrah gave a reading from "Some Noted Ministers," and the "Life of Henry Ward Beecher"; Mrs. Joe Smith gave the life of Phillips Brooks; Mrs. I. E. Kullman a "Philosophy of Emerson" and Mrs. A. H. Doucette favored the members with a song, "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem."

Those present were: Mrs. Roy Wiley, Mrs. Roy Tinsley, Mrs. W. S. Tolbert, Mrs. Joe Smith, Mrs. Loyd McConnell, Mrs. W. S. Moore, Mrs. H. D. Lewis, Mrs. H. W. Johns, Mrs. S. A. PAMPA LIBRARY IS TO MOVE INTO NEW HOME AT CITY HALL MONDAY

The Pampa public library will move Monday, Dec. 22, to its new home in the city hall. It will be open five days a week, from two to five o'clock, and from 7 to 9 o'clock. The price of new cards for one year will be: family cards, $1.00; high school cards, 50 cents; and grade school cards, 25 cents. A new assortment of books has just been received, and each new member will be greatly appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Baum Are to Give 6 o'Clock Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. I. Baum will entertain employes of the Pampa and Berger Hely-Sely stores with a 6 o'clock dinner at the Schneiders hotel this evening.

BASKET AND TREE ARE GIVEN NEEDY FAMILY

Low and high third grades of Sam Houston school, under the direction of their teachers, Miss Jewel Montague and Mrs. John B. Hesse, have presented a Christmas basket and a Christmas tree with gifts to a charity family whose mother has been ill for several months.

The basket contained a real Santa's sack, as well as food of every kind and some clothes and shoes. On the tree were tied a number of gifts, including dolls, handkerchiefs, books, powder and powder puff, and a little sewing machine.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS TO BE SUNG ON TUESDAY

The girls' chorus and glee club of Central high school will meet Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock at the E. Finley home and will go from there to various places in the city to sing Christmas carols.

Miss Iva June Willis, public school music supervisor, assisted with plans for the singing, but as she will be out of the city Tuesday, the group will be directed by Mrs. Lucille Massa, assisted by Miss Bernice Whiteley and Mrs. Arthur Teel, teachers, and the following mothers: Mrs. C. M. Bryson, Mrs. George Wallace, Mrs. C. P. Buckler, Mrs. Clifford Braly, and Mrs. C. T. Hunkapiller.

Black Riding Habits Come Back Into Favor

LONDON, Dec. 20. (AP)—Riding habits, which last season were dark blue or "dusted blue," have reverted to the classic black with white or canary yellow waistcoat as far as fashionable England is concerned.

Princess Mary's sister-in-law, the Hon. Mrs. Edward Lascelles, has had two black habits made for her.

HOLIDAY VISITS ARE MADE BY PAMPA FOLK-- SOME WILL HAVE GUESTS DURING CHRISTMAS

Mountain Students Demand Yule Treat

BRYSON CITY, N. C. (AP)—An old Christmas custom prevails among mountain school children in the Big Smokies.

Just before Christmas they hurry to the school house ahead of the teacher. They bolt him outside and demand a treat. Usually he is prepared and each child gets a sack of candy. School then is dismissed for the year.

MISSES CARTER HOME TO SPEND CHRISTMAS

Misses Evelyn and Gladys Carter, students at Texas Woman's college, Fort Worth, are spending the Christmas holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Carter.

Both girls are popular in student affairs on the campus, taking active parts in club, class and dormitory affairs. During last week they participated in several festivities incident to the Christmas season, including a vespers service conducted by the college dramatic club, club parties, dormitory Christmas tree celebrations, and numerous "room-feasts."

They report a splendid fall and are looking forward to the work of the remainder of the college year. They will return to Fort Worth in time for the resuming of class work on Monday, Jan. 5.

Harvester Quartet Is Organized Here

The Harvester quartet, composed of Albert Lard, Edward Burch, Durwood Martindale, and Dick Benton, has been organized at Central high school by Miss Iva June Willis, public school music supervisor. The group already has entertained from the local radio station and at chapel. They will be on the air again this week.

Evening Slippers Made of Gay Taffeta

PALM BEACH, Dec. 20. (AP)—Evening slippers in gaily flowered taffeta are the latest whim of fashion for dancing daughters, dowagers and divorcees of Palm Beach.

These are accompanied by matching evening bags. The slippers are in sandals style with high slender heel and medium vamp.

Idyll Tyme Club Has Gay Christmas Party

An exchange of gifts featured the Christmas party of the Idyll Tyme club which was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Grady Totten, with Mrs. G. T. Swartz as hostess.

A Christmas tree and holiday greenery decorated the home. Members spent the afternoon playing games and enjoying various contests. A salad course was served at the refreshment hour.

Two new members, Mrs. C. L. Stevens and Mrs. H. F. Morrison, were special guests at the affair.

Others present were: Mrs. J. F. Henderson, Mrs. W. V. Murray, Mrs. L. S. Young, Mrs. C. C. Fitzgerald, Mrs. C. O. Brady, Mrs. J. M. Powell, Mrs. P. O. Anderson, and Mrs. C. C. Taylor.

Episcopal Group to Have Christmas Tree

Simmons Banquet to Be Held on Friday

Panhandle students and ex-students of Simmons university, Abilene, are invited to attend an annual banquet at the Capital hotel, Amarillo, Friday evening, Dec. 20, at 8 o'clock. George Vineyard, Amarillo, is president of the group, and representatives from the university faculty are expected to attend.

The group held its first banquet last year, with about 30 students and ex-students in attendance.

B. and P. W. Members Postpone Gathering

Although their regular meeting day is Dec. 23, members of the Pampa Business and Professional Women's club will meet instead on Dec. 30.

GROUPS LEAVE TO VISIT FOLK FAR AND NEAR

SOME WILL REMAIN IN PAMPA THROUGH HOLIDAYS

The Yuletide season means a week at home for practically all Pampa teachers. A large majority of the teachers left on Friday afternoon after school for visits with families and relatives, while among those who will make their headquarters in Pampa during the holidays, many are planning short trips to nearby towns.

R. B. Fisher, superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Fisher left late Friday afternoon for St. Joseph, Mo., where they will visit Mrs. Fisher's parents. They will visit other friends and relatives before returning to Pampa.

One of the most interesting trips for the teachers is that taken by Miss Sarah Meyer, teacher in Sam Houston school. Miss Meyer is accompanying her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Meyer, and brother, Walter, and Paul Meyer, all of Claude to Colorado Springs, where they will visit a sister, Mrs. E. J. Perry. They will also visit their former home-town, Wiley, and make a brief trip to Denver. They plan to return to Texas Saturday, Dec. 27.

Another Interesting Colorado Trip is that of Mrs. Sam Irwin, music teacher at Sam Houston school, who with Mr. Irwin left Friday afternoon for Loveland, to attend a reunion in celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mrs. Irwin's parents. They will be in Colorado two weeks.

Mrs. John B. Hesse, high third grade teacher in Sam Houston school, Mr. Hesse, county school superintendent, and their son, Jack, will spend most of the holidays at home and will be hosts at a family reunion. However, they plan to visit briefly in Clarendon and Abilene.

Miss Jewel Montague, low third grade teacher at Sam Houston, left Friday at 6:40 p. m. to visit her relatives in Silverton, and Miss Florence Jones, high fourth grade teacher, also left Friday to visit her mother, Mrs. J. L. Jones, in Lakerton.

Principal Plans Trip

A. L. Patrick, Sam Houston principal, and Mrs. Patrick, will remain in Pampa for a day or two and then will go to Conway to visit his parents.

Miss Jewel Montague, Sam Houston teacher, left Friday for Silverton to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Montague.

Mrs. L. K. Stout, who has been called to El Reno, Okla., because of the death of her mother-in-law, will remain there during Christmas.

Mrs. B. G. Gordon will be a guest in Fort Cobb, Okla., during the holidays.

Among Sam Houston teachers to remain in Pampa are Mrs. J. I. Bradley, Mrs. Earl Smith, Mrs. Gertrude Morris, Miss Naomi Owen, and Mrs. C. W. Stowell.

Go to Greenville

Miss Willie Jo Priest, teacher at Merton school, left Friday to spend the holidays with her family in Greenville. Miss Anne Fry, who also teaches in Merton school, will spend the early part of the holidays in Pampa and may go for a short visit to Greenville later.

L. L. Sone, principal of high school, and Mrs. Sone will spend a part of the holidays here and plan also to visit briefly in Panhandle, where his brother and sister reside. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Sone of Stanton, also will be in Panhandle.

To Visit Parents

Miss Marie Dodgen, high school librarian, will visit her father in Groom, and Miss Arlene O'Keefe, dean of girls, will be the guest of her parents in Panhandle.

Other high school teachers have announced their Christmas addresses as follows: "Pop" Frazier, band and orchestra director, Midland; Miss Ethel A. Rice, Harford; Miss Mary Shell, Washburn; Miss Velora Reed, Pampa; Harry Kelley, Pampa; Miss Iva June Willis, public school music supervisor, Wichita Falls; Mrs. T. J. Johnston, Tulsa; Miss Addie Lee Smith, Pampa; Miss Gracie Fern Letimer, Elgin; Miss Zenobia McPartin, Pampa; E. H. Self, Carmen, Okla.; A. M. Fox, Pampa; Mrs. B. H. Mrs. L. H. Greene has as her guest her aunt, Mrs. H. M. Gardner of Lynwood, Calif. Mrs. Gardner is to leave today for McKinney, where she will visit her daughter.

Chicken Raising Is Outdoor Sport

Mrs. William Doak, wife of the new secretary of labor, likes her job of feeding 300 chickens at the Doak country home. But the family Polly (upper right) objects to her new place in the limelight.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) - Raising chickens is the hobby of Mrs. William Doak, wife of the new secretary of labor.

High on a sunny, wind-swept hill where "Notre Nid," the Doak home perches, Mrs. Doak dons an old sweater, romps with the white covies and feeds 300 chickens.

Almost an invalid 10 years ago Mrs. Doak now ascribes her health to tending chickens carrying rocks for steps and walls and enjoying her breezy hilltop.

The Doaks will not give up their country home even though he is in the cabinet. They like "Our Nest," English version of "Notre Nid" so named by Mrs. Doak.

Richmond and Fannie, two other servants, who have been with the family for years, have a little home of their own higher on the hill. A dog house is being built for the three large dogs, but Pete, the wail from the streets; settles down with satisfaction on his sicken cushion in the home of a cabinet officer.

Ecly, the parrot is the only one to suffer from Doak's new job. She's afraid of photographers' flash lights and suspicious of every box that enters the house. Once a gay, lighthearted bird she now greets callers with a suggestive "good-bye."

Neighborhood Bridge Club to Have Meeting. The Neighborhood Bridge club will meet Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Moresan, 425 Starkweather street. The club is a new organization and holds a friendly gathering each week in the homes of members.

CHRISTMAS WISH. Students and teachers of the Woodrow Wilson school wish to thank parents and other friends for the wonderful cooperation and the many nice things that have been done for us. We wish you all a very Merry Christmas. (Signed) Woodrow Wilson Faculty and Teachers.

New Skirt Shows Knees Again

PARIS, Dec. 20 (AP) - Midway seems determined to show her knee in one way or another.

Slit skirts—remnants of the styles of 15 years ago—are seen on several of the winter evening models.

One gown of brown tulle, made along seam-fitted lines, is slit to the knee—a slit that widens noticeably as the wearer walks.

the holidays at her home in Pampa, 121 N. Wayne street.

Leaving Friday afternoon, Misses Opal and Cleo Snodgrass are spending Christmas with their aunt in Amarillo.

Piper City, Ill., 90 miles south of Chicago, is the destination of Miss Mary Bishop, who left Pampa at 3:30 p. m. Friday to spend the Yuletide season with her parents.

Mrs. J. G. Gant, 690 N. Frost, plans to visit her parents in Claude. She will spend part of the holidays in Pampa.

Miss Julia Stinchfield left Friday for Canyon, where she will spend the holidays with her parents.

Miss Gwendolyn Spradley left Friday evening for Hereford, where she is visiting her family.

Miss Martha Wulfman will visit her family in Farwell.

Miss Ruthie Henry, who resides in Pampa, will spend her vacation at home.

Miss DeLoria Vinson will visit her family in Willow, Okla., this Christmas.

BAPTIST CHURCH WILL OBSERVE CHRISTMAS

Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock a thoughtful Christmas observance will be held at the First Baptist church.

Members of every department and class of the Sunday school will bring gifts to a Christmas tree in the assembly room in the basement of the church. These presents will be distributed to the poor of the city. Friends are asked to join in this observance.

This donation of gifts will culminate a series of Christmas festivities given by the different Sunday groups.

Saturday afternoon the primary department closed a party in their own room, and this morning the beginner's department will feature a special Christmas program. Tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock the junior group will gather for gifts and a program.

SYNOPSIS: Her mother-in-law is a blight on the happiness of Fanny Frost. David, her husband, at first fights valiantly to protect his bride from the elder Mrs. Frost's dislike. He moves out of his mother's home, quits his job at his mother's bank. Then when family pressure is brought against him to return, he plans to move to the West, but the illness of Sheila, their daughter, prevents. David has to take Fanny back to his mother's and return to the bank. Mrs. Frost's domination and David's lack of sympathy make life hard for Fanny, until Juliette, a distant cousin of the family who married an Italian prince, comes to visit them and insists on taking Fanny back with her to Washington for a month.

CHAPTER 16

FANNY WINS WASHINGTON - Fanny took to the luxury of Juliette's home like a cat to cream, but she never got over the thrill of having her bath drawn and scented, her breakfast brought to her bedside. Mr. Chamberlain told me last night that I was as cerebral as a marsh-mist. I ought to see me now," grinned Fanny one morning as he was pouring thick yellow cream on her oatmeal. "I suppose, darling Juliette, that it's a bit gross to enjoy food so much—but not at a party. One is supposed to have a good time at a party. And it's always a party to have breakfast in bed." Their first days were spent in an orgy of shopping. David recently had made $1,000 on the stock exchange and given half of it to Fanny. Juliette suggested that she take charge of this—that she was a better bargainer than Fanny, but she never asked the price of anything, and bought, and bought until Fanny protested; Juliette laughed and went on buying. Fanny knew David would not like her to accept clothes from his cousin; but what could she do? She couldn't turn Juliette's offerings and the things were so lovely, and anyway David didn't know what women's clothes cost. On the third evening of her stay

"Why do you give so much time to our elderly cavaliers?" asked Juliette. "Oh, I don't know—perhaps because I was always hungry when I was little for my father to love me—and he didn't. Anyway, I like nice old gentlemen. They are so pleased, the sweet old dears, when they find I really do like them." A major general, who certainly never thought of himself as elderly, caught her to ride a Venetian fete in honor that was the high point of the season. A famous senator, who had lost his wife not long before, gave her a breakfast, and hinted that if Fanny were free he might not be inconsolable; he could not think of her as married, he said. Others told her the same. A good many men tried to make love to her; and Fanny scolded them, or laughed at them gently and once or twice was so genuinely distressed at a hint of real feeling that a certain very young under-secretary was moved to tears of regret for his scarlet past; and a certain bias attache with tired, burnt-out eyes told her she would remain a white memory as long as he lived. "I had almost forgotten," the man said, "that women, young women, could be simple and natural and sweet. You are so incredibly sweet, my white one. Will you do me one favor, one last favor?" "Of course I will," Fanny said. "Will you let me draw the curtains—one one will see us—and stand here with me in the dark, your hand in mine, and watch the moon rise? It will take only a few minutes—there is a light already on the edge of the world. It will mean nothing to you—a great deal to me." Fanny nodded. He drew the curtains close, and for a little longer than five minutes they stood silently hand in hand, watching a great lighted Chinese lantern climb inch by inch over a bend in the Potomac and turn the black waters to rippling silver. "The path to the moon—see, my sweet, there is still a path to the moon." The hand that held Fanny's tightened; and then he bent low and kissed her hard, drew the curtains and took her back to the supper room. (Copyright, 1930, by Mateel Howe Farnham)

KEEP YOUR CREDIT GOOD!

The Man Who Accords You Credit Sets A Mental Alarm Clock For the Time Of Payment

You set your own alarm clock for the time you should arise so that you can establish a reputation for promptness with your employers of your employees. The man who is always on the job on time knows that he is building a reputation for reliability that is to set him in good stead for the future.

Q The man who accommodates you with credit puts his dollars to work for your convenience. By that we mean that he has his own dollars invested in the merchandise he turns over to you . . . dollars that he expects to use in his own business with which to pay bills, pay help, pay rent or buy new goods. He expects these dollars to come back to work on time, usually the first to the tenth of the month following the purchase. These dates are Alarm Clocks on his calendar and if you pay your bills promptly on these dates you have established on his records a reputation for reliability and good credit.

Q These records are open to other business men who may refer to him in establishing your credit with them. If he passes along the word that you are deserving of credit by having kept faith with him you are automatically building up a very useful reputation of confidence. A good reputation gains rapidly in momentum . . . pyramids itself until it becomes a firm rock of reliability upon which your standing in the community develops to a thing of inestimable value and advantage. It's to your interest to pay bills promptly.

Q You'll enjoy your Christmas more if your debts are paid—you'll be happy in the realization that if you need credit in 1931 your name appears on our records as "Good as Gold."

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, leaves Baltimore where she has lived with her seamstress mother, MARGARET ROGERS, to join her wealthy father, JOHN MITCHELL, in New York. The parents are divorced and Mrs. Rogers is a widow following a second marriage.

BARNEY SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl. Mitchell asks EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce his daughter to other young people. Mrs. Parsons agrees, considering Celia a means to win Mitchell's affections. She schemes to get rid of the girl by encouraging a romance between Celia and TOD JORDAN, fascinating but of dubious character. Mitchell has forbidden his daughter to see Jordan.

Shields comes to New York to work and meets Celia. She tells him she cares for Jordan but later realizes it is Shields whom she loves. Mrs. Parsons arouses Mitchell's antagonism toward Shields and the father and daughter quarrel. Celia departs for Baltimore only to find that her mother has disappeared, leaving no clues to her whereabouts. Mitchell arrives, affects a reconciliation and takes Celia back to New York.

Meanwhile Mrs. Parsons has informed Shields that Celia is to marry Jordan. When Celia meets the young man each misunderstands the other and the interview ends with the affair between them broken off. Mrs. Parsons tells Celia she is going to marry Mitchell. No word comes of Celia's mother. The girl is miserable and lonely and when Jordan begs her to elope with her she goes away with him.

It is midnight when Mrs. Parsons notifies Mitchell the girl is missing. The distraught father appeals to Shields and together they call on Jordan, who denies knowing where Celia is. Next morning Mitchell and Shields are at Mrs. Parsons' apartment when Shields mentions the fact that Mrs. Parsons told him Celia was to marry Jordan.

Professional detective is unable to locate Celia, who is at LISI DUNCAN'S home. Jordan visits her there and declares she'll marry him whether she wants to or not.

John Mitchell leaned both elbows on his desk and frowned at the leather desk pad. It was seven o'clock and he was sitting in the living room of his home. The man's face was shocking. For the past three days and nights Mitchell had had little sleep. Dark circles beneath his eyes told of long, restless vigils. There were deep lines in his forehead and his cheeks were pallid.

Mitchell fumbled with a pencil. He did not even know that he was holding it. For the thousandth time the man tried to think and as always he came sharply up against the same stone wall.

He was a failure. He had always been a failure. Celia, his daughter, had left him just as years before Margaret, his wife, had gone.

"Oh, God!" Mitchell groaned aloud. He threw one arm across the desk and closed his eyes. Where was Margaret now? Why could she not understand his tremendous need of her? It was Margaret's need as well as his own really. Celia was her daughter, too. Couldn't the world know she was deserting them both?

A vision of Margaret, fresh-checked and girlish, came before him. He saw her with lips parted, her brown eyes glowing with a smile that was both gay and evasive. Margaret! The young face was crowned with dark hair arranged in a pompadour. Her gown was blue, the same shade Celia wore occasionally. Margaret had looked like that—oh, so long ago! Mitchell sat up sharply. What was the use of this nonsense? He turned as he heard a knock at the door. Edward, the butler, appeared in response to the call "Come."

"Dinner is served, sir," Edward announced. "Has Mr. Shields come in?" "Not yet, sir." "Then I'll wait until he comes."

Again Mitchell bent over his desk and brooded over events of the past week. It was the same story. At every climax of his life he had taken the wrong turn. It was his fault Celia had disappeared. He was willing, at this late date, to admit it was his fault that Margaret had gone. He saw himself for what he was—a man grown prematurely old, a slave to the legal clients whose court battles had crowded practically every other interest from his life. They had homes, wives and families, these clients who profited by his skill. What had he, John Mitchell?

The man cursed beneath his breath. Then he rose and went to a small cabinet. He withdrew a decanter, filled a glass and drank it. How blind he had been to trust Celia to Evelyn Parsons! Evelyn was shrewd. She had accepted John Mitchell for the fool he now knew himself to be. Oh, wretched folly! Three days and nights had opened the man's eyes to Evelyn's hypocrisy.

She struggled with the problem again. There were gaps in the story, happenings which he was unable to piece together, or to interpret. Moreover, Evelyn, thwarted, was still an active enemy.

Mitchell paced the length of the room. He crossed the floor, turned and stopped at the sound of tapping on the door. "Who is it?" he called. "It's I, Mr. Mitchell—Shields."

"Come in!" Barney entered the room. Mitchell sought the young man's face eagerly but found no cause for reassurance.

"They've lost Jordan!" Barney blurted out. "What?" Barney nodded. "I've just come from—"

"The detective headquarters?" "The fellow who's been ransacking Jordan came in half an hour ago and admitted he'd lost him."

A violent oath burst from Mitchell's lips. Shields joined sympathetically in the discussion which followed. The father was moved to see the whole matter before the police authorities.

"Maybe that's the thing to do," Shields said cautiously, "but unless we get something more to work on I don't see how it will help. If I could only guess what was in Celia's mind!"

"We won't know that until we find her. Good God, Shields, I tell you I can't stand this any longer." They talked for several minutes and then Edward arrived a second time to announce that dinner was prepared.

For two days Barney Shields had been making the Mitchell residence his home. Not once in that time had Mitchell gone to his office. He seemed to cling to the young man as the one support in his sorrow. Together they had interviewed detectives, reconstructed again and again events preceding Celia's disappearance and sought to untangle the mystery.

Dinner conversation centered on the only subject which interested either of the two men. Practically nothing new in the search had been reported.

Again Shields broached the subject of Celia's motive for leaving Mrs. Parsons' home. "I wish I knew how much she really cares for Jordan! Somehow I can't get over the feeling that she went away to marry him. You know what the doorman said—"

"But the maid denied there was a man there. Besides, Shields, I told you Celia said you were the man she cared for."

"Well, it's true. No—it's some devilry of Evelyn Parsons' that drove the girl off. That's what did it. Oh, if there were only some way of dealing with that woman!" John Mitchell's eyes snapped as he spoke. The butler removed the plates and brought dessert. The two at the table were silent for some time and then Shields addressed his companion.

"There's one thing I've been thinking about," he said slowly. "Mr. Mitchell, don't you think if Celia's mother were here she could help us?" "I wish I knew any way to get her here."

"You don't mean that she won't come? Oh, I know she wouldn't refuse!" "I don't know where she is either. I've had detectives searching for 10 days."

"Then maybe they're together!" Mitchell shook his head. "I don't think it's possible," he said. "Celia didn't know where her mother was. It was a great grief to the girl. To what extent it may have influenced her in going away I don't know. Margaret's disappearance is just as mysterious as Celia's."

"They were considering this phase of the problem when Edward entered the dining room. 'There's a gentleman in the hall, Mr. Mitchell, who asked to see you.' 'Do you know his name?' Edward handed Mitchell a card bearing the name of a representative of the detective bureau.

"Show him into the drawing room. Tell him I'll be there immediately." As the butler turned to go Mitchell pushed back his chair and rose. "Come along," he said to the young man. "It's McNeil. He must have learned something."

McNeil was the stockily built detective who had relieved Barney Shields from his all-night watch of Jordan's apartment. He was standing before the fireplace with his back toward the door when Mitchell and Shields stepped into the drawing room. At the sound he turned.

"Good evening, Mr. Mitchell. Good evening, Shields. I've just picked up a little information I thought would interest you."

"What is it?" Mitchell demanded. "Mind if I sit down? Thanks." McNeil settled himself comfortably and looked up at his host who was still standing. "You know Jordan was trailing Jordan this afternoon and lost him, but we'll soon find him again. Yes, sir! I picked up information an hour ago that Jordan has booked passage for Havana and is sailing tonight."

"Sailing tonight?" McNeil nodded, pleased with himself. "At 10 p. m.," he said. "I'm having the boat watched and as soon as he goes on board we'll know it. Once the ship puts to sea you can rest assured that young man won't be mixing in any place where he's not wanted. I guess probably he's got wind of the fact that he's been watched and decided to blow."

"You're positive he's sailing tonight?" "No—not really positive. Only why did he book passage this morning if he didn't intend to make the trip? We keep close watch of arrivals and departures in this business, you know. I got wind that Jordan had paid for his passage and found out he did it some time before noon. Thought you'd be pleased to hear about it!"

Mitchell turned toward Barney Shields. "For two days Barney Shields had been making the Mitchell residence his home. Not once in that time had Mitchell gone to his office. He seemed to cling to the young man as the one support in his sorrow. Together they had interviewed detectives, reconstructed again and again events preceding Celia's disappearance and sought to untangle the mystery."

"There's one thing I've been thinking about," he said slowly. "Mr. Mitchell, don't you think if Celia's mother were here she could help us?" "I wish I knew any way to get her here."

"What do you think it means?" he asked. Shields shook his head. "Hard to tell," he said. "Of course it's possible he's worried and wants to play safe but I don't know—seems doubtful. We'd have more of an idea if we knew where Jordan was this afternoon."

McNeil glanced at a wrist watch. "It's nearly eight o'clock," he said. "Within two hours, we'll know whether or not Jordan has walked up that gangplank. Personally, I think your troubles are over so far as that bum is concerned."

John Mitchell had halted and was staring at the detective. A strange look had come over the man's face. "Did you—see the full passenger list?" McNeil nodded his head emphatically. "I know what you're thinking!" he said. "I read the full list. There's no girl by the name of Mitchell among those sailing."

"You're sure of that?" "No such name listed!" McNeil said stubbornly. "Well—I'll be getting along now. I'm off duty. We'll have this thing cleared up for you in a day or two, Mr. Mitchell."

"I sincerely hope so." McNeil was shown out and the butler arrived with coffee. Shields declined the beverage but Mitchell was drinking his third cup when a telephone rang loudly.

"I'll answer!" Barney said, springing up. He stepped into the hallway and picked up the instrument. A feminine voice greeted his ear. "Is this Mr. Mitchell?" the voice demanded. "Celia Mitchell's father?"

Barney turned. The older man was beside him. "It's for you," Barney said, handing over the telephone. The voice at the other end of the wire was excited and high-pitched. Shields, standing near Mitchell, could hear every word.

"This is Lisi Duncan," the voice said. "Mr. Mitchell, I wanted to tell you that Celia's gone."

"What do you mean?" "I mean she's gone!" the voice insisted hotly. "She's been staying here with me but this afternoon she went for a drive with Tod Jordan and they haven't come back. It was nearly four hours ago and I've been so worried. I'm afraid something's happened."

NEWS-POST TO TAKE POLL ON CITY'S MOST USEFUL CITIZEN

—BALLOT PRESENTED BELOW

Who has been Pampa's most useful citizen in 1930? Many cities of the country are having newspaper polls to determine such questions, so why not Pampa?

I hereby cast my vote for..... as Pampa's Most Valuable Citizen for 1930.

Signed:

Address:

EDITOR'S NOTE: All nominations must be in the hands of the Contest Editor by the night of December 31. Your name and address must be signed to the ballot, but you are assured that your vote will not be made public. Cast your vote NOW!

Why Wait For Things To Start? Remember--

Every Building Job Started Now Will Help to Relieve the Unemployment Condition

Pampa is in the best financial condition of any town or city in the Panhandle and as good as any city of the same size in America. This fact has been heralded throughout the nation and many unemployed men from less fortunate localities have come here seeking work. There are hundreds of skilled workmen here to do construction work, perhaps three men for any job.

There is no game of chance in building homes or business houses in Pampa. A tenant is waiting for anything you might decide to build, so why not start construction immediately and put the unemployed men to work.

Pampa Lumbermen are vitally interested in keeping the building tradesmen at work. They are more than willing to furnish estimates on material and labor in the construction of any building without obligating any one. More than that they will assist you in financing the deal. Something must be done to put idle men to work. Your lumber dealer will welcome the opportunity to co-operate with you in every way possible.

A house built on that vacant lot of yours will serve three purposes, namely: It will serve as a good investment for you and provide a home for a good tenant in addition to giving employment to laboring men.

A TIP FROM MACAULAY

Just one hundred years ago England was gripped by a severe depression. The outlook was dark. Some public men were openly saying that good times would never come back. The situation, indeed, was not unlike the one in which America finds itself today.

At that time Lord Macaulay, the famous essayist and historian, discussed the subject in an essay that almost sounds as if it might have been written for our own consumption. Hear what he said:

"The present moment is one of great distress. But how small will that distress appear when we think over the history of the last 100 years; a war, compared with which all other wars sink into insignificance; taxation, such as the most heavily taxed people of former times could not have conceived; a debt larger than all the public debts that ever existed in the world added together; the food of the people studiously rendered dear; the currency impudently debased and imprudently restored.

"Yet is the country poorer than in 1790? We firmly believe that, in spite of the misgovernment of her rulers, she has been almost constantly becoming richer and richer. Now and then there has been a stoppage, now and then a short retrogression; but as to the general tendency there can be no doubt. A single breaker may recede; but the tide is evidently coming in."

And then Macaulay makes an extremely sensible remark:

"To almost all men the state of things in which they have been used to live seems to be the necessary state of things. We have heard it said that 5 percent is the natural interest of money, that 12 is the natural number of a jury, that 40 shillings is the natural qualification of a county voter. Hence, it is thought in every age everybody knows that up to his own time progressive improvement has been taking place, nobody seems to reckon on any improvement during the next generation.

"We cannot absolutely prove that those are in error who tell us that society has reached the turning point—that we have seen our best days. But so said all who came before us, and with just as much apparent reason."

There is a great deal of sound sense in all of this. It ought to be circulated widely today; for we seem to have just the same kind of pessimists that Lord Macaulay found in England a century ago.

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—A small, black-mustached member of the house, with black eyes that pierce the one on whom they are directed, usually is seen on the floor when anything concerning the welfare of the American Indians is up for discussion—

He is William Wirt Hastings of Oklahoma, for something like 14 years a representative of the second district of that state.

When he arises to express an opinion on legislation affecting the Indian, he is heard. And it is not because he is a member of the house's committee on Indian affairs, for he is not—

They listen to him because by blood he is an Indian himself—a Cherokee.

One hardly would suspect it to see him. Those piercing black eyes give the only clue to his ancestry—those and his intense interest in seeing that the Indian gets a square deal.

A Tribute

In fact, it is a tribute to the man that once when a bill dealing with the Assiniboine tribe was up in the house, Jack Garner, the democratic leader was moved to make the facetious observation:

"It looks to me as if the Indian committee would really give the capitol to the Indians if they wished it. I hope this bill does not involve title to this building..." Hastings was backing the measure and is a democrat.

The Oklahoma representative is an authority on questions involving his people. He received his education at the Cherokee Male Seminary, graduating there in 1884. Later he was an honor man in his law class at Vanderbilt university.

Almost from the start of his career he has fought the cause of his people. Two years after graduating from law school he took up the duties of attorney general for the Cherokee nation and served for four years.

And since 1890—one year after completing his law course at Vanderbilt—he has represented the Cherokee nation in winding up its tribal affairs before the commission to the Five Civilized Tribes and the departments in Washington.

Goes To Congress

From 1907 to 1914 he served as national attorney for the Cherokee tribe. In the latter year he came to congress for the first time. He has been returned to every congress since that time except one—the 67th.

That he hasn't permitted his interest in Indian affairs to slow up as the years go on is evidenced by the activity in this respect during the present congress. His official record shows that he has repeatedly introduced bills and resolutions in behalf of Indians and is invariably at hand to aid in their passage.

Mrs. Hastings, too, is of Indian blood. And there are three children, one of whom bears the good Cherokee name of "Ahnawake."

HOW'S your HEALTH

CEREBRO-SPINAL FEVER

There is a type of meningitis called cerebro-spinal fever, or epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis. Meningitis is a seasonal disease, being much more prevalent in the colder months than in the summer. It appears to be definitely associated with other diseases of the nose and the throat, which of course are most prevalent in winter.

Crowding, such as occurs in camps, prisons, mining districts and the like, distinctly favors the spread of the disease. Children and young adults are its most common victims.

Chronic fatigue, due to over-exercising, malnutrition, poverty and equalor, predispose the individual to the development of this type of meningitis.

The germ of meningitis, the meningococcus, enters the body through the linings of the nose and throat. It may gain entrance to the coverings of the brain and spinal cord by passing directly through the skull, or by first entering the blood stream and being thereby carried to the nervous system.

The disease is spread from the sick to the well through intimate contact, or through so-called "carriers." "Carriers" are individuals free of the disease but who none the less harbor the germ of meningitis in the nose and throat.

Meningitis tends to be an epidemic disease. When one case appears, it is almost certain to be followed by a number of others.

Every infection of the nose and throat, however slight, should be watched. Epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis now can be successfully treated with a specific antitoxin. As in the case of all antitoxins, the earlier in the stage of the disease it is administered, the more effective it is.

THE CHRISTMAS SEAL

Though England was the pioneer country in the development of public health, United States came as a close second and in the development of voluntary health associations has ranked, and still ranks, as the world's leader.

Our people support a large number of unofficial and voluntary health organizations whose objectives are the elimination of disease and the conservation of life and health.

We have voluntary associations to combat accident, blindness, cancer, deafness, tuberculosis; to promote mental hygiene, baby welfare, pre-natal and post-natal care, and a host of other laudable health objectives.

It is undeniably a fact that much of the phenomenal health progress which this country has made during the last 50 years is due to the stimulus of the voluntary organizations.

Their particular virtue lies in the fact that they enlist the interest, support and cooperation of so many individuals—a feat not often accomplished by official or governmental health bodies.

One of the earliest and probably the most highly developed of these voluntary organizations is the National Tuberculosis Association, whose state and local branches dot the country.

These organizations, in their annual Christmas sale during the month of December, offer for sale the public Christmas seals at a cent apiece.

Through the income from these seals they have financed, for more than a quarter of a century, an epoch-making war against what has been so well described as the White Plague.

BONES

The bones make up the framework of the body. They serve as levers for the muscles to pull on and hence facilitate motion. The bones also protect important organs in the body.

The skull encases and shields the brain, the spinal column protects the spinal cord and the chest bones shield the heart, lungs and a goodly portion of the abdominal organs. The hip bones protect the pelvic organs.

Comparing bones to other "structural" materials, we find that on a basis of weight and size, they are exceptionally strong.

Bones are not absolutely rigid, under strain they will bend, but under excess force, or when even small forces are applied in certain directions, they break.

Contrary to the common impression, bone is not a dead tissue. Bone is a spongy tissue, made up of a hard non-living substance which forms the surrounding case for minute living cells.

The bones of children are relatively elastic. Those of the older persons are more firm and less yielding. The bones of the aged are quite brittle.

Bones grow somewhat in the manner of a tree, that is, under their coverings, the so-called periosteum and at the ends of the shafts.

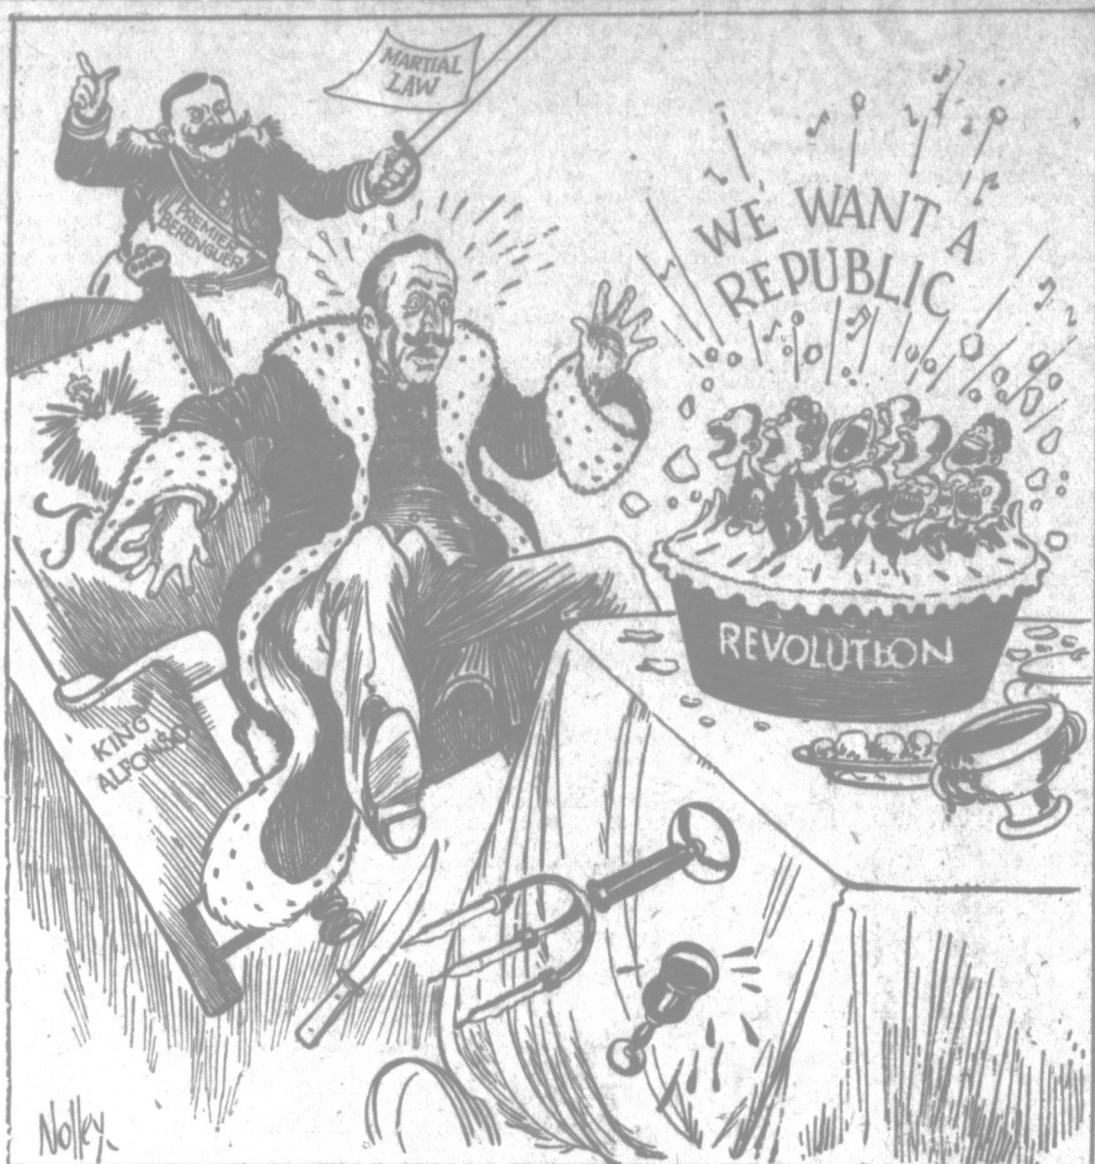

CHRISTMAS NO HOLIDAY FOR LIGHTHOUSE KEEPERS

BOSTON, Dec. 20. (AP)—To men of the lighthouse service Christmas is just another day of watchful waiting. Tenders bring food for their holiday dinner long in advance, however, and no appetizing tid-bit is missing.

Although the peal of church bells cannot reach the lighthouse keeper or his family, there is a substitute in the tolling of bell buoys, warning the sailor of dangerous rocks or reefs.

—THE BIRDS BEGAN TO SING

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—The Honorable J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama, that famous senator who is now a lame duck because he attempted to rally his state against Al Smith and the Pope in 1928, is not going to let his constituents down simply because they dumped him back into private life.

Instead of belowing madly at the Catholic church or describing the iniquities of his political enemies, Tom has devoted himself in the Senate thus far to the business of seeing that the drought sufferers of Alabama and other stricken states get some real relief.

He has been plugging for the $60,000,000 drought relief appropriation which the Senate passed and which the administration House-leaders have been trying to cut to $25,000,000 or $30,000,000. Tom shares the quaint idea that the government ought to lend money to feed people as well as farm animals.

"It doesn't make any difference to me whether they call it a dole or not," he says, referring to what Secretary of Agriculture Hyde called the food appropriation after admitting the worst drought in national history.

Seeks Funds for Hungry

Pointing to government subsidies to private shipbuilders, Heflin guesses that if the government can lend money to individuals to set them up in business and enable them to make money, it can also lend money to American citizens who are hungry.

"These men and women in Alabama and other states of the Union are in the midst of distress, the like of which they never have known before," he declared. "Not only can they not support themselves, but their neighbors who are better off have suffered so acutely from farm products that they are not able to lend a helping hand. Ordinarily we can depend on community relief in time of distress, but not now.

"Cotton is selling for 10 cents a pound, $30 to $35 a bale below the cost of production, and other farm products are selling at low and unprofitable prices. The farmers are unable to pay the debts they owe or to take care of themselves, even outside the drought-stricken area.

"Provision of $60,000,000, in my opinion, is inadequate. The sum of $25,000,000 will not begin to relieve the distress and suffering of the people afflicted by drought. What sort of a policy are some of these people seeking to lay down when they would supply a man with seed to plant in the ground and feed for stock and with fertilizer to put in the soil when they have nothing to eat, nothing upon which to live, nothing with which to support his family while he is making a crop. To my mind such a suggestion is utterly ridiculous.

"When a crash comes in Wall Street they call upon the banking facilities of the government and get the funds they need to tide them over the crisis. Shipbuilders can borrow government money to carry on their business. But patriotic men and women whose sons have been called upon to bear arms for defense of their government are not allowed a loan with which to buy food to live on during a period of unprecedented distress and suffering. You can supply them with seed, but they can't live to make the crop without they have food for themselves and their families.

Points to Mortgages

"The farmer in my state who has two horses, a two-horse farmer as we call him, has already mortgaged his horses, his wagon perhaps, his household effects. How can he live even if the man who holds the mortgage is willing for him to keep that property?"

Tom recalls that the government went to the rescue in the Salem fire, the San Francisco disaster and the last big Mississippi flood and says that if there is any attempt now to take care of certain "big interest to the hurt and injury of the poor people of the United States," there are going to be some interesting things heard from Tom Heflin.

He must be sincere about all this, even though President Hoover says the people who want $60,000,000 for drought relief are "playing politics with human misery." As a lame duck Democrat who supported Hoover in 1928, Heflin might possibly hope for a soft job or some bipartisan commission. An insincere Tom who yearned primarily for a job would string along with the president instead of opposing him.

THEATRE NOTES

By MARK BARROW

NEW YORK—The first and only play written by the late William Bolitho leaves an impression that, had he lived, he would have become as important a figure in the theatre as he was in the world of prose.

"Overture" was written by this cosmopolitan essayist in an experiment to see if his talent for writing extended to the drama form. He carried the play to London for production last summer and then went away to rewrite it amid the quiet cathedrals of Avignon. There he died.

Now the play has been brought to New York and produced exactly as Bolitho wrote it. Its few faults can be assigned to the fact that its author had not edited it into its final form.

However, his widow wished that it should be seen as his work and so we view it as it came last from the hand of its author.

It is a forceful, tragic drama — this "Overture"—filled with the anguish of a wrecked civilization trying to reclaim itself. Its sometimes beautiful, sometimes stinging dialogue is eloquently spoken by such excellent players as Colin Clive, Pat O'Brien and Barbara Robbins.

"Overture" begins in 1920 in the little manufacturing town of Herfeld, Germany. The town council has passed a law that the citizens must work 12 hours a day at half pay until Germany has recovered from the depression and destruction of war.

The workers revolt and capture the town. They are led by Ritter, an idealist, and Maxim, a communist who believes that "we must find some substitute for this romanticism if we are to remake the world."

The crimes of national government sweep down upon the town, give it back into the hands of the manufacturers and send Ritter and Maxim before the firing squad.

This isolated revolution may seem far away in its German factory town, but Bolitho has written it with that international viewpoint that characterized all of his writings.

In this play Bolitho has written a love scene that must stand as one of the most beautiful the stage has ever given. The idealist Ritter and his sweetheart, just as they are at the realization of their love, are to be sent before the firing squad.

Their love, must end just as it was beginning on this earth—they must look forward to scenes of timeless space... beyond the firing squad.

OF NEW BOOKS

By RICHARD MASSOCK

NEW YORK—December is inventory time in the book-scanning business.

Production stands still until after Christmas, permitting reviewers to look over back volumes to see which ones they can safely send to their friends with reasonable assurance that the gift will not only be read, but enjoyed.

Here, then, is my list. It is short because it includes only books that I am confident would be appreciated, even if they fell into strange hands. There are doubtless others as much meritorious as the unmentioned titles.

Novelist's Fun
In novels I liked most of all Somerset Maugham's "Cakes and Ale," and that stands for the story as well as the writing. In a brutal and brilliant manner Maugham strips a Victorian reputation from a recognizable old man of English letters and thrusts sharply at lesser authors.

Rose Macaulay's "Staying With Relations" is delightfully amusing, and Rosemond Lehmann's "A Note in Music" is a worthy successor to her "Dusty Answer."

Points of View Are Important As Determinants of Cooperation

Differences of viewpoints make enemies or at least non-cooperators out of many persons who are really headed toward a common goal. And those differences often make enemies of men whose intentions are equally honorable.

Suppose a train and a motor car arrive at a crossing at the same time, with disastrous results. The motorists, viewing the wreck, denounce the railroads, the engineers, and all the circumstances involved—except the motorist at the wheel. The railroad men very probably will blame the driver of the car for not looking and stopping. It will be pointed out that the train had only one track and could not leave it, while the motorist had much greater chance to stop, no schedule being involved.

Yet both sides have the best interests and safety of their fellows at heart. The difference was in the point of view.

To use another allied example, let us cite the war between the railroads and the buses and trucks. The operators of the vehicles which travel the highways rightly speak of the opportunity of the individual citizen to make an honest living. They speak of the convenience of the bus line and the frequency of the vehicles over the road. They denounce the railroads as big heartless institutions.

But there is another side to the picture. Tens of thousands of persons own railroad stock and these wish the railroads to make the fair profit allowed by law. There are hundreds of thousands of railroad employees who value their jobs and who wish to keep them. The menace of the bus and truck to rail travel is great and very real. Railway revenues fell twenty millions of dollars in Texas last year. Operating expenses were cut sixteen millions, leaving a net loss of revenue amounting to four millions. Many employees were discharged. Trains were discontinued. The employees realize that business is dropping. The net result is that railroad men are organizing to fight the buses and trucks as a means of making their jobs more stable.

It is pointed out that the motor vehicles pay relatively smaller taxes and use the state roads instead of having their own expensive roadbeds, rails, signal devices, and the like. The truck men and the railroad employees are similar in that each group is trying to better its position, yet there is sharp disagreement—from a different set-up of viewpoints.

The prohibitionist wishes to destroy booze to help the individual; many anti-prohibitionists use as their chief argument their zeal for individual liberties. The viewpoints, rather than the ideals, make the big difference. This is not speaking of the sots and brewers, of course.

There are many persons who wish the government to take up Socialistic plans and guarantee price of farm products. Some would eliminate the middle men who distribute the raw and manufactured articles. But against this theory is that of keeping the government out of business and guaranteeing the right of individuals to engage in commerce without competition from their government. The elevator men are in competition with the farm board and the market stabilization corporation. Will they too have the right to demand the same relief from their government that the farmer-citizens have?

Moreover, since industries are protected, should not other ailing occupations be stabilized? There is danger in limiting the benefits of government—toward which all contribute one way or another—to a few classes. What one gets the others wish and quite logically demand. How far the government should go is just another matter of viewpoint.

Another example concerns the growth of a city, and the steps taken to bring this about. Business men wish to see growth, but not the addition of more competitors. Industries are desired, but industries already located have no desire to divide up the limited field with another similar concern. Again, city growth and along what lines it should advance is a matter of viewpoint.

There are those who would make people good by passing laws forcing them to be so. And there are those who remember that in America the laws are made with the consent (of the majority) of the governed. Militant reformers forget that laws begin with the people, and that the law cannot rise higher than its source. The ideal is to improve the people to wish better and fewer laws, rather than pass more and more statutes in an effort to legislate goodness.

Many may disagree with this idea—for it is a matter of viewpoint.

There also are instances of narrowness and of viewpoints so far apart that citizens can seldom agree. Some residents approach a problem from their own standpoint and are glued to the single idea of their own profits. There are others who regard themselves as stewards of God-given material things, which should be used for the glory of God and the welfare of mankind. The two points of view can seldom be reconciled.

Moreover, there is the standpoint of those who look only to the immediate present, and that of another group which can look ahead and anticipate better things. The first group makes progress slowly, while the second is content to suffer a few sacrifices in order to enjoy later triumphs.

There are serious in points of view. The purpose of this newspaper is to try to bring the viewpoints of the Pampa citizenship to a common, sane focal point from which all may move forward to better things. And it may be said in passing that for a city whose people are come from all over the nation, Pampa has shown a remarkable aptitude for cooperation in recent years. It is a good sign, and one that will, we trust, continue as the city grows older and larger. It would be a sad situation, indeed, should the citizenship fall apart to look at public affairs from an assorted number of viewpoints, ill conceived and selfishly perpetuated.

Think it over.
Things are not so bullish for the Spanish government either, it seems.
