Teachers await word on pay raise at the last meeting.

A number of bills before the Texas House and Senate could affect Pampa Independent School District (PISD) and its teachers, local school officials say.

PISD Superintendent Dawson Orr and Mark McVay, school business manager, warned school board members that a number of bills before the Texas State Legislature could impact the school district, including legislation raising the basic state allotment per student.

"We will need to adopt a pay scale in June," McVay reminded board members

He said a bill presently before the budget committee proposes raising the basic state allotment to $2,537 per student with additional raises of $30 per student for the next two years.

If the bill passes and becomes law, "we'll receive more state funds," McVay explained. "It would generate additional state funding to us." Declining student enrollment may offset the additional funding, however, he added.

Orr said the bill had been passed by the Senate, but had not received state funding at the time he reported to the board. (See TEACHERS, Page 3)

City of Lefors vs. credit union

Bv NANCY YOUNG Managing Editor

A petition for a declaratory judgment has been filed by the City of Lefors against the Lefors Federal Credit Union and two individuals, J. W. Franks and J. C. Callaway.

Filed in 223rd Judicial District Court, the lawsuit claims a fund on deposit in Lefors Credit Union actually belongs to the City of Lefors and that Franks and Callaway are refusing to turn the funds over to

The suit states that the City of Lefors has funded the account with funds transferred from the General Operating Account of the City of Lefors and that Franks and Callaway have in no way contributed any funds belonging to or owned by them to Lefors Federal Credit Union. The city claims the account has been included in the city audits as city monies for a period in excess of 10 years. (See FUND, Page 3)

Nickles Industrial sells firm to CES

PONCA CITY, Okła. – Cooper Fnergy Services (CES) announced the company's acquisition of Nickles Industrial Manufacturing Corporation – a move, officials say, that means "good things" for the Pampa office.

"We look for good things in Pampa, Texas," said Robert C. (Bob) Nickles Jr., former president of Nickles Industrial, "as a viable, continuing part of the Cooper-Nickles operation."

According to a news release from CES, the cash transaction between the two businesses, finalized on April 27, brings together two of the oldest suppliers of reciprocating products in the oil and gas industry. CES is a division of Cooper Cameron Corporation.

The combined operations will provide worldwide field engineering, replacement parts, overhaul, repair and maintenance services, distribution and technical support for CES original equipment, as well as that of other engine and compressor manufacturers, officials said. (See NICKLES, Page 3)

New members to be sworn

LEFORS - Swearing-in of new board members will highlight the Lefors Independent School District board of education meeting set for 7 p.m., Tuesday, May 8, in the elementary school library, 160 Šixth

Prior to swearing in the new board members, the board will canvass votes from the May 5 school board election. Election of board officers will follow the seating of the new board members. In other action, the board plans to review current bills, the cash position of the district and tax collection report.

Other matters to be considered include student achievements, the school nurse, personnel and the superintendent's report. An open forum for the public is scheduled after the call to order.

Victims' memory, quick thinking doom suspected serial kidnapper

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) - In her fourth day of captivity by a strange man in a strange car on a strange backwoods dirt road, Leah Henry still had her wits about her when she needed them most.

Kerr County sheriff's deputy David Billeiter may have forced the hand of her captor, identified by Louisiana FBI agents as 48-year-old Gary Dale Cox. But it was up to Leah to act when the kidnapper got out of the freshly painted Mazda, pulled a revolver and strolled around to her side of the car.

'When he did, the little girl, thinking extremely sharply — and I have a lot of admiration for her she bailed out the driver's side of the car and ran straight for Sergeant Billeiter," Sheriff Rusty Hierholzer said.

The end game began at 9:27 a.m. when a neighbor reported suspicious activity at a hunting cabin about four miles south of Kerrville. Billeiter was dispatched to check it out, and his arrival prompted Leah's captor to pull his pistol, exit the car and head toward the girl's door, flushing her out the door he left open.

Billeiter snared Leah, pulled her into his cruiser and sped from the kidnapper and the shack where she said the man held her since she vanished from a southwest Houston school bus stop Tuesday afternoon.

Texas doctors recommend abstinence

HOUSTON (AP) — The best way for teen-agers to avoid pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases is to abstain from premarital sex, Texas doctors agreed at the annual meeting of the Texas Medical Association.

In a shift in strategy in their war on teen pregnancy and STDs, doctors voted Friday to change the TMA policy to say "the healthiest and most effective way to prevent pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections in unmarried adolescents is abstinence.

The old policy put most emphasis on contraceptive choices.

"We hope this strong statement by the medical community will empower parents," said Dr. John Gill, a Dallas orthopedic surgeon who sponsored one of three pro-abstinence resolutions combined into the one approved.

'We're not afraid to take a stand on risky behaviors such as drugs, smoking and drinking and driving. There's no reason we should be afraid to take a stance on this," he said.

Ex-officer gets six months in jail

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Houston police officer was sentenced to jail Friday for using his position to intimidate and sexually harass young girls at a skating rink where he worked.

John Sheldon Williams, 32, pleaded guilty in January to official oppression, a misdemeanor. He was sentenced to six months in the Harris County

In exchange for his plea, two felony charges of indecency with a child were dismissed.

Prosecutor Don Smyth said the charges stemmed from accusations by a teen-age girl that Williams fondled her breasts on May 6, 2000, at a skating

2001 look a lot like 1999

AUSTIN (AP) - With just three weeks remaining in the legislative session, emotions and the pace of business are running high at the Capitol.

Most of the major issues are yet to be resolved, leaving lawmakers plenty of work to do before they close shop on May 28.

Floor sessions are running long and lawmakers have scheduled meetings over the weekend.

And given this week's flare-ups on proposed hate crimes legislation, the 2001 session is starting to feel a lot like 1999.

The hate crimes bill failed two years ago when it couldn't get out of a Senate committee. It's gone a step further this year — the bill was voted out of committee this week — but has yet to get a debate in the full Senate as lawmakers try to negotiate a

Aggie Rick Perry makes first Aggieland appearance as Texas governor

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Aggie Rick Perry, the first Texas A&M graduate to be Texas governor, returned to Aggieland for the first time Friday as the state's chief executive.

"He needs no introduction," A&M president Ray Bowen said. "He's one of us. This gentleman is a living manifestation of the Aggie spirit."

"It is good to be home," Perry said amid Aggie 'whoops" from a lunch audience at the school's Reed Arena. "There's always been one constant in my life, and it's this place.'

Describing some of his difficulties while a student, he looked at some of his former professors and drew laughs when he remarked, "I know you never thought you were educating a governor."

Perry, who was elevated from lieutenant governor in December to become the state's 47th governor with Gov. George W. Bush's move to the White House, is a 1972 graduate.

TEACHERS

"We'll have to wait until after May 30, after the smoke clears, to see if we'll be able to support (a pay raise)," Orr said.

In a salary comparison of area school districts, Pampa and Borger ISDs both offer $26,500 to beginning educators. Hereford ISD's starting pay is slightly lower at $25,740. Amarillo ISD starts new teachers at $30,000 per year, followed with Dumas

A report by the Texas Association of School Boards (TASB) and Texas Association of School Administrators (TASA) indicates the average starting salary for beginning teachers was up almost 1.5 percent, an increase from $26,338 to $26,708. Seventy-seven percent of the 1,045 districts surveyed report starting salaries above the state minimum beginning salary of $24,240.

Most districts budgeted a 3.3 pay increase for returning teachers resulting in pay raises of $1,200. The average salary increased 2.4 percent from $37,410 to $38,301, according to the report.

In the local salary comparison, Pampa's returning teacher's pay ranged from $28,500 for five years experience to $42,510 for those with 30 years in education. Amarillo ISD continued to lead with a salary range of $32,861 for five years to $45,750 for those with 30 years. Borger ISD ranged from $29,360 to $41,288; Dumas – $29,750 to $41,518; and Hereford - $29,880 to $42,300.

"As you can see our competition (for teachers) is Amarillo ISD," Orr said. "Theirs are the metroplex

Maximum pay for teachers, without stipends or incentives, increased 1.3 percent from $44,641 to $45,209. Pampa ISD pays $43,910 for teachers with 40 years experience or more. Amarillo ISD paid the highest in the area with $46,721. Borger pays $41,288; Dumas, $41,518; and Hereford, $42,300, according to the comparison. More and more school districts are using incentive pay to attract teachers, according to the TASB/TASA report. Thirty-seven percent of all districts pay stipends in areas where they are experiencing a shortage of teachers including high school level math, science and languages (other than English), technology applications, all levels of special education and English as a second language.

The report states than three-fourths of the state's school districts pay shortage stipends as well as stipends averaging $1,018 for master's degrees.

Districts reporting sign-on incentives increased from 5 percent last year to 9 percent with most of them going to teachers for hard-to-fill positions. More than 6,000 teachers received sign-on incentives for 2000-2001 school year. The majority of those teachers work in districts with more than 10,000 students.

Administrators and other non-teaching professions salaries went up 3.9 and 3.6 percent respec-

We compare reasonably well with the state averages," Orr told board members. "But I don't feel our administrative pay scale reflects the value we feel for our administrators."

Mint strikes new silver dollar coin

DENVER(AP) — American Indian leaders offered a prayer in the Ute language and smoked a peace pipe to mark the striking of an American Buffalo silver dollar at the U.S. Mint on Friday.

Proceeds from the commemorative coin will help fund the National Museum of the American Indian, expected to open in 2004 on the National Mall in Washington.

"This is wonderful, but this is overdue," said Ernest House, chairman of the Towaoc-based Ute Mountain Utes. "We needed a mechanism to get funded and finally now we have it."

U.S. Sen. Ben Nighthorse Campbell, R-Colo., struck the first coin. He sponsored legislation authorizing the silver dollar, and finally won passage of the measure in March 2000 after six years of legislative effort.

The coin is 90 percent silver and 10 percent copper. The profile of an American Indian appears on the front; the buffalo is on the back.

The design comes from artist James Earle Fraser's sketches that appeared on a nickel minted from 1913 to 1938. About 500,000 coins will be minted and will cost about $33 each when they go on sale June 7.

The coin will be made in Denver and Philadelphia. Sales are expected to raise between $3 million and $5 million for the museum

Sentencing sends tough message

Thirty-first District Attorney Rick Roach has asked two felony drug case juries in as many weeks to send a message. Each responded loud and clear.

In a case tried in Wheeler, a 45-year-old Tulsa woman received a 36-year prison sentence on a charge of felony possession of cocaine. And just last week, a Gray County Jury gave a 30-yearold Lefors man a 60-year sentence upon finding him guilty of possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) with intent to sell. He also had a weapon and a criminal drug his-

We certainly agree with Roach's line of thinking that area citizens — jurors in these instances - are tired of the scourge of illegal drugs. Two juries of 12 people each got a chance to make their feelings known and made no bones about it in the sentencing phases of the trials.

It would be nice to believe that these two drastic sentences will get the attention of all the drug dealers in our part of the panhandle. It won't affect all of them by any means, but it might affect some of them, and we're thankful for that.

But as long as there is demand from those addicted to these harmful substances, there'll be dealers eager to make sale after sale.

Going after these dealers is certainly laudable and so is drug interdiction on land, sea and in the air. All these efforts must continue.

But these actions aren't enough. At least as must zealousness — and money — should be made available to help addicts enter and complete recovery.

More tax dollars need to be directed to recovery so those who are addicts and want to become free of using may have the opportunity to turn their lives around.

Without that, all the other will be for nought.

Learning to grin and bear it

It was called to my attention that I didn't write a column last week.

Frankly, I was little able to think about anything but my TEETH. At this stage of life (I am a card-carrying member of the AARP) I have had braces put on my teeth!

I wish I'd listened to my dentist about 15-20 years ago then I wouldn't be going through this now. But, you know how that is.

This isn't a cosmetic thing, it is to preserve my teeth as some of my teeth hit directly on top of one another thus there is excess wear. So, instead of being long in the tooth, though evidence of my AARP membership could beg to differ, I'm going to have short teeth if I don't. get this correction.

Then there's the cost. It is quite an investment. As one friend of mine used to say ... he never said "cheap" ... but rather said that some things "are not inexpensive." Braces fall into that category. But, odds are, if I don't fix this problem now, the eventual den-

Less guns will not reduce violence

Every time there's a school shooting, there are demands for greater gun control measures that range from longer waiting periods and mandated gun locks to stricter licensing and restricted sales. With all the political posturing and demagoguery that follows, a hysterical public buys into the seeming plausibility that reduced availability of guns, especially to children, will reduce gun violence.

The facts of the matter are just the opposite. Yale University legal scholar John Lott demonstrates this in his book "More Guns, Less Lott's brilliant study destroys one falsehood one of his findings — gun accessibility and gun violence. But is gun accessibility the problem?

The fact of the matter is that gun accessibility in our country has never been as restricted as it is now. Lott reports that until the 1960s, New York City public high schools had shooting clubs. Students carried their rifles to school on the subways in the morning, then turned them father. over to their home-room teacher or the gym trally stored and out of the way.

Students would retrieve their rifles after school for target practice. Students regularly competed in citywide shooting contests for university scholarships. In Virginia, rural areas ing cops 'n' robbers and cowboys 'n' Indians going hunting in the morning before school, violence; more gun locks, longer waiting peri- are today, we do so at our peril.

and sometimes storing their guns in the trunk of their cars during the school day, parked on the school grounds.

For most of our history, a person could walk after another about guns, but I want to focus on into a hardware store, virtually anywhere in the United States, and buy a rifle. Few states even had age restrictions for buying handguns. Buying a rifle or pistol through a mail catalog, such as Sears and Roebuck, was easy. Private transfers of guns to juveniles were unrestricted. Often a 12th or 14th birthday present was a shiny new .22 caliber rifle, given to a son by his

These facts of our history should confront us coach — and that was mainly to keep them cen- with the question: with greater youth accessibility to guns in the past, why wasn't there the kind of violence we see with today's much more restricted access to guns? Might it be global warming? Or, might it be children play-ods, more gun laws, more psycho-babbling by school psychologists?

Maybe we should have greater school zerotolerance policies, where bringing a water pistol, drawing a picture of a pistol or pointing a finger and shouting "bang-bang" produces a school suspension or arrest?

That kind of unadulterated nonsense will continue to produce disappointing results. We will not make inroads into the gun-violence problem until we acknowledge the underlying causes of youth behavior today, compared to vesterday. As I discussed in my last column, we must come to the realization that laws and regulations alone cannot produce a civilized society. It's morality that is society's first line of defense against uncivilized behavior.

Moral standards of conduct have been under siege in our country for nearly half a century. Moral absolutes have been abandoned as a guiding principle. We've been taught not to be judgmental - that one lifestyle or value is just as good as another.

More often than not, the attack on moral standards has been orchestrated by the education establishment and liberals. School shootings just might represent chickens coming home to roost where they were born.

If we refuse to seriously ask why young people weren't shooting one another at a time had a long tradition of high-school students too much? And how do we solve today's gun when guns were far more accessible than they

The answer to all these questions is that Americans are handed a foreign policy without so much as a by-your-leave. We are supposed, sheep-like, to accept the wisdom of the elders of the foreign-policy establishment and do nothing but obey.

To get down to the nut, I've no desire at all to see my children or grandchildren die in an Asian war for any reason whatsoever. It is not in the least bit necessary for the United States to establish hegemony in that region in order for our country to remain free and prosperous. The

(There is no such thing as friendship between defense of this country and no other.

Unless somebody in Washington knows that China is planning a surprise attack on the United States, I see no justification whatsoever for spying in such an intrusive way. Collecting radio and microwave transmissions is going to give you data, 99 percent of which is routine. Why do it? Would we like Chinese surveillance aircraft flying off our coasts?

For some reason, people in Washington cannot get rid of their war mentality. That's probably because we have too many generals and admirals trying to justify their jobs.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur warned Americans never to get involved in an Asian land war (if you want to know why, check the population figures). We disregarded that advice when John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson bogged us down in the Vietnam War. It was not a happy

Neither was the Korean War, when we discovered that if we were unwilling to use nukes, we couldn't win a war against Chinese troops. only war Americans should ever fight is in In that case, the old Confederate joke was true: better let the nabobs in Washington know it.

We ran out of bullets before we ran out of Chinese.

Now there are even more Chinese, and the Chinese have enough nukes of their own to guarantee that we won't use ours in any future difficulty. As one of the Chinese generals said, he wasn't worried about American defense of Taiwan. "They think more of L.A. than they do of Taipei."

On the other hand, we have nothing to worry about with China. There aren't enough boats and planes in the whole world to ferry a Chinese army to America. Furthermore, the Chinese government has all it can do to keep control of its own country. Therefore, it seems to me that the bottom line is our relationship with China boils down to trade and nothing else. If that is the case, then we should not allow the military to make foreign policy and play Cold War games when there is no Cold War and no imminent hot war. We need to force those in Washington to get rid of their imperial mind-sets and tend to our business instead of trying to run the world.

Nobody in history has ever succeeded in maintaining an empire, and we certainly won't. For all of our billions of defense dollars, I wouldn't want to throw our volunteer army into a land war with Chinese or North Korean infantry. I don't think we'd like the results. It wouldn't be the same as mugging a little country that doesn't have a pig's chance of surviving a barbecue.

ADVISORY COUNCIL

An exciting opportunity is on the horizon for a Pampa-area resident who: 1) Would like to volunteer his/her services for the betterment of their community; and 2) can travel to Amarillo once a month to attend scheduled meetings after 5 p.m. Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, or RSVP, a national organization with an office in Amarillo, has an opening for an Advisory Council position to represent the Pampa community. Pampa has been represented volunteer participation and the addition of more volunteer stations (locations where the volunteers work). Gray Co. is but one of 11 counties served by RSVP's Amarillo office, and representation from our own area is important. The Advisory Council term would be for two years, starting at the end of March, and is not limited to someone who is 55years-old or older. Interested in senior volunteerism? Interested in improving Pampa's social services? For more information or to receive an application, call Amarillo RSVP Director Nova Neuhaus toll-free at 1-

Dedicated Nurses Could Use a Pat on the Back

DEAR ABBY: It seems every week I am reminded in some form or another that teachers are the least respected, least compensated, most noble persons in our country. Exalted by politicians and the media, they are consistently portrayed in a positive manner. I believe this is deserved. They have a tough job with great responsibility.

However, Abby, there are other professions just as noble. I am a registered nurse, and along with police officers and firefighters, we do not receive the respect that teachers do. We perform tasks that no one else would want to do. We see people at their worst and are often the target of other people's frustrations.

Nurses do not get summers off, and few of us are home on holidays. Hospitals must be staffed 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The pay is fair, but the work is extremely stressful. As health-care spending decreases, nurses are asked to do more and more. The rate of back injuries among nurses is well above the national average. Many nurses suffer from "burnout" each year and transfer to other professions.

Like doctors, nurses must have continuous training in order to stay up-to-date on the latest medical treatments and protocols.

At least once in our lives, every one of us can remember being helped by a nurse. Please, Abby, tell your readers that if they know a nurse, to give him or her a hug. Take the nurse to lunch and tell that person just how special he or for reminding my readers and me - how terrific and dedicated nurses are. I urge everyone to give nurses the attention and praise they deserve during National Nurses' Week, May 6-12, 2001, and every day.

DEAR ABBY: I feel like I'm in a free fall. I'm unemployed and attending school to better myself. I'm living with a girl I care about, but she has a child, and I am at a point in my life where I'm still trying to discover what I want.

I don't want to hurt this child in any way, but I've found someone else I would like to spend time with. I don't want to deceive my girlfriend, but if I tell her about the other woman, she'll kick me out of her house and I'll have no place to live.

Abby, I need to find out where I want my life to go, but I also want to make the right choices. What should I do? FRED IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR FRED: First, get a part-time job. Second, start looking for your own place to live — perhaps student housing. Third, level with the woman with whom you're living. The sooner you are out of there, the better it will be for everyone. To stay and pretend you are committed to her and her child when you're not is dishonest and deceitful.

DEAR ABBY: Here's one for your "Can you top this?" file. A friend planned a 50th birthday party for his wife. He hired a male stripper to "entertain" the guests.

His mother was terminally ill, but gave her approval for the party to take place whether she was alive or not. Shortly before the party, she died. The party took place before she was buried. The only change was that the guests were asked to wear black.

Bill Stiles of Wheeler was the winner of the Top O' Texas CattleWomen Young Rancher's Scholarship. He attended a dinner sponsored by Merial/Ivomec and Texas CattleWomen and was awarded his scholarship

The next day he attended a trade show and later won an ear-tagger. One of the courses he attended was "Controlling Predators," a lecture on brush and weed control and new applications. Another course explored actual chute work with live cattle, demonstrating safer, easier and more efficient methods. Stiles also sat in on a computer course featuring a program designed to monitor cattle in

I wonder what if Jesus came to our town?

To the editor,

What would happen if Jesus came to town for a few days? If He came as a beggar or pauper, would He be turned away? Would

He be told get out of here, we don't have time for you?

What if He came as a rich man and showed plenty of wealth. How would He be treated then?

Either way, which direction would be taken? Would He be shown respect and honor or would it be the other way?

I just wonder what would happen if He went to one of His own houses dressed in rags and asked for something. I just wonder what He would think if they told Him we don't do that kind of thing. We contribute once a month to a local charity and that's enough. I just wonder how proud he would be of those places and people.

I just wonder if He would be wronged to and snubbed and made fun of if He came poor. I just wonder if He would love the children that the parents can hardly feed them, let alone give them other things, as much as He would the ones who have everything.

I just wonder what if He were sitting in a church service and all the talk about His love and how they should serve Him, and He's in the midst of a lot of things to show the glorification of Him and a poor person sits next to Him can't afford the finest of clothing and they are there to learn about Him and all His love. Isn't that what He's about? I just wonder how much honor and glory He would receive and how much He wouldn't. What He would be shown and what He wouldn't and where He would be taken and where He wouldn't.

He knows everything anyway and He knows who's doing what and He knows who's more worried about the finer things of life and not got time for Him.

Cleaner air not a concern with legislators

Shame on the members of the Texas House of Representatives. They had an opportunity recently to make a significant improvement in air quality in our state and they chose to stay on the path of the polluter.

I traveled to Austin recently to watch the debate over the bill to renew the TNRCC and it's 150 amendments. The lobbyists for industry were there in full force and environmental enemies number one, Rep. Warren Chisum of Pampa, and number two, Ray Allen of Grand Prairie, fought hard to defeat any possible improvements, specifically an end to the Grandfather loophole for aging industrial facilities and an end to the special loophole for old cement kilns.

Mr. Chisum actually said that out in West Texas there's so much room that the pollution just spreads out and ends up in Mexico! Well, I imagine some of it ends up in Pampa as well.

Public champions and supporters of cleaner air Zeb Zbranek of Winnie and Toby Goodman of Arlington debated for their amendments that would have guaranteed a reduction of the emissions which cause smog and ozone pollution. They lost, and we, the public, lost. The clean clear air in Texas that we knew as children doesn't stand a chance against the corporate powers at the Capitol.

Local policy raises some concern with grandparent

I would like to let the people of Pampa know that the police are sending 12- and 13-year-old girls in middle school out to clean up the land-fill with 18-year-old boys (no one to watch them.)

When I tried to talk to the policeman in charge, he told me if I didn't like it I could come up and pay my granddaughter's fine!

Thanks for letting me get this off my mind. Nora Gabriel

AMARILLO - Rainfall forced the canceled of the Tight Lies Tour Amarillo Open on Friday at the La Paloma Golf Club.

Mark Walker of Arlington was declared the winner after two rounds with his score of 6-under-par 136. Jeb Stuart of Dallas finished second at 138 while Ryan Palmer of Amarillo and Marco Gortana of Dallas tied for second at Walker picked up $12,000 in prize money. Stuart, the second-place received $7,000.

It was Walker's first win on the Tight Lies Tournament after several runnerup finishes. He had finished second in a tournament at Jackson, Miss. in early April.

Wildlife specialist to speak at Clarendon

Rollins, Texas Agricultural droughts, blizzards, heat waves Extension Service Wildlife and flooding. Specialist, will speak at the upcoming Donley County Wildlife Association meeting on Monday. Dr. Rollins is a leading authority on quail management in Texas and will be speaking about quail populations and their management in the Northern Rolling Plains of Texas.

Quail management is a timely topic considering the the declin-ing status of quail populations in North America. Bobwhites are declining in 24 of the 31 states in which they occur, based on results of Christmas Bird Count data collected by the National Audubon Society from 1961 to 1988. Breeding bird survey data from 1982 to 1991 also indicates a population decline. Bobwhites have declined at a rate of 3.5 percent per year and blue quail have declined at a shocking 8.3 percent per year.

Although there is a slight declining trend for quail populations in the Northern Rolling Plains Region of Texas, this area is one of the remaining strongholds for bobwhite quail in

So, why are bobwhite and blue quail declining? Explanations range from fire ants to global warming, but the one explanation that seems most plausible is habitat quality and availability. A bobwhite quail population needs cover to persist the frequent Wildlife Department.

Dale environmental onslaught of Populations inhabiting small, disjointed blocks of habitat, even excellent habitat, are often termed "Zombie" populations by wildlife biologists. Zombie populations occupy areas of suitable habitat that are too small to support viable quail populations. A single extreme environmental event, such as drought, may totally wipe out a zombie population. If the block of habitatis too far from other quail populations, it may not be reoccupied by bobwhite and you could be left with habitat that has no quail population.

Dr. Rollins should lend some insight into this, as well as offer some good, on-the-ground management tips for your quail hunting spot. The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Bairfield Building on the Clarendon College Campus in Clarendon. Admission to the meeting is free.

Meeting attendance is not limited to area landowners. Everyone is invited to attend. The informal nature of the meeting will provide you with a great opportunity to visit one-on-one with Dr. Rollins, as well as other landowners and conservation-

STUDY

Shortage-area fields are areas with the most pressing need for certified teachers. These areas include secondary math, science and English as a Second Language as well as elementary special education and bilingual/English as a Second

For example, Izat found that in 1997-98, the number of students certified in secondary math totaled 11. In 1998-99, that number jumped to 13, but in 1999-2000, the total number of students certified for that same area totaled a mere seven. These low numbers reflect just why Reinart was hired for an area she was not certified to teach.

"I'll do whatever it takes to be a good teacher." And she did. Reinart had only six hours of math didates in those shortage-area teaching certificawith her elementary education degree, but need-tion fields. ed 18 for a math certification. So as soon as school let out for the summer after her first year of teach- Texas A&M University System's official commit-ing, Reinart was back in the classroom at WTAMU working on a full load toward her certification. She has since completed the requirements and has no regrets about the experience.

"I'm in my third year of teaching and I love it. I don't want to leave."

Reinart's experience proved to be a positive one and it is hoped that findings from the five-year study will help make that the rule rather than the exception. As part of the study's research team, Izat has pulled together facts and figures on more than 2,200 students in the teacher preparation pipeline at WTAMU. This data gives the WTAMU College of Education and Social Sciences and the Division of Education a good look at how to meet the growing needs of today's teacher population. But the lack of certification didn't deter Reinart. Izat said the data could also help create new methods of attracting and retaining teacher can-

This goes hand-in-hand with WTAMU and the ment to increase the production of public school teachers especially in shortage-area fields over the next five years as part of the Regents' Initiative for Excellence in Education. The Initiative's projected goals address today's need for additional teachers and WTAMU is already working toward meeting those goals.

Dr. Ted Guffy, dean of the College of Education and Social Sciences and professor of education said several things are in the works to help WTAMU meet goals set by the Regent's Initiative. Thanks to a Department of Education Grant, Guffy said WTAMU is able to offer $66,000 in scholarships to those planning to teach in shortage-area fields and high-need schools.

'Most of the schools are able to hire teachers that are certified, but some teachers do spend part of their day in an area they are not certified to teach," Guffy said.

That's where the Teacher Quality Enhancement Scholarship steps in. This scholarship is awarded to students seeking initial teacher certification and preference is given to those seeking certification in those shortage-area fields.

"This scholarship initiative has increased the number of students seeking certification in these shortage areas," Tana Gunter, director of education advisement in the Division of Education,

"We have given away approximately $31,500 to WTAMU students for their interest in these shortage areas. They have committed themselves to teach not only in a shortage area, but also in a 'high needs' school."

After graduation, recipients of the scholarship funds are required to teach one year in a "highneed" school for each year the award is received.

Guffy said the University also hosts Discover Teaching each fall for high school students interested in the teaching profession. The high school students are invited to spend a day on the WTAMU campus and learn more about the teaching profession.

We've found that several of these students end up coming to WTAMU and enrolling in teacher certification programs," Guffy said.

These are only a few of the many programs WTAMU is participating in to enhance teacher education. And with the ongoing demand study, WTAMU and the Texas A&M University System institutions hope to utilize the research to make the recruitment, development and placement of teachers a positive one.

Lilac time inspires poets

death. Prized by gardeners in many lands, the flowers' beauty memory and desire." But Walt Whitman also waxed elegiac in mourning Spring's passing in "When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloomed."

To Victorians who doted on the "language of flowers," lilacs meant "the emotions of first love," and the poet Alfred Noyes had that in mind when he wrote, "Go down to Kew in lilac time."

Love also imbued the 1928 hit song, still heard occasionally, "Jeannine, I Dream of Lilac Time."

Lifacs come in many varieties, but the common lilac, Syringa vulgaris, of Balkan origin, has enjoyed immense popularity since it was introduced into western Europe from Turkey about 1550 and into America by the earliest colonists. By the 18th century, Thomas Jefferson was frequently mentioning lilacs in his garden notes and letters.

The common lilac's ability to survive harsh winters and summer droughts with little care you can practically neglect it obviously contributed to its widespread adoption. Cultivars of the shrub produce flowers of various colors - blue, lilac, magenta, pink, purple, violet, white and yellow — and some bear honorific names of noted men and women.

A blue one, for example, is called "President Lincoln," a pink one,
"Montaigne," for the 16th century
French essayist, and a lilac-colored one, in French, "Christophe Colomb." A double-flowered white lilac is named "Edith Cavell" for the British nurse executed by the Germans in World War I for helping to smuggle Allied troops from Belgium to the Dutch border.

One minus about lilac bushes:

T.S. Eliot perhaps struck the bluest note with his "April is the cruellest month, breeding lilacs sweeter. This but his sweeter than the common and I fancy that its fragrance is sweeter. > each year, the flowers die. Most lilacs have the same soil requirements, exposure and culture, which means survival in virtually any soil, doing best in a rich loam midway between slightly acidic and slightly alkaline, or a pH of about 7. The shrubs can stand some shade but need a generous amount of sun for the blooms to thrive. The best time to plant young shrubs is early spring. However, this can be done also in the fall for springtime experience. And with Whitman I truly grieve when, before the ground freezes. Fall plantings should be well watered. You can grow your own common lilacs from sucker growth, often abundant, that comes up at the base of established bushes. You dig out a sucker, or sprout, with its root, and plant it in a hole wide enough to accommodate the root without cramping. Fill the hole with topsoil and compost and a little bone meal, and water well for the first season.

If you'd rather buy young nursery plants, Wayside Gardens of Hodges, S.C., Tel. 800-845-1124, is a good place to fill your orders. The catalog has many varicolored offerings at $26 each, $75 for three and $142 for six. If blue is your color, the catalog describes "President Lincoln" as producing blooms "the nearest to a true blue of any variety known." For small yards or foundation plantings, the nursery offers "Miss Kim" from Korea that is easily kept pruned to 4 feet. The blooms are ice blue when mature.

EDITOR'S NOTE: George Bria retired from the AP in 1981 after after the blooming season, and you could call them boring. Also, the leaves mildew easily in shade, but retired from the AP in 1981 after 40 years that included coverage of World War II from Italy.

The new economy with all its technology may not measure up

NEW YORK (AP) — It may be a bit early to when compared to the great inventions leading to ery, he describes how electricity led to creative new manufacturing processes, improved working condicomputers, the Internet and telecommunications devices not even imagined a century ago may not Measure up to what? Well, to the very old economy, the turn-of-the-century economy of 100 years ago. Now that, according to an economic working paper, was really something.

Economist Robert Gordon suggests that the great inventions of 1860 to 1900 had a more pronounced effect on productivity and living standards - and for many more years - than our much acclaimed New Economy of today.

In fact, says Gordon, whose analysis is described in a working paper for the National Bureau of Economic Research, our modern inventions pale

Those inventions - electricity, internal combustion engine, chemical and pharmaceutical industries, entertainment-information-communications industries and urban sanitation — really did change

Together, they accounted for much of the upsurge in productivity from 1913 to 1972, and they had a more personal impact on lives.

In 1882, he points out, only 2 percent of New York City houses had water connections. Equally bad, many workers tolerated industrial working conditions worse than those in today's sweatshops in underdeveloped countries. Accidents and disease were common, and life spans were abbreviated. Citing the impact of just one invention or discovtions and a generation of appliances that reduced manual labor.

It led to refrigeration and reduced food spoilage, and through the development of air conditioning South. And, of course, it greatly reduced stair climb-

For years, he says, researchers sought to explain a post-1913 surge in productivity growth, a "big wave" that lasted until the beginning of the 1970s. Primary attention, he writes, must be paid to the great inventions.

By comparison, he writes, the latest surge in longterm productivity gains are incremental compared to the cluster of inventions before and after 1900.

Moreover, he states that recent productivity gains are largely confined to durable manufacturing, including the making of computers and semiconductors, a sector that comprises just 12 percent of the economy.

His central theme, he says, "is that computers and was catalytic in economic development of the Internet do not measure up to the Great Inventions of the late nineteenth and early twentieth > Developing the thought, he adds that in this respect, the latest inventions "do not merit the label of 'Industrial Revolution.'

> Yes, say those who defend the honor and reputation of today's new economy, but you haven't seen anything yet. It took a century for the full effects of the earlier inventions to be felt. We've got a century

Timothy Hutton plays stylish sleuth in A&E's 'Nero Wolfe'

NEW YORK (AP) — "You are headstrong," mutters Nero Wolfe, "and I am magisterial. Our tolerance of one another is a recurring miracle."

Miraculous indeed is the bond between this magisterial super-sleuth and Archie Goodwin, his dapper, street-wise legman. Together, in a clash of decorum and brass, they solve murders like nobody else.

Following last season's successful "Nero Wolfe" TV film, A&E has launched a series reuniting Maury Chaykin in the title role with Timothy Hutton as Archie. Fast-paced and stylish, there's no mystery why it's so much fun to watch.

Of course, Nero Wolfe first saw life as the hero of some 70 mysteries published by novelist Rex Stout between 1934 and 1985, a decade after Stout's death at the age of 89.

Hutton discovered the books when a friend gave him a tip: "You oughta read one of these, you'll get a kick out of 'em. It's sort of a cross between Damon Runyon and Noel Coward." The actor laughs appreciatively. "He was responsible for every piece of music, and be responsible for the casting.

There, this fabulous recluse puzzles tale to tale in different roles. through each crime in his head, while Archie who's as good with fact-finding as he is with his mitts — works the outside world of circa-1950s Manhattan.

Hutton has expanded his own role beyond that of playing Archie to also serving as an executive producer, occasional director and a guiding force to keep the series light on its feet.

The tone of last year's film, based on the Wolfe mystery "The Golden Spider," was too sinister, Hutton says over meatloaf and mashed potatoes at a Broadway eatery. "Everything seemed to be dressed in shades of brown. Everything was dusty and grimy, with that detective-genre, what's-around-the-corner kind of music.

Swell, they said, and filming began in Toronto last August. The series' look is bright and plushly appointed.

The music swings like a night at the Stork Club.

This week signals the concluding half of

"Champagne for One," a case that, in typical "Wolfe" fashion, takes more twists and turns than a New York cabbie — at about the same clip.

Listen: Archie has been asked to fill in for an acquaintance, Dinky Byne, at a party for unwed mothers hosted by Dinky's hoity-toity aunt, Mrs. Robilotti. But one of the mothers at the party was poisoned by a glass of champagne. The unstable Faith carried cyanide around, so everyone assumes she is a suicide. Except Archie.

Fine. But each "Nero Wolfe" case takes a back seat to the "parade of oddball characters and the rhythm of the dialogue," as Hutton puts it.
"We tell stories about when bad things happen,

"I was interested in doing the series if I could but we strip all the sentimentality out of it, with play a part in how it looked, and be completely people moving through it like they're late to catch a train. That's kinda our style.'

He brings out a cigarette, one of the day's allowable three. He will be off smokes by the weekend, he vows. His incentive to quit: a baby due in August.

'We found out yesterday it's a boy," says right."

d'Estaing, a French children's book author he married last year. He also has a 14-year-old son ny including Deborah Monk, Ron Rifkin, Marian with actress Debra Winger, his former wife.

At 40, Hutton is a still-boyish-looking veteran of movies and theater who remains best-known for his debut performance in the 1980 drama "Ordinary People," which scored him an Oscar. He has stayed busy since, but in recent years has had a lower profile.

"Maybe along the way I should have thought more commercially," he concedes. "But to sit back and say, 'The script didn't make any sense to me, I didn't find it funny or smart, but it's probably going to be very successful and I should consider it' - I can't do that.

"You can't predict how a movie is going to do commercially," he says. "But you CAN predict, a little bit more accurately, what the experience of making the movie might be and what you might learn, regardless of how many people see it."

He takes a puff and looks as self-assured as Archie, even absent the fedora. "I wouldn't want to change a thing."

Battle under way to resurrect rail to ease highway congestion

By LISA FALKENBERG Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A veteran made of steel is dying.

Over the past decade, thousands of miles of steel track that once carried the loads of smoking, moaning giants across the state are being peeled from Texas landscape.

With traffic squeezing through even the newest concrete arteries, some officials say trains could ease the transportation crisis. A small group of lawmakers, officials and local activists is working to make it easier to save miles of Texas track to help carry the highways," he said. load of the new economy.

But it's an uphill journey. "It's just an all-out battle to keep this rail on the ground," said John Helsley, chairman of the state rail planning committee of the Texas Rural Development Council. "We're fighting the war."

Lately, he's gotten some help from lawmakers carrying legislation to make it easier for the state to help buy rail in danger of abandonment.

Between World War II and 1980, some 1,500 miles of Texas rail lines were abandoned and stripped. That has increased to 4,000 miles in the past decade, Transportation Commissioner Robert Nichols said.

Abandonment surged after the state stopped regulating the ailing railroad industry in the 1980s.

As a private industry, big rail started merging and streamlining operations, which meant cutting jobs and stripping unprofitable lines to sell the valuable steel and ties.

Some of the mergers were rocky and service suffered, prompting many companies to switch to trucks for hauling their products. Even though train service has become more efficient, many never switched

Rail is used to ship bulk materials such as coal, grain and chemicals. Some experts say that while trains are more fuel- and cost-efficient, less polluting, less susceptible to driver shortages and safer, trucks are faster, more reliable and flexible..

Nationwide, trucks carried about 58 percent of commodity tons in 1997 while trains carried about 11 percent if tons, said Dr. Steve Roop, director of rail research at the Texas Transportation Institute. Much of the rest traveled by water, pipeline and air.

Truck traffic has increased sharply in the past decade, with 80 percent of traffic from the North American Free Trade Agreement lumbering on Texas concrete.

"You can drive down any freeway and just see trucks, trucks, trucks," Commissioner Nichols said. "People underestimate how much of that was, or could be, on rail."

Each fully loaded 18-wheeler does nearly as much damage to a roadway as 9,600 automobiles, Nichols said.
