Economy, census cause concerns for local schools

Editor's Note: This is the first in a three-part series on how the economy, population, and end-of-the-year enrollment figures affect area school districts.

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

As rural areas decline in population, shrinking school enrollment has many residents concerned about the future of the Texas Panhandle and its people.

Area school administrators are saying they are grateful the drop in student enrollment is not more so. Many they are "just maintaining" their current enrollment, and a few have more students. But the majority have dropped in school enrollment.

Ironically, several of the area schools which are losing students are the most wealthy schools. Chapter 41 schools. These schools are considered property wealthy school districts because of their taxable value and must send monies to the state for the poorer school districts.

Miami, Grandview-Hopkins, and Plemons-

Stinnett CISD are Chapter 41 and must send money from their districts to the state. Some send as much as half of their property tax revenues to Austin or other districts. Plemons-Stinnett-Phillips had to raise taxes last year because of a new formula for Chapter 41 schools.

Lefors, Canadian and White Deer schools once were Chapter 41, but currently are not.

Local and area schools have invested considerable amounts of tax dollars towards computer technological advancement to educate today's local students in the 21st century as the young people are leaving their hometowns to go to larger, more metropolitan areas to secure employment with these skills.

While Pampa's population is down by 2,072 community residents from the 1990 census, school census is down by only 16 students from August 2000.

In 1990, the city population was 17,887. The 2000 census figures indicate Gray County was down from 23,967 in 1990 to 22,744.

Workin' together

By DAVID BOWSER
Staff Writer

LEFORS - When Jeff Haley begins gathering cattle at his ranch along Red Mud Creek, a lot of the cow hands have the same last name.

In a day when so many are leaving family ranches for desk jobs in the city, family and tradition are important to Haley and his older brother, Jim.

The two brothers, separated by 10 years and 63 miles, run a herd of cattle on their two ranches. Jeff lives on the ranch at Lefors. Jim lives on one near Canadian.

When they get together to brand calves, Jim brings his sons James, 14, and John, 9. Jeff brings his sons, Bill, 8; Bobby, 6, and Tom, 4.

While the older boys work horseback, Tom waits at the pens, alternately climbing rolls of hay and watching for his brothers and cousins.

As Jeff cuts out the dry cows from the herd in the pens, the younger boys climb the fence to watch and learn. They pay rapt attention as Jeff moves through the herd slowly with the practiced gait of a cattleman not wanting to stir up the cattle.

Tom, Bob and Bill cheer from their post on the fence as James turns back a wayward cow and prevents her from leaving the herd.

The trio watch closely as John vaccinates the bawling calves his Uncle Jeff ropes and drags to the branding fire.

There is little doubt where the boys' interests lie. It's not that much different than the interests of Jim and Jeff a generation before.

The two brothers say there was never any doubt in their minds about what they wanted to do with their lives. Ranching was in their blood.

"As a matter of fact, the day I graduated, Dad showed (See WORKIN', Page 13)

Food drive collects 4 tons for charity

Pampa residents gave more than 8,500 pounds of food to local charities in the National Food Drive May 12, officials announced Wednesday.

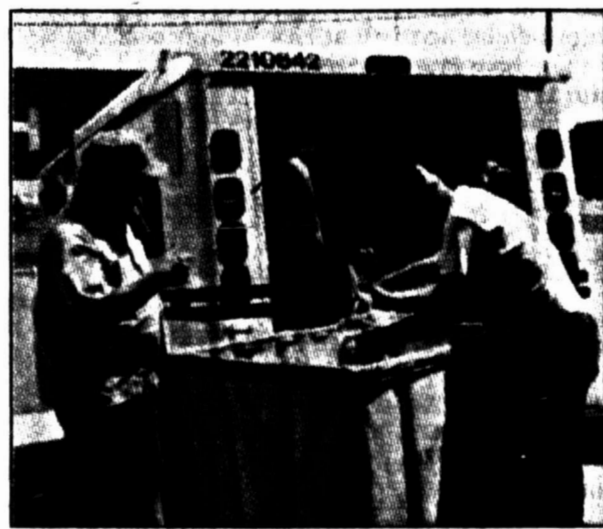

On Saturday, May 12, residents were asked to set canned goods and non-perishable foods by their mail boxes. The food was to be picked up by mail carriers, Boy Scouts and other volunteers and distributed to local United Way agencies.

Approximately 8,539 pounds of food was collected in this year's drive, reported Katrina Bigham, executive director of the Pampa United Way.

Sponsors of the National Food Drive included the National Association of Letter Carriers in conjunction with the U.S. Postal Service, Pampa United Way and the AFL-CIO.

Local recipients of the food items included The Salvation Army, Good Samaritan Christian Services, Tralee Crisis Center and Genesis House. Each of the agencies received more than a ton of food - a total of 2,134 pounds each, organizers reported.

PHS band makes plans for music festival, cruise

By NANCY YOUNG
Managing Editor

Pampa High School band members want to go to Seattle, Wash., on a band trip next year, said Pampa High School Band Director Bruce Collins at the PISD Board of Trustees during Thursday night's meeting.

Collins said tentative plans are for the 120 to 130-member band to fly to the far northwestern state for a music festival aboard a cruise ship.

The unique music festival is scheduled for the weekend of May 10, 2002, said Collins.

He said the date would be agreeable for the group as the 2002 Prom is scheduled for May 17.

He referred to an agreement apparently made several years ago for the choir and band to take major trips in alternating years. He said the choir took their major trip this year to New York City, while the band went to Branson, Mo. He said next year is the band's turn for the major trip.

Collins was authorized by the board to proceed making plans for the trip.

Tentative plans are for the band to also go to Victoria, British Columbia, Canada, while in the Seattle area. He said the (See BAND, Page 3)

DR. RICHARD WHITE CREWS
 SAN ANTONIO — Dr. Richard White Crews, 84, died Monday, May 21, 2001. Memorial services will be at 2 p.m. Monday in Robert Carr Chapel on the campus of Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. Arrangements are under the direction of Greenwood Funeral Home.

Dr. Crews was born Jan 25, 1917, at Waxahatchie, to Benjamin Crews and Jimmie Roberta White Crews, and grew up in Dallas. He graduated from Sunset High School in 1935 and from Texas Christian University in 1939, receiving a bachelor of arts degree.

While at TCU, he was president of his class his sophomore, junior and senior years and was a member of Bryson English Honor Society. He developed a passion for TCU football and a love of English literature.

He continued his education at TCU by attending Brite Divinity School. He received his master of divinity degree from Brite in 1942 and was ordained as a minister by the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). He volunteered for service in the U.S. Army. While stationed near Needles, Calif., he met and later married his wife of 57 years, Mary Jean Sharp.

During World War II, he served as a chaplain in the U.S. Army in the South Pacific. He saw combat in the Philippine campaign and received the Chaplain's Certificate of Award and Bronze Combat Star.

After returning from the South Pacific, he began his ministry at a "Timothy" of Oak Cliff Christian Church. He served as youth minister in churches in Fate and Hutchins and at Central Christian Church in Dallas. He served as a senior minister in Christian churches in Cisco, 1946-48, Denison, 1949-51, Pampa, 1951-61, San Angelo, 1961-68 and Lafayette, Calif., 1968-72.

He served as the area minister for the Coastal Plains Area of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) in the Southwest with offices in Houston (1972-81). After he retired, he served as a senior associate minister at South Hills Christian Church in Fort Worth until 1993.

During his ministry, Dr. Crews served as president of Texas Association of Christian Churches, was a member of numerous boards including those of Juliette Fowler Home, Rosemead N.B.A. Home in California, Texas Christian University and Brite Divinity School.

He was active in the Boy Scouts and was deeply involved in many ecumenical programs and community affairs.

During his ministry, he also continued his education, receiving an honorary doctorate degree and a doctor of divinity degree from TCU in 1960. He received a master of philosophy from Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley, Calif., in 1972. In 1996, he was honored with the Distinguished Ministry Award from Brite Divinity School at TCU.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Jean "Dede" of San Antonio; a daughter, Barbara Lee Crews Gregory and husband, Keith, of Dallas; a son, Richard W. Crews, Jr., and wife, Catherine McNabb Crews of Corpus Christi; and grandchildren, Bronwen Erika Gregory, Courtney Catherine Crews and Kimberly Ann Crews.

The family requests memorials be in lieu of flowers to Brite Divinity School, TCU, Fort Worth.

DPS asks drivers to use caution on Memorial Day

AUSTIN — Drinking and driving could be the leading killer on Texas roadways this Memorial Day weekend, if Texas drivers fail to exercise caution, Texas Department of Public Safety officials warn.

"If you plan to drink — don't drive. It's that simple. No party or celebration is worth risking your life and the lives of others," said Col. Thomas A. Davis Jr., director of the DPS. "And when we say to have a designated driver, we don't mean at the end of the evening you decide who has had the least amount to drink. Choose one person to stay sober — all evening long."

DPS troopers and many other police agencies will increase patrols over the weekend to get drunk drivers off the roads and to target speeders and seat belt violators. One nationwide effort designed to reduce fatalities is the C.A.R.E. - Combined Accident Reduction Effort - program. State police across the nation participate in C.A.R.E., maximizing enforcement on major interstate highways, significantly reducing fatalities commonly associated with holiday weekends.

DPS reminds the public that the statewide Stranded Motorist Hotline, 1-800-525-5555, can also be used to report obviously intoxicated drivers.

The most deadly time on the road during Memorial Day weekend tends to be between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. — a time frame when alcohol and fatigue often are cited as factors.

"People try to pack too much into one weekend," said Davis. "If you start to nod off, please pull over to a safe place and take a break."

People in the News

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Andie MacDowell has appeared in Oscar-nominated films and been named one of People magazine's 50 most beautiful people in the world.

But what really impressed her was opening the Spoleto Festival U.S.A. on Friday.

The festival, now in its 25th year, features more than 130 performances and events ranging from ballet to jazz, opera to theater, and art exhibits to classical concerts.

"I'm from Gaffney, S.C., the pearl of the Piedmont," the 43-year-old MacDowell said. "I always thought people from Charleston were really up there big time. So I'm really glad to be here."

The actress, who co-starred in 1989's "sex, lies, and videotape" and 1994's "Four Weddings and a Funeral," told the crowd that art "speaks all languages and embraces all cultures and continues to live as long as it is maintained."

The 17-day Charleston festival is modeled after the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, founded by Pulitzer Prize-winning composer Gian Carlo Menotti.

NEW YORK (AP) — A Grated Prince?

It may be hard to believe, but the singer who once provoked shock waves with his X-rated lyrics has sworn off cursing and is preaching about the importance of virtue in the May edition of Gotham magazine.

Prince, who is now a Jehovah's Witness, said that "when you use those (curse) words, you call up all the anger, all the negatives times the word has been used before — you bring it toward yourself. Why would you want that?"

Prince also told the magazine that teens need more God in their lives.

CONCERNS

According to the census figures released in March, population declined in 20 of the top counties in the Panhandle.

As the census dropped, both U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry (R-Clarendon) and State Rep. Warren Chisum (R-Pampa) will be undergoing a major increase in the areas they represent.

Thornberry will have to find another 55,000 constituents to represent in Washington, D.C. His district has the dubious distinction of having lost the largest number of people in a Texas congressional district.

His district currently represents part or all of 38 counties. Including the Panhandle, the district swings to the east past Wichita Falls and snakes into Denton County and as far south to include a portion of Lubbock County.

Chisum lost more than 25,000 constituents in the 16-county area he represents. His area will be redistricted to add more counties. Gray County Commissioner precincts will also be redistricted due to the changing census figures.

The downward spiraling population has caused most of the schools to lose students.

Gray County, along with Roberts, Carson, Hemphill and Hutchinson counties, experienced a declining number of students. However, the school enrollment picture is not as grim in Gray County as it is in some of the other four counties.

Dr. Dawson Orr, superintendent of Pampa Independent School District, said the local school district had 3,549 students at the beginning of the current school year. When enrollment was taken on April 30, 2001, there were 3,533.

"The enrollment dipped during the year, but it has held up pretty decently," he said. Orr attributes the drop to the overall economic situation, but is optimistic.

"The recovery of the oil and gas industry in the area has certainly helped," he said. "National Oil Well's expansion has helped the town."

He said the employment picture, economic stability and school enrollment are all related factors.

A trend has emerged across the five-county area as most all of the panhandle schools are graduating more students than are being replaced by incoming kindergartners and first graders. Most school personnel say they believe the drop in the number of entering students is indicative of young adults moving to larger areas to secure jobs.

While Pampa High graduated nearly 260 students Friday night, the Kindergarten classes are definitely smaller with 193 students. The first grade has 276 students and the second grade 243 students.

"The second grade enrollment is more typical," Orr said.

Some area schools are reducing staff and programs offered, but Orr said PISD is considering adding an assistant band director and a wrestling coach. "There is much interest in both these programs," he said.

Pampa's total taxable value for 2000 was $866,749,471.

Other Gray County schools are also holding their own or are increasing. McLean is up 13 students over the end of school last year, and Lefors is only down by four students from the previous year.

"I'm just real pleased," said McLean Superintendent John Griffin. "Fortunately, we're doing good. I don't know why, but we are."

Located on I-40, McLean's main economy is agriculture. Griffin said the school is the largest employer in the small community while the local feedlot is second and a turbine engine company is third.

"We have 16 seniors graduating this year, and 15 incoming kindergartners are registered for the upcoming school year," he said.

Griffin said the school has been rated as exemplary the past two years. The school's tax rate is $1.45. All of the rate is used for maintenance and operations as MISD doesn't have an interest and sinking tax.

"We're just doing so well that I don't say much around my fellow superintendents," said Griffin. "Most school districts aren't doing as well as McLean."

McLean's total taxable value for 2000 was $97,564,173.

Down the road in Gray County, Lefors School is only four students down from last year.

"We're maintaining," said Superintendent Allen Law. "Luckily we're not dropping."

"Our enrollment currently is 175 while last year was 179," he said. "The oil field and related industries have been slowing down. It has been bouncing back, but it's slow."

Lefors only had five seniors to graduate this year. Last year there were 10, said Law. He said the kindergarten class has five students while there are 12 first graders.

"We're not cutting any programs," he said. "Housing is one of our big problems here. Several people want to move to smaller communities because of crime and other problems. There are a lot of rewards to living in a small town."

"Everyone does so many things in a small school," he added. Law serves as both high school principal and superintendent at LISD.

"We have a lot of transfer students who come here," he said. "However, we couldn't accept any anglos this past school year and can't take any next year. We can only take minorities right now."

The certified taxable value for 2000 for LISD was $72,308,684.

Grandview-Hopkins Elementary has 43 students, an increase of four students over the 39 they had this time last year, said Superintendent Solomon Kepley.

He credits the increase to many parents wanting a small school atmosphere for their children.

"People really value a small school," he said. "We have an excellent staff along with tremendous parental involvement."

Kepley said the small student-to-teacher ratio found in the elementary school is extremely appealing to many parents. "Smallness is important to many," he said.

He added that 28 of their students are transfers from Pampa ISD, and said he is expecting more transfers next year.

Grandview-Hopkins moved into a newly-constructed school in December 2000.

"Our new school has excellent facilities for our students," said Kepley.

Certified taxable value for Grandview-Hopkins in 2000 was $71,414,586.

BAND

Most recently the band received sweepstakes honors during the University of Interscholastic League contests in Amarillo as they received Division One ratings in marching, concert and sight reading.

The Pampa High Jazz band was honored by being invited to perform a preshow concert for the Dixie Stampede while at Branson. Collins said the students' performance was exceptional for that event, and the audience response to the student musicians was overwhelming.

Collins will return to the board in August to update them on the status of trip plans.

Board members and administration are examining the possibility of hiring an assistant band director to assist with the program at Pampa High, according to PISD Superintendent Dawson Orr.

"We had a great turnout of help from the Boy Scouts and all the participating agencies," Bigham said. "We appreciate and thank everyone who gave non-perishable food to our National Food Drive this year. It was a huge success."

"We appreciate the efforts of each mail carrier and those who picked up food from the carriers on the routes and brought it in early," she added. "We also thank the Letter Carriers Union for providing cold drinks for the workers and carriers as they came in from their routes."

What employee would complain?

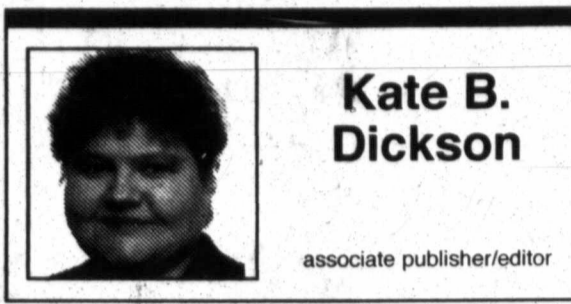

I'm writing this ahead of time because I was out of town until yesterday. That being the case, some elements of this issue may have changed. But I'm confident my opinion wouldn't have.

According to various news reports, including those of the Associated Press, Attorney General John Ashcroft's practice of holding devotional meetings with employees each morning has drawn fire from advocates of church-state separation.

I agree and don't think his morning devotional meetings are proper. Reports say this devoutly religious son of a minister presides over a reading, sometimes from the Bible, followed by a discussion and a prayer.

The AP story quotes aides as saying all employees are welcome but not required to attend. It's a practice Ashcroft is continuing from his days in the U.S. Senate.

I'm sorry but I have lots of trouble believing that if an employee decides these devotionals aren't his/her cup of tea and stays away that

Kate B. Dickson

associate publisher/editor

Ashcroft won't take notice — negatively.

I remember one time 15-20 years ago not wanting to go to an office Christmas party. An older, wiser person told me if I didn't go it could hurt my career... that the boss took lots of pride in organizing the party and knew who went and who didn't.

So, how many of those attending Ashcroft's devotional meetings are there out of fear? You can bet some are. And what about those whose belief system conflicts with the one Ashcroft espouses?

I love the aide who says she's not aware of any employee complaints about the devotional meetings.

I'm sure she isn't. What employee is going to complain for fear of retribution in some form?

Ashcroft's right to believe and practice whatever brand of religion he chooses is certainly to be respected, as is mine and yours and so, too, is respect due the fellow who has no religious beliefs.

A quote I saw by Barry Lynn, executive director of Americans United for Separation of Church and State caught my attention.

"Justice Department employees who do not participate may feel their job advancement is hindered," said Lynn. "Whenever a superior orchestrates a religious event, the people who work for him feel pressure to participate in order to advance their careers."

Well said.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas:
 Odessa American on Head Start program proves ineffective:
 U.S. Sen. George V. Voinovich seems confused. He claims to be fiscally responsible and to support federalism reducing the scope of the federal government in favor of state and local government yet, he is proposing to spend more money on the failing Head Start entitlement program.

Voinovich is buying into the fallacy that universal preschool is a solution to Americas education woes. But the data prove otherwise.

Head Start is the nations largest federal preschool program and it has indoctrinated more than 15 million children since 1965. But it has failed to have any lasting effects on child development.

Studies by the Department of Health and Human Services have demonstrated that the benefits of Head Start are short-lived.

"These studies show that by the time children enter second grade, any short-term cognitive, social and emotional gains experienced by Head Start children have completely vanished," wrote Darcy Olsen, director of education and child policy at the Cato Institute in Washington, D.C. "Head Start children's achievement test scores, IQ scores, achievement motivation scores, self-esteem and social behavior scores are no better than those of their demographically comparable Head Start peers. There is no evidence that Head Start provides lasting benefits."

Yet, despite this study and others, including one by the General Accounting Office, Voinovich wants to expand this program and spend even more public money.

Voinovich's plan, introduced in the Senate and cosponsored by liberal Democrat Sen. Dianne Feinstein of California, would forgive up to $5,000 in federal Stafford student loans in exchange for a five-year commitment to teach in Head Start.

The senator hopes his plan will encourage new teachers to teach in Head Start.

In an e-mail press release, Voinovich's office noted that the nations 2,000 programs are struggling to recruit and retain teachers. And it is only going to become harder to recruit new teachers because the requirements are being raised.

Voinovich has been a longtime advocate of Head Start. Federally, Head Start funding has tripled during the last 10 years.

It is obvious that Voinovich, like most proponents of Head Start, believes that more time and more money is the answer to universal preschool.

But more than $35 billion has been spent and more than 15 million children have participated in Head Start since 1965.

"That's more than enough time and resources to create a successful program, if that were possible," Olsen wrote.

Rather than waste more time, effort and our tax dollars, Voinovich should lead the cause in putting an end to federally funded preschool programs such as Head Start. Preschool education is better left to parents and the private sector rather than federal and state bureaucrats.

Americans are forgetting their history

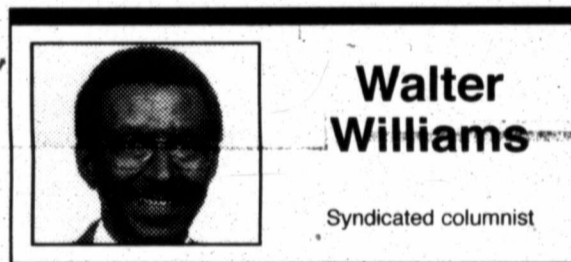

Arthur M. Schlesinger wrote in "The Disuniting of America": "History is to the nation... as memory is to the individual. An individual deprived of memory becomes disoriented and lost, not knowing where he has been or where he is going, so a nation denied a conception of its past will be disabled in dealing with its present and future."

Professor Stephen Bertman of the University of Windsor analyzed this threat in his article titled "Can America Remember Its Past?" which was reprinted in the December 2000 issue of Current magazine.

Ask an American why Veterans Day falls on Nov. 11 (Nov. 11, 1918, was the day the armistice was signed that ended World War I). Bertman says you'll be lucky if anyone has a clue.

In a 1990 survey, almost half of college seniors couldn't locate the Civil War in the right half century. More recently, 60 percent of American adults couldn't name the president who ordered the dropping of the first atomic bomb and over 20 percent didn't know where, or even if, the atomic bomb had ever been used. The same people didn't know who America's enemies were during World War II (Germany, Japan and Italy).

In a civics survey, more American teenagers were able to name the Three Stooges than the three branches of the federal government (executive, legislative and judicial branches). Many Americans are similarly ignorant about our

Walter Williams

Syndicated columnist

Constitution — so much so that a third of the people who were asked the origin of the statement, "From each according to his ability and to each according to his need," responded by saying it's from our Bill of Rights.

Bertman says that Americans cannot preserve our free institutions and build a better society if we've forgotten liberty's value and price. We cannot recognize that liberty is rare, precious and easily lost if we've forgotten the words and meaning of the documents upon which the American experiment was founded. We cannot wisely choose between fighting or not fighting a war if we've forgotten war's human cost and become oblivious to the historical necessity of giving one's life in order to preserve a way of life for others.

If we're ignorant of the historical sacrifices that made our liberties possible, we will be less likely to make the sacrifices again so that those liberties are preserved for future generations. And, if we're ignorant, we won't even know when government infringes on our liberties. Moreover, we'll happily cast our votes for those who'd destroy our liberties.

Thomas Jefferson summed it up best: "If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, in a state of civilization, it expects what never was and never will be."

What accounts for American amnesia? Bertman has several explanations that he says have less to do with our educational system than with the nature of today's culture and the kind of civilization America has become. Among his explanations are: Time is the engine of forgetfulness; mankind's drive for pleasure makes us now-oriented; the rise of science and technology combines to devalue the past and undermine the importance of memory; materialism and affluence produce attitudes whereby what is old, including the past, is regarded as useless and obsolete; and, finally, since our own history is so short, we're especially susceptible to devaluation of it.

I am not sure whether Bertman's explanations accurately diagnose America's amnesia. One thing for sure is that the disease isn't even recognized, much less is a remedy being sought. Our historical amnesia doesn't bode well for our future. As such, it makes a mockery of all the political demagoguery that we hear to justify one government program or another: We want to do it for America's children.

Gun-control stance generates untruths

Probably no subject generates more lies and deliberate distortions of the facts than gun control. It's easy to understand once you comprehend that the motivation is to disarm the common citizens of the United States. The talk may be about crime or safety or children, but the goal is to disarm the common citizens.

Thomas Jefferson explained that desire when he said people always fall into one of two categories no matter what the age or what they call themselves. There are those who trust and cherish the people and those who hate and fear the people.

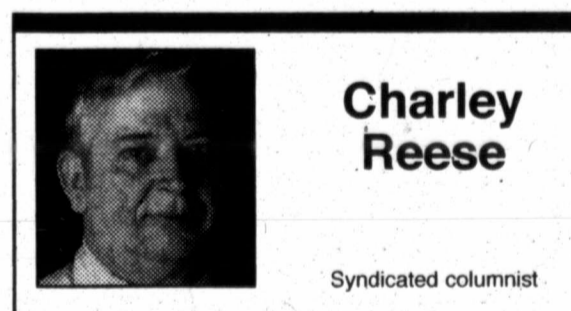

It is the elitists, who hate and fear the common people, who are behind the gun-control movement. Now let's look at some facts compared to lies.

Most Americans have been brainwashed into believing that we're the most violent and crime-ridden people on Earth. Not so. In fact, a new survey involving 34,000 people in 17 industrialized countries published by the Dutch Ministry of Justice shows the opposite. You can be sure America's anti-gun news media will not give this study much publicity.

The nations that report the highest percentage of crime victims are indeed those that have virtually banned private gun ownership. In descending order they are Australia, England and Wales, Scotland, Finland, Northern Ireland, France and the Netherlands.

The United States ranks eighth out of 17. As legitimate scholars have shown time and again, there is no correlation between gun ownership and crime except often an inverse one — the fewer private guns, the more crime.

As for gun safety, the disarms have grossly exaggerated that. The facts are that the National Safety Council has shown that in 1998, accidental firearm deaths for children from birth to 4 years old was 30; for children 5 to 14, there were 80 deaths. Accidental firearm deaths are at the bottom of the list of children's fatalities. The obvious answer is safety instruction, but you will notice that most of the gun-control crowd opposed gun-safety instruction. Ask yourself why they do that.

Charley Reese

Syndicated columnist

As for those numbers they cite, so many kids killed every day by guns, they get those by counting everybody 19 and younger as a "child" and by including accidents, suicides and crimes. Gang-bangers who shoot each other are "children who are victims of guns."

Another huge lie is that they claim to be politically powerful. No, it's the same elitists who have a lot of left-wing money from foundations, but if you will check the last presidential election, you will see that the National Rifle Association kicked their rear ends. No less an expert than Bill Clinton blamed Al Gore's defeat on the NRA.

He should have said America's gun owners. Many a Democrat in states such as West Virginia, Tennessee and other rural areas would rather keep their firearms than their Democratic voting records.

The NRA, so slandered by the elitist gun-control crowd, is, in fact, the nation's premier gun owner's organization. It was founded by a group of National Guardsmen to promote marksmanship and over the years has been praised by presidents and generals alike.

It is pro-law and order, pro-police, pro-gun safety and pro-responsible gun ownership. Now 4 million strong, I can most heartily recommend it as an organization to join if you are concerned about retaining America's traditional freedom to keep and bear arms.

Our Founding Fathers were proud that Americans were trusted with arms because they knew that only when people are armed could they truly be thought of as free citizens.

And that's where the circle closes. Those who want to deprive you of your right to keep and bear arms are intending to deprive you of your freedom, period. Like the criminals their policies encourage, these elitists know that it is always best to disarm victims before you enslave them. There are numerous examples in the 20th century.

I've seen this elitist fear among my own colleagues. Years ago, when Florida's right-to-carry law was only a bill in the Legislature, some of my journalistic colleagues were practically hysterical: Why if you let people carry firearms, there will be shootouts on every street corner and in the supermarket checkout lines.

Having grown up with people who carried firearms without the government's permission, I was genuinely mystified. I had to wonder if they lived in total isolation. Do they not know the American people? Do they really think their fellow citizens are stupid and crazy? Unfortunately, for many elitists, the answers are yes.

Of course, the facts proved them wrong. Florida has had a right-to-carry law for years, and the crime rate has gone down. People wielding their own firearms have saved many innocent lives. In some cases, they have done so by saving the taxpayers the expense of arrest, trial and imprisonment.

Defend your rights like a pit bull. Otherwise, you'll lose them.

The agenda of enemies of truth and justice ...

To the editor,
For nearly half a century, many Americans have been deceived about the part Sen. Joseph McCarthy had in the effort to protect American security from Communist subversion. Tail-gunner Joe was a legitimate war hero in World War II and demonstrated his patriotism as a senator in trying to warn his fellow citizens about Communist penetration into the State Department and other agencies of the government.

For his honest efforts, he was smeared in the liberal press, vilified unfairly in academia and shunned by some of his fellow senators who should have been ashamed for their actions.

The term "McCarthyism" took on a sinister definition of senseless attacks on innocent servants of the government who were unfairly attacked as subversive. Annie Lee Moss and Major Peress turned out to be Communists. Well now, the truth is finally coming to the light.

Geoffrey Smith, a professor of American history at Queen's University in Kingston, Canada, has said: "Many of McCarthy's allegations have been proven by recent historians to have more substance than we thought they did in the late 1940s and 1950s."

In 1996, McCarthy has been vindicated by the release of documents from the Soviet archives and the U.S. National Security Agency. Scripps Howard News Service summarized the material from the documents and found that McCarthy and other anti-communist activists "weren't too far wrong about extensive Soviet penetration of U.S. government agencies in the 1940s ... Transcripts of cables sent by KGB agents to Moscow in 1944 and 1945 were intercepted by U.S. cryptanalysts and indicate that more than 100 Soviet agents had infiltrated the State Department, Justice Department, War Department, Treasury Department and even the Office of Strategic Services, the precursor of the CIA."

Some of the Soviet agents were in important policy-making positions. Soviet archives proved Alger Hiss was a Communist agent. As first Secretary General of the United Nations at the founding meeting, Hiss oversaw the forming of the United Nations Charter. We are still living with the consequences of allowing such enemies to chart the future course of the United States. Can Americans honestly face the mistakes and subversion of the past and restore our Constitution? Are Americans sleeping so soundly they will only yawn at treason?

Hopefully, more patriots will be willing to face the difficulties of protecting the Republic and be willing to endure the "slings and arrows" of those who are subservient to the agenda of the enemies of truth and justice.

Pampa High School Choir: Keep singing, keep reaching

To the editor,
I want to share some exciting news with the people of Pampa. I have just returned from a trip to New York City with the Pampa High School Choir. I already had a great admiration for the PHS music staff, but this trip surpassed all of my expectations of our choir students as well.

The itinerary was carefully planned with strict attention to enhancing student cultural experiences with tours of the Empire State Building, World Trade Center, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Statue of Liberty, Staten Island Ferry, St. Patrick's Cathedral and so much more. The students performed at St. Patrick's Cathedral in a joint concert with Canyon and Randall High Schools. I sat in this beautiful church listening to our students and could not help but be moved to tears. Right then and there, I was hooked!

These students were outstanding. The music and melodies filled the church and our choir gave an unforgettable performance. Aside from obvious talents abounding, the inner qualities of these students were shining.

During the trip we all faced trials and tribulations of one sort or another. Some students had health problems such as foot sprains, knee surgeries, throat illnesses, motion sickness and fatigue. Group two was held inside the plane on the runway at La Guardia for three hours due to weather and traffic control problems in Chicago. We subsequently were not able to get on our flight out of Chicago until hours later.

The ticket agents at the gate asked if our group could give a little sample of their singing talents. The students sweetly began singing their Benediction Song. Right there in O'Hare Airport, the group brought applause from agents and travelers alike. We got on the bus and drove into Pampa at 5:30 a.m. Tuesday morning. The choir students all were present as school began at 8 a.m.

I know that Pampa citizens have heard this before, but please bear with me. I cannot stress enough the strength of character, the compassion and love between students, the concern for sponsors' well-being, and the abilities of these students to rise to the most difficult of situations with grace and style. From Pampa, Texas, to New York City and back again came floods of compliments from stewards, hotel employees, waiters, performers, travelers and bus drivers.

I don't think I will ever be quite the same again. I have a revived appreciation for the endless possibilities that these students show. Each person in the group had unique gifts of spirit. Pampa High School Choir, you have given me renewed hope for the future of our world. Keep singing, keep reaching.

KWTS first three-time recipient of West Texas A&M Community Service Award

CANYON — Some might think they are hearing the skip on a broken record, but as far as the faculty and students at West Texas A&M University radio station KWTS are concerned, such repetition is music to their ears.

KWTS, 91.1 on the FM dial, has been named the first three-time winner of the WTAMU, President's Community Service Award, a monthly award that was established in October 1996 to recognize volunteer efforts by members of the University community. KWTS previously captured the award in March 1997 and April 1999.

"Community service is a huge priority here," Dr. Leigh Browning, assistant professor of mass communications and director of broadcasting at WTAMU, said. "We're thrilled to be the first three-time recipient of this award because it shows that KWTS does community service consistently, year in and year out. That's something we're really very proud to be able to say."

However, KWTS is not alone in saying it. The WTAMU station picked up several top awards in March at the National Broadcasting Society's (NBS) national convention in Los Angeles, not the least of which was the NBS's Community Service Award for 2001.

"I think it's important to have students here see that nobody is above community service," Browning said. "Good characters are involved in community service, period, and at least part of what I believe we are here to do is to help develop good characters."

Browning's charges have been heavily involved in community service throughout the 2000-2001 academic year, supporting and promoting events and programs ranging from the Panhandle AIDS Support Organization and its fund-raiser, Ribbonfest, to Martha's Home and WTAMU's Alcohol

Awareness Week. They even maintain a two-mile stretch of Highway 87 west of Canyon as part of Adopt-A-Highway.

KWTS also conducted a canned food drive, raised money for heart disease, provided morning treats to area elementary school students, read aloud at other elementary schools and helped fund, bolster or promote the activities of numerous non-profit organizations such as 4-H, the Texas Commission for the Blind and Earthshare.

The President's Community Service Award was established by University President Russell C. Long to recognize the good-faith community efforts of WTAMU students, faculty and staff; offices and departments/divisions; and chartered/registered student organizations. The WTAMU Foundation donates $100 to the student scholarship fund in the name of each individual or organization that receives the award.

Roberts County Museum to showcase Pampa artist

The work of Pampa artist John Darby will be featured at the Roberts County Museum in Miami during the month of June. His exhibit of oil and pastel paintings and charcoal drawings will open at 9 a.m., Saturday, June 2 as one of the special events associated with Miami's annual Cow Calling Contest and Celebration.

Darby, who began painting as a hobby in 1992, has studied with well-known Southwest artists/teachers in Taos and Santa Fe, N.M., as well as Scottsdale, Ariz. He has also studied with noted panhandle pastellist, Amy Winton.

In late April, Darby won a third place ribbon with his charcoal entry in the drawing category of the Amarillo Fine Arts Association's juried art show at the Amarillo National Bank. Currently, he shows his work at Nichols Fine Art Studio and Gallery and Casa Encantada in Taos; Casa de Suenos in Albuquerque, N.M.; Adobe Pines Bed and Breakfast in Rancho de Taos, and the Art Emporium and Frame Wonders in Pampa.

The Darby exhibit may be viewed at the Roberts County Museum from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday, June 2, and during regular museum hours after the Cow-Calling weekend.

Patriot Award

WTAC Institute seeking scholarship applicants

LUBBOCK — The West Texas Agricultural Chemicals Institute (WTACI) is looking for a few good college students who may qualify for a scholarship.

Founded in 1953, WTACI is a consortium of educators, producers, consultants, chemical company dealers and agribusiness representatives and leaders promoting environmentally sound use of pesticides and other chemicals needed in sustainable, high-yield production agriculture.

The institute has presented more than $50,000 in college scholarships (funded by its annual conferences and gifts) to more than 50 agriculture students at Abilene Christian University, Angelo State University, Lubbock Christian University, Sul Ross State University, Texas Tech University and West Texas A&M University since initiating these endowments in 1983.

Last year it expanded scholarship eligibility to include graduate and undergraduate students from West Texas who are attending colleges other than the original six universities. For the purpose of these scholarships, "West Texas" is defined as the geographical area of Texas lying west of a line running from Wichita Falls to Del Rio.

WTACI funded six undergraduate and two graduate scholarships totaling $6,500 last year at its annual educational conference in Lubbock. This year's conference is set in September.

The scholarships are open to students who meet these qualifications:

- Agriculture major
- Undergraduates must have more than 30 semester hours of course credits;
- Graduates must have completed at least one semester of a graduate program;
- Student plans to actively pursue a career in an ag-related field;
- Candidates qualify for only scholarship only once;
- Recipients must attend conference to personally receive their scholarship;
- Scholarship funds will be used to advance the recipients formal education;
- Application should be accompanied by three letters of recommendation;
- Application deadline is June 15;
- Scholarship winners will be notified by Aug. 1.

College students interested in applying for an WTACI scholarship can request an application or obtain more information from Greta Schuster, (806) 651-2280.

Once completed, five copies of the application and letters of recommendation should be mailed to: Dr. Greta Schuster, WTACI Scholarship Committee Chair, West Texas A&M University, Box 60998, Canyon, TX 79016-0001.

RSVP ADVISORY COUNCIL
An exciting opportunity is on the horizon for a Pampa-area resident who: 1) Would like to volunteer his/her services for the betterment of their community; and 2) can travel to Amarillo once a month to attend scheduled meetings after 5 p.m. Retired and Senior Volunteer Program, or RSVP, a national organization with an office in Amarillo, has an opening for an Advisory Council position to represent the Pampa community. Pampa has been represented since 1992, and a lot of positive things have been done, including increased volunteer participation and the addition of more volunteer stations (locations where the volunteers work). Gray Co. is but one of 11 counties served by RSVP's Amarillo office, and representation from our own area is important. The Advisory Council term would be for two years, starting at the end of March, and is not limited to someone who is 55-years-old or older. Interested in senior volunteerism? Interested in improving Pampa's social services? For more information or to receive an application, call Amarillo RSVP Director Nova Neuhaus toll-free at 1-877-373-8389.

DIALOGUE
The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center will hold "Dialogue," a patient/family education support group sponsored by the cancer center and the American Cancer Society, Thursdays from 12 noon-1 p.m. this month. PATHWAYS
The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center will offer "Pathways," a four-part support series for those who have lost a loved one, from 1:30-3 p.m. Tuesdays throughout the month. For more information, call Gerry Kelly at (806) 359-4673, ext. 235 or Stan McKeever at (806) 359-4673, ext. 141 or toll-free at 1-800-274-4673.

IMMUNIZATION CLINIC
The Texas Department of Health will be offering immunization clinics for vaccines that give protection against several childhood diseases including polio, diphtheria, lock jaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps, Hib (haemophilus influenzae Type B) and chickenpox (varicella). Flu vaccines may also be offered at designated clinics. The TDH will charge money to help with the cost of keeping the clinic open. The amount charged will be based on family income and size, and the ability to pay. The following clinics will be offered: 9:30 a.m.-12 noon and 1-4 p.m., May 16, Harvest House, 736 Cuyler, Pampa; and 12 noon-4 p.m., City Hall, 6th and Main, Canadian.

FIT
Foundation for Intercultural

Travel is seeking host families for high school foreign exchange students due to arrive in August 2001. For more information, call FIT toll-free at 877-439-7862.

AREA AGENCY ON AGING

Area Agency on Aging of the Panhandle is seeking volunteers to serve as advocates for nursing home residents as part of its Ombudsmen program. The Ombudsmen will visit residents of long-term care facilities and help resolve complaints involving residents rights, quality of life and quality of care. Once accepted into the program, volunteers complete a three month internship including intensive training and supervision in preparation. Ideal candidates will have strong sense of fair play, excellent problem-solving skills, good relationships with older people and the ability to devote two hours a week to the residents served by the Ombudsman program. For more information, contact Jeff Price, regional Ombudsman, or Tanya Mock, Ombudsman Program Aide, at 1-800-642-6008; or write

P.O. Box 9257, Amarillo, TX, 79105.

HARRINGTON CANCER CENTER

The Women's Center of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center has announced the following upcoming breast cancer screening clinics: June 11, First United Methodist Church Educational Building, 201 E. Foster, and June 26, Shepard's Crook Nursing Agency, 916 N. Crest, Pampa; June 6, 20 and 21, Hemphill County Hospital, Canadian; June 6, Family Care Center, Shamrock; June 11, Parkview Hospital, Wheeler; and June 13, First Baptist Church, White Deer. Participants will receive a low-cost self-exam mammogram and a breast health appraisal along with individual instruction by a registered nurse in breast self-examination. Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for Texas residents who qualify for assistance. All exams are by appointment only. For more information, call (806) 356-1905 or 1-800-377-4673.

Glo-Valve blanks Cabot

DFB maintains half-game lead

PAMPA — Brett Ferrell tossed his second no-hitter in a row as Glo-Valve Service shut out Cabot Corporation 10-0 last week in an Optimist Cal Ripken 11-12 League game.

Robbie Dixon had an inside the park grand slam home run for the winners. Jarron Clark, with two doubles, a run scored and one RBI, and Garrett Eggleston, with two hits, a run scored and two RBI, were Glo-Valve's leading hitters.

Ferrell was the story for Glo-Valve as he struck out 10 and threw two batters out at first in the four-inning game.

He faced only 13 batters, missing a perfect game because of a walk to Johnny Parrish in the second inning. Ferrell threw just 55 pitches with 36 being for strikes.

In the bottom of the first inning, LeKeith Towles led off for Glo-Valve with a walk.

He took second on a wild pitch. Ferrell adied his own cause with a run-scoring double.

A single by Jonathan Carr plated Ferrell. Clark slammed his first double scoring Carr, and Glo-Valve led 3-0.

In the second inning, Bobby Sikes hustled to beat out an infield hit. Both runners moved up on a groundout. Aaron Carr walked to load the bases and Ferrell was safe on an error, which scored Sikes.

Dixon then hit a screamer down the third base line which went into the left field corner, permitting him to round the bases for a brand slam. Glo-Valve was not through as Jonathan Carr continued the rally with a walk.

Clark's second double moved Carr to third. A walk to Sikes loaded the bases to set up Eggleston's two-run single.

Dakota Gowin came in to pitch for Cabot in the third inning and shut Glo-Valve down without a hit or run. He walked one and struck out one. Alex Torres also pitched for Cabot.

In the late game, Duncan, Fraser & Bridges Insurance Agency edged Rotary Club 8-6 to maintain a half-game lead over Glo-Valve. He pitched three innings and received relief help from Brandon Crook the last two innings. Mark Stone and Marcos Campos pitched for Rotary.

DFB improved to 8-1-1 and Glo-Valve is 8-2.

Pamcel Scramble will be held June 16-17

PAMPA — The 2001 Pamcel Golf Club's annual four-man scramble will be held June 16-17 at Pamcel Golf Club, five miles west of Pampa on U.S. 60.

Entry fee is $200 per team. Entry deadline is Thursday, June 14 at 4 p.m. The scramble is limited to the first 36 teams.

The scramble will be flighted by total team handicap and past performances. All handicaps must be verifiable.

Free practice rounds with the paid entry fee will on Friday, June 15, at any time. There will be 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. tee times available for Saturday's round. Sunday tee times are according to flight.

Dodgers hand Astros their fifth straight loss

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Houston Astros have been struggling with a one-dimensional offense that was again exposed by Chan Ho Park.

Park and two relievers combined to end the Astros' home run streak at 15 consecutive games Friday night, as the Los Angeles Dodgers handed Houston its fifth straight loss with a 4-1 victory.

"We're kind of a feast-or-famine team," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "We don't do a lot of things to scratch out runs."

The only run Houston got came as a result of Park's first balk since 1999. It put Brad Ausmus in scoring position after his leadoff single in the eighth, and Craig Biggio drove him in with a two-out single.

"The offense has generally been in a little bit of a lull. And to face a guy like Chan Ho Park with a predominantly right-handed lineup is not an easy task," Ausmus said. "He came right at us and does what he does well. He controls the entire game, really."

In his longest outing of the season, Park (5-4) allowed only five hits over 7 2-3 innings and struck out 10 — despite pitching with a blister on his middle finger that shortened his previous outing to six innings.

Jeff Shaw got three outs for his NL-leading 15th save in 16 attempts.

The Astros, who lead the NL with 70 homers, met their match against a pitching staff that has yielded a league-low 43. The Dodgers' starting rotation has a 3.60 ERA, the best in the league.

"When you look at our starting pitching, it's a bunch of guys who challenge people and are able to make quality pitches," reliever Gregg Olson said. "And our bullpen has five guys who have been closers in the big leagues, so we've got some people who know their job."

"This series is a big test for our pitching staff. But in this ballpark, pitchers should prevail every time," Los Angeles reliever Matt Herges said. "If I had to guess, this place should hold some home runs that normally go out in Enron Field. That place gives them confidence."

Shawn Green, the only legitimate home run threat in the Dodgers lineup because of injuries to Eric Karros and Gary Sheffield, increased the margin to 4-0 in the sixth with his 11th of the season — a two-run shot to right-center on an 0-2 pitch from Wade Miller (6-2).

Miller allowed four runs and nine hits in seven innings, including Chad Kreuter's RBI double and Alex Cora's sacrifice fly during a two-run second.

Conine leads Orioles past Rangers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jeff Conine put the Baltimore Orioles in position to win by swinging his sizzling bat.

Then, with a chance to hit for the cycle, he proved his dedication to the team by keeping the bat on his shoulder.

Batting in the seventh inning after already hitting a single, double and triple, Conine dutifully watched four straight balls and took a walk, content to get on base in a close game.

Conine went 3-for-3 and scored three runs as the Baltimore Orioles won their season-high fourth straight, beating the Texas Rangers 7-6 Friday night.

Conine doubled in the second inning, hit an RBI single in the third and tripled in the fifth. Batting in the seventh with the opportunity to become the first Oriole to hit for the cycle since Cal Ripken in 1984, Conine was thinking about one thing.

"You've got a chance to do something that hasn't happened often in baseball," he said. "The last pitch was close, but I didn't want to make a stupid out."

With the count 3-0, manager Mike Hargrove gave Conine the hit-away sign. But Conine didn't swing, because by that time the Orioles had let a 6-0 lead shrink to 7-5.

"I didn't want to be the dirty dog to deny him the chance to get it, but to his credit, it was out of the strike zone and he didn't go after it and try to force something to happen," Hargrove said. "He put the team's good over his own. That's what makes Jeff Conine who he is."

These days, Conine is one of the hottest hitters in the game. During a 10-game hitting streak he's 19-for-40 (.475).

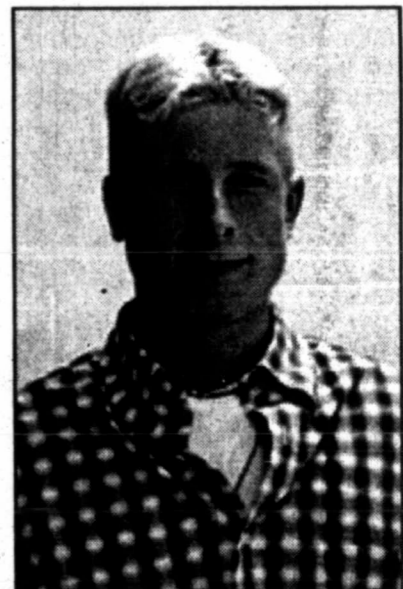

"My mechanics are real sound. I'm seeing the ball all the way to the bat," he said.

Jose Mercedes finally won his first game, allowing four runs — three earned — and eight hits in six innings. Mercedes (1-6) had a team-high 14 wins last year, but was winless in nine starts this season.

Mike Trombley got four outs for his third save.

He retired the side in order in the ninth, but his biggest pitch came in the eighth, when he preserved a 7-6 lead by retiring Rafael Palmeiro on a fly ball with the bases loaded and two outs.

Pole vaulter Drew Hodges was honored by the White Deer school board last week after qualifying for the Class 1A state track and field meet in Austin.

LA takes 3-0 lead vs. Spurs

By JOHN NADEL
AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If the situation isn't bleak enough, San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich wonders whether his players have lost their belief that they can beat the Los Angeles Lakers.

Whether the Spurs believe it or not, history says it's too late. "If you get beat that bad, assuming you have no talent problems, assuming you know the character of your team, you know it's not the character, so you have to wonder if it's their belief," Popovich said after the Lakers demolished the Spurs 111-72 Friday night to take a commanding 3-0 lead in the Western Conference finals.

"If deep down in their guts, it's their belief that has waned, and it (ticks) me off," Popovich said. "I don't know if I'm astonished or disappointed. ... I think I'm both."

scorer during the season. Anderson played for the first time since separating his right shoulder May 5 on a flagrant foul by Dallas' Juwan Howard, but was ineffective throughout on offense, missing all eight shots he attempted and scoring only two points in 29 minutes.

Starting at small forward in place of Danny Ferry, Anderson had his first shot blocked by Rick Fox and never got untracked after that.

"Shots just didn't go down," Anderson said. "Those are shots I usually hit. I didn't feel (rusty), my wind is there, everything felt good. We didn't hit a shot. Once again, they played great defense."

The Spurs, who led the NBA in 3-point shooting during the season, were a miserable 1-for-12 behind the arc, giving them a three-game total of 10-for-43 in this series.

Overall, they made only 26-of-81 shots (32.1 percent) in Game 3 while the Lakers were 44-of-92 (47.8 percent) and 7-of-18 from 3-point range.

"We didn't shoot the ball well, struggled from the 3-point line again, and that's disappointing," said Terry Porter, who made 1-of-4 shots from beyond the arc, making him 2-for-14 in the series. "It's a one-game elimination. We've put ourselves in this predicament."

While David Robinson rebounded from sub-par performances in the first two games with 24 points — 17 in the first half when the game was competitive — Tim Duncan had a horrendous night, making 3-of-14 shots and 3-of-8 free throws for nine points.

He scored 40 in Game 2. "It's the biggest game, probably, of my career so far, and to go out and play like that and give that kind of effort, it's just bad," a somber Duncan said. "We haven't done much to slow their offense down."

"We never had an answer for them. When it goes bad, it all goes bad. They've defended us well the whole series, and we haven't made shots. It was a poor effort, we let them run wild."

Even with Duncan and Robinson, their 7-foot Twin Towers, the Spurs were outbounded 63-35, and the Lakers had 22 offensive rebounds.

"You give a team 22 offensive rebounds, that's just too many possessions," Porter said. "Little things, seems like it just kind of exploded on us."

"Every time it looked like we had a chance to get close, they'd get an offensive rebound and a dunk. That was disheartening."

Penske's Indy 500 return is all business

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Roger Penske would prefer a trip to Victory Lane instead of a stroll down memory lane.

Back from a five-year exile, the most successful car owner in Indianapolis 500 history is back — hoping to improve on a sterling resume highlighted by 10 victories at the Brickyard.

But there have been no "Welcome Back Roger" parades or misty-eyed walks around the grounds, for the steely-eyed, silver-haired perfectionist.

In Penske's racing world, there is no room for sentiment.

"This is racing, and at this level it's a big business," said Penske, who will field two cars in today's race. "We've had successes here. We know what's required. We know the work involved and we know we're not going to walk in and just blow anybody away."

Penske's history at the track is unmatched. He won 10 times between 1972 and 1994, the last time with Al Unser Jr. behind the wheel. That year, Penske's teams finished 1-2-3 in the CART standings.

By then, he had become the Ice Man of Indy: Decades of calculated success left racing fans cold. But the passage of time seems to have broken down those barriers.

Penske returns as a symbol of the good ol' days, when the heroes and villains were easier to pick out — the days before the split between CART and IRL rendered the Indy 500 a second-tier event.

"When we were winning all those races, they booed us," Penske said. "Now they welcome us back. That feels pretty good. It's people acknowledging we've had a good team."

He still does. With the CART schedule in mid-swing, Helio Castroneves has one Penske car in second place. Defending champion Gil de Ferran is in sixth.

But Penske had to endure some lean times in between his 1994 success and last year's championship.

The struggle began in 1995, when Penske and Little Al returned to the Indy 500 and couldn't qualify — an unprecedented failure for a reigning champion. Penske's other driver, Emerson Fittipaldi, also got left out.

"That was probably the longest walk of my life back to the garage with Al and Emerson," Penske said.

A year later, Fittipaldi was seriously injured in a crash at Michigan and retired.

The 1999 season was the worst. Penske parted company with Unser, who slid to 21st in the standings, a difficult end to a partnership that earned Penske two Indy victories and one of his record seven CART titles.

That was the easiest of Penske's emotional burdens. Rookie driver Gonzalo Rodriguez was killed practicing in Monterey, Calif.

Then Greg Moore, who had agreed to race for Penske in 2000, died in a crash in Fontana, Calif.

Through it all, CART's schedule didn't allow its competitors to compete at Indy. That was difficult for some.

But Penske simply shut the Brickyard out of his mind — a cold, rational decision made by a cunning businessman who built a vast transportation empire worth about $11.5 billion.

"There was no way we could do it those five years, so it wasn't something I focused on at all," he said. "I was interested to see who won. But beyond that, my energy was in CART."

Rumors of a Penske return surfaced in 2000, but it was too much, too soon. And besides, Penske said, he wanted to return to Indianapolis not as just another competitor, but as a champion.

"Roger Penske doesn't unload anywhere unless it's a serious deal," said Unser, now racing for Rick Galles on an IRL team. "He has brought a lot of attention back to this race. Roger Penske and that team bring attention no matter where they go. When I was driving for them, it was a great honor to drive for them."

It's also a bundle of pressure. This year, de Ferran and Castroneves feel it. Former Penske driver and Indy winner Rick Mears can relate.

"Roger is just a competitor," Mears said. "Indy is the Indy 500, and he loves running that race. He loves winning that race."

CHILDRESS — Pampa line-backer Jason Burklow will compete in the Greenbelt Bowl June 9 at Fair Park Stadium in Childress.

Burklow will suit up for the North squad, who will be coached by Dave Dallas of Kansas Wesleyan. This is the fourth straight year Dallas has coached the North in the Greenbelt Bowl.

The South squad will be coached by Chuck Lawrence of

Rookie hopefuls

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Race day should be a breeze for Bruno Junquiera and Nicolas Minassian, two of six rookies in Sunday's Indianapolis 500, after the range of emotions they've already experienced at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"I will do my best to get to the front," Minassian said. "I want to race, and to me racing is winning."

To win, you've got to be in the race. A few weeks ago, that didn't appear to be an option for either Minassian or Junquiera, rookies in the CART series with Target Chip Ganassi Racing.

Ganassi, eager to repeat as Indy champion after winning a year ago with rookie Juan Montoya, dumped his 20-something regulars and brought in Tony Stewart and Jimmy Vasser, opting for drivers with vastly more experience on ovals.

"Of course, I wanted to do the race," said Minassian, a native of France who now lives in Indianapolis. "But he's the boss. He knows better than me what's best for the team."

When Stewart and Vasser qualified easily on the first day of time trials, Ganassi changed his mind.

Both drivers proved to be quick studies. Junquiera qualified at 224.208 mph, making him the fastest rookie in the 33-car field, while Minassian was right behind at 223.006.

"This is the third oval race of my life," said Junquiera, a 24-year-old native of Brazil. "It's a big challenge for me, but I'm prepared. I will start the race as the fastest rookie. It doesn't get much better than that."

Stewart will start from the inside of the third row, while Vasser takes green from the outside of the fourth row. Both are viewed as top contenders.

As for Junquiera and Minassian, the expectations aren't nearly as high. They like it that way, knowing this Indy experience should aid their development for years to come — no matter what the outcome.

"Most people are looking at Tony or Jimmy to get the win for Ganassi," Minassian said. "But you never know in a 500-mile race."

up there with a goose-neck trailer and brought me to this ranch," Jeff said of his college days.

Jeff batched it here for almost two years before marrying his wife Molly. Jim moved to the family ranch near Midland before taking over his maternal grandfather's place near Canadian with his wife Lauren.

Jim and Jeff's great grandparents, settled on the Loving-Winkler County line in far West Texas about 1917. Jim and Jeff and their two sisters grew up in Oklahoma although the Midland ranch is still considered the home place.

"In the 1950s Dad and Granddad bought a place in eastern Oklahoma," Jeff said. "That's really where I grew up, Sequoia County, Okla., on the Arkansas River."

Both brothers went to Oklahoma State University, then followed the family business into ranching.

"I live over in Hemphill County," Jim said. "I live on my maternal grandfather's place. His name was Frank J. Shaller."

The brothers also lease a place their mother has in Lipscomb County north of Jim's Hemphill County ranch. They graze their cattle there, usually during the summer.

"There's no protection," Jim said, "so we try not to winter them up there."

"It's good antelope country," Jeff grinned.

The cattle they raise, red Limousin cows crossed with white Charolais bulls, are bought by Laura's Lean, a branded beef product out of Kentucky.

By noon, the guys are ready for a break, and Lauren and Molly have dinner ready back at headquarters.

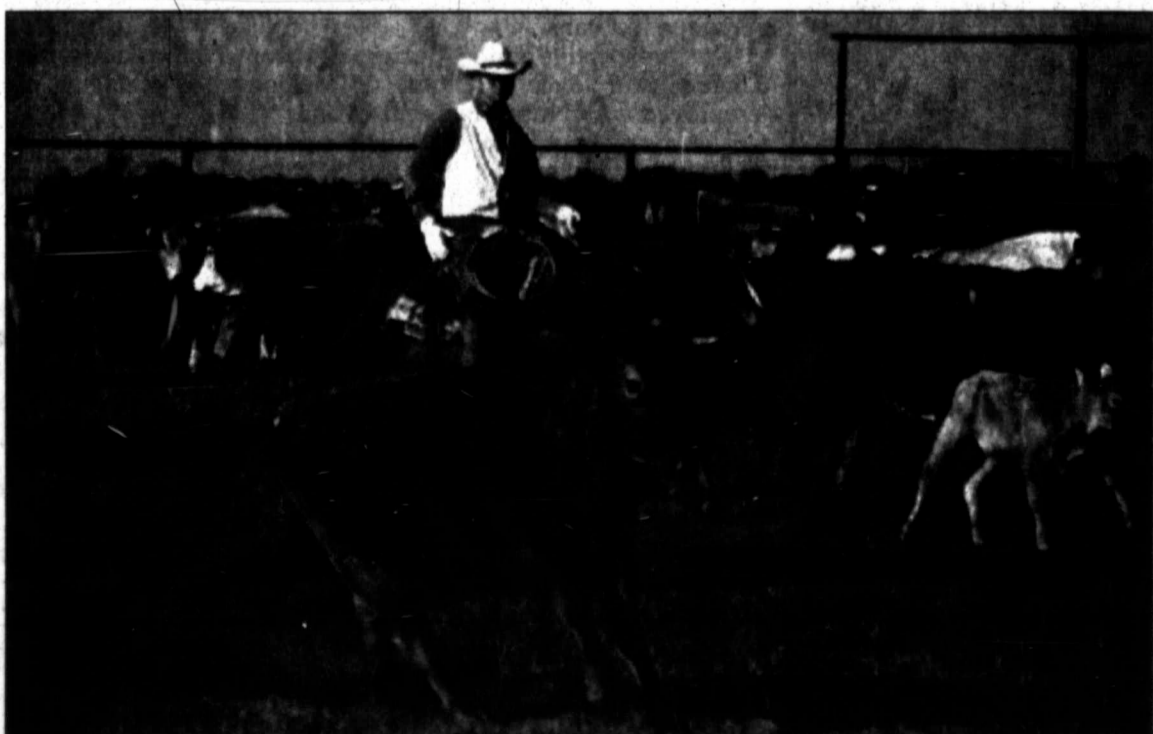

Julia, Jim and Lauren's one-year-old daughter, and Mary Kate, Jeff and Molly's one-year-old daughter, have been entertaining themselves while their mothers have been busy cooking all morning.

As James walks through the door at noon, he bends over and picks up his little sister. Julia beams and coos at the attention her dusty, sun-burned big brother bestows on her.

"There's one thing about it," Jim says, "if you grow up working together from that age, there's a bond you get when you work together from the cradle."

It's a family operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Thompson

Thompson anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Thompson celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a family dinner Saturday at Marty's in Amarillo. Children of the couple hosted the occasion.

Elmo Thompson and Ruth Miller were married May 27, 1951, at Clovis, N.M. The couple have been Pampa residents for 50 years and belong to Central Baptist Church. They have been members of the church since 1954 and were instrumental in establishing Covenant Class of which they are also members.

Mr. Thompson retired from Celanese in 1994 after 35 years of service. Mrs. Thompson retired from National Bank of Commerce in 1992 after seven years of service.

Children of the couple are LaDonna and Loyd Bohannon and Richie and Heather Thompson, all of Pampa, and Alisa and Greg Gibson of Ponca City, Okla. They have two grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hooper

Hooper anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Hooper will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary June 2 in First Baptist Church of Pampa.

Bruce Hooper and Arlene Fuller were married June 7, 1951, at Gorman, Texas. The couple have been Pampa residents since 1966 and previously lived in Fort Worth, Desdemona, Gorman, Odessa, Andrews, Seminole and Borger.

Mr. Hooper was a welder, truck driver, mechanic and ranch-hand.

Mrs. Hooper, currently employed at Wal-Mart, formerly worked in a factory and a savings and loan.

Children of the couple are Jimmy Hooper of Tacoma, Wash., and Velia Bowers of Bishop, Calif. They have two grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Krissy Nunn and Marty Field

Nunn-Field

Krissy Michele Nunn and Marty Lynn Field, both of Pampa, plan to wed July 7 in Calvary Baptist Church of Pampa.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Kenneth and Cindy Nunn of Pampa and is the granddaughter of Ethyn D. and Clara Parks of Reydon, Okla. She graduated from Pampa High School in 1997 and is currently a senior at West Texas A&M University, pursuing a degree in elementary education. She plans to graduate from WTAMU in December 2001 and is a member of the university's Student Reading Council.

The prospective groom is the son of Lyndon and Joyce Field of Pampa and is the grandson of Reese and Delma Field of Pampa and Stoney and Tessa Stonebraker of Blanchard, Okla. He graduated from Pampa High School in 1998 and is currently a junior at West Texas A&M University, pursuing a degree in speech communications. After his graduation from WT, the couple plan to move to Fort Worth where he will be attending Southwestern Southern Baptist Seminary.

Club news

Club news is published strictly on a first come, first serve basis due to space limitations. The deadline each week for Sunday's paper is Wednesday at 5 p.m. (Tuesday at 12 noon on holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas.) The deadline does not guarantee publication. Thank you.

Altrusa
Altrusa International, Inc., of Pampa met May 22 at Pampa Country Club with President Karen Bridges presiding. Ruby Royse, Anne Stobbe and Glyndene Shelton served as greeters. Pam Ashford attended as a guest.

The following business was conducted and announcements made:

—Jeanne Mitchell reported that new playground equipment had been installed at Shining Star Day Care Center and that bud vases with fresh flowers were donated to the center for Mothers' Day gifts.

—Six Altrusans volunteered at the Lamar Accelerated Reader Store recently.

—Stitches from the Heart awards were presented to Jeanne Mitchell, Georgia Johnson, Geneva Tidwell, Diann Birdsell and Pat Johnson for outstanding service.

—Louise Bailey and Royse received plaques for 25 years of service.

—Shelton conducted a new member initiation for Jodi Roden and Maxine Watson.

—Following the President's annual report, Bridges was presented an outgoing president's pin and plaque.

—Royse installed the following new 2001-02 club officers: DeLynn Gordzelik, president; Mitchell, president-elect; Stobbe, VP/Program director; Darlene Birkes, recording secretary; Billie Sue Evans, corresponding secretary; Sue Baker, treasurer; and Dorla McAndrew, Mattie Norton and Pat Pierce, directors.

—Upon receiving the President's pin and gavel, Gordzelik gave an acceptance speech and announced her goals for the coming year.

The next meeting will be at 12 noon,

June 12 at Pampa Country Club.

ABWA
Magic Plains Chapter of ABWA met for April 14 at Furr's Cafeteria with President Pat Winkleblack presiding. Ten members and two guests, Pat and Melody Seely, were present.

The following business was conducted and announcements made:

—Wynona Seely introduced Paul Clay of Farmers Insurance Group. He gave an informative program on many of the changes taking place now in the insurance business.

Clay has been in this business since 1986 and anticipates doing more diversified things in the next five- to 10-years as insurance companies become more involved in banking. He hopes after completing some training he will more proficient in the investment field more than he is at present. He also discussed Long Term Care Insurance with members.

—Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as printed and there was no Treasurer's Report available. (See. CLUB. Page 19)

Tradition-Minded Grandma Is Unsparring With the Rod

DEAR ABBY: I will be having my second child in a few weeks. My mother is coming from her home in Malaysia to help for the first month I am back from the hospital.

I am grateful for her help, but I am also worried. She strongly believes in spanking and slapping her children and grandchildren. I was raised that way. In Asia, spanking is a common form of discipline in schools and homes. I am against it.

Last night, I was talking to my mother on the phone. My 3-year-old daughter was tired and began crying. I told Mother I would call her back after my daughter was asleep. My mother told me to slap her. I was horrified.

I told her I do not spank or slap my child. My husband and I believe in "time-outs." My mother doesn't think they are effective. I told her that slapping a child could cause damage to the eardrum and deafness. I even told her that when she spanked me as a child, I hated her for weeks. It made me a more rebellious kid. Naturally, she disagreed. She said she had spanked my nephew with a cane a few days earlier.

Abby, what do you suggest I do to "knock" some sense into my mother's head? I don't want her to spank my 3-year-old when she cries. DESPERATE MOTHER IN TEXAS

DEAR MOTHER: A good talking-to is a far more effective way to discipline children than hitting them. Corporal punishment not only destroys a child's self-esteem and trust, but it also enforces the idea that "might

Dear Abby

Is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

"makes right."

Hitting a child when he or she misbehaves means that the adult has "reacted" instead of using the situation as an opportunity to teach more appropriate behavior. Children learn best in an atmosphere of cooperation, through teaching, discussion and observing adults who display responsible, loving, self-disciplined behavior.

When your mother arrives, you and your husband must make it clear that you will not tolerate hitting or slapping. Explain that you want your daughter to love her grandmother, not fear her and dread her arrival. If the child should misbehave, make it clear that you or your husband will handle the discipline — and then show her how you do it.

Contrary to popular belief, you can teach an old dog new tricks. Perhaps your mother will learn from your example. If she doesn't, she must not be left alone with her granddaughter.

DEAR ABBY: Your recent letters about people during World War II who betrayed themselves by customs and mannerisms reminded me of a joke that made the rounds during that time: If military guards were on duty and a stranger approached, the guards would ask him to prove he was an American by singing the second verse of "The Star-Spangled Banner." If the stranger knew the words, the guards knew he was a spy.

KATHRYN WEEKLY, LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR KATHRYN: Funny! Even if someone knows the lyrics of the first verse, the melody is so difficult to sing that few true-blue Americans have mastered it.

DEAR ABBY: As a baby boomer "coming of age," my hair has gone from brown to 60 percent gray. When filling out forms and documents that ask for color of hair (like driver's licenses), what should I write?

PRE-SENIOR MAN IN ARIZONA

DEAR PRE-SENIOR: Since you're more than 50 percent gray, I'd say it's time to grin and declare it.

Exhibit delves Cuban psyche

By JEANNE CLAIRE VAN RYZIN
 Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — One thing is certain about "La Huella Multiple (The Multiple Trace)": The nearly 100 works by 26 Cuban artists are refreshingly free of the self-absorption rampant in U.S. art. Rocked with seismic political, economic and sociological changes, the island nation produces art of terrific potency.

Austin is getting pretty familiar with Cuban art in these days. A major show at Austin Museum of Art last year gave us a good grounding. Now Gallery 106, a small nonprofit gallery affiliated with MedAid.org, a foundation that donates and carries medical supplies to Cuba, regularly shows the latest Cuban art.

"La Huella Multiple" is a triennial exhibit that's been held twice in Havana since 1996. Curated, organized and financed by the participating artists, the show brings together graphic works by emerging and established artists. The current version at Gallery 106 is a combination of the best of two prior shows and a preview of the next one.

Just about every print medium — digital prints, serigraphy, woodcut, photography — is represented. And just about every approach — conceptual, figurative, abstract — has a place. It's hard to make generalizations about such a richly varied gathering. And it's impossible to single out the best from such a consistent and strong selection. If anything ties this show together, it's that in ways ranging from direct to oblique, all of these artists allude to Cuba's shifting social and political scene. Even when they depict surreal worlds populated by imaginary characters or fake scenarios — as do Yamiliany Morales, Norberto Marrero and Abel Barroso — there's plenty in the rich symbolism that comments on contemporary Cuba, a place of surreal contrasts. Take for example Barroso's "Cafe Internet del III Mundo (Third-World Internet Cafe)." Fashioned completely of carved wood objects tinted with black ink, Barroso's cafe has several computer terminals (one emblazoned with "mango inside"), a jet printer and other high-tech toys. It says volumes about the contradictions of rapid technological advancements and the bitter poverty and inequalities that reign in Cuba. (See, CUBAN, Page 24)

Panhandle catches interest of large dairies

By BETSY BLANEY
Associated Press Writer

HEREFORD (AP) — Long known for their crop and beef production, farmers in the Panhandle and High Plains have a newcomer in their midst. In increasing numbers, Texas dairy farmers are looking west because of the drier climate and wide open spaces. Dairies in New Mexico and California also are eyeing the region as more stringent environmental regulations take hold in those states, officials said. Dairies are here already but the industry likely will grow considerably in coming years, officials said.

"We welcome them up here," said Ralph Detton, a Texas Farm Bureau district director for 22 Panhandle counties. "It's economic development for us." The state's dairy industry in past years has operated mostly in verdant East Texas and in Erath and Bosque counties west of Waco. But wet conditions and the environmental impact of manure and runoff into nearby rivers have created problems for dairy farmers. West Texas' flat topography and dry climate, which aids swift evaporation, limit runoff, while the Ogallala and Santa Rosa aquifers are expected to meet the farmers' water needs, Detton said.

"Environmentally and geographically, conditions are better in the West Texas area, because in other areas it's wetter," said Paul Bronnenberg, with the milk division of the Texas Department of Health. Dairies opening anywhere in the state must meet Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission permitting requirements regarding discharge. Detton, who is considering dairy farming on a portion of his 2,100-acre farm outside Hereford, said dairy farmers in the Panhandle and High Plains will conform to state regulations by damming runoff into holding ponds so it won't enter the many playa lakes in the region.

West Texas's aridity has another advantage for dairies, said Susan Tripplehorn, executive director of the Pampa Economic Development Corporation, which like many other municipalities and counties is aggressively recruiting dairy operators. "Even though we have hot temperatures, we have lower humidity, which doesn't stress the cows," she said. Less stress means greater milk production, Tripplehorn said. Small dairies in the region are giving way to larger operations, officials said. In Hereford, a New Mexico dairy operator has begun construction on a farm that eventually will house 2,200 head and about 1,800 milkers, the Hereford

Brand recently reported. Estimates are that the dairy will add about $4 million to the tax base of Deaf Smith County, Don Cumpton, director of the Hereford Economic Development Corporation, told the newspaper. A dairyman from Stephenville is looking into bringing 20,000 head to Hereford in coming years, said Skip Moore, a regional milk and dairy inspector with the Texas Department of Health based in Canyon. Dairies also are on the horizon in Lamb, Bailey and Hutchinson counties, Cumpton said. The Hereford area already has two active dairies and Pampa has two, officials said. Construction was just completed on a 5,000-head dairy farm for Tuttle, Okla.-based Braum's Ice Cream & Dairy Stores in the north-east corner of the Panhandle. The dairy industry is also good for farmers who raise animal feed crops, Moore said. "They'd have another outlet for those crops," he said. The movement of dairy farmers to West Texas could accelerate in coming years. Discussions are under way and feasibility studies planned to possibly bring a multimillion-dollar cheese plant to the region. Two milk cooperatives — from Texas and New Mexico — are working together on the project, said James Terrell, spokesman for the Texas Association of Dairymen. Should the plant be built, the two groups would like assurances that there would be 50,000 head of dairy cows within 50 miles of the plant, Moore said. Mentioned as possible sites for the plant are Lubbock, Hereford and Plainview, officials said. "They are very interested" in West Texas, Terrell said. "They believe that's the future of growth in the dairy industry in Texas."

Poor wheat crop hurts Kansas, but impact on nation is minimal

By ROXANA HEGEMAN
Associated Press Writer

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Out in Kansas farm country, townsfolk only have to look at the wheat fields to know tough times are just going to get worse. Recent government estimates confirmed what the old-timers have long suspected: Kansas farmers have abandoned 1 million acres of their hard red winter wheat crop. The remaining fields comprise the state's fewest harvested acres since 1957. Drought conditions during fall planting, followed by a cold winter, took a heavy toll on the nation's winter wheat crop, particularly in Kansas and Oklahoma. The nation's winter wheat harvest was estimated at 1.34 billion bushels, down 14 percent from last year and the smallest crop in 23 years, the U.S. Department of Agriculture said. For consumers — who pay slightly under a nickel for the wheat in a loaf of bread — the impact will be negligible, if any. The price of wheat in bread is roughly the same today as it was in 1950 — even though a loaf's average price increased from 20 cents to $1.20 during that time. For farmers, the bleak harvest forecast has many talking of another government bailout. American taxpayers pay an average 22 cents per day for government subsidies on what is some of the cheapest food in the world, said David Frey, administrator for the Kansas Wheat Commission. Farmers able to make up for low commodity prices with big crops and lots of government aid now face a double whammy: bad prices and bad crops. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has forecast Kansas, the nation's top wheat-producing state, will harvest just 285.6 million bushels, down 18 percent from last year. The USDA's projections fall far short of the 347.8 million bushels harvested in the state last year. (A bushel of wheat produces 72 one-pound loaves of bread.) If realized, this year's wheat crop would be the smallest crop yield in Kansas since its disastrous 1996 harvest. But wheat was selling at $7 a bushel five years ago, compared to the $3.34 a bushel in Kansas City this past week. Rural communities in Kansas and other wheat-producing states will feel the economic pinch, but nationwide the smaller winter wheat crop will likely be offset by spring wheat crops and other global wheat stocks, he said. Enough wheat is on hand that if not another bushel is harvested anywhere in the world this year, the wheat stocks could satisfy the world's wheat needs for 71 days, Frey said.

Crop insurance will mitigate some, but not all, of this year's winter wheat losses. Wheat growers in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and Nebraska bought more than $1 billion worth of revenue coverage this year, compared with $305 million in 2000, according to a Kansas State University analysis. About 76.2 percent of the acres in nation's top winter wheat states are covered by insurance this year, compared with 74.9 percent in 2000. Nearly 80 percent of the crop is insured in Kansas. "It teases you just enough that you put out another crop, but it doesn't pay very many bills," Kansas farmer Jerry McReynolds, who destroyed at least a third of his wheat this spring, said of the crop insurance. "And the family, they like to eat whether we have a crop or not." McReynolds' family does not plan to spend much money shopping in town this year. The family will continue to drive its van that has 320,000 miles on it, and try to keep their pickup, tractors and other farm equipment running with more repairs rather than buy replacements. "You are just kind of in a freeze-mode on spending — that is certainly not much fun for the wife, and it certainly is not fun for the family," he said. "And, the truth of it is, it is not much fun for the husband either."

Pest management workshop set June 2

PLAINVIEW — Producers and ag consultants can hone their pest management and crop production skills at a June 2 High Plains Crop Pests Scouting Workshop sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The workshop at the Ollie Liner Center will begin at 8:20 a.m. and adjourn at about 4:30 p.m. There is no fee to attend. "This is an excellent opportunity to learn more about corn, cotton, grain sorghum, soybean and sunflower production," said Greg Cronholm, Hale County Extension integrated pest management agent. "We will cover crop insect pests, weed identification and herbicide injury, plant diseases, and how to recognize and promote beneficial insects." Morning presentations by Extension and Texas Department of Agriculture specialists and agents will focus on cotton growth and development; cotton insect pests; recognizing and promoting beneficial insects in field crops; and federal and state worker protection standards. Afternoon workshop sessions will cover weed identification and herbicide injury; cotton, corn and grain sorghum plant diseases; corn and grain sorghum growth and development; and how to recognize and detect corn, grain sorghum, soybean and sunflower insect pests.

CANYON — West Texas A&M University recently captured a total of eight awards in Rocky Mountain Collegiate Media Association (RMCMA) competition. WTAMU's student newspaper, the "Prairie," claimed six awards, including one for first place, and the WTAMU broadcasting program received two third-place awards, both for television spots.

The newspaper awards are for the Division I-B newspaper competition. Division I-B represents four-year schools with fewer than 8,000 students. There is no breakdown for enrollment for broadcasting.

The awards are for media-related efforts from 2000. Winners were announced in May by mail. The RMCMA covers 14 western states.

Among the winning newspaper entries was fourth place winner Matt Hutchison, a junior mass communications/print media major from Pampa, for Single or Two-Page Spread.

Reagan Sherwood Duggan is a Distinguished Honor Graduate of Coronado High School. She is the daughter of Bob and Phoebe Duggan of Lubbock and is the granddaughter of Lillian G. Skelly and the late Jack Skelly of Pampa.

Her honors, accomplishments and activities include: National Honor Society; Coronado Mustang Symphonic Band, Quarter Missy, Section Leader and jazz band (tenor saxophone); All-Region and Area Bands; Regional Solo and Ensemble and State Solo and Ensemble Music Competitions; CHS Swim Team captain; Academic Swimming Scholar; third place District 5A Swim Meet 200 Yard Medley Relay winner and 400 Yard Free Relay winner; and Provost's Baylor Scholarship recipient.

In addition, Duggan has studied flute and piccolo with Karen Talley for six years and has participated in Master Classes with Mary Karen Clardy.

She plans to pursue a degree in pre-medicine at Baylor University.

Jacob Lee Hopkins

The United States Achievement Academy recently announced United States National Award Winners from the area.

The following students were chosen USAA award winners in various categories: Jacob Lee Hopkins, Pampa High School, "Honor Roll."

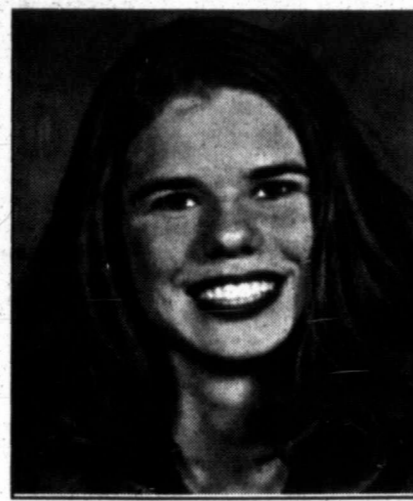

The Academy bestows USAA awards upon fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students. The PHS student was nominated for the award by Starla Kindel, a counselor at PHS.

All USAA award-winners will appear in the USAA Official Yearbook, published nationally. USAA All-American Scholars are named in the All-American Scholar Yearbook.

The Academy selects USAA winners based upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors and other qualified sponsors. Other criteria includes academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit and dependability.

Hopkins is the son of Marshall and Kim Hopkins of Pampa and is the grandson of Jerald Sims and Joan Mabry and Sherilan Ketchersid, all of Pampa.

Kimberly Grice

The United States Achievement Academy recently announced Pampa High School student Kimberly Grice, a senior at PHS, was named an All-American Scholar.

USAA established the All-American Scholar program to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines.

To be eligible for the honor, students must earn a 3.3 or higher grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school instructor, counselor or other qualified sponsor are accepted. USAA All-American Scholars are named in the All-American Scholar Yearbook, published nationally.

Grice was nominated for the designation by Starla Kindel, a counselor at PHS.

Grice is the daughter of Kit and Anita Grice of Pampa and is the granddaughter of Dewayne and Barbara Wright of Sayre, Okla., and L.D. and Wilma Grice of Big Spring.

CANYON — West Texas A&M University T. Boone Pickens College of Business recently recognized outstanding students and announced scholarships for the 2001-02 academic year during its annual convocation.

White, a senior computer science major of Canadian, Bob Chester Memorial Scholarship, $500; Peggy J. Chaney of Skellytown, Outstanding General Business Graduate for 2000-01; Long, a senior finance major of Wheeler, Dr. Harold E. Melton Award for Outstanding BBA Student, $500.

LAWRENCE, Kan. — The University of Kansas recently announced students participating in its 129th commencement ceremonies at Memorial Stadium on campus in Lawrence.

Students awarded diplomas included: Christa Cher Jeffers of Pampa, doctor of pharmacy degree.

Opportunity Plan, Inc., of Canyon will disburse scholarships to Pampa High School Class of 2001 graduates Cassie Meadows and Jessica Morrison in the amount of $1,200 during the upcoming academic year.

Meadows was awarded the Pampa Beta Sigma Phi Scholarship, established by Pampa BSP Club. She plans to attend West Texas A&M University and pursue a degree in optometry or dental hygiene.

Morrison will receive the Pampa Board of Realtors Scholarship. This scholarship is awarded based upon the applicant's scholastic achievements as well as leadership skills and community activities. Morrison plans to major in public relations and minor in English at Texas Tech University.

Established in 1954, Opportunity Plan, Inc. has provided financial assistance to more than 10,000 students through low-interest loans and scholarships. Students interested in applying for a loan or scholarship through OP, Inc., should call (806) 655-2528.

WEATHERFORD, Okla. — Southwestern Oklahoma State University recently announced its President's and Dean's Honor Roll for the 2001 spring semester.

To be eligible for the President's Honor Roll, a student must maintain all A's while enrolled in 15 or more semester hours. Students named to the list include: Glenda Janell Dukes of Allison;

CUBAN

Sandra Ramos and Ibrahim Miranda, on the other hand, take a more direct approach. Miranda's two colorful works, both called "Mapa" (map), feature silk-screened patterns and images on maps of Cuba, alluding to the nation's shift from isolated communist satellite to tourist destination. Ramos, in a suite of five etchings that resemble collages, frames each scene with the border pattern of the U.S. dollar bill. It might as well be the perfect paradigm of contemporary Cuban art, embodying that peculiarly Cuban skill of "inventando" so necessary to surviving in the island nation's unofficial dollar economy: What you can't get, you find some way to reinvent.
