3-Year Old Steers Now Bring $90 to $100, Yearlings $55

AMARILLO, Feb. 18.—(P)—More than $5,000,000 worth of cattle have changed hands in this territory in the last 10 days says a review of the cattle business to be published in the Amarillo News-Globe Sunday.

The newspaper states that two buyers, one from Colorado and the other from Idaho, have purchased more than 30,000 cattle in this section within 30 days.

"Cattle prices are said to be at high and in some instances higher than the peak period during the world war," says the review. "Unborn calves are being contracted for as high as $45 a head for delivery next November. The following appear to be prevailing prices: Three year old steers $90 to $100; two-year-old steers $85 to $75; yearling steers, $55; 1928 calves, steers and heifers, $40; cows $65; yearling heifers, $45; two-year-old heifers, $57.50.

"Bill breeders report that there are not enough bulls to supply the demand since more than 70 per cent of the supply has already been sold 90 days before the bull market normally opens.

Among the outstanding sales reported in the last 10 days are the following: Birdie Mitchell and associates of Marfa, 7,000 three-year old steers bought from Tom Waggoner of Fort Worth and sold to George Hanks and associates of Denver at $100 a head; the Burk Burnett estate, 4,444 three-year-old steers sold to Bill Ferguson of Wellington, Kas.; the Canene Cattle company of Mexico, 5,000 yearlings sold to Idaho parties; Dawson and Pyle of Amarillo, 4,000 yearling steers sold to Furneaux Brothers of Dallas; the same firm also purchasing 600 two-year-old steers from Hereford parties; Donald Lambert and Hill of Hereford, 2,400 cows sold to W. The tragedy was discovered yesterday, but was not reported until today.

The tragedy was discovered early yesterday when attendants entered the room. Another woman patient was sitting stolidly beside the bed. Attendances said that they were at loss to know how she got into the room and her mental condition is such that she has been able to give no evidence.

THREE OTHER MEN ARE OUT FOR PRESIDENT

Lowden, Watson, and Curtis Throw Hats Into the Ring

HOOVER IS MADE MAIN OPPONENT

Willis to Be Against Entrance of League of Nations

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 18.—(P)—Entrance of three more avowed presidential candidates into the fight between Senator Frank B. Willis, Ohio and Secretary Herbert Hoover for control of Ohio's delegation to the Republican convention, and the senator's indicated intention of making the League of Nations one of the dominating issues, today completely overshadowed all recent developments in this national battleground.

Announcement that former-governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and senator James E. Watson of Indiana, and Charles Curtis of Kansas, have entered the Ohio fight by authorizing Willis delegate candidates to pledge to support them for second choice was made at Willis headquarters by Charles A. Jones, Senator Willis' private secretary, who with Carmel A. Thompson is managing the senator's campaign.

After conferring with his managers senator Willis issued a statement in which he declared he was "more than pleased" with the progress of his campaign and indicating that he will make the League of Nations one of the dominant issues in his fight with Mr. Hoover.

"The people of the country have twice spoken most decisively with reference to the League of Nations," senator Willis said. "There are some candidates that are evidently in favor of the League of Nations. At any rate it is being urged on their behalf by their friends in various states that if nominated and elected they will proceed immediately to put our country into the League of Nations.

"So far as I am concerned, I am not so minded. I believe the policy of the party an internationalist party will not be successful in their effort. The Republican party is for peace and good will among nations; it does not believe in isolation; it desires to help other nations, but insists America shall be free."

Secretary Jones also declared that had Mr. Hoover not entered the Ohio contest, many of the Willis delegates no doubt, would have been pledged to Hoover as second choice, but that no time will any of the Willis delegates support Hoover at the Kansas City convention.

Talks will be made from a specially constructed car arranged with electricity controlled amplifiers.

BLAST KILLS THREE

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Feb. 18.—(P)—Three men were blown to pieces when a supply of dynamite stored in a shanty on the bank of the Connecticut river here exploded today. The concussion shook the entire village, and smashed windows in several nearby plants. Many persons were cut by glass fragments.

Friends in Crime; Enemies in Court

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18.—(P)—The silent enmity displayed by two youths, once pals in crime, was carried today by the pair from the courtroom where they are on trial for the murder of C. Ivy Toms to the county jail.

When given a chance to exercise on the roof of the county jail today, in lieu of their usual march to court, now adjourned for the weekend, William Edward Hickman and his erstwhile young accomplice, Welby Hunt, refused to speak to each other. Their attitude, jailers said, showed the bitterness of the enmity which has sprung up between them, each avowedly eager to throw the onus of the holdup and shooting on the other.

Hunt, who will be seventeen years old Monday, when his trial reopens, appeared in a remorse frame of mind; Hickman was jocular.

The regular staff of the hospital, besides the office and kitchen, has three graduate nurses and three under graduates. Special nurses in the city are used when necessary. As many as ten specials have been used at one time during an emergency.

Miss Margaret D. Brock, recently with the Border hospital at Mangum, Okla., is the new superintendent, having commenced her duties February 1. She reports conditions excellent at the hospital and that new furniture, surgical, and operating room supplies will be here in the near future.

Mrs. H. K. Warren, who underwent a serious operation last week, is slowly recovering at the hospital.

BOMB BLOWS MEN OFF SHIP IN MANEUVER

Machine Kills Another as It Plunges Into Street

AIR CARNIVAL BEING HELD

Six of Crowd Hurt as Sidewalk Then Collapses

MACON, Ga., Feb. 18.—(P)—Running wild after an ill-timed aerial bomb had killed its pilot and his aviator-passenger, an airplane participating in the Southeastern Air derby here plunged 7,000 feet into the heart of the business district here today, killing a pedestrian and seriously injuring two others.

The weight of a noon-day crowd of hundreds of persons who rushed to the wreckage caused the collapse of a concrete sidewalk and the injury of six of the more than a score who were thrown into the basement of a drug store.

Buck Steele of Shreveport, La., veteran stunt flyer and pilot of the ill-fated craft, and Francis Ashcraft, student aviator of Towanda, Pa., who were in the plane, met death in mid-air when the third bomb they tossed out in an exhibition as part of the carnival caught in the wings and exploded prematurely.

Slips Into Spin. Spectators saw the plane suddenly enveloped in smoke and a moment later waver into a side slip. In an instant it fell into a tail spin, gathering speed by force of the still revolving propeller.

It crashed close by the car tracks in Cherry street near the Second street crossing. Horror-stricken cries from those who watched it fall failed to clear the street entirely and four persons, one a negro woman, were either pinned down by the wreckage or struck by the debris.

C. E. Murphy, 34, a local blacksmith, was caught by the plane's propeller as it hit the ground. It severed an arm and leg and inflicted other injuries which caused his death in a hospital a few hours afterward.

Two other persons, unidentified, were believed to have been fatally hurt.

Men Blown From Ship. None of those who were plunged into the drug store basement by the collapse was believed to have been seriously hurt, most of them reporting only minor cuts and bruises.

Several planes were in the air when the crash occurred, but only one was flying close enough for fellow airmen to see what happened. Gardner Ragle, its pilot, said the ill-fated plane's first two bombs had exploded without mishap but that the third appeared to have exploded within a few feet of the ship.

He expressed the belief that both Steele and Ashcraft were killed instantly, the former being decapitated by the blast. Their bodies struck the street some distance from the wreckage, leading to the belief that they had been catapulted out of the craft by the explosion.

Events on today's derby program, in which 30 or more fliers were participating, were abandoned and all social features of the meet were cancelled.

State Physician Killed in Crash

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 18.—(P)—Dr. G. W. Whiteside of the State Sanitarium at Carlsbad was perhaps fatally injured and five other employees of the sanitarium were hurt this afternoon when two automobiles collided at Carlsbad.

The other injured are W. J. Stevens, Dr. W. A. Griffin, Miss Etta May Lot, Dewell Martin, and R. E. Dixon. A car driven by Martin ran into one driven by Stevens, the latter car containing the two doctors.

HOUSTON NEARS GOAL

Cream of Film Attractions Coming to Theatres Here

REX TO HAVE FRANK NORTON AND COMPANY; CRESCENT CHANEY AND BIG TIME ACTS

Several of the best pictures that have been released recently will be shown at the theatres here this week and in the near future.

The Rex will feature Frank Norton's company on the stage beginning tomorrow. This company comes to Pampa from Muskogee, where it has been drawing record crowds for the past week. The opening play tomorrow night will be "Why Wives Worry." The vaudeville program will be accompanied by a good run of pictures during the entire week.

The week at the Crescent will open with Gene Stratton Porter's "The Harvester." Big time vaudeville will be featured Thursday. The picture for Thursday is "The Rush Hour," featuring Marie Prevost. Lon Chaney in "Tell It to the Marines" will be on the screen Tuesday.

Stratton-Porter Great Success Is Shown on Screen

Again a Gene Stratton-Porter story has been transferred to the screen, and again we are given a motion picture which is so filled with sentiment and real beauty that the result is nothing short of remarkable.

"The Harvester," a Leo Meehan production released by F. B. O., will be shown at the Crescent today and Monday.

Cast, director and cameraman have combined to produce a photoplay which tells a tender love story against a background of unusual beauty.

It is interesting to learn that this background was actually a part of the famous Limberlost Cabin estate of the late Gene Stratton-Porter in Indiana, where the company went from their headquarters in Hollywood, and spent many weeks on the shore of Sylvan Lake in the Hoosier state.

Orville Caldwell, famous as the Knight in Morris Gest's great stage spectacle, "The Miracle," plays the role of the Harvester, and reveals a personality which should take him far on the screen. In the principal feminine role is Natalie Kingston, who makes an appealing figure of the girl Ruth.

Other well known players who appear in prominent roles are Will R. Walling, Jay Hunt, Lola Todd, Edward Hearn and Fanny Midgley, and all acquit themselves in a manner which causes "The Harvester" to stand out as a fine example of intelligent casting.

It is a picture which you will undoubtedly enjoy.

"The Harvester" is the first of the two Gene Stratton Porter stories to be filmed this year. The other will be her favorite "Freckles."

Quaker Drug Is Name of Store, Formerly Hoyt's

George N. Shuffield, former hotel proprietor here, has purchased the Hoyt drug store. The store in the future will be known as the Quaker Drug.

Mr. Shuffield has made his home in Pampa for the last two years, during which he has been in the hotel business.

Six new employes have been engaged to care for the business. A registered pharmacist will be at the store during working hours. Curb service will be rendered throughout the year.

A twelve-foot electric sign has been ordered.

"I have invested money in Pampa because I believe that this city has a great future," says Mr. Shuffield. "I have been following oil field towns for the last ten years and I have never been in one with such prospects as Pampa has."

Equipment will be added during the next few months to make the store as complete as possible.

The store was purchased from Roy Albritton. A local physician will occupy an office at the rear.

MRS. MURFEE IS BUYING NEW GOODS FOR STORE

Mrs. J. E. Murfee, one of the buyers for the J. E. Murfee Company dry goods store, is in Chicago this week. Mrs. Murfee is sending back new Spring merchandise to the store here daily.

The return trip will be made through St. Louis where Mrs. Murfee will visit the markets and complete the buying for this trip. She expects to return to Pampa in about another week.

Will Rogers Is "A Sight" Wearing a Mother Hubbard

Will Rogers in a pink Mother Hubbard and high boots, and in a hand, was the sight "Carnegie Hall didn't see every night," but that is the way Will Rogers, star of "A Texas Steer," big special feature which comes next week to the Rex theatre greeted Charles Darnton, Hollywood correspondent of the New York Evening World.

Darnton, in copyrighted article in the Evening World, described his visit to Rogers as follows:

"If Will Rogers wants to give sex appeal to his next series of platform lectures all he need do is to wear the costume I saw him on the set of 'A Texas Steer' at the First National Studio. He was chastely, if not becomingly, clad in a pink Mother Hubbard and high boots.

"Here are something that Carnegie Hall didn't see every night. I don't know just what was going on, but it was going strong. Will looked surprised—any man might at finding himself in that get-up. But it wasn't his clothes that frustrated him. He was being raided. From the second floor landing of a thoroughly respectable looking house he glared down upon as tough a bunch of gangsters as you could hope to see in your favorite illustrated magazine. Then he went into action.

That Night Shirt

"Kicking back his Mother Hubbard, he seized a rope and let it fly. Over the head of a gun-toting crook went that rope. . . but what you want to know about is that Mother Hubbard, isn't it? It's a shame to tell you but if you must know, pink photographs white."

"Will told me one on himself. I asked whether he had made his first talk to an audience down at the Keith vaudeville house in 14th street.

"Yes, that's right," he agreed. "It was at the Union Square theatre. They put me on at the supper show—that's how they thought I was. I did my rope act, but nobody seemed to notice it. Judging by the applause I didn't get. Well, I suffered in silence night after night, till finally some of the other performers, feelin' sorry for me, suggested that I explain what I was doing, saying they didn't think the audience understood it. You see, I was workin' with two ropes and kind o' fast, thinkin' the sooner it was over the better.

"I didn't believe it would do any good, but the next night I started my mouth going as soon as I did my ropes. I was dead serious, and I told those people out front everything I was doing. I couldn't have been more in earnest if my life depended on it. So you can imagine how I felt when they laughed at me. Mad? I was so mad that I couldn't see straight! I kept sayin' to 'em under my breath: 'Don't you laugh at me! I can talk as good as you do, even if I ain't a New Yorker! O, I was sore!'"

Marie Prevost to Come to Crescent in 'The Rush Hour'

Marie Prevost, finely supported by Harrison Ford and Seena Owen, scores an emphatic triumph in her new comedy-drama star picture, "The Rush Hour" on its premier presentation at the Crescent theatre Thursday. From start to finish, the production is intensely arresting and fully justified the prediction of the management that it would be greeted by the motion picture public as one of the best comedies in which Miss Prevost has thus been seen.

Miss Prevost has the role of a romantic minded girl who is loved by a young druggist. He gives her the various samples he receives from salesmen, but fails to propose until he has accumulated a certain amount of money so that they might go to Niagara on the honeymoon. She is seized with a desire to go abroad and becomes a stowaway. Of course, she is discovered and obliged to work her passage in the linen room. But two suave passengers who see in her beauty and charm the instruments they seek to fleece a rich oil man, they redeem her and take her to Paris where Miss Prevost's beauty makes a decided impression and leads a woman to challenge her to fight a duel. Then appears her sweetheart in the person of Harrison Ford and after much trou-

Whole Newspaper at Work Created for Film Scenes

Reproducing an entire newspaper at work, as well as the largest social affair of the nation; these were two huge tasks encountered by technical experts in filming "Man, Woman and Sin." John Gilbert's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle playing at the Rex theatre Monday Feb. 27. Janne Eagels plays opposite the star in this elaborate film.

The new picture, in which Gilbert plays a reporter on a Washington daily and which is largely laid in a newspaper office, is one of the most elaborate productions, from the technical standpoint in years.

Details of the publishing of a newspaper are shown so graphically that the audience is literally taken into the "inside" of newspaper work. The local room, the work of reporters and copy readers, the setting of type, operation of presses and distribution of the papers are all shown. The press of a real newspaper was used, and the composing room; the local room and mailing room were constructed at the studios. With the backing of city editors of Los Angeles dailies, real reporters were detailed to act such roles in the picture, and a crew of professionals peopled the mailing room.

THE CANARY MURDER CASE
 BY S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR OF THE BENSON MURDER CASE

CHAPTER XXIX

"What about the summons for speeding?" Markham asked. "That's for you to explain," said Vance. "But if you'll take my advice you'll send for this Bonton catchpole, and let him have a look at Pop. If he says Cleaver is the man he ticketed, I'll humbly do away with myself."

"Well; That makes it worth trying. I'll have the officer at the Stuyvesant Club this afternoon, and I'll point out Cleaver to him. . . What other staggering revelations have you in store?"

"Mannix will bear looking into." Markham put down his knife and fork and leaned back. "I'm overcome! Such Himalayan sagacity! With that evidence against him, he should be arrested at once. . . Vance, my dear old friend, are you feeling quite normal? No dizzy spells lately? No shooting pains in the head? Kneejerks all right?"

"Furthermore, Doctor Lindquist was wildly infatuated with the Canary, and insanely jealous. Recently threatened to take a pistol and hold a little pogrom of his own."

"Where did you get this information?"

"Ah! That's my secret." Markham was annoyed. "Why so mysterious?"

"Needs must, old chap. Gave my word, and all that sort of thing. And I'm a bit quixotic, don't y' know—too much Cervantes in my youth." He spoke lightly, but Markham knew him too well to push the question.

In less than five minutes after we had returned to the district attorney's office Heath came in.

"I got something else on Mannix, sir; thought you might want to add it to the report I turned in yesterday. Burke secured a picture of him, and showed it to the phone operators at Odell's house. Both of 'em recognized it. He's been there several times, but it wasn't the Canary he called on. It was the woman in Apartment 2. She's named Frisbee, and used to be one of Mannix's fur models. He's been to see her several times during the past six months, and has taken her out once or twice; but he hasn't called on her for a month or more. . . Any good?"

"Can't tell." Markham shot Vance an inquisitive look. "But thanks for the information. Sergeant."

"By the bye," said Vance delicately, when Heath had left us, "I'm feeling top-hole. No pains in the head; no dizzy spells. Knee-jerks perfect."

"Delighted. Still, I can't charge a man with murder because he calls on his fur model."

"You're so hasty! Why should you charge him with murder?" Vance rose and yawned. "Come, Van, I'd rather like to gaze on Perne's tomb at the Metropolitan this afternoon. Could you bear it?" At the door he paused. "I say, Markham, what about the Bonton halliff?"

Markham rang for Swacker.

"I'll see to it at once. Drop in at the club around five, if you feel like it. I'll have the officer there then, and Cleaver is sure to come in before dinner."

When Vance and I returned to the club late that afternoon, Markham was stationed in the lounge-room facing the main door of the rotunda; and beside him sat a tall, heavy-set bronzed man of about forty, alert but ill at ease.

"Traffic Officers Phipps arrived from Bonton a little while ago," said Markham, by way of introduction. "Cleaver is expected at any moment now. He has an appointment here at half past five."

Vance drew up a chair. "I do hope he's a punctual beggar."

"So do I," returned Markham viciously.

Less than ten minutes later Cleaver entered the rotunda from the street, paused at the desk, and sauntered into the lounge-room. There was no escaping the observation point Markham had chosen; and as he walked by us he paused and exchanged greetings. Markham detained him a moment with a few casual questions; and Cleaver passed on.

"That the man you ticketed, officer?" asked Markham, turning to Phipps.

Phipps was scowling perplexedly. "It looks something like him, sir; there's a kind of resemblance. But it ain't him." He shook his head. "No, sir, it ain't him. The fellow I hung a summons on was stouter than this gent, and wasn't as tall."

"You're positive?"

"Yes, sir—no mistake. The guy I tagged tried to argue with me, and then he tried to slip me a fiver to forget it. I had my headlight on him full."

Phipps was dismissed with a substantial fee.

Vance sighed. "My worthless existence is to be prolonged. Sad. But you must try to bear it. . . I say, Markham, what does Pop Cleaver's brother look like?"

"That's it," nodded Markham. "I've met his brother; he's shorter and stouter. . . This thing is getting beyond me. I think I'll have it out with Cleaver now."

He started to rise, but Vance forced him back into his seat.

"Don't be impetuous. Cultivate paience. Cleaver's not going to do a bunk; and there are one or two preliminary steps strongly indicated. Mannix and Lindquist still seduce my curiosity."

Markham clung to his point. "Neither Mannix nor Lindquist is here now, and Cleaver is. And I want to know why he lied to me about that summons."

"I can tell you that," said Vance. "He wanted you to think he was in the wilds of New Jersey at midnight Mondays—Simple, what?"

"The inference is a credit to your intelligence! But I hope you don't seriously think that Cleaver is guilty. It's possible he knows something; but I certainly cannot picture him as a strangler."

"And why?"

"He's not the type. It's inconceivable—even if there were evidence against him."

"Ah! The psychological judgment! You eliminate Cleaver because you don't think his nature harmonizes with the situation. I say, doesn't that come perilously near being an esoteric hypothesis—or a metaphysical deduction? . . ."

"However, I don't entirely agree with you in your application of the theory to Cleaver. That fish-eyed gambler has unsuspected potentialities for evil. But with the theory itself I am wholly in accord. And behold, my dear Markham:

you yourself apply psychology in its abecedarian implications, yet ridicule my application of it in its higher developments. Consistency may be the hobgoblin of little minds, y' know, but it's none the less a priceless jewel. . . How about a cup of tea?"

We sought the Palm Room, and sat down at a table near the entrance. Vance ordered oolong tea, but Markham and I took black coffee. A very capable four-piece orchestra was playing, and we sat restfully in comfortable chairs without speaking. Markham was tired and dispirited, and Vance was busy with the problem that had absorbed him continuously since Tuesday morning. Never before had I seen him so preoccupied.

We had been there perhaps half an hour when Spotswoode strolled in. He stopped and spoke, and Markham asked him to join us. He, too, appeared depressed, and his eyes showed signs of worry.

"I hardly dare ask you, Mr. Markham," he said diffidently, after he had ordered a ginger ale, "but how do my chances stand now if being called as a witness?"

"That fate is certainly no nearer than when I last saw you," Markham replied. "In fact, nothing has happen-

OUR ART—What the Tri-State fair could be to livestock raisers, farmers, and this section in general, so could the Panhandle Music Festival be in the realm of music. Probably no other Panhandle institution has endured so long under such difficulties, but due to the interest of its boosters and the generosity and courage of Emil F. Myers, this service has been continued from year to year. This year the festival will be held on March 7, 8, and 9 in the Amarillo municipal auditorium. Its success should be monumental, since the program is short and brilliant. Since no other inducement could bring such great artists as Schumann-Heink, Gottfried Galston, and John McCormack to this section, the Panhandle should avail itself of the opportunity to hear these world-renowned artists.

Mme. Schumann-Heink probably will not make another concert tour to the Panhandle. She plans to retire soon, and well she may, for she has given many years of her life to the stage. It is interesting to note her future plans, which, in brief, are to locate and help train another great contralto and to arouse American cities to the need for municipal operas. Schumann-Heink believes that in the breast of some now unknown American girl is a great contralto voice. It is said there are 100,000 sopranos to one contralto. Sopranas are the prima donnas, they get more pay, the acclaim is greater. Consequently many contralto voices are strained out of shape and lost forever. The great singer recently said "there are thousands of young girls, in the shops, in the business offices, in the beauty parlors, who have talent. But they have no money. It is these whom I will teach. I will teach any girl who comes to me, if she has the interest to sing. That is the

Great Men Often Find Inspirations in Beautiful Trees

Trees are more than mere green things. Since time began they have been unfailing friends of the human race. In all ages and in every land they have given valuable service to man. They are among our best friends and greatest helpers. While we are awake and when we sleep they are working for us. Defeat of Sandies Is High Point of Basketball Season

The basketball season, as far as the Pampa Harvesters are concerned, has closed. The team was not as successful this season as predicted, due largely to practice conditions, but in every game played the members of the team did their best and always gave the opposing team a hard battle, losing several games by two and three point margins.

The greatest accomplishment of the team, and one that will live long in the history of the school, was the defeat of the Amarillo Sandies, ancient Harvester rivals, on their own court by a score of 34 to 26. Playing their best basketball of the season, each member of the team worked like a machine, breaking up the Sandies attack and themselves on the offensive all the time.

At least three of this year's team will be missing from the squad next season, but the substitutes made a name for themselves and are looked to fill the breach caused by the graduating students.

Next year the team is looking forward to having a gymnasium where it can practice, and play home games instead of making Miami the "home court." Given a place to practice the local team will make the best in the Panhandle step. There is good material in the school.

Relay Men Break World's Record

COLISEUM, Los Angeles, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A new world's record for the quarter mile, four-man relay event, was established here today by a University of California team, with Charles Borah as its anchor man. When it covered the distance in 41 3-5 seconds. Southern California held the former mark—41.9 seconds. The event was in the A. A. U. relays.

Southern California jumped into the lead at the start, and by the time the baton reached the hands of Charles Paddock, last to run on the club team, Borah had a lead of about seven yards. Paddock, giving all in him, made up six yards of this, but Borah spurred to break the tape, the winner.

STUDEBAKER

The Great Independent

More than mile-a-minute speed for twenty-four hours!

THAT Studebaker engineers have developed a new Dictator of advanced performance has been definitely proved. For 24 hours of continuous running The Dictator piled up the remarkable mileage of 1483 miles at an average of better than a mile a minute! No stock car under $1400 has ever equaled this record, which was made under the supervision of the American Automobile Association.

Horsepower of The Dictator has been increased from 45 to 70 h. p., without increasing the size of its engine or adding to its cost to you—and with an actually higher efficiency and economy in gasoline consumption! Studebaker design and precision building have made it possible to drive this new Dictator at 40-mile-an-hour speed the day you buy it. No more poking along at 20 or 25-mile speed for 500 or 1,000 tiresome miles. Studebaker engineering has reduced the change of engine oil to every 2500 miles. Through a unique, high-pressure lubrication system the need for chassis greasing has also been reduced to 2500-mile intervals.

Today the new Dictator is the champion of its price class, representing the finest type of automotive engineering—at a remarkable, One-Price price!

See this great new Dictator today—give it your own thorough inspection and try it out in your own way. We will gladly put one at your disposal on request!

Woman Is Choked and Robbed Friday

Mrs. Marion Harris, who lives at the Adams hotel, was attacked Friday night in front of the new Methodist church building while returning home Friday evening about 8 o'clock.

Her assistant, a man about 30 years old, wearing high boots, corduroy pants and an overcoat, grabbed Mrs. Harris by the throat and when she commenced a flight held her wrists cutting them with his finger nails.

She was knocked down and in falling screamed loudly. Her assistant reached in her pocket, took a one dollar bill from her pocket, and then ran toward Cuyler street, she told police.

ed to change the situation materially."

"And the man you had under suspicion?"

"He's still under suspicion, but no arrest has been made. We're hoping, however, that something will break before long."

"And I suppose you still want me to remain in the city?"

"If you can arrange it—yes."

Spotswoode was silent for a time; then he said:

"I don't want to appear to shirk any responsibility—and perhaps it may seem wholly selfish for me even to suggest it—but, in any event, wouldn't the testimony of the telephone operator as to the hour of Miss Odell's return and her calls for help be sufficient to establish the facts, without my corroboration?"

"I have thought of that, of course; and if it is at all possible to prepare the case for the prosecution without summoning you to appear, I assure you it will be done. At the moment, I can see no necessity of your being called as a witness. But one never knows what may turn up. If the defense hinges on a question of exact time, and the operator's testimony is questioned or disqualified for any reason, you may be required to come forward. Otherwise not."

Spotswoode sipped his ginger ale. A little of his depression seemed to have departed.

"You're very generous, Mr. Markham. I wish there was some adequate way of thanking you." He looked up hesitatingly. "I presume you are still opposed to my visiting the apartment. . . I know you think me unreasonable and perhaps sentimental; but the girl represented something in my life that I find very difficult to tear out. I don't expect you to understand it—I hardly understand it myself."

Mrs. Celia Thornton has returned from a visit with relatives in Maud and Sayre, Okla.
