JEFFERSON'S TERM OPINION NOW RECALLED

Editor's Note: This is another article in which the chief of the Washington Associated Press Bureau explores the nature of current talk of a third term for President Roosevelt.

By MILO THOMPSON
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Those who already are arguing the possibility and desirability of a third term for President Roosevelt, have frequent recourse to the political classics.

They go, especially, to Jefferson because he was the first president to emphasize Washington's two-term precedent.

It was Jefferson who expressed the hope a limitation on the eligibility of a president for re-election might be written some day into the constitution. And it was Jefferson, who when he was urged to run a third time for the nation's highest executive office, said:

"That I should lay down my charge at the proper period is as much a duty as to have borne it faithfully."

There is another Jefferson quotation equally apt to the arguments of many who join in the third term talk today. It is:

"The example of four presidents voluntarily retiring at the end of their eighth year, and the progress of public opinion that the principle is salutary, have given it in practice the force of precedent and usage."

The inevitable trend of third term talk is toward crystallization of persons into one of two loose groups: A draft-the-president group and a stop-the-president group.

Those who are putting out draft-the-president talk are saying there can be no danger of a Franklin Roosevelt dynasty and a third term would mean only a chance for a benevolent president to finish a good job.

They are recalling that U. S. Grant, writing to the chairman of Pennsylvania state Republican convention which had expressed "unfavorable opposition" to a third term, said he was not seeking one but added the time might come when it would be unfortunate to make a change of presidents at the end of eight years.

Their opponents in argument—those who are putting out stop-the-president talk—early have another bit of Jeffersoniana to answer that. Jefferson said:

"If the principle of rotation be a sound one, as I conscientiously believe it to be with respect to every president thereafter, ever be permitted to dispense with it, because there will be a time when real difficulties do not exist and furnish a pretext for dispensation."

The no-third-termers assert the words proved prophetic in that every president thereafter argued to stand for a third term was urged on the basis of some unusual situation then existing.

SAYS BACHELOR HITLER.
NURNBERG, Sept. 10 (AP)—Enthusiastic Nazi women storming the hall today to see Bachelor Adolf Hitler and hear Gertrude Scholtz-Klinik, Nazi women's leader, proclaim that marriage and motherhood are "the highest achievements in a woman's life."

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (AP)—Heavy selling waves hit the stock market today, driving numerous leaders down 1 to 6 points and some much more.

Traders threw holdings overhead at 10:25, as the market fell on the news that the Federal Reserve board had cut the rate of discount to 3 1/2 percent.

The pace slowed a bit after the late rush and share declines were reduced before the finish.

Analysts could find no outstanding news development to account for the slide. They said first attributed it to a "secondary" reaction which usually follows a downward move such as occurred the early part of the week.

Hanging for Fun—That's Noose

NO. TWO—

Before a group of fellow magicians at Fort Erie, Canada, Joseph Ovette demonstrated how to entertain by just hanging around. In the upper picture Mrs. Ovette slips the noose around her husband's throat. His arms are bound tightly to the chair. Below, at left, Ovette has been hoisted in the air, has freed his arms and is grasping the rope. In the lower right picture he is slipping the noose over his head, a second later drops to the ground unhurt. Notice the tow-headed girl in the plaid dress who watches perplexed, wondering and fascinated throughout the action.

NO. THREE—

Apparently no thought of abandoning their fortunes. The U. S. S. Asheville's commander, Allen G. Quinn, ordered Americans in Swatow to board his ship as soon as it became apparent Japanese intended to bombard the city. After the raid, the British consul asked Commander Quinn to transmit a request to Hongkong for a British destroyer.

NO. FOUR—

Records showed he served prison terms in Oklahoma and Texas for crimes ranging from automobile theft to robbery with firearms and that he broke from jail at Longview, Texas last May 14. Concealed near the swamp hideout was found a black sedan bearing a Texas license plate. The automobile, its upholstery stained with blood, was believed to be the car in which the gangsters left Gulfport.

Warfare with Shells That Cause Fainting Proposed

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor, ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—Making warfare less barbarous with acetyl choline, a drug capable of causing instant fainting of enemy soldiers was suggested as a possibility at the American Chemical Society here today.

Acetyl choline is one of the most active chemicals known. The most minute quantity, when injected into the blood stream, causes a remarkable lowering of blood pressure. Fainting is the result.

But recovery is rapid unless measures are taken to delay it, and there are afterward no ill effects. Where used in combat, acetyl choline would stop virtually all deaths, serious wounds and most of the pain.

Yet it would be an effective weapon for it appears possible to use it so that enemies would drop inert, unconscious and open to capture in large numbers.

The circumstances under which it might be used for a more humane type of war were explained in an interview today by Dr. R. R. Renshaw, of New York University, who with D. Green and M. Ziff, reported to the medical section some new findings on its action in the muscles.

There is an apparently feasible method of getting it into the enemy's food. It cannot be used as a gas, but because of its potency it can be fired in special type artillery shells.

NO. FOUR—

Yvon Delbos, had called upon the conferees to join swiftly in an emergency mutual assistance scheme to annihilate submarines in an automatic fashion on the Mediterranean high sea lanes.

Even earlier, the League of Nations council had arranged to air the Spanish government's accusation of Italy as a submarine pirate at sessions next week.

Delbos told the delegates assembled to seek a means of Mediterranean security:

"It is impossible to permit the present situation of insecurity to continue without the gravest of perils."

In the same breath he said "we regret" that Italy and Germany, "because of reasons affecting them" considered it necessary to boycott the conference.

Delbos spoke with the full authority of French and British governments, in complete agreement on a formula for scuttling the pirate submarines that have brought chaos to the Mediterranean and fear to the world.

He demanded "rapid action" to end the piracy peril.

A few minutes earlier Delbos had been elected unanimously president of the conference. All the twelve powers invited were represented except Italy, Germany, and Albania.

Britain and France brought to the council a dramatic plan for automatic annihilation of "pirate" submarines in the Mediterranean.

The draft of the protocol which the British and the French want the other powers to adopt already has been submitted unofficially, to Soviet Russia and several other nations.

Swift approval of the plan—perhaps by tonight—was forecast confidently.

It was learned authoritatively that it embraces an actual military assistance agreement among the powers for the crushing of piracy.

STORIES IN STAMPS

CIVILIZATION'S FIRST PORTMAN

FOUNDED on a dim prehistoric culture, the empire of the South American Incas first rose to power about 1100 A. D. Branching out from the Andean highlands surrounding Lake Titicaca, the Incas rule was a drastic form of state socialism.

Under this system, the empire was divided into provinces, each under control of a hereditary local chief. All property, agricultural, pastoral or industrial was the property of the state. All labor was considered "state tribute" and some form of labor was exacted from every member of the community.

The state was, in fact, a vast government organization that controlled all resources. The government of these anomalous lands of mountainous territory required a variety of communication, so a network of professional "messengers" was maintained. They carried messages, news and orders, traversing the mountainous regions from nest house to nest house.

Paths from Quito to Northern Argentina are still traceable—traces of which may have been based on the Incas' system.

One is told on a visit to a town in the Andes that the Incas' system is still in use.

September Means School Days for Quins, Too

(Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

September means school-days to the Dionne quintuplets just as it does to children all over the world. But look who is teaching the class at the outdoor blackboard. It's "Professor" Yvonne in the midst of a lecture, with Emilie and Marie at left, making some pertinent suggestions, and Annette and Cecile at right. Bored by the lesson, Annette's interest apparently centers elsewhere.

NATION NEEDS RELIGIOUS HOMES
Text: Deuteronomy 6:4-5; 11:18-25
By Wm. E. Gilroy, D. D.

There will not be much religion in a nation unless there is religion in its homes. The quality of a nation's life could be very well determined from its home life. The Bible is a great textbook of home and family life. The Hebrew scriptures would seem to be almost unique in the ancient world in the high idealism that they attached to family relationships. Among pagan people who even had considerable culture, it was not thought inconsistent with good practice to expose the weak and the aged to death; but Hebrew children were taught to love and honor their parents, and the Hebrew scriptures again and again bear evidence of the deep affection of parents for their children. At a later time the Jews are foremost in education, the Jewish boy of 13 in the time of Jesus had a training that would compare favorably with what the boy of today receives under a modern educational system. In some respects, perhaps, the training was deeper and more effective. Here in this lesson from the early life of Israel, there is strong insistence upon the teaching of children in the home, the training of them in the great traditions and principles of their national religious life, and the strengthening of them for all the duties and responsibilities of life. There is a sort of imperialistic note in this lesson dispossessing other peoples and driving them out; and

SOLUTION OF HUNTING LAW PROBLEM NEAR

AUSTIN, Sept. 10 (AP)—Solution of the vexing problem of conflicting federal and state dove hunting laws, is virtually closing the season in some sections, might be nearer than some hunters think. An almost universal sentiment to bring the laws into conformance exists among legislators in the opinion of Will J. Tucker, secretary of the game commission, who recently sounded them out. The legislature convenes Sept. 27, in time to bring relief to some sections, and Tucker said Gov. James V. Allred would be asked to submit the issue. State health departments in several states now designate suitable areas as being free of pollen that causes hay fever.

BANDS GOING TO AMARILLO'S ANNUAL FAIR

AMARILLO, Sept. 10 — Scores of bands, all accompanied by large delegations and some traveling aboard special trains, will come to Amarillo for the Tri-State Fair, Sept. 20-25. Two special trains already have been pledged from New Mexico. Roy Smith, Tucumcari chamber of commerce official, has announced his organization voted recently to sponsor a train to Amarillo on Friday, Sept. 24, which is Sunshine State day at the exposition.

Aboard the Tucumcari special will be a band. Fortales, with a band, and Roswell are planning another special train for the same day. First of the visiting bands at the Tri-State Fair will be the Irish instrumentalists from Shamrock, who will be in the opening ceremony, Monday, Sept. 20. Three bands—Borger, Phillips and Stinnett—will be here from Hutchinson county. Pampa, McLean, Perryton, Clarendon, Happy, Tulia, White Deer, Plainview and Groom have promised to send bands. "These are only the first pledges," observed Mason King and Bill Beechler, who for years have extended personal invitations to the bands in the Panhandle of Texas, eastern New Mexico and western Oklahoma. All visiting bands and delegations will be allowed time on a KGNC program, broadcasting from the exposition grounds.

PLAINS NAMES ORIGINS TOLD IN MAGAZINE

CANYON, Sept. 10.—Origins of familiar plains names which describe the country or point to some significant event are given by Frank P. Hill, Tahoka newspaper man, in the tenth volume of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Review, which is edited by Prof. L. F. Sherry for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society.

Hill traces the name origins from Coronado's crossing of the plains nearly 400 years ago in his search for Quivera, the city of gold. The names are many, including Palo Duro, Canyon City, Blanco, Agua Corriente, Amarillo, Lamesa, Laguna de las Casas Amarillas, and Llano Estacado, from the Spanish applying to the north plains area, and Laguna Cimbligo, Laguna Sabinas, Laguna Quemada, and Agu de Toro, familiar in the south plains and beyond. Most of these refer to the nature of the country or its watering places. For instance, the headwaters of the Red and Rio Grande were called, del Toro, or bull water, by the Mexicans of an earlier day. Most of the designations given by the Indians did not "stick."

Hill continues with tales of how famous early-day characters derived their nicknames.

In the same current number of the quarterly are articles on "The Big Bend of Texas," by Walter Prescott Webb; "Characteristic Similarities of Expeditions Into the Great Plains," by H. B. Carroll; "Documents Relating to General W. T. Sherman's Southern Plains Indian Policy, 1871-75," by C. C. Rister; "The Lives and Customs of the Open Range," by Boone McClure; "Prehistory in the Texas Panhandle," by C. Stuart Johnson, and reviews of books relating to the plains section.

ARMY COMMUNICATIONS METHODS OUT OF DATE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—Present army communication methods have become obsolete, war department experts said today, because of the speed of motorized fighting forces.

They based their conclusion on observations of field commanders of the Fourth Army, described by Maj. Gen. George S. Simonds as "the most realistic ever held in the west." More than 56,000 men from 16 western states participated.

Observers of the four weeks of mythical combat came to these general conclusions:

Increased mobility of the army as the result of motorization makes it imperative that the commanding officers have more complete information about the theater of operations and the enemy's movements.

Increased mobility also makes it necessary that the commanding officer's communication with all units under his command be so complete that he can instantly transmit orders.

The increased mobility has not been balanced by equally effective means for providing information about the enemy's movements.

Field radios, telephones and motorcycle messengers have not yet reached an efficiency to furnish a motorized army with the superior communications service it requires.

The new "strawline" division (the army's experiment with a division of 12,000 more compactly organized men rather than 20,000) is a success.

EXPLOSION POISONERS SEEN AS POSSIBILITY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 10 (AP)—A "negative catalyst," a chemical to end mine explosions by poisoning the explosion before it can start was seen as a future possibility today at the American Chemical Society.

Two of these explosion poisoners are known, it was explained by Bernard Lewis, of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, at Pittsburgh, but they cannot be used because they would also poison men. The pair are a form of iodine known as an organic iodide, and a bromide, which is unlike the well-known medicine.

"Whether mine and other explosions can be effectively inhibited," said Dr. Lewis, "by some such means as the addition of small amounts of substances acting as negative catalysts remains to be answered in the future."

The most popular "negative catalyst" is lead in gasoline. It slows down the explosion so that the engine will not knock.

The mechanism by which the air of an entire mine may be immunized to explosions was explained by Dr. Lewis. Mine explosions are not directly due to methane or fire-damp, but to chemical reactions that go on in these gasses and the air.

An explosion comes when the methane forms formaldehydes and acetylenes which join with other particles to form highly explosive chains of particles.

Nazi Propagandist Screams Invective Against Communism

NURMBERG, Sept. 10 (AP)—Nazi Germany's little propaganda minister, Paul Joseph Goebbels, declared before national socialism's annual congress today that "in western Europe Germany is formed 'for which we will fight to the last breath' against communism."

Dr. Goebbels brought all his powers of invective into play—some of them against Americans and some against Communists. He spoke for a few hours at a dinner table with other powers so long as Soviet Russia, which has accused fascist Italy of sinking her ships, would be there.

He warned Europe and the democracies that "Spain is the world's crossroads" and added:

"What happens today in Spain may repeat itself tomorrow in any country!"

Then he screamed that the establishment of "a communist power" in western Europe "cannot be tolerated."

"Some leading American Democratic political personages," Goebbels shouted, sympathize with the Spanish government.

"It is not scoundrelly and dispicable to travel with this terrible world danger, then it is a case of gross stupidity to which one might apply the gospel prayer: 'God, forgive them, for they know not what they do.'"

He spoke then of the democracies which he said, persisted in "defending themselves" that Spanish insurgency was a bid for power by reactionary generals.

That idea, he said, is the "devilish" work of Moscow, and "nations which close their eyes to this menace will some day suffer a terrible awakening."

RUSSIA HUNTS ARCTIC WIL-O-THE-WISP.

MOSCOW (AP)—The ice-breaker Sadko and a seaplane set out to search again for Sannikoff land, an island, Arctic expeditions have tried fruitlessly to find or more than 125 years.

The ship and plane also will explore the northern sea route around Novosibirsk islands, studying the ice, water and weather conditions in the area. If they find Sannikoff land, the explorers will leave a group there with a meteorological station to pass the winter.

Hole Blasted Out of Street When 582 Died in Air Bombardment

This hole big enough to hide half a dozen men was torn in the street in Shanghai's International Settlement when Chinese and Japanese war planes rained bombs and shells on the city. The scene above shows the settlement's busiest intersection, Avenue Edward VII and Tibet Road, where 582 persons were killed, among them three Americans. Hundreds were wounded as the shells fell, many of them from flying stone and pieces of concrete blasted out of the street, and from falling debris.

Answers Differ on 'Who Lost Face in Congress?'

(Editor's Note: What Washington officials are saying these days is largely off the record. Here is another article in which the Washington chief of bureau outlines the nature of that talk without hazarding any guesses as to the legitimacy of the arguments being presented or what the consensus might be.)

By MILO THOMPSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10 (AP)—The question "who lost face in the session of congress just ended?" is today nearly as often on the tongues of Washington people who like to speculate about things political as the question "what is happening to speculate about things political?"

Those who look ardently upon the Roosevelt administration program say it was congress.

Those who stress the portion of that program which failed of adoption or was postponed, including the Supreme Court matter, say it was the President.

Those who say they feel the Supreme Court was influenced by attacks upon it and became something less of a bulwark for the constitution (as these commentators interpret it) say it was the Supreme Court.

So also do some deplore the things that were said about the nation's highest court in the heat of debate. They feel certain it will take a long time to restore oldtime respect for that court.

It is not for a reporter of news to say who is right; it is, however, his task to report what the warring political tongues are saying even though much of this is quite off the record.

And the tongues are saying two things about congress. If the speakers believe that the Roosevelt cause and the need for action "now" was something of a holy crusade, they condemn congress for having side-tracked or postponed essential parts of that program.

But others take a position similar to that voiced by House majority Leader Rayburn in his farewell speech to the recent session. He said:

"When anybody, foreign or domestic, says that this session of congress has been a sit-down congress, that it has not worked and that it has not enacted a great program of legislation, they either are ignorant of the facts, or they want to distort them."

Supporters of this position assert that a congress which appropriated more than seven and a half billion dollars to continue or start actions intended by their sponsors to improve national conditions, was scarcely a do-nothing congress. They also assert that it is only in comparison with what the President outlined that congress failed to produce. They add that the thing which caused much delay and postponement of measures was itself a virtue, a desire to look carefully at both sides of each matter.

Congress has not lost face either in the opinion of those who are asserting a rubber stamp period has ended. The last named group will tell you that congress has gained importance.

Blacks Eye for DR?

What has happened to presidential prestige, is similarly a matter for difference of opinion. One hears failure to obtain his court reform objective gave the President a black eye. Some say it disclosed he is less the brilliant strategist his supporters acclaimed. Many say a President who had to compromise after he had said he would not compromise, who had to take delay after promising more action with a resounding "now," and who has been forced to interrupt preaching his political gospel to aim epithets like "tory" and "American Lord MacAuleys" at his opponents is not so powerful a factor in his first term.

No less emphatic are those who see the opposite picture. They say the President is playing a long range game and expects to lose a few tricks. They say meeting an emergency to join any program simpler than the present task: Deciding what part of the emergency program should be made permanent policy. They say that is bound to stir up opposition, even inside the President's party. Every step, they say, must be increased battle and therefore the President has shown his strength in driving ahead.

Some Roosevelt supporters insist the President has become stronger in that he has kept all eyes on him during the battles and, has learned where his strength lies.

How the Supreme Court emerged from the controversy in which it had no part is obviously not so easy for the volunteer analysts. Both trends and foes of the present court set-up have been saying it is "too bad" a branch of the government so austere, so dignified, a figure in a political squabble.

But the friends are quick to add that the court has not been seriously affected. As they put it, it got a vote of confidence.

The contrary view expressed is that prestige has suffered to an extent which will wound some of the justices to their retirement or their graves.

QUICK RECOVERY
PITTSBURGH—Henry Cook was not so dumb—or, for that matter, deaf.

County Detective Samuel Graham, who arrested him on a charge of peddling without a license, said Cook posed as a mute to increase sales of razor blades and shoe-strips. Left in a cell for several hours, he startled attendants by shouting:

PIGGLY WIGGLY

VEGETARIAN!

Meat is the cause of war because meat-eaters are scrappy and vegetable-eaters are peaceful people, declared James P. Briggs, above, president of a Washington, D. C., vegetarian society. The thought of a juicy sirloin is responsible for the enthusiastic and thorough horror on Mr. Briggs' face in this picture. He said the Chinese are largely vegetarians. Incidentally, so are the Japanese.

Sky's the Limit for Boy Of 14 in Italy -- if He does Not Become Lost in Army

Boys and girls around the world return this month to school. In America classroom tradition will shield them, pretty much, from the whirlwinds of troubled thought which sweep a restless world. In foreign lands the average boy of 14 in Europe today...

By A. E. STUNTZ
AP Foreign Service

ROME—Like any American boy, Gino Pichi, high school freshman of an average Italian family, may set his mind on the career of doctor, lawyer, teacher, engineer.

But unlike the American boy, Gino has a certain extra obligation. Soldier of the Italian Empire he must become.

Gino is 14. He has passed through five years of free and obligatory elementary school and two of the four years of lower middle school. At 16 he will pass into one of the other of the various upper middle institutes which will prepare him for a definite career.

His father is thinking about the university career which may take him to the career of one of the learned professions. So is Gino. But no matter what they think, Gino must become a soldier. If he quits education after upper middle school, he must enter the king's army at 21. If he decides and qualifies for university training, he will receive the equivalent of a year's army service in extended reserve officer training.

Gino has already received a grounding in Italian grammar, arithmetic, history, Fascist culture and military theory, religion and physical culture.

He is an Avanguardista, or one of the younger members of the Fascist youth organization. He did not join because of state compulsion, but rather because of moral persuasion. He likes to march, sing and go on camping trips with the other million boys of the organization.

Many Enter Profession

Four general courses of education are open to Gino. He has his eyes on the learned professions; therefore he has enrolled in the Ginnasio branch, where the academic side of his education will be stressed. From the Ginnasio he will be graduated to the Liceo and thence to one of the capital universities. There are few private schools in Italy for boys and no private universities.

Gino has friends who want to be engineers, chemists, agricultural or commercial experts. They have entered the technical institute of their communities. Those who want to be teachers enter the "magistrate," or normal schools.

Still another course is open to the boy who expects to have to work for a living after the age of 16. He may enter a free manual training institute, from which he will be graduated as a skilled workman in any given trade.

Knows Fascist Doctrine

When Gino completes his studies in the upper institute, he is qualified by law to enter government civil service or private business. He can become chief clerk or even a department head, depending on his abilities. But rarely will his institute diploma carry him higher.

Gino is already versed in foreign affairs—in a Fascist way. He reads Il Duce's speeches or hears them read in class. Fascist doctrine is preached to him by press and radio daily. He has been told that democracy as a system is ineffectual and, never having lived in a democratic system, has no reason to disbelieve it.

Geography a Bit Muddled

He is inclined to think highly of the United States and the other American nations. But his ideas of American geography are hazy. He easily confuses Boston with Buenos Aires, Philadelphia with Rio de Janeiro.

His favorite predisposition comes from the wonder tales of relatives and family friends who have been to some place or other in America. Few Italians lack these relatives or friends.

Gino only half believes that there are more Italians in New York than in Rome, that there are rivers bigger than the Tiber or Arno in flood stage; that there are trains faster and more luxurious than the Rome-Milan express. But such tales as these fill him with affectionate wanderlust rather than indignant skepticism.

CROSS-WORD PATTERN

WEST HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 10 (AP)—Mrs. William Prutting accidentally found a new use for cross-word puzzles.

Looking at one without the aid of glasses she habitually wears, Mrs. Prutting called a neighbor to admire the new crocheted pattern she had found in the newspaper.

The neighbor set her right, but Mrs. Prutting decided to go ahead anyway. Now she has two holders crocheted from cross-word puzzle patterns—and very pretty they are too.

MOTORIST SPANKED

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 10 (AP)—Police Officer Homer Gouette and Michael Tosca didn't bother to take one reckless driver to court — they spanked him instead.

The offender was five-year-old Anthony Corona, who stepped on the starter of his brother's car, sending it backward through a yard and across a street into a parked automobile.

Heiress Pensive at Own Party

Dark-eyed Christine Cromwell, 15, might have been pensively longing for something when she was photographed at a Honolulu dinner party honoring two sons of Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, Jr., but the odds are it wasn't anything money could buy. Her mother is Mrs. Dolphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde, heiress to the Dodge motor millions, and her father is James H. R. Cromwell, husband of "richest girl" Doris Duke Cromwell.

The Capital Jigsaw

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, Sept. 10 (AP)—In the early days of oil prorotation the duties of an inspector for the railroad commission often were hazardous.

Laten Stanberry, chief of the oil and gas division of the commission, recently recalled an experience of Gordon Griffin, former chief engineer.

In the brush somewhere he came on a lease in which he was interested and the operator, a big, burly fellow, eyed Griffin coldly.

"So you're from the railroad commission, are you?" he demanded. Griffin answered in the affirmative.

"Did you have anything to do with setting the allowable of my well?" the operator fired again. Griffin explained the fixing of allowables was the job of another department than his.

"All right then," grudgingly said the operator. "If you had been the guy that fixed that allowable I was going to cut off your head and throw it in the bushes."

Texas history and monuments to Texas' great men hold much interest to visitors from other states.

Not long ago a man from Platteville, Wis., came through Austin and saw the monuments on the capitol grounds to the Southern Confederacy, heroes of the War for Independence from Mexico, Texas Rangers, and others. Unable to obtain all the data he wanted, he requested Barker secretary of the Senate, to send him such as he could.

Barker complied, forwarding all manner of information on the state. "I started in," said the Platteville citizen in a letter of acknowledgment, "passed part of it to my stenographer, and when I looked up next time it was a quarter after ten."

"How in the world do you expect me to get my work done when you sent in things so interesting that everything else is set aside while I read them?"

Ghent Sanderford of Austin, president of the state board of education, was "all smiles" after the board decided on a $22 per capita scholastic apportionment for next year.

There had been a furious controversy over whether the action of the board several weeks ago fixing that amount of apportionment should be allowed to stand.

When Sanderford, who favored the $22 rate, refused to call a meeting, six other members did. There are nine on the board.

The meeting began in an atmosphere of considerable tenacity, but the feeling did not last long. A ma-majority, 6 to 3, voted to reconsider the matter and then the whole group again decided on $22.

One point at issue had been whether the original action, coming as it did before the state automatic tax board had set the ad valorem tax rate, had been legal.

Sanderford, who had been pretty solemn for weeks while the row prevailed, vowed to press correspondents he had no prior knowledge of what would happen.

"I swear I was more surprised than anyone," he said.

A statement to the board that Comptroller George W. Sheppard estimated if business continued good there ought to be enough money in the school fund to pay the $22, apparently had an important bearing on the situation.

LIONS TO HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC ON THURSDAY

Pampa Lions will hold their annual picnic on next Thursday night at the White House Lumber company picnic grounds near Canadian, when they will entertain wives and guests. The trek from Pampa will be at 5:30 o'clock.

An impromptu program was presented at yesterday's luncheon with Bob Thompson acting as master of ceremonies. He called on various members for talks with most of them being humorous.

C. H. Walker told of the conservation meeting in Amarillo Wednesday and Envoy Frederick M. Lange of the Salvation Army asked for man power to help in the coming drive. He said that the Lions club was one of the leading workers of the Salvation Army movement.

Captain Herman Lambrecht, local director, was also a guest.

Rep. Marvin Jones will be invited by President R. B. Fisher to be the club's guest at the picnic next week. He will be guest speaker at the monthly chamber of commerce luncheon here that noon.

Guests at the luncheon were E. G. Scott of Detroit, Mich., Eugene Mann, C. P. Wright and Harry E. Hoare.

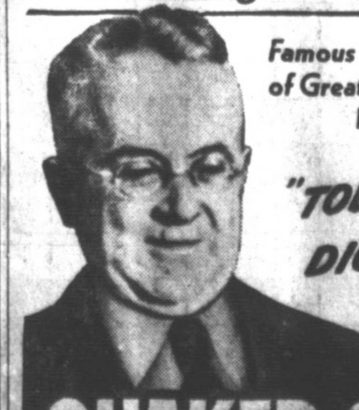

MISFORTUNE. FOUNTAIN INN, S. C.—In 48 accident-studded hours in the life of B. L. Holland, this happened: His prize dog escaped from his yard, attacked a neighbor's chickens and was shot.

A wagon hauling sand to Holland's yard broke down. A substituted truck caught fire and new parts were installed. A driver backed the truck into a parked automobile.

Someone tossed a stone through the windshield of Holland's automobile. One of his two pigs broke a leg.

Exports of German beer to the United States during the first five months of this year were double the shipments during the same period in 1936.
