Before and After Air Raids

Justly proud was Shanghai of its new civic center, upper, flanked by row on row of model housing that sets a new standard of living in the traditionally impoverished orient. This was only one of many such projects that contrasted strangely with the ancient architecture of the old city.

But the Japanese invaders respect neither new nor old. But when peace returns to Shanghai, many of the modern improvements of the city will have to be rebuilt. Here are model houses after being shelled, as shown in the latest release of the March of Time films . . . the buildings in ruins, the tenants killed or driven away.

CHINESE FALL, BACK BEFORE JAP ADVANCE

SHANGHAI, Sept. 13 (AP)—Under heavy fire from Japanese land and sea batteries, the Chinese army abandoned the hotly-fought Kiangwan salient north of Shanghai today and withdrew all forces to the powerfully fortified second line defense network of trenches stretching from Shanghai 25 miles to the northwest.

The Chinese retreat was orderly and strategic to prepared positions which they had expected to fall back on as soon as the full force of Japan's mechanized advance surged against them.

The Japanese followed hard on the heels of the retreating Chinese and quickly occupied the far eastern race course and the now completely ruined Kiangwan civic center. The Chinese had held the area for a full month against the fiercest Japanese assaults.

Cholera, constant oriental peril of either war or peace, took a grave turn in the international areas while 23 Americans were being evacuated on a United States warship.

There were unconfirmed reports that one American left in Shanghai was dying of the dread disease. In all, there were 529 new cases in the foreign areas, 450 of them in the French concession, where most of the American live. The other 79 were in the international settlement.

Most of the victims were Chinese refugees who had fled into the foreign sections. Sixty had died in the last 48 hours.

Three days of relentless air and artillery bombardment, at the same time, had started a series of new and extensive fires in Kiangwan, Yangtzeop and Hongkew, war desolated districts to the north and west of the foreign areas.

LEAGUE GIVES FASCISTS NO SATISFACTION

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY. GENEVA, Sept. 13 (AP)—The League of Nations rebuffed an attempt to unseat the Spanish government from its assembly today at the outset of a tense, closely guarded session which is to hear a Spanish accusation of Italy as a Mediterranean plate meddler.

While the assembly met, France and Great Britain assembled a mighty fleet of 60 men of war to drive mysterious raiders from the inland sea. Already there were unconfirmed reports from Spanish Cartagena, on the Mediterranean, that a pirate submarine, her crew still alive, lay blasted and crippled under the water.

The Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco, in a letter to the league, contended his government was the only one representing the will of the Spanish people.

But the league credentials committee decided credentials of the Valencia delegation were in order and the assembly seated it.

The assembly likewise spoked Mussolinian hopes that the league would expel Ethiopia—which he has conquered—from membership. No voice was raised against Ethiopia during the session of the credentials committee. Her right to continue in membership as an independent nation, although she actually now belongs to Italy, was not questioned.

China Files Appeal. Neither Italy nor Ethiopia was represented by a delegate but the dethroned emperor, Haile Selassie, sent a letter expressing his continued "faith in the league."

The assembly adjourned until 5 p. m., (11 a. m. EST) after China's appeal against Japanese aggression was distributed to delegates.

The appeal, saying Japan had invaded China, was continuing the invasion with all her army, navy and air force, had been filed only a few hours before the meeting.

In view of the extremely tense international situation developing from the Mediterranean problem, the Sino-Japanese conflict, the Spanish civil war and other troubles, Switzerland took extraordinary precautions to guard the league meeting.

Police Force Greatest. The greatest police force in league history was assembled to guard delegates within and without the hall. China's appeal asserted the Jap-

STOCK MARKET DROPS INTO STEEP DECLINE

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Unable to sustain an early advance, the stock market tumbled over into another steep decline today.

Heavy selling was resumed in spite of the Washington move to release $300,000,000 in "sterilized" gold, generally accepted in financial circles as aimed to bolster business courage by assuring maintenance of low borrowing rates for money.

Starting moderately higher, as Saturday's rally carried over under spur of the news from Washington, many active shares later accumulated net losses of $2 to more than $5 and a few much more.

In van of the decline were such shares as Allied Chemical, Johns Manville, United States Steel, Montgomery Ward, Chrysler, General Electric and International Nickel.

Glorifying Yourself By ALICIA HART.

Beautiful feet usually are comfortable feet, so it's a mistake to begrudge time or energy spent making yours lovely. If sand and sun and salt water have made them dry and rough, get busy with oils and creams and pedicure accessories for a few weeks before you buy new fall shoes.

If you have corns or bunions, a few trips to a good foot doctor will pay huge dividends. To remove callouses, put a bit of powdered pumice on your nail brush and scrub briskly. Do not try to remove an entire callous during one treatment. And never cut or scrape it with a knife or razor blade.

Always cut toenails straight across, then smooth rough edges and file away corners with an emery board. There used to exist a theory that toenails should be cut straight across and corners left untouched, but pedicure experts now agree that corners must be filed short and rounded.

At night, right after your bath, massage feet with a special foot cream, an oily lotion or your favorite complexion cream. Use firm upward strokes from tips or toes to ankles. After your morning shower, dry feet carefully and sprinkle a bit of medicated powder between toes.

See that your new fall shoes really fit and that stockings are long enough. Too short shoes and stockings certainly will cause small corns on your toes. New this fall are boxless sandals, oxfords and pumps. These, as their name implies, are soft and supple, molding feet as gloves mold hands, and most comfortable.

Always buff toenails before applying liquid lacquer. If you do not varnish them, use a buffer anyway. Buffing stimulates circulation and makes the nails stronger and less likely to break or chip.

"FDR pledges to keep nation out of war," says a headline. . . Seems like some other president pledged the same thing back in 1917 . . . Walter Davenport, the Collier's writer, who has so much to say of the dust bowl in the current issue of the magazine, is likely to be sued soon, along with the publishing company who circulated his drivel about the dying children of the Great Plains.

Davenport admits he was told by a doctor that the best cure for a dust storm was to drink beer because it was less likely to make your ribs muddy. . . It's simply that they enjoy showing their independence. It is about the only spree of rugged individualism they dare to indulge. A Pause for Rest in Flight from Destruction

With shells and bombs bursting in the streets and troops fighting savagely for vantage points in Shanghai, Chinese civilians found sleep and food increasingly precious items. The scene above is typical of many doorways in the shattered native section. While the line of combat had moved momentarily to another sector, a Chinese family snatches a few minutes of rest, sprawled on the hard pavement, sleeping despite knowledge that the next minute might bring death in any of a dozen explosive forms. Natives fled the city in even greater numbers recently when Japan threatened heavier bombardments on Shanghai due to the stubborn military resistance of the Chinese military.

AVIATION VISION

Glenn Martin's imaginative picture of 250,000-pound air liners carrying 180 passengers on non-stop ocean flights might sound like a pipe dream—if it came from anyone else. But Mr. Martin has already advanced so far on the road to the super-airplane that we can only take it for granted that planes such as he describes will be in actual commercial operation within a decade.

Mr. Martin's prediction—voiced to an interviewer at the recent National Air Races—is interesting because the famous designer and builder of planes does not seem to believe that there is a theoretic limit to plane size. For a long time it had been supposed that the "curve of efficiency" diminished as size increased, and that there was a point beyond which added size would prove a drawback.

But he has already made studies of this projected 250,000-pound airplane. His studies indicate that such a ship, properly designed and built, should be perfectly practical. And, as he remarks, "If we can build to 250,000 pounds, I am convinced there is no definite limit."

If this is correct, we shall eventually have planes that will dwarf the mightiest sky liners of the present day.

HOLIDAY 'GAIN' ON DEATH

The ordinary prophet is chagrined to see his predictions confounded; but the National Safety Council undoubtedly was very happy to see its gloomy forecast of 1000 accidental deaths over the Labor Day holiday going wide of the mark.

Experience in previous years had indicated that at least that number of Americans would die in traffic and other accidents. But experience, for once, proved a poor basis for prophecy. For, as it turned out, only about 500 deaths were recorded.

"Only" about 500! The grim irony of that remark indicates how fearfully careless we are, even when we do twice as well as anyone had a right to expect.

Washington Letter

WASHINGTON—Just because the United States had an "adverse" balance of trade in 1936 and expects another one for 1937 is no reason for business men to start jumping off bridges.

Many economists refuse to call it an "adverse" or "unfavorable" balance of trade. Instead they call it an "import surplus." The department of commerce insists it should be simply an "unbalance of payments," since only part of it represents a trade in goods. Shipping services, interest and dividends and tourist expenditures enter into it.

But the fact remains that in 1936, for the first time in decades, the United States had an import surplus. It amounted to $153,000,000. Even so it exported $34,000,000 more of actual goods than it imported. The deficit came in such items as American tourist expenditures abroad, services of foreign ships in carrying American produce, and other "invisibles." Total exports, goods, services and all were $3,483,000,000.

There will be a larger unbalance of payments in 1937. The department of commerce reports there is already this year a surplus of more than $140,000,000 in imports of actual goods over exports.

The amount of tourist expenditures abroad, shipping service charges and other "invisibles" so far this year is not known. The department believes it is far in excess of the amount payable to the United States, so the "adverse" balance of trade will be fairly imposing, perhaps several hundreds of millions.

But the appearance of an "adverse" balance of trade does not mean that the republic is falling. England has had an adverse balance of trade in merchandise for generations. It has made up the difference by supplying shipping service and capital to other countries, while at the same time enticing tourists to spend lavishly in dear old England.

Foreign nations in debt to the United States can pay only in goods or services. And they can not amass a margin to pay the debts if they are required to buy from the United States as much as they sell it.

Of course there are boat loads of argument on both sides of the question as to whether a permanent "favorable" balance of trade is beneficial to a nation.

The department of commerce supplies information helping to throw a favorable light on the present trade deficit. This country is better off, so is able to buy more abroad. One of the indications of good times here is the increase in American tourist travel abroad.

Then, too, currency devaluations abroad have reduced the cost to America of foreign goods. Because these prices are low, American manufacturers are buying foreign raw materials heavily. Ultimately foreign prices are sure to rise, so American manufacturers, with supplies of cheaper raw material bought in advance, can undersell foreign goods later.

It is noteworthy, in support of this, that the Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — "Dear George," writes Albert Stevens Crockett from around the corner, "since I have had my office down here in Murray Hill I have been basking in discoveries. In the first place, this is about the cleanest section of New York. It used to be about the most restricted. But the invasion of Madison avenue left J. P. Morgan probably its most noted resident, almost isolated, and the great mansions of the Bakers and Leows' in Park avenue, have been boarded up for years.

"Murray Hill as a community is contained between Park and Third avenues, and between 35th and 40th streets. It is probably the most thoroughly respectable section of New York. Lots of old families still live in it, and hotel man tells me that in Murray Hill proper, nowadays, there are probably more private residences than in any other part of east side Manhattan. It is fringed on three sides by skyscrapers, and on the fourth by the Third avenue 'L.' No movies, no anything, and shops even are scarce.

"I wanted to show you what is probably the most nearly unique agency you have ever seen. It's office occupies two corner houses, twellings adapted to business purposes. Where I sit, I think must have been either a dining room or the drawing room. There are iron casement windows. There is a butler who serves ice tea of an afternoon, and a kitchen where a meal may be prepared. No elevators—just the wrought iron balustrades and stairways, and the offices are more like drawing rooms, save for the desks.

"But what I wanted to show you particularly was what you probably didn't know about—the capitol of Murray Hill, a smart little hotel run like a European establishment by Gaston Lauryszen, a Belgian, who had some years at the Ritz-Carlton and the Savoy Plaza. It has just opened a new bar and cafe that looks as well as anything uptown; it also has a big restaurant and a garden in the back.

"You know, uptown New Yorkers seldom come below 42nd street for anything to eat, or anything else save business. I wanted you to see and sample that new bar because Lauryszen is an old friend of mine and you would enjoy him tremendously. And I found that his chef was an old friend, John Taddel, for nine years a pupil of the great Renee Arlard, of the old Waldorf, who taught the new millionaires in the late nineties and early naughties what good cooking was. And they do serve good meals and reasonable.

"Now I hope you'll call me soon and keep that date."

Have you noticed a new look of peace and contentment on Dr. Webb's face lately? The hurried, hurried expression that clings to the faces of most Americans has almost left his countenance. It is his yard and garden that have effected the change. They have given him their calm quietness—indeed it is possible for a garden to affect a personality drastically. . . At any rate, a year ago, Dr. Webb moved into the house on Somerville where he now lives, and he began to think about a smooth front yard, and a back-yard that would be intimate and soul-satisfying. Before he knew it the beautifying of the yard had begun and he was steeped in plans, seeds, bulbs. . . Today his yard deserves far more praise than is possible here. . . There is a dahlia garden completely enclosed by net, and the biggest dahlias bloom, of deep purplish red, was ten inches across. At the feet of the dahlias were flowering pink, marigolds, verbenas, carnations, poinsettias. Dr. Webb like thick, climbing vines, and silver lace, moon vine, cypress vine and old-fashioned Jack Bean have completely hidden part of the garage fences, lattices. There is a rose garden in a corner of the back yard, with roses blooming. There were other flowers—touch-me-nots, daisies, Canterbury bells, and the yard was so peaceful and quiet that a bird perched on the sun dial, cast bright eyes about him for a minute before he pecked a drop of water from the bird bath. They say that Dr. Webb counts every minute of spare time wasted that is not spent enjoying his yard. . . So it is strange how a yard or a garden, if it is yours, can get under your skin.

ON SEX AND MARRIAGE.

The British parliament has been stirred by a marriage bill lately. The English medical journal, the Lancet, in an editorial, makes some wise observations on "the last few weeks' deliberations on the Marriage Bill, which show the interplay of the forces—both of reason and prejudice—that mould the structure of our social life."

The law, the church and medicine formally participated in the debate. Each viewed and argued the problems of sex and marriage from its traditional position.

"The lawyer has to provide for people in their most egoistic and aggressive moments, the church tries to keep them to their most hopeful moments, while the doctor has to relieve them of the consequences—on the one hand of their anxieties and guilt due to egoism and aggression, and on the other hand of their disappointment due to the failure of their hopes," says the Lancet.

Legislation for the sexual impulse is not easy. In no field of human activity are our most experienced counsellors, so ill informed, and in no other do "practical" men fall back so quickly on theory.

The causes of sexual maladjustment are numerous. Even the condition of sexual maturity is complex, and, if the mental as well as the physical aspects are taken into consideration, it is found to be of slow development. Not a few suffering mortals only partially or temporarily achieve a semblance of maturity, and some of these made bold by hope, attempt marriage though quite unfit.

In legislative debate it seems to be assumed, too, that the sexual life is fully known and fully conscious, that its manifestations can be defined as clearly as the clauses of contract and that the easiest and clearest of all contracts is the prom-

Sweet Air Will Replace Simon Harry As Name

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 13 (AP)—Dr. S. Harris, local dentist, walked into the 119th District Court here Saturday with his lawyer to have his name pulled and another put in its place.

With Judge O. L. Parish in Charge, it was a painless job. In a few minutes Sweet Air came out of the courtroom: Dr. Harris was a new man. It was that simple.

Robert P. Brown, attorney, presented a petition explaining the applicant was a doctor of dentistry known to his fellow man and to the public generally as Sweet Air Harris. He wanted his name changed legally from Simon Harry Harris to Sweet Air Harris.

The applicant pointed out in his petition that he lives in a predominantly Gentile neighborhood and the said name Sweet Air being non-Jewish, would best serve his interest in business.

So he it, decided the judge and he signed the judgment.

"It is therefore considered and ordered by the court that the Christian name of said Simon Harry Harris be and is hereby changed to Sweet Air Harris."

Book A Day

—By BRUCE CATTON

With the revival of interest in Civil War days comes the timely publication of Dr. Thomas Nichols' "Forty Years of American Life" (Stackpole Sons; $3).

This is a sincere account of one man's careful observations of his own time, 1821-1861. It is an amazingly broad view, considering that most of his traveling had to be done by stage-coach, horse-drawn canal boat, steamboat and, later, the early railroads.

Brought up on a New England farm, Dr. Nichols first gives a picture of bucolic days when a quiting bee or a sugaring-off satisfied the gregarious, and men could snuff a candle with a bullet. On market days frugal farmers would carry bean porridge frozen into a cake, ready to be warmed at a tavern fire, saving the expense of dinner in town. Relief was no problem then: paupers were sold by the city to the highest bidder, for a year's service at a time.

Dr. Nichols began early to travel. He kept his eyes wide open and his notebook handy. The result is a very detailed record of life in such cities as Buffalo, New York, Mobile, Galveston, New Orleans, Cincinnati.

He studied and tried to account for sectional peculiarities, was indignantly proud of American hotel service and ice men, could laugh a little at the American love of lecturers and camp-meeting forensics, while themselves founded the Mennonite Institute at Yellow Springs, Ohio.

The Civil War broke up all their hopes as well as their ideal communities. They fled to England and Dr. Nichols wrote this record first for the English magazines, to give the English public a straightforward account of life across the Atlantic.—D. S. E.

7,500 PUPILS IN TEXARKANA FINGERPRINTED

TEXARKANA, Sept. 13 (AP)—A mass experiment in safeguarding identities, the voluntary fingerprinting of nearly 7,500 children, began here today.

The subjects were elementary school tots, just out of the toddling class, and their schoolmates in the Texarkana system, up through a college senior class.

The result, school authorities and other sponsors hoped, would be a comprehensive file in a special section promised by the federal bureau of identification in Washington, with records of nature's permanent skin whorls as a reference library of identity for some possible future need.

There was no compulsion. Parents, teachers, business and professional men on both Texas and Arkansas sides of the city, favoring the plan, but outspokenly opposed a mandatory measure.

After fingerprints left at the Texas Centennial last year had aided in naming some of the hundreds of school children killed in the New London, Tex., school explosion last March, the Texarkana Kiwanis club backed a program which had been in embryo for several years.

The federal bureau of investigation and identification furnished materials.

Fingerprinting began on the Texas side with Sergeant Dick Rumbels of the police department in charge. In Arkansas Officer C. L. Thomson was busy in circuit court, and the program was delayed a week.

R. B. Brawner, principal of the Arkansas senior high school, evaluated the plan as having "obvious advantages," but said he thought it should be kept on a basis of voluntary submission.

"There are many benefits under such positive means of identification, but they should be offered and not ordered," B. B. Lawson, principal of the Texas senior high school, declared in agreement.

W. P. Akin, dean of Texarkana college, said the value of fingerprinting "goes beyond immediate misfortune." As a means of identification for claims, amnesia, and other misfortunes, it is a method of identification to be highly regarded.

Two Killed After Suicide Threat

CLEBURNE, Sept. 13 (AP)—A shooting which followed a threat of suicide, today had cost the lives of Lon Peterson, 54, and Henry Bush, 44, farm laborers.

Both were slain almost instantly late Saturday at the home of Bush in Hams Creek community where Peterson and his 15-year-old daughter were boarding.

Mrs. Bush, who with Peterson's daughter, was one of the witnesses, said her husband kissed their sleeping infant "good-by" and threatened to kill himself. She said when Peterson "who had never interfered in family trouble" told Bush to "cut it out, I am not going to let you act that way in front of the woman folks," her husband fired his shotgun at a rifle, who shot back with a small rifle.

86,000 Texans Denied Pensions

Figures from the old age assistance administration today showed of 227,110 applications, 86,779 or 38 per cent were refused monthly payments; deaths removed 16,255 and the remainder were pending cases.

TEXAS' APPLICATION FOR ROADS APPROVED

AUSTIN, Sept. 13 (AP)—The federal bureau of public roads today advised the state highway department it had approved Texas' application for addition of 1,800 miles to the federal aid highway system.

The bureau said the addition was granted under the federal law which authorized a one per cent increase in federal mileage when 90 per cent of the previously-designated federal system had been improved to accommodate current traffic requirements.

SCHOOLS NOT TRAINING ONE-THIRD OF PUPILS

FORT WORTH, Sept. 13 (AP)—Practically one-third of the boys and girls of school age in Texas are not being trained regularly in this state's school system, L. A. Woods, state superintendent of public instruction, said as he addressed educational supervisors of CCC camps of the North Texas district.

"There are," Woods said, "1,560,000 boys and girls of scholastic age in Texas. Last year we enrolled 1,330,000 of these and 1,030,000 attended school daily."

Woods said the state educational system should be expanded to include all the people, including adults who desire to learn.

"I think," he continued, "that our penitentiary should be an educational institution. If we could get to those people before they are complete human wrecks, we might save them."

LINE TRUSTED TO HOLD OWN FRIDAY NIGHT

CHILDRESS, Sept. 13 (Special) —Whether Joe Gibson has a running attack capable of weathering a 16 game storm of top-notch position, or just a group of ambitious youngsters that have looked good in rehearsals will be definitely decided this week-end as the Bobcats break from their 1937 barrier with the Pampa Harvesters.

On the wings as starters will probably be Preston Hendrick, 170-pound reserve of '36, and Vic "Toan" Bates, a 165-pound back who has been transferred to Booth's end position.

Tippling the beam at 175 pounds, Reynolds is a recruit from the reserve list of 1936. His running mate at guard, 165-pound Alexander, was "discovered" in spring drills this year.

At least four players are still in the race for the center job, destined to be on of the thin spots in the lineup.

Swafford was an all-district mention last season, and his 160-pounds are expected to carry him far this year.

Lipscomb May Meet His Waterloo Here Tonight

Europe and Asia aren't the only continents where the war clouds threaten. It was dark over Pampa today preceding hostilities at the Pampa Athletic Center when Roughhouse Buck Lipscomb, Hoosier-Holshut, tangles with Abbie Freeman, high ranking New York middleweight, in the main event at Cliff Chambers' weekly wrestling meeting.

Fresh from a defeat at the hands of Frank Wolff last Thursday, the Indiana roughneck is scheduled to be a wild man tonight. It was his first loss in the Panhandle, excepting from disqualification, which has been often.

Cordell is a 120-pound slick-hipped midweight who is the lone regular back returning from last fall's squad. Booth, who was a 200-pound end in '36, and both Hamilton and Andrews, 165-pounders, are new to the starting eleven.

Budge Promises Not To Turn Pro, Despite $100,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—The long, cruel tennis war has ended, Donald Budge has the national championship trophy, and there's nothing to do but worry for the next 12 months or so.

The worrying will be about evenly divided between Budge, who is now a very austere young man, and officials of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, who put a pile of money in the treasury the past 10 days because Budge was playing in their show.

When Budge won that fifth and final set from Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany last Saturday afternoon, adding the American championship to his "world" title won at Wimbledon, he played himself, so speak, into a very large sum of currency.

Budge is gambling this fortune that he can play another year of amateur tennis without being beaten and without being seriously injured.

Madman's Island

BY NARD JONES

Copyright 1937 NEA Service, Inc.

Chapter XVI
 "Yes," the man went on, "it is true. Two years ago I escaped—and for at least five years before that I had been making my plans. Plans for escape from prison, and plans for revenge upon the woman who had desecrated my teachings and caused my misery."

Kay and Grant were speechless. True, as the madman's story progressed they had become more and more certain that he must be DeWitt Montgomery. Yet the shock of his confession, and his frightening pride in it, had struck them with a terrible impact. Harper's manner changed instantly, for he realized now that there would be small chance to humor a man so obsessed.

"You may imagine my disappointment," Montgomery went on, apparently oblivious to their new attitude, "when I discovered, after my escape, that the woman I sought was already dead. But I am a man of resourcefulness. There are many ways in which to revenge oneself. 'But I am boring you with my personal feelings, and that is not the way of a good heart. If you have rested sufficiently, I should like to show you the rest of my poor home.'"

Almost imperceptibly, Harper nodded toward Kay. All during Montgomery's story he had been studying this room while he listened, and he was convinced there was no escape from it. Perhaps in the movement from one room to another he would have an opportunity to better his position, catch Montgomery off guard.

"Here is the library of which I spoke," Montgomery swung open a paneled door, revealed a square room whose walls were lined with old volumes. The smell of book cloth and paste, there in that slightly damp atmosphere, drifted heavily to Kay and Harper. "Please go in," the man said. "I will let you browse a bit, for you must excuse me once again."

Before they could reply the door shut swiftly. Wordless, the two faced each other. This room was more of a prison than the last. With a little cry, Kay Dearborn ran to Harper's arms.

"I'm afraid," she whispered. "He's going to kill us. I can see it in his eyes."

Grant Harper gripped her shoulders. "Steady, Kay. Nothing has happened to us yet, and I still hope that if we show enough interest in this fellow, feed his ego a little, he may forget his intentions."

"But why did he leave us? Where is he now?"

Harper smiled down at her. "At least while he's gone, we're safe." He walked to one of the walls of books, ran his hand over a row of titles. "Obviously, the man was well educated. Probably when he first came to the island his mind was balanced, then the loneliness released some hidden spring and he got off on this idea of a new religion. Then the prison, and his obsession for revenge, aggravated his condition."

"I can't think he was very well balanced if he wanted to live underground like this."

"I don't know. There've been lots of cases where men have built strange living quarters which the average man would think eccentric. The curious thing to me is that newer cabin above ground—where your friends tell me you found that woman. I wonder why he built that? It's possible that—"

Harper stopped suddenly, glanced toward the ceiling. "Kay! Wouldn't that cabin be almost above here?"

"Why—why it could be! And that would explain how she disappeared."

"You're quite sure she was dead?"

Kay nodded. "I'm sure of it..." She shuddered, moving closer to him. "He must have taken the body down here somewhere while we were on the 'Chinook.'" grabbed her wrist. "It may be Montgomery. If it is, we don't want to know we think there's anything beyond this wall. Can you hear it?"

Kay listened. Unmistakably there was someone moving in a space beyond. Once she thought she heard a low voice, almost like a groan, but she couldn't be sure that her ears were accurate so anxious was she to discover a way out of their seemingly hopeless dilemma.

Fascinated, she watched Grant Harper remove one of the books, carefully test the partition beyond. "Try to signal," she begged.

Harper shook his head. "It's too dangerous. If—"

The door at the far end of the room opened, and DeWitt Montgomery stood watching them.

"Have you found a volume which interests you?" he inquired, smiling.

Harper faced those wide, mad eyes. "Every one I've picked up interests me," he said evenly.

"Perhaps I shall let you spend some time here. It has been many years since I have shared my library." He came to the center of the room, leaned indolently against the table. "But first I want to finish my little story—about DeWitt Montgomery."

"Of course."

"As I write, I was greatly disappointed when I found that my betrayer was dead when I escaped from prison. But I discovered that she had a daughter. That was when I returned to the island here with the daughter's address carefully kept against the time I would use it. I built the little cabin which you see above. Then I wrote, saying that I was an old friend of her mother's and wanted most eagerly to do something for her. I wrote her that all I possessed was a beautiful little island on which was a cabin. I told her that I was old now and wanted her to have the place." Montgomery chuckled at the memory. "You see, I could depend upon the fact that her mother would have been secretive about her own visit here."

"And this girl," urged Harper. "Did she accept the gift?"

"Indeed. As I knew she would, I even sent her the money with which to come."

At this revelation Kay Dearborn stood trembling. In a horrible flash of recollection she saw that inert figure in the cabin. She could restrain herself no longer in the presence of this mad monster.

"Then she was the woman you killed!" she screamed. "I saw her—there in the cabin!"

Montgomery's face grew suddenly livid. Impelled by blind anger he rushed at her, and was stopped by the impact of Harper's fist.

ARMY MANEUVERS EXPECTED TO PROVE NEW THEORIES OF WAR

FORT SAM HOUSTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Uncle Sam's army at this historic old San Antonio fort stripped along on the double quick today, getting ready to test its transition from lumbering, battering ram to a lightning fast trip hammer.

Starting Sept. 15, 12,000 officers and enlisted men from three corps areas will concentrate at Camp Bullis, 20 miles from here, for experimental maneuvers.

the rifle in the hands of a good American marksman is the deadliest of weapons.

The maneuvers will be divided into four phases, the first of which contemplate familiarizing the troops with the new technique of annihilating the enemy. In the third phase the 12,000 soldiers will be combined as a unit at Camp Bullis where the division will operate as a part of an assumed army corps.

On November 8 the division will leave Bullis for Mineral Wells, deploying on a wide front in three separate columns using three different roads nets.

Major General James K. Parsons, Second Division and Fort Sam Houston commander who will direct the test division, rated the maneuvers as "the most important peace time project that the United States army has ever attempted."

ORDINANCE NO. 182
An ordinance making it unlawful to park or leave standing any motor or other vehicle upon premises of another without consent of the owner or occupant of such premises; prescribing the penalty for violation of this ordinance, and declaring an emergency.
BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY OF PAMPA, TEXAS:
Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to park or leave standing any motor or other vehicle upon property and premises belonging to another within the City of Pampa, without the consent or permission of the owner or occupant of such property or premises upon which such motor or other vehicle may be parked or left standing.
Section 2. Any person who shall violate this ordinance shall be punished upon conviction thereof by a fine of not less than Five nor more than Two Hundred dollars.
Emergency: The fact that the City of Pampa now has no ordinance regulating or prohibiting the parking of vehicles upon premises of another, and the fact that in the business district of the city and especially adjoining the alley-ways of said city vacant lots and premises owned and occupied by the merchants of the city are now being used by other persons for the purpose of parking and leaving stand automobiles and other vehicles and such practice prevents such merchants and other property owners and occupants from having free access and use of their said premises at all times, and the further fact that such practice and condition creates an unsafe and hazardous condition for the people lawfully using such premises, alley-ways and streets, especially in the event of fire, creates an emergency, and the law requiring ordinances to be read upon three several days before final passage is hereby suspended, and this ordinance shall become effective and in full force immediately after its passage and publication.
W. A. BRATTON, Mayor.
ATTEST: W. M. CRAVEN, City Secretary (Sept. 9 to 30, inclusive).

BEES
GIVE THE HONEY-CONSUMING PUBLIC! THEY FILL THE TOP OF EACH HONEY CELL WITH A BUBBLE OF AIR, WHICH REFLECTS LIGHT AND GIVES THE HONEY A WHITE, INVITING APPEARANCE.

IN GREAT BRITAIN, DURING THE WORLD WAR, PRIVATE CITIZENS WERE NOT ALLOWED TO KEEP HOMING PIGEONS, FOR FEAR THEY MIGHT BE USED BY SPIES IN SENDING MESSAGES.

OF course, the honey bee does not wittily deceive the public. Little does he care whether or not human honey consumers like his product. Some species of bees omit the air bubble in their honey cells, and a dead, watery look results, which detracts from the appetizing appearance.
