M.K. Brown Foundation grant boosts public radio

The Board of Trustees of the M. K. Brown Foundation, Inc., has approved a grant of $5,000 to High Plains Public Radio.

The award will be used to help construct a new 100,000 watt noncommercial FM transmitter which will extend the broadcast area of the radio station into the northeast Texas Panhandle area.

The grant from the Pampa-based foundation will be used on the purchase of the required broadcast equipment, including construction of an 800-foot tower to be located approximately 25 miles south and west of Perryton.

The project has a total budget of $712,000 and more than 95 percent of that total has been raised. Six area committees located in Spearman, Perryton, Canadian, Miami, Pampa and Borger have been engaged in a capital campaign that began in mid-January. The M.K. Brown

The award will be used to help construct a new 100,000 watt noncommercial FM transmitter which will extend the broadcast area of the radio station into the northeast Texas Panhandle area.

Foundation gift will assist the groups in meeting a projected timeline of providing on-air service by early 2002. Bid preparation for the tower construction is already under way.

The capital campaign committees are requesting funds from individuals and businesses, as well as other local foundation and corporate sources.

Future plans topic of city meet

By KATE B. DICKSON

An in-depth look at the city's five-year capital improvement plan, revenue forecasts and the status of debt will highlight a Pampa City Commission meeting on June 19, said City Manager Bob Eskridge.

The special meeting, open to the public, will begin at 9 a.m. in the Lovett Memorial Library auditorium. It's expected to last until early afternoon.

"The purpose of the meeting is to plan what our needs are going to be down the road," Eskridge said of the annual meeting.

The city separates its capital spending from operations costs and has a list of needs in hand as submitted by department heads, Eskridge said.

There is some city debt that will be paid off in budget year 2002-03 which Eskridge says opens the question, "Are we going to take on more debt, are we going to put that money into operations or are we going to lower the tax rate?"

The latter seems unlikely as Eskridge said the city will have to issue bonds to pay for mandated water plant improvements. And there's been discussion the bond amount might be hiked in order to provide money for street repairs.

Program teaches pupils vital water facts

AMARILLO — Bart Wyatt knows almost every fifth grader in the eight counties surrounding Pampa.

Wyatt, a native of Lipscomb County and Mayor pro tem in White Deer, is in charge of the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District's education program.

The water conservation district covers all or parts of Gray, Carson, Potter, Roberts, Wheeler, Donley, Armstrong and Hutchinson Counties.

Speaking to the combined Groundwater Management District Association and Texas Alliance of Groundwater Districts conference in Amarillo this week, Wyatt outlined the education program that the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District put in place two years ago.

Working through fifth grade teachers or class coordinators, the program targets fifth graders through the district.

The first year, Wyatt spoke at all of the 21 schools that were then in the district, addressing 631 students over the school year.

Since that time, Amarillo has joined the district, more than doubling the number of schools and fifth grade students.

There are now 46 schools on his calendar to visit and 1,300 more fifth grade students. Still, Wyatt travels from school to school during the academic year, telling fifth graders how the human body is 70 percent water and that 98 percent of the water in the world is not suitable for human consumption.

That helps explain to students, Wyatt said, why water conservation is so important.

He shows the students a map of Texas and points out that while the Big Bend area of West Texas gets only about 10 inches of rain a year, East Texas, along the Louisiana state line gets as much as 50 or 60 inches of rain. The western part of the water district, around Amarillo, gets about 18 inches of precipitation annually while the eastern edge of the Texas Panhandle in Wheeler County gets closer to 21 inches.

Wyatt also explains to them about underground aquifers which are so important in the Texas Panhandle. Of the three aquifers in the water district Whitehorse, Dockum and Ogallala, the two smaller ones, Whitehorse and Dockum, tend to be high in mineral content. The Ogallala, he explains, is the most important to this region.

Taking its name from a tribe of Native Americans, Wyatt tells the students, the Ogallala Aquifer stretches a thousand miles from Texas to the Dakotas, providing water for agriculture, towns and industry throughout the Great Plains.

He also explains that on the average 35 percent of the water used in the home today goes to water the lawn, 20 percent goes to taking a bath or shower and 25 percent goes, literally, down the toilet.

A simple thing like turning off the water while brushing teeth will help conserve water, he says.

City clean-up at busy pace

Housing demo, loan-a-truck, Cash for Trash day all a part

Keeping Pampa clean is a major objective of the City of Pampa and its employees. And it is in full-swing.

"We have the most aggressive clean-up effort of any of the towns in the Texas Panhandle," said Danny Winborne, city building official.

A loan-a-truck program and demolition of properties that have fallen into disrepair are two programs developed to assist residents in cleaning up the community. The city is also preparing for the Second Annual Cash for Trash Buy Back program Saturday, June 16.

City employees from several departments were working together this morning as they took another step to clean up the city. Not only is the aesthetic feature a factor, but also the safety of city employees and animals is a consideration.

Winborne, along with Kim Lincycomb, public service superintendent, were at the site of a structure demolition at 525 Roberta

Officers seek man who fled

Law enforcement officers were searching today for a 20-year-old Pampa man, accusing him of possession a small amount of marijuana and evading arrest.

Pampa police officers said that Lt. Fred Courtney pulled over a car in the 700 block of West Buckler about 3:30 a.m. today.

Officers said a check of the three men in the car indicated that the driver, Kevin Kidd, was wanted on outstanding warrants, charging him with minor in possession of alcohol.

Lt. Courtney had the Kidd get out of the car and as the lieutenant was handcuffing him, officers said Kidd broke away and ran north. He threw something away as he left and officers found what they believe is marijuana.

Pampa officers and county deputies pursued Kidd on foot, but he eluded them, authorities said.

Texas round up

Parolee man wins late reprieve

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death row inmate Mack Oran Hill's last meal really wasn't his last. Hill was munching on a large chef's salad, some bacon, vegetables and fruit Wednesday evening in a cell just outside the Texas death chamber when he got word his execution set for two hours later had been stopped.

"He was happy," Texas Department of Criminal Justice spokesman Larry Todd said. "He wanted to complete eating before officers transferred him back (to death row)."

He was allowed to finish the meal he had selected, then was returned to the Terrell Unit, about 40 miles east of Huntsville and home of death row.

Hill, 47, had filed his own appeal Tuesday in hopes of stopping his punishment for the murder of a business associate 14 years ago in Lubbock.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said Wednesday it was taking no action on Hill's request for a writ of habeas corpus but, in a four-paragraph order, halted the punishment. That put off the execution for at least 30 days.

Officials convene redistricting board

AUSTIN (AP) — The Legislative Redistricting Board has met for the first time in 20 years. Now it's racing to redraw political boundaries before its deadline arrives in 60 days.

No matter which legislative redistricting plan the five-member panel adopts, it likely will end up in court.

"There will be a lawsuit," warned Steve Bickerstaff, a visiting professor at the University of Texas School of Law and a veteran of past redistricting battles.

Acting Lt. Gov. Bill Ratliff, House Speaker Pete Laney, Attorney General John Cornyn, Comptroller Carole Keeton Rylander and Land Commissioner David Dewhurst serve on the board.

Cornyn was elected its chairman at an initial meeting Wednesday.

"I'm very optimistic we can get something done. I don't think we have much choice," Cornyn said. The job of legislative redistricting — done once a decade based on new census figures — landed in the board's lap after the Legislature failed to accomplish the redistricting chore itself this spring.

The U.S. Department of Justice could reject a plan as unfair. A plan could be successfully challenged in court. Or, the board could end up not approving a plan, allowing the courts to take over.

Even when the board was occupied totally by Democrats, the board's votes split 3-2 in approving new legislative boundaries, Bickerstaff said.

Continental plans to trim flights

HOUSTON (AP) — Executives of Continental Airlines, facing a decline in business travel, are cutting back on the frequency of several flights and shifting planes around to save money.

The Houston-based carrier's flight trimming is a reflection of the state of the overall airline industry, which is reacting to a corporate cutback in travel budgets during the economic downturn.

Officials at Continental said Wednesday they will pre-cancel some off-peak weekend flights because of the low number of business travelers. Also, smaller jets will be used for several transcontinental flights to better reflect the number of passengers aboard each plane.

Continental's Anchorage, Alaska, package in the Houston area, which usually runs from June to October, will end a month earlier, the carrier said.

Planes will be diverted by Continental to more popular routes to boost revenue. But the nation's fifth-largest carrier will not be withdrawing from any of its markets and will still make a profit this year, even with the slowdown in business travel that has resulted in a systemwide revenue drop, officials said.

The airline in May reported a drop of about 9 percent to 11 percent in its unit revenue compared to the previous May. Unit revenue is a measure of revenues generated per seat-mile, or each seat flown one mile.

Nude twist in ballooning

CHESNEE, S.C. (AP) — Some hot-air balloonists will be baring it all as they take to the skies over South Carolina.

A nudist colony is holding what organizers say is the nation's first all-nude balloon rally. The balloons will take flight from a secluded pasture on a 50-acre, 170-member private resort.

"There is nothing like being in a balloon nude, where no one can see you and you aren't breaking any laws," said resort member Dave Jones. "Most people think all nudists do is lay out in the sun. We are adventurers who like to have fun."

Weather focus

PAMPA — Today, Partly sunny with highs in the upper 80s. East to southeast winds 10 to 20 mph.

Tonight, mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Lows in the middle 60s. Light and variable winds.

Friday, partly sunny with highs in the middle 80s. Southeast winds 5 to 15 mph.

STATEWIDE — Remnants of Texas' first tropical storm for the season continued moving slowly out of the state Thursday, dumping light to moderate rain as it dissipated.

Tropical Depression Allison, which developed just five days into the six-month 2001 hurricane season, made landfall along Galveston Island with heavy rains and 60-mph winds. Early Thursday, it was located near Centerville as a tropical depression.

Rain continued east of a line from Athens through Fairfield to Rosebud. High water covered Anderson County Roads 303 and 355 near Frankston and Neches, sheriff's officers said.

A flash flood watch was posted for East Texas, the National Weather Service said.

Early-morning temperatures ranged from 61 degrees at Marfa to 84 at Laredo.

Other readings included 69 at New Braunfels, 82 at Del Rio and 77 at Dryden and Wink.

Winds were mostly northeasterly at 5 to 20 mph in far West and North Texas, with stronger gusts at Guadalupe Pass and southeasterly flow in the south, Big Bend, Permian Basin, South Plains and Panhandle.

Isolated to widely scattered showers and thunderstorms were possible near the mountains of Southwest Texas each afternoon through Saturday, with nighttime thunderstorms across the Panhandle.

Storms were also forecast for North Texas, more numerous in the southeast.

Daytime highs through Saturday should be in the 80s and 90s, except for near 100 in South Texas.

Lows overnight will range from the mid-50s across the northwestern Panhandle and mountains to the mid 70s along the Rio Grande.

Talks fail to produce agreements so far

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the airline industry, there's a lot of contract talk going on, but not much agreement.

Labor negotiations between United Airlines and its mechanics union broke up without an agreement Wednesday, but more negotiations were scheduled.

The National Mediation Board said United and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers Lodge 141-M will meet again with federal mediators June 20.

Other disputes also remain unresolved. Pilots for regional carrier Comair have been on strike for more than two months and plan to meet again Friday.

At American Airlines, flight attendants are counting down to a strike as early as June 30 — unless President Bush intervenes. The National Mediation Board has declared an impasse in negotiations, though talks are continuing.

United's mechanics are pressing for an industry-leading contract in light of a four-year agreement approved last month by Northwest's mechanics, which made them the industry's highest-paid with an average pay raise of more than 24 percent.

Parolee indicted in slaying

HOUSTON (AP) — A parolee who had sent threatening letters to his common-law wife while still in federal prison is now accused in her strangulation.

Clyde Graham could face up to life imprisonment if he is convicted in the March 3 death of Cynthia Rolet Williams. Graham, 39, was indicted Wednesday on a murder charge in connection with the woman's death after he was paroled.

After his imprisonment in 1998 for bank robbery, Graham began sending threatening letters to Williams because he thought she was having an affair, said prosecutor Mark Vinson.

Graham was paroled and put on three years probation several months before Williams' death, Vinson said.

Williams, 36, made several complaints to the Harris County District Attorney's Office in January that Graham was harassing her. But the woman never followed through on her complaints against Graham with reports so that prosecutors could charge him, Vinson said.

The victim met Graham at a southeast Houston motel where, according to a police report, the couple argued over money and Williams' "body went limp." Williams' death was ruled a homicide. An autopsy showed that she had been strangled.

Papers: Man offers reason for killing

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The man charged with the murder of a 15-year-old Anthony girl told police he strangled her because she refused to have intercourse with him, according to an arrest affidavit.

Irving Alvin Davis, 18, of Anthony told police that Melissa Medina had consented to intercourse around 1:30 a.m. Monday near Anthony Elementary School but then "told him to stop because she liked someone else," the affidavit said.

Davis, who was arrested Monday evening, said Medina told him not to tell anyone about the incident or she would claim that he sexually assaulted her, according to the affidavit.

Davis said he then "lost it" and then strangled her with his hands until she passed out, and then with her shirt and his belt, he told police. Because Medina scratched him on his neck, Davis said he walked to a friend's house to get gardening clippers and returned to "cut off the tips of her fingernails."

Medina's body was found on Anthony Elementary's baseball field just before 11 a.m. Monday by a school employee. According to the arrest affidavit, Medina was found naked with only her bra around her shoulders. Medina had visible injuries on her face and body.

LONDON (AP) — Kate Grenville won the Orange Prize, Britain's richest award for fiction, for her novel "The Idea of Perfection."

The award, which honors the best novel written by a woman and published in the United Kingdom, carries a $42,300 prize.

Grenville, one of Australia's best-known authors, has written six novels. She began her working life as a film editor but now teaches creative writing in Sydney.

"The Idea of Perfection" is an exquisite, minutely observed study of two people meeting in their middle years, set in an eccentric backwater in New South Wales," Rosie Boycott, head of the judging panel, said at Tuesday's announcement of the award.

Previous winners include Helen Dunmore for "A Spell of Winter," Anne Michaels for "Fugitive Pieces," and Carol Shields for "Larry's Party."

NEW YORK (AP) — After playing several stand-up guys, including FBI agent Dale Cooper on the '90s TV drama "Twin Peaks," Kyle MacLachlan is happy to take a walk on the wild side.

The 42-year-old actor is referring to his role as a villain in the upcoming film "Miranda," co-starring Christina Ricci.

"I'm finally playing Frank Booth," MacLachlan told In Style magazine in its June issue, referring to Dennis Hopper's character — who torments MacLachlan — in the 1986 film "Blue Velvet."

MacLachlan, who plays Kristin Davis' husband in HBO's "Sex and the City," has residences in both Los Angeles and New York.

"The nice thing about New York is that you're finally able to wear those winter clothes that have been sitting around in your closet in mothballs because in L.A., there's such a small window of time for you to use them," MacLachlan said. "Unless you go to Sundance."

NEW YORK (AP) — Lisa Vidal doesn't let herself be stereotyped.

"I have been told I am too Latin" for some parts, Vidal told People magazine in its June 11 issue. "But I can be a doctor, a lawyer and a president."

The 35-year-old Bronx-born actress is San Francisco Police Inspector Magdalena Ramirez on Lifetime's "The Division." Her TV roles also include Dr. Sara Morales on NBC's "Third Watch."

Vidal attended Manhattan's High School of Performing Arts. In 1990, she wed State University of New York classmate Jay Cohen. They have two sons, ages 8 and 3.

She also appeared on "New York Undercover."

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip marked his upcoming 80th birthday with a speech that combined his customary wit with a little wisdom.

"I can only assume that it is largely due to the accumulation of toasts to my health over the years that I am still enjoying a fairly satisfactory state of health and have reached such an unexpectedly great age," he told 500 guests at a lunch Wednesday.

Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, turns 80 on Sunday.

"I imagine there are a few fortunate souls who have managed to get through life without any anxieties, but my experience is that life has its ups and downs," said Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh.

He thanked the city of London for a birthday gift of seven botanical watercolors, and amused guests with some of the flowers' names, including Soapwort, Spanish Catchfly, Swine's Succory and Nipplewort.

"I will spare you the Latin names," he said.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — U2 lead singer Bono urged Harvard University's graduating seniors to do their part to help poor people in Third World countries.

"The debts of the father are now the debts of the sons and the daughters," the Dublin native said Wednesday to a crowd of students, faculty and family members attending pre-commencement festivities.

Bono's connection to Harvard began in 1999 when he contacted economic professor Jeffrey D. Sachs to talk about debt relief for Third World countries. Since then, the two have worked together to promote the cause.

A beaming Sachs sat on the stage behind Bono as he gave the annual Class Day speech.

"Jeffrey Sachs not only let me into his office, he let me into his Rolodex, his head and his life for the last few years and in a sense he let me into your lives here at Harvard," Bono said.

Bono has also enlisted the help of Bobby Shriver, Eunice Kennedy Shriver's son.

"Sachs and I with my friend Bobby Shriver hit the road in some sort of surreal crossover act. A rock star, a Kennedy, a noted economist crisscrossing the globe like the Partridge family on psychotropic drugs," Bono quipped.

Robert E. Rubin, former treasury secretary under President Clinton, was to deliver the commencement address Thursday.

Last year's Class Day speaker was Conan O'Brien, host of NBC's "Late Night" and a 1985 Harvard graduate.

CITY

Wednesday morning. He said after he gets the property for demolition then Lincycumb coordinates the various departments to get it torn down.

Lincycumb said the employees' safety in demolishing the building is a major consideration of the process followed in demolishing a building.

At the Roberta Street location, Lincycumb inspected the structure one last time before the process began today.

Before demolition begins, she said, the structure is inspected by city employees to be sure homeless people are not residing in the building and to verify all utilities have been disconnected.

Sandy Burns, animal control director, checked the exterior of the house for any signs of animals living there. She looked for signs of digging and checked the interior before the actual demolition process began. Finding no animals, she concluded her inspection.

"With this rabies situation this year, we felt it was good to have animal control involved in this program in case any animals which might have rabies are living in these structures," said Lincycumb. "We often find animals living in and around the abandoned, dilapidated structures."

Reving up the bulldozer, Israel Ulloa, City of Pampa employee began the demolition of the building. After Ulloa had taken about eight to 10 swipes with the bulldozer, striking the building, two small kittens ran from the house.

Both Lincycumb and Winborne described Ulloa as extremely skilled in his work. As he drove the bulldozer, he struck the residential structure several times with the heavy equipment.

Burns ran to Ulloa to stop the demolition to attempt a rescue of the kittens. After going to her truck she returned with gloves on, carrying a cage and a snare pole. She began searching the partially standing ruins of the structure for the approximately 6-week old kittens.

The snare poles are often used to handle wild cats and other animals.

The animal control officer retrieved a black and white kitten, but the solid black kitten ran to a neighboring home. The demolition process continued a few more minutes until the house was a pile of rubble.

Winborne said after the demolition is completed a special dumpster is set out by WasteCo for disposal of the house materials. He said the materials are taken to the local landfill.

"We will bring in a huge grinder in a few weeks and grind up the materials to be placed in the landfill," he said. "Landfill space is such a valuable commodity, and the grinding greatly reduces the amount of space needed."

Jointly owned by several area communities, the grinder is stored in Borger, he said. "We (Pampa and several towns) went in together to purchase it and share the use of it," he said.

"During the past 30 months, we have torn down 175 structures in Pampa," he said.

He said some of the structures demolished are properties taken for delinquent taxes, but others are structures which the owners request to be torn down.

"The properties which are donated take much less time to get torn down," he said. "The condemnations take a long process."

He said there are many buildings in Pampa that are structurally sound, but said they have been vandalized to the point that the property owners don't want to spend the money to get them back to a livable condition.

"Our first priority in structural demolition are structures which have burned," he said. "These people have suffered enough trauma so we try to take care of them first."

Next priority are the tax properties and volunteer properties. He said anyone wanting to volunteer structures for demolition should go to Room 202 at City Hall for the forms.

City employees demolished six structures Tuesday.

Winborne said the city's loan-a-truck program is another feature which is available to local residents.

"Often times people do not have a way to transport items to the landfill, so we will set out a city truck for them adjacent to their residence to load their items on to," he said. "We will then come back and drive it to the landfill. It helps a lot of our residents."

He encourages residents to also take advantage of the city recycling project and to bag grass clippings during the summer months.

Anyone wanting to participate in the loan-a-truck program should call the landfill to reserve a truck, he said.

A new program which was very popular in 2000 in its first year was the Cash for Trash Buy Back program. Pampa's Second Annual Cash for Trash program will be held Saturday, June 16. Residents will get money for acceptable items taken to the landfill.

Jim Benton of the sanitation department said appliances containing freon will be accepted that day. "We will have a one-day moratorium in place for the refrigerators, air conditioners and other acceptable items containing freon for that day only," he said. "It's the only day of the year we do it because of the state requirements."

Anyone with questions about the Cash for Trash project should contact Benton or Sanitation Superintendent Rick Stone at 669-5840.

serving water such as watering the yard early in the morning or late in the evening or adding high efficiency shower heads to the shower.

He also explains the imporance of water to agriculture. It takes 136 gallons of water to produce one loaf of bread. Most of that water goes to the grain which is ground up for flour to make the bread.

It takes seven to 10 gallons of water in the processes necessary to produce one gallon of gasoline.

Twenty-two gallons of water are used to produce one gallon of milk.

It takes 280 gallons of water to produce the Sunday newspaper.

"We try to give them a basic understanding of water and the need for water conservation," Wyatt said.

He said fifth grade is a good age to work with. The students are old enough to grasp and understand the concepts he talks about and young enough to be interested.

"They haven't reached junior high yet where they know all the answers," he grinned.

Court discards breath test results unless proven reliable

HOUSTON (AP) — A state appeals court ruling rejecting expert testimony that had been used to convict a San Antonio man of driving while intoxicated could make it harder to use breath test results taken hours after an arrest for proof in such cases.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ruled on Wednesday that evidence against Raul Mata was not reliable.

Judge Michael Keasler, writing for the majority, said the expert did not know factors that could affect Mata's absorption of alcohol such as what he had been drinking or eating that evening, his weight or even how much he weighed.

The ruling concerned a science known as "retrograde extrapolation," the estimation of the blood-alcohol level at the time of driving based on the results of tests administered later.

"Everyone has always suspected and known that extrapolation backwards from a breath test was unreliable," said lawyer George Scharmen, representing Mata. "What this opinion says is, it's not admissible into evidence unless it's first shown to be reliable."

Defense attorneys contended that Mata was not drunk when he was pulled over in 1992 because his body had not yet absorbed the alcohol. But an expert testified at Mata's trial that he was legally intoxicated when he was stopped. Extrapolation evidence is based on a curve created in 1932 by a Swedish chemist to show the rise and fall of blood-alcohol content as a person's body absorbs and eliminates alcohol.

The appeals court sent the case back to the lower court. Lyn McClellan, misdemeanor chief for the Harris County district attorney's office, said he doubted that the opinion would have a big impact on DWI prosecutions.

However, Keasler noted that many states have eliminated any need for retrograde extrapolation. Those states, including California, provide for a legal presumption that an individual is guilty of DWI if his blood-alcohol content at the time of the test is over the legal limit, as long as the test was conducted within a specified time from the driving.

Also, the ruling could result in increased use of portable breath test equipment, allowing officers to perform the exams at the time of arrest, Scharmen said.

Braum's Milk Exceeds the Highest Nutritional Standards Required by any Government Body!

California has the highest milk standards in the nation. Milk sold in California must have higher levels of PROTEIN, CALCIUM and OTHER MINERALS than milk processed under federal standards.

BRAUM'S IS EVEN BETTER!
Braum's Reduced Fat, Lowfat and Fat Free milks exceed even California standards. The result is extraordinarily good taste that will make milk lovers of everyone in your family!

Braum's naturally fortified milk provides these higher nutritional values at prices that are very competitive with less nutritional grocery store milk.

And you can be assured that we do not inject our cows with the hormone that stimulates extra milk production. Braum's, like dairy farmers in Canada and most European countries, does not use this controversial hormone.

'Not Me' is a household pest

Inside the Beltway with
Sen. Hutchison

Nancy Young
 Managing editor

There is a new person living at my home, but we haven't met. I have no idea what this person looks like because I can't see this person. I know they are there because three of my grandchildren talk about this elusive person all the time.

For the past several week-ends Peyton, 6, Christian, 4, and Paige, 3, have been staying with me. I pick them up on Fridays when I leave work and then return them to their Mom Monday morning on my way to work. She works all week-end. (On Monday nights, I crash. But that's another story.)

Often when I ask the children who has gotten out a toy or who didn't put dishes on the cabinet they tell me, "Not Me."

Not Me is a slob. He never puts anything away. According to the children, he never does anything good. He is ill-mannered and is always the person who doesn't follow my rules.

When I asked who took towels into the living room, all three identified the culprit as Not Me. Not Me also left toys in the driveaway Friday evening, and I nearly ran over them when I backed out of the garage.

And do you know that Not Me left stuffed animals strewn all over the children's bedroom? That rude and crude person was also guilty of leaving the bath water in the tub.

Trying to pinpoint a description of Not Me, I asked where he was and what he looked like. In fact, I asked if Not Me is a boy or girl. The children looked at me as if I had gone bananas. I told them I just wanted to meet that "awful person." And do you know what they did, they laughed.

On Sunday as I was moving some items around the house, I found some books which had not been put away. You guessed it. Not Me was the culprit.

As the children were getting ready for bed that night, I told them that I remembered Not Me living with us when their mother was a little girl. Not cracking a smile, I told them that Not Me hadn't learned much since she, her brothers and sister were children.

They watched me very closely, and then began giggling. "Oh, Nana, Not Me isn't a person," she said. With a bewildered look, I asked just who Not Me was.

"Nana, you're silly," said Christian.

The next morning as we were about two miles out of town, I pulled over on the side of the highway to "explain" to Paige the consequences of being a miniature Houdini and escaping from her seat belt.

"Paige, who did this?," I asked. She responded, "I did."

I wonder if Not Me has moved out. I really doubt it, but I'll find out this week-end.

Head-to-head on ag exports

Agriculture is a key element of American success in the global marketplace. The 15-member countries of the European Union represent a market with some 370 million consumers — all potential diners on U.S. beef, rice, dairy products and corn, and potential users of high quality U.S. cotton. The European Union is one of our chief trading partners, and at the same time, a competitor in world markets.

Those facts were at the center of discussions I had recently with EU Agriculture Commissioner Franz Fischler on ways to tear down trade barriers that currently impede the export of certain U.S. products to European markets.

The European Union has, over the last 10 years, imposed significant restrictions on American agricultural products, causing great harm to U.S. producers, even though in several cases the U.S. producers have been successful in fighting these bans as violations of World Trade Organization rules.

Beef represents a case in point: In 1989, the European Union closed its markets to U.S. beef when it was alleged that American cattle were being fed growth hormones that pose a threat to human health. The hormone charge refers to a naturally occurring, growth-promoting hormone that is scientifically proven to contribute to the production of healthy beef products. Since then the European Union has increasingly insulated its own beef industry from competition, despite the fact that in 1996, the World Trade Organization ruled that the EU had failed to make its case against U.S. beef. In May of 1999, the EU missed the deadline for complying with the WTO panel ruling.

In this country, we call that thumbing your nose, so in August, 1999 the United States imposed 100 percent tariffs on $116.8 million worth of imports from the EU. The current crisis caused by outbreaks of "Mad Cow" disease and foot-and-mouth disease in the European Union has made it even more difficult for European consumers to put meat on their tables.

With that history in mind, I made it clear to Commissioner Fischler that trade in agriculture products will be a top U.S. priority at this year's round of WTO negotiations.

Changes we are asking the European Union to make in its agriculture policies include greater market access for U.S. products, the reduction of EU export subsidies, the reining in of state trading enterprises and the elimination of non-tariff trade barriers.

Our discussions were extremely cordial, but I told the commissioner that the United States expects the European Union to comply with the current trade agreements (and specifically with the agreement on beef), and to make substantive progress toward opening its markets to U.S. imports. We want trade equity — and will not settle for less.

Commissioner Fischler understands that trade barriers penalize U.S. producers and European consumers alike, and we agreed to continue to work on mutually beneficial ways to open, rather than close markets. We hope that the constructive dialogue we started in Brussels will continue, bringing both the United States and the EU to a workable and fair trade arrangement.

Today's Birthdays: Movie director James Ivory is 73. Actress Virginia McKenna is 70.

Paris came as a pleasant surprise

One of the ironies of Europe, so awash in egalitarianism at least among the intelligentsia, is that most of what people come to see are leftovers from the days of royalty and aristocracy.

These places are of such a grand scale that even after you get there, you usually find the front door is at least a half a mile from the front gate. You can walk your arches to a fallen state just in the 40 miles of galleries in the Louvre, which was a palace before it was a museum in Paris.

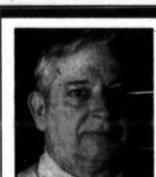

Europe and North America are themselves museums of a once-great Western civilization that today is merely rich and, being merely rich, grows increasingly ugly, as you can see from the high-rises on the outskirts of London and Paris.

It would be no surprise to say that I like Paris. Americans have liked Paris since Ernie Hemingway strangled pigeons in the public parks for something to eat in his lean days. I didn't expect to like Paris, being so partial to London, but I did. Paris is a more relaxed city than London, where everyone walks at a gallop. Parisians seem to have discovered that life is more important than work.

There were two things I couldn't find, however, in the French capital. One was bad food. No matter how small the joint, the food was good. The other item I couldn't find was the proverbial rude Frenchmen. They must have been on holiday, because all of the French people I came into contact with were universally courteous and helpful. Even demonstrators and pickpockets will give you a smile and a hi sign.

Where but in Paris could you go to a museum and see a big sign that states, "Employees on Strike. Admission free"? And how many times have you ever seen people on a picket line playing the guitar and singing?

There are advantages not to know the language spoken in a place you visit. If you don't understand what they're saying, even the most mundane conversation sounds exotic and romantic. I remember from my Tae-kwon-do days a certain Korean word the sense would shout at the beginning of an exercise. He shouted it so forcefully, I thought, it must indeed be a very special word. How disappointed I was when I learned it was simply Korean for the number one.

Language naturally isn't a problem in London, where the people speak English, provided they speak at all. Londoners are not the most talkative people, especially when walking at a run — conserving their breath, I suppose. The morning flood of commuters into the city and the evening ebb tide of commuters heading back to their suburban homes are something to see. The flow is swift and determined in both directions.

The European press appears as determinedly superficial and leftist as its American counterparts. The Europeans don't waste a lot of ink or airtime on America except to report on the Dow Jones and to criticize George Bush for abandoning the global warming treaty they themselves have not ratified.

Americans shouldn't expect a break from Europeans. They have this mixed-feelings thing about us: contempt but a desperate fear we'll abandon them and return to an isolationist policy. If only they knew how far from that wonderful goal we actually are. There simply are too many business ties that cross the Atlantic.

I would be only too happy for an isolationist policy, but I fear that global communications have made that impossible. Not only do all teenagers look alike, no matter where they are from, but they act alike and dress alike. Even the graffiti and litter have a global sameness to them.

Europe is practically all socialist, and Europeans appear to like it that way. The British elections, which just started, seem remarkably similar to ours. The parties are arguing about who can run the best welfare state with the least offense to big business or at least to big money.

The British press recently went into a frenzy when the deputy prime minister socked a guy who had hit him with an egg. The deputy was called "thuggish," and some papers demanded his resignation. The incident was referred to as an intolerable example of election violence.

Well, an egg and a punch may mean election violence in the United Kingdom, but in the United States, any politician who hears a loud noise and gets hit with only an egg would say a prayer of thanksgiving.

The British shock over the one-egg, one-punch incident reminds me of my dad. He would never see a British movie. He said they never do anything in those movies except talk. He meant there weren't enough fistfights and gunfights to suit him. A cultural thing — really. When I worked in London at UPT's photo agency, whenever a photo was deemed too gory for the British press, the boss always said, "Send it to America."

Well, if you've been looking for wisdom in all of this, you have, in the words of the late Georgia Gov. Marvin Griffin, "Done come to the hen house looking for wool." This is jet lag.

Parents Pledge to Let Children In Sports Take Back the Field

DEAR ABBY: Youth sporting events are supposed to be fun. Unfortunately, many parents and fans of amateur sports don't realize that their actions, whether verbal or nonverbal, have a lasting, emotional effect on children.

The National Youth Sports Safety Foundation (NYSSF) is aware of the harmful effects of emotional abuse on children in sports and has come up with a Code of Conduct. It is available on our Web site: www.nyssf.org. Abby, would you please print it so every parent and coach in the country will see it?

MICHELLE KLEIN,
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, NYSSF

DEAR MICHELLE: I'm pleased to share your Code of Conduct with my readers. Speaking as someone who's old enough to remember when youth sports were supposed to be fun for the kids instead of emotional outlets for their parents, I hope the code will be taken to heart. Read on:

CODE OF CONDUCT FOR CHILDREN'S SPORTING EVENTS

- (1) I will not force my child to participate in sports.
- (2) I will remember that children participate to have fun, and that the game is for youth, not adults.
- (3) I will inform the coach of any physical disability or ailment that may affect the safety of my child or the safety of others.
- (4) I will learn the rules of the game and the policies of the league.
- (5) I (and my guests) will be positive role models for my child, and encourage sportsmanship by showing respect and courtesy — and by demonstrating positive support for all players, coaches, officials and spectators at every game, practice or other sporting event.

(6) I (and my guests) will not engage in any unsportsmanlike conduct with any official, coach, player or parent, such as booing and taunting, refusing to shake hands, or using profane language or gestures.

(7) I will not encourage any behaviors or practices that would endanger the health and well-being of the athletes.

(8) I will teach my child to play by the rules and to resolve conflicts without resorting to hostility or violence.

(9) I will demand that my child treat other players, coaches, officials and spectators with respect regardless of race, creed, color, sex or ability.

(10) I will teach my child that doing one's best is more important than winning, so that my child will never feel defeated by the outcome of a game or his/her performance.

(11) I will praise my child for competing fairly and trying hard, and make my child feel like a winner every time.

(12) I will never ridicule or yell at my child or other participant for making a mistake or losing a competition.

(13) I will emphasize skill development and practices, and how they benefit my child, over winning. I will also de-emphasize games and competition in the lower age groups.

(14) I will promote the emotional and physical well-being of the athletes ahead of any personal desire I may have for my child to win.

(15) I will respect the officials and their authority during games and will never question, discuss or confront coaches at the game field, and will take time to speak with coaches at an agreed-upon time and place.

(16) I will demand a sports environment for my child that is free from drugs, tobacco and alcohol, and I will refrain from their use at all sports events.

(17) I will refrain from coaching my child or other players during games and practices unless I am an official coach.

Dear Abby is written by Pauline Phillips and daughter Jeanne Phillips.

Camp registration is Monday, beginning at 8:30 a.m. for ages 6 through 12, and 12:30 for ages 13 through high school seniors. Cost is $50 per camper.

Camp times are from 9 a.m. to 12 noon for ages 6 through 12, and 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. for ages 13 through school seniors.

For more information, Simmons can be contacted at 274-5311 or 1-800-682-2056, ext. 778.

RODEO

AMARILLO — The Tri-State High School Rodeo Finals get under way tonight, starting at 7:30 in the Amarillo National Center. Friday and Saturday the competition begins at 10 a.m. The top 15 participants during the season in each event advance to the three-day finals.

Three Pampa cowboys will be competing, including Cody Douglass, Levi Travathan and Cody Atwood. Travathan was second in bull riding in the season standings. Douglass was third in barebacks and Atkins was fourth in bull riding.

Pampa's Kaily Richardson, who competes for the Texas Panhandle Rodeo Association, is third in the all-around standings with 356 points.

Also competing is B. J. Shipp of Wheeler, who was fourth in barebacks.

Julie Dawson, representing the Canadian Rodeo Club, is the leader in breakaway roping.

HORSE RACING

NEW YORK (AP) — Preakness winner Point Given will try to become the first Belmont favorite to win since his sire, Thunder Gulch, did it in 1995.

To do it, he will have to beat eight other 3-year-olds, including Monarchos, the Kentucky Derby winner, who was sixth in the Preakness and is the early second choice at 5-2. A P Valentine is the third pick at 5-1.

Others entered for the 1 1/2-mile Belmont were Dollar Bill, Invisible Ink, Thunder Blitz, Balto Star, Buckle Down Ben and Dr Greenfield.

Point Given will start from the outside post. A P Valentine will start inside Point Given, with Invisible Ink on the rail and Monarchos in the fifth spot.

Flashback

1964: Ikey Earp, competing in the Harvester Women's Bowling League, had high series (573) and high game (254).

Dennis Huntley had high series (590) and high game (242) in the Civic Men's League.

Iverson leads 76ers to OT win over Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now, the Philadelphia 76ers can talk sweep.

If they dare. "We might have shocked a lot of people. I don't think we shocked ourselves," Tyrone Hill said after the Allen Iverson-led 76ers beat the Los Angeles Lakers 107-101 in overtime Wednesday night in Game 1 of the NBA Finals.

It appeared the Lakers would extend their winning streak to 20 when they scored the first five points of overtime, but the 76ers scored 13 of the game's final 15 points, including seven straight by Iverson.

"You get down five in the finals against the Lakers and everybody's got their brooms out," Iverson said. "That drives us."

"Anybody that bet on it, some broke people out there. Some people got their feelings hurt. I'm glad nobody bet their life on it, because they definitely would be dead right now."

Clearly relishing his first appearance in the finals, Iverson was incredible for the first 2 1/2 quarters, scoring 38 points as the 76ers took a 73-58 lead.

The Lakers inserted seldom-used Tyrone Lue at that point — a player who imitated Iverson in practice earlier in the week all the way to wearing a bogus protective sleeve on his right arm.

Guarded by the speedy Lue most of the rest of the way, Iverson scored only three points until his flurry in overtime gave the 76ers a 103-99 lead with 48.2 seconds left and, as it turned out, enough points for the victory.

"We're one up, the sweep isn't going to happen and we just have to do whatever we can to stay in it," said 76ers coach Larry Brown, in the finals for the first time in his 18-year NBA coaching career.

Game 2 will be played Friday night at Staples Center before the best-of-seven series moves to Philadelphia for Games 3, 4 and 5.

The Lakers entered the finals as overwhelming favorites, and it was nearly even money in some gambling establishments that they'd sweep.

And why not? They hadn't lost since April 1, winning 19 straight games including 11 to begin the playoffs, inspiring many to call them one of the best teams in NBA history.

That still might be the case; remember the 1991 finals, when the Lakers won Game 1 in Chicago before the Bulls won four straight for the first of their six championships in the 1990s?

Lakers coach Phil Jackson certainly does, having coached the Bulls to those six titles, but that's certainly the furthest thing from his mind right now.

"Yeah, the streak was great, and now it's time to get back to business about playing ball here in this series," Jackson said. "I'm kind of relieved it's over in some ways."

The raucous Staples Center crowd began chanting "SWEEP, SWEEP" even before Game 1 began, and the Lakers looked the part by scoring 16 straight points early on for an 18-5 lead.

The 76ers obviously weren't fazed, closing within one point by the end of the quarter and taking a 56-50 halftime lead.

The Lakers took their only lead of the fourth quarter on a dunk by Shaquille O'Neal with 1:57 left, but Snow scored the final points of regulation 19 seconds later.

So the Lakers won't become the first team ever to sweep through the playoffs.

"It's time to create another streak," said O'Neal, who had 44 points and 20 rebounds in a losing cause. "They played great. They hit a lot of shots, Iverson had a great game, a great performance."

One of the game's biggest plays occurred with 2:40 left in overtime and the Lakers leading 99-94, when Robert Horry was called for an offensive foul after a steal.

"I can't afford the fine. I don't want to talk about it," he said. "It'll be a true test now. We hadn't lost a game." The Lakers' backcourt of Kobe Bryant and Derek Fisher was terrific in the previous 11 playoff games, but ineffective against the 76ers.

Bryant, averaging 31.6 points in the postseason, shot 7-for-22, scored 15 points and committed six turnovers. Fisher, averaging 15.1, was held scoreless, missing four shots.

And neither was nearly as effective as Lue in defending Iverson.

"I don't think Kobe Bryant had a Kobe kind of day, and he will play better Friday," Snow said.

Mon Corp victorious in 7-8 game

PAMPA — Mon Corp played an outstanding defensive game Wednesday night, holding J & M to two runs in five innings during an 11-2 win in the Optimist 7-8 Pitching Machine League.

Latigo Collins led off the first inning for Mon Corp with a single. Cole Engle then drove Collins home on a hard-hit double and Chris Smith followed with a single.

Caanan Rhoads' single plated Engle and sent Smith to third. A single by Tyler Coats brought home Smith to make the score 3-0.

In the bottom of the first before Miller and Engle combined for one out and center fielder Caanan Rhoads made the play of the game with an unassisted triple play.

Mon Corp scored three more runs in the top of the second when Garrett Sewell, Corban Rhoads and Brennan Dickinson each crossed the plate, making the score 6-1.

Mon Corp shut out J & M in the second and third innings with good defensive play from pitcher Reid Miller, first baseman Cole Engle and third baseman Ian Smith.

in the third with Miller, Caanan Rhoads and Coats each crossing the plate.

Mon Corp added another run in the top of the fourth when Miller plated Collins.

J & M loaded the bases with one out in the bottom of the fourth, but the Mon Corp defense stepped up and allowed only one run to cross the plate.

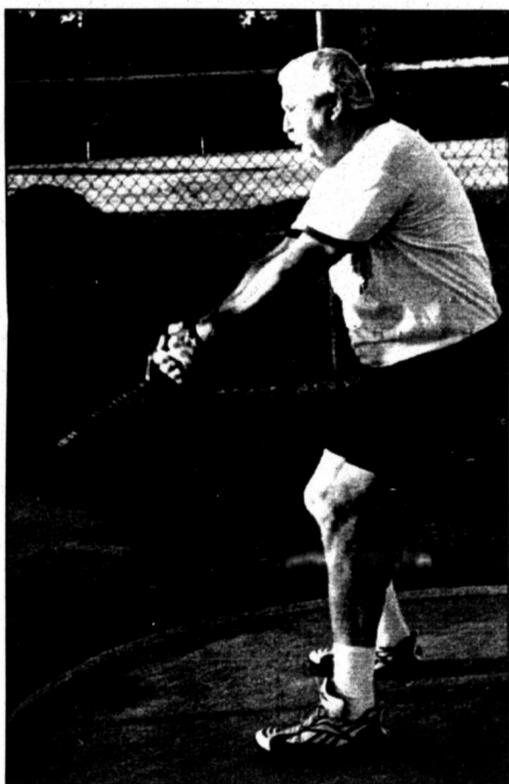

Mon Corp padded its lead a little more with one run in the top of the fifth when Dickinson plated Ian Smith.

The game ended on a hard-hit liner to Engle for the third out.

J & M could score only one run

Rockies slip by Astros

DENVER (AP) — No matter how much the Houston Astros insulted Brian Bohanon for his lack of velocity, the Colorado Rockies left-hander got the last laugh.

Bohanon pitched six strong innings before the Rockies held on for a 9-8 victory over the Astros on Wednesday night. Ben Petrick homered twice and drove in three runs as the Rockies won their fourth straight.

Bohanon (3-4), winning his second straight start since coming off the disabled list (inflamed elbow), departed after walking the leadoff batter in the seventh. He allowed two runs and six hits.

"My velocity isn't as hard as it was in the spring, but I'm more effective now, because I'm able to throw the curveball and change-up when I want to," Bohanon said. "I can keep them off-balance."

Bohanon did it with 78 mph fastballs and 64 mph curveballs.

Houston manager Larry Dierker called it "the slowest pitching I have ever seen in this league. Knuckleball pitchers, when they throw their fastballs, throw faster than that. The fact that he can even stay in the park is amazing.

"We had chances to put him away early, but we never hit the ball hard off him. We were feeble against him. I don't know the secret. I'd like to pass it on to all our pitchers."

Bohanon shrugged off Dierker's remarks.

"I don't care how hard you throw, it's a matter of timing," he said.

Astros slugger Jeff Bagwell said Bohanon "jammed us a lot. He had a 64 mph curveball, and we couldn't put solid wood on it. He was pitching at a different speed, but it was effective."

Petrick, meanwhile, provided Bohanon with run support, helping the Rockies build a 9-2 lead before the Astros made it interesting with a five-run eighth inning.

Just six weeks ago, Petrick was hitting a meager .111. He is 14-for-38 (.368) with four doubles, a triple, three homers and 11 RBIs. Twelve of his last 18 hits have gone for extra bases. He's now hitting .237.

Camp Alpie seeking campers

Camp Alpie, an overnight summer camp for children with cancer and cancer survivors, is currently accepting reservations. The camp will be held Aug. 5-10 at Ceta Canyon Methodist Camp south of Amarillo near Canyon. Youth ages 7-14 who have cancer or who have had cancer are welcome to attend along with a sibling.

Established in 1988, Camp Alpie offers all the normal activities of summer camp including indoor and outdoor sports and recreation, arts and crafts, swimming and much more. The camp provides special facilities, diets and trained staff to accommodate the needs of cancer patients.

The parents of participating campers also receive a much-needed dose of relaxation and fun as they attend a free, concurrent parents' camp. While the children enjoy the outdoors, parents spend a week at an Amarillo hotel being treated to a variety of diversions such as special dinners and visits to area attractions.

"We plan Camp Alpie and Parent's Camp to give everyone in the family a break," says Camp Alpie President Robin Johnson. "This fun has a serious purpose in that it helps redirect attention back to the family. It's important for families to establish a quality of life that can be maintained through the time of treatment and beyond."

Because of laws governing the confidentiality of cancer patients, Camp Alpie cannot contact eligible campers without their permission. Parents of eligible campers are urged to contact Camp Alpie by writing to P.O. Box 3819, Amarillo, TX 79116-3819. Pre-registration is encouraged prior to June 30.

Camp Alpie staff members are volunteers and nearly all parent's camp activities are donated. Camp counselors are high school graduates and most are in college. They work on a volunteer basis and some are even cancer survivors themselves.

Camp Alpie is free to campers, thanks to individual, business and civic sponsors who underwrite expenses. Sponsoring a camper costs $250.

Cancer sponsorships and activity sponsorships remain available. For more information, contact Susan Bentley at (806) 359-4586 or Norman Stuppi at (806) 353-8941.

AISE recruiting host families

Host families for international high school students are being sought by American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE), a nonprofit, educational foundation, for the 2001/02 school year. Select your student now and begin your relationship with an international teenager.

AISE is committed to the belief that education and understanding are the keys to fostering world peace. This begins when you invite an exchange student to live in your home.

Host families provide a room and food for their student and a loving, supportive atmosphere where the student can discover American traditions and experience cross-cultural understanding. Students arrive in August, speak English, attend the neighborhood high school, and have their own medical insurance and spending money.

For information or to begin the process of selecting your student, call 1-800-SIBLING or visit the AISE website at www.aise.com to learn about the benefits of hosting an exchange student in your home.
