TEXAS SENATE PASSES RACE REPEAL LAW

SENATORS VOTE 18 TO 13 AGAINST GAMBLING

AUSTIN, June 3 (AP)—The Texas Senate voted today 18 to 13 to repeal the law which four years ago legalized the pari-mutuel system of wagering on horse racing in this state.

Because the House of Representatives had previously approved repeal of the statute, 115 to 21, legalized betting on the ponies apparently was doomed.

The bill was identical to that passed by the House but since it bore a Senate number had to return to the lower legislative branch for action on it. The House was in adjournment until tomorrow.

Should the House pass the bill—and anti-repeal leaders conceded it would—the long controversy over killing the law enacted in 1933 would be over. The only question was how big a majority the bill would again command in the House.

Because the bill failed to obtain a two-thirds majority in the Senate, it would not become effective until 90 days after this session of the legislature ended.

Had it obtained such a majority in both Senate and House, it would have been effective immediately on signature by Governor James V. Allred.

DUKE THANKS ALL WHO WISHED HIM HAPPINESS

MONTS, France, June 3 (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor voiced their hope today for a "happy and useful private life" after the "trying time" of Edward's abdication preceding their marriage.

The duke in a statement addressed to "the public" thanked all who had wished him and his beloved Wallis happiness.

He said: "The duchess and I wish to thank all those who have so kindly sent presents and good wishes on the occasion of our marriage."

"We shall never forget their friendly messages which mean so much to us today. After the trying time, we have been through we now look forward to a happy and useful private life and to that measure of peace which we hope will be granted to us."

In another statement to the press, the duke thanked newspapermen for their treatment of him and the duchess. He appealed for "the privacy they feel now is their due," and promised that he would not withdraw into seclusion.

RAINFALL YESTERDAY AMOUNTED TO .92 INCH

Pampa's two-day rainfall total reached 92 inch with yesterday afternoon's precipitation, according to the figures registered on the Daily NEWS government rainfall gauge.

A cloudy sky threatened additional rain this afternoon, but by noon today the sun was peeping through occasionally and indications were that the day would be free of moisture.

The weather forecaster said nothing of more rain, predicting only that it would be cloudy tonight.

COATS AND BLANKETS FOR RODEO ADVISED

Indications of cool weather tonight, caused Fiesta officials to prompt rodeo fans to wear top coats or take blankets with them into the stands at the night performances.

Ordinarily cool, anyway, Top O' Texas nights call for more than daytime attire at outdoor events. It was pointed out.

I Heard . . .

The put-put of a motor boat on city lake last night and thought the rain had affected this corner with a strange malady. It hadn't because Sam Thomas, longtime Pampa resident, had a little boat with an outboard motor, on the lake which is filling rapidly. Mr. Thomas made the boat in his workshop. It is 14 feet long and powered with a Johnson outboard motor bought at a Pampa hardware store. Mr. Thomas has already started work on a row boat.

Three indictments against four persons were returned by the Gray county grand jury yesterday afternoon, following three days of investigation.

The jury then adjourned until Saturday morning. Gordon Camper and Ernest Bales were indicted jointly as accomplices to forgery and for passing a forged instrument.

The indictment charges that the two men influenced Bales' young wife, Myrtle Bales to pass a bogus check on Levine's store here for $15.74.

S. F. Eshelman, Pampa, was indicted for driving an automobile on the public highway while intoxicated. An indictment was returned against W. O. Davis for forgery and passing a forged instrument. He is accused of forging the name of Dick Walker to a check for $35.

Phillips Employee Injured in Wreck

Harry Anderson, employe of the Phillips Petroleum company, received head bruises and suffered shock when the car he was driving crashed into an embankment near Keller-ville early this morning. He was taken to Pampa-Jarratt hospital in a local ambulance.

Unless complications set in, he will be dismissed from the hospital soon, attending physicians said at noon.

Anderson said he was driving toward Keller-ville when he heard something snap under the car which left the road, hitting an embankment on one side and then careening across to the other side of the road.

Violence Subsides In Jersey, Ohio

(By the Associated Press) Sporadic outbreaks of violence in New Jersey and Ohio subsided quickly today as leaders on both sides of labor controversies conferred on new peace moves.

Pickets surrounded a Little Falls, N. J., laundry where a strike was in progress, and stopped delivery trucks after they emerged from the protective cordon of state police and sheriff's deputies. One driver was cut by flying glass.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked Congress today to set up seven "regional authorities" to administer federal power projects and to plan safeguards against floods, droughts and dust storms.

A comprehensive program for the seven "little TVA's" was outlined in a special message.

It said the hydro-electric projects which have been or may be undertaken were a part of a "multiple purpose watershed development" designed not only to guard against nature's calamities but to prevent their recurrence.

"The water-power resources of the nation must be protected from private monopoly and used for the benefit of the people," the President said in what was expected to be his last major legislative recommendation for this session.

Bills were ready for introduction in both houses to carry out his suggestions.

The seven regional authorities or agencies would plan and in some cases administer projects in the following areas:

- 1—Atlantic Seaboard.
- 2—Great Lakes and Ohio Valley.
- 3—Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers' drainage basin.
- 4—Missouri and Red River of the north drainage basins.
- 5—Arkansas, Red and Rio Grande drainage basins.
- 6—Colorado and rivers flowing into the Pacific south of the California-Oregon line.
- 7—Columbia river basin.

Would Serve Economy The President said he would leave undisturbed the existing Mississippi River commission because it was "well equipped to handle the problems immediately attending the channel of that great river."

Regarding the proposal was in the "interest of economy and the prevention of over-lapping or one-sided developments," Mr. Roosevelt said it would leave Congress free to determine what projects should be undertaken within the limits of annual budgetary and national public works planning policies.

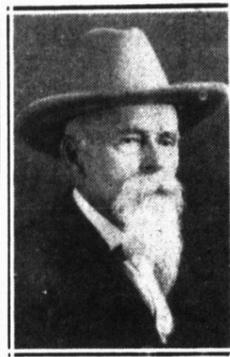

After saying he had studied the subject intensively for almost a year and had discussed it with many Senators and representatives, he added: "My recommendations in this message fall into the same category as my former recommendations relating to the reorganization of the executive branch of the government."

"I hope, therefore, that both of these important matters may have your attention at this session." The reorganization program would make permanent the national resources board, which could coordinate the development of regional planning.

pioneer here today was J. A. Chambers, lower right. Capt. Arrington was the Panhandle's first peace officer, and in that capacity served as Texas Ranger captain at Mobeetie in the early days, and on occasions he not only put the Indians in their places but defied the United States army to the benefit of white settlers in the Panhandle. Later he was sheriff of Wheeler county.

GOOD NEIGHBOR IDEA CARRIED OUT IN FLOATS

HISTORY OF PANHANDLE TOWNS TOLD IN PAGEANT

The Top O' Texas gave no thought to anything other than fiesta time in Pampa as 25,000 persons lined main thoroughfares downtown today to watch the opening parade of the big two-day celebration.

Starting only five minutes behind schedule the parade took a half-hour to pass a given point. Fiesta officials and other declared it to be by far one of the biggest parades of its kind ever held here.

Today's splendid Fiesta parade will be repeated tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. with many additional floats and marching units.

Today's parade was a parade of progress. It will move again tomorrow, embellished by a parade of industrial progress. There will be many new floats and features.

Depicting the history of the Top O' Texas area and development of the Panhandle towns and cities, the pageant was a blaze of color and glory—and a glowing tribute to the pioneers of the Panhandle region.

Immediately following the parade, at City Auditorium, Attorney General William McCraw, of Texas, officially opened the Fiesta with an address in which he paid tribute to the civic accomplishments of Pampa and to the pioneers of the past.

A rodeo performance this afternoon and tonight, marble tournament, old timers dance at the high school gym tonight and an oil men's ball at the Southern club were other principal features of the opening day.

Another parade—a pageant of industrial progress—will move again through downtown streets at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

American Legion members, Matt Sellers, Earl Perkins, Bob Earnest, and I. B. Hagerman formed the color guard and bearers of the national colors, the first unit of the parade.

Concluding the parade was the Santa Fe's miniature train model of the Chief, crack Santa Fe train. The model train consisted of a locomotive, tender, and five cars, the cars named after Santa Fe officials.

Shanrock's green and white clad band won first place for out-of-town bands; second prize went to the Amarillo band, and third to Wheeler. Cups will be awarded these bands. Lefors Kiltie drum and bugle corps got a big hand from spectators. Honorable mention was given this band by the judges.

Civic club floats winners, in order were: Kiwanis, Rotary, and Lions; historical floats, Miami, Canadian, and Alaband.

"Sweetheart of Plains" Miami's float had a large panel, in which was cut a heart. Boys and girls, representing Indians, rode on

DIZZY DEAN REFUSES TO SIGN APOLOGY

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Dizzy Dean today refused to sign any statement of apology to the National league for his actions on and off the field and remains under indefinite suspension.

Disciplined yesterday by Ford Frick, league president, for "conduct detrimental to the best interests of baseball," the famed right-hander of the St. Louis Cardinals, together with Manager Frank Frisch, held a two-hour conference with Frick today.

Dean issued a flat denial that he ever made statements attributed to him, which reflected upon the integrity of the National league's officers and the umpires. He declined, however, to sign any statements refuting them.

Accordingly Frick announced his suspension would continue indefinitely.

FIESTA PARADE--'AGE IN HOLE'

THE TOP O' TEXAS Fiesta committee showed its "hole card" this morning—the parade of floats, historical vehicles and horsemen—and it was an ace in every respect. It is never appropriate nor wise to say that one man is better than another and, on the same principle, to say that one parade is better than another, because comparisons are always odious, but there were many this morning who believed that the 1937 street pageant was one of the best ever seen here.

For one thing it had something new. The good neighbor theme has never been exploited, and it was time for Pampa to bring her neighbors into the parade and make them part of it. Spectators were delighted to see Miami, Panhandle, Canadian, McLean, L'Fors, Alaband, and other communities entering floats, and residents of those towns riding on those floats.

The good neighbor idea should be carried further, and undoubtedly, it will be. The Fiesta committees are to be congratulated for that valuable gesture of friendship to the towns which participated in the parade. It is understood that the neighboring towns furnished the ideas for the floats and persons to ride on them and that the Fiesta committees built the floats for them. Such cooperation made the parade interesting, unique to all concerned.

The parade was a pleasing combination of the industrial, commercial, agricultural, historical angles of life in the Panhandle. In brief, the parade was not only a salute to the past, but a recognition of the present and of the future. Not too much had been written or said about the parade before its presentation this morning, but residents of the Top O' Texas area will remember it as one of the high points of the Fiesta, and they will give credit where it is due—to the Fiesta committees.

Tonight Chief Baldwin Parker and his Indians will give a 20-minute show.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Iobertis Barton
 People of middle age wonder why so many contemporaries are dropping off with heart disease. Wonder, too, how they themselves developed valve trouble, a murmur or coronary thrombosis, the weakening of a heart muscle through lack of local circulation.

How did it happen? When did it begin? They think back to all their illnesses, and shake their heads. "The doctor gave me a clear slate when I had diphtheria and also when I had scarlet fever," they argue. "I've always taken care of myself, too. What do you suppose could have started it?"

Today, I think it is a good time to go back to beginnings, now that summer is almost here and physical exercise is the life of most children.

Curtail Activity
 A thoroughly well-clothed and romp, and climb and jump almost with impunity, provided he has best spells and does not get in motion after genuine fatigue has set in.

But a child who has been ill, even for a short time, must have his activity curtailed, particularly if he has any kind of germ or temperature. If he has had rheumatic fever, he should be watched carefully for months, and even for years, in certain cases. But there are many illnesses of children that have no particular name. Just colds, or grippie, or stomach or intestinal infections.

They stay in bed three or four days, get up for a stroll on a perfectly normal. And so they are, only that every tissue in the body is sluggish and temporarily under par. Each is asking for further rest, all except the muscles of arms and legs that are always perfectly willing to mount bicycles and climb hills, to jump ropes and swim.

Such are the things that lead to real heart trouble in later life, this straining of hearts too soon after convalescence.

The damage is so insidious, and so obscure that the boy or girl may spend years in energetic living, and get by nicely, only to have a heart ailment develop when his defense is down later on.

I have in mind one boy who had scarlet fever when he was five. He later became a "sprinter" and dropped one day on the track. Sprinting was no sport for him to take up, once his heart had been weakened.

There was also a girl who had had an operation, but impatient of long convalescence, she rode a horse in a "paper-chase." Today she has serious heart trouble that permits only half of each day's living.

A child went on a bicycle-hike with a crowd a day or two after he had recovered from grippie. They carried him home.

The parent should supervise all strenuous activity for some time after any kind of illness. Children will run themselves to death if we let them. Exercise is all right, because health and strength depend upon it, but the time and place is not right after an illness. Strength should be normal before any strenuous exertion is permitted.

KILLEBREW FUNERAL TO BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for Theda Belle Killebrew, 17, were set for 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in Francis Avenue Church of Christ with the Rev. M. C. Cuthbertson, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery under direction of Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home. The girl died in a local hospital yesterday morning following an illness of several months. She formerly resided in Abilene but came back to Pampa in January after an absence of several years.

Survivors are her parents, three sisters, a brother and four grandparents.

MIND your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usages by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. When following an usher down a church aisle, is it all right for one to find himself a back seat and let the usher go on?
2. Is it thoughtful of persons in the end seats of a pew to sit there and let late comers struggle past them as best they can?
3. Does the informality of a small town make it correct for a woman to attend church without a hat?
4. If a girl is going to church with a man, should she make her own contribution to the collection?
5. Is it necessary for a woman to remove her right glove when she partakes of the bread at communion?

What would you do if—
 When introducing a Protestant clergyman who did not hold the title of dean or doctor, speak of him as—
 (a) "Mr. Day?"
 (b) "Brother Day?"
 (c) "Reverend Day?"

Answers
 1. No.
 2. No. They should move over to make room for the late comers.
 3. No.
 4. Yes.
 5. Yes.

Sidelights On Fiesta

It's no longer the wild and woolly west in the belief of Helen Brown, KPND hostess, who didn't get to ride in today's parade because she couldn't find a horse. Miss Brown had all the other accessories, but no horse.

Sheriff Earl Talley looked like a second edition of Buffalo Bill today. He was busy riding through the streets, attired in all the fanfare of the Old West, 10-gallon hat, boots, chaps and all.

Deputy Sheriff Buford Reed's cowboy boots got him down early on the first day of the Fiesta. In double-quick time they wore a blister on his foot, so he traded them off to Sports Editor Harry Hoare, who had been trying for three weeks to find a pair that would fit. Reed's were made to order for the sports writer.

Old-time exhibits, on display in downtown store windows, were attracting much comment from first-day fiesta visitors who milled through the streets before and after the parade.

One of the largest crowds ever to attend an old-time dance in Pampa is expected to go to the high school gym tonight when the first Old-Timers fiesta dance is scheduled for 9 p. m. KPND will broadcast one hour of the proceedings between 9 and 10 o'clock.

KPND announcers and technicians were on the jump through downtown Pampa, keeping pace with the fiesta activities. Remote broadcasts were sent out from three points along the parade route. The rodeo was broadcast this afternoon. The Pampa Daily News station is on the air day and night during the fiesta.

Lynn Butler, arena director for the Beutler Bros. rodeo, of Elk City, Okla., was one of the busiest men in Pampa this forenoon. Butler was making last minute preparations for opening of the first rodeo performance this afternoon.

Earl Isley, the clothing salesman, was one of the most nervous men in the city this forenoon. It was Isley who was scheduled to open the rodeo this afternoon by riding the first wild steer out of the pens. In addition to the "honor," Isley was trying for a $50 prize offered by the Junior chamber of commerce.

Most city and county offices were thinly populated today as members of the office staffs were, for the most part, engaged in some sort of committee work in connection with the fiesta.

Attorney Newton P. Willis got all slicked up early this forenoon and then went out to ride a stage-coach in the fiesta parade. He remarked that the stage-coach shock-absorbers are not quite up to snuff.

Downtown Pampa took on an air of combined fiesta and circus spirit today as concession men and street hawkers cried their wares in the parade crowds.

At the rodeo grounds in Recreation park there was a carnival spirit, too, with concessionaries busy in the various booths. A merry-go-round, ferris wheel and other thrill rides supplied amusement to both young and old.

W. B. Weathered, general fiesta chairman, was going "round and round"—rushing from here to there all forenoon, making certain that all last-minute arrangements had been completed. He was ably assisted by various Jaycee committee-men.

"If it must rain," said Mr. Weathered, "pray that it falls between noon and 3 o'clock and 5 p. m. and 9 p. m. A tenth of an inch rain between those hours is the only way the Jaycees can collect their $2,600 rain insurance."

Atmosphere of the Old West enveloped Pampa at the last minute as cowboys and cowgirls from out-of-town arrived in colorful attire and mingled with the fiesta crowds. Many homesteaders, too, reverted to Western dress to add to the spirit of the celebration.

Amarillo's delegation, headed by the Sandie high school band, was among the first to arrive this morning. The delegation was accompanied by a 20-car caravan of automobiles.

Attorney General Bill McCraw, speaker of the day, was a hard man to find. He arrived in town early, but was difficult to get in touch with, what with many persons trying to "beard him in his den" bright and early.

PARSON STIRS TEMPEST IN ANGLICAN CHURCH

LONDON, June 3. (AP)—A poor man's parson who chose to marry his former king and Wallis Warfield, no matter what the bishops thought, stirred a tempest in the Anglican church today and even provoked the question:

"Will he go to work for Windsor now?"

Workaday England itself was divided into those who wanted to forgive and those who merely wanted to forget.

Many churchmen throughout the land were horrified because the Anglican vicar of Darlington, the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, had defied his superiors to bless the union. But in other quarters the eleventh hour disclosure that "the poor man's parson" would conduct the religious ceremony today at Chateau De Cande, in France, caused lively satisfaction.

The man in the street was deeply stirred to hear that the democratic former monarch would, after all, be married within the church of which he once was titular head, despite his post-abdication by both the church of England and the British government.

Dallas Young Man Slain By Another

DALLAS, June 3. (AP)—Marvin Cleveland, 24, was shot to death early today as he kept an appointment with a 21-year old man to settle their differences.

The shooting occurred in the presence of witnesses. The younger man surrendered to police, telephoning them "I guess you're looking for me."

Police were told Cleveland arrived at the appointed scene and saw the other man with his hand in a pocket. "I haven't any gun," he was quoted as saying. "If you want to fight let's settle it with our fists."

"I'm not going to fight you with fists," the other man was quoted as answering. Two shots hit Cleveland in the chest. Witnesses were listed as Miss Mildred Hagewood, with whom Cleveland had kept company; Miss Margaret Wier and Gilbert Appier.

VERY ENLIGHTENING

The Christian Science Monitor is performing a very great service in educating the people as to the importance of constitutional government. They have assigned an experienced staff correspondent to write the proceedings at the Constitutional Convention, which first met with a quorum 150 years ago, May 25.

The series began on May 20, a few days before the quorum attended, and reports the arrival of the different delegates. It will continue until September of this year.

Everyone who is interested in understanding more about government will have a splendid opportunity to learn the difficulties surrounding the thirteen colonies at the time of writing the Constitution.

The first couple of articles mentioned the scarcity of money, the different value of money in different states, the high cost of travel of $8 or $9 a day, the insurrections of different groups attempting to collect back pay for their services in the army, the states putting tariffs on imports from other states and the inability of the foreign representatives to make tariff regulations with other nations.

It undoubtedly will be a very informative series and the Monitor is performing a fine service by reproducing this series.

JOB NEED CONTINUES

Imperfect as our statistics on unemployment are, they are at least complete enough to show why there is such a wide discrepancy between the increase in employment since the pit of the depression and the continuing large number of unemployed.

Figures compiled by the Alexander Hamilton Institute show that in March the number of employed persons in the United States rose to 41,698,000—highest for the recovery movement, with the exception of last December, and a gain of 8,433,000 since the depression low in March, 1933.

At the same time, there are still—according to this same authority—9,621,000 unemployed persons in the United States, a reduction of only some 7,000,000 from March of 1933.

For as men go back to work the population continues to increase. The supply of workers is larger now than it was when the depression began. To end unemployment, we must actually reach a higher level of employment than we ever have known before even in our best years.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—People who are so dead set on having the federal government run everything would enjoy watching congress administer the affairs of the city of Washington.

The people here can't vote. They can only scream. So for members of congress to make a sort of governmental guinea pig of the city is as safe as playing with firecrackers. There was an exception. Representative Blanton of Texas, who got the "red rider" passed.

Only within the last day or so did congress finally lift the "red rider" off the neck of the city. It was a provision tacked on an appropriation bill two years ago to prohibit school teachers "teaching" communism in the city schools. They had to sign a form each month avowing that they had not slipped never a word about how 160,000,000 Russians are governed. Otherwise they got no pay.

They couldn't even "explain" communism with safety. So they gave it up. Officially, as far as Washington school students are concerned, Russia is just a blank space on the map, like Antarctica. One biology teacher insists she was taking no risk of losing her pay check, so told her pupils that blood was composed of white corpuscles "and the other kind."

Blanton was defeated in the 1936 primaries and the unpopularity of the "red rider" was accepted as part of the reason. But there was a stout handful in the house opposed to repealing the act. They wanted to defeat communism by hiding it under a bushel.

To understand how congress can be doing these things, it must be remembered that the District of Columbia is governed by congress and the President in a manner resembling a combination of governor, state legislature, mayor and town council.

The same day the "red rider" finally was repealed, the house listened to an extended debate between Mrs. Norton, representative from New Jersey, and Representative O'Connor of New York over whether Washington, 250 miles from either state, should have a slaughter house.

Mrs. Norton argued that slaughter house people have lost sight of the finer things for which Washington was intended but she had to give in and take the bill back to committee. Now Washington may not know for months whether it is to become the seat of a great industrial development or to continue to be known for its arched doorways and liberal legislation.

TEX'S TOPICS

The words in this column today do not belong to us. They are from the typewriter of a well-known Pampian, who does not choose to have any fanfare of publicity. And, so we give you this manuscript, just as he wrote it:

"Many times we have noticed him on the streets. He carries a sharpened stick with a sack, and in rainy weather he uses a basket, his business being to pick up the paper and trash from the curb. He has many years, 64 we hear, and is a little bent, but he works conscientiously. His work is humble, as his position also, and probably he gets ten or twelve dollars a week, but we considered his honest toil the object of which was cleanliness—is it next to Godliness—and we thought that his service, being honorable, conscientious and unfeeling, and tending towards order, beauty and soul lifting, and he himself being a fine example of Age Undaunted, that it would be in order to honor Bill Garrett, the street cleaner. And then go home and clean up our own back yards.

"And it was a very short step, in our thinking from him to a large class of other workers who get less consideration from us than they deserve. We are thinking of the clerks in our stores. Their position forces upon them a higher standard of living than people in other employment of equal pay. They have to wear better clothes, and they maintain themselves as gentlemen and ladies. They are working for a living just the same as you and I. They are not responsible for the merchandise in the stores, for they did not buy it, they only sell it. They stand on their feet all day—and just try that sometime. Their greatest desire is to be of service to us, so may we not give them a little more consideration, and try to make their task a little pleasanter for them, remembering that they may be tired, or that the preceding customer might have been more trying to their patience than we ourselves are, or that they might have an ache in the arches of the feet, and when they give us that cheery "Thank you! Come in again!" let us return their courtesy by saying "Thank You! I WILL!" It is not much but it will help both them and us.

"And, so to the barbers. They are always cheerful, courteous and affable. And they are engaged in a highly commendable effort—to get us cleaner, neater and more fit to fight the battle of life. We appreciate the relaxation of the barber's chair, the service and courtesy of the barbers, and on leaving the barber shop it occurred to us that of all classes of people, laboring or professional, none have a higher percentage of well deserved and justifiable pride in their calling than the barbers. And it also occurred to us that they are not too well paid for their service, and we regretted exceedingly they are not all better organized so that they might have the same price for the same service, at the least, to the end that they might be a little better paid for their commendable and valuable services.

"Have you noticed that we are slowly—too slowly—getting to be a City of Roses? Driving about our streets you can get a genuine pleasure out of looking at the well kept yards and rose gardens in Pampa. A good many have much finer rose gardens in their back yards than can be seen from the front, and it is surprising how much they appreciate your stopping occasionally and asking to see their roses. They can tell you the best kinds for various purposes, and we shrewdly suspect that they get as much kick out of telling us what has been done the best for them as we get out seeing the fine gardens, and getting just exactly that information, which we wanted for our own use. And we decided this week to order a potted rose bush or two, it being too late now for the dormant ones, and to put two climbers of the everblooming variety on two of our back yard corners that look a little empty. So back to that last garden to see whether it was Betty Uprichard or Tallman that has done the best, and found it was Betty Uprichard, a hardy everblooming climber with burnt orange blossoms, and ordered two from Tyler Rose Gardens, Tyler, Texas. Here's hoping.

"And we saw a professional man that we have long admired, going down the street, and by actual count he spoke a cheery good morning to seventeen different people in one block, shook hands with six of them, called nine of them by their names, and seemed to be just having the time of his life. And we envied him his ability to remember the names, and decided that we could at least speak cheerfully to everybody we met, and tried it, and found that it is possible, but that it is not easy, and resolved to improve ourselves in the matter by constant, and intentional practice. It will not cost us anything, and already we find that it helps us to feel better."

These words belong to us: Passing the courthouse last evening, we heard Bob Castle's voice coming out of the county jail. Sheriff Earl Talley tells us it is a form of torture he is inflicting on the prisoners—forcing them to listen to Castle's radio program daily at 6:45 p. m. It's a shame to treat human beings like that.

When Italy Celebrated Founding of an Empire

Drawn up in great phalanxes in magnificent Venice Square at Rome, thousands of soldiers are pictured here as they took part in the recent celebration of the first anniversary of the founding of the "Italian Empire." Massed on the steps of the great memorial were more uniformed soldiers and black-shirted guards of Il Duce. The celebration marked the passing of one year since the conquest of Ethiopia.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This office is on the sixth floor of the Chemical Bank building at Madison Ave. and 46th St. . . . Sometimes, when it is raining, as it is now, it's a good idea to look out the window. You can always see enough to write a column, and there's no danger of running that new hat you won on a ball game yesterday.

Let's look now and see what there is to see. . . . Right across the street, facing this building on Madison, is the Ritz hotel. . . . And diagonally across on 46th street is the Roosevelt hotel. . . . Great big swanky hotels, both. . . . All around the Roosevelt are neat, inviting, rather expensive shops. . . . Most of them offer clothes, but now and then an optician or book seller has his place. . . . And the cabs. . . . I'd say just now 18 or 20 cabs are lined up against the curb in the brief span between Madison and Vanderbilt.

The cabby in the first conveyance is just starting into space. . . . The one behind him is reading a newspaper. . . . I can't see the third, but the fourth is arguing violently with the drivers from several other cabs. . . . That's an awfully big cape and umbrella the doorman at the Roosevelt has. . . . He says he hasn't let a drop of water splash on a guest, leaving the hotel and entering a hack, in five years.

Unlike 46th street, Madison is always confused. . . . Those big, fast buses take up a lot of room. . . . They drift into their berths at every odd corner, and sometimes they leave traffic in a Gordian knot. . . . But the big copper in the center of the street knows how to unsnarl those traffic problems.

Now, there's a car the likes of which we haven't seen in many a day. . . . and before long it will probably have disappeared. . . . It's an armored limousine, last of the big gangster cars during prohibition. . . . They say it used to belong to Legs Diamond. . . . It's black and two cars long, with bullet-proof glass. . . . Now some fellow with a bird dog is driving it. . . . He probably doesn't know that it was originally manufactured to save some organel's life. . . . On the other hand, he probably does know.

One of the interesting things about peering across canyons into hotel windows is that you can see the newly arrived guests. . . . There's a couple with a maid in a suite on the eighth floor of the Roosevelt now. . . . The maid just raced in and opened the windows, and the man, about 38, I'd hazard, stuck his head out and had a quick look for himself. . . . He has on a double-breasted gray suit and a blue tie. . . . There's a brunette in the room just under his suite. . . . She's reading a light, which would indicate that she's been at the hotel for some time. . . . It would be interesting to know their names, the brunette with the letter and the man with the gray, double-breasted suit. . . . They're probably from extreme sections of the country.

Strike me if it hasn't stopped raining! . . . And I've got to go out anyhow. . . . There's a man at the Yankee stadium I've got to see about a ball game.

IF SALADE SKID, KNIVES ARE OKAY, DEAN TELLS MEN.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Should a man sit on the right or left of a woman in a taxi? In Europe it would be correct to sit on the left, but in the United States, it would be perfectly proper to sit either on the right or left.

Most of the men students at the University of Pittsburgh knew that, but just to make certain of it, Vincent W. Lanfer, dean of men, wrote and distributed a guide on manners entitled "What Every Man Should Know."

Among the rules Lanfer laid down for every gentleman were: No man should keep a pipe, cigar, or cigaret in his mouth when he sits his hat to a woman.

When you enter an office, place your hat in an inconspicuous place—and remember where.

It is more embarrassing to find yourself in dinner coat and black tie when your host is wearing informal clothes than to wear in-

CACTUS BLOSSOM The trail was hard! The going rough at times; The sun a executioner with flaming axe. No beauty here! No patch of soothing green No burst of scented flower to break the weary grind. AROUND HOLLYWOOD

By CAROLE LOMBARD

Guest columnist for Robin Coons HOLLYWOOD—"From now on she's going to be funny."

Somebody wrote that line about me and if I ever catch him I'm going to break his neck. The inspiration came to him just after I'd finished "My Man Godfrey" in which I was very hoydenish.

Actually, something did happen during the making of that picture. I found that I was able to break away from Lombard and be the person I supposed to be on the screen. I dropped the last vestige of my self-consciousness.

But I did not plan just to be funny from that time on. I think I showed that pretty clearly when I stepped into "Swing High, Swing Low." I was more than loopy, I was a little bit tipsy. I found myself "to make the lines sound a little better" after all, you can't be very funny when you're playing a girl in love with someone, and that someone is a bum and walking out of your life on top of that.

Refuses To Be a 'Type' ME—I'll have humor and plenty of it. But I'm certainly not going to run riot on one single shade of emotion when there are so many more in the book. I'm going to sample quite a few of them. The script isn't loopy, it's just a little bit tipsy.

The idea in Hollywood is always to be new and slightly different. I'll be all right as long as the public says, "She's full of surprises." When I don't surprise them, you can count me out. That's why I got sore when somebody wrote "From now on she's going to be funny." It might just as well have been, "She's going to be the same forever." That's practically libel, in this business.

Understand, I know my limitations. I don't care for "prestige" pictures. I don't want to do a film which is supposed to be epic, colossal, or terrific. I can't imagine myself a Duce or a Bernhardt. I'll leave that to the other little girls. But you can depend on this: as long as there's breath in the body, I'll try to make people say:

"Have you seen the latest edition of Lombard?"

SAFETY URGED IN COLORADO API MEETING

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 3 (AP)—Prevention of oil field accidents was a major consideration today for oil men attending the seventh mid-year meeting of the American Petroleum Institute.

R. B. Reaper, of the Humble Oil & Refining Company, Houston, Tex., in a paper prepared for delivery at one of the concluding group sessions, said that today less than one per cent of all accidents on rotary drilling rigs result from equipment failure.

"Oil field equipment manufacturers have built safety into their products in the last few years," Reaper said.

"The problem has become one of preventing human failure. Rapid changes in drilling methods and equipment necessitate training personnel to the point where they can constantly adjust themselves to new conditions."

Reaper also urged the oil men to give greater attention to the selection of men for each job, as a safety factor.

A report prepared for the session by H. N. Blakeslee, director of the Institute's department of accident prevention, stated the frequency of injuries in the petroleum industry has been changed from 18 per cent above the average of all industries to a point below the all-industry average.

Accident severity, likewise, has been reduced from 30 per cent above the all-industry average in 1927 to below the average in recent years, the report showed.

G. O. Lockwood, of the Empire Oil & Refining Company, Bartlesville, Okla., recommended the Institute prepare additional safety manuals on the handling of pipe, operation of gasoline plants and warehousing of materials.

HITLER AND IL DUCE PLANNING SPANISH DRIVE

ROME, June 3 (AP)—Premier Mussolini and Field-Marshal Werner von Blomberg, German minister of war, were reported today to be coordinating Italian and German forces in Spain for an intensified drive under insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco against besieged Bilbao.

The new development was believed to be the outgrowth of an hour's conference between Il Duce, acting as his own war minister, and Germany's first ranking war lord on the tense European situation arising from German bombardment of Spanish Almeria.

The two were said to have agreed the insurgent offensive against the Basque Republic on the northern coast of Spain must be pushed vigorously.

Gen. Emilio Mola's army has been hammering at the gates of Bilbao more than a month, blocked by a determined defense of the northern Basque allies of the Madrid-Valencia government, along a miniature "Maginot line" of fortifications.

Informed circles considered it likely Mussolini and Von Blomberg had studied possible joint military action if further reprisals were occasioned by attacks on German or Italian warships in Spanish waters.

To probe Italy's ability to back up with armed might any fateful decision she and her Nazi ally might make, Il Duce displayed his country's military resources for von Blomberg.

Best informed circles here doubted that direct intervention in Spain, where Germany and Italy recognize insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco as true head of the government, formed any important part of the conversations Mussolini and his foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, had with Von Blomberg.

This, That and Everything

BY WILLIAM HUSLEY CLARK

A very reputable authority has declared that China has never erected any kind of a monument in honor of a military hero. Such national nonchalance toward the services of their military leaders may be carrying the thing too far, but it is no worse than going to the other extreme as most nations do. I would rather see a nation like China place what might be too little emphasis on the honor of war than to see what most nations are doing in lauding the art of war to the skies. That is exactly what most of us are doing now. Countries place special privileges before great military heroes, and such distinction is accepted as proper by most of us. It has been significant that England included a great military general among the few Americans permitted to attend the coronation.

Of course so long as a nation practices war, it is right that due credit be given those leaders for their services; still there is no reason why those prominent in waging war should be honored above national figures leading along other lines. So long as the peoples of the earth extol war and heap special honors upon their military heroes, we may expect young people to aspire to continue this obsolete custom of killing in the name of national honor.

German U-Boats Dispatched to Spanish Waters

BERLIN, June 3 (AP)—An authoritative source reported today that Chancellor Adolf Hitler had dispatched a fleet of German U-boats to Spanish waters as a "preparation measure" to defeat any Spanish government attack with overwhelming force.

Der Fuehrer was said to have determined to be ready for any eventuality in the Spanish crisis, no matter what the London non-intervention committee decided on in answer to his demand for "adequate" protection of German warships.

This, the source said, was the meaning of the rapid reinforcement of the Reich battle fleet off the coast of Spain.

Hitler's aim was disclosed to be a war force strong enough not only to resist any future attack, but to repel with overwhelming force even more ambitious attacks.

The cruiser Leipzig and the submarines U-28, U-33, U-34 and U-35 were expected to reach a secret rendezvous in Spanish waters today.

Girl and Lover Sentenced for Killing Mother

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 3 (AP)—

Gladys MacKnight, 17, and her former choir boy sweetheart, Donald Wightman, 19, were sentenced today to from twenty-nine to thirty years each at hard labor in state prison for the murder of the girl's mother, Mrs. Helen MacKnight.

The sentences were imposed by Judge Thomas F. Meaney, who presided at the ten-day trial which ended a week ago in the conviction of the young couple of second degree murder.

The maximum penalty the judge could impose was thirty years.

The state had asked the death penalty for the pair, each of whom accused the other from the witness stand of striking the hatchet blows which killed Mrs. MacKnight.

Calm and with heads bowed, Donald and Gladys stood before Judge

Meaney for sentence and heard him say: "I have no quarrel with the verdict of the jury."

He thereupon pronounced the sentences.

moment for which they had waited so long.

An official message was sent from the chateau to the main gate and announced just eight minutes after Dr. Mercier had finished the ceremony.

Cheers burst in a babel of half a dozen languages from the crowds that thronged the main gate.

English tourists, who had hidden champagne in a mossy bank, brought it out. Even strangers shared their toast with them.

Soon after the announcement steel helmeted mobile guards cleared the shady lane leading to the main gate.

The picked patrol, resplendent in new blue uniforms and glistening boots, was deaf to many pleas for entrance.

By JOHN LLOYD CHATEAU DE CANDE, Monts. France, June 3 (AP)—The radiant Duke of Windsor took Wallis Warfield as his bride and Duchess today in two serene and dignified marriage ceremonies.

Just 25 weeks ago today he gave up his crown of England and empire because she could not be his queen.

"I will," the Duke supremely happy, answered in a firm, loud voice to the Anglican poor man's parson who gave him the unsanctioned blessing of the Church of England.

As far as I could see neither the Duke nor anyone else kissed the bride.

The Duke raised his voice so high in his eagerness to take the "woman I love" as his wife that he startled the 34 guests in the flower-banked music room of this old chateau.

After him, his blue-eyed lady answered "I will." Her voice was just as firm as Edward's but more hushed.

The religious service ended at 12:14 (5:15 a. m. CST) after the wedding party had come in from highballs and cocktails on the terrace.

Clad in Blue This burst of gaiety followed rolypoly Dr. Charles Mercier's civil service as mayor of this hamlet.

The Anglican preacher who defied his Bishops was the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, "poor man's vicar" or Darlington, England.

The American-born Duchess of Windsor, a member of the British royal family although by royal decree she must style herself "her royal highness," was clad in light "Wallis blue"—her husband's favorite shade—from head to foot.

After the religious ceremony the Duke and Duchess led their guests back to the terrace. There, a buffet wedding breakfast had been spread.

Edward made a short speech, thanking "all of you people for coming on this occasion so important for us."

The bridal couple disappeared for a brief time and then returned to their company.

The Duchess had changed to another costume and the Duke had doffed his cutaway for a blue serge suit.

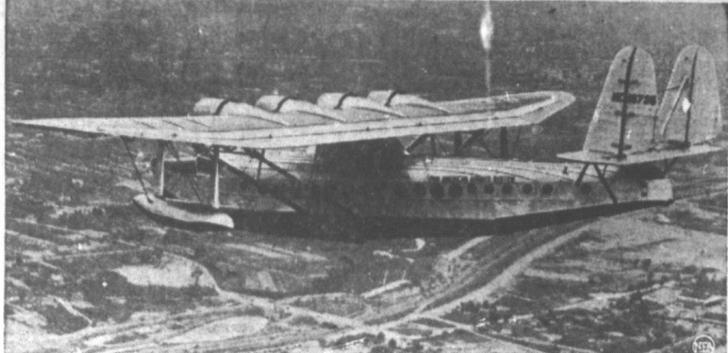

Just five minutes after Monts' country physician-mayor began the French legal ceremony in the Chateau salon, Wallis Warfield with the man who laid aside a crown to share that moment with her.

That was 11:47 a. m. (4:37 a. m. CST).

Sign Documents The next few minutes were spent in signing civil document to comply with the French law.

"By one of those whims of destiny," the mayor told the bridal couple, "it is under the blue sky and among the flowers of the garden of France, in the laughing valley of the Indre, that the most moving of all idylls has just unfolded itself."

Pioneering Trans-Atlantic Passenger Flights

Winging her way from New York, the Bermuda Clipper (above) carried eight persons, including the crew, on a trail-blazing commercial aviation flight to Bermuda, 800 miles eastward in the Atlantic. The big ship was in command of Captain Harold C. Berry, veteran of the trans-pacific service.

ister's reading, took the wedding ring of Welsh gold from the Rev. Mr. Jardine and slipped it on his bride's finger.

financing of many of the projects by states and localities would be expected, the President said, because "improvements in our national heritage frequently confer special benefits" on regions immediately affected.

Excepting the Tennessee Valley, Columbia valley and Mississippi agencies, the President said the work of the other regional authorities—at least in their early years—would consist chiefly in developing "integrated plans to conserve and safeguard the prudent use of waters, water-power, soils, forests and other resources of the areas entrusted to their charge."

Congress would check and revise projected programs annually in the light of budgetary considerations after they were coordinated by the national planning board.

"Projects authorized to be undertaken by the congress," Mr. Roosevelt said, "could then be carried out in whole or in part by those departments of the government best equipped for the purpose, or if desirable in any particular case, by one of the regional bodies."

The President said recent experience with flood control made it clear that the problem must be approached as one involving more than great works on main streams.

"There must also be measures of prevention and control among tributaries and throughout the entire headwaters areas," he said.

"A comprehensive plan of flood control must embrace not only downstream levees and floodways, and retarding dams and reservoirs on major tributaries, but also small dams and reservoirs on the lesser tributaries, and measures of applied conservation throughout an entire drainage area, such as restoration of forests and grasses on inferior lands, and encouragement of farm practices which diminish runoff and prevent erosion of arable lands."

"Floods, droughts and dust storms are in a very real sense manifestations of nature's refusal to tolerate continued abuse of her bounties.

"Prudent management demands not merely works which will guard against these calamities, but carefully formulated plans to prevent their occurrence. Such plans require coordination of many related activities.

Approximately 13,500 Wolves, coyotes and bobcats are destroyed in Texas annually by state and federal agencies.

MARKET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Late but feeble rallying tendencies appeared in today's stock market with selected motors, rails, rubbers, aircrafts and specialties favored.

The recovery pace dragged notably and few issues were able to show gains of more than a point in the final hour.

There was a wide assortment of small issues and many of the leaders were virtually unchanged.

Deadlines were not much ahead of yesterday's small-like session, which was the most apathetic in two years. Transfers were around 600,000 shares.

McCraw Praises Area Attorney General McCraw paid a tribute to Pampa and the entire Top O' Texas area in his remarks which were made briefly at the auditorium after he was introduced by Attorney John Sturgeon.

"It is a pleasure for me to come up here among such hospitable people," the attorney general said, "and in turn I want to invite you all to Austin where we always do our best to measure up to Panhandle hospitality."

Mr. McCraw also praised the civic pride of Pampa in putting together such a splendid parade.

"It is the longest and best parade of its kind I ever witnessed," he said. Following his address in the city auditorium, Mr. McCraw was a luncheon guest of city and county officials and prominent residents of the Panhandle at Hotel Schneider.

This afternoon he was scheduled to be a guest at the first rodeo at Fairgrounds Park.

BRADDOCK SUSPENDED. NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission today slapped an indefinite suspension on Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock for his failure to appear for a fifteen-round title bout with Max Schmeling of Germany.

BRITAIN ATTEMPTS TO RESTORE NAVAL RING

LONDON, June 3 (AP)—Great Britain today laid a three-point program before France, Italy and Germany to restore the broken naval ring around Spain.

She suggested: 1. That safety zones for neutral ships be established in Spanish waters. 2. That the Spanish government and the insurgent administration be asked to guarantee protection of warships of the patrolling powers.

3. That Britain, France, Italy and Germany consult immediately if a warship of any of them is attacked.

DIZZY DEAN SAYS HE'LL QUIT BASEBALL RATHER THAN SIGN APOLOGY

FRICK CLAIMS DEAN CALLED HIM 'CROOK'

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP)—Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean today tossed the gauntlet to President Ford Frick of the National League, declaring he would quit baseball rather than sign the letter of apology tendered following his indefinite suspension "for conduct detrimental to the best interests of baseball."

The show down was due this morning when the hurling ace of the St. Louis Cardinals and manager Frick conferred with Frick in the league office. Frick declared he would go home and spend the remainder of his life playing golf rather than apologize for something he insists he never said.

Frick's disciplinary action, which broke like a bomb-shell yesterday, climaxed a series of incidents that have kept Dean in the headlines since the training season. The latest sequence began May 19 when the New York Giants and Carl Hubbell beat the Cards and Dean 4-1 in a game that ended in a ninth-inning riot.

Dean was fined $50 for his part in the free-for-all, the outgrowth of a talk called on him by Umpire George Barr during a Giant rally in the sixth inning.

Subsequently, Frick charges, Dean spoke out of turn about the league in general and its president and umpires in particular. The star right hander was quoted as saying he would give $1,000 to the newspaper man who would print exactly what he (Dean) thought of Frick, that he would not play in this year's all-star game, if selected, and that "George Barr and Ford Frick are the two biggest crooks in baseball today." The latter statement was attributed to Dean at a father and son banquet at Bellevue, Ill.

"It's down to the question of whether Dean is bigger than the National League," said Frick. "I don't think he is but this can all be settled quickly if Dean sees the error of his ways and frankly apologizes to the league for the things he has said or implied and put it in writing."

That's what Jerome Herman emphatically declared he would not do. "I'd rather jump out of that window on the 30th floor of a hotel than sign that letter of apology," said Dean.

"I not only didn't call Frick and Barr the biggest crooks in the league but have witnesses to prove that I didn't."

"What I did say was that Barr had given the Cards the unfair decision I ever saw. As for playing in the all-star game, I would be only too glad to pitch, if selected."

Dean has had a turbulent career since he became a Cardinal regular in 1932.

The club has fined him three times for missing train connections and failing to appear for exhibition games.

'Asleep on the Job' With Approval

Many workers of the Republic Steel Corp. in Chicago stayed on the job despite nearly 100,000 striking workers who tied up the plants of three major independent companies in five states. This picture shows a group of workers sleeping in the plant. Those staying at work also had meals delivered while the fires of other plants were banked and tall stacks stood smokeless.

BASEBALL CAMP AT WICHITA TO BE DEVOTED TO TRYOUTS

June 14 has been selected as the opening date for the baseball camp to be operated by the San Antonio club, in cooperation with the St. Louis Browns, according to an announcement made today by Guy Airey, vice president and business manager of the San Antonio club and formerly with the Wichita Falls Spudders. The camp will be in operation about a week and will be held at the baseball park used by Wichita Falls when they were a member of the Texas league.

GOLF TOURNEY TO BEGIN AT COUNTRY CLUB ON JUNE 13

First major tournament of the year will begin at the Pampa Country club course on June 13 instead of on June 6 as previously announced. Recent heavy rains have kept entrants from qualifying and the tournament committee of Jet Brumley, chairman, Edwin Vicars, Charlie Thut and Oscar Dial decided today to postpone first round of play.

Qualifying over 18 holes will be allowed until dusk on June 10. Entry fee for the tournament will be $2 which will allow the entrant to play his qualifying round and continue play until he is eliminated from the match. Entry may be made with members of the tournament committee or at the clubhouse.

BY BILL BONI, Associated Press Sports Writer.

While Dizzy Dean was being banned and refusing to sign any and all apologies yesterday, three other old-established firms and two new ones were making potent bids for recognition on a basis of services rendered.

The trio of veterans who passed new milestones of effectiveness were, in the order of their teams standing: Darrell Elijah (Cy) Blanton, Charley Ruffing and Van Lingle Mungo.

Blanton pitched his third shutout in setting down the Boston Bees, 2-0, and keeping the Pirates on top of the national heap; Ruffing got his fourth straight victory in a seven-hit, 8-4 shellacking of the Indians to stretch the Yankees' American league margin to four games; and Mungo, big Brooklyn right hander who pitched the Dodgers to within a half game of the Cards by halting St. Louis, 6-2.

Newcomer Lefty Clyde Shoun, 22-year-old Chicago Cub recruit, won 2-1 over the Giants for his fourth of the year and the Cubs' seventh straight, and George Robert Tebbets, the Tigers chunky third string catcher, hit an eleventh inning homer with two on to give Detroit an 11-8 verdict over the Senators.

But Blanton and Mungo and Ruffing, who has won every game he's pitched since making his hold-out-injury start on May 16, are major leaguers of established reputation and ability. Shoun, on the other hand, was with Birmingham of the Southern Association last season, while Tebbets, except for the last ten games of the season, spent all of the 1936 campaign with Beaumont of the Texas league.

OLIN AND LEWIS WILL FIGHT IN TITLE BOUT

ST. LOUIS, June 3 (AP)—Bob Olin, a rebuilt job, will seek to regain the world light heavyweight boxing championship when he meets John Henry Lewis in a 15-round bout here tonight.

Olin was wrecked quite thoroughly on an October night in 1935. For 15 rounds he stood up before a deadly barrage of blows aimed by the nimble-fisted Lewis, but the fact that he stood up counted heavily in his favor in his bid for a rematch. The New Yorker went into eclipse after that bout. He bobbed up occasionally to lose impressively to a variety of opponents, but suddenly leaped back into the spotlight with a victory over Gunnar Barlund, a promising heavyweight.

Lewis, on the other hand, has improved steadily. Busier than a one-man band, he has waded through a rather soggy field of light heavies and staged short forays into the heavyweight pasture.

-SPORT-SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The St. Louis Cardinals may not have picked up another Babe Ruth in the person of 18-year old Archie Templeton. But there are parallels that recall the Sultan of Swat when you review the youngster's career.

Templeton attracted the attention of Cardinal scouts while playing with an orphanage team in Winston-Salem, N. C. just as Babe Ruth did as a youngster in Baltimore.

Archie looks like the Babe did when he started his baseball career. Teammates call Archie "Moon." He's a husky lad, a 6-footer weighing 190 pounds. He is a left-handed pitcher, too, as Ruth was.

GOLFERS FACE STIFF MATCHES IN TOURNEY

SAN ANTONIO, June 3 (AP)—Championship flight qualifiers faced two grueling rounds in the Women's Trans-Mississippi golf tournament here today while rain again threatened to hinder play.

Drawings after 149 golfers trudged around the San Antonio Country club's soggy, wind-swept course yesterday, featured a number of excellent matches.

Among these was the pairing of Helen Hoffman of Port Douglas, Utah, the nation's leading distance slugger, with Mrs. R. D. Roper, of Phoenix, Ariz., not-rotcher of the short game.

Race Track Has Only 200 Stables For 215 Horses

How 215 horses can be stabled in 200 stalls is the problem facing officials of Pampa Downs Jockey club who will present horse racing with legal pari-mutuel wagering here for the first time June 5 to 19 with races every day excepting Sundays.

There are 200 stables at Recreation park on Highway 60 east of Pampa where the races will be held. Steve Brodie, racing secretary, has already received 215 entries, where he is going to put the other 15 horses and more that may come here for the big meet?

Mr. Brodie, veteran race track man, has been secured by the Pampa Downs Jockey club as secretary of the meet and manager in charge, at a salary. He will operate no part of the meet on his own. All monies taken in from concessions, etc., will go to the Pampa Downs Jockey club which is composed of Dr. M. C. Overton, Dr. R. M. Bellamy and John Roby. The concessions will not be let to the highest bidder but will be operated by men paid by the racing association, the members believing that more revenue could be secured that way.

The track, after yesterday's hard rain, was drying fast today. Damage from the heavy shower was not as great as first believed. The rain packed the dirt rather than made it soggy and trainers of horses were enthusiastic about the track's appearance this morning.

Unless more rain falls, the track will be lightning fast for the big opening Saturday afternoon. First call will be at 3 o'clock. The late hour of starting was set so that workers in the fields could attend and to allow the sun to set far enough that the grandstand will be partially in shade at the opening of the races. Admission will be 40 cents with reserve box seats 25 cents extra.

Regular early and late workouts were in order for horses today and tomorrow. Entries for the opening day of racing were being accepted today and it appeared that nearly every race would have a full eight-horse entry.

Appearance of new horse flesh, that has never appeared on Texas race tracks before, has heightened interest in the meet and made owners start worrying. Arrival of two horses from Louisville, Ky., four from Custer, Okla., three from Cimmaron, and two from Colorado is expected to make things more interesting.

DeWitt Morse, inspector for the Texas Racing commission, arrived in Pampa yesterday afternoon and will supervise final installation of pari-mutuel equipment and check horses, jockeys and equipment.

A new starting gate was to be rolled onto the track this afternoon.

TODAY'S GAMES:
Tulsa at Dallas (night).
Okl. City at Ft. Worth (night).
Galveston at Beaumont (day).
Houston at San Antonio (two night games).

If the once-mighty Dallas Steers are given to brooding they might well consider this day one of the most forlorn in their recent Texas league career.

From their lofty estate as leaders of the league virtually all of last season the Bovines have descended far this season; they have, in fact, reached the bedrock of the cellar. They slipped into that spot last night despite valiant overtime efforts in successive games with Oklahoma City and Tulsa. Tuesday night the Indians beat them in 17 innings, 7 to 6. Before a hometown crowd the Steers went to pieces in the twelfth inning against Tulsa and lost, 11 to 7.

Last night's loss could be attributed to a heavy dose of the pumpling baseball the Steers have played all season. Tulsa scored five runs in the twelfth.

San Antonio's challenging Missions ran into a stone wall in Houston, which snapped a Padre winning streak of six games with a 3-to-1 victory. The league-leaders from Oklahoma City thumped Fort Worth 9 to 6 to keep their relative advantage over Beaumont, which was trimming Galveston 13 to 1.

Townsend's Borrowing Plan Blocked By SEC, Asks Five Million Gift

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Pampa Daily News
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON June 1 — Dr. Townsend recently tried to borrow $5,000,000 from his devoted followers. He offered personal promissory notes for loans of $10 and up.

The Securities Exchange Commission heard about it and quietly told the doctor that anyone who offered notes to the public for more than $100,000 came under the securities act and would have to file an application for registration.

There has been considerable bitterness about it inside the Townsend movement and now the Townsend clubs are going to hold their third national convention with headquarters at the Powhatan hotel, directly across Pennsylvania avenue from the S. E. C.

No demonstrations against the SEC have been announced but you can't tell. Meanwhile Townsend has notified all those who had advanced money and don't want to let him have it as a gift that their loans will be returned.

The $5,000,000 Townsend General Welfare fund has been changed from a loan fund to a $5,000,000 gift fund for the same announced purpose of financing educational campaigns, mass meetings national broadcasts and the national convention in order to get Congress to pass the general welfare bill embodying the Townsend plan.

Individuals and clubs are enthusiastically sending in gifts of from $10 to $100. In his original appeal for loans Townsend said: "My personal assets at this time, aside from the Townsend National Weekly which is already pledged to the Townsend movement, are about $500."

J. W. Brinton, manager of the weekly, recently discovered that some clubs were admitting members for dues of 25 cents a year instead of the $2 officially required. He has soundly rebuffed them, exclaiming:

"And these Townsend club members—who pay half a rent a week to the support of the Townsend movement, expect Dr. Townsend and the Townsend club to put over a national program which will bring them an income for life after sixty!"

Edgar Bricht, Wilson who many years ago practiced law in New York with the now Supreme Court Justice James Clark McReynolds, well remembers his hold partner's virtue of Scotch thrift. The other day he read how McReynolds had given a bootblack in the Capital barbershop a dollar with which to go to the circus and had promised to make it $5 if the colored boy would stick his head in the lion's cage.

"Dear Mac," wrote Wilson to the Justice, "Your friends are alarmed about your affair with the bootblack. You are getting more generous with your money than Harry Hopkins is with ours."

Van Devanter's Biggest Thrill Justice Willis Van Devanter who is retiring from the court at the age of 78 after a distinguished career of conservatism, served drinks for photographers the other day at his Maryland farm.

As might have been expected, the drinks turned out to be old-fashioned cocktails.

The aged justice has been having so much obvious enjoyment from visits of cameramen and correspondents as to create the suspicion that he craved their acquaintanceship through many years of cloistered life in the court. Out at his farm he has shown the boys his hogs, horses, the regular session passed bills calling for increasing the levy on oil more than 100 per cent, that on corporation franchises substantially and those on natural gas and sulphur a smaller percentage, but none of these proposals got anywhere in the Senate.

A special session on taxes seems certain to come eventually as the state has a tremendous deficit and the legislature this year approved much larger expenditures than two years ago. The best guess is that it will be in the fall unless Allred changes his mind and decides to let the present session wrestle with revenue-raising.

Several constitutional amendments will be submitted to the voters Aug. 23 and in event some of them carries a special session would be needed this fall to enact enabling legislation.

The governor's statement that he would not submit taxes until later was a setback to the rumor he will resign this summer to accept an appointment as a federal judge. Those believing that report had said he would keep the legislature in session almost continuously until his tax program was put into effect.

When the chief executive decided not to call the legislators back the next day after the end of their 131-day regular session, his first inclination was to let them rest about three weeks.

Many came to him, however, and said they would prefer a much shorter interval so they would not have to give up apartments, then their new ones. After hearing their appeals, he cut the rest period to three days.

For capital newspapermen, Allred's decision meant the longest virtually continuous period of strenuous legislative reporting in many years. The regular session of 1933 lasted 143 days but there was no special session until fall.

FARMERS ORGANIZE TO WAR ON GRASSHOPPERS

DES MOINES, Ia., June 3 (AP)—Throughout much of the nation's "bread basket" farmers organized today to attack billions of hatching grasshoppers.

Farmers recognize the hoppers as a potential destroyer of their alfalfa, clover, corn, grasses, oats and other crops.

County mixing stations prepare and distribute poison bait to farmers under the supervision of county agents and county grasshopper control committees. The bait is spread in the hatching areas at the rate of about 30 pounds per acre.

C. N. Anshand of Washington, D. C., in charge of cereal and forage insect investigations, said materials for bait now are moving into most of the infested areas, with a preponderance going into Texas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado and Iowa.

Authorities in 43 states reported the recent warm weather accelerated 'hopper hatching, and most of them said the population was greater than last year.

AUSTIN, June 3 (AP)—A large number of Texas business men and natural resources producers were relieved when Governor Allred announced that he did not intend to submit taxation to the current special session of the legislature.

Some of the lobbyists, however, remain unconvinced. They feel the governor yet may call for new taxes if the lawmakers dispose of race repeal by the session's midway mark.

They assert it would be good strategy for the chief executive to indicate otherwise in an attempt to influence the low tax bloc in the Senate not to delay repeal.

CONTRACT WIFE

Chapter VII
In the club dressing room Pats dropped her cape and took one last look in the mirror.

Again the music. Someone caught Pats' hand and she smiled over her shoulder at Don.

"Tell me who you are," he begged. "Much as I hate to do it I want to introduce myself so you can get used to the idea before we unmask."

Pats put the fingers of her free hand over his lips. "Don't tell me. It--it might spoil everything."

"But it won't spoil anything to know your name." His arm drew her closer. "Please tell me."

Pats shook her head. "You would find my name very uninteresting."

"Don was experiencing the joys of pursuing the Coronet," she said in a breathless little rush.

"How can I say when I have no idea who you are?"

"But I want to see you again." Pats had never dreamed Don could be something about you.

"I have tea every Friday afternoon at the Coronet Garden," she said in a breathless little rush.

"I don't know that I care for masked balls," she remarked after a silent rhythmic moment.

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—Congressional leaders completed arrangements for a speedy start—possibly late next week—of an inquiry into what President Roosevelt termed the "evil practices" of tax dodging.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the Senate finance committee, said wealthy men and women referred to in the President's message would be given an opportunity to testify if their names are disclosed.

The preparations went forward even though the House still had to vote on a resolution to appoint six senators and six representatives to conduct the inquiry.

GREEK TO THEM

AUSTIN, June 3 (AP)—The Greeks had too many words for it. Foreign language examination taken by University of Texas seniors to fulfill a degree requirement proved too much for those who enrolled in Greek.

"I don't see why I never get to go anywhere," Rosie fretted.

The next day was Thursday and Pats shopped. She was waiting for the coronet on Friday and nothing in her wardrobe quite fitted the occasion.

"But one day I went to the bear's house." She was entranced. Don playing games with her. It was too perfect.

"So you did—so you did. Have you seen the bears lately?"

"Oh, no," shaking her lovely golden head. "I never went back. A girl can't be too careful, you know."

The music stopped and they stood together, laughing at their own nonsense.

Again the music. Someone caught Pats' hand and she smiled over her shoulder at Don.

"Tell me who you are," he begged. "Much as I hate to do it I want to introduce myself so you can get used to the idea before we unmask."

HEAVY RAINS MOVE SOUTH FROM PLAINS

(By The Associated Press.)
Rainwaters continued to roll over much of central and Panhandle portions of Texas today, raising strong-running currents in countless stream beds.

As if to make amends for the drought conditions that turned northwest Texas into a dust-breeding area in the last few years, the terrific rain showed no signs of abating as they moved slowly south. Early today the heaviest of the rains had moved into central West Texas, dumping from five to six and a half inches of water in the Abilene area. Near Aspermont, Swenson and Peacock, a near-cloud-burst turned tiny creeks into formidable rivers.

Shinking Creek swept out of its narrow banks to halt traffic between Swenson and Peacock yesterday. Two bridges were reported torn from their foundations.

At Ballinger another torrential fall, three and a half inches, sent creeks up rapidly. Lightning accompanied the rain in 30 counties north of Abilene, while precipitation was spotted east, west and south of there.

Farther north the Canadian river continued its rampage after reaching its highest level in 30 years. It began to fall slowly. Small streams near Dalhart continued overburdened but torrential rains of the last several days were draining off rapidly.

The 36 passengers on a marooned train near Perico were taken off last night. They were hauled to safety in wagons after an enforced stop of 24 hours.

Heavy rains fell at Coleman, where the streets were flooded. In the hill country around Llano downpours filled numerous streams and backed water to within 15 feet of the highway bridge floor.

Child Labor Question Barrier FDR Must Clear To Get Wage-Hour Law

WASHINGTON, June 1. — The administration's minimum wage-maximum hour-child labor bill is the measure Roosevelt has had most in mind during his war on the Supreme Court.

If the court can swallow this one it will have removed the most effective barriers which once were up against the New Deal program. And federal regulation will have taken its longest stride.

Many of the barriers have been knocked down in the past few months. The big one remaining, legal experts say, is the Hammer vs. Dagenhart 5-to-4 decision, which in 1918 knocked out a law prohibiting products made by child labor from going in interstate commerce.

You could hear the boys whispering repeatedly about Hammer vs. Dagenhart as the hammer and sawed on the Black-Connelly bill, Roosevelt, in his message to Congress, quoted the dissenting opinion of the late Justice Holmes in the Hammer case. But he didn't quote the deciding majority opinion. And that's what the court must reverse if the New Deal is to have its wage-hour-child labor law.

Production was not subject to federal control. Day insisted, and "the making of goods and the mining of coal are not commerce." Consequently, he held, the production of articles intended for interstate commerce was "an invasion by the federal power of the control of a matter purely local in character."

And that reasoning still stands, although the child labor law applied only to the welfare of exploited children, and the proposed legislation is based on the claim that federal regulation of business is necessary for protection of the entire economic system.

Getting Close to Line
The court has been gliding close to Hammer vs. Dagenhart in recent decisions, however, and it would seem to require no great stretch of reasoning to get around it if five justices were so minded.

In the recent Kentucky Whip and Collar case, wherein the court upheld an unanimous decision the Ashurst-Sumners act prohibiting shipment of convict-made goods into states having laws against such goods, Chief Justice Hughes opined: "The Congress in exercising the power conferred to it by the Constitution is as free as the states to recognize the fundamental interests of free labor."

Roosevelt cribbed the line when he said in his message to Congress that "Congress may exercise that power to regulate commerce among the states to recognize and protect the fundamental interests of free labor."

Anyway, the New Deal legalists say that ought to help upset Hammer vs. Dagenhart. They also cite the majority reasoning in decisions validating the Wagner labor act. Hughes in the Jones & Laughlin opinion recognized denial of collective bargaining as a possible means of obstructing interstate commerce but carefully avoided reference to wages and working conditions.

Hughes did say, however: "The fact that employees here concerned were engaged in production is not determinative." Attorneys for the corporation had insisted that it was.

Not Certain to Pass
If the bill passes, the makeup of the court when the act comes up for final judicial test may determine the fate of this drastic proposal.

There is no real assurance that the three liberal justices—Brandeis, Stone and Cardozo — would uphold it. There is plenty of doubt about Chief Justice Hughes and Justice Roberts. Justices McRaynolds, Butler and Sutherland almost certainly will vote against it if they are still on the court when it comes up, although it is probable that whatever Mr. Roosevelt picks to succeed Justice Van Devanter would vote to declare it valid. (Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

VAN DEVANTER LEAVES COURT TO BE A FARMER

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP) — Justice Willis Van Devanter yesterday exchanged his busy 26-year career as a member of the Supreme Court for that of a gentleman farmer.

His colleagues in a letter expressed "high esteem and warm affection" and "a poignant sense of regret" at his voluntary retirement.

In reply, Van Devanter said he would carry happy memories of the association "together with proud respects and true affection" for each of those remaining.

The 78-year old justice attended his final session of the court Tuesday when the tribunal adjourned until next October. His retirement marks the first change in its membership since Benjamin N. Cardozo was appointed a justice in 1932 to succeed 91-year old Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Van Devanter intends to spend most of his time at his 788-acre Maryland farm. Later on in the summer, he expects to visit the Seignior club, a gathering place for sportsmen in Canada.

President Roosevelt has given no indication of his intentions in selecting a successor.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, is being boomed by many of his colleagues for the post. A number of other government officials and widely known attorneys also are being discussed.

The general belief that grass hoppers make an excellent turkey feed was not upheld in experiments at Oklahoma A. and M. college.

CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, June 3 (AP)—At 1:15 the night the legislature ended its general session Rep. Emmett Morse of Houston walked to the microphone in the hall of the House of Representatives and made a motion.

"I move a call of the House until noon," he said.

There was a laugh all around and the motion was adopted.

The legislature had adopted a resolution providing for sine die adjournment at noon Saturday and a call of the House to bring in absentee members and maintain a quorum could not be ordered for beyond that hour.

As always is the case in the termination of a general session, the clocks in House and Senate were stopped a few minutes before noon and the legislature went right on functioning until it had completed its work.

It was about 3 a. m. Sunday when the clocks were run up to 12 o'clock and officials of the houses formally announced adjournment at "noon Saturday."

Residents of Austin were startled recently by big headlines in a newspaper stating 15 bandits had held up a Missouri-Pacific train near the city. Then—ha, ha—the news story beneath explained it had happened May 19, 1937, exactly 50 years ago.

The robbers stuck up the operator at McNeil Junction and cut telegraph wires. When the train pulled in the crew were covered with rifles and the looting began.

A spectator reported the robbers were led by a tall slender man wearing whiskers who seemed to know his business.

When one robber started to open a mail pouch another was overheard to say that if anything was taken from the mail car it might as well be everything, whereupon the leader said:

"That's so; we don't want to run up against Uncle Sam. We just want to tap Jay Gould a little bit."

When one of the passengers became restive the leader told him to keep his seat for "we don't intend to hang any of you."

The news was slow reaching Austin, it seems, and when organization of a posse was undertaken men were easy to find but horses and guns were scarce. Poses finally set out, however, not only from Austin, but also from Georgetown and Round Rock.

Cash and valuables obtained in the robbery were estimated at $3,000 to $4,000. A short time previously a train carrying $300,000 had passed and it was thought the robbers might have been aiming at it.

Every "open" case of tuberculosis infects nine other persons, Governor Alford commented recently. He said one of the outstanding needs of the state was adequate hospitalization for sufferers from this disease.

"At present the state can care for only a few of the total number of cases and these in their early stages," he said.

First Down in Steel Strike Clash

Struggling to regain his feet after he had been knocked down in a free-for-all before the gates of the Chicago Republic Steel Corporation plant, this striker was the first "casualty" and one of 1900 repulsed by officers when the strikers marched on the company property from a nearby union meeting. Six of the 110 officers, and 13 strikers were injured.

GOVERNOR'S VETO AXE RECALLS SOME REALLY HISTORIC VETOES

AUSTIN, June 3 (AP)—Governor James V. Alford's flailing veto axe this session of the legislature caused old-timers to lean back and recollect some really historic vetoes.

A veto always has elements of drama. It demands courage for the chief executive to contradict the will of a majority of the lawmakers, and governors sometimes rise to metaphorical heights in their messages of refusal to sign bills.

When he set precedent by vetoing the joint rules of the 45th legislature, Gov. Alford made repeated references to a "minority bloc." The legislative galleries filled immediately to see what the "minority bloc" would do in retaliation, but little was said since the most effective work is done in conversation.

Gov. Tom Campbell, fighting the railroads, successively vetoed three railroad merger bills. He pictured himself as an alarm-giver when "the danger is at our doors." When Gov. James E. Ferguson swept off his desk a minor proposal to regulate the nursery business he observed "it seems it is time that we return again, at least occasionally, to the Democratic principle that the best government is the one that governs the least."

STEEL STRIKE SETTLEMENT NOW POSSIBLE

(By The Associated Press.)
Governor Martin L. Davey of Ohio sounded an optimistic note in the seven-state steel strike today when the announcement he was "hopeful" of an early settlement which would send 82,000 men back to the mills of independent producers.

After conferring with officials of two of the strike affected companies, Governor Davey asserted "if there is not too much said, I feel that progress can be made."

At the same time Philip Murray, SWOC leader, summoned a strategy council for a general tightening up of the strike battle line.

Sherman Dalrymple, chief of the United Rubber Workers, pledged support of the Akron, O., rubber workers to the steel strikers' cause. At Cleveland, a councilman planned to protest to the mayor use of an East Side flying field as a supply base for airplanes taking food into Republic's besieged Warren and Niles, Ohio, plants.

Van A. Bittner, director of the SWOC in the Chicago area, challenged the steel firms involved in the strike to "carry their case" to President Roosevelt.

A mass funeral was held today for five of the six men killed in the strike riot Memorial day near the Republic plant in South Chicago.

Approximately 700 miners were to return to the Superior Coal Company's No. 4 mine at Wilsonville, Ill., today, marking the end of a 200-hour underground all-down strike.

President Fred S. Falmer agreed, with reservations, to a "share-the-work" program demanded by the miners.

POLICEMAN ABDUCTED, HANDCUFFED TO TREE

DALLAS, June 3 (AP)—Three abductors of a Dallas suburban police officer were sought in Central East Texas today.

Detective G. W. Byrd of University Park, adjoining Dallas, returned here last night to help county and city officers trace the three men who he said forced him to go to near Sherman with them and handcuffed him to a tree.

The men were identified by Byrd as Thomas Hutto, 36, and his 26-year-old son, William Jefferson Hutto, who were joined by a third man before they left Dallas for the ride toward Sherman.

The Huttos, Byrd said, overpowered him as he drove them toward the Dallas county jail. A farmer chopped down the small tree to which the officer was bound, Byrd said. The elder Hutto was described as an ex-convict and his son as being under a suspended juvenile sentence for burglary.
