Texas Wholesale Grocers Not Out to Fight Chains

DALLAS, Feb. 19. (AP)—More than 50 wholesale grocers gathered here today at the opening session of the Eighteenth Annual convention of the Texas Wholesale Grocers' association.

The highlights of today's session were the address of A. H. Berry of Mexia, president, and a discussion on chain stores by J. M. Radford of Abilene. "Although the chain store question will come up for discussion, it is only incidental," Sam Hanna, executive secretary, said. "The association existed long before the chain stores were organized, and the impression that this meeting is for the purpose of launching a fight on the chains is altogether erroneous."

Woman's Trial Is Nearing End

COURTHOUSE, Kingsville, Feb. 19. (AP)—The prosecution today began putting the final touches to its case in the murder trial of Mrs. Maude Long, charged with poisoning her husband, Jim Long. Mrs. E. D. Brown of Corpus Christi was the morning's first witness in the state's rebuttal.

Her testimony was corroborative of part of that of Mrs. Gilbert Smith, mother of Pat Smith, 14-year-old boy who testified of a long period of illicit relationship with Mrs. Long.

The voice of the witness, who is nearly deaf, was shrill in the quiet courtroom as she told of having gone to Corpus Christi with Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Long on Sept. 4, the day J. E. Rhodes, Corpus Christi drug clerk, said the widow bought poison from him there.

The lawyers had to stand close to Mrs. Brown because she could not hear them from their seats. She said the party left here where she had been visiting at about 8 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 4 and arrived in Corpus Christi "somewhere between 9 and 10."

Her testimony was intended to dovetail with other witnesses' stories that Mrs. Long had opportunity to buy the poison and did buy it on that morning. On cross-examination Mrs. Brown said her son married Mrs. Smith's daughter.

OIL TEST NEAR CITY PLANNED BY BROTHERS

McIlroy Company Has Idea Well Is Needed

LOCATION WILL BE MADE SOON

Will Drill Wildcat on W. M. Castlebury's Land

Announcement that the McIlroy brothers of Amarillo are planning to drill for oil on the W. M. Castlebury land adjoining the city of Pampa was made yesterday at Amarillo. The test would offset the Talley addition.

The location will be made immediately in the southeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 126, block 3, according to proposed plans.

Emphasizing that drilling of a test so close to the city limits will add in the development of Pampa, Mr. McIlroy is contemplating asking the city to furnish water for drilling of the well. He said about 700 barrels a day will be required at first, and then about 300 barrels a day.

The McIlroy brothers own the Dixon Creek Oil company and interests in other companies operating in the Panhandle, including the Sitamrock Oil and Gas company.

The Dixon Creek Oil company was one of the few who were able to secure leases in the area surrounding the Empire well in section 13, block 7, Carson county. In the section adjoining the one on which the producing well is located, the McIlroy brothers have leased a strip 660 feet wide and one mile long. They are planning to make six locations on it at once. Eight locations may be drilled on the strip. The lease price was $40,000.

Operators Oil company also secured valuable acreage near the well.

Anti-Tammany Men Are Not to Join Republicans

DALLAS, Feb. 19. (AP)—Scorning the invitation of the Republican state executive committee to participate in the Republican primary this year, anti-Tammany Democrats today were planning a statewide meeting in either Dallas, Fort Worth or Waco.

J. V. Hardy, finance committee chairman, said yesterday they were waiting for a ruling from the state supreme court on whether state Senator Thomas B. Love could be kept from the regular Democratic primary ticket as a candidate for governor. Alvin S. Moody of Galveston would call the meeting in about 15 days, he said, and the anti-Tammany organization's active campaign would begin April 1.

"We are Democrats," he said, "dry inside and outside, and have nothing Republican about us except that the Republicans helped us carry Texas for Hoover."

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Feb. 19. (AP)—A blond woman bootlegger was sought today as the Zanesville operator of a regular aerial rum running route.

Clinton R. Hellingstein, 22, of Detroit, arrested Monday night when his red monoplane, loaded with ten sacks of Canadian liquor was damaged in landing near here, told authorities he delivered his cargo to a blonde woman who loaded it in a large automobile and drove away.

Hellingstein admitted bringing the liquor from a place "near Detroit," according to state prohibition agent A. C. McDougal. It was his first trip, the Detroit man said, he having just taken over the route from a man who went to Florida.

For twelve weeks there will be a Boy Scout meeting each Monday evening in the basement auditorium of the First Methodist church. The sessions will begin at 8 p. m., according to Supt. R. B. Fisher, chairman of the course.

The study was organized last evening. Dr. Roy A. Webb was elected scoutmaster for the course, with Felix Corley as assistant. C. A. Clark, executive of the council, will be present to assist in each study. Arlin Meek was chosen as scribe. Eight patrol leaders will be appointed at the next meeting.

The meeting time was changed from Tuesday to Monday from 8 to 10 p. m. in order that more men might attend. Those present last night were J. D. Gill, Dr. Roy A. Webb, Felix Corley, Swain Solon, Chris. B. Martin, J. L. Lester, R. B. Fisher, and R. A. Selby.

Mr. Fisher stated today that several other men had called him this morning to say that it was impossible for them to attend 1 tonight, but that they were heartily in favor of his meeting and would assuredly be there next Monday. The aim of the course is expressed in the following statement, whose author is unknown:

"To make boys better citizens is a high calling and a God-given privilege. It is an opportunity which comes but to few men. It is indeed an honor to be a leader of boys.

"Let us go forward into Boyland as fully equipped leaders of boys. Then, let us bring back, as a result of our effort, a vast army of clean, unspending young men fully prepared to take their places in life, with all of its temptations and manifest responsibilities."

Joe Bowers, Sr., Is Ill Since Return

Joe Bowers, Sr., who returned last night from El Paso, was too sick to see anyone, Mrs. Bowers said this morning at the hotel where she lives. She said she had not talked to him herself since his return, and added that he is not at the hotel.

Mr. Bowers has been ill for the last ten days and went to El Paso last week to recuperate his health, Mrs. Bowers said.

While in El Paso, Mr. Bowers told police that he had been robbed of about $5,000, but later said that he would drop all charges against the person he suspected of taking the money.

Plans for City Hall Here Liked

City commissioners returned from an inspection of Abilene and Sweetwater city halls convinced that the city hall planned by Architect W. R. Kaufman is better than either seen.

Not satisfied with the buildings of the two West Texas towns the commissioners will use Mr. Kaufman's sketches as a basis for Pampa's new city hall.

Value in the inspection trip lies in avoiding the mistakes they believe the two towns made in building their city halls. The Abilene hall cost $127,930 while the Sweetwater hall cost $135,000. Pampa's will cost $150,000. Clyde Fairacre, F. M. Gwin and Mr. Kaufman accompanied the commissioners.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 19. (AP)—Independent oil operators from all parts of the state today prepared to launch a fight against pipeline tariffs at a meeting called for Saturday. Lieut. Col. Main has had an extensive and successful career as an officer of the Salvation Army, having been a commissioned officer in its ranks for over forty years, and will be able to give the local board some interesting sidelights on the many sided work of the Army, as well as some practical advice as to the best methods of organizing and conducting the financial campaign.

Col. Main will be accompanied by Mrs. Main and Adjutant Harry Purdum, his general secretary; some other Salvation Army officers from nearby corps will be present. Special meetings will be conducted on the street at 7:15 p. m. and in the Army hall across the street from the Methodist church at 8 o'clock. Hoover's Part in Muskie Shoals Is Told in Letter

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Testimony that President Hoover, while secretary of commerce, had attempted to aid in solving the long standing problem of Muskie Shoals by an effort to reconcile the divergent views of the power and chemical groups, was heard today before the senate lobby committee.

The information was received in a letter written to Claudius H. Huston, now chairman of the Republican national committee by J. H. Worthington, chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee River Improvement association, on July 28, 1927.

The letter said Huston and Worthington in the fall of 1925 "did out utmost to bring the power and chemical group together, and we made a dismal failure."

It added that Huston, a former president of the Tennessee River Improvement association, "along with Mr. Hoover attempted to do so later and that Mr. Hoover even undertook to bring these interests together thru Owen D. Young, and failed."

Young is a former chairman of the Radio Corporation of America.

Quinn was operator of the telephone exchange at the rear of which the Quinn's made their home. All telephone communications to the town were severed when cables to the exchange burned, and the town's only electric lighting facilities were wrecked.

The rangers arrived yesterday.

NEW MEASURE BY SANDERS IS BEING DRAWN

Fifth Called Session Is Under Way at Austin

SENATE RESTING UNTIL MONDAY

Terrell Hearing Before House This Afternoon

AUSTIN, Feb. 19. (AP)—Unsolved problems left by the fourth called session confronted the 41st legislature when it reconvened in fifth extraordinary meeting under call of Governor Moody today. There was a quorum in each house.

The senate voted to adjourn until Monday, the house having given its consent to that arrangement. The house was to start a hearing this afternoon on charges of impeachment preferred against Comptroller S. H. Terrell.

Both houses passed a bill appropriating $150,000 to pay mileage and per diem and to meet expenses incident to the session.

Senator W. A. Williamson of San Antonio was elected president pro tem of the senate without opposition. He succeeded Senator Julian P. Greer of Athens, who served during the interim between the fourth and fifth sessions.

Penitentiary centralization and revenue raising measures were introduced anew.

The coalition in the house against centralizing the system in an industrial plant at Austin reentered its bill proposing expenditure of $550,000 in rehabilitation of existing properties, including the central plant at Huntsville and farms.

The administration proposal to build a new system throughout, was sponsored again in the senate by Senator Edgar Witt of Waco and in the house by Representative John F. Wallace of Teague.

Representative Phil Sanders of Nacogdoches reintroduced his $1 per ton tax on sulphur and said he would present a bill taxing natural gas during the day.

Other sulphur tax bills were offered by Rep. T. N. Mauritz of Ganado, who would levy a $1 tax, but provide that the revenue be applied towards reduction of the ad valorem tax after July 1, 1931, and by Rep. R. E. Morse of Houston, who would place a fifty-cent tax on sulphur.

Sanders would tax natural gas production as follows: One fourth of one cent per thousand cubic feet on the first 100,000,000 cubic feet; one-half of one cent on the next 100,000,000; one cent on the next 200,000,000, and two cents per 1,000 cubic feet on all over 500,000,000 cubic feet.

AUSTIN, Feb. 19. (AP)—The 41st legislature was called to convene in fifth extraordinary session today, after having completed a fourth special session last night. Long before the session adjourned sine die, Governor Moody proclaimed reconvening the law making body had been read in both houses.

The governor resubmitted penitentiary reorganization, reform and rehabilitation and revenue measures designed to create funds to state departments and institutions.

Also he gave one of the principal reasons for his keeping the legislature here the matter of facilitating a fair and impartial trial of charges made against the state comptroller of public accounts.

The house arranged to start a hearing this afternoon on charges proposing impeachment of Comptroller S. H. Terrell based on accusations by State Auditor Moore Lynn in a special report. Terrell was alleged to have violated the law in several particulars while administering the affairs of his office. One charge was that he had diverted public funds to his personal use.

Governor Charles M. Hind Governor Moody had planned to let the house, sitting as a whole, continue its hearing of the charges after yesterday's session expired and to call the fifth session after the investigation.

CAMPOLO AND RISK TO BE DRAWING CARD

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 16. (AP)—The first move in a somewhat belated build-up for the semi-final battle between Johnny Risko and Victor Campolo in the heavy weight show card February 27, was slated today with the shift of their training quarters from outlying precincts to the main centers of activity.

In the absence of any heated debate over the main go-between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, paired for the benefit of the society for advancement of heavyweight championship claims, the conviction has grown that Risko and Campolo may owe the card. It packs all the possibilities of a spectacular scrap for ten rounds or less, and substantial interest has developed in it. Campolo's future in a field in which he is among the few significant rivals for gargantuan Primo Carnera is involved in the outcome. Likewise the prestige of rough and ready Johnny Risko, classed as too equal to engage the Argentine in New York, is at stake.

To put these rivals more in the spotlight, Campolo packed his training bag today for a shift in the scene of his workouts from Coral Gables to a Miami Beach casino not far from Sharkey's camp. Risko prepared to hustle in from Hollywood to do his stuff in the same ring that Scott uses, off the Biscayne boulevard in Miami.

Bill Turpin, former city policeman, says he is recovering health, wealth, disposition, optimism at his chicken farm five miles from Pampa on the Borger road. We hadn't seen Turpin in a coon's age when we saw him the other day. He has 800 Wyandotte chicks and more coming on. Bill says the chicks are a relief after months of dredging in ditches, staking down rubber, and toiling in vagrants. And noting the flock chiving through the tan on his cheeks, his destination isn't hard to believe.

Deputy Herman Wachtendorf says he would like for Governor Meedy to attend a wrestling match between Tex Watkins and Leo Chase and then hear Dan say that boxing must be stopped because it is more brutal than wrestling. Blooding a man's nose may be more brutal than gouging out his eyes, Herman says, but he doubts it.

While Bill Faulkner, C. P. Buckler, and a number of local men were making a trip to Mount Vernon while they were at Washington a week ago, a Washington citizen was asked by Mr. Faulkner, "what do you people think about President Hoover—we don't know much about what he's doing?" Mr. Faulkner said the man answered, "well nobody seems to know. We don't know any more about what goes on in Washington than you people down in Texas."

In explaining Senator Morris Sheppard's attitude on the proposed oil tariff, Mr. Faulkner said the "first question asked by the senator was, 'What effect will this have on the price of gasoline?' The tariff-hating Democrats in the senate are obsessed with the idea that such a tariff will benefit a few and work a hardship on the mass of people. Mr. Faulkner said one of the best arguments used by the oil men to undermine this theory was reminding the senators that the price of gasoline was practically the same as it is now when oil was $2 a barrel. Every week or so J. G. Emmett learned the polo racket in the U. S. Army and has been at it ever since, Mr. Brandon says. "That boy's love for horse flesh is equalled only by his love for polo," Mr. Brandon said.

NOTED JOCKEY NOW IN MIAMI HAS FAST CAR

BY ALAN GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor) MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 16. (AP)—The blacksmith's helper in New Haven, who rode to fame and riches in the sport of millionaires and kings, sat clumping through a pile of frayed slippers on the porch of his Miami bungalow. His eyes had a sparkle in them as he recalled thrilling finishes, the flash of thoroughbred horseflesh down the stretch and the roar of the crowd.

These memories still are fresh to Edward L. (Snappy) Garrison, the man who made the "Garrison finish" an internationally famous word. Thirty-five years and more ago, in the hey-day of the maverick decade, Snapper Garrison established a reputation as one of the greatest jockeys the turf has ever known. The consensus is that no one since then has surpassed his all-round ability and knowledge of how to handle thoroughbreds. Tod Sloan, Garrison's successor to popularity and fame, was a spectacular rider. "Horses ran for Tod," as Garrison succinctly expressed it. Of the present-day riders, said Garrison: "Leverne Fator is the best in the United States. He has a good head and knows when to wait with a horse. He is a stronger finisher than Earl Sande and has a knack of holding a horse together."

Garrison has not reached the finish of his own turf career, though now at the age of 62, he is pretty much in the background. He has his home here, his racing car, speed thrills and the horse race. Enjoying the confidence of racing men over a long period of years, the Snapper has run the gamut from apprentice to jockey, owner of his own stable to trainer, steward and placing judge at a number of the tracks. Stockily built, he weighs around 160 now, but scaled only 80 pounds with his saddle for the first race he rode in 1884 and never weighed more than 82 in his prime as a jockey.

Garrison was a regular in the saddle at the age of 16, after three years in "Father Bill's" daily "barrel stave" school of apprenticeship at Hartford, Conn. The barrel staves were used to prod the jockeys. At 19 Garrison owned and rode his own stable winning $62,000 in a year. At 26 in 1894, Garrison received a salary of $25,500 as contract rider for August Belmont, James B. Haggin, and Gideon Napp. A year later he wore the silks of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, now owner of the New York Yankees. Garrison's finish first was passed to the great jockey's record in 1895 when he came from nowhere with an outsider, Dutch Roller, owned by James R. Kenne to win the great Eastern handicap at Sheepshead bay. It stuck, for he never liked front-runners and invariably rated his mounts along to do his stuff in the stretch—"where the money is."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON, typist in a New York publishing house, marries ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of the department in which she works. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18, and in Paris, and a son, JUNIOR, 15, at school. A blissful honeymoon in Bermuda is interrupted by a cablegram that Tony is on her way to America. Judith and Arthur sail to meet her. When Knight brings his daughter to their Long Island home the girl ignores her step-mother. Later she tells Judith she must leave the home. Knight, over-hearing, forces Tony to apologize. The girl spends much of her time with MICKY MORTIMER, blasé amusement-seeker whom she met in Paris. As days pass a state of armed neutrality exists between Tony and Judith. Junior arrives home for the holidays and treats Judith with aloof politeness. Christmas proves to be a dismal day with both children away from home and all Knight's eager preparations are wasted. Judith is uncomfortable until the boy returns to school. A letter comes from ARUNT HELENE, who had chaperoned Tony in Europe, telling Knight of the girl's affair with Mortimer. Tony easily persuades her father that her aunt has misjudged her. ANDY CRAIG, a young man Knight has helped through college, calls on Tony. Craig is to be employed in the legal department of publishing house. He has loved Tony for years—rather hopelessly. One afternoon Judith encounters Craig unexpectedly. She is annoyed at her embarrassment. Because time hangs heavily on her hands, Arthur suggests that Judith should have the house redecorated. Craig calls frequently and one evening when Tony refuses to accompany him to a dog show at Madison Square Garden, Judith goes. Tony, left alone with her father, tells him it is Judith and not herself whom Craig comes to the house to see. Knight denies this angrily. Tony surprises Judith by asking her to have lunch in town with her next day. Judith keeps the appointment and is met by Andy Craig, who explains Tony asked him, too, meet her. The two are together when Tony arrives half an hour later with her father. She is artful enough to make Judith's and Craig's protests sound incriminating. After Knight has gone Judith goes to his office to explain. She is told by his secretary he cannot see her. There is a reconciliation after Knight arrives home. He tells Judith they are to entertain a group of his business associates next week at a theatre party. Judith buys a beautiful gown for the occasion. When she tries it on Arthur praises her extravagantly. Tony overhears and next day Judith finds the dress riddled to bits. The frock is duplicated and the theatre party proves a success. When Judith and Arthur reach home after 3 a. m. a call comes that Tony and an escort are held in a police station charged with reckless driving. Knight brings his daughter home and Tony pours out her wrath upon Judith. The girl is ruffled and rebellious for two days. She and her father quarrel. Affairs reach such a state that Judith appeals to Andy Craig. Knight sees the pair together but later Judith denies to her husband that she spent the afternoon in town. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI

The minute after she had spoken Judith felt uneasy. She thought (or was it imagination?) that Arthur's eyes, meeting hers in one swift instant, held reproof. Silence came between them. Knight's gaze returned to his newspaper and Judith watched him covertly as she lay back among the divan's pillows. "Arthur," she said presently, "tell me about today at the office. Did you get the Turner contract signed?" "Not yet," came the answer. Arthur Knight did not lower the newspaper and he spoke as a man engrossed in important matters. He continued reading. Throughout the rest of the evening Knight's part in the conversation was nothing more than terse answering of questions. Judith was uncomfortable. An open magazine lay in her lap. She looked down at it from time to time but the rows of type might as well have been invisible. Arthur had always reserved the hours following dinner for carefree, relaxed discussion of the day's events. He liked to hear how his wife had been spending the day, details of the household affairs which she had a way of turning into amusing anecdotes. He had confided plans and details of many a business venture, and because she had spent those months in the offices of the big firm, Judith was an understanding audience. These hours together had seemed the best part of the day to Judith ever since coming to her new home. Tonight all this was changed. Could Arthur possibly know? Judith darted another glance toward the newspaper. That was all she could see of her husband—just a bit of dark hair protruding above the top of the evening newspaper. No, she didn't think he could know about her chat with Andrew and she didn't think he could object if he did know. Just the same Judith felt guilty. The pink in her cheeks (which would come whenever she was agitated) showed this plainly. "But it wasn't a lie—really!" she reassured herself. True, she had been at home all afternoon since returning from her luncheon engagement with Andy Craig. She tried repeatedly to convince herself that she had not been guilty of falsehood. Of course, after her plans worked out, she would tell Arthur the whole story. If she said anything now about Tony and Andy she was afraid Arthur would spoil it all. She was very sure her plans were bound for success. Arthur's aloofness and his strange manner tonight were the first law. Judith turned to the radio for entertainment, found that the merry quips of Broadway chorine and mellow music of old ops was equally horrid. After nearly an hour of this she arose. "I'm going upstairs, Arthur," she said. "Will you be coming soon?" "After while." It was after a considerable while that Arthur Knight cast aside the paper he had been reading. The fire in the grate was dying lower. Its soft blaze and the glow of the archment-shaded lamp behind him were the room's only illumination. For several minutes Knight watched the flames in the fire-lac. Then he leaned back in his chair, closed his eyes and sat perfectly quiet. When his eyelids lifted the man's face was a perfect mask for his emotions. He arose like a man thoroughly tired and went up the stairway.

In the morning Judith's fears were all forgotten. She and Arthur breakfasted together. He seemed, if anything, a little more affectionate than usual as he kissed her goodby and departed for the day. She hummed a half-remembered tune happily as she went about the morning's routine. Great things were expected to take place this day. Andy Craig had promised to use his influence to bring Tony to reason and Judith relied implicitly upon Andy. As she had for the past three days, Tony Knight took her breakfast and luncheon in her own room. Harriet carried the tray of covered dishes and dainty china up the stairway and they came down empty. "Miss Tony seems to be feeling better today, ma'am," the maid said. "Yes, I think she'll be much better soon," Judith said. Even without Andy's connivance Judith was sure that Arthur Knight's rebellious young daughter would be tiring soon of her self-imposed seclusion and would seek companionship. Three days without her usual diversions must have been very, very trying to Tony. At noon there came a telephone message for Judith. "Hello," she answered eagerly. "This is Mrs. Knight." "Judith? It's Andy. Well—I can't report much luck." "What's happened?" "Why, I telephoned half an hour ago. Tried to get Tony to promise to go somewhere with me tonight. Her answer wasn't exactly complimentary. "But you know—" "Yes, I know! Anyhow I told her I'd be around this evening about eight o'clock and expected her to change her mind." "She will, Andy." "Yes? Guess you mean maybe she will. Anyhow I'll drop in for a little while this evening." "I'm sure she'll see you," Judith told him. "Thanks a lot for calling, too." "Oh, don't mention it! How's the housekeeping?" "Fine!" the girl laughed. "Goodby, Andy." "Goodby!" Without any real reason to explain the fact, Judith felt cheered. The world was brighter—yes, seven times brighter!—when at four o'clock Arthur Knight arrived home. Judith, finding the big house quiet and lonely, had curled up on a leather footstool before the living room fireplace. Her back was toward the hallway entrance of the room. Sandy, who had become almost a constant companion, sat before her, his shaggy little head resting in her lap, eyes lifted anxiously to the girl's. Judith stroked the dog's head, thoughtlessly. She did not hear her husband enter the room, and his voice startled her. "Hello!" "Oh—why, Arthur! You're early!" Sandy was ignominiously disregarded Judith sprang to her feet and met Knight in the middle of the room. He was smiling and holding toward her a large round ivory box tied with violet ribbons. "Yes, I ducked out a little ahead of schedule this afternoon. Here, thought you might like some posies." "Oh, Arthur!" Flowers for her. Flowers from her husband! Sandy, the dog, came nosing up to his mistress, gawwless wondering what in the world made her so excited and her cheeks pink, and why her eyes were suddenly so glamorous and starry since this man had come. The violet ribbons dropped from the box. The lid came off and Judith lifted away the folds of tissue paper. From their sheltered depths she drew a corsage of violets. "Arthur, they're beautiful. Oh, it was dear of you to bring them!" "Like them? do you?" "I love them. Arthur, they're just like—do you remember that other bouquet?" He nodded. Then suddenly, still holding her bouquet of fragrant blossoms, Judith Knight sought refuge in her husband's arms, and hid her head on his tweed shoulder. "But, darling, you mustn't! Why—why—!" The girl raised her head. Tears still lingered in her eyes but she was smiling and she dabbed at the dewy lashes with a handkerchief. "It's just—just because I'm happy, Arthur!" Knight's arm went around her again, tender, but also strong and comforting. Then he kissed her and Judith laughed uncertainly and admitted she was acting like a silly child and went to put the violets in water to keep them fresh. When she returned she found Arthur Knight standing with his back toward her, gazing out one of the large windows. She went up to him and put both hands on his shoulders. Knight turned. "Judith," he said, "I'm afraid we haven't given you very much pleasure in this house." "Please don't say that!" "No," he continued, shaking his head, "we might as well face the truth. I'm beginning to feel old, Judith. Never realized it before. Old!" "You're not old, Arthur. I won't have you saying such things. It isn't true!" "Yes," he persisted. "It's true, all right. . . Judith"—he paused, watching her intently—"are you sorry?" "Sorry?" "Are you sorry you married me?" "Why of course not! What makes you talk like that? You've done everything to make me happy, Arthur. Sometimes when I suddenly think how much I have to thank you for, how much you've done for me, I feel I'm not half grateful enough." He moved impatiently. "But I don't want you to be grateful." She laughed at him. "All right then, Mr. Knight. I'm not grateful." He refused to be cajoled out of his mood. "There's one thing I want you to promise me," he went on, eyeing her seriously. "You've got to promise, Judith." "What is it?" "I want you to promise that if there's ever—anyone else—a younger man who care about you'll tell me." The girl's face had paled. For an instant she hesitated. Then—

Responsibility for Run on Bank to Be Sought Soon

PORT WORTH, Feb. 19. (AP)—Seeking to fix responsibility for the rumor believed to have caused a run of depositors on the First National bank of Fort Worth, oldest national bank in the city and one of the strongest financial institutions in the Southwest...

After a run that started at 2 p. m. yesterday, the bank remained open until 11 o'clock last night, meeting all withdrawals and assuring depositors their checks would be paid upon presentation...

While the run was in progress, an orchestra furnished music in the lobby and sandwiches were served to depositors. Withdrawals were confined to small savings and checking accounts...

President W. E. Connell, joined by other officers of the bank, issued a statement that the bank was in the best condition in its history and did not owe a cent to anyone or to any bank.

W. T. Waggoner, multimillionaire Texas cattleman and oil man and Lynn P. Talley, governor of the Dallas federal reserve bank, addressed the crowd about the bank.

Waggoner pledged his entire wealth which amounts to several times the total deposits of the bank, to the payment of all deposits. He urged the people to "go to your homes and forget malicious rumors."

He said he had been a stockholder and depositor of the bank for more than fifty years.

'SEVEN KEYS' IS BEST AS DIX TALKING FILM

The ability of talking pictures to bring the greatest plays of the stage to the screen for all the world to see and hear is strikingly demonstrated at the Rex theatre, where Richard Dix's first Radio starring film, "Seven Keys to Baldpate," is now having its first local showing.

As the stage play produced on Broadway by George M. Cohan, this fast-moving melodramatic farce was described as popular. After playing in New York for an entire season, it went on the road for another year, playing in the major cities of the country.

And now Radio Pictures, through the miracle of the talking screen, presents "Seven Keys to Baldpate" in a manner that makes it even greater entertainment than the stage play. The embellishments of the camera, the splendid performances of the star and his supporting cast, the entire resources of a great film studio in Hollywood, all combine to make it one of the most diverting mystery farces ever shown at the Rex Theatre.

Richard Dix is ideally suited for the role of Margee, the nivellist, whose visit to the deserted Baldpate Inn brings about the gripping series of adventures. His voice, trained on the stage and in several talking pictures, is expertly recorded.

Two members of the cast appeared in Cohan's original New York stage production. They are Joseph Allen who plays the mad hermit, and Carlton Macy, the old constable. Others who give excellent performances are Miriam Seegar, Margaret Livingston, Lucien Littlefield, DeWitt Jennings, Nella Walker, Edith Yorke, and Crawford Kent.

4,000,000 BROWS WRINKLE, MARCH 15 IS TAX DEADLINE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Uncle Sam expects more than 4,000,000 individual income tax returns for 1929 to come his way before March 15.

Every single person who had a net income of $1,500 or more for the year, or a gross income of $5,000 or more, and married couples who had net incomes of $3,500 or more, or gross incomes of $5,000 or more, must file returns.

Returns are to be made on special forms with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which each person lives.

The new tax is one-half of one per cent normal tax on the first $4,000 in excess of personal exemption and credits, two per cent normal tax on the next $4,000, and four per cent normal tax on the balance of net income.

There is a surtax on net incomes of more than $10,000.

"Gross income" includes all income derived from any source whatever, unless it is exempt from tax by law.

"Net income" means gross income less various deductions allowed.

A taxpayer also may claim $400 for each person dependent on him for chief support, if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support.

The law provides that a single person, who is "head of a family," shall be allowed the same personal exemptions as a married person.

When husband and wife, living together, make separate returns, either may claim the $3,500 exemption if they may elide it.

Most taxpayers are salaried persons who are entitled to 25 per cent credit on their "earned net income." To arrive at this credit correctly, the taxpayer should compute the amount payable without earned income credit, then deduct 25 per cent. The balance is the tax due.

"Earned income" is defined as wages, salary, professional fees and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered.

Following is an example of how an unmarried taxpayer, with no dependents, would compute his tax on a net income of $5,000:

Net income	$5,000.00
Less personal exemption	1,500.00
Balance taxable at one-half of one per cent	3,500.00
One-half of one per cent of $3,500.00	17.50
Less 25 per cent of earned income credit	4.38
Balance of tax payable	$13.12

Mrs. J. M. Dodson and Mrs. Dick Walker Give White Elephant Bridge

A white elephant party and a combination of black and white formal dinner were given last evening by Mrs. J. M. Dodson and Mrs. Dick Walker at the former's home. The most striking note in the clever detail of these entertainments was the checkered cover from the fireplace, which covered the background for a row of white elephants.

The most interesting members of the white elephant club and their husbands each member furnished one perfectly useless article, which was given as a white elephant favor to the other. All awards went to the man who brought such commodities as his hat, teeth, and hair pins. At the close of the first round, the couple holding high scores was rewarded with large white candy boxes, while the couple holding low scores was presented colored balloons to speed by the game.

Following is the list of members and their gifts: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Dodson, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Buckner, Mr. and Mrs. M. Craven, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Max Schaefer, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George E. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Truitt, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hines, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bourland, Mrs. Tom E. Rose, and Mrs. George Walker. Mr. Dodson and Mr. Walker also played.

A delicious refreshment course was served at the close of several games.

Twin Six Bridge Club Entertained Monday by Mrs. Paul Shepherd

Suggestions of George Washington's birthday gave color and interest to the appointments of Mrs. Paul Shepherd's party on Monday evening, when she entertained members of Twin Six bridge club and a few guests.

Small American flags adorned score favors and refreshment plates, and small insignias of the Washington anniversary decorated the card table accessories.

Mrs. T. E. Simmons received a box of cherry, box-ones for high guesses. Mrs. C. P. Buckler was awarded a set of tumblers decorated in a cherry design, the favor for high club bids, and Mr. Walker, also scoring high, was given a bridge brand. Mrs. A. D. Johnston, and Dan Grubson held the low scores. She was consoled with a box of cherries, and he with a box of board matches.

The players were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. John L. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Buckler, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Grubson, the hostess, and P. M. Soderstrom.

Mrs. Link formerly was chairman of Circle 3 and lately has been a member of Circle 2.

Twenty-five members of the four circles met at the church and from them went to Mrs. Link's home, where a series of games and contests were directed by Mrs. Ernest Fletcher of the social committee.

At the close of the program of entertainment, Mr. W. B. Barton, president of the W. M. U., presented Mrs. Link a handsome toilet set, the organization's farewell gift to the honoree. Refreshments were served.

Study Club Considers Poetry of America's Foremost Modern Poet

Edward Arlington Robinson, son of a poet, ranked by contemporary critics with Robert Frost as the only American poet of Poe and Whitman, was the writer studied by members of the A. A. U. W. and College Study club at their meeting Monday afternoon in Mrs. C. S. Dewey's home.

The biographical study with which the program opened was presented by Mrs. Clyde Fatheree, who told of his boyhood and education, his association with the MacDowell colony, his long career before his recognition, and his later recognition and distinguished awards.

Miss Fannie May, member of the Central high school English faculty, and a guest of the club for the afternoon, gave a comprehensive review and general analysis of Robinson's work, following which she presented a minute study of "The Man Against the Sky." Her discussion was greatly enjoyed by the club members and the hostess invited guests.

Mrs. E. A. Shackleton directed an instructive program on William Cullen Bryant, at a meeting of Wayside club yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. J. E. Seitz was hostess to other members at her country home. The leader gave a biographical sketch as the first number.

"Thanatopsis" was paraphrased by Mrs. Tom Clayton, who read the most famous passages of the poem. "To a Water Pail," and "The Planting of the Apple Tree" were read by Mrs. Billy Taylor. Mrs. F. J. Hudgel read and paraphrased "Robert of Lincoln."

Plans to devote one meeting a month to home demonstration work under Miss Myrtle Miller occupied the business period. An exchange of flower and vegetable plants, canned fruits, and various other articles from the homes of the members was carried on in a pleasant social hour. The hostess served a dainty refreshment course at the tea hour. Each plate was accompanied by a George Washington hatlet.

Colonial Silver Tea Given by P.-T.-A. Is Pretty Affair Monday

A Colonial silver tea given Monday afternoon by the East Ward Parent-Teacher association at the East Ward school building was outstanding among the many attractive social events of this colorful season of hearts and important birthday anniversaries. More than 150 guests registered between 3 and 6 o'clock, and many others were in attendance.

In conjunction with the tea, the faculty of East Ward held visiting day at their school. Classes were open to parents and other visitors from 9 until 12 o'clock Monday morning, and during the hours of the tea, exhibits of all varieties of work were on display in the different rooms. The scores of visitors to classes and exhibits were highly complimentary in their comments to teachers.

Some of the city's finest talent was secured for the program of music and readings, which was in continuous progress during the tea hours. Cooperation of a large number outside the East Ward P.-T.-A. also contributed to the success of other details of the entertainment.

Mrs. J. S. Wynne and Mrs. George Knibbs, wearing picturesque Colonial costumes, presided at the tea table in the office of the school, where soft lights, flowers and ferns, and beautiful appointments created a pleasant atmosphere of home. The tea service was all of silver. A bowl of red carnations in the center of the table, and a pair of wax tapers carved in miniature of George Washington and Martha Washington, standing at each end, completed the charming arrangement. Refreshments included little hatchet-shaped cakes and cherry colored mints.

The guests registered upon their arrival in a round guest book, the cover of which was painted to resemble a huge cherry. Each was "tagged" with a red paper hatchet. A bust of Washington stood on the table where the registration took place. A donation of $35.00 was received in the silver offering.

One of the most interesting program features was a group of musical numbers by pupils of the public school music department. Thomas Fannell, head of the department, arranged and directed those numbers, and Mrs. Ray Chambers, violin teacher, played the piano accompaniment for several. Students appearing in this group were: Helen McKinney, and Leona Ledem, piano; Betty Anne Fannell, Bob Wallace, and Eleanor Frey, violin; Smith Wise, Jr., and Paul Keim, saxophone.

Other musical numbers included: vocal solos by Mrs. Gillette of Borge; piano duets by Mrs. Thomas Braham and Mrs. F. L. Elliott; a piano duet by Mrs. Ernest Barksdale and Miss Vivian Vickers; piano solos by Mrs. Ray Wilson, Mrs. C. C. Boles, and Miss Inez Barrett; a violin solo by LaVerne Twiford; vocal selections by Supt. R. B. Fisher; and a banjo number by Verne Springer.

The musical selections were interspersed with readings, which likewise were by talented persons. Readers on the program were: Virginia Rose, Mrs. H. G. Twiford, little Marjorie Hill, Mrs. Grady Moore, Clotilde McCallister, Martha L. Jones, and Dorothy Jo Moore.

Feathery Frills Flutter Army Hearts In Capital

Miss Jane Crosby (right) and Miss Katherine Carr (left), two popular army girls of the capital's younger set, show new fashions in fans and flowers.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Army girls in Washington present the ultra feminine mode in dance frocks this season in striking contrast to the background of severe tailor-made uniforms of their escorts.

Feather fans, flowers, beads and bows are favored for that demure effect which the up-to-date members of the younger set prefers.

Mrs. Coolidge introduced the huge feather fan at a White House party last winter and since then it has been gaining in vogue. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the vice-president, carries a huge one of gold feathers which was sent her as a gift.

So many artificial flowers are worn by the younger girls that often they cover the whole shoulder and side. In color they range from flame to green and in kind from orchids to violets.

Katherine Carr, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Daniel Carr and Miss Jane Crosby, daughter of Major General and Mrs. Herbert Crosby are two popular army girls in the capital's younger set. Major General Crosby has just been named by President Hoover to head the district's police.

Remarkable Illusion of Size Is Accomplished in Marionette Show

The famous French Marionettes which are to appear at Central high school auditorium next Friday, under the auspices of the Council of Clubs, are bringing to Pampa a Marionette theatre that is reputed to be the largest in the world, as well as the largest Marionettes that have ever traveled.

One of the startling features of the performance of Jean Gros's French Marionettes is the illusion that is caused by the figures, with regard to their size. After an audience has watched the Marionettes for ten minutes, all sense of proportion is lost, it is said, and the puppets appear almost life-sized. Hence, when the performance is completed, and an actor steps out among the figures, he seems to be about thirty feet tall. The audience simply gasps with amazement.

Strangely enough, no glasses are used to create this illusion, the eye is simply deceived by the fact that all the scenery and small properties, such as chairs, tables, stools, and so forth, are made in proportion to the figures, and thus the human eye, having nothing with which to compare the Marionettes, loses all sense of size.

The artists engaged for this type of theatre, are of necessity most versatile people, capable of doing many things with their voices and also with instruments, not to mention possessing great imagination and the skill to work the figures to give them an interesting portrayal. A tenor, a baritone, a contralto, a pianist, a violinist, a harpist, drummers, and puppeteers, not to mention others, help in the mechanical details of a show.

Due to the extraordinary interest caused by the Marionettes and the many requests to be allowed to see behind the curtains, Mr. Gros has promised to remove the large proscenium curtain and show the evening audience how the puppets are made to do their tricks, by allowing the puppeteers to be seen at work on the bridges. This will prove to be a great feature of the performance, as the curiosity of the audience is always at high pitch when the performance is concluded.

Mr. Gros is presenting at the main performance "Uncle Wiggly at the Circus," an adaptation from Howard R. Garis' delightful "Adventures of Uncle Wiggly," which children the world over read and hear as bedtime tales. All the characters of the animal kingdom are to be present, including the celebrated Hallow Swamp orchestra.

Mark Twain's "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" will be given in the evening, followed by the magical Marionette illuminated ballet. Over a thousand strings are in operation during the performance, some of the Marionettes requiring as many as forty to accomplish the necessary action.

Mrs. Wm. T. Fraser entertained London Bridge members and a few other friends at four tables. Favors of the afternoon went to Mrs. H. W. Johns, high for club; Mrs. Arthur Swenson, high for guests; and Mrs. Paul Kasalike, for top cut.

Smalling, a special guest made the high scores of the afternoon. Mrs. J. T. Roberts scored low and Mrs. Jim White topped the game end cut. Attractive favors were presented.

Russian Policy on Religion Cause of Much Unrest

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (AP)—The religious policy of the Russian Soviet government was the subject of protest today by Christian and Jewish organizations and defended by friends of the Soviet.

Developments in the movement of protest included:

An appeal to President Hoover by the American committee on religious rights and minorities to withhold recognition of the Soviet government until the religious persecutions cease.

Designation of March 2 by the Lutheran world convention as a day of prayer in the interests of the Christian churches of Russia. This was in line with similar action by Pope Pius XI, the archbishops of Canterbury and York in England. The chief rabbi in London, and Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal church in New York.

A statement by the American Jewish congress denouncing "the unspeakable repressions" of religion in Soviet Russia and pledging cooperation with all other faiths to put an end to it.

Adoption of a resolution by the national council of the Episcopal church directing its acting president, Bishop James de Wolf Perry of Rhode Island, to prepare and issue for use in the church a prayer for the sufferers in Russia.

Adoption of a resolution of sympathy for the Christians in Russia by the New York state assembly.

Meanwhile, the Communist party, from its headquarters in Union Square issued a statement denying the accuracy of reports of religious persecutions emanating from Russia and declaring the stories were propaganda inspired by the fear of the capitalistic world of the rapid strides Soviet Russia is making in Communist production.

AUSTIN—

 legislation was completed, but he changed his mind and reconvened the legislature immediately.
 The proposed tax on sulphur and prison centralization legislation were lost with the expiring session, but the bill to amend the statutes governing the fee system was salvaged as the only piece of major legislation of the session.

That the governor intended to continue to withhold appropriations until the legislature had heeded his suggestion sent to it several days ago that additional funds from which to appropriate be provided first was seen in his failure to submit the subject in his new proclamation.
 Rep. Phil Sanders of Nacogdoches, author of the house bill proposing a tax of $1 per ton on sulphur, planned to put his bill back into motion at once, and the compromise house prison rehabilitation measure was to get into the hopper early.

Rep. Jack Keller of Dallas said that those who had drafted the house penitentiary bill had agreed to resubmit it, proposing the expenditure of $550,000 in rehabilitating the prison properties as they existed.

The administration's measure directing centralization around an industrial plant to be located near Austin was certain to come up early.

Governor Moody, meanwhile, prepared to deliver a series of radio addresses in an appeal to the people to urge their representatives in the legislature to vote for a new plant near Austin.

His campaign with the people moved opponents of his plan in both houses to attempt to pass resolutions yesterday petitioning the radio broadcasting stations to grant them an equal share of time in which to give their side of the controversy to the people. The proposal lost in the house when it was ruled out of order, and the senate voted it down by a single vote.

After an investigation of the treasurer's accounts, the state affairs committee reported that W. Gregory Hatcher "has been guilty of no acts that reflect upon his honor as a public official, or upon his character as a man."

It said the treasurer's system, which had been followed by a long line of predecessors in office, "does not conform to all provisions of the statutes and is adequate to properly protect the interest of the state" and suggested that this defect could be overcome by proper cooperation between the treasurer and auditor.

The house killed the senate bill which would have placed a ban on importation from Florida of citrus fruit nursery stock.

Governor Moody vetoed two bills, one by Representative E. P. Palmer of Alto placing the jury wheel in force in Cherokee county, and the other by Senator E. Westbrook of Sherman raising the fees of constables in civil cases filed in justice of peace courts.

Recess of Naval Parley Follows Fall of Tardieu

LONDON, Feb. 19. (AP)—The five-power naval disarmament conference adjourned this afternoon for one week because of the French cabinet crisis caused by the fall to the Tardieu government.

The decision was reached after a meeting between Secretary of State Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald at which the chief of the American delegation urged a holiday in order to give the French an opportunity to adjust their domestic situation.

The British prime minister immediately consulted Dino Grandi, head of the Italian delegation, and Bejiro Wakatsuki, head of the Japanese delegation, both of whom agreed on the advisability for such a recess.

During this "naval holiday," the experts' committee will continue the work upon which they have been engaged, but all other conference activities will cease, the adjournment being until February 26.

Secretary Stimson was understood to have been entirely responsible for initiating the recess.
