

PERSONALITY OF PLAYERS IMPORTANT

BY FIELDING H. YOST

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 5. (P)—Outstanding football seasons are the years of the great-football personalities.

In common with everyday life, football personalities are of two kinds. One is the player of great mechanical perfection. The other is the inspirational leader.

One, because of his unerring play, his constant presence at the right spot, his advance of the ball, his punting, passing, tackling, may be the darling of the bleachers.

The second, because of his ability to mould eleven men into a cohesive unit and use that unit to the limit of its individual powers, also may be adored by the crowd, but his real value appeals especially to his squad and his coach.

To borrow a simile from another field of public appearance, one is the mechanically perfect, the technically thrilling Hefter; the other the impassioned Krolster.

No coach would turn down the perfect mechanical player. But his heart, and those of the squad go out to the great leader.

Michigan had one outstanding great leader: Boss Weeks, quarterback of the first two teams I coached here. Weeks was the leader with cut reproach. He drove two Michigan teams to a total of 1,214 points against 12.

Had he told either team to charge a stone wall, it would have done so, I believe, so much did the teams believe in him.

Sometimes a combination of the great player and the great leader appears. Yales seems to have one now in Albie Booth. Boss Weeks possibly carried the ball 12 times in his two years.

Booth runs, passes, punts, and seems to inspire the Yale team whenever he steps on the field.

Aubrey Devins, the Iowa captain a decade ago, combined both qualities to a high degree, and was possibly the greatest leader and player the middle west has known.

In spite of the success of its teams, the middle west is without its usual quota of great football personalities this fall. Fessler remains at Ohio State and Hank Bruder holds the public eye at Northwestern, partly because of his bad luck, partly through brilliancy as a player.

Carideo is a leader of parts at Notre Dame and has some able assistants around him.

Others are beginning to show above the general level. These include Hinchman at Ohio State; Goldberg, Wisconsin; Kissell, Purdue; Berry, Illinois, and Newman, Michigan, of the sophomores.

Brockmeyer, Minnesota; Young, Nebraska; Mills, Oklahoma, and "Jarring Jim" Batsch of Kansas are of the second and third year players.

Other sophomores are likely to take their place in the sun before the season ends.

To date, however, the Magurakis, Glasgows, Pest Welches, Pommerings, Oosterbaans, Joestings, Friedmans, Granges and Trevines have not appeared.

Star Athletes Get $1,500,000

SEATTLE, Nov. 5. (P)—Helene Madison, world's greatest woman swimmer and three world known track stars, Paul Jessup, Steve Anderson and Eddie Genting, all of Seattle, will have a $1,500,000 athletic building to covet in by the middle of December.

The famous athletes are the first to be signed by the new Washington Athletic club of Seattle and probably constitute the strongest four-man-woman team ever obtained by a new athletic organization.

Helene, 16-year-old Seattle high school girl, has broken an even dozen world's swimming records. Jessup this year has hurled the discus to the amazing distance of 189 feet 8 7/8 inches for a world's mark. Anderson eight times has tied the world's high hurdle figure of 14.4 seconds.

Genting made a name for himself when he clinched victory for the Yankees in the international track meet between the United States and Great Britain when he ran the half-mile anchor lap on the mile medley relay team.

Jessup and Anderson were graduated from the University of Washington last summer while Genting has another year of competition.

Oklahoma Coach Defends Football As Night Game

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 5. (P)—Night football is neither brutal nor outrageous as some of the coaches of large schools charge, says Lynn Waldorf, Oklahoma A, and M. mentor.

The Aggie coach declares there is no eye strain on the players after the first five or ten minutes. After a short time the players' eyes become accustomed to the artificial light, he asserts.

Instead of being detrimental to the health of the players, night football is better for them than daytime play, especially in the south, believes Waldorf.

"Night practice," the coach says, "is unnecessary. All a team needs to do to get accustomed to lights is to go on the field 10 minutes or so before the game."

Tunney Awaits Latest Decision

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (P)—Fight fans expected to learn today whether Gene Tunney administered a technical knockout in supreme court Monday to his one-time friend, Timothy J. Mara, who is suing for $500,000 of the former champion's $1,742,282 earnings.

The decision was to be rendered this afternoon in supreme court where Justice Hattin Monday took under advisement a motion to throw the case out of court.

Look Who's Coming

Wade Sings Swan Song at Alabama That Chills Southern Conference

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 5. (P)—November finds Wallace Wade, swan song edition of the Alabama Crimson Tide surging with championship strength through Southern conference ranks.

The Tide already has rolled up and over Tennessee, ending a winning streak of the Volunteers that extended back 33 games, and has flooded the aspirations of Vanderbilt for an all-victorious season and a Southern conference championship.

A husky and fast eleven with plenty of reserves, Wade's machine is a far cry from the thin red line that used to guard Alabama's goal. With 2,858 pounds distributed among the eleven regulars, it looks more like a crimson typhoon. Wade, silent and reserved—the mystery man of southern football—has built a crushing attack from the remnants of last year's team and one sophomore. Next year he leaves the Tide to take an attractive job at Duke.

Captain Charles (Footie) Clements and Freddie Stington, 215-pound tackles, are the key men in a smash ing rush line. Stington was one of the outstanding tackles of the country last season, winning an all-Southern berth, while Clements was just about as good.

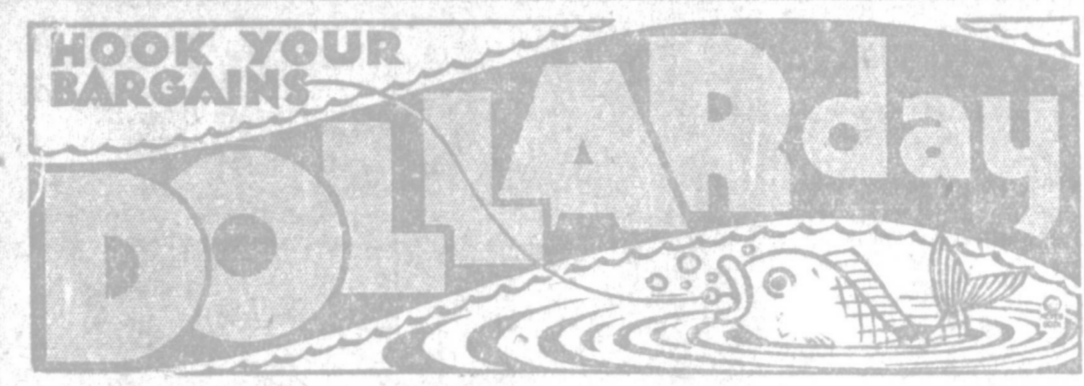

These ponderous youths and their mates give the first string line a weight average of 202 pounds. The ends, better than average, are Albert Eimora and James Moore. The hard-driving backfield boasts James Campbell, called "Spinner" for his aptitude in spin play; John Henry (Flash) Suther, a running streak and Ralph McWright, half-back and John Cain plunging, kicking sophomore, at fullback.

Cain is the only sophomore on the list. The other ten regulars are seniors.

The Tide will need plenty of power for it still must roll against Kentucky, Florida, Louisiana State and Georgia, in conference battles.

Basketball practice at Pampa high school will begin after Thanksgiving for both boys and girls teams. The boys team will be composed of experienced players, as nearly all the boys who lettered in the sport last year are in school now. The schedule for the season has not been made.

SPORT SLANTS

Alan Gould

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

Football teams having acquired the habit of robbing up an hour's notice or even no notice whatever to confound the experts, it may prove a good precaution to point out the early November invasions of the east by two squads entitled to more headlines than they usually get.

The reference is to the University of North Dakota and Marquette University, both headed eastward with unbeaten records—The Dakotans to tackle Army at West Point and Duquesne at Pittsburgh within six days, Marquette to play Boston College at Boston.

Army may have figured it was scheduling a "breather" by signing the "flicker-tails" before smearing Illinois at New York, but no doubt the soldiers have already revised this figuring.

North Dakota won its first six games in a row, scoring 147 points while allowing the opposition only 7, on top of which C. A. West, the director of Athletics at Grand Forks, N. D., writes me:

"Permit me to add that the University of North Dakota has won two successive North Central Intercollegiate conference championships without being tied or beaten and last year defeated Loyola of Chicago 7-0 and Creighton University of Omaha 34-0."

Marquette has won five games in a row with a record of 113 points against an allowance of 7 to its foes, including Grinnell, Drake and Creighton.

The Milwaukee school has been an outstanding mid-west performer for years, its 1929 eleven having walloped Boston College after holding the powerful University of Detroit team to a 6-0 tie.

Two Mothers

Two mothers—a real one, and a foster-mother—are seeking custody of a three-year-old Lillian Jean Roth in the courts at Oakland, Calif. The foster-mother, Mrs. C. F. Sanborn, says that the real mother, Mrs. Alene Alexander, gave her the child when she (Mrs. Alexander) was sick and believed herself dying. Mrs. Alexander is in court contesting Mrs. Sanborn's claim to the child.

It is interesting to note how Yale classifies her football foes according to the price of admission to the Bowl at New Haven. Among the opening opponents, and Alfred, scheduled as a "soft spot" on November 8, are listed at 50 cents, general admission.

Maryland and Georgia, although they have harassed the Blue now for several years, rate only $1 for admission, although for at least the Georgia game this year most of the 50,000 onlookers gladly would have paid double the price.

Brown, an older foe, can be seen in the Bowl for $2, following which the price is boosted to $4 each for Army and Dartmouth, both in or near the sell-out class. Princeton and Harvard are "tops," $5 each and try to get them for that or any other price.

In the east, Tony Blano of Fordham and Ben Tickner of Harvard are all the rage as centers but in the Rocky mountain area they talk only of Jonas of Utah.

They tell this one about Jonas: Against Brigham Young he knocked down the opposing center, took out a back who had cut diagonally across to tackle Davis (Utah ball-carrier), got up and went down the field to cut down the safety man in time to allow Davis to cross the goal for a touchdown.

Clemson Back Is Fine Dixie Star

CLEMSON COLLEGE, S. C. Nov. 5. (AP)—Maxzy Welch, Clemson quarterback, makes a bid for recognition along with Jack Roberts, Bobby Dodd, Shipwreck Kelley and other Dixie top-notchers.

It was the potent passing of Welch that enabled Clemson to walk over South Carolina in the 19th annual state fair contest. Had he not placed so accurately his long forward passes, the score might have been entirely different.

Sports writers are hailing Welch as a second Jack McDowell and making predictions that he will go down in this year's football history as one of the outstanding southern backs.

Dimmit: Appellant's motion for rehearing overruled: Jesus Ramirez Jr., Hays; L. M. Thomas, Dallas; Lee Taylor, Trinity; C. A. Norton et al, Farmer; Roy Grundy, Wichita.

Senator Borah to Accept Salary

BOISE, Idaho, Nov. 5. (AP)—Sen. William E. Borah, will accept his $10,000 salary as senator when he begins his next term in office on March 4.

He made this statement tonight in reply to a direct question, only after he was assured that his election was a certainty by a plurality of probably three to one.

The senator declined during his present term to accept an increase in salary from $7,000 yearly to $10,000 voted by congress on the grounds he was elected by his constituents to a job paying the lesser sum.

"I do not feel that I could accept an increase in good faith without giving them an opportunity to express themselves," he said at the time.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CELIA MITCHELL, 17, faces a new life when she leaves the home in Baltimore where she has lived with her widowed mother, MARGARET ROGERS, to join her father, JOHN MITCHELL, and her grandmother in a stately New York dwelling.

The girl had not even known her father was living until the day he came to the Baltimore apartment. Celia had supposed BOB ROGERS, her mother's second husband, to be her father. Mitchell offers the girl a life of wealth and immediately everything changes. She leaves her mother, unaware that Mrs. Rogers is seriously ill and she leaves BARNEY SHIELDS, ambitious young newspaper photographer, who swears that some day he and Celia will be married.

The girl is lonely and ill at ease in her new home. Mitchell finds her in tears and is worried. He appeals to MRS. EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow whose husband has been Mitchell's close friend. Mrs. Parsons agrees to young people things it is obvious she regards the girl as a means to gain Mitchell's affections.

To this end she invites Celia to spend a week-end at her Long Island home. Among the other guests to TOD JORDAN, a handsome and fascinating young man who devotes himself to Celia.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

Jordan drew the girl quickly toward him. In that swift instant Celia was conscious only of the hypnotic gaze that held her. She had no thought of resisting as Jordan's arm pressed closer. He at that very moment, as though timed by a stage director, the French windows were thrown back and a figure appeared, silhouetted in a flood of light. Eve Brooks' throaty laughter pealed out on the night.

"Look at what I've found!" she cried. "Romeo—and if it isn't little Juliet out here rehearsing the balcony scene! Come on, everybody, this is a better place to dance than inside."

The others crowded after Eve. Celia had drawn away from Jordan in embarrassment. The young man, entirely undisturbed stood (where he was coolly smiling. Eve Brooks approached him, her eyes mocking.

"Your turn next," Jordan said casually, and as the radio orchestra again began its tempestuous blue harmonies, the pair moved off in a fox trot.

"Want to dance?" Jimmie Webster asked Celia.

She didn't want to. What Celia wanted was to slip away where no one could see how her cheeks were burning and ask herself how in the world she had come so near to forgetting herself, forgetting Barney Shields, forgetting everything! She knew Jordan had been about to kiss her. She had not even tried to stop him! The swift reaction was shame and burning remorse. Nevertheless she let Webster lead her away to the rhythm of the fox trot. Dancing with Webster was chiefly bobbing and turning and bobbing, but at least everyone was not looking at her.

Gradually Celia was able to conquer her confusion. She danced with Walter Carr and again with Webster.

Mrs. Parsons had disappeared. Kate Duncan and Courtney Brooks were sitting in the shadows at the far end of the porch. Lisi was trying to perform a sailor's hornpipe with coaching from the sidelines.

"Try this one with me?"

The orchestra had begun another waltz. Celia did not turn her head. She knew that Tod Jordan had come up behind her even before he spoke, and she had made up her mind not to dance again with Jordan.

"No, thanks," she said. "I—I'm just a little tired."

He stood in front of her then so she could not avoid his eyes. Perfectly straightforward his gaze was. One might have thought they had just met.

"Then let's sit over here," he suggested, nodding toward a rattan porch seat in the shadows.

"I prefer the moonlight."

"In that case so do I."

The porch rail was wide enough to make a comfortable seat. Celia had seated herself and was leaning against the corner pillar. She had no idea how becoming the pose was. Jordan looked down on her for a few moments, then dropped to the rail and sat facing her. He studied her face before he spoke.

"Eve Brooks thinks I like you too well," he said in that slow, oddly stirring tone.

The girl eyed him inquiringly.

"Surely, you understand that little scene of Eve's," he went on. "I hope you didn't let it disturb you! No one else would—that is, no one who knows Eve Brooks."

"Oh, no—I didn't mind."

Celia spoke quite as casually now as the man.

"That's right," Jordan said. "You see Eve, poor thing, is something of a cat. It's just as well to know that if you're going to be around her much, she's got the idea now that I'm interested in you."

There was a pause, timed romantically, then Jordan added softly.

"There's someone else not very far away I wish I could persuade to believe the same thing."

Celia was on her feet.

"Excuse me, please," she said. "I almost forgot! There's something I want to speak to Lisi about."

Then, with her heart pounding, she hurried away. Celia could not risk coming under Tod Jordan's spell again. His presence made her feel guilty.

She avoided him the rest of the evening. This, she was a bit surprised to learn, was not difficult. Jordan did not even ask her to dance again.

Celia joined Lisi and Walter Carr, who was describing his experiences as an amateur airplane pilot. Lisi declared she too was going to enter a flying school. Already she had a fund of technical information and asked Carr a great many questions.

The radio program switched from dance music to a monologue, and someone in disgust turned it off. Jordan had been dancing with Kate Duncan. Now they joined the group.

"Listen," Lisi looked up impulsively. "The party's getting stale. I know what let's do—let's go swimming!"

"But Lisi!" remonstrated her sister. "It's midnight."

"What of it? It's only two miles to the club. And there won't be a crowd around. I want a swim! Who else is going?"

Courtney Brooks and Webster were enthusiastic over this idea. There was some discussion and then the two men were off to get cars. Celia Mitchell, who had been listening in alarm, looked about for Mrs. Parsons. She was chatting with Jordan, apparently content to see her guests take entertainment into their own hands.

Celia edged away. When the opportunity came, before the cars had arrived, she touched Mrs. Parsons' arm.

"I think I'll slip upstairs," she said. "It will be all right if I don't go with the others, won't it? I'm really sleepy."

"Just as you wish, of course."

"Then I'll say good night now."

Celia disappeared. A little later from her upstairs room she heard shouts of laughter and then the sound of the cars going down the driveway.

So this was a fashionable house party! The evening had been nothing at all as Celia had imagined it beforehand. She stood by the window a moment looking out at the bright moonlight. Then she went to the dressing table, slipped her lovely pink frock from her shoulders, and presently was ready for bed.

With her chignon negligee about her Celia perched on the foot of the bed, feet curled beneath her. She took Barney's letter from her purse and spread out the pages. Then she re-read the whole letter carefully.

"Barney!" she whispered softly when she had finished. "Oh, Barney!"

For a long time Celia sat looking at the crumpled envelope. Finally she folded the pages tucked them away and put the letter again in her purse. After that she turned out the light and slipped into bed.

She lay with her eyes open, staring up at the black ceiling. There was so much in this new world that Celia Mitchell did not understand. She went to sleep at last, but it was not Barney Shields that the girl was thinking of as she dropped off to slumber. It was Tod Jordan and that unforgettable moment in the moonlight.

When Celia came downstairs next morning, wearing the little white tennis frock Mrs. Parsons had bought for her, there was no one else in sight.

Hilda, the maid she had seen the day before, told her that breakfast was ready. Celia went into the dining room and Hilda brought her fruit, toast and coffee.

After that Celia wandered out on the big porch. It was after nine o'clock but she saw no one. The garden was beautiful in the sunlight, Celia followed the cobblestone path, pausing to watch the goldfish in their pool, and then strolling on among the flowers. It was an informal garden, perfectly suited to the rambling house and broad grounds.

The day would be warm, no doubt, but the morning breeze made it perfect. There was a path Celia had not inspected the day before. Now she followed it.

She heard a shout and looked about quickly. Over the shrubbery ahead she caught sight of a flashing bit of motion.

Tennis! Of course. These must be the tennis courts she had heard Jimmie Webster talking about last night.

Now she saw them. A man and a girl on either side of the net in frantic pursuit of the tiny, spinning ball. It was Lisi and Webster. The players were too intent on their game to note the spectator. Lisi served smackingly, and Webster's racket sent the ball spinning back into an impossible corner. Lisi returned it. Over and back again. Over and back.

Celia watched, spellbound. She had never seen such skillful tennis playing. At last when the game was finished she waved and came forward.

Lisi paused a moment to call a cheerful greeting, and then the set was resumed. Celia sat on a bench at the side of the court and watched.

"Hello!"

She looked up. Tod Jordan, looking more bronzed than ever in his white clothes, dropped to the bench beside the girl.

"Good morning."

"I saw you heading this way, and so I followed," he said. "I hope you don't mind?"

"Why of course not!"

"Oh? I—er, rather gathered last night that you didn't care to be friendly?"

Celia continued to watch the flying ball.

"I'm sorry you thought that."

"Then it isn't true. I mean, you think you might possibly come to like me?"

"Enough to turn around right now and smile?"

There was no use. Celia couldn't pretend to quarrel. Celia didn't want to quarrel with Jordan anyway. She wanted to go on talking, saying little things in a way which meant so much.

The reserves of last night were forgotten. When the tennis players were exhausted and they all walked back to the house together. Celia was addressing Jordan as "Tod."

Mrs. Parsons met them on the porch.

"Celia," she said, "I have news for you."

Kidnapers of Election Judge Are Sought

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5. (AP)—The Federal government set out today to find the gunmen who kidnaped Rev. Y. Hedrick, chairman of the Jackson county board of elections.

Hedrick, seized yesterday morning as he was motoring from his home in Buckner, Mo., to the board's offices in Independence, was released last night after the polls closed. He had been blindfolded, gagged and beaten by the abductors who officers said, overtook him near Ripley, shoved him into their automobile and held him, lashed to a chair, while Jackson county voters cast their ballots and Hedrick's wife began to despair for his life.

Department of justice operatives, already active in a war upon election fraud that has resulted in the indictment of four election judges here, questioned Hedrick at length in an effort to obtain clues that would lead to the abductors.

Hedrick, who is cashier of the First State bank of Buckner, was released near a filling station in downtown Kansas City.

Giant Craft Moving on First Leg of Flight

ALTENRHEIN, Switzerland, Nov. 5. (AP)—Bucking wisps of snow and a bitterly cold wind, the DO-X, giant German twelve motored sea-plane, took off from Lake Constance this forenoon for a six hour flight to Amsterdam, the first lap of a projected transatlantic flight to New York.

The plane was captained by Commander Friedrich Christiansen, who hoped to stop at Amsterdam and Southampton before flying to Lisbon from where the transatlantic flight will be begun, probably about Nov. 12.

Three Atlantic stops en route from Lisbon to New York are planned, the first at Horta, Azores Islands group, the second at a fuel ship mid-way to Bermuda, and the third Bermuda, the object being to demonstrate possibilities of the machine and a safe scheduled voyage rather than to make a speed record.

There were only 16 passengers aboard for the trip to Amsterdam, although the craft can carry 150 or more without difficulty.

BABE RUTH ADOPTS TWO GIRLS

There are four in the Ruth family now, in name as well as in fact, and here you see the baseball idol with Mrs. Ruth and the two children they have adopted. At the left is Julie Hodgson, daughter of the present Mrs. Ruth, who was a widow when he married her in April, 1929. The other child is Dorothy Helen, 9, about whose parentage a cloud of mystery has hung since 1922. In the will in which she was left most of the $50,000 estate of her mother, first wife of Babe Ruth, she was mentioned as "my beloved child and ward, Dorothy Helen Ruth, at one time known as Marie Harrington." The children, however, have lived together as sisters, in the Ruth household, and their parents by adoption long have been "dad" and "mother" to them.

Long's Projects Are Approved

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5. (AP)—Governor Huey P. Long's 100,000,000 public improvement program provided for in eight constitutional amendments was approved by the voters of Louisiana yesterday by overwhelming majorities.

The largest vote was cast for amendment No. 1 creating $88,000,000 for paved roads and bridges by bonding part of the present gasoline tax. Other amendments provided for issuance of $5,000,000 of bonds to build a new state house at Baton Rouge, and authorized communities to grant tax exemption to new industries.

Mrs. F. P. Graham and daughter, Virginia, left Monday afternoon for California, where they will join Mr. Graham and Dick. They will spend the winter in California, while Dick will return to New Mexico.

Jack Douglas of Amarillo, manager and director of sales of the Panhandle Auto club, was in Pampa on business Tuesday.

Lions Cup Is On Display Here

A silver loving cup, 21 inches in diameter, to be presented by the Lions club for the best sportsmanship has been received at the Diamond shop. The inscription reads "Awarded to . . . for the best sportsmanship 1930 Lions club, Pampa, Texas." The cup will be awarded to a Pampa high school athlete at the conclusion of the football season.

New Warrior

Is Very Happy

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—New York democracy had a new happy warrior today, and the state had a governor re-elected to office by the largest plurality it ever gave an executive.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who called his friend and predecessor Alfred E. Smith "the happy warrior" in nominating him for president, warranted that title himself as he survived radiantly the 725,000-vote margin by which he was returned yesterday to the governorship.

Until yesterday the largest plurality for a candidate for governor was the 385,000 by which Smith beat Nathan L. Miller in 1922.

Mrs. H. E. Davis left the Worley hospital Monday.

Bible Must Be Read in Schools

LITTLE ROCK, Nov. 5. (AP)—Arkansas, on the face of incomplete returns, yesterday approved a constitutional amendment to require the reading of a part of the Bible daily in state schools up to and including high schools.

Governor Harvey Parnell, Democrat, was re-elected over J. O. Livesay, Republican, and Lawrence Wilson, Democrat, overwhelmed C. H. Harding, Republican, for lieutenant governor.

Injured Man Recovers
W. N. Simpsons, Gulf employe who was injured Oct. 30, at the No. 1 G. H. Saunders lease when he fell through the floor in band-wheel house while oiling belt suffering contusions, and shock, was dismissed from the Worley hospital Monday.

Mrs. Henry English was able to leave Worley hospital Monday. O Tiedeman was admitted Monday night to the Worley hospital.

Sooner Pioneer III

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 5. (AP)—Bird McGuire, who introduced in congress the bill to make Oklahoma a state, was in a serious condition in a Tulsa hospital today from a stroke of apoplexy suffered Monday night while making a political speech at Cleveland, Okla. He has been unconscious since the stroke.

McGuire served in congress 12 years as a representative from Indian territory. He is a lawyer and lives in Tulsa.
