BAYTOWN (AP) — A minivan ferrying three generations of a family toward Georgia careened out of control and rolled into the San Jacinto River, killing four people as it sank. Another man was missing and presumed dead.

By DAVID BOWSER Staff Writer

Record temperatures are pushing the demand for electricity in the area to the limits.

Power outages were reported last week in Gruver, Stinnett, Miami and Canadian Canadian officials said the city lost power for about two hours the morning of Monday, July 9.

Miami officials said they lost power that afternoon for about an hour and 45 minutes.

Stinnett reported the city lost power on Saturday, July 7; Monday, July 9, and again Saturday night, July 14. A lightning strike near Gruver

Saturday cut power for about 900 residents for about 10 minutes until the community could be switched to another power station, Bill Crenshaw, spokesman for Xcel Energy, parent company of Southwestern Public Service.

Crenshaw said the outage at Miami was caused by a faulty pole top voltage regulator that had to be replaced.

The outage at Canadian, he said, was the result of electrical problems at a power substation. Crenshaw said the problem had not been corrected, but that SPS crews had by-passed the problem to restore power to Canadian residents.

Crenshaw said heavy demand and hot temperatures caused four transformers to fail in Amarillo last week.

duction and delivery systems," Crenshaw said.

Last week set new records for electrical demand in the utility's 52,000-squaremile service area, Crenshaw said.

Demand spiked last week, in the Texas Panhandle, in eastern New Mexico, the Texas South Plains, the Oklahoma Panhandle and in southwestern Kansas as temperatures pushed above the 100degree mark, creating three consecutive all-time peak loads.

SPS hit its newest peak on Thursday, July 12, at 4,169 megawatts. The peak was 83 megawatts higher than the pre-2001 peak of 4,086 megawatts reached in August, 2000.

The surge in demand, Crenshaw said, "High demand certainly tests our pro-started on Tuesday, July 10, when the total SPS load was 4,088 megawatts. Wednesday, demand surged to 4,150 megawatts.

Crenshaw blamed the increased demand on the use of energy to power air conditioning and irrigation systems to pump water for crops

SPS has seven major power generating plants. They are located near Amarillo, Lubbock, Muleshoe, Earth and Hobbs, N.M

Crenshaw said the last two weeks of July and the first two weeks of August are high demand periods in the region.

"Typically," he said, "we may have transformer overloads through these hot days.

The forecast highs for Pampa the rest of this week is in excess of 100 degrees.

Petition protests any tax incentive for swine industry

Positive attitude may prolong life

LEXINGTON, Ky. — If you're happy and you know it — you just may live longer.

Research stemming from a 15-year study of aging and Alzheimer's disease in nuns suggests a positive emotional state at an early age may help ward off disease and even prolong life.

"It's been known for years that pathological expressions of emotion like depression or hostility can lead to illness," said David Snowdon, University of Kentucky professor of neurology and director of the Nun Study for the school's Sanders-Brown Center one Aging.

"Our theory is that negative emotional states such as anxiety, hatred and anger can have a cumulative effect on the body over time. Over decades and decades, people that turn these negative emotions on and off several times daily are hurting themselves and are more likely to fall victim to heart disease and stroke.

Snowdon's findings were published Monday in The Journal of Personality and Social Psychology

"It's interesting research and it's important research," said Dr Richard Suzman, an associate director at the National Institute on Aging. "I believe this most recent finding that optimism can predict and even aid longevity will lead to a lot of further study in this area.

Since 1986, Snowdon has carefully tracked participants in the study, who all are members of the School Sisters of Notre Dame. All 678 agreed to annual cognitive and physical assessments, blood tests and the donation of their brains to the research team upon death.

The study has produced evidence that stroke or head trauma can increase a person's chances of suffering from dementia or Alzheimer's disease later in life. It also has shown that folic acid may help fight the ravaging affects of the disease, which robs the elderly of cognitive function before killing them.

Several years ago, Snowdon and his colleagues analyzed 180 autobiographies written by the nuns in their early 20s. They found that the elderly sisters who expressed themselves at a more complex level in their earlier essays were less likely to show signs of Alzheimer's disease as they aged.

"We learned that by looking at early mental function, we could predict with 85 to 90 percent accuracy which ones would show brain damage typical with Alzheimer's 60 years later," said Snowdon, 48, whose book on the Nun Study, "Aging With Grace: What the Nun Study Teaches Us About Leading Longer, Healthier and More Meaningful Lives," was scheduled for release Tuesday.

Now, after poring over the autobiographies again and looking for key words such as "happy," "joy," "love," "hopeful" and "content" Snowden has found that the nuns that articulated more positive emotions lived as much as 10 years longer than those expressing fewer positive emotions.

"That goes along with other studies that have shown that people who rated more positive on personality tests were more likely to live longer than those who were more pessimistic," Snowdon said. "The more optimistic a person is, the less stress that person puts on his or her body over time."

TOP OF TEXAS SHEEP DOG TRIALS RETURN TO PAMPA TOP O' TEXAS RODEO ARENA AUG. 11 @ 6:00 PM AUG. 12 @ 7:30 AM

The West Texas Sheep Dog Association is pleased to announce the return of the Top of Texas Sheep Dog Trials to Pampa on August 11th & 12th at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena. The Top of Texas Sheep Dog Trials is sanctioned by the Texas Sheep Dog Association and the West Texas Sheep Dog Association. This event is growing as there were fifty-four dogs in last year's trials as compared to an expected seventy dogs this year. This is great for Pampa because a majority of the dog owners will be spending at least one night in town.

In recent years there has been a tremendous growth in interest in herding dog trials in North America as well as in Europe, where stock dog competitions kind somewhere. originated in the 1870's. The first

Pampa teacher three-time pipeline award-winner

TULSA, Okla. — Teachers and counselors usually recommend their students for awards. Students have been returning the favor a lot lately thanks to a pipeline company.

Pampa High School science teacher Beth Shannon is going to get a $500 teacher achievement award for the third time based on nomination from 2001

Valedictorian Kira Chumbley. Chumbley won a $1,000 college scholarship from Tulsa, Okla-based Williams this spring through the company's Mid-America Pipeline subsidiary.

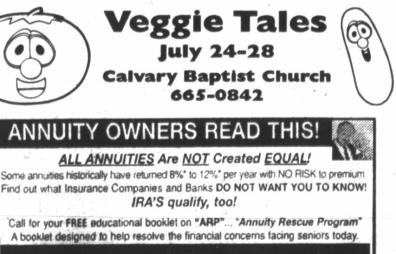

Under the program, scholarship winners are asked to choose a teacher who made an impression on their life.

DENVER (AP) — In a bout that seemed to feature as much clutching as punching, Hector Camacho used a steady mix of right jabs to set up his left hook in a unanimous 12-round decision over 50-year-old Roberto Duran on Saturday night.

The 39-year-old Camacho received winning scores of 114-112, 118-108 and 118-108 to improve to 75-4. He captured the fringe National Boxing Association title Duran carried into the ring.

The fight could be the last for Duran. Since 1967, he has fought at least once every year except 1985, and his 104-16 record spans five decades.

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Kevin Harvick, the youngster who replaced superstar Dale Earnhardt after the Intimidator was killed in the Daytona 500, won the inaugural Tropicana 400.

The 25-year-old Harvick, elevated to a full-time ride in Winston Cup a year ahead of schedule after Earnhardt's death, held off Robert Pressley by 0.649 seconds on new Chicagoland the Speedway.

Ricky Kudd was third, followed by Dale Jarrett, Jimmy Spencer, Martin, Matt Kenseth and rookie Kurt Busch.

TORONTO (AP) Michael Andretti, shuffled to last place on the first lap of the Molson Indy, took advantage of 11 caution periods to win the race for the seventh time in its 16-year history.

Andretti's second straight Toronto victory broke a CART record he shared with Al Unser Jr. for most wins in one event. Unser won Long Beach six times when he raced in CART.

PONTARLIER, France (AP)

 Riding through France's Jura mountains, Lance Armstrong might have enjoyed the lush green pastures, the gentle murmur of the Doubs river or the pretty houses with their low, wide roofs.

He certainly had enough time.

The defending Tour de France champion crossed the finish line of Sunday's eighth leg nearly 36 minutes behind the stage winner.

The Texan was in good company. All the title favorites -Armstrong included - were in the main pack, which finished 35 minutes and 54 seconds after Erik Dekker.

It was the biggest gap between a leader and the main pack in modern tour history, which dates back to 1947.

The previous record, set in 1976, was a comparatively paltry 22:50.

Umps file grievance on pitch counts

NEW YORK (AP) — Claiming baseball manage- or not it is coupled with a ment "threatens the integrity of the game," umpires filed a grievance to stop the commissioner's office from pressuring them to call more strikes and reduce pitch counts.

The grievance, filed late Saturday, says the commissioner's office violated the umpires' new labor contract by keeping track of the average number of pitches in games worked behind the plate by each umpire and ranking each umpire in that category.

"If you have good pitchers pitching, there will be fewer pitches thrown) but if the pitchers are struggling, we can't control that," umpire Randy Marsh said Sunday. "If the pitch is a strike, it's a strike, and if it's a ball, it's a ball."

Larry Gibson, a lawyer for the umpires, notified baseball of the grievance in a threepage letter he faxed to the commissioner's office.

"The union has learned that the office of the commissioner believes the average to be around 285 pitches in a nineinning game," Gibson and Joel Smith, another union lawyer, wrote in the letter. "Umpires are being told that this number is too high and to 'bring your pitch count down' ... to 270 pitches a game."

Gibson and Smith wrote that umps have been told to "call more strikes," "be aggressive" and to "hunt for strikes."

direct instruction to call more be directly attributed to pitchstrikes, interferes with an umpire's duty to exercise independent judgment on each pitch," the letter said. "Pitch count pressure threatens the integrity of the game, in that it brings on to the playing field improper influence on umpire performance." The labor contract calls for the sides to meet on the issue. If they can't resolve it, the case would go to an arbitrator.

"This is the first I've heard of it," Sandy Alderson, executive vice president of baseball operations in the commissioner's office, said when told of the grievance.

"I'm sure we'll meet with the union to discuss it. I think this has been taken way out of context by the union. I'm surprised they haven't attempted to discuss this matter with us privately and have resorted to this more public approach." Baseball and its umpires° have been at odds for more than two decades. Just last month, umpire Al

Clark was fired for charging plane tickets for his wife to a credit card paid for by the commissioner's office.

Larry Barnett, one of baseball's umpire supervisors, retired July 6, partly because of the pitch-count pressure.

"I just didn't feel I could go that direction," said Barnett, whose retirement was first reported Sunday night by The New York Times on its Web site.

A major league umpire from 1969-99, Barnett became a

"The pitch count, whether supervisor two years ago. He said his retirement could not count pressure, but to "a bunch of things."

Barnett also said he felt uncomfortable with the decision to push for more strikes, especially when he had to call a young umpire about it.

"I never even thought about it in all the games I umpired," Barnett said. "If you have two very good pitchers, this is my opinion, you might get a low pitch count. If you make four or five pitching changes, you might get a high pitch count." Commissioner Bud Selig has been concerned about the lengthening time it takes to play games and has pushed, with little success, for the pace to speed up.

The average time of nineinning games this year is 2 hours, 55 minutes, according to the Elias Sports Bureau, down just two minutes from last year.

Gibson blamed slow games on the 2:05 allowed between innings for television commercials, a time increased to 2:25 for nationally televised games.

"Is an umpire to catch up on his average going from one game to the next and is he to keep that average in mind when making a judgment as to whether a particular pitch is a strike or a ball?" the letter said.

Rob Manfred, baseball's executive vice president for labor relations, declined comment.

"We ought to be able to resolve this," Gibson said Sunday. "We understand there's actually a chart they developed that ranked all the umpires by pitch count over eight games. We want to see it. We hope in the future, it doesn't get created again."
